

LOSE YOU TO FIND ME

B. Celeste

LOSE YOU TO FIND ME

B. Celeste

ALSO BY B. CELESTE

The Truth about Heartbreak The Truth about Tomorrow The Truth about Us Underneath the Sycamore Tree Where the Little Birds Go Where the Little Birds Are Into the Clear Water Color Me Pretty Tell Me When It's Over Tell Me Why It's Wrong Dare You to Hate Me Beg You to Trust Me Make You Miss Me When It Rains Wanted You More Girl Going Nowhere

ALSO BY B. CELESTE

The Truth about Heartbreak The Truth about Tomorrow The Truth about Us Underneath the Sycamore Tree Where the Little Birds Go Where the Little Birds Are Into the Clear Water Color Me Pretty Tell Me When It's Over Tell Me Why It's Wrong Dare You to Hate Me Beg You to Trust Me Make You Miss Me When It Rains Wanted You More Girl Going Nowhere

Copyright © 2024 by B. Celeste

Kindle Edition

Cover and internal design © 2024 by Sourcebooks

Cover design by Leticia Hesser

Cover images © Kvocek/Depositphotos, MikeOrlov/Depositphotos

Sourcebooks and the colophon are registered trademarks of Sourcebooks. Bloom Books is a 1 of Sourcebooks.

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced in any form or by any elemechanical means including information storage and retrieval systems—except in the cas quotations embodied in critical articles or reviews—without permission in writing from its Sourcebooks.

The characters and events portrayed in this book are fictitious or are used fictitiously. Any sir real persons, living or dead, is purely coincidental and not intended by the author.

All brand names and product names used in this book are trademarks, registered trademarks names of their respective holders. Sourcebooks is not associated with any product or venctoook.

Published by Bloom Books, an imprint of Sourcebooks P.O. Box 4410, Naperville, Illinois 60567-4410 (630) 961-3900 sourcebooks.com

Cataloging-in-Publication data is on file with the Library of Congress.

Printed and bound in the United States of America.

VP 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

Copyright © 2024 by B. Celeste

Kindle Edition

Cover and internal design © 2024 by Sourcebooks

Cover design by Leticia Hesser

Cover images © Kvocek/Depositphotos, MikeOrlov/Depositphotos

Sourcebooks and the colophon are registered trademarks of Sourcebooks. Bloom Books is a trademark of Sourcebooks.

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced in any form or by any electronic or mechanical means including information storage and retrieval systems—except in the case of brief quotations embodied in critical articles or reviews—without permission in writing from its publisher, Sourcebooks.

The characters and events portrayed in this book are fictitious or are used fictitiously. Any similarity to real persons, living or dead, is purely coincidental and not intended by the author.

All brand names and product names used in this book are trademarks, registered trademarks, or trade names of their respective holders. Sourcebooks is not associated with any product or vendor in this book.

Published by Bloom Books, an imprint of Sourcebooks P.O. Box 4410, Naperville, Illinois 60567-4410 (630) 961-3900 sourcebooks.com

Cataloging-in-Publication data is on file with the Library of Congress.

Printed and bound in the United States of America.

VP 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

For my friends, who listen to me talk about the books I'm either read writing twenty-four-seven because I have no other life

For my friends, who listen to me talk about the books I'm either reading or writing twenty-four-seven because I have no other life

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Title Page

Also by B. Celeste

Copyright Page

Dedication

Playlist

Prologue

Chapter One

Chapter Two

Chapter Three

Chapter Four

Chapter Five

Chapter Six

Chapter Seven

Chapter Eight

Chapter Nine

Chapter Ten

Chapter Eleven

Chapter Twelve

Chapter Thirteen

Chapter Fourteen

Chapter Fifteen

Chapter Sixteen

Chapter Seventeen

Chapter Eighteen

Chapter Nineteen

Chapter Twenty

Chapter Twenty-One

Chapter Twenty-Two

Chapter Twenty-Three

Chapter Twenty-Four

Chapter Twenty-Five

Chapter Twenty-Six

Chapter Twenty-Seven

Chapter Twenty-Eight

Chapter Twenty-Nine

Chapter Thirty

Chapter Thirty-One

Chapter Thirty-Two

Chapter Thirty-Three

Chapter Thirty-Four

Chapter Thirty-Five

Chapter Thirty-Six

Chapter Thirty-Seven

Chapter Thirty-Eight

Chapter Thirty-Nine

Epilogue

Excerpt from Beg You to Trust Me

Acknowledgments

About the Author

PLAYLIST

"Lose You to Love Me"—Selena Gomez
"Wish You'd Miss Me"—Chase Wright
"Flowers"—Lauren Spencer-Smith
"Better Off Without Me"—Kyle Hume
"Afterglow"—Taylor Swift
"Breath"—Breaking Benjamin
"Take Back Home Girl"—Chris Lane ft. Tori Kelly
"Hold Me While You Wait"—Lewis Capaldi
"Marry Me"—Thomas Rhett
"From the Ground Up"—Dan + Shay

PLAYLIST

"Lose You to Love Me"—Selena Gomez
"Wish You'd Miss Me"—Chase Wright
"Flowers"—Lauren Spencer-Smith
"Better Off Without Me"—Kyle Hume
"Afterglow"—Taylor Swift
"Breath"—Breaking Benjamin
"Take Back Home Girl"—Chris Lane ft. Tori Kelly
"Hold Me While You Wait"—Lewis Capaldi
"Marry Me"—Thomas Rhett
"From the Ground Up"—Dan + Shay

Prologue

RAINE

 $T_{\rm HE\ UNIVERSITY\ FOOTBALL}$  field looks different set up for the graceremony. Instead of the bleachers being full of fans sporting Lindon's red team colors, it's a crowd of people in formal wear supporting their ones, spread in rows of folding chairs across the turf.

A pressure builds in the pit of my stomach when I hear Raine Copelin announced through the microphone. On wobbly legs, I look crowd and see a blur of faces cheering me on. Mom and Dad are there each other with big smiles on their faces despite the divorce drama been going through for the past few months, and Mom's sister, Aunt I is perched on her other side, holding up her phone to take a billion I that she'll undoubtedly tag me in later.

Skin tightening as I shake the long line of hands before accept diploma, I turn to face the front of the stage and roll my shoulders stand taller. There's a warm buzz creeping along my skin as I hear on in particular cheering me on louder than anybody.

From the corner of my eye, I see Caleb Anders clapping the l along with half the school's football team cheering right alongside him

Normally, the former running back whistling at me is the one even has their eyes on when he's standing on this field. There isn't one gam that I missed during the season. I'd sit beside every other fan watch Dragons take on their opponents, feeling the anxiety of every chase, and touchdown that came with the intense game.

I keep reminding myself that this very moment has been one I'ver dreaming of for years. The start of something new—a big future we Copelin printed on an office door in bold lettering to a practice that is mine.

But I know the future is murky when it comes to other people's plane.

Namely, Caleb's.

My ears ring when the ceremony ends and everybody tosses the into the air. I barely register callused hands pulling me to the side wl class disperses with a newfound freedom tied to four years of steep del

Caleb wraps me in a big hug, which I instantly return despite the thump, thump of my pounding heart. Can he feel it drumming again chest? When he pulls back, there's a glossy look to his eyes that a duation alarm bells.

Because I know that the future Caleb wants is about to be thrown is bright face in front of all these people.

A future I can't give him.

Joanna My stomach drops at the same moment as he does onto one knee. to the collective gasp come from the people around us as they watch the beside The people around us as they watch the beside The people around us as they watch the beside The people around us as they watch the beside The people around us as they watch the beside The people around us as they watch the beside The people around us as they watch the beside The people around us as they watch the beside The people around us as they watch the beside The people around us as they watch the beside The people around us as they watch the beside The people around us as they watch the people around us as they watch the beside The people around us as they watch the people around us as t

The panic seeps in as he looks up at me with those warm chocola they've that have always made me feel so loved and taken care of.

When he pulls out a small black velvet box, I know exactly what's inside before he even opens it to reveal the beautiful white-gold ring si the holder. The sun hits the small diamond, making it shimmer like the back to Carry e voice "Will you marry me?"

The ringing in my ears intensifies, drowning out the crowd wait loudest, my response. My eyes lift to graze the eager bystanders and lock with and Tiffany's stricken faces, then Dad's blank one as he stares at the rybody boyfriend of seven years is holding.

e of his Thump, thump, thump.

When I finally look back down at the twenty-two-year-old with a tackle, smile, I know without a single doubt in my mind that I love him. I've him for a long time—long before he gave me that little stuffed polyte been holding a heart that had I love you stitched into it.

rith Dr. It was our thing. His thing. When the verbal words were too muc s solely gift them to me, and I'd felt them all the same.

I love you.

Be mine.

lans for Happily ever after.

I'd fallen in love with his wit and how much he cared for his fami boy kneeling in front of me with wavering lips as he awaits my answeir capsfamily man to his core. He's going to take over the hardware store in label hen oura legacy his father has built for many generations to come.

ot. Which is the problem.

thump, Legacies like that will leave a mark on the world along wit inst his expectations that I can't live up to.

sets off But Caleb can't know about the reason why.

Because then he'd know the truth about what happened that summ into myin 2015.

Inhaling deeply, I let out an unstable breath and slowly start shak head. "I'm sorry. I'm so sorry, Caleb."

I hear a No matter what, I'm going to break his heart. Whether it's now e sceneyears into the future.

With a glassy gaze that I fight, I stare down at the gorgeous ring the eyeswant so badly to be wearing on my finger right now.

Despite the crack that becomes bigger and bigger in my own restingwhisper, "I can't."

itting in ne hope

ting for Mom's ting my boyish e loved ar bear

h, he'd boy kneeling in front of me with wavering lips as he awaits my answer is a family man to his core. He's going to take over the hardware store in Lindon, a legacy his father has built for many generations to come.

Which is the problem.

Legacies like that will leave a mark on the world along with huge expectations that I can't live up to.

But Caleb can't know about the reason why.

Because then he'd know the truth about what happened that summer back in 2015.

Inhaling deeply, I let out an unstable breath and slowly start shaking my head. "I'm sorry. I'm so sorry, Caleb."

No matter what, I'm going to break his heart. Whether it's now or ten years into the future.

With a glassy gaze that I fight, I stare down at the gorgeous ring that I want so badly to be wearing on my finger right now.

Despite the crack that becomes bigger and bigger in my own heart, I whisper, "I can't."

Chapter One

CALEB

Lingering eyes watch me as I walk down the narrow hallway dimigliuorescent lights. One of the rectangular fixtures flickers, making twitch until I force it still and ease my tense facial features. I'm exthough. Tired of saving face and trying to act like my world isn't a collapse around me.

It's day four in the new unit.

Same group of overworked nurses.

Same grumpy, elderly oncologist.

Same distraught, teary-eyed mother.

Consoling her has been nearly impossible, but it doesn't stop n trying. If there's anybody who deserves to be bitter with the world rig it's Denise Anders. After thirty-six years of marriage, she's going to say goodbye to the man she's considered her soulmate from the day th

I can't even pretend I understand what it feels like to lose the love life, because I'm not sure the girl I thought was mine ever was. Not af easily she gave us up.

I'm so sorry, Caleb. I can't.

Three months later, and those words still haunt me. You'd thir nearly a decade together I would have known what to expect from Specifically, the three-letter word to the question I'd been wanting to for a long-ass time. Y-E-S.

Turns out I didn't know shit about the freckle-faced redhead.

"They know," Mom says under her breath, peeling me away fr pitiful thoughts. She muffles her soft sniffle with the tissue I passed he we entered through the sliding doors of the hospital. Her eyes go to t as we pass by them. Sad, sympathetic smiles flash in our directio adding to the anger festering inside me.

I want to rip those smiles off their faces. Every single one. "The know anything," I tell her as she blots her reddened, puffy eyes. They same color brown as mine, but the tears have made them darker than the resting under them. "Miracles have happened before."

Do I believe it'll happen here? No. Dad's brain cancer was diagno late and spread too quickly. A week and a half ago, we were told oncologist that all they could do is make him as comfortable as pos this point.

y lit by The door is ajar when we approach it, and I see the same pretty my eye Emma, on morning rotation taking his vitals. He's awake and talking t hausted especially when he turns to see Mom and me enter the room.

"You're here," he greets in a hoarse voice. He coughs into the fisn't hooked up to tubes and wires, shooting an apologetic look to the raven-haired girl documenting his vital signs on the computer.

Mom instantly walks over, pecking Dad's temple before brush hand through the stubble of hair growing back from where they need to say whiter than ever. Dad said the shade of the shade of the shade of the stubble of hair growing back from where they need to say whiter than ever. Dad said the shade of the

"Hey, old man." I walk over and clasp his hand, not squeezing net hard as I want to. He returns the gesture, his strength not even a third it used to be. The man who would always amaze me as a child for being to loosen rusty bolts, rebuild car engines, and spend hours in the helping Great-Uncle Joe with hay season on his farm now amazes ask her

For simply being here and fighting.

That's all he's done since they found the tumor on his head scan.

Dad looks between Mom and me. "Did you eat something beform my came? The food here is awful, but sometimes Emma"—he shoots his he staff playful wink—"sneaks in snacks and leftovers from the break room." My eyes go to the girl in question, but she won't meet my eyes. I may be don't computer into the corner. "You're all set, Mr. Anders. I'll check in later."

y're the Mom doesn't notice the small wave she offers them, but I do. I loo he bagsparents for a moment, who are already lost in murmured conversation, I slip out the door after her.

sed too "Wait up," I call out, jogging over to where Emma has stopped by the fidgeting with the badge clipped to the breast pocket of her pink I sible atscrubs. "Hey," I say, rubbing the back of my neck. "Look, I'm sorr the other night. I got pretty swamped at the store, and by the time I c nurse, was exhausted."

o her, a Her gray eyes go behind her to the nurse's station, where a fe s eyes, around our age are standing and watching us. They start whispering, Emma to turn back to me, looking a little nervous. She lifts her sh fist that nonchalantly, but I can tell I must have hurt her feelings for not texti e petite "It's okay, Caleb."

I bend down and press a kiss against one cheek, watching both (ing hercolor subtly like they always do. "We both know it's not." She's too eded toher own good sometimes. It makes me feel like a giant dick when I at if heback out on our plans. "Thank you for sneaking snacks in for Darade. always been picky about food, but it's so much worse now that his e it that are limited to what the hospital serves. Mom and I think he's losing Always faster than he should be."

She shifts on her feet, crossing her arms over her chest and tuck early ashands into her armpits. "It could be his body's way of fighting. It tak of whatof energy to battle all the infected cells his body is producing. The m ng ableis only part of the healing process."

hot sun It's the same spiel I'm sure she's given other families who have me forones fighting for their lives. He's doing his best considering how ad things have gotten. We should be grateful he's fighting at all.

Not wanting to think about it any longer, I ask, "Do you v reschedule dinner?"

ore you Once again, her eyes go behind her. This time, a finger goes up from nurse ashift supervisor, gesturing for her to come over. "I don't know, Caleb."

I step toward her, lowering my voice. "I know why you're hesitar Instead, promise not to bail this time, and I won't ask anything about Dad."

ling the There's nothing that says she can't date a patient's family men on youlong as she's not sharing important information that violates HII checked into it before I even asked her out a few weeks ago.

k at my Her eyes soften. "When you didn't text me back last night, I though beforewas a sign that we should reconsider this. You've got a lot going common now between your dad, the store, school. And I'd understand if you labeled. She's ready for anything right now after what happened with you no spital relationship."

y about Emma knows I got out of a long-term relationship, but I never wo losed, Ithe details of how serious it was. Like how I'd planned on marrying before being brutally rejected on one knee. I'd decided my pride cou w girlstake so many hits.

causing The fewer people who know, the better.

oulders With a heavy sigh, I swipe at my tired eyes. "I really am sorry abing her.getting back to you. It didn't have anything to do with you—us. Every started to reply, Mom needed something. It got so late that I ended up of themout. Things haven't been going as smoothly as I'd hoped they would." nice for I've been managing the best I can on my own for the past co have tomonths without dumping my issues onto anyone, no matter how mu d. He'swanted to. The number of times I've nearly broken down, wondering I optionsfuck I got here, without the woman I still love, watching my father c weighttrying to move on as if that could somehow help it hurt less, is too n count.

ing her I don't want to unload that on the one girl who could be an escar es a lotthat part of my life.

edicine So I stand a little taller. "I'd still like to take you out again. I can p up at seven tonight if that sounds good. You mentioned how badly e lovedbeen wanting a burger, and there's this really good brewery cleancedWoodland that serves some of the best I've ever had." When hesitation her eyes, I add, "I could honestly use a break from life. I'm looking i vant toto a date."

It's unfair of me to ask her for anything, but it feels good to be com herwhen all I do is offer myself to everybody else.

..." Rubbing her arm, she lets out a tiny breath and smiles faintly. "

11. It, but IMoving back on her heels, she reaches out and brushes my hand looking forward to it. I'll see you later. Okay? Text me."

nber as I watch her walk off and find myself frowning at the emptine PAA. Ihollowing my chest even after the plans are made.

I do need a break. From summer classes. From the store. From t

ght thathorrible as it makes me sound, I need Emma to give me a distraction rightfor an hour or two. I need to feel like there's someone out there who car're notme even an ounce of the peace I'd once had.

ur last She'll never replace Raine, but she might replace something that'll hole Raine left behind after I begged her to tell me what was wrong.

ent into "I'm confused," Raine tells me, tears welling in her eyes as shall Rainearound my old bedroom at the football house. "It's always been us, ald only How isn't that terrifying to you? What if there are things I can't gomeday? What if there's something out there we don't know about people we could be missing out on?"

out not I stop her. "Where is this coming from? It's always been us aga  $\gamma$  time Iworld. What could you possibly not give me that would make you que passingwe're good enough to make it? I love you. Isn't that enough?"

Her lips quiver as she swipes at her cheeks and shakes her head. 'uple ofknow if love can be enough this time. Not forever."

ch I've Those words still hurt like hell.

now the She was worried there was something else out there—something b lie, andwas a punch to the gut to think she was looking for somebody who conany toeverything I wasn't. Since when was love not enough? When wa enough for her?

be from "I can't do this." That's what she told me when she walked tow bedroom door that day, avoiding my touch. "I'm sorry, Caleb. I coick youthis."

you've It was the world's biggest non-breakup. She didn't tell me it was over indidn't tell me she was through. Didn't tell me she didn't love me. In be a floodsthe lines, and evidently the tears, was the truth.

forward She was over it. Over me. Over us. Because she didn't think our le enough for us to last.

selfish "Caleb?" Mom calls out, breaking my train of thought. Her voice cheery for something bad to have happened, so I force myself to wa 'Okay."into the room, where I catch my father's eyes.

d. "I'm In that frail, all-knowing voice, he says, "She's a nice girl, son." I don't recognize my own voice when I murmur a robotic "Yeah. ess stillshe is."

Mom says, "Make sure you're ready, baby boy. You'll only hurt y his. Asmore if you try to force something. And it's not fair to Emma or anybo n, evenif you're not fully healed from Raine yet. The heart needs time to reconn offer This time, I don't say anything.

Because I don't want to bullshit them with false promises like fill thebeen getting from doctors this whole damn time.

e paces

Caleb. ive you

ive you I was fifteen when I went to my first house party that a classma? Other throwing while his parents were out of town. A few of my friends on t school football team decided to go together, but it didn't take long be inst the all disbanded to drink and try picking up girls. Stion if That pight was full of other firsts too.

That night was full of other firsts too.

First time I asked a girl to dance with me. First time I played 'I don't minutes in heaven. And the first time I almost kissed a girl.

All firsts I shared with Raine Copelin.

I'd seen the girl with dark red hair plenty of times before at scho etter. It head was almost always buried in a thick book in the library, with a ould be her mouth that she tended to chew the end of as she read. She'd sneal s I not favorite snack, Milk Duds, until the librarian caught her and lecturabout how there was no food or drinks allowed in the library.

when the pen she'd been chewing on leaked and she had blue ink all c face. Or when her shoelace was untied in gym, and I was afraid she is over, doing our mandatory two laps before every gym class began.

retween That party changed everything.

"We don't have to do anything," I promise her, readjusting in the overwas closet we were shoved into after the bottle pointed at each of us.

surprised she was even at the party, much less participating. She is too seemed like the type who was interested in being around a lot of people like back. Her squirming gets worse as she looks toward the door, then back "Won't they figure it out?"

I shake my head. "Most of them are drunk. They don't even kn I know from right. I think we're safe."

A small smile appears on her face. "What do we do for the next ourself eyes go to her phone screen—"five minutes?" ody else ver." I said the one thing that jump-started the next seven years. "Tell m you."

they've So she told me about how she was an only child, her mother work tailor, her dad was in real estate, she had been trying to get a dog for to year to no avail, and she was planning on going to college to be psychologist or counselor.

The rest came after.

I stare at the yellow Milk Duds box on the counter display bes he high register at Anders Hardware and grumble to myself before closi fore we textbook and pushing up from the counter.

"Finding everything all right, Phil?" I call out to the elderly man we here at least once a week for some new project he's doing. Ever so the seven retired, he's been restless. If it's not his house he's working on, it's on neighbors' or kids' places. It seems to make him happy to keep busy wife even happier to have the man with cabin fever out of her half ol. Her while.

Phil walks out of the plumbing aisle holding a new valve kit. "Four and in her my own this time, kid," he tells me, dropping it onto the counter in the red her me. "Don't suppose I can get one of those loyal customer discounts, do My lips quirk up at the corners as I ring him up and apply the entended of the second of the

He passes me a fifty-dollar bill, which I make change for as he tells about how his son-in-law doesn't know anything about being hand he dark telling you, son, my Maise could have done so much better than the I was slicker. But she loves him, so what's a father to do?"

Love is a pain in the ass like that. It hits you hard and keeps a firm you even when you wish it didn't.

Phil puts some of the spare change in the glass tip jar that's go pennies and quarters in the bottom. "Tell your dad I said hi. The missi low left have missed seeing him around. We're wishing him the best."

Adam's apple bobbing, I nod. "I will. Good luck on the new projet"—herme know if you need anything else."

After he leaves, I drop back into the seat and stare at the candy again. Despite all the assignments I'm behind on, I decide to reorganiz *e about*things in the store instead.

After an hour, all the candy is off to the side and out of my line c ted as aMilk Duds included. If Dad ever sees it, I'm sure he'll have a thing or the pastsay, but I'd rather have my peace of mind since I'm the one out of my come awho spends the most time here.

I pull out my phone and send a quick text to a few friends and Emma.

ide the ing my

Me: Looking forward to mini golf tomorrow

She's working, so I don't expect a response anytime soon. Af tho's in dinner date, I drove her home and kissed her goodbye. She wore bri ince he lipstick that was inviting as hell, but it still felt nothing like the soft e of his pink lips that hardly ever saw makeup at all. I wish she'd invited me it and his was probably better that she didn't.

Sometime later, Emma replies with three red hearts and nothing els All I can think is...Raine hated emojis.

nd it on front of you?"

ıployee

ek, you

1 Third

s me all

y. "I'm nat city

grip on t a few

ıs and I

ect. Let display

e a few things in the store instead.

After an hour, all the candy is off to the side and out of my line of sight, Milk Duds included. If Dad ever sees it, I'm sure he'll have a thing or two to say, but I'd rather have my peace of mind since I'm the one out of my family who spends the most time here.

I pull out my phone and send a quick text to a few friends and one to Emma.

Me: Looking forward to mini golf tomorrow

She's working, so I don't expect a response anytime soon. After our dinner date, I drove her home and kissed her goodbye. She wore bright red lipstick that was inviting as hell, but it still felt nothing like the soft pair of pink lips that hardly ever saw makeup at all. I wish she'd invited me in, but it was probably better that she didn't.

Sometime later, Emma replies with three red hearts and nothing else.

All I can think is...Raine hated emojis.

Chapter Two

RAINE

 $L_{\rm IGHTNING}$  cracks along the sky, accompanied by another rumble of that rattles the porch windows behind me, but the rain never comes. and humid, and the wind whipping the trees is causing the branches t unruly noises against the glass that have the tiny dog in my lap whinin watch the storm unravel around us.

Fingers grooming the fur of my aunt's mixed mutt, I whisper, "It' Buddy. Your mom will be home soon to curl under the blankets with."

Walking, feeding, and cuddling the cutie curled up on me only ma want a dog ten times more than before. Especially now that I'm on m They say dogs make the best companions anyway.

When Aunt Tiffany heard I'd be in Virginia for the summer, she to stay with me at the family cabin so I wouldn't be completely by like the pathetic, broken-hearted college graduate that I am. Usua parents and Caleb would show up for a week or two around the Fc July, but not this year. Mom and Dad are in the middle of their divor Caleb is probably casting a spell to curse me for breaking his heart, leaves my mother's cynical sister who likes to make comments abo love is for fools anyway.

Though Tiffany hasn't exactly been around lately because she sneak off to the local community center under the guise of volunteeri not completely naive to the inner workings of Radcliff. The community center doesn't typically take volunteers, not even when they host bingo.

She doesn't think anybody knows about Casey, the attractive bo man who works behind the counter at the building. The women in my like to act like they're better off alone after every single one of them up divorced, starting with my great-grandmother Claudette, followed grandmother Maud, Aunt Tiffany, and now my mother. Apparently, my aunt wants to keep her newest man under wrap that'll somehow break the curse we all seem to think we're stuck we sort of cute watching her sneak around like a teenager. Pointless but cut

I find myself smiling at the feisty woman who looks just like me mother. From our porcelain-doll skin to our lean statures to our dark eyes with speckles of gold in them, we all look nearly identical, we exception of our various shades of red hair. Mom and Tiffany both look thunder reincarnations of Susan Hayward—Dad's favorite classic movie actres to because of his chocolate-brown hair, mine is a dark shade of burgung to make brown and red highlights that's pretty in its own way but nothing like of my parents. And maybe that's a good thing.

I learned to be independent to a fault because of the women in my who had to do so much on their own when their relationships fell spent years looking up to Tiffany and Grandma Maud, wanting to be jukes me beautiful for their futures. They were both dealt shitty hands with the their lives but managed to get out before it was too late. I didn't kn wanted grandmother very well before she died, but I was told plenty of stor myself

lly, my
I swore to myself that I'd never wind up in the same situation as urth of Training and the same situation as urth of the same situation as urth ce, and so that Well, congratulations, that bitter little voice inside my head tauni so that

The next crack of thunder scares me out of my quickly de thoughts. My startled jump makes Buddy tumble off my lap and bolt likes to be beginning to the house.

ng. I'm Despite this cabin being full of fun memories with the people I lov munity are some bad ones too, with people I hardly even knew.

Summer was always the season full of mistakes.

The crushing feeling in my chest reminds me that those mistakes a hemian got me here in the first place.

I think of the boy with brown eyes that I'd fall asleep to dream of wound every night. His eyes were always soft, warm, and full of love whenev by my

But those beautiful eyes instantly changed when I opened my m graduation, and to this day I still think about those two words I told hir os as if I can't. ith. It's I can't. ite. I can't.

and my Now I'm in a different state, getting eaten alive by tiny bugs as the brownair frizzes my hair. All because of one night after s'mores, one too with thebeers, and a cute blond boy who flashed me a smile.

ook like It isn't even that night I regret. I was young and dumb, but I didness. Butanybody anything. It's everything that happened afterward that haunts dy with Tiffany told me I should just stay in Virginia instead of going e eitherNew York for grad school, but I think it's only because she want family here. Ever since Maud passed away, she hasn't had many perfamily the area unless we visited for the summer. All she has is a small apart apart. Inorthern Virginia, the cabin here, which is in Mom's name, and the nust likepretends she's not half in love with because she doesn't want to be nething that sort of thing.

men in Aunt Tiffany never minced her words whenever I'd visit dur low mysummer. "Don't put all your eggs in one basket," she'd tell me whene ies thatbring up my high school sweetheart. It isn't as if my family ever him. A man like Caleb is impossible not to like, and even my cynic any ofadmitted as much. Still, her comments over the years fed into the ar felt when he dropped to his knee in front of the crowd of people at grats. *Now*and asked me to spend the rest of my life with him.

In spite of my family watching and expecting me to say yes, I cecliningforce it out. I love Caleb. But are we capable of loving each other fo throughwe can't give each other everything we want out of life?

Swallowing, I pull my legs up to my chest and grab my noteboc e, therethe tiny table that my grandfather carved from a log. The end of the b is chewed up from all the mindless gnawing I do when I should be re new case study to keep up on the psychology assignments bound to re whatme when grad school starts in the fall. The only benefit to being surr by failed relationships my whole life is figuring out how badly I'd lov almost them for others. That's why I want to become a counselor.

rer they Clicking the pen to release its tip, I open to the page I left off on, marked up with little comments in the margins of the pages.

outh at More lighting flashes across the sky.

n. More thunder shakes the ground.

Nibbling my bottom lip, I rest my head against the back of the ch stare up at the sky, trying to sort out my thoughts.

I hear car tires make their way up the gravel driveway and know humidaunt's friend bringing her back. I take a deep breath of the muggy air many setting my feet back down and watching as Tiffany carefully expassenger seat of the car parked several feet away.

n't owe I force a smile when I hear my aunt's friend call out, "She's a preme. Tiff." I think her name is Jodi. She always covers for my aunt wl back tothey're out because heaven forbid anybody knows she's dating someons more Tiffany closes the door and looks at the woman behind the wheel. Tople in a smart one too. Learned a lesson we certainly didn't at her age. Look ment inbeing able to travel and have alone time whenever she wants. I'm nan shejealous I didn't leave sooner to have that experience for myself."

lieve in Smart would have been following my heart no matter how many was warned by the woman walking up the steps that the heart would ing thenowhere in life.

ever I'd "Think with your brain, Raine."

disliked The human brain is our most complex organ, and unlike our he cal auntgives up far too easily.

nxiety I When Tiffany sees the skeptical look I'm giving her, she wigg duationfinger at me. "I don't want any comments from you. I seem to recall not that long ago when you were sneaking back in after that surfer wouldn'twas dropping you off from the party you went to."

rever if Heart hammering at the reminder, I lower my pen and stand with a "Don't bring him up. It was a long time ago."

ok from My aunt rolls her eyes. "Nobody is a saint, Raine. Not even you." As if she has to remind me.

ading a drown

ounded

The second my toes dip into the cool pool water a few days lat instantly brought back to my sixteenth birthday. Since my birthday is already I always spent it poolside with my family barbecuing. They'd in neighbors because most of them had kids around my age, and we'd m neighborhood party.

nair and That summer, I met Cody. Considering the blond-haired, blue seventeen-year-old changed my entire perspective on life after one ho it's mynever even knew his last name. His family was only visiting friends for beforedays. The invite he'd gotten to the party was a fluke. Looking back cits the should have never entertained him when I had Caleb, even if we had the exclusivity talk yet.

tty one, But I knew the second he flashed his charming smile that made m neneverI was done for. Had I known that I'd agree to sneak off later that nig ne. the bonfire? No. But I definitely wasn't drunk enough to blame alco "She'smy decision to sleep with him.

at her, Dunking my head underwater, I come up for air and comb my v a littleout of my face with my fingers.

"I'm heading out," Tiffany calls to me from the back door. "You times Ileft a message on the landline. She said you weren't picking up your pl get me Frowning, I wade over to the edge of the pool and lean against thought you said you were going to hang out here with me. Are nordering pizza later? I finally found the takeout menu buried in the earts, itdrawer."

If Aunt Tiffany remembers it's my twenty-third birthday, she does gles herso. I didn't hear her say it when I walked into the kitchen earlier, an a timemade no mention of it in the hours since.

vannabe She looks at her watch. "I made plans already, but I'll let you know back in time. Buddy has already been out and is sleeping in the gues frown.so he'll be fine until tonight. Enjoy the sunshine!"

Watching her leave, I push up from the tile and grab my towel fi lounger. When I find my cell, I see some missed texts from Mon couple of missed calls from former sorority sisters. After returning people's birthday wishes, I see Mom's number pop up on the screen as Swiping to accept, I put my cell to my ear and say, "You said yolast night."

er, I'm Mom sighs. "I'm sorry, sweetie. Your father called to finalize in July, things for our appointment. I swear, that man can't even be decisive vite the our divorce. One second he wants it, the next he doesn't."

ake it a The last thing I want to hear about is my parents' divorce millionth time, so I work on wrapping my towel around my body and the edge of the lounge chair. "Did Tiffany call you? She said she wa ne-eyedto check in with you about coming down here before I head back tookup, IYork, but she was tired after dinner, so I don't know if she brought it or a fewdidn't even want to watch Real Housewives."

now, I Mom makes an amused noise. "I think your aunt is finally realizin't hadshe can't keep at it like she used to. She texted me at two in the morr other night. Two! She's going to be forty soon. It's ridiculous how see blushlike a preteen sometimes. We spoke earlier today about me coming cht aftersome point, but I don't know, Raine. I may not be able to swing it the shol for Things with the divorce have been dragging on longer than I expected don't want to keep delaying it being finalized. But enough about that. vet hairbore you with the details."

My whole life I've had to hear them bicker about something. Da ir momfew dirty dishes in the sink. Mom didn't set the code for the garage hone." never failed.

st it. "I Dad has always loved me, but I don't know if he's always loved he we stillnever cheated, at least to my knowledge, but it was obvious that he wakitchenthat invested in making things work. Which, sadly, is probably for the

the end. The only thing I truly care about is if they're happy, even if it sn't saythem living two separate lives.

on the towel. "The neighbors put a new pool in, so I got to spend the v if I'mthere while they grilled. It was fun. The whole neighborhood basicat room, together. You would have loved it."

Mom loves being social. It was one of the reasons I liked her beir com the She took the lead when people talked us up, and that way I didn't land aanswer a million questions about my life.

§ a few "I wish I was there too. I'll do my best to find time before you' gain. here for school. Which reminds me—" u'd call I groan, knowing what's coming next.

"Are you sure that you want to go back to Lindon? You have ot e somefrankly better options for getting your master's and certification. I go e aboutand saw at least three other universities that would be a better fit for academic level. You'd have a better reputation with degrees from for thethose."

d sit on We both know it isn't the school's reputation that she's trying to s s goingfrom. "I already told you that I'm going to be fine, Mom. It's not the to Newthe world. Lindon is my home, and nothing will change that."

up. She When she's quiet, I know it's because she's trying to find any ex convince me otherwise. But she knows I'm right. Lindon is where I w ing that and raised. All my memories are there. The good and the bad.

ing the Caleb is a mix I can't avoid forever.

the acts "I just worry," she finally admits softly.

lown at "I know."

is year. "I want you to be happy."

d, and I "I know."

I won't "Maybe if your father stops trying to take half of everything, we you into a better program elsewhere once you finish your first semes d left ayou could talk to him about it. You've always had him wrapped arou door. Itlittle finger of yours."

Eye twitching at the undertone in her voice, I rub my clammy palr er. He'sthe side of my thigh. "I'll think about it."

ısn't all I won't.

best in I've made up my mind already.

t means Hoping to turn the conversation around, I change gears with a tone to my voice. "Since today is my—" thread "Baby, I've got to go. Your father is calling me again."

Fourth Blowing out an agitated breath, I say, "Okay. Well, can you call mally got The call ends before I can finish my sentence, leaving me staring background picture of me and Caleb from last year. I changed it short ig here graduation, but my chest tightened whenever I looked at the pretty have topicture I replaced it with. It was too much change too quickly.

With the reluctant truth that the people closest to me forgot my bir re backspend the rest of the day watching sappy eighties movies and sulking room.

Just before I go to bed, a text comes through from the last person I her and

ogled it Caleb: Happy birthday

or your

one of

ave me

end of the world. Lindon is my home, and nothing will change that."

When she's quiet, I know it's because she's trying to find any excuse to convince me otherwise. But she knows I'm right. Lindon is where I was born and raised. All my memories are there. The good and the bad.

Caleb is a mix I can't avoid forever.

"I just worry," she finally admits softly.

"I know."

"I want you to be happy."

"I know."

"Maybe if your father stops trying to take half of everything, we can get you into a better program elsewhere once you finish your first semester. Or you could talk to him about it. You've always had him wrapped around that little finger of yours."

Eye twitching at the undertone in her voice, I rub my clammy palm down the side of my thigh. "I'll think about it."

I won't.

I've made up my mind already.

Hoping to turn the conversation around, I change gears with a hopeful tone to my voice. "Since today is my—"

"Baby, I've got to go. Your father is calling me again."

Blowing out an agitated breath, I say, "Okay. Well, can you call me—"

The call ends before I can finish my sentence, leaving me staring at the background picture of me and Caleb from last year. I changed it shortly after graduation, but my chest tightened whenever I looked at the pretty garden picture I replaced it with. It was too much change too quickly.

With the reluctant truth that the people closest to me forgot my birthday, I spend the rest of the day watching sappy eighties movies and sulking in my room.

Just before I go to bed, a text comes through from the last person I expect.

Caleb: Happy birthday

Chapter Three

CALEB

I'm grabbing my ratty notebook off the desk and sliding my pen i pocket of my jeans when the professor says, "I expect the first draft business proposals to be in my inbox by midnight tomorrow. A assignments will have two points deducted for every hour it has n submitted. I'm not allowing any excuses because it's summer. I don't you're going on a beach vacation. Send your work in before you hit or whatever the hell you kids do for fun."

Squeezing my eyes closed at the newest addition to my growin list, I swear silently to myself and push up from the desk. Even if I approfessor Neilson, the likelihood of him giving me an extension is strong as from my other teachers.

In fact, this assignment should be easy considering I've been word Dad's store basically my whole life. I learned to count by helpir inventory, learned addition and subtraction while helping with the boolearned manners and common courtesy by watching my old man decustomers.

I owe Richard Anders a lot and want nothing more than to ma proud by taking over Anders Hardware. Football might have been a paloved to share with my buddies from the day I joined the youth tean day I signed on as Lindon U's running back, but the family busing always going to be the endgame. Which means anything I can learn be successful will be helpful before...

Throat tightening at the inevitable news we're bound to get about clear it before walking up to the older man wearing his usual tweet "Professor?"

Neilson looks up. "I'm looking forward to your proposal, Caleb. I you'll write one based on the hardware store."

I hold back the slight flinch. "Yeah, I was thinking about it. Bu wondering if—"

"Trust me, you don't want to reinvent the wheel. If there's somet place at Anders, tweak it to fit your vision for the business. It'll mal life a lot easier."

The knowing look he gives me has me backing down from asking extra day or two. I'm supposed to go in to the store after my last clar head over to the hospital before visiting hours end. It doesn't provide a nto the time for me to focus on homework, but I'm not about to say that to Ne Dad's declining health isn't a secret, especially not in a small at a late. Lindon. I've rarely used it as a reason to get out of anything, and have, it's because I couldn't physically do whatever I was supposed care if gotten a few bad marks on class projects that I'd normally ace. My protect the surf would comment on the obvious decline of my classwork and offer extensions or extra credit work for me to up my overall GPA once I g to-do up about the reason, but I never liked it. I was better than using my proach.

People like Professor Neilson don't seem like the type to offer syr Mostly because he isn't keen on giving athletes an extra helping ha some of the faculty tend to. He said during my very first class with he wasn't going to set a bad example by giving anyone a free parks, and because they can catch a ball and score a touchdown. I received the notest with loud and clear then, and it hasn't changed now, even if the circum have.

Shoulders dropping a fraction at the late night ahead of me, I n "Good idea, sir. I'll see you on Monday."

He gathers his things without so much as giving me a second look a good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the best of the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the good weekend. Tell your father I said hi. I've been hoping for the good weekend. Tell your fath Weakness.

Dad, I Scrubbing my face with my hand as I walk through the quad, mentally prioritize everything going on today. Mom is with Dad rigles which means he'll have company until I can close down the store. Momentally it's slow enough, I'll be able to start on my assignment and see if I the later since he always likes getting involved in my business coubrings back some normalcy.

As though he's not dying.

thing in I think we both like playing pretend.

ke your I head toward my beat-up Ford that Dad gave me when I first license. If I were smart, I'd pool together some of the money I've been 5 for an and find a new one that doesn't nickel-and-dime me at every corner. I ss, thentruck, though coated with rust and whining from old age, holds a ton of valuable memories with the people I love that I'm not ready to give up ilson. Not yet.

rea like Maybe not ever.

when I Cranking up the AC that only works half the time, I head towar to. I'veStreet to grab the largest cup of coffee that Bea's Bakery has before gofessorsmy shift. Once Raine quit at the hardware store after my botched procertainwe had a spot open that we couldn't afford not to fill. Business openedboomed at the beginning of summer, right when Dad got too sick to head a Dad'sit and life got too messy to handle an entire store on my own. Even if like I'm doing ninety percent of the work anyway, it's nice having npathy.my part-timer, there when I go to class.

Ind like "There's my boy." Bea, the owner of Bea's Bakery, greets me im thatwalk up to the counter. The older woman gives me a once-over with a ass justlooks like you could use some caffeine. Have you not been sleeping?" nessage "You have no idea," I reply tiredly, knowing there are dark bag stancesmy eyes that age me a few years beyond my twenty-two. "Can I get a my regular? And maybe one of those blueberry scones if you have an nurmur, could use a pick-me-up."

"Working today?"

. "Have "Yes, ma'am." When am I not?

st." "And how is school going?"

t I hate "Busy."

"You know," she remarks, starting to prepare my order, "you don to get a master's degree to run a business. Your father has taught you I try toalready. Hands-on experience will teach you the rest."

ht now, Pressing my lips together, I remain quiet. I've heard that before laybe ifDad. But there's a lot I still don't know and things Dad won't have Dad canteach me. The last thing I want to do is fuck this up and ruin everytheses. Itworked so hard to build.

When Bea places a to-go cup and pastry bag in front of me, she add

I'm saying is that it won't do you any good to run yourself ragge Neither of your parents wants to see that happen to you, least of all now got my Swallowing, I give her a solemn nod and try passing her some mor saving She swats my hand away. "On the house. I think you need it. I's But this before you're late. And think about what I said. Food for thought."

lot of I pick up the items, trying to smile half-heartedly. "Giving aw things isn't exactly smart business, Bea. I may not know a lot, but coll taught me that much."

Her smile grows. "One day, you'll see that paying it forward d Mainsomebody needs it most will get you a lot further in life than holdingoing tohand in expectation."

oposal, Taking that into consideration, I walk out and head down the s always where my truck is parked outside the hardware store.

ielp run I'm almost relieved when I see nobody besides Ronny inside. It it feelsme time to work on homework before going through receipts, month Ronny, and inventory. That's something Mom usually does, but she spends in the sp her time at the hospital these days, and I don't feel right bringing anyt when Iher while she's there. When she offers, I always tell her I've got i tsk. "Itcontrol.

"Slow day?" I ask, voice hopeful as I drop my things behind the cost under Ronny shrugs. He's thirty with a baby on the way. The second clarge of says this job on top of the full-time gig he has at the post office wy left. Ithem bring in extra income, which is a big reason why Mom agreed him to the payroll. She's a softy, especially when babies are involved quiet most of the day, but you know that can change at any time."

When he's gathering his things and clocking out at the computer register, I say, "I hope that's not the case."

He slaps my shoulder and squeezes once. "I do too, man. I talked i't needmom about adding on another couple of shifts to help a little more. I plentyyou tomorrow, and we can talk about the schedule."

I nod. "Thanks, Ron. Tell Ana I said hi."

—from When I'm by myself, I take out my notebooks and personal la time tobegin working on assignments I'm behind on for school. If I don't so hing hefew of the assignments loading on my screen, my GPA will significantly. Again.

ds, "All Not even five minutes into the paper I've pulled up, the bell to the d, boy.door rings and three older men, including Phil the fixer-upper, w w." asking for help picking out the proper supplies for their plumbing proje Underneath the counter, my hands squeeze together before uncleniev. Now gohave to take a long, deep breath and an even longer sip of coffee standing up and offering the smile Dad told me to form even on the ba ay free "Follow me," I tell them.

ege has

1 when

g out a "You look like hell, son" is how Dad greets me a few days later, hi raspy but his dark eyes glinting with humor.

treet to My lips kick up as I close the door. "I'm pretty sure that's suppose my line," I tell him, pulling a chair up to his bedside and looking at 1 'll give of food in front of him. "You've barely eaten. Did Mom get you a ly bills, from the deli like you wanted? I can call and see—" most of He waves me off. "We both know Gretchen's closed for the nig thing to not hungry, anyway. The new medicine has made it hard to eat. Eve t under tastes metallic still." That was one of the symptoms of the old medi was on. Apparently, it hasn't gone away like it was supposed to.

unter. going to get good food, I want to actually enjoy it."

one. He My eyes go to the door for a moment before glancing back at the ill helpbarely picked at. There's applesauce, a favorite of his, and a sadto add sandwich that I can't blame him for not touching. "Mom is going to a . "Been report as soon as I get back," I remind him, picking up the little conta applesauce and passing it to him after opening it. "And I'd rather no by the her. I was raised better than that, remember?"

Those frail, chapped lips lift at the corners for a brief moment. "Y to your pain in my ass, you know that?"
I'll see A lump forms in my throat a

A lump forms in my throat as I watch him wrap his skinny fingers the plastic container and pick up the spoon resting on the tray. "I know Speaking of, would you mind going over some homework with me if ptop to up for it?"

ubmit a That perks him up. "Which class?"

ll drop I'm in two courses this summer until the fall semester starts in a cc weeks. I only get a week and a half off before diving back into a full so ie front ralk in, of coursework. "Business Ethics. Neilson had us submit a business proced. few days ago and gave us some feedback when we got them back too ching. Isaid he'll give us extra points toward our next exam grade if we two before proposals based on his suggestions and resubmit. I could use your advid days, few different ideas I had that could go well with his comments."

I don't tell him that I really need the extra points. I'd like him to th still prospering so he isn't worrying about more than he needs to. D not agree with my choice to go to school for my master's in b administration, but he supports me regardless.

He watches me carefully before focusing on the food in his shaky "I don't think much needs to change at the store. If it's not broke, ded to be it."

the tray I figured he'd say as much, but that doesn't mean there aren't nything upgrades that could benefit the business that this project could be outline for. "I'm not planning on doing anything extravagant. Just a fer

tht. I'm "I'm not even dead yet, and you're already trying to change every rything he says, cutting me off in a sharp, uncharacteristic tone.

cine he We both fall to silence. I feel my heart drop into the bottom of "If I'm cage while he heaves a long sigh and shakes his head.

"I'm sorry," he mumbles, closing his eyes and setting his app food he down. One of his fingers scratches his temple. "I don't know why I sai looking

The doctor said this could happen.

sk for a l've noticed little changes in him ever since the tumor was fou ainer of temper is shorter, and his mood swings happen in the blink of an expectation of the six-foot-five man who's nothing more than skin and bones lying in the state of the six-foot-five man who's nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who's nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who's nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who's nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who's nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who's nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who's nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who's nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who's nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who's nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who's nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who's nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who's nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who's nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who is nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who is nothing more than skin and bones lying in the six-foot-five man who is nothing more than skin and bones lying man who is nothing more than skin and the six-foot-five man who is nothing more than skin and bones lying man who is nothing more than skin and bones lying more than skin and bones lying man who is nothing more than skin and bones lying mo me used to be a giant teddy bear. He rarely raised his voice unless ou're ajustified and nearly never lost his temper.

Rubbing the back of my neck, I readjust in the chair and look at a around which is playing a golf game. Dad hates golf. "Don't worry about in w I am. me to see if there's something else on the television?"

you're He blinks, slowly looking up as if he didn't even know the anything on. "I don't mind this. Why else would I go to all your gan watch you play it?"

ouple of I blink. "I didn't play golf."

For a moment, he looks perplexed by that. It takes him a few s before he slowly nods in realization. "Right, right. Football. Dam oposal aplayer too. I remember when that coach of yours back in high school day. Heto your mom and me about convincing you to talk to the recruiters." eak the "He wanted me to consider somewhere other than Lindon. I didn'tice on ahe talked to you guys about it."

Dad hums. "Many times. Said Notre Dame was watching you. A slink I'm A shame? He never seemed interested in me pursuing that career pad may For the rest of the night, he watches the television screen as if he's usinessbeen a huge fan of the boring sport playing. I remember all the tim rant about how slow the game was and how nothing exciting ever har hands.unless a gator popped up from whatever green they were on down on't fixWhen Mom bought him a polo shirt, Dad said he'd wear it when the out to a nice dinner and then lied about it suffering a washing n out to a nice dinner and then lied about it suffering a washing n certain accident.

a good The quiet gives me time to do some homework at least, with Dad w—" questions every so often. I don't bring up any changes to the store a 'thing," his diminished memory, and he doesn't ask about them.

It's a little bittersweet, but I let it go.

my rib When visiting hours get close to ending, I readjust my feet where propped on the end of the bed and ask, "How are you really feeling lesaucebullshitting me. I know you try saving Mom's feelings from getting high distance." I want to know the truth."

His eyes trail to mine with hesitation, the glassy, dark orbs shown nd. Hishow unwell he really is without him having to confirm it. "It's not to ye. Thetrying to preserve anybody's feelings, Caleb."

front of I watch as my old man's throat works with a thick emotion that it waseven begin to imagine. He's never been very vulnerable with his feel least not to me. So whatever is clouding his eyes, making them glathe TV, with fresh tears that he fights to hold back, tells me that he's got moret. Wanton internally than he allows any of us to know.

His Adam's apple bobs again. "I'm tired, son. So damn tired. And re waslying if I said I wasn't a little scared too, but I think I'm starting to nes andthings. So don't think I'm trying to downplay anything for you are mother. We all have to make peace with the life we're given, and I th my turn to do that. No more fighting the inevitable. Sometimes you secondshave to accept it."

n good There's nothing for me to say after that.

l talked

He pats my arm, as if he understands the turmoil going on in my he Not even I do, though.

't know

hame."
ath.
always es he'd ppened
south.
y went nachine

asking gain or they're ng? No urt, but ing just hat I'm

I can't ings, at ze over e going

1 I'd be accept id your ink it's simply He pats my arm, as if he understands the turmoil going on in my head. Not even I do, though.

Chapter Four

RAINE

A bead of sweat trickles down the side of my temple as I pull my had into a tight updo and perch on the edge of the pool while dipping my for the water. I release a sigh of relief and lean back, closing my ey listening to kids laughing, adults gossiping, and dogs barking in the discontinuous problem.

My ears perk up to the sound of somebody dropping down besi Christopher Hayes, one of my summertime buddies who comes to tov few weeks during the season, shoots me the same goofy smile that's on his face.

"I was wondering when you were going to show up," I tease, nudş shoulder with mine.

It's hard to imagine that the boy sitting next to me used to be the sone in our friend group since he's well over six feet now. He's also pame, which is evident in the way his Irish skin all but glows in the sunlight.

"Did you put on sunblock?" I ask, a little worried about him shirtless. I don't blame him since it's ninety-four today, but I remembe years ago when he got sun poisoning and was sick for weeks.

Chris rolls his eyes, sliding his legs into the pool that our neighbors always leave open for people to enjoy. "You're such a mc muses.

A twinge of pain settles into my stomach at the teasing jab.

In exasperation, he adds, "My mom wouldn't let me leave the hou she watched me put it on."

My eyes do a scan of the lawn to see if Mrs. Hayes is out here v adorable French bulldog. "I haven't seen her much this summer. I had a chance to stop and fuss over Pumpkin when they're out walking.

The face he makes has me smiling. "She heard about all the sightings and has been terrified to walk her usual trail. One of my showed her TikTok videos of bears going after tiny dogs, so nov petrified of bringing Pumpkin anywhere people have reported see cubs. I'll tell her you said hi. I'm not sure she's coming today."

I frown. "That makes two moms then."

His brows dart up. "Janet isn't here?"

My mother's name only deepens the frown as I kick my feet in th and watch the little ripples move outward. "Nope. My parents are nir backgoing through with the divorce that they've been threatening each oth eet into "This are "I'm and "This are "

It's a little embarrassing to admit, but most of the people who'ves and near my family's cabin have heard at least one fight from my whenever they were here. Almost every time they get heated, it leads of them saying they're going to file for divorce. Even though I've at usually doing.

Chris doesn't say he's sorry like everybody else does, which ma even more grateful for his friendship. But what he says is almost worshortest Caleb either, or...?"

ler than before one of my friends here asked about him, considering I've man avoid it so far. I assumed Tiffany told people not to bring him up, never confirmed or denied doing that whenever I'd mention how the going gossip hadn't said anything about Caleb's absence.

People are accustomed to seeing him around for a few weeks, est elderly the small group of friends we used to hang out with. It's the same peoplem," he congregate in Radcliff every summer, with a few additions here and Cousins, friends of friends, newcomers in town for the summer, or we one of us is dating at the time. We've all had our fair share of extrese until we've invited along and people we've tended to keep as a summer se however long they last.

with her haven't My mind goes to Cody again, causing my lips to twitch downward Voice hoarse, I say, "Caleb and I sort of broke up."

Chris straightens, eyes widening as he turns his body toward me bear "Shit. I can't believe he broke up with you. What an assho—"

"Stop," I plead, giving him a pained look that has him pursing I Confusion pinches his brows when he sees the hurt on my face. V w she'sobviously doesn't understand is that it's the self-inflicted kind or ing thebrought on by my own conflicted feelings. "It's not like that. I...it's complicated, and I'd rather not talk about it because I'm trying not to about it. Nothing bad happened though. There's no reason to care anything. He's still...Caleb. He's still a good person."

e water His cheeks pinken as he relaxes his body and stares down at the finallytwist my hands nervously in my lap. "Sorry. I just wasn't expecting the withall thought he was going to propose. Mom even asked if I though show up this summer with a ring." When he sees me wince, he crir re livedthink I'm going to shut up now. Sorry. Again."

parents Chris's awkwardness is sort of endearing, so I manage to push pas to oneheaviness weighing down my shoulders and change the subject. "A cceptedgoing to see the fireworks at Howie's? I saw him earlier and he me g I likethe huge bonfire they were doing beforehand to celebrate the end summer."

kes me The smile I'm greeted with makes me feel a little better, even thot se. "Nosad I'll be leaving soon. Chris asks, "Want to go together? I think I and her newest boy toy are going to be there. Collin too. I don't know of timestill seeing that girl. Stephanie? April?"

aged to I roll my eyes at the botched names. "Her name was Penelope, and but shethink they're together anymore. He's been posting about some girl ne localMika lately."

Chris pops his lips. "What's with people not being able to stick peciallyperson? It's—" When he sees the twisted face I make, he groans. "Sole whobad. I just meant that Amanda and Collin go through people like I there. Sometimes I think that they should just be together. They'd be per whoevereach other."

as who I tip my head back and close my eyes again, letting the sun soak i cret forskin. "Trust me," I tell him in a murmured voice, "there's no such thi perfect couple. Everybody has flaws. It's about how you embrace thos that makes or breaks people."

We don't talk much after that even though it's obvious Chris want ie. "Noquestions. He'll have to get in line though.

ıis lips. √hat he

of painI'm swatting away another bug and regretting not bringing repellant s s reallyHowie's like my aunt told me to when Chris walks over to the empto thinkchair beside mine.

all him "You look sad," he notes, bumping his knee against mine. "I kno mom called when we first got here. Is everything okay? I know you'ı way Ishe couldn't make it down here."

hat. We I'm not sure "okay" is the best way to describe anything involv t you'dmother. Janet Copelin, soon to be Snyder again, has always been c iges. "Iabout everything, especially when it comes to her relationship with my

I never know what she's going to say when I see her name on my phor t all the But it never stops me from picking up when she calls, because I krare youonly reason they stuck it out so long is because of me. And while I approximately approximately a long time ago.

There'd be fewer fights.

igh I'm Less inconsistency.

Amanda We would have all been happier.

r if he's I hate thinking about all the times I was angry at them for putt through the tense fights at home, especially when there was nothing I don'tdo.

named Stretching my legs out, I watch the bright orange flames of the crackle and pop. "Yeah, everything is fine. I wish she had come. The to onehas been..." I think about it before shaking my head. "Not ugly, hit. Mypretty either. It's like neither of them wants to be the bad guy, you kno crazy. My father texts me almost every day to check in on me. Sometime fect forhe's talkative, he'll call, but neither of us likes talking on the pho often. It's after we get talking about school, job applications, and leading about school in the property and leading about a school in the pro often. It's after we get talking about school, job applications, and l into myhe'll ask about Mom. I never want to turn the conversation over ing as abecause it leads to the same thing every time.

e flaws Frustration.

I'm tired of being the person in the middle, hearing it from both s to askkeep telling myself it's practice for when I'm certified. After all, isn't struggling couples like them what I want to do?

Chris nudges me again, amusement coating the friendly smile across his lips. "You keep doing that. Spacing out. Want to talk about if My answer is an instant "No."

spray to His chuckle is quiet as we both watch the other people gathering ty lawnthe fire and surrounding yard. Howie has a big place, and it's a hangout during the summertime that usually leads to too much beer, provided with word of the summertime that usually leads to too much beer, provided with the summertime that usually leads to too much beer, provided with the summertime that usually leads to too much beer, provided with the summertime that usually leads to too much beer, provided with the summertime that usually leads to too much beer, provided with the summertime that usually leads to too much beer, provided with the summertime that usually leads to too much beer, provided with the summertime that usually leads to too much beer, provided with the summertime that usually leads to too much beer, provided with the summertime that usually leads to too much beer, provided with the summertime that usually leads to too much beer, provided with the summertime that usually leads to too much beer, provided with the summertime that usually leads to too much beer, provided with the summertime that usually leads to too much beer.

Crossing my arms over my chest, I blow out a breath and look to (ing mytry pulling myself away from those lingering memories. "Do you want on edgea walk?" I'm feeling too antsy to be sitting around watching Amanda father.like she's auditioning for a new version of Dirty Dancing or a joint be around by Collin and his pretty new friend.

now the Chris instantly jumps up, offering me his hand to help me star preciatesweet, but I shake my head and tuck my hands into the pocket of the healled itstole years ago from Caleb. It used to have our old high school masco but it's so faded from all the times I've worn and washed it that it's blue sweatshirt now that's shrunk enough to fit me halfway decently.

This sweatshirt is the first one Caleb let me borrow when I came one of his football games. He asked me during lunch one day if ting meplanning on going, which I laughed nervously at. We'd barely talked I coulda few passing things in the hallways, so I wasn't sure why he was as couldn't even name all the positions on the field, much less how th bonfireworked. But I went anyway. When he saw me on the bleachers, he divorceover during halftime with the sweatshirt in his hand and told me I but notcold. Then he introduced me to his parents, who I'd seen around to w?" didn't really know, and they told me to sit next to them.

s, when It was the beginning of something beautiful. His parents both ex ne thatthe game whenever I had a question, and we'd all cheer Caleb or ife thatsitting at the edges of our seats.

to her Fiddling with my hands in the pocket of the hoodie, I walk ale Chris in a peaceful silence. As we're rounding the fishing pond that installed on his property a few years ago, I can't help but ask, "Wh sides. Iyou ever bring anybody here during the summers? I know you must helpington of admirers back home."

We stop at a footbridge in the middle of the pond and lean on the spreadsmile to myself when I look into the water, hoping to see somethir it?" never been a huge fan of fishing, but I used to go with Dad and Cal—

No, I scold myself. Thinking about him always makes everythi aroundworse.

known Throat tightening, I turn to Chris to see him looking at me with a pot, and expression. "What? Do I have chocolate on my face from the s'mores? back in He keeps staring quietly.

"Should I not have asked about the girl thing? It's none of my bus Chris towas just curious. You're a good guy. You deserve somebody who mal to takehappy."

a dance The last thing I expect my friend to do is step toward me and proposedlips against mine in a rushed movement that instantly startles me. My dart out with panic and push on his shoulders a little harder than I m nd. It'smaking him lose his balance and go over the edge of the railing and loodie Iwater.

ot on it, My hands grip my mouth as tears prick my eyes, blurring the a basicquickly look over the edge and yell, "Are you okay?"

Chris resurfaces past the ripples and moves his short hair back. eto seestart running over, pointing, laughing, some yelling and asking if I wasright.

besides My fingertips brush the lips he touched, the ones only two othesking. Ihave before, making the tears build quicker.

e game From fear. From hurt. From a mix of emotions that I can't quite ξ joggedthey take over and tighten my lungs.

looked I don't want to think about either of those boys or else I'll think of wn buthorrible things that have happened that led me here.

Choices made.

plained Regrets that haunt me.

1 while It's too much.

I wait long enough to hear Chris say he's okay before runni ongsideelbowing my way through the crowd of familiar faces and feeling déj. Howieover again.

y don't Because all I ever do is run from men.

have a rails. I

ıg. I've ng hurt

worse.

Throat tightening, I turn to Chris to see him looking at me with a funny expression. "What? Do I have chocolate on my face from the s'mores?"

He keeps staring quietly.

"Should I not have asked about the girl thing? It's none of my business. I was just curious. You're a good guy. You deserve somebody who makes you happy."

The last thing I expect my friend to do is step toward me and press his lips against mine in a rushed movement that instantly startles me. My hands dart out with panic and push on his shoulders a little harder than I mean to, making him lose his balance and go over the edge of the railing and into the water.

My hands grip my mouth as tears prick my eyes, blurring them as I quickly look over the edge and yell, "Are you okay?"

Chris resurfaces past the ripples and moves his short hair back. People start running over, pointing, laughing, some yelling and asking if he's all right.

My fingertips brush the lips he touched, the ones only two other boys have before, making the tears build quicker.

From fear. From hurt. From a mix of emotions that I can't quite grasp as they take over and tighten my lungs.

I don't want to think about either of those boys or else I'll think of all the horrible things that have happened that led me here.

Choices made.

Regrets that haunt me.

It's too much.

I wait long enough to hear Chris say he's okay before running off, elbowing my way through the crowd of familiar faces and feeling déjà vu all over again.

Because all I ever do is run from men.

Chapter Five

CALEB

T Here has always been a rush when I'm on the field that starts the r my cleats dig into the turf. Nothing compares to the freeing feeling of whipping through my helmet as soon as I take off, running each yard v ball cradled in the crook of my arm until the stadium explodes with r the touchdown is made.

Football was the mindless escape I took for granted practically my life. It was nothing more than a pastime—a hobby I'm damn good at day.

I've never regretted choosing Lindon over the University of Ten Notre Dame, or any other college that offered me full rides a opportunities for the future. As far as I was concerned, my future was right here in my hometown where I'd mold something big for mys day.

Anyone who knew me knew I saw Raine Copelin as the person that with.

Like Coach Crowe, my old high school football coach, who wou up beside me after games whenever I looked into the crowd searching and my parents. He'd say the same thing every time, as if he was hop day my answer would change. "Something tells me you're not looking scouts here to watch you play, are you?"

And the instant I laid eyes on the girl who sat by Mom and Darsingle game since the first one she attended our sophomore year a school, I'd wave with the dorkiest grin on my face and say, "No, Coac"

He'd smack my back and tell me I was making a mistake by not se considering other colleges, but I would never let him convince me oth Because the future other people saw for me was full of sevenfigure co and Super Bowl rings.

Whenever I saw Raine wave back at me or point at the borrowec with my number on it, I knew without a doubt in my mind I was loc the lifetime of happiness I'd get without all the materialistic things atta

During one of the last games I had with Coach Crowe, I told him was in Lindon and smiled when he asked, "You'd give up a free college and a successful football career all for one girl?"

The amount of confidence I had when I replied that night was th amount I had the day of graduation with the ring box sitting heavy nomentpocket of my gown.

I'd been so sure when I told Coach Crowe, "Nah, not for one girl."

with the girl."

Recouse that girl was gained.

Because that girl was going to say yes.

I wonder what I would have done if I knew how wrong I was bac whole Would I have attended a different school? Traveled and played to this know.

I never will.

"Dude, watch it!" DJ—Daniel Bridges Junior—calls out, cringin nd big the football we've been tossing back and forth nearly collides with melf one teammate on Lindon U's football team in undergrad. Unlike me, the shoulder injury, he might have tried. "You good? One second you we'ld sidle the next you were spaced. What's up?"

for her ing one for the it strong. There's no way you're still tired after that."

I pick up the ball and tuck it under my arm, shaking my head. "Just "Bull," he counters, stealing the ball and spinning it on his finger. Bea's, and we both know she it strong. There's no way you're still tired after that."

All right, so I did caffeinate pretty hard this morning when I met of high stay long, but I downed way more coffee than my heart can probably in less than an hour and then went to the hospital to see Dad before I to service.

"Dad had an episode this morning," I murmur, blowing out a long and gripping the back of my neck. "He started talking about how he light want to miss any of my games. I guess he forgot I graduated already me thinking about how things should have been. At the beginning of the oking at I had a healthy dad and an amazing girlfriend who I bought a rinched. Everything was good. Now..."

my life DJ is one of my best friends, but I feel weird talking about Raine ride toknow he and his girlfriend, Skylar, still talk to her. It isn't like anything bad to say. I would never make them pick sides, knowine samedoesn't have a lot of friends outside the circle we'd formed together.

r in the He sighs, gripping the ball in his hands and nodding once with expression molded across his face. "I get it, man. Shit hasn't been ε All foryou lately, but dwelling on that stuff isn't going to help you now."

Just because that's the truth doesn't mean it's any easier to acco When I told Dad I wasn't on the football team anymore, he k then.threatening to call the coach thinking I'd been kicked off. "You're t footballthat goddamn team has. Give me his number."

I don't It took twenty minutes for him to remember that I graduated. That to leave that life behind.

Mom tried to hide the glassiness in her eyes as she watched the g whenunfold, but I saw it long before she left to get coffee from the cafeter sy face.she actually likes the overpriced sludge they serve.

be my Swiping a palm over my jaw, I shake my head and glance ne wideapartment building that gives me some semblance of peace when I en for aburied at the store, hospital, or school.

re here, The red house was converted into four different apartments that Yager—the owner, contractor, and landlord—used Anders Hard tired."supplies for. I helped him order everything he needed and would occas "I saweven go over to help on smaller projects in between all my makes responsibilities. When the building was finished, Stan offered me price on one of the units. He even lowered the monthly rent as lo DJ andshovel in the winter and mow the lawn in the summer.

couldn't The apartment isn't much, but it's the one space not riddled with a handlememories that suffocate me. I've been able to make new ones here ook mymoved from the football house after graduation.

"Have you heard from her?" DJ asks, bringing my attention back 5 breathWhen I don't answer right away, he asks, "Have you heard from Raine 2 didn't Lips twitching, I shake my head. "Not since I wished her a 7. It gotbirthday."

ne year, I may have looked her up online a few times, but she rarely posts.

ng for.of us are big on social media, but we get tagged a lot by people w Which is how I know she's been staying with her aunt Tiffany at the when Iin Radcliff and going to bonfires a few times a week with the group v I haveto hang out with all the time. Does she see the way Chris looks at her i ing shephotos? Did she do anything about it now that we're not together?

I'd torture myself with every photo, reading through the comment 1 a sadhow good she looks—how happy she looks—but I seem to be the only easy forwho sees that her smile doesn't actually meet her eyes. I don't kn should be happy about that or not. It isn't that I want her to be mis mplish.much less be the reason for it, but it means that we feel the same.

started Neither of us are okay, or we wouldn't be here. Misery loves conhe bestafter all.

Clearing my throat, I brush it off. Brush her off the way I need to I *chose*you said, I can't dwell on that shit. I've got a date with Emma anyway. We're checking out that new brewery that opened. They're e scenehalf-priced drinks."

ia, as if There's a slight change in DJ's face that has my head cocking. He say anything before he tries looking neutral again, but he's never b at thebest at hiding what's on his mind.

I'm not "What?" I press knowingly. "Just say it."

A sheepish smile curves his lips. "I guess I'm wondering how thi Stanleygoing with Emma. It's obvious that you're not over Raine. How could lware's after all these years together? I want you to be happy, bro, but I don't I sionally this is the best idea. There's nothing wrong with taking a little break for other dating scene."

a good Maybe I shouldn't have asked. "Emma is a good person."

ng as I "I don't doubt it. Anybody you give your attention to must answers easily. "But even if somebody is a good person doesn't mean a ton ofgood for you. It hasn't been that long. Jumping into something might since Ithe best idea."

I nod. "You're right, but I like her. It isn't like I'm going to get to him.with anybody right away. She makes things easier. That's all that mat now."

happy I can tell DJ doesn't agree with me, but he doesn't say so.

"Thank you," I tell him, despite our opposite stances on this. "Fo Neithermy friend."

rho are. His smile eases. "You don't have to thank me for that. You've got ir cabinpeople on your side, Caleb. We've got your back."

ve used That's the thing about breakups. There are always sides people in thosebut I don't want that for either of us. I'd like to think there's a reality we can coexist with the same people, especially since she'll be back s is aboutgraduate school.

person Easier said than done though.

ow if I

serable,

ompany Emma hasn't stopped squirming since we were seated thirty minutes the beady-eyed host, nor did she eat her food when it was deliver in "Like fingers have grazed my burger to assemble it, but her distance I tonight appetite waning.

e doing "What's wrong?" I finally ask, knee bouncing under the table. M goes to Dad.

doesn't We've agreed not to talk about him and his diagnosis when we're een the if she knows something about him, I want to know now and figure out tell Mom later.

Her eyes are timid as they peek up to meet mine through the thickings are she's coated with makeup. She always wears some at the hospit you be nothing like tonight. I would have had to be blind to see what kinknow if heartbreaker she is in the red shade of lipstick that makes her lips loo rom the and the dark liner that emphasizes her moonlike eyes.

Ethereal is how Dad once described her.

She carefully sets down the fry that she's been playing with for t be," he few minutes and leans back in her chair. "I think maybe we should call they're My brows pinch as I examine her plate to see if there's something not be with the food. "Is the burger not cooked right? I can ask them to bring new—" serious "I don't mean dinner, Caleb," Emma tells me, lips quivering. "I m ters for Or whatever it is we're trying to be. What I'm trying to say is that I th and I should call it quits."

I sit back in my chair and feel my shoulders tense at the suggestic beingbrought up before. I haven't exactly been model boyfriend materia a lot ofhaven't left her on read or bailed on plans since the last time. I've betwith her. Honest about mostly everything. I told her about Raine a choose, breaking up after graduation. I told her about Raine's uncertainty. I whereher to know that it wasn't me, because I spent weeks on end wonders oon forhad been. But I saw the skepticism in her eyes that day.

Maybe it matched mine.

In hindsight, how could anyone get over someone they claimed love of their life so quickly? I'd like Raine to answer that question for stop staying up at night trying to figure it out.

After a few seconds of staring at the burger in front of me, I lift n ago by to hers and say, "I'm sorry if I did something."

ed. My

It doesn't feel like enough, but there's nothing else I could say t has my her feel any better for not trying harder. I'd like to think if things we weren't the way they are, maybe I would put more effort in.

Then again, I never would have met Emma if he hadn't gotten think I'd take that trade.

out, but "I'm an ass," I admit, scratching the column of my neck. "I know how to probably a guy out there who can give you a lot more attention tha right now."

She quickly shakes her head. "You're not an ass. Honestly, Caleb, tal, but got so much going on that the last thing you need is to add time with ad of a your schedule. You should focus on your father and your classes. And k fuller things. I have work that keeps me busy anyway. It's fine."

I don't believe that. "Is it?"

She closes her mouth and evades my eyes, staring down at her plant sort of has to be, doesn't it? We're on two different paths right now. We'l it."

Why does that pack a punch? "I see where you're coming from g you a don't want this to end. I enjoy spending time with you. You're a great Em. And—"

Her palm lifts, facing me as a sad smile takes over her tremblican us. "Please don't. I've heard it before. The 'it's not you, it's me' angle always feel the need to tell me I'm an amazing person or that I'm pon she's funny to soften the blow for when they tell me they can't give me to l, but I term even before I've asked for it. I don't need to be complimented. think you need to figure some things out. Prioritize your family and years.

en openThat's what I'd do if I were in your shoes."

sick. Ithis.

and me Her tone is delicate, and I know she means every word she say wantedalways appreciated how blunt she is when it comes to what she wants. ing if itmakes me feel like a bigger jackass for not figuring out what it is I ca to the table. "When guys say those things to women, they're not just you lines. They just know you're too good for what they can offer."

was the Scraping my hand through my hair, I shake my head when she me so Idown at her food. I had Mom chop off the long strands last month bel August heat got to be too much. When Dad's hair slowly started g ny eyesback, we went back to looking a lot alike.

Except Dad's face is different than it used to be. Long gone is the o makejaw that I got from him, and in its place is a narrow, sickly bone struct ith Dadshows how unwell he really is. His cheeks and eyes are all sunken collarbones and ribs show. He's always been lean, like me, but nev Dropping my hand onto my lap, I debate what I can say or do.

there's "Can we just...spend time together? Go to dinners, a movie, mayl n I canPutt again. Do things that are mindless fun. We can call it whatever w It doesn't have to be anything more than friendship, although I'd like you'veif we're being honest."

me into Her tongue dips out and wets her bottom lip as contemplation ma ...otherface. "You make it really hard to say no. It isn't that I don't like you to try this. It's that I'm worried I'll get attached if we continue wh can't truly meet me halfway."

late. "It Who says I can't? "Like you said, I need time. Once I figure out Ve needcompartmentalize some things, it'll be easier for me. For us."

Her eyes stay on her food. "Maybe."

1, but I Does that mean she's going to give this a shot? I wouldn't blamperson, she says no, but my gut tightens at the thought of her rejecting me.

"I know it's not a lot, but I'm willing to try," I say quietly.

ng lips. She peeks up at me, bottom lip in her mouth with a conten e. Guysexpression on her face. Eventually, she nods. "Okay."

retty or Okay. We fall to silence for a moment or two before I finally b he long"Are we okay then?"

Look, I I've never liked hurting anybody's feelings, and despite us not k ourself.each other well enough, I like Emma. The last thing I want is hard f between us if this doesn't work out in our favor, especially since v ys. I'veseeing each other quite a bit at the hospital.

Which Hopefully.

in bring That sour feeling is back.

feeding Reality.

It's heavy, holding me down.

e stares Emma picks up another fry and puts on a smile, but it doesn't re fore theeyes like it does when she jokes with her coworkers or talks with her j growingor tells me about something she learned over the course of her shift.

Do I do that to women?

square Maybe I should let her walk away.

ure that Because if we give each other another chance, I could taint her—c in; hisher to the girl who walked away.

ver like I don't want Emma to leave.

But do I really want her to stay?

e Putt-

e want.

it to be

ısks her or want

ien you

how to e her if

iplative

reak it.

nowing

eelings

between us if this doesn't work out in our favor, especially since we'll be seeing each other quite a bit at the hospital.

Hopefully.

That sour feeling is back.

Reality.

It's heavy, holding me down.

Emma picks up another fry and puts on a smile, but it doesn't reach her eyes like it does when she jokes with her coworkers or talks with her patients or tells me about something she learned over the course of her shift.

Do I do that to women?

Maybe I should let her walk away.

Because if we give each other another chance, I could taint her—compare her to the girl who walked away.

I don't want Emma to leave.

But do I really want her to stay?

Chapter Six

RAINE

One thing that four years of psychology classes have taught me is be logical, but another helpful lesson I got from all those stressful conthat logic doesn't get you very far when it comes to personal matters.

I read somewhere that the heart has reasons for the choices we manot even rationality can understand.

No amount of college classes can make sense of why we do what That doesn't stop us from trying to make an excuse to justify our decis

Which is why I'm staring at the house that started it all, wondering thought coming to Radcliff would help me process anything. It suffocto be surrounded by all the things the younger, dumber version of here.

All I can think about while looking at the cute little cabin is the mu was blasting that night. Country, until somebody complained and swi to hip-hop. There was a lot of loud laughter shared among friends drank. Flirty touches as someone passed a joint around the boremember the instant Cody's hand touched mine, I felt butterflies.

I know now that those were warning signals fluttering in my storanxiety telling me he was trouble. To run far, far away from the tenthat led me to follow him inside.

You'd think being an A student means you're smart enough to m right choices, but clearly being book smart doesn't translate well to a else.

"You're not her anymore," I remind myself. Flattening my hand stomach, I feel a swarm of emotion that has my nostrils flaring.

I've made a lot of choices here that I can't go back and change, s only move forward in life the best way I know how. If that means be bad guy in somebody else's story, at least they'll get a happily ever aft someone else.

Giving one last look to the house, I turn on my heel and walk do street to where Chris is staying with his parents. I'd asked if he wa take a walk with me, but he never got back. I knew he was avoid because he always returned texts within minutes.

I'm not sure he'll answer the door when the first few kno unanswered, but then it cracks open and his familiar face appears. He there with arched brows as I rub my arm awkwardly.

"I want to apologize about the other night before I leave," I tell hin He leans against the doorjamb of his family's rental house with h crossed. It's obvious that he isn't over me running from him because that usually invites me in by now. I'd get to pet his mom's adorable Frenc maybe even get some snacks she made. Her chocolate chip cookies at of the best I've ever had.

Nibbling on the inside of my cheek, I add, "I figured it was b g why I Howie's. You took me by surprise is all. I didn't think you were going me did The subtle coeff has a subtle coeff

The subtle scoff he gives me has my lips curling into a from shouldn't have been that surprising. I've always had a crush on you, tched it Everybody seemed to know but you. Even Caleb."

Hearing that name makes my heart hurt, and I doubt it's even trunder as we heart name makes my heart hurt, and I doubt it's even trunder. I he never said anything to me about it. "You and I are great friends. I want to ruin it. Plus, I was with Caleb for so long..."

"But you're not now," he points out, voice rattled with irritati stands straighter and looks down at me. "What? You've got a thing for with C names except me?"

I know he's not referring to just Caleb. "I know you're upset with nything you're not being fair right now."

"Why? Because you don't like bringing up Cody or what you don my him? I don't get why you'd go after a stranger when you could hat opened your eyes and seen me."

Why does he have to bring that up now? It's been a long time sing the summer. "Caleb and I had just started seeing each other. It wasn't ster with Neither was what Cody and I did."

Chris rolls his eyes, stepping back and grabbing the door. "Checheating no matter how you want to justify it. Like you said, Caleb is own theguy. I hardly doubt he deserved that unless you had some sort of agranted tosaying the summers are fair game. I wonder what he's doing this suming mewho."

My nostrils flare as anger boils under my skin from his insinuation cks goside of you isn't flattering. You can be angry, but you have no right standsdick."

The thought of Caleb with another girl makes me want to vomi a. know it's none of my business. I ended things so he could get the fu is armswants. If that can't be with me, it'll be with somebody more deserving tuse he Eventually, I'll accept that.

hie and Hopefully.

"Like I said, I'm sorry for what happened. If I led you on, I didn't me etter todidn't have any idea how you felt, Chris. And that summer with (hing athardly an indication of who I am or who Caleb and I were as a to kissEverybody makes mistakes. We all have to live with them. You don't make them any harder to remember than they already are."

wn. "It Nobody understands what that singular decision did to me—Raine.changed me. And because I'm determined to bury it, nobody ever will.

For a second, remorse weakens his terse expression. If he feels ie sincewhat he said, he chooses not to address it. Instead, he says, "I'll tell Mouldn'tsaid bye."

I'd be lying if I said I wasn't hurt by his dismissal considering on. Hebeen friends for a long time. I guess I get it. Rejection never feels gor guysmatter who you're getting it from.

"Raine?" Chris calls out, stopping me before I get into my car, w me, butparked by the curb of his parents' house. When I turn, I see the person that he is under the masked anger. "Safe trip back."

id with I smile at him, hoping he won't be mad at me forever. "Keep in t we justwant to hear about how med school goes."

He stands at the doorway for a few seconds in silence before note that "Yeah. Sure."

serious. The short reply hits me, and I have a feeling this is the last time I from him about anything.

ating is That's what happens when you cross lines with friends. You ca goodback to fix it when it goes wrong.

1. "This Lindon's Main Street always smells like a mixture of the busing being a offers. The pretty roadway is lined with historic brick buildings, a benches, and greenery carefully planted and maintained by the town's t, but I society that consists of ten older women with nothing better to do. I smell pressed coffee, fresh roses, and something fried that makes my s growl.

One Saturday every month, which happens to land on today, the street shuts down traffic and invites vendors to come in and sell alkway community. The sidewalks are always full of tables from the diners an an to. I on the main drag where people sit and talk while people watching. A factory is market is set up in the square where people can sell their homegrown couple, and there are always local bands playing on a makeshift stage in the need to of the street for everybody stopping by to buy local.

Lindon has always been a small community with a big heart. One how it many reasons I love it so much here, no matter the mixture of mem holds. There are places to go and people to see who are supportive no bad for what gossip is spreading. I didn't realize how much I'd miss it until om you back this morning.

Looking back at my time in Virginia, I spent way too much tim we've because I thought that was what I needed. I'd always been around Ca ood, no his friends, so solitude and time to think was what this summer shou been about. In reality, I used it as a time to avoid every ugly emoti hich is came at me. Turns out it takes a lot of energy to pretend like you call know on from the life you always thought you'd have with someone.

"I'm sorry," I'd told Caleb when he opened the ring box. It ouch? Ibeautiful piece of jewelry. Maybe the prettiest I've ever seen. Pleagant, which is perfect for me. Nothing showy or flashy or overdon odding chosen right.

Ever since I saw the white-gold band with the cushion cut deal lalore, I've had dreams of it on my finger. One night, when I woked all alone, I had tears in my eyes knowing that he wasn't around ar an't go There wouldn't be any more nighttime drives with the radio play.

favorite country songs while holding hands or pit stops at the cream Milk Duds blizzards in the summer or winters spent sledding down to school's steepest hill until we nearly crashed into the bleachers it football field.

When Tiffany saw my bloodshot eyes the morning after those me garden hit me like a freight train, I knew I couldn't tell her that I thought I'd loday I mistake. She would have told me that I needed to stay strong. Women tomach are better off alone, she'd told me countless times.

But what even were "women like us"? Miserable ones? Lonely one entire stubborn for our own good because of our trust issues? I'd like to the to the not as cynical as them, that all their years of talking about the curse mud cafés wonder if I've internalized my own reflections on love and relationshi armers, make sense.

goods, Waving at a few locals who are working their respective booths, middle my way toward the little bakery that has always been my second home to the woman who owns it.

Bea squeezes me in a tight hug as soon as I walk in, the yummy su ories it spice scents lingering in the air and making me feel at peace. "It's good matter you, girly," the older woman tells me, pulling back to give me a once getting clucking her tongue. "You've gotten a tan and lost some weight. I'll send you on your way with some of those molasses cookies you'e alone much. I made Elena help me with a fresh batch this morning before she leb and to school."

"How is Lena doing?" I ask of her teenage granddaughter. She's a lon that ball of energy whenever I'm here, and it's hard not to be amused who move gets stars in her eyes when some of the university's athletes come in for and coffee. She had a huge crush on Caleb for a while that I though cute, especially when it would make him blush whenever I'd tease hir ain yet it. How could I blame the girl? He's a six-foot-two, all-American the e. He'd loves his family, football, and...well, me. His passion alone make attractive, but his looks are an easy bonus.

Bea moves around the counter and grabs a Styrofoam to-go cup for the counter and grabs a Styrofoam to-go cup for the cup in stack and then grips one of the coffeepots closest to her. "I didn't thin lymore. Possible, but I swear that child got even sassier since she turned sever ing our It's obvious she was sent into my life as karma for all the things I did was younger."

iery for I crack a smile. "That bad, huh?"

he high "She's boy crazy" is all the woman says as she pours coffee into t by thethen the creamer and six sugars I always include. I don't know h remembers everybody's orders around here.

emories "She's young," I reply, shrugging. I can't say I was ever boy cramade athat's because my teenage years were spent with one boy. Mostly.

like us Bea waves me off. "I finally spoke to Artie about that space ablounge. I know it's not ideal for your first office, but it'd be a great ses? Tooyou getting on your feet. And if you think about it, you'd be above the ink I'mclientele. Those girls probably need a little counseling."

ake me The Novelty Lounge, a small strip club that was meant to draw in less. It'dup college students, caused a huge stir when it first went in. The tow petitioning it from officially opening because people were afraid it I makeLindon's reputation. They're not fooling anyone though. Some of the thankspeople who started the uproar are seen walking in and out of the glas which feature silhouettes of naked women on them.

gar and "I haven't even started the term yet," I remind her, watching d to seedeposits my favorite sweets into a white paper bag. "I've got a year of re-over, classes, a six-week term in the summer, and clinical hours to have tocertification before I can even entertain where to lay down roots."

love so "Lay down roots," she mocks, setting the coffee and bag down in the wentme. "As if it's not going to be here. Why else would you be back? Plu knows all that already. He's willing to hold the space just for you. He lways acomplaining that nobody wants to rent it because of the noise. I bet yo hen sheconvince him to do some soundproofing. He could get a disco or foodmaterials at—" She visibly stops herself before she says the hardware that was My ex's family business was the only source of income I'd had n aboutwas fifteen years old. "I don't even have a job anymore to help me oy. Heanything. Not an apartment and definitely not an office space, Bea."

tes him We're quiet for a moment or two before she looks around the empty café. "I'm looking for some help around here if you're intereste rom theknow I'll work around your school schedule. That way you we k it wasoverwhelmed with too much."

renteen. "I could use some money," I admit, nudging the floor with the end when Iflip-flop. My eyes lock on the colorful pedicure I got with Tiffan before I left. During the appointment, she told me to choose the red be was sultry and would get men's attention. I chose green. The same he cup, Caleb always said made my eyes pop. "I'm back at home with Mom f ow shenow until I figure something else out."

It's not an ideal situation considering I've spent a lot of time outzy, butparents' home. I found peace in the chaos of the sorority house I l during undergrad because at least I didn't have to deal with my prove the constant bickering. The most I had to listen to was some of my sisters start forover men who didn't deserve them or catty arguments over stupid this perfect groceries, clothes, or what charity the car wash funds went toward.

"If you see Artie before I do, can you tell him I appreciate the or horned-that he shouldn't hold that space for me? It's going to be a long time vn triedI'm ready to start my own practice, and there's bound to be somebody 'd taintto pay him rent for the space before I ever can. I heard the town is see samerevitalization project and got a big grant for it, so that'll pull in be s doorsowners who are willing to deal with just about anything for the rightag."

as she Bea's eyes give me a thorough study before nodding. "I'll pass it regularbut I wouldn't be so sure. You know that man has always had a soft get myyou and what you want to do."

Artie Fisher is a sweet older man who owns a few different build front of Main Street. Some were converted into student housing and others are s, Artiespaces. I know a big reason he's fond of what I want to do is because i's beenhis daughter to mental illness a long time ago. He's told me there need u couldmore access to help and resources here. Help I'd love to offer to a unt forwho needs it.

store. Swallowing, I say, "It's hard to think about the next big step when since Iseem to handle the little ones right now."

e afford She offers me a comforting smile. "I have no doubt that you'll fout. You're in a rough place, but it's bound to get better so long as mostlythe effort in."

ed. You Pulling out a five-dollar bill and stuffing it into the tip jar, I say, "on't beright. I'll send you my class schedule so we can work around it. I mig be able to work about three days a week because I've packed on a lot 1 of myclasses, but…"

y right "Don't worry about it. Elena is trying to save up for her own car, se cause itbeen taking on as many shifts as she can when she's out of school or right "Thanks, Bea," I tell her, grabbing the items she refuses to let me and heading toward the door.

e shadefigure it out."

I start to push it open when I hear, "He misses you. I wouldn't ived inanything just yet. It may be hard for the two of you but not impossible. Not sure what to say, I let the door slowly close again until I'm start cryingthe speckled water stains on the glass.

ngs like She adds, "Go easy on him. That boy has been through it lately, a not sure how much more he can handle. Everybody breaks eventual ffer butmatter how strong they pretend to be for everybody else."

before I pause, feeling my stomach drop as I turn to face her. "What willingmean? What happened?"

doing a She frowns at the question before slowly shaking her head. I can usinessthe expression on her face when she replies with a somber, "Oh, girlat pricereally have no idea, do you?"

t along, spot for ings on e office he lost ds to be nybody

I can't igure it you put

'You're tht only of grad

so she's . We'll figure it out."

"Thanks, Bea," I tell her, grabbing the items she refuses to let me pay for and heading toward the door.

I start to push it open when I hear, "He misses you. I wouldn't assume anything just yet. It may be hard for the two of you but not impossible."

Not sure what to say, I let the door slowly close again until I'm staring at the speckled water stains on the glass.

She adds, "Go easy on him. That boy has been through it lately, and I'm not sure how much more he can handle. Everybody breaks eventually, no matter how strong they pretend to be for everybody else."

I pause, feeling my stomach drop as I turn to face her. "What do you mean? What happened?"

She frowns at the question before slowly shaking her head. I can't read the expression on her face when she replies with a somber, "Oh, girly. You really have no idea, do you?"

Chapter Seven

RAINE

T he hardware store looks so much bigger now that I'm standing in it. I've been debating for five minutes on whether I have the guts to a go in, knowing who's in there. I saw the profile of his face as he he older woman grab a light bulb from the top shelf of aisle eight.

How could I not go in though? Caleb's family was like a second me basically my whole adolescent life. They took me in as their or accepted me even before I started dating their son. His mom would s home with leftovers, and his dad taught me how to change a tire and the oil in my car.

His dad.

My stomach dips at the thought of the terrible news Bea shared, I me forward until I'm opening the door and listening to the familiar cl the bell announcing a new customer's arrival.

I freeze when I walk far enough in to be met by the deep brown the boy behind the counter. They're not as warm as usual but tired. I' ever seen them look this dull when he tried pulling two all-nighters in to help me study for my finals while also trying to prepare for his. sick, almost slept through his first exam, but managed to get through one of the highest grades in his class.

My throat tightens with emotion as I slowly walk forward, feet do out each step until I'm mere inches away from the counter where C standing stone-still.

"I had no idea," I whisper.

No "Hi."

No "How are you?"

That's a trivial question, and there's no way he'd answer me he Fine is the word I'm sure I'd hear escape those full lips of his that I map out with my fingertip whenever we were lying together.

I fiddle with my hands, unsure of what to say or do. Breakup be d I want to walk around the counter and give him a tight hug—the tight ever given. It's what he's always done whenever something happene my family.

But I can't get myself to move.

Not forward.

Not back.

Caleb asks, "When did you get back into town?" front of actually It's...awkward. Thick.

Civil conversation.

lped an

"This morning."

He simply nods.

one to "Caleb—"

wn and

"I can't do this right now, Raine" is what he tells me, staring at the end me on the counter. He's never cut me off before, but I get it. I do. It only me want to hug him more.

It's just us. No other customers or workers. I bet his mom is at the lamb of with his dad.

"I'm sorry."

We both know the apology is for more than just his father's hea eyes of for everything. All the years. All the hurt. Everything I threw away. n a row past, the present, and whatever the future holds.

Caleb, for once, says nothing to me.

He got It's bittersweet. it with Emotion crams into my throat, choking me. I can't swallow. Can breathe. My eyes water as I make a single decision. "I had so much tragging about this summer and none of it helped like I thought it would. laleb is lonelier than I thought it'd be."

Once again, he's silent.

"I want you to know how sorry I am for walking away. I don't kno I'm doing or where I'm going in life anymore. I'm just..." He doesn this pointless rambling when the last thing I should do is to make thi used to "I'm just sorry. You've gone through a lot, and you don't deserve

His dark eyes glaze before his lips press into a solid line. If he w say anything, he's not allowing himself to. Not that I blame him.

amned, away a lot of years together.

est I've The only thing I can think to do is walk around the counter, stop ed withfront of him, and hesitate for only a second before wrapping my arms his tense torso.

He's also lost weight. He was lean before thanks to his position football team, but now I can feel bones that used to have a little more on them that are no longer padded.

Two broken people.

I don't expect him to do anything.

Not hug me back.

Not say a word.

I only want him to know I care, no matter in what capacity. Becau and I always will, no matter how conflicted I am about how or why alaptopended.

makes So when he looks down at me, the few inches of difference between making his gaze feel that much harder on my face as we stare at each e store.don't expect him to bend down and kiss me. Or to back me into the conspital And I definitely don't expect him to pull me in to him so close our bounded together, until I feel everything.

Everything.

lth. It's I gasp into his mouth when he picks me up by my hips and sets r. For thethe countertop. On top of the paperwork, receipts, and scribbled-on in sheets he's obviously been working on for a while.

We kiss for what feels like hours when it's more like seconds. Hi are on me, mine on him, and I realize this may be what he needs.

I don't stop him when he walks away.

to think Don't say a word when he locks the front door and flips the OPEN It wasclosed.

Don't voice my concerns when he walks back over to me, spre legs, and moves between them with an obvious intention.

w what He needs this.

i't need So I'll give it to him.

s about Anything for Caleb.

it." It's me who kisses him again.

vants to It's me who tugs on his shirt.

I threw

But it's him who groans, popping the button on my pants and right indown the zipper before reminding me exactly how good he is with his around Not a single word is uttered as we shed the bottom layers of our cl devour each other's mouths, and prepare each other for what's alon thehappen.

muscle I bite my bottom lip when he guides himself to my entran hesitating once before pushing in until he's fully seated.

And it feels like no time has passed at all.

The only noise that fills the empty hardware store is the sound heavy panting and the noises coming from me every single time he into me.

se I do, There's no praise.

<sup>7</sup> things No gentle coaxing.

No dirty talk.

veen us Just sex.

other, I It's never been just sex with us.

counter. And when he's close, I pull him into me and hold him there, hugg dies arearms tightly around his neck until he makes a distressed noise an inside me until he's coming.

We stay like that.

ne onto For one second.

ventory Two.

Five.

s hands After about thirty, he pulls out, leans his forehead against min shakes his head. I don't know what to say when he offers me a paper to clean up with or what to do when he walks into the back room after fasign tohis jeans and clenching the back of his neck without so much as a look in my direction.

ads my So I do the only thing I know how to.

I gather what little is left of my pride, readjust my clothing, an away.

But it's him who groans, popping the button on my pants and sliding down the zipper before reminding me exactly how good he is with his hands.

Not a single word is uttered as we shed the bottom layers of our clothing, devour each other's mouths, and prepare each other for what's about to happen.

I bite my bottom lip when he guides himself to my entrance, not hesitating once before pushing in until he's fully seated.

And it feels like no time has passed at all.

The only noise that fills the empty hardware store is the sound of our heavy panting and the noises coming from me every single time he pumps into me.

There's no praise.

No gentle coaxing.

No dirty talk.

Just sex.

It's never been just sex with us.

And when he's close, I pull him into me and hold him there, hugging my arms tightly around his neck until he makes a distressed noise and jerks inside me until he's coming.

We stay like that.

For one second.

Two.

Five.

After about thirty, he pulls out, leans his forehead against mine, and shakes his head. I don't know what to say when he offers me a paper towel to clean up with or what to do when he walks into the back room after fastening his jeans and clenching the back of his neck without so much as a second look in my direction.

So I do the only thing I know how to.

I gather what little is left of my pride, readjust my clothing, and walk away.

Chapter Eight

CALEB

I toss the football back to DJ, who's grinning at me after I spilled my him. "I don't see what the big deal is," he tells me.

My mood, which hasn't been stable in months anyway, hasn't been right ever since Raine showed back up in town. It's been hard not to stable social media pages every day to see where she is, what she's up to, or seeing somebody else. I've told myself the only reason that she ended was because she wasn't sure she wanted to spend the rest of her life where She must have been confused since there was nothing to comparelationship to. What else could she have been confused about?

It doesn't make it easier, but at least it's a reason I can let myself because it wasn't me or something I did.

As shitty as it is, Dad's condition has helped distract me from in too much time in my ex-girlfriend and her whereabouts or how good i be inside her again.

"We broke up" is how I reply, voice monotone at the obvious rem catch the ball he throws at me, gripping the sides and staring a little to at it. DJ told me I was always calmer whenever we played, which is wout here when I have better places to be, but this doesn't seem to be any. "I shouldn't have had sex with her, especially not like that. It was

I slept like shit last night thinking about what I did, replaying how the back office like a fucking coward until I heard Raine leave. I don't if it was what she said that led me to making a move or if it was my er getting the better of me. I was pissed off because of life, because of because of how hard I'm struggling with school, and not even her a made me feel better. If anything, it made me angrier—more co Because I don't know if I can believe it.

Hearing her say she's sorry doesn't really mean anything if it change anything. Yet I still made a move so I could feel something oth bitterness.

All it did was remind me that I'm still not over her, which makes even shittier for trying so hard to convince Emma to give me a sh second Raine touched me, I couldn't think of anybody else. Only her.

DJ's laugh causes me to lift my gaze and glare in his direction. you hooked up with an ex. We've literally all been there. Be re yourself. It's only been a few months, and you were together for guts to Addicts always go back to their fixes at least once before they finall up. Hell, I'd say you're doing pretty good."

My nostrils twitch as I throw the ball at him with more for talk her necessary. "Don't compare those situations. She's not my drug. Sl if she's What the hell is she?

When it's obvious I'm in no mood for messing around, DJ sigle things heartedly. "Look, man. You know I like Raine. I like you too. It's hard to figure out the right things to say because I know you're hurting, and at the heart-to-heart shit. But don't beat yourself up over this. It has accept The only thing you can do now is move forward. You have to focus or some point. Not Raine. Not Emma. You've got bigger fish to fry right vesting the strip in the strip is to be some so wise? It's a little freaky, dude."

Knowing he's right, I shake my head and roll my shoulders. "We tell to be some so wise? It's a little freaky, dude."

He grins. "It's all these books Sky is having me read. Speaking of inder. I you should seriously read some of these. Romance novels are off the oo hard charts, man. Best sex of my life after she reads those fuckers becau why I'm give her ideas."

helping The last thing I want to think about right now is sex. Or somebody relationship given the raw status of mine. Or lack thereof.

I hid in together, and I'm happy he found somebody who makes him smile sometions much. Even if it's a little grating sometimes when that lovey-dove of Dad, by the property of Dad, by the Dad, by the

But I've been there before.

"Come on," I tell him, sighing and nodding toward my apartmen game is going to start soon, and I want to get a couple of thing doesn't beforehand."

He follows me inside the renovated two-bedroom apartment. "As we're not cheering on those fucking pussies at Penn State. I'm sick of them all over the damn news when there are players who sho me feelhighlighted for their skills and not for the bullshit their teammates wo ot. Theof."

DJ has been extra testy ever since one of the Penn State coaches a "Dude,to throwing away some concerning complaints filed against their best pal with I don't blame the guy. Coaches tend to do a little more than they shoul years.their winning streaks are at stake, something Lindon University saw fi y soberwith our former coach, Coach Pearce. DJ spearheaded his removements which left the school scrambling to rebuild their coaching than before the new season started.

he's..." "Alabama is playing against them," I say. We've always roo Crimson Tide anyway, but I know it's going to be an intense game the shalf-the comments DJ is bound to make against Penn. "Anyway, are you red tryingthe semester?" I ask, knowing we have a lot of shared classes this year I suckwe're both studying business for our MBAs. I walk over to the frict opened.grab a couple of beers for us, setting one down in front of him. "Becan you atnot, that's for damn sure."

now." "Are any of us?" he comments, lifting a shoulder in dismissal. "Do hen didinternship for Sky's dad this summer made me realize how much hel need. I signed up for Alexander's marketing class this semester, hop freaky, be an easy A after all the marketing promotions I worked on."

fucking I pull out my phone and frown when I see a new email from my se theysaying one of the classes I need is full. Grumbling to myself, I glanc list of available courses she attached and pinch the bridge of my nose y else'sis the third fucking class I can't get into. One of them is only offere two years."

ot to be DJ's eyebrows arch up at my hostile tone. "Are you on the waiting o damnmanaged to get into one of my undergrad courses when people cay lookduring the first couple of weeks."

I shake my head in answer.

"Well, even if you don't get in, you'll have the chance to what. "Theoffered next. You may not even need to wait two years. Professors is doneclasses all the time."

Knee bouncing as I sit at the breakfast nook, I go through the reslong asemails before checking my final grades from my summer courses and seeing at the borderline passing marks. There goes my 3.0 GPA.

ould be "I don't know what's going to happen in two years, DJ. I donere partknow what's going to happen tomorrow. I worked my ass off to do and get my MBA sooner, but then the shit with Dad..."

dmitted He comes up beside me, pulling out the only other stool I have, a players.down. "You don't give yourself enough credit. You know what you d whendo, Cal. Running the store is in your blood. Give yourself some br rsthandroom instead of burning yourself out. It isn't like there's a rush to g val lastdegree, anyway."

ng staff I'm quiet as I crack the top open on the beer and take a swig. "I ju things were back to normal."

ted for That's when he asks a question I've never really thought about anks to "What even is normal?"

ady for And the more I think about it, the more I have no fucking idea.

ar since

lge and

use I'm

Mom opens the door of their house for me with a huge smile on her ping the one I haven't seen in a long time. It's odd that the first thing I p I still concerned, since her happiness is typically a sign that something going it'll happened for once. It's the way her eyes gleam as she ushers me in the me cautious at best.

adviser Before I can even ask, Mom claps her hands together once and say e at the boys came by to see your father today, and they told him they saw : "This leaving the hardware store."

d every She stares at me expectantly, as if I'm supposed to confirm or der claim.

g list? I The boys are a few guys who work at the town barn. When they're lropped plowing in the winters or working on whatever overpriced project Line approved for in the summer, they're in everybody's business. It's recan do anything without one of them ratting you out. Once, I got a spen it's ticket and one of the town boys saw me and tattled to my dad. He capick up not even two hours later asking how fast I was going and then lectured respecting the speed limits, especially near the elementary school when to finy nulled over.

l cringe Walking over to the armchair where my parents' elderly basset

't evenFrank, is curled up, I fuss over the graying mutt before turning to my uble up"There's nothing to tell," I inform her, watching her shoulders fraction. "She didn't know about Dad, so she came to apologize."

and sits I'm not quite sure how she could have been in the dark about Dad need tolong. People were talking about how sick he looked long beforeathingsummertime. He'd brushed them and our suggestion to go to the doctor youruntil it was too late. By the time he was diagnosed in May, not every supplied to the set of th weeks after my graduation, it was a whirlwind of bad news. He hadr ist wishdone chemo before the specialists saw that the cancer was spreading.

Raine might not have been around this summer, but her famil before. There was no way they didn't know.

I've never been one to share personal details about my relationsh either of my parents, so I'm not about to start now. Mom doesn't know what happened between us at the store to get her hopes up the will be a reunion anytime soon. That's something I plan on taking grave with me, especially because I know the woman who's watch with sad eyes would scold me if she found out how I basically used F feel is distract myself from feeling something other than sadness.

What I'll never understand is why the only woman I've ever loved that has Raine always wants to make everybody happy, but she shouldn't have go to those lengths that day. Did she want to because she knew I needs, "The Or because she missed me too?

Raine And why am I so focused on an answer when I should just let it g got Emma. I shouldn't have had sex with Raine for a lot of reasc ny their especially because of the nurse I'm supposed to see tomorrow night movie. What's worse, I don't want to tell her about my indiscretion.

not out "What's wrong, Caleb?" Mom asks, walking over and brushing n don got "Did you two talk? Did you fight? Did you discuss—"

"It's not important," I tell her, walking past Dad's favorite reclin beeding hasn't been used since he was hospitalized. Sitting on the end of the colled me blow out a heavy breath. "I know you've always been team Raine, I me on much has happened, Mom. Yes, she stopped by. Yes, we spoke. She is I was some shit that I'm still processing. But that's it. Please don't go mal anything in your head about us getting back together. That's the last hound, can focus on right now."

Her frown deepens as she stoops, petting between Frank's big, mother.ears. Mom knows even less than I do about why my relationship ende drop acould she? It was hard to explain the reason Raine told me no when truly understand myself. "I will always be team Caleb. Do I like Rain for this I loved her like a daughter and am still fond of her because she's ore theperson. I will never understand how things went down the way the ctor offbetween you two because you're one of a kind, baby boy. Any girl weren twolucky to have such a sweet, kindhearted man in her life. But I also knu't even Raine's choice must not have been an easy one for her to make been was always clear that you two loved each other very much."

ly was. This conversation isn't making me feel any better, which was why here—to be around one of the people who has always been in my corn ip withparents have been my ride-or-die my whole life, and even just sitting need todoing nothing with them brings me the kind of peace I need. Now mo at thereever.

for the Mom doesn't stop there. She walks over and sits down beside meaning memy hand. "She's always been a logical girl, but sometimes reason get taine toway of what the heart wants. Not that you asked, but just because didn't go well doesn't mean they still can't. But if that's not what you let me. I'll support you. I'll be on your side no matter what, as long as you're had toin the end. Okay?"

eded it? Raine has always analyzed everything in life, including us. I neve thought twice about it because she's studying to become a psychologo? I'vemakes sense that she wants to dissect how people act and think.

ns, but But maybe logic is actually the downfall in relationships. If yo it for adive off the deep end because you trust someone fully, then what the the point? This whole time, I thought Raine and I trusted each other ny arm.to make it official, to make it to the end, yet here we are.

Apparently, I was fucking wrong.

ner that Staring at the floor, I murmur, "Okay."

couch, I Mom pats my hand before reaching for the TV remote. "By the wabut too father told me to pass along that the security cameras in the store nee e...saidupdating. It seems they only work half of the time, and he told me you king upto check them out because of some strange footage on them."

thing I My body locks up at what must have been recorded there recently. Jesus Christ.

floppy My voice is raspy when I force out a strangled "Got it."

d. How I don't e? Yes. a good ney did ould be ow that cause it

I came ner. My around ore than , taking s in the things u want, happy

r really ogist. It

u can't hell is enough

y, your d some 'll need

Chapter Nine

RAINE

 $T_{\rm HE}$  bakery feels different from the other side of the counter intimidating. "It's not that hard," Elena, Bea's granddaughter, tells n shows me how to make the next latte with a slick grin on her face. 'mess up a bunch at first, but I'm sure people won't care too much sing of the town likes you."

Great. A seventeen year-old is reassuring me that I'll get pity nothing else at my new job. "I never thought about what all went in drink," I admit sheepishly, already tired from my first full week of class

The past five days have been filled with paranoia walking arou familiar campus, all because I'm doing it on my own for the fir without Caleb or the people I hung out with by my side. The girls I liv at the sorority house have all gone their separate ways, not that particularly close with any of them. One thing I've been dreading all s is what it would be like coming back knowing most of the people social circle were people Caleb was friends with: guys from the test their girlfriends or people he made friends with from his classes. I intend to rely so heavily on his extroverted nature to meet people, but I

Now, I have no idea who's in my corner. I don't even know is despite our spontaneous hookup.

Sighing, I refocus on the cheat sheet by the counter to help guide how to make each drink that the bakery offers, which I have a feel need to study if I'm going to get this right. I'm usually not irritated so at myself for getting something wrong, but my emotions hav everywhere lately thanks to the stress of school, living back at hon trying to figure out a new routine for myself. A routine without the haven't been able to stop thinking about since I walked out of the hastore with my dignity dragging on the sidewalk behind me.

I'm not sure if regret is what I've been feeling about our slipup, l

I've never regretted a single moment with Caleb before. But the emptiness nestled into my chest where my heart should be. That black the only thing I can focus on, and if nothing else, I hope that what took away from whatever darkness has been surrounding him.

Elena snickers. "Maybe we'll just have you get the food orders reathey take is either heating them up or shoving them into a bag. Easy Ivy first started working here, she almost killed somebody who had a More allergy by accidently adding a hazelnut creamer to their coffee. So as ne. She you avoid that, you'll be fine."

"You'll both went to Lindon before he dropped out to start his professional with the NFL and she followed. I sort of miss the snarky girl whose s votes if fucks-given attitude with anybody who tried giving her flak. She was to each the few people who could make the broody football player smile, eve she pretended she was annoyed with him.

Bea walks out from the back holding a tray of freshly made peanu ed with I was I watch her set the tray down on the counter and open the display case trying to psych out our trainee," she scolds the younger girl beside meaning and don't listen to Elena. Ivy wasn't that bad. She caught on fast, just like I didn't you'll do. Not that she ever admitted it, but she took a picture of out of the is, everything there was to make around here without needing to be told to I smile at that. "Do you hear from her or Aiden at all?"

Bea nods as we empty the tray and make sure the baked goods are me on ing I'll up in the glass case. "They visit whenever they're in town, and Ivy se postcards with pictures every so often. The last one I got is hanging rige there." Her finger points toward the corkboard where pictures, letter other papers are hanging by tacks. "Damn cute couple, those two. Ain e boy I seen Aiden smile so wide until he was around her."

So I'm not the only one who noticed. I'm smacked with not thinking about what it was like being around those two back when evere seemed so much less complicated.

"Let him in, Elena," I hear Bea say as I stare absently at the c re's anbrownies, and muffins ready for the day. "He always gets his coffe hole isbefore heading to the store."

we did My stomach dips as I look up, finding Caleb walking through the door. We haven't seen each other or talked since that day at the storady. Allhe knows I'm staring, his eyes move from Elena to me, stalling . Whenentrance of the café. Is he going to walk out?

tree nut The intrusive thought buries its claws in my mind as I see him long asbefore finally snapping out of whatever thought he was having and v toward the counter. My chest tightens the closer he gets, and sudh. Theyremember every single sensation he brought alive on that store could careerused to do homework on once upon a time.

pot I'm My new boss happily says, "I trust you can handle this custom ep a no-order hasn't changed, so you'll be fine."

one of Fine. Why does it feel like I'm going to have a heart attack then? n when Caleb stops in front of the cash register that I'm frozen at. "Yo here now?"

It butter He sounds as off as I feel. Fidgeting with the little apron that vater ashelped me tie around my waist, I nod. "Bea offered me a job the da". "Stopback to town."

e. Then The day I saw you at the hardware store.

Iy. And Clearing his throat, he dips his chin and grabs his brown leather water I knowold one of his father's, from his back pocket. "That was nice of her to use the seems so clinical. I'm not sure what to say right away, norizedawkwardness between us grows. "Yeah..." Watching him pull out wice." dollar bill, I manage to ask, "Same coffee? Regular with eight milks sugar?"

re lined He peeks up at me through his lashes before giving me anoth ends me"Yes." There's a pause before a mumbled "Please."

the over We stand there exchanging money and change before I handle the ers, and can feel his eyes on my back as I grab a cup and the coffeepot to never counting out the milk shots. He never liked his coffee too dark an sugar in it because he's never had much of a sweet tooth, unlike me ostalgiaalways kept a stash of Milk Duds and other sweets in the glove comparything of my car and inside each of my bags to pull out whenever I want then

Once I set the cup down on the counter and tighten the to-go lid cookies,top, I ask, "How is your dad doing?"

e early Anybody would want to know, I reason. It's not out of line for me about somebody I saw as family. I still do, even if I have no right.

ne front Caleb shifts on his feet, wrapping those long, tan fingers arou e. As if Styrofoam cup before pulling it toward him. "He's...Dad. Too stub at theact like anything's wrong."

We fall back into silence, save whatever Bea is doing in the kitche hesitaterattle, and a curse sounds as something loud bangs against the floor walkingwater runs and a heavy sigh comes from the older woman giving me denly Itoo much time with her customer.

nter we I wait for Caleb to say something, watching as his lips part at close, but nothing but tension fills the space between us.

er? His "Hey," I say quickly. "About the other day—"

"Raine, I can't. I just can't." He picks up the coffee, lifts it toward and then leaves before I can try bringing anything up.

u work The teenager behind me says, "Damn. That was awkward."

Then I hear a smack, a high-pitched whine, and a grumble as th t Elenateen is yanked into the kitchen by her grandmother while I stand defea by I gotthe register with a heaviness in my heart.

ıllet, an

do." The KITCHEN OF my childhood home smells like burnt sugar and sor so the else that makes my nose scrunch, causing me to open a window near to a tenand examine the mess covering the countertops.

and no "Mom?" I call out cautiously, picking up one of the pans on the stones has something burnt and black caked on the bottom. "Did somebody the er nod and try cooking?"

Setting my backpack down on the table off to the side, I walk i order. I living room and listen for any sign of life. It isn't like Mom to experibe before the kitchen. That was Dad's thing.

d hates "Mom?" When I hear rustling coming from her tiny craft room who's den, I poke my head in to see her at her sewing machine. "Hey artment happened in the kitchen? It looks like a tornado went off in there."

She lifts her head up, removing a pin from where she was holding on the her mouth and placing it into the fabric she's working on. "I didn't ev e to askyou come home. I was going to clean up before you got back."

Mom laughs. "I forgot about that. It's a wonder you're becomen. Potstherapist instead of searching for one." She pushes back from the der. Thenremoves her tape measure from where it's draped across her neck. a littletrying to make caramel kettle corn. I saw a recipe online that looked enough to recreate. But then the caramel started burning and the notation of the department of the surprise that door didn't call the fire department on me."

I'm ninety-nine percent sure he doesn't have his hearing aids tull Elena, most of the time. It must be nice to drown things out without a care world. "You should probably soak the pan. That way, it's easier to clease She frowns. "Maybe we should just get new pans. I mean, we donne bluntthat much anyway, unless eggs count."

tedly at We do eat a lot of eggs. "Or maybe," I propose, following her i kitchen, "we should learn how to cook so we're not spending our pay on takeout. We relied on Dad way too much."

If it wasn't Dad cooking all our meals, it was Caleb who was things for me. I got so used to it, I never thought much about the obviouething set that I should have started learning years ago.

the sink Mom scoffs as she picks up the pan and sighs, walking over to to and running water over it. "We never relied on your father for an over that We've survived fine on our own."

Yeah, thanks to the pizza place and Simply Thai. Not wanting to go I nod reluctantly. "Yeah, you're right. Hey, speaking of Dad, did he reinto the that we are doing lunch tomorrow? I know you saw him yesterday when the met with the lawyers."

She hums, turning the water off and staring into the sink basin. " off the told me you are meeting at the diner." Shoulders dropping, she turns . What "I'm glad you two are still spending time together despite all this."

There's no reason why I wouldn't. Dad has never treated me badly it with the exact opposite, actually. He'd take me on father-daughter dates e en hear often growing up. Mostly mini golfing or out to whatever movie was that I wanted to see. We'd always wind up at the diner after.

I miss having him around the house, especially because he'd alway artmentlate-night snacks with me when neither of us could sleep. Mom woul judge aus for eating after midnight, so we'd get sneaky. In the long run, I und they're better off where they are now. In different houses, living d ming alives.

esk and Instead of asking about how things are going between the two of "I wasand getting forced to hear about God knows what, I gesture toward the ed easypots and pans scattered everywhere. "I think I saw a cooking class smokeoffered at that new test kitchen in town. Maybe we can sign up and sed Mr.mother-daughter day. It could be fun."

Based on the flinch, I'd say she doesn't agree. "I can think of bette med onto spend our day, and it's not listening to a pretentious chef tell me e in theflip a pancake or season a chicken breast."

In." She clearly still has trauma from the time I spit out the pancake she it cookme for breakfast one day before school. I was six. I think I started about how rubbery it tasted.

Into the Defeated, I grab my bag and haul it over my shoulder. "It was rehecksthought since we haven't spent much time together lately."

Mom had briefly apologized for missing my birthday by order makingdinner the night I got home. Then she got a call from a client and had us skillback to work, so we barely saw each other for my make-up celel

Maybe it would have upset me more if Bea hadn't made my favorite he sinkfor my first shift, even putting the number twenty-three in icing tything.cookie.

I start walking toward my room when Mom stops me. "I'm o there, sweetie. I've been picking up as much work as possible to make end nentionLet's order dinner from your favorite Chinese place and then watch a 1en youYou can choose which one."

Biting my tongue, I slowly nod at the typical night we have to Yes, heShe'll be on her phone most of the time until she decides to go to be to me.leaving me to clean up and sit in silence by myself.

But just like those other times, I choose not to say a thing, bec . It wasthat's all the time I get with her, I'll take it.

very so "Sure, Mom. I'd like that." playing

s share d scold lerstand ifferent of them ne other s being have a er ways how to e made crying

s just a

ing my d to get bration. dessert on the sorry, s meet. movie.

ogether. d early,

cause if

Chapter Ten

CALEB

 $T_{\text{HE}}$  first few weeks of the semester fly by faster than I ant considering my life is a stream of constant school assignments, work and hospital visits. Each day blends into the next, with the sam deprivation, caffeine addiction, and heavy anxiety weighing on me gets worse.

Before I know it, August turns into September and the crisp air leafall is the only thing that seems to give me a boost of energy when exh weighs me down.

That and coffee, which I haven't gotten as often from Bea's becaus chickenshit. Ever since I discovered Raine works there, I've been hes go at all, which means making shitty coffee in the cheap machine I bot my apartment. It hardly hits the spot like the bakery's dark roast, but the some things I don't want to deal with—my mixed feelings for my exone of them.

Almost as if I manifest it, a cup of coffee is set on the store confront of the textbook I'm reading. Matthew Clearwater, another one former teammates, is standing there with the same look most of my have been giving me lately. "Dude, you need to stop."

Stop. I don't know what that word even means anymore. "Stop Trying to pass grad school? Trying to keep a roof over my mother's Living?"

Matt's lips twitch downward at my melodramatic reply before h and pulls my textbook away. "Let's be real, man. You're not doi studying when you've gotten, what, a few hours of sleep at best? DJ s dozed off in business economics the other day and it took him kicki awake before you came to."

I'd spent the night before with Dad because he wasn't doing so h nurses normally don't let people stick around after visiting hours, but was working and managed to convince her shift supervisor to let me long as I was quiet and out of the way. I woke up with a blanket drap me that definitely wasn't there when I fell asleep and a second tray with my name on a piece of paper in Emma's handwriting.

Something she wouldn't have done if I'd told her what happened hardware store. Not that I wasn't tempted to rip the Band-Aid off a losing her too. She deserves better than the half-assed excuses a icipate, energy I give her.

I know that.

She knows that.

e sleep
as Dad
But I don't want to let go of this.

"Mom told me I should talk to my adviser about taking a leading to absence," I murmur, scrubbing my tired eyelids. "Dad got talked to palliative care and hospice yesterday by his oncologist and the team been working with him. It was..." No words can describe the mood se I'm a information they offered has really soaked in.

Matt shakes his head. "I'm sorry, Cal. I don't think your mom is though. Even if you take a few weeks off, you can make it up. May being could talk to your professors about trying to line up some work and respectively."

you don't fall behind if you want to come back."

Taking the coffee he brought me, I pull back the plastic tab and of my on the side of the cup. "I haven't really had time to think about my opt It's not entirely true. I've thought about taking a break from school."

what? I've never given up on anything. Dad taught me better than that.

"Dad is thinking about coming home and having a team of nurs settle him in where he's comfortable. He doesn't want to be in the le sighs "Can't say I blame him."

"Can't say I blame him," my friend remarks, voice quiet. I remaid you when Matt was hospitalized freshman year with a burst appendix that into a bad infection, so he was stuck at the hospital. The only thing the him through it were the cute nurses who entertained his cheesy flirting ot. The period of his stay. He asks, "What does your mom think about all the aunt said she's sad she doesn't see her at their Tuesday book club manymore, but she isn't sure if she should drop by the house to say stay soeverything that is going on."

ed over Mom could use the company, but I get why people might be h of foodNobody knows what to say to us anymore. If it's not "sorry," it's not all because they're afraid of saying the wrong thing. "When they I at thegiving us options about how to move forward, Mom looked a little and riskknow she wants him at home, but I can tell there's something on he nd lowabout it that she's not saying."

His eyebrows go up, as if to say *Sound like anybody else we know?*Lifting my shoulders limply, I stare down at the drink in my hablow out a breath. If someone had told me three years ago that I'd be watching my father die, after being dumped by my longtime girlfrie eave ofstruggling to keep up with school and work, I wouldn't have believed about Then again, nobody expects their life to do a complete one-eighty. If who'veeveryone says to hope for the best, expect the worst, but plan to be surply of the The number of surprises I'm dealing with lately is just a little to of thefor any one person to handle, which only adds to the anger slowly be under my skin. I was raised to be tougher than this. So why am I stream of the surprise of the man who's dying?

be you Not wanting to think about it anymore, I decide to shift gears and lotes so the conversation. "What's new with you?" I ask Matt. I lean back in the behind the store counter and listen to it creak. There's only a small take acleaned off for when customers come to check out, and the rest is cova's logopaperwork I still need to fill out, organize, and file.

ions." Matt looks around at the items lining the shelves by the register ool, butcandy, gum, and a few smaller household items people usually forget up until they see them. "There's not much going on with me," he es helpgrabbing a Snickers bar and tossing it onto the counter before pull 10spitalsome money.

One of my brows pops up as I give him change for his chocolate nembersaying, "I doubt that's true since you're still going hard for Rachel. turnedthrough the grapevine that she's leaving as academic adviser now that gotin her last semester of grad school."

for the Matt waggles his eyebrows. "Yeah, but she'll still be at Lindon tho is? My "As a professor, Clearwater. It was bad enough you were concetingsflirting with her when she was on staff. She's been working hard to hi withdegree. Remember how excited she was when the school offered to grad school if she'd work for them? Don't fuck this up for her becausesitant.want to get your dick wet."

thing at He peels open the snack he bought. "You sound like Aide startedgrumbles, speaking of the former tight end on our team. He takes a hu pale. Iof the candy and, with his mouth half-full, adds, "We haven't done are mindwrong. And Lindon can't afford to fire anybody else after the huge with the coaching staff."

I make a face, remembering the forced mass exodus that occurre and anothe football faculty earlier this year. The administration decided that be here, them go was for the best, which surprised a lot of people. "Look, do wind, andyou want. I would just hate to see anybody take any risks that don't is distributed that the end." I sit back, grabbing my textbook again and opening to the t's whywas on before.

prised. It's a long moment later when Matt breaks the tense silence betw o much"We're being careful."

ubbling I glance up at him, realizing Matt and Rachel must have already ugglingsomething they have no intention of ending anytime soon. The former football team used to work with her enough to know she's determ divergemake a future for herself. She could still end things with him if he's ne chairto that.

l space I've learned to expect the unexpected.

rered in He drums his hands against the edge of the counter. "I don't su could convince you to close up shop early and come to dinner with mostlyDJ, can I?"

to pick My eyes go to the time on my phone screen before flicking back replies, I've still got a few hours before I'm supposed to close, but it has beeing outin here. A little too quiet for business, if I'm being honest.

"I have to be at the hospital by six" is how I reply, grabbing the key beforewhere I keep them hidden under the counter. "And I'm taking my coffe I heard Matt looks both pleased and surprised, probably the same way at she'sknowing I've justified taking a break for once. "The crew will be he see you."

rugh." They have no idea how much the feeling is reciprocated.

ıstantly

get her

pay for

Ise youDad is sleeping when I finally make it to the hospital, and it gives me really look at him. When he's awake, he tries downplaying everything," hehe's not on the verge of death.

ige bite "Hey," a quiet voice greets from behind.

nything I turn to see Emma there with a small smile on her face. "Hi. scandalexpect to see you here. Did you pick up another shift?"

I've learned her schedule by now, especially knowing she's one ed withfew people who can get Dad to eat, even if it's pastries that one lettingcoworkers brings in. At this point, Mom and I don't care what he eats hateveras it's something.

pan out She peeks around my shoulder at Dad before nodding toward the he page II follow her out, watching as she stops a few feet from the door and le tired sigh. "We've had a lot of callouts today, so I was voluntold to streen us.my boss can try getting another person to cover. It's not looking optim started She lifts her wrist and looks at the purple smartwatch. When she a LindonI know the answer isn't going to be a good one. "Over twenty-four lined todozed in the on-call room earlier, but I could use approximately a tall a threatnap when I get home."

My brows dart up. "How long have you been here?"

I whistle softly. "Damn, that's tough. Do you need anything? Coffee?" I look into Dad's room to see if he's still sleeping. When I tu ppose Ito her, I ask, "Do you have time to get coffee down at the cafeteria? me andit's not the best, but..."

Before she can answer, one of the other women working calls ou to his about a patient in a different room.

en quiet Emma frowns. "I want to, but I can't. I just wanted to check in wi How are you doing?"

ys from I slowly shake my head, sliding my hands into the pockets of n ee." jeans and feeling like a total jackass. This girl is running on no sleep a I lookchecking in on me despite how little of my time I've been able to gi appy to "I'm okay for right now. Fall semester has been a balancing act the starting to think isn't worth it, but..." I let my words fade before lifting my shoulders. I haven't really admitted that to anyone, but p eases from my chest once I say it aloud.

She reaches out and brushes her fingers along my arm in comfort, me breathe a little easier. "I'm around if you ever want to talk. You h time tonumber. Even if this doesn't go anywhere serious, I don't see why w ng as ifbe friends."

I'd be lying if I said I wasn't tempted to use her number a lot morhave. Something always holds me back from following through. Obidn'tsomeone. "I know, and I appreciate it."

"Anyway, I've got to go," she says, starting to back away. Flashir of thesmile, she gestures toward my dad's room. "Tell him I'll be back lat of hersomething better than the cafeteria meat loaf. Nobody should be subje as longthat."

I snicker and wave her off, heading back into the hospital room tl allway.become a little too familiar with. Dad is still snoozing, his soft ts out adrowned out by the machines he's attached to. I sit there for a while, ay untilat his paper-thin skin and sunken facial features, before pulling out my istic." and thumbing through a few unanswered messages.

cringes, DJ: Good to see you today man hours. I Matt: The guys said we should make this a weekly thing en-year

Mom: How's he doing?

Food? As much as I'd love to see my friends more often, I know I can't I rn backthem anything. If I let on how bad Dad is, I know they'd understanc I knowcan't bring myself to be honest with them about the reality of the statement because that means coming to terms with it myself.

t to her My father is dying.

More and more every day.

ith you. And there's no stopping it or slowing it down, which means the thing we can do is watch as the cancer kills him.

ny blue Swallowing, I thumb out two text messages one after the other, and still separate women who have my mind in a constant state of confusion. ive her.

hat I'm Me: If you ever want to take me up on that coffee, you know where to find me limply Me: I'm lost too

ressure

Sitting back, I swipe a palm down my scruffy jaw that I haven't h, lettingto shave before feeling my phone buzz with a response from the ave my re can'tmessage I sent.

Raine: Should we talk about that night? e than I r rather

Staring at the text, I let out a frustrated sigh and put my phone ba my pocket. What did she expect when she told me she felt more lo ng me a than when we were together? Had I suffocated her that much? Made er with uncomfortable somehow? ected to

Maybe DJ isn't too far off about being addicted to her. Should sh talk about the hookup? Probably. Do I want to tell her that we shouldr nat I've had sex? That I partially regret it? No. It'd hurt her feelings, and the snores point in that when there's enough damage between us already. staring In a hoarse voice Dad asks. "Girl trouble?"

In a hoarse voice Dad asks, "Girl trouble?" 7 phone

Despite myself, I can't help but laugh at the first words out of his as he slowly wakes up and turns to look at me where I'm occupy normal seat.

I admit, "You could say that."

He says those three damn words that I'm going to miss hearing fro "Talk to me."

Fighting back the emotion rising up my throat, I do just that, know promise on borrowed time to get sage advice from the man I've always looke 1. But I<sub>and</sub> aspired to be like.

ituation Squeezing my eyes closed to fight back the sudden onslaught of el I murmur, "I don't know what to do, Dad. Raine apologized fc happened. And no matter how much I wish I didn't, I still love her."

"So what's the problem?"

I take a deep breath. "I don't know if I can ever trust her not to br ne only heart again if I let her back in."

to two ad time second

message I sent.

Raine: Should we talk about that night?

Staring at the text, I let out a frustrated sigh and put my phone back into my pocket. What did she expect when she told me she felt more lost now than when we were together? Had I suffocated her that much? Made her that uncomfortable somehow?

Maybe DJ isn't too far off about being addicted to her. Should she and I talk about the hookup? Probably. Do I want to tell her that we shouldn't have had sex? That I partially regret it? No. It'd hurt her feelings, and there's no point in that when there's enough damage between us already.

In a hoarse voice Dad asks, "Girl trouble?"

Despite myself, I can't help but laugh at the first words out of his mouth as he slowly wakes up and turns to look at me where I'm occupying my normal seat.

I admit, "You could say that."

He says those three damn words that I'm going to miss hearing from him. "Talk to me."

Fighting back the emotion rising up my throat, I do just that, knowing I'm on borrowed time to get sage advice from the man I've always looked up to and aspired to be like.

Squeezing my eyes closed to fight back the sudden onslaught of emotion, I murmur, "I don't know what to do, Dad. Raine apologized for what happened. And no matter how much I wish I didn't, I still love her."

"So what's the problem?"

I take a deep breath. "I don't know if I can ever trust her not to break my heart again if I let her back in."

Chapter Eleven

RAINE

 $T_{\rm HE\ MENU}$  at Bartise's is unique, and the seafood section makes my s growl. "What are you thinking about getting?" I ask Skylar, the sopl dating DJ. I'm grateful she agreed to have dinner with me because I sure if she'd stay loyal to her boyfriend's best friend or if she'd still be mine.

When Skylar started sharing some of the romance books she read a summer, it was hard for me to have conversations about our favorite as We bonded over our love for smutty books and book boyfriends, but difficult getting into the romance mood when my love life was aby best.

"I think I want the chicken," she answers, eyes trained on the shor poultry options and pointing to one. "The chicken parm sounds delicic it's been a while since I've had any that isn't in tender form."

My lips twitch into the ghost of a smile as I remember the first timesked me out.

"We should get chicken," Caleb says, pulling my focus away fr math homework I'm doing at the counter.

My eyebrows pop up as I remove the green apple lollipop that I from the hardware store's display case from my mouth. "Did y chicken?"

Caleb stops restocking the candy he's been working quietly on past twenty minutes. He swipes his palms down his thighs. "Or othe We could get pizza Friday night after the game. If you're still plant coming, I mean. You don't have to, of course. Come to the game. Or, pizza."

I sit back and stare at him for a second, pressing my lips together threaten to curl upward. Stifling a giggle, I say, "Are you asking n date, Caleb Anders?" He blows out a long breath and rubs the back of his neck. "SYeah."

I watch him for a moment, forgetting all about the Pythagorean t in front of me that I've been struggling with since I started my stafternoon.

After a moment, I nod slowly and reply with a simple "I like tenders."

tomach Snapping out of it when I hear Skylar ask what I'm thinking ordering, I mumble a semicoherent "Mongolian shrimp," even thou wasn't eyes lock on the chicken tender basket that takes me back in time.

want to Skylar doesn't seem to notice the distance in my tone when she says, "That sounds yummy too."

Humming, I close the menu and push it off to the side. Grabb authors. Humming, I close the menu and push it off to the side. Grabb authors.

t it was smal at "II--- Cl. 2" I leave each other, especially after the horrible smal at "II--- Cl. 2" I leave that happened to her freshman year.

"Hey, Sky?" I play with my water glass as she raises her eyes. " t list of for tonight. I know I didn't reach out much this summer..."

She shakes her head, a soft smile on her face that eases the tension chest. "You don't need to be sorry, Raine. I get it. I'm glad you asked to be caleb out. Olive has been busy with Alex while he's in town, and I wasn't you'd want to hang out after everything."

Her friend Olive is involved with a rookie on a national hockey tea graduated with us in the spring. I didn't realize she and Alex were still bought each other. I assumed once he left Lindon, they'd call it quits.

I guess it's just me who makes those types of choices.

"Can I ask..." Wetting my lips, I squirm on my seat and clear my for the "Can I ask if he's okay? You probably see Caleb more than I do. I' out, but..." Would he want me to? He never so much as replied back when he texted me last. Just when I thought we'd finally get a chance uh, get about what happened at the store, he ghosted me completely.

Skylar's smile doesn't leave her face. "I think he's trying to see as they considering everything that's going on. But I don't know. I doubt a see a could actually be okay given what he's going through with his dad."

Nodding in agreement, I stare down at the table. I'm glad she's honest. Most people would probably tell me he's fine and leave it at Sort of question why I want to know at all.

When the waitress comes back to our table to take our order, I part heoremmy menu and say, "I'll have the chicken tenders, please."

nift this Skylar is staring at me.

But I don't meet her eyes.

chicken That night after Mom goes to bed, I send another text to Caleb.

4aboutMe: Can we talk?

The text goes unanswered, and before I go to bed, I see that he p picture online of a table set with two plates and a girl's hand in the coperkily the image.

ing my things:

My feet drag as I walk along Main Street after a horrible night's sleet Thanks bad cramping and intrusive thoughts. I pointlessly waited for a text Caleb only to be disappointed. It wasn't until after midnight when I are not in my and went to bed, only to toss and turn, hoping anytime I flipped my to hangover there'd be a text waiting for me.

sure if Pathetic, I chide myself. I've never lost sleep over whether a guy me before.

Im who Especially not one who obviously has the right to move on with seeing after I pushed him to do so.

I glance at my watch and wince when I realize I'm a few minu meeting my dad. He's always been a stickler for punctuality, not that throat.him. Ever since he got his real estate license a few years ago, he's d reachname for himself and the agency he works through in the tricounty at to mekept him on the go more times than not, which means embracing we to talk time I do get with him.

"Sorry," I say as soon as I slide into our usual booth at the diner. m okayfavorite place to meet up, and our orders never change. Burgers, fri nybodychocolate milkshakes with extra whipped cream. Dad always takes the from mine because I didn't like them as a kid. I haven't told hin s beingchanged over the years because I like our routine.

that or "Are you all right?" he asks, one of his dark eyebrows arching peel my cardigan off and put it over my purse beside me.

pass her For a second, I wonder if he knows just how much pain I'm in tempted to cancel on him today to take some Motrin and lie down heating pad on my stomach, but I knew Dad would be hurt if I didn' "Yeah, why?"

"You're five minutes late," he says. "Just thought something mig popped up. You look a little..."

I groan internally, already knowing how rough I look. The med took barely kicked in before I told Mom I was leaving. "No woman was bring of hear that she looks anything other than lovely, Dad. I'm having an other that's all. We're allowed to have them once in a while."

Thankfully, he doesn't press or lecture me on timeliness and chan topic. "Okay, princess. I meant no harm."

I simply nod once, moving pieces of my frizzy burgundy hair behear.

ep from "Some good news," my dad says. "I might have a buyer f kt fromLakeview home over in Decatur."

gave up I smile, knowing that property was causing him a lot of stress or phone past few months. "That's the million-dollar home that was renoval year, right?"

Pride takes over his expression, brightening the greenish-blue eyes I'd gotten from him instead of my brown ones from Mom. "It is. The his life a few people interested but only one of them who wasn't offering under the asking price or for ridiculous stipulations in the contract."

tes late "I'm glad," I tell him, hoping that'll ease some of his worries. H I blameenough going on trying to balance meetings with Mom and the lawy built adoesn't need other things weighing him down. "Do you think the deal rea. It'sthrough then? I know your boss wasn't sure the price tag was going thatever in the current market."

He rolls his eyes, grabbing one of the full water glasses and pu It's ourtoward him. "That's because she didn't see the vision like I did. It's a es, andhow you sell it." There's a pause before he scratches at his clean-shave cherry "Speaking of selling, I wanted to run something by you."

1 that's I lean back with caution. "Okay..."

"The summer cabin is in a great vacation area, and your mother h up as  $\ensuremath{^{I}}\xspace$  debating putting it up for sale."

Sitting up straighter with surprise, I shake my head. "You know I wasnever going to happen, right? Even though it's in Mom's name, with awould put up too much of a fight. There are a lot of memories in that c t come. Maybe that's selfish of me to say, considering I've had my fair s memories there too, but I couldn't imagine my one place to escape ht haveaway.

He folds his hands together on the table and leans forward. "I kno licine IYour mom and I have spoken about how the money we could get for vants tohelp you with college. You're in debt because of the loans you took coff day, neither she nor I want to see you drown in them. I can get the cabin market and get a great price for it. It doesn't make sense to have it iges thewaste or get ruined by the people your aunt rents it out to durant offseason. And you're going to be busy with graduate school and hind myyour certification, so it isn't like you'll be able to visit as much. Kee up, maintaining it, will be more money than it's worth."

for that Rubbing my hands down my thighs, I shake my head. "Mom and love that cabin. I love that place. They swore it'd stay in the familiever the Grandma Maud died because she loved it too. I appreciate you guys verted lastto help me, but you don't need to. I can manage my loans. I'm respons "I know you are," he replies. "This isn't a question of whether re were My shoulders drop. "Then what is this about? Why do you want too farnow? Does this have to do with the divorce?"

I know you are," he replies. "This isn't a question of whether I wishresponsible."

He glances out the window for a moment before sighing once. "le's gotabout the divorce. I'm not after the money. In fact, I won't get a sing vers; heof this sale. The whole point of this is to help you. I spoke to your mot will gonight, and—" to work I stare at him. "You talked to Mom?"

She was on the phone for a while last night, but she told me it walling itTiffany on the other end of the phone. I didn't think much about it laboutshe and her sister always gossip whenever they can.

en chin. He finally says, "Believe it or not, I still want to make her happ what would make her happy is showing you how much she loves doing this. She's proud of you, Raine. You've been so smart with as beenchoice you make in your life, so she wants to make sure you're tak of."

v that's Smart. My mother always calls me that, but she never m Tiffanyacademically. I do just fine, getting mostly As for years in schoo abin." intelligent. But no. She keeps rubbing my breakup in my face by tr hare ofmake me think it was the best decision I've made. "I can take care of goingyou know. I've been doing it for a while. I'd rather not be the reason tl rift between Mom and her sister. They're close, but this could make by that.complicated. And she needs somebody in her life right now, especial it could—"

out, and Stopping myself before I can say the divorce, I close my ey on theregroup. I have no idea whose feelings I'm trying to save by brushing it go totopic at this point—mine or Dad's. Seeing him brings back a lot of me ing theof when the three of us were a family. Even if those picture-perfect m earningwere rare, they existed. And it gave me hope for my own future be eping itknew what not to do in my relationship.

Yet here I am anyway, learning how to move forward from the Tiffanywho could have given me that.

ly after I'd hardly call that smart at all.

wanting "Mom doesn't have a lot of people in her life is all I mean. I'd l ible." her to get into a fight with the one person who's always been there. you'reseemed really happy at the cabin this summer."

He simply answers, "I get it. I do. I don't want that for her either. o sell itasking is for you to think about this. For your mother. It's not a done anything. We're simply discussing it as a possibility."

It's not I sit back in the booth and absorb all this. "You really do love h gle centhuh?"

her last His fingers graze his jaw. "It takes a long time to unlove son kiddo."

Swallowing my words, I glance down at the table and the little sc as Auntpeople have made into the wood with their initials.

what we order. And as soon as the milkshakes are delivered, Dad by. Andover and plucks off the cherry from mine with a smile and asks, "So you byeverything going with you?"

en care When I say "Things have been fine," it's obvious he hasn't anything from all the times Mom has said that same four-letter word eans itwas far from the truth. All the oblivious man in front of me responds with is "That's l. I am ying toprincess." myself, nere's a : things ly after res and off the emories oments cause I person nate for Tiffany All I'm deal or er still, nebody, ratches rised at reaches how is learned

when it was far from the truth.

All the oblivious man in front of me responds with is "That's good, princess."

Chapter Twelve

RAINE

SLIDING INTO MY usual seat for my first class the next day, I groan at the induced nausea twisting my stomach. I raided Mom's medicine cabi morning to take anything I thought could help before school, but it helped.

"You look like you're either hungover or ate the mystery meat the hall served yesterday," Charity, one of my longtime classmates, con studying the way I wrap my fingers around the ginger ale. "Shou worried? Because you're a little paler than usual, and I swore to myse not going to get sick this year."

Charity has always been worried about catching colds when the year starts. During freshman year, she got so sick she had to miss two of school.

I hold my hands up. "I woke up feeling a little queasy." I want to the food from the diner, but I know it isn't that. "It's not contagious, s get your Lysol out. I know you carry it."

She eyes me suspiciously. "How do you—"

"Junior year adolescent psychology. Remember what you did 1 Josie? She was terrified of you after that. She literally dropped the c she didn't have to see you again."

Charity blows a raspberry with her lips in exasperation. "I didn't r get anything in her eyes. She'd been sneezing without covering her and I wanted to clean the air around me. It was innocent."

The noise escaping me is abrupt and unattractive, but I don't callike I don't care about the scathing look Charity gives me for being by her germaphobia.

"You probably shouldn't Lysol anyone in the first place, Char," I her, knowing she'll more than likely do it again. I refuse to be victim two.

When I bend down to grab my things from my bag, I suck in a be the sharp pain tugging at my lower abdomen and try breathing thr without giving anything away.

If Charity notices, she doesn't say anything about it for the rest fifty-minute lecture. It gives me a chance to suffer in silence, praying day to pass in a blur so I can curl up in the fetal position hugging my pad and a waste basket.

Before we're dismissed, Professor Wild starts going around the with a glass bowl full of paper. "I want each of you to select one prome that the bowl. This will be the subject of your final project at the end of the You'll be asked not only to conduct interviews with at least two descriptions people as if they're your client but to write a detailed paper on ho subject is vital to the study of psychotherapy. While you are allowed light I be to complete this project so long as they sign off by the deadline print your syllabus."

When the middle-aged woman gets to me, I reach into the bowl a school out one of the few pieces of paper left. Unfolding it, I gape at what's along the middle and wonder what kind of cruel joke the universe is blame on me.

The psychology of romantic relationships.

Blinking slowly, I look up at the professor, who's moved on to t section of students. "You're going to take on an angle of your topic see fit. Preferably one that you're most likely to see during a cousession. Get creative. Use your imagination and, of course, some material laid out in your textbooks as resources to guide you. Remember to be sessentially practice for the future. What are you most likely to encount, what advice would you give to them?"

Charity shows me hers.

Psychology of domestic abuse.

re. Just I cringe, a little more grateful for my topic. When I turn my paper to show her, she laughs at the irony. She knows about the breakup. I remind details, since she and I have never really been friends, but most around here know about the split. How could they not when the p happened at the university's graduation ceremony? There are phot videos of the moment I rejected Caleb and walked away that circular reath atfirst few weeks of summer.

ough it Leaning back against the chair, I fold the paper back up and stuff my notebook.

of the Professor Wild returns to the front of the room and starts writing l for the dates for the project on the board for us to copy down. "You will be v heatingon these projects throughout the semester, so I highly suggest you brainstorming where you'd like to take your topics and whom you'd e roompartner with, because I expect a polished draft by finals week."

pt from Charity leans toward me. "I don't suppose you'd want to be each ie term.partners? I can play the scorned lover who has major commitment issu ifferentyou can be the docile doe-eyed girlfriend who's on the run from her w yourboyfriend. I'm thinking his name will be Greg because that sounds to pairdouchebag name, right? We could easily ace this."

sources I think about it for a second and remember what my grade was on I nted onassignment a few weeks back. It wasn't great, which means I could extra credit.

und pull Closing my notebook and stuffing it into my bag, I say, "As mucl writtenlove to trash-talk your ex"—I eye her knowingly. She must have for playingmet her egotistical ex-boyfriend Greg a time or two—"I think I'm g try finding someone outside class to get some extra points."

She frowns but nods. "Okay. Who do you think you'll ask?"

he next My options are limited. "I'm not sure. Maybe my mom will help r as youit, but that subject might be sort of touchy considering the divorce an inselingshrug. "I'll figure it out. She still owes me for forgetting my birthe of the ditching our normal summer plans. I'm hoping I can sucker her into oper, this with a guilt trip."

ounter? Charity grins. "Evil. I like it."

I wink, even though I'm ninety percent positive that Mom is going me no. I'll cross that bridge when I get there.

As we're packing up, I notice a notification lighting up my phone aroundblossoms in my chest as I pick it up and type in my passcode, thinking Not theCaleb's name, only to be met with a spam text from an unknown numb people—Standing up after turning off my phone screen and sliding my cell is roposalpocket, I sway on my feet and have to grab the back of my chair for battos and "Whoa." Charity grabs ahold of my arm as I blink back the dizzin ited theaccompanies the next wave of nausea that my ginger ale obviously touched. "Do you need to go to the health clinic?"

f it into Waving her off, I take a few deep breaths until I feel better. "No, I' Just..." I take a few more deep breaths, counting to five. "It's nothing. sey dueThank you though."

vorking As I straighten up and collect myself, I try ignoring all the he i beginbuilding inside me. It'll be a few days before I feel better if it's anythe like tolast time, but I know stress won't help. The more I think about Calworse it'll be to recover.

other's I never thought I'd feel sick over a boy again, but here I am. Ancies, andget to psychoanalyze myself and all the reasons why I'm an idiot for abusivethis way when I have no right to.

s like a Sometimes I worry that I'll make a horrible counselor because enough problems figuring out the reasons I do what I do. Like breal my firstwith Caleb and then being depressed about it. Or feeling sick whe use thethink about where I'll be six months from now compared to him. Wi happy with someone else while I'm still single thinking about him? I has I'dboth be on the same path alone, trying to find ourselves? I don't ever gotten Iwhat I'll feel like tomorrow, much less in that much time.

oing to I'm lost too, he texted me.

That doesn't make me happy to know. I wish I was the only one v that way. Then at least I'd know I did the right thing for his sake, if ne withmine.

d all." I As long as he's not like this. Rooted deep with every kind of it lay andthought possible.

doing it I grip my backpack strap tighter, knowing I'll never break free free train of thought if I keep focusing on it.

"I'll see you Friday," I tell Charity, evading her concerned expres g to tellweaving through the other students exiting the classroom.

I skip my other classes because I don't think I'll feel well enough 1 2. Hopethem and work later.

I'll see

er.

into my

lance. It's twenty minutes from closing when I finally get a chance to sit ess that Elena walks into the back and stops when she sees me clutching a hasn't peppermint tea that Bea made for me when she commented on how im fine.looked. The teenager gives me a once-over before tossing the rag in h Stress.into the little hamper in the corner.

"Are you still upset over that mishap earlier? It wasn't a big dearvinessshrugs. "The guy wasn't even mad about it. His wife was a little pissing likeshe always has sort of a resting bitch face whenever she—" leb, the "Enough," Bea cuts her off in a scolding tone, coming into the roc an empty tray that used to have croissants on it. She made them with 1 now Ichocolate filling and chocolate drizzle on top to look like spiderwet actingOctober is quickly approaching. "We don't gossip about customer

Even if it is true. That woman is a snake no matter how nice you are I have Spilling a little coffee on her bag isn't the end of the world."

king up I can't say I feel bad about it now. Not after she lectured me of never Iexpensive the black leather bag was when I accidentally tipped her hull he becoffee onto it. He, on the other hand, told me it was no big deal. I refit will wecoffee as I was berated by the woman at his side.

n know Bea turns toward me with her hands on her hips. "That woman is harping on someone when it comes to her husband. I never understoche saw in her. A pretty face, I suppose, when you look past the scowl."

who felt I can't help but crack a smile despite how much energy it takes. B not forthe rising headache in my temples, the stomachache making me quea the constant ache in my lower back, I've had a rough day. Elena has

And because I didn't want to admit just how off I felt, her nonstop p om thatplay on her day worsened the growing throbbing in my skull.

The teen huffs. "I thought we weren't allowed to gossip abosion bycustomers."

Sipping my tea to hide my trembling lips, I hear Bea reply with a to go toown this place, child. I can do as I please."

Her granddaughter grumbles under her breath before heading ou main room to start to clean up.

I shift in my chair, trying to swallow down the threatening nause never been a huge fan of tea, and every sip makes me want to gag. But down. eased my stomach, so I power through until the cup is empty. "I cup of anything you need help with back here before I go help her?"

Bea stares at me, her eyes narrowing a bit as she scans my fac green Idown the entirety of my body. She's been eyeing me throughout 1 er handwithout saying a word, and I haven't asked what's on her mind. "M well go out there or Elena will drag her feet to get extra hours. She thi ıl." Shefirst car will be brand new, so she wants to earn all the money she can sed, buthave it in me to tell her that her mom will never let her get one."

"A car?"

"A new one," she corrects. Shaking her head, she glances toward m with orangein question. "I know for a fact that she scratched her mother's ca is sincepracticing three-point turns. Then dented her father's trying to parallel I cringe. A new car definitely wouldn't be ideal for her then. s here. to her.make sure everything is cleaned up."

I set the cup in the sink and head back out to see Elena aggre on howscrubbing the counter like she's got a vendetta against it. I approa sband's grabbing one of the coffeepots with barely half a cup left in it and dun lled theinto the sink. "You good over there?"

For once, the teen is uncharacteristically quiet. It makes me look c always shoulder at her to see if she's okay. Her movement pauses before sh od whatand keeps scrubbing. "Grandma doesn't think I'm responsible enc handle a new car. I thought if I worked hard, I could prove to her etweenparents that I deserve one."

I start washing out the pot. "I don't think you have to worry s talkedproving you deserve one, Lena. They just want to make sure whater arrived.get is...sturdy." I can feel her rolling her eyes at my careful choice of lay-by-"Plus, car insurance isn't cheap for new drivers. They're going to make sure you're covered and safe."

"You sound like them," she mumbles. out the

I move from one machine to the next. "It isn't a bad thing that th 1 tart "Iabout you. My parents were the same way when I started driving. T after I got my license, I hit a deer and messed up the bumper so bad t to thealmost a grand to fix."

"A grand? Like, one thousand dollars?" she all but gasps.

It still makes me flinch to think about. "It was bad. I thought I wa ea. I've it it hasto be grounded for months, but my parents were just glad I was okay a Is thereinsurance on the car."

While I have my issues with my parents, they've never made 1 e, thenunloved. The few times I've messed up, like the deer incident, they the daymake a huge deal out of it. They didn't yell or fight or anything I was light asfrom them. They rushed to the scene of the accident and hugged menks herthan I'd ever been hugged by either of them because they were word. Don'tgotten hurt and were grateful I wasn't.

Elena is quiet again. Then, "You haven't said much about them. people are talking about their...uh..."

the girl "You can say divorce. It isn't like it's a secret. Trust me when I see r whilesometimes people are better off without each other. They're healthier."

park." "Is that why you broke up with Caleb?"

"I'll go I freeze at the question, hands stilling on the pot handle my fing tightly wrapped around. There's no easy way to explain why I did whe essively without giving too much away.

ch her, It's beyond fear. It's reality.

nping it "Sorry," she says. "People say I'm too nosey for my own good. Yo were really cute is all. I was thinking you'd get married and make a over mylittle—" ie sighs "Elena," Bea chides, cutting off her granddaughter. It's nothing I bugh toheard before, but it doesn't hurt any less to hear. "Read the room and myEnough talking. More cleaning."

My stomach hurts replaying all the times I thought I'd have that abouttoo. That was when I was a teenager, expecting to be like everybody elver youwas young and in love.

words. Before the future became real. Plausible.

want to "I don't think that future is very likely anymore" is what I tel before tuning out everybody around me to finish my shift trapped depths of my own mind.

ey care The day l it cost s going and had me feel

, didn't

make a huge deal out of it. They didn't yell or fight or anything I was used to from them. They rushed to the scene of the accident and hugged me tighter than I'd ever been hugged by either of them because they were worried I'd gotten hurt and were grateful I wasn't.

Elena is quiet again. Then, "You haven't said much about them. I know people are talking about their...uh..."

"You can say divorce. It isn't like it's a secret. Trust me when I say that sometimes people are better off without each other. They're healthier."

"Is that why you broke up with Caleb?"

I freeze at the question, hands stilling on the pot handle my fingers are tightly wrapped around. There's no easy way to explain why I did what I did without giving too much away.

It's beyond fear. It's reality.

"Sorry," she says. "People say I'm too nosey for my own good. You guys were really cute is all. I was thinking you'd get married and make adorable little—"

"Elena," Bea chides, cutting off her granddaughter. It's nothing I haven't heard before, but it doesn't hurt any less to hear. "Read the room, child. Enough talking. More cleaning."

My stomach hurts replaying all the times I thought I'd have that future too. That was when I was a teenager, expecting to be like everybody else who was young and in love.

Before the future became real. Plausible.

"I don't think that future is very likely anymore" is what I tell Elena before tuning out everybody around me to finish my shift trapped in the depths of my own mind.

Chapter Thirteen

CALEB

Spending the better part of the last three and a half years living bunch of horned-up, cocky football players meant hearing and seein. Whenever one of them would go through a breakup, there'd alw somebody telling them to get under somebody new to get over w they're stuck on.

I gave advice to anybody who asked for it that I'd like to this reasonable, not solely based on sex. Ironically, now that I've moved live on my own without anybody pestering me with sage wisdom, myself using the physical stuff to get through all the other tangled inside my head.

Slowly peeling the comforter off my body, I creep out of bed and over my shoulder at the raven-haired beauty sleeping soundly stomach. The comforter has fallen halfway off her naked body, show the small tattoo of an open birdcage on her shoulder and the script I down the length of her spine that's from her favorite Edgar Allan Poe I

The first time we slept together, we lay in bed while I graz fingertips along the letters and listened to her tell me about the other she wants to get. She loves literature, flowers, and music, so she wants favorite things represented. When she asked if I ever wanted any, I to couldn't think of anything permanent that I'd want immortalized on m

It's not entirely the truth.

A long time ago, I thought about going with Aiden Griffith to go work done when he was getting his Captain America shield filled popular artist in the next town over. I had every intention of getting name until the guy who owned the parlor talked me out of it. "You know what the future will bring, my man. I've seen a lot of people c regret ever getting names tatted on them."

I wanted to get it ten times more just to prove I wouldn't be one c people. The only reason I didn't go through with it is because it was only studio and I had none on me at the time. When he asked if I was make an appointment to come back, I told him I'd call.

Guess that was fate's way of stepping in.

Gathering my things, I start dressing on the other side of the ropeeking at the girl hugging a pillow on the bed. I never stay the nig why I never invite her to my place. I know I'd feel bad kicking her or with all was said and done. The thought of sharing my space with someog it all. sends me in a panic spiral, especially because Emma and I aren't expanse be her is taking it a date at a time.

I'm slipping on my boots by the door when Emma comes to, g nk was asking, "Are you leaving already?"

out and out and been asleep for a while. It's almost two. I've got a test in the morning, She never says if she wants me to stay and never bothers asking. She knows she'd be setting herself up for disappointment.

Walking over, I bend down and press a quick kiss to her head. "C on her to sleep. I know you're off tomorrow. You could use all the rest you cate of the following off cover her bare chest. She looks like she's about to say something expoem.

red my I smile, pecking her lips before grabbing my keys from my sw tattoos Pocket. "Thanks. I'll let you know when I get home."

All she does is nod, and I feel those eyes follow me as I make my ld her I but the front door of her apartment.

Do I feel bad for ditching her every time we hook up? Yes. She's to person I've slept with besides Raine. And despite the breakup, it still be the some thought digs its claws in as I drive home, walk into my apartment, an Raine's

One of these days, I'll sleep over at Emma's. If she'll let me. But then she'll be sick of my back-and-forth, and I wouldn't blame her. I'm sick of it too.

of those her if she told me she was done.

And while I don't want things with us to end, I wouldn't hold it her if she told me she was done.

This time, I'd let her walk away. a cashinted to om and The storm echoes throughout the valley, causing me to shift for th tht. It's time in bed, praying for sleep to come. I've been lying here for a co it when hours, and just when I'm about to drift off, a new boom of thunder rat ne new windows and startles me back to consciousness.

clusive. I used to stay up just so I could watch the storms from the enclose promise on my parents' house. Dad would always be outside on the swing h rocking with Mom in, and we'd sit there in silence as we witnessed roggily Nature's wrath. It was somehow peaceful to see how the lightning brighten the otherwise pitch-black sky and how the air had a You've welcoming scent to it as the rain trickled down onto the tin roof. so..."

Dad even talked Raine into sitting out there with us when Dad even talked Raine into sitting out there with us whenever s Maybe over for dinner or to have family game nights with us. He'd always joke about how the sky was calling for her whenever it would open us back sky is trying to get your attention, Raine," he'd always say, nudg in get." playfully "Are you going to great a grea playfully. "Are you going to answer?"

orter to Once, he convinced us to go out and dance in the rain. Rai else but laughing at my horrible dance moves, telling me I should leave sideline entertainment to DJ, since he tended to show off his moves eatshirt halftime. I remember the day it was pouring down and Raine got my not only go out with her but dance with her too.

escape It made me think of what our wedding would be like. She'd dan her father, I'd dance with my mother, and maybe Dad would ask he he only chance to dance with him before I stole her away for the night. ill feels iculous The nostalgic feeling of those late nights on the porch is long d listen replaced by dread over how different everything is now. It weighs do stomach until I'm giving up on sleep, tossing the thin blanket off maybe walking over to my small apartment window to see what mayhem is outside. The front lawn has a huge puddle in the middle of it, and one trash cans is tipped over from the howling wind.

We'd never have that now.

against It's late in the year for storms like this, but it's better than the sr got in October a few years ago. People were trick-or-treating with coats on over their costumes, collecting candy in between snow squalls

When I walk into the tiny kitchen, I hear the drip, drip, drip, drip, definitely not coming from the sink faucet. Flicking on the light, I do the tenth examination of my surroundings before turning toward the open living to the space is crowded by the big couch that was given to me by a friend the family and a cheap TV stand I bought online with an eight-year-old tell on it.

d porch And right above that old piece of technology is a huge water sta e loved droplets slowly coming through the bubbled ceiling.

Mother "Fuck," I curse, rushing over to unplug my TV and pull the stan gould from the leak. I clench my eyes closed before taking a few deep brocertain calm myself down. Mom always told me that getting worked up go nowhere fast, and it's obvious that there's nothing to be done about the was already damaged.

make a p. "The early tomorrow morning, I spend the next two hours fixing the leak. ing her roof, and waiting out the storm in order to actually cover the dam ne was before it does more damage inside.

all the during I hop into the shower to warm up from the cold air, spend the next dad to minutes trying to dry up the wet carpet, then pass out on the couch.

It feels like seconds later when my phone alarm goes off, telling m ce with my ass up for class. And for the first time, I don't. I don't know if er for a exhaustion weighing down my limbs or the fogginess making logic the hills, but I don't care about my test. Or about school or about n later at the store.

All I want is sleep.

own my

An extra five minutes.

me and Maybe ten.

Turning my alarm off, I doze back off, not thinking about mensuing anything, much less the constant noise of my phone goir Subconsciously, I know I'll regret choosing to ignore my responsion we when I wake up. But for the first time in a long time, I manage to completely undisturbed sleep.

winter No dreams.

s. No nightmares.

that's Nothing. And maybe complete silence is what I need, even if I can a quickget it in small doses.

g room. When I wake up a little while later, there are eight missed messad of themy phone. Since none of them are from my frantic mother, I choose no levisionthrough them. It probably makes me a little bit of an asshole, esp because I saw Emma's name in the mix, but I can't gather enough in withtoday to care about anything or anyone.

By the time I slide into my usual seat minutes before my last class d awayI'm getting a few stares from people who I typically beat here.

eaths to DJ, who's taking a few of the same classes as me this semester, the ets youwadded-up piece of paper at me from the row over. He leans forward what'scaptures my attention, his brows drawn up. "Everything good?"

I lift my shoulder and nod as if to say same old, same old. There are ght and new updates anytime one of my friends asks how I'm doing these day. Whichdefault answer is "fine" or "okay" with an occasional "tired" mixed that the feel like being halfway honest, but most times I lie through my teeth I not thing I've always been the friend who's had his shit together.

DJ exchanges a look with somebody on the other side of him is open.turning back to me, slowly nodding. "Okay, well...good."

twenty He's being weird. Then again, that's not entirely abnormal for DJ miss anything this morning? I emailed Kroger about the exam and e to getheard back from him. Sort of hoping he lets me make it up."

it's the My friend sits back. "He isn't a total douche, so I don't see run forwouldn't. You've had a lot going on."

ny shift I make a face, not wanting to let my father's condition be the r blow off school. Realistically, today shouldn't have happened. I realize when I woke up feeling like shit about skipping class when I coul chugged a cup of coffee or three and made it in. I even studied for this unlike others I've gone in and half-assed, hoping for a decent grade.

nuch of Cracking my sore neck because of the shitty position I slept in 1g off.couch, I blow out a breath and grab my notebook. "I don't know. I ibilitiesknew about everything and acted like he couldn't give less of a s have asummer. I almost asked him for an extension once, but the man woul me get the question out. It's like he knew the second I walked up to him

One of our other classmates, Jeremy, snorts at the drop of the well-professor's name. "That's because Neilson has a rep to protect. M an onlycarved from Satan himself. He gave me a C on a project during unc Me."

ages on I'm glad I'm not the only one who rolls my eyes at Jeremy's rem ot to godoes too when we share a look. The kid has been full of himself since peciallyknown him, which has been three years. A lot of people who stuck aro energytheir MBA also did undergrad at Lindon and shared a lot of classes to

There are some people, like Jeremy and his big head, I wouldn't m s starts,never saw again.

I'd take Professor Neilson over him any day because at least the arows aman who takes no shit also rarely speaks it.

once he "I'm just saying," Jeremy keeps going, leaning back and cross arms. "If I could get a grade like that, it's obvious the man doesn't e neverdamn about anybody. With Kroger, you're basically going to be hande ys. Thebecause he'll probably feel bad for you."

I in if I Eye twitching, I focus solely on the notebook I'm opening to last becausescribbles.

DJ asks Jeremy, "When you talk, do you ever hear what a douchet beforesound like? Or is it sort of an 'in one ear and out the other' situation?"

I don't hold back the snort as I grab my pen from my pocket and jo "Did Itoday's date in the corner. I'm tempted to tell DJ to stop while he's haven'tbecause it isn't worth dealing with Jeremy, but hearing the idiot try to way out of this conversation is the most entertainment I'll get all day.

why he That is until Jeremy says "What? I'm being honest. People aren't g treat a student whose dad is dying like anybody else. He's going to go eason Ifree passes. Not even professors want that kind of bad karma on them."

zed that The room grows quiet.

ld have Deathly quiet.

is exam No murmurs.

No conversations from anybody.

on the Slowly, I look up at the guy who knows he fucked up. When I lo Neilsonwith him, it looks like he's trying not to shit himself.

hit this The worst part is that people do pity me.

dn't let They've pitied me since they heard the news. The number of times." been told "sorry" has made me fucking immune to the word. I don

-knownwant to hear it anymore in any context, which is probably why he an wasfrom Raine didn't mean shit the way it would have before Dad's diagn lergrad. Their condolences don't change anything, least of all the fact that is dying. But does that mean I want to hear people say it aloud and ark. DJI'm asking for a handout? Like I expect one?

e we've No.

und for Fuck no.

ogether. "Jeremy," I say in a low, slow tone, "I'm usually not one to start s ind if II am the one who tends to end it. So for once in your life, I suggest y the hell up before I make you shut up. I'm in no goddamn mood to elderlyyour bullshit. Understand?"

The tension in the room grows, so much so that the professor wing hisand stops to study everybody because he can sense something is a give ahappen. When he sees the stare-off between me and the douche whole an Ahave just pissed himself, he clears his throat and makes his way up front.

class's "Sorry I'm late," he says, still eyeing us in the back. When his foct to me specifically, I can't help but feel my jaw clench. "I wasn't ex pag youyou, Caleb. I figured you'd be dealing with..." His words trail off, snapping me away from Jeremy.

ot down The confusion on my face must be obvious because DJ cuts in wins aheadstore."

talk his Dumbly, I repeat, "The store?"

More people stare.

going to My friend's eyes grow wary. "Dude, didn't you look at your plet somefigured that's why you weren't in class this morning. People at Bea talking about it. Matt and I tried getting ahold of you too, but you answer, so we figured you were already there with the cops. Raine s reached out to you after she called the police."

I pull out my phone and notice just how many messages there actu that I've been avoiding since I woke up earlier.

ck eyes "Fuck," I say, darting up and collecting my things and ignoring the clattering to the floor behind me.

I read one message.

ies I've Then another.

't even Another.

aring it Raine did, in fact, message me three different times before calling osis. Ronny. DJ. Matt. There are a few other people who are friends of the my dadwho reached out, including a retired cop who Dad always played pok act likeon Friday nights before he was too sick to go.

DJ stands too. "I'll come with you."

I don't have time to argue as I walk out of the classroom, feeling biggest dickhead known to man. The one time I take a fucking break, thit, buthardware store is robbed because I obviously didn't lock the fucking ou shutbehind me when I left this morning.

day for DJ says, "Take a deep breath, man. You look like you're al explode."

ralks in I stop abruptly, turning to him faster than he's expecting. "That's labout to I am. One day, DJ. I wanted one goddamn day where I didn't have mightwith anything. I'm running on little sleep and coffee fumes. And loc to thehappens when I try being selfish. I ignore a shit ton of people who's trying to get in contact with me for hours so that they don't have to re is turnsto my parents and add more shit onto their plates. The store pectingresponsibility now."

finally I swipe a hand through my hair, feeling how shaky my palm is finance. From the guilt.

th "The Slowly, DJ takes the keys dangling from my free hand. "I'm because you're going to rage the entire way there. The last thing you to damage your truck or, God forbid, get yourself or someone else because you're pissed."

hone? I I don't fight him on it because I know he's right. The last thing I 's weredo is get myself into a bigger hole than I'm already in.

i didn't "Caleb!" I hear, stopping me from opening the door to my truck. aid sheturn, I see Raine jogging over to DJ and me.

I hold up my hand, wanting to avoid any extra mixed emotions rig ally are "I can't handle any more bullshit today, Raine, so whatever you have needs to wait."

ne chair She stops abruptly a few feet away, lips parted in shock at my cool DJ curses under his breath before shoving me toward the passenge "Get in the truck, dumbass, before you say more shit you're going to later."

Right before I climb in, I see Raine's crestfallen expression as she truck for a brief moment before she shakes her head, turns around, and away. My best friend walks over, climbs into the driver's side, and she like thea look.

So didstep back. I get in and slam the door shut with a groan, knowing the family uncalled for.

and the "I don't want to hear it," I grumble, pinching the bridge of my nose ig door He scoffs. "I hope you realize what a dick move that was when you your head. She was just checking in on you because she cares. Jesus."

bout to That hits me square in the gut, which I have a feeling he was go: "I'll talk to her when I can."

Decause The only thing I give him is a noncommittal noise when he replies to dealcan't do it all, Cal. You're not a superhero, and nobody expects you to ok what I harrumph, looking out the window as we drive down the main do be beenthinking about how much easier it'd be if I were one.

ach out

is my

om the driving need is

e killed

want to

When I

ht now.

e to say

tone.

er door.

o regret

takes a step back. I get in and slam the door shut with a groan, knowing that was uncalled for.

DJ walks over to her, but I don't know what they say. Her eyes go to the truck for a brief moment before she shakes her head, turns around, and walks away. My best friend walks over, climbs into the driver's side, and shoots me a look.

"I don't want to hear it," I grumble, pinching the bridge of my nose.

He scoffs. "I hope you realize what a dick move that was when you clear your head. She was just checking in on you because she cares. Jesus."

That hits me square in the gut, which I have a feeling he was going for. "I'll talk to her when I can."

The only thing I give him is a noncommittal noise when he replies, "You can't do it all, Cal. You're not a superhero, and nobody expects you to be."

I harrumph, looking out the window as we drive down the main drag and thinking about how much easier it'd be if I were one.

Chapter Fourteen

RAINE

 $I_{\text{T'S BEEN TWO}}$  days since I spoke to the police officer about the hastore, and I still haven't heard a single thing from Caleb after trying thim on campus. Did I expect a thank-you for letting him know? Not figured I'd get some sort of update to make sure he was okay. I was wigive him the benefit of the doubt for snapping because he was obhaving a bad day, but the silent treatment is hard not to be upset about he's been using it to avoid talking about us having sex too.

Grumbling over my sour mood, I check my phone for the third tin hour and a fourth right after just in case he texted me and I didn't When I come to terms with the fact that he wants nothing to do wit decide to power off my cell and stuff it into my book bag. I can' another day obsessing over the situation. Namely, Caleb.

I spot Skylar walking into the library a few minutes later, he dancing along the sections of seating until they land on me. She war walks over to where I've got my textbooks all set up in front of me table with a perky smile on her face.

"Hey," she greets. Her eyes study the mess of school material in 1 me. "That all looks intense. I'm glad I ruled out psychology as a r that's the reading material."

I grab the apple-cinnamon flavored coffee I bought from Bea's a shift this morning and take a sip. "Yeah, classes are a little rou semester," I admit.

Mom had told me she didn't want to be part of my project in the Janet Copelin way possible. "I don't need to be part of your little session, Raine. I've got other things to focus on."

It wasn't necessarily a surprising reaction to hear since she rarely me with homework in the past, but I would have liked her to at least enhelping me. "How are you doing?" I ask, gesturing toward the seat from me. "You can sit if you'd like. I haven't seen DJ yet if that you're looking for."

Last time I crossed paths with DJ, he told me to give Caleb time going through it, Raine," he'd told me. "I'm not saying that what he scool, but we both know that's not him. Just do me a favor when he cohis senses? Make him grovel."

DJ was trying to make me feel better, but it didn't work. Because ardware if anyone should be groveling for all the horrible stuff that's has to catch between us, it's not Caleb.

Skylar's sweet nature and DJ's typical goofy personality have melling to feel a little relieved that the people I've known for years aren't just goody drop me out of their lives completely because of my relationship should be the complete type of the complete t

Mom told me not to worry about that stuff before the semester "Your true friends will never leave," she said. I guess she'd know. I vote in an the small group of people who she and Dad hung out with on occasion home, I between them, like their friends had to choose sides with the divor the spend Mom spent weeks complaining to me about it, and there was nothing say to make it better.

Skylar sits down, dropping her things onto the small corner of the eyes and on the Caleb at the store. They're doing more cleanup today after the police of try getting fingerprints and look over the security footage. Did you second front of the can come. He told me he were the security footage. Did you second did it? Danny told me it looked bad when they went in the other day."

Knowing he saw the damage and still didn't reach out only makes worse, but I try not to let her see that. "I didn't go in or anything, but i fter my look like there was anybody inside when I passed by. The police go gh this

She nibbles her bottom lip. "That sucks." A brief pause surrou When she shifts and looks around, I'm wondering what's on her mine she says, "Can I ask you something?" therapy

I already know what it's about. "Sure."

"Do you miss him?"

helped The question sinks in almost instantly, but not as quickly as the across Every day."

We share a look, and I note the confusion on her face. I understa

's whothe same look most people give me over the situation. How could I n someone I spent so much time with over the years? Losing Caleb f. "He'slosing a piece of me.

aid was "Did you date anyone before DJ?"

I'm going with this. "Not anything serious, but yes. I had one relat I knowbefore him."

ppened I nod. "I haven't. It's always been..." Well, it hasn't always been but if I brought up Cody, people probably would think I broke up witl ade mesolely because I wanted to explore other options.

joing to Did I try using that as an excuse when Caleb pressured me for a ift withafter I told him no? Yes, I did. It was a cop-out that I'm not proud c thought it was better than the truth.

started. Maybe if he was angry at me for worrying I was settling down v vatchedwrong person, he'd be able to move on with someone who can give I on splitlegacy he's always wanted to build. The children and house with a ree too.picket fence.

I could It hurts way too much to think about, but that's my burden to be Skylar's, Caleb's, or anybody else's problem.

ie table "I have a lot to figure out, Sky. Things I wish I could have done be as withasked me to marry him and things I'm probably still avoiding a litt came to some feelings have to be dealt with on your own without any other infee who and I knew I wouldn't be able to sort them out if we were together scared to tell him yes, and the next thing I knew I was being escorte me feelfrom the football field by my family."

t didn't I'm still mortified by the experience. I'd rather not think about of theremore times than not it's the last thing that replays in my head be manage to sleep at night. His face is melded into my mind, the expresends us.gave me a combination of pure shock and heartbreak.

d. Then The blond across from me reaches over and squeezes my hand onc sure it couldn't have been an easy choice. Do you think you tv ever...?"

That's the million-dollar question that everybody wants to know answer.have feelings for him? Yes. But has anything really changed since him down? No. Because he doesn't know how deep my problems § nd. It'ssame ones that would inevitably impact him if I were finally honest w ot missabout them. Where would that leave us even if we jumped back in he lelt likeNot anywhere healthy.

"It's not really up to me," I admit, rubbing my arm before pickin highlighter.

where We fall back to silence again save the people talking at the tables ionshipus.

Skylar clears her throat after a few minutes and pulls out her Caleb, "Olive and I are planning on going to this open mic night at Hulbert. h Calebsure if that's your thing, but you're welcome to come."

I nibble my bottom lip. "When is it?"

reason "Thursday night." She smiles. "I don't know if you've got any other, but Isince it's Halloween. We were planning on meeting at Bea's, actually, food beforehand. We could all meet up and then head over if you vith theworking a shift that night."

him the I won't know my schedule until tomorrow, which I tell her. "I'll a whiteknow," I promise. It might be good to go out. I've had people invite things before, but usually Caleb and I would do something else.

ear. Notthought he'd enjoy open mic nights. Most of his friends would te people brave enough to perform or crack jokes there, and even thousefore henot like them, I never wanted him to be bored. So I didn't bother g tle. Butstuff like that.

luence, Her eyes go down to her phone before that friendly smile grow. I wassomething much bigger. "Danny is on his way now. He's trying to cold awayme that we need a tortoise. Long story. I'll fill you in another time. A let me know about open mic night when you know your schedule."

it, but I give her a nod before waving her off when DJ walks in a few refore Ilater. He puts his arm around Skylar's shoulders, tugging her into a sion hehug and pressing a kiss against the top of her head. Those two have be since day one. There's still a tiny piece of jealousy that makes itself re. "I'mwhen it has no right. When I force myself to look away, I notice t vo willperson who walked into the library after them.

And he's looking right at me.

v. Do I I expect him to walk away or head toward the table Skylar and I turningsat down at. Instead, Caleb beelines right for me. I have to swallow th 50—thechoking noise when he stops right where Skylar was sitting only 1 ith himbefore. He doesn't sit down, simply stands and watches me watch him adfirst? Then he says, "Thank you."

Two words.

ng up a I fidget, feeling eyes on us.

I wanted to hear from him, but I'm surprised it's face-to-face. aroundwould have been better. A lot less personal.

His lips press together as he dips his chin and picks at his shirt. phone.things are better said in person," he says as if he can read my mind. 'I'm notone of them. I appreciate you calling the cops and getting them there more could be taken at the store. I know that's probably what you car to say before I acted like an ass toward you the other day. You didn't er plansthat."

to grab "Is everything okay?" For some reason, I feel the need to elar're not "With the store, I mean. Did they get any money or do a lot of damage

He shifts on his feet uncomfortably. "It will be. They couldn't get let youregister, but they took some expensive stuff to make up for it." He me tofinally lift to mine before a small sigh escapes those downturned lips. I nevermy fault," he mumbles.

ase the My brows pinch. "How?"

gh he's "I forgot to lock the door. I was tired and not thinking straight."

oing to I frown. "You can't blame yourself for other people's actions. The to rob the place whether the door was locked or not. Do the police has intoleads?"

onvince "The cameras picked up a little bit. It's fuzzy, but it's something t nyway, with."

All I can manage is "Good."

ninutes His throat clears. "Anyway, I just wanted to say thank you. So..."

frontal "Yeah."

en cute "Okay."

known He still stands there.

he new I still stare at him.

"I know you don't want to," I say quietly, feeling a little awkw bringing it up, "but I still think we should talk about what happened b J haveus. Just for some clarity."

e weird He doesn't look particularly thrilled at the idea of discussing our l' ninuteseven two months after it happened. Not that I can say I am. "Look, i back. one-time thing. Right? I just assumed we were both in the moment l we're not together anymore. I was emotional. I don't know what else about it."

It takes me a few seconds to figure out how to respond, feeling the A textof his uncertainty absorb into my chest. I don't know what I expected say, but it wasn't that.

"Some "Right." Why does my heart ache so much right now? "Yeah. In this ismean anything. I guess I just wanted to clear the air. Make sure ye beforeokay."

ne over Okay is the last thing Caleb is, and we both know it. The two deservehaven't changed and neither has our situation.

Caleb begins to say something else, his lips parting, before he appropriate.second-guesses himself and turns to leave.

"It was need anything let me know. I know we're not together, but I can bel

"It wasneed anything, let me know. I know we're not together, but I can hel up the store if you haven't finished yet. I'm still here."

I'm still here for you is what I don't say, hoping he'll read betw lines.

y chose His lips press together before he nods once and says, "Okay." ave any Okay. That word again. Something tells me he won't be reaching help.

so work From the corner of my eye, I see both Skylar and DJ giving sympathetic looks when Caleb walks away. I bet that's how they lo him the day of graduation when I was the one doing the escaping.

For the longest time, there were only three places in Lindon considered my safe places—Bea's Bakery, the football house where and some of his teammates used to live, and the campus library. I nevetween people that my parents' constant arguing was a reason I preferred stay of the house for as long as I could growing up or why I settled for the shookup, house even though the girls were catty and never had anything nice t was a about one another half the time. The football house was a peaceful governance.

e to sayand I enjoyed spending time there, even when the boys would get a li competitive playing video games or tease me and Caleb if we went ups weight—Living back at home is different now. It's quieter without Dad and him toisolating because Mom stays busy with her tailoring gigs that leave opposite sides of the house when we're both here. I thought I'd like t didn'tway, but I was wrong.

ou're... When I walk into the kitchen, I see a note on the whiteboard on the that says Mom went to meet with Dad and their lawyers.

of us Grabbing a water, my keys, and my bag, I head out the door and small smile to the elderly man next door. Mr. Applebee barely to barently anybody, but he's always outside working on his beautiful

Sometimes I wonder what his life story is, but Mom and Dad always at meto mind my own business instead of asking a million questions like I ouldersdo.

"If you "Hi, Mr. Applebee," I greet in passing, noting the bright red to p cleanhe's picking from what must be the last crop of the season. "It loc you've got a better crop this year. I heard people saying they were een theissues with their tomatoes last year because of the bugs."

When I was a teenager, my parents thought it'd be fun to have o garden. We spent weeks building a section in the backyard for it, v out forhelp of Caleb and his father at the hardware store supplying helpf tricks, and supplies, only for all the plants to die looking sad and di ing meMom said she didn't want to waste more time and money trying t oked atanything else, so the cute garden bed we spent so much time on is grown in.

My neighbor simply nods once and goes back to the tomatoes. Is off and head down the sidewalk, hoping a walk in the fresh air will be clear my head and get me in the mindset to get some work done. I hav that I of reading to do by tomorrow that I've barely touched because my mediate Caleb been elsewhere.

ver told I'm walking toward the entrance of the local park that has my ing out walking trail when I see a dog sniffing one of the garbage cans on the sorority There's no collar on the tiny gray puppy that can't be more than a cost to say months old.

etaway, "Hey, cutie," I greet, cautiously approaching the friendly dog. I like it could be some sort of pit bull mix. Whatever it is, it's ado

Ittle toocrouch down and reach out carefully to let it sniff my fingers before stairs. pink tongue darts out and licks me. "You're far too little to be wander I a littlehere alone, especially by the busy street."

e us on I glance around to see if anyone is searching for him and frown it that realize it's only me out here. Sitting down on the concrete, I watch animal slowly approaches me with a little waddle that makes me smile fridge. The smile grows when he steps onto my leg and wags his tail so hott wiggles. "Do you believe in fate? I've always wanted a dog of moffer aand maybe now is the perfect time."

calks to A cute, high-pitched bark comes from my new four-legged garden.currently standing in my lap. It makes me laugh as I scratch between lold meand see him wag his tail harder.

tend to I've always said I wanted to get a dog when I got my own place never lived anywhere that had room for one. Caleb and I discusse matoesbreed would be good or what place we should adopt from, but we never like it to that point.

having "It'd be like our baby," I tell Caleb, looking up at him from whead rests on his lap. "Corgis are pretty cute. Have you seen the oneur owngone viral online? His accounts are all named Conner the Corgi. I spevith thetoo much time watching the videos his owners make of him."

ful tips, Caleb smiles down at me, passing me another handful of Milk Duseased.moving hair out of my eyes. "Corgis are cute, but you know what's cut o grow My face twists in consideration. "A bulldog? Frenchies are now alladorable too."

He laughs. "I was thinking about an actual baby."

shrug it My lips twitch downward at the thought.

nelp me The appetite I had is squandered by the baby talk. Not because e a pilebabies but because I remember vividly what my doctor told me about ind hasthem years ago. After it happened. I don't like thinking about that.

Denial at its best.

favorite Staring at the candy melting in my hand, I say, "We're only twer corner.We've got a long time before we consider a baby. We're still uple ofourselves."

He bends and kisses my temple. "You're right. But I think we're g It looksmake some cute kids one day."

rable. I Throat tightening, I make a humming noise in feigned agreement.

e a cuteOne day."

ing out Maybe I should have just ripped the Band-Aid off and told him was the first time Caleb ever brought up babies, but it definitely was when Ilast time. I'd always find a reasonable response.

as the We're still young.

We've got our careers to focus on.

nard his We should get a dog first.

y own, We need a house.

What about our student debt?

friend I knew those excuses would run out eventually. And they did.

his ears I glance under the puppy to see if he is, in fact, a boy. Sometimes can't sleep at night, I'll google puppies for sale in my area to see we, but Ioptions are. The price tags are the only real reason I haven't tried had whatactually get one. That and my mom always being hesitant about pets or madewe lost our tiger cat, Murphy, years ago, she swore we'd never get pet because it was too hard to see them go. Dad thought she was being *iere my*dramatic, but I understood. Losing things you love puts a hole in you e that'sthat never really heals no matter the amount of time that passes.

"Oh my God, you found him!" someone says frantically from beh I look over my shoulder to see a girl who looks around my age.

ıds and Dark hair, almost black. Tall. Pretty.

ter?" She stops beside me and squats down, fussing over the dog who's *pretty*happy to see her. "He got out of the yard earlier when I wasn't loc swear, I knew this one was going to be trouble as soon as he was born you so much for keeping an eye on him."

My chest deflates, along with the possibility of me being able to tar I hate little guy home with me. "What's his name?"

having The girl smiles at me, her eyes a unique shade of gray-blue that I seen often. "He doesn't have one, actually. My parents' pit bull unexpected litter of puppies with the neighbor's dog, so my family to ty-one.not to name them or else I'd get attached. I already am though. How to babies not be when you see that face?"

I turn back to the puppy in question. "So he's for sale?"

oing to "Are you interested? My mom isn't sure what to price them at que but I can talk to her. You're Raine, right?"

"Yeah. My eyes widen at her guess.

"I've seen pictures of you," she admits. Before I can ask where she then. Itphotos of me, she stands and glances down at the puppy still on me. "sn't theask my mom about this troublemaker. Pitties don't sell well because reputation, so she may be willing to give you a really good price."

I carefully pick up the squirming puppy and stand up, passing him her. "I'd appreciate that. I can give you my number."

She waves me off. "I'll ask Caleb for it." Lips parting in confusio casual statement, I remain quiet until she decides to elaborate. "I worl hospital. I'm one of his dad's nurses."

Wow. Small world. "That's a tough job, especially if you work wi when Iof patients like him." The dying ones, that is. She has to be strong that mywith being surrounded by people you can't save.

arder to She shrugs, her friendly expression not falling or morphing into a . Whenelse. "It can be, but I wouldn't trade it for anything. What's that anotherEveryone comes into your life for a reason, a season, or a lifetime. I'd ; a littlethink the patients who come into my life are there to make a dif ir heartsomehow."

I find myself nodding along, a tight smile on my face despite the ind me.feeling in the pit of my stomach. "I didn't catch your name," I tell her.

She holds out her hand. "Emma."

We're quiet for a moment before the puppy in her arms starts bark clearlysquirming, demanding to be let down. "You'd better get going before pking. Ion you. That'd be about my luck."

. Thank Her nose scrunches. "Trust me, it's already happened at least thre since the puppies were born. Pee everywhere. Then again, you neve ake this what fluids you'll get on you in the hospital." She shrugs again.

myself it's practice for whenever I become a mom someday. Everyo haven'tto get a dog before you have a kid, so you know what you're in for." had an Clearing my throat, I say, "I'm just looking for a dog right now." sold me Emma laughs lightly. "You just went green. I'm teasing. I should I can youanswer about the puppies in the next week or two."

I watch her and my potential four-legged roommate walk awa waving them off.

uite yet, Walking toward the trail, I find myself smiling at the step I'm taking to move forward after a little too long of sulking in the choices in the past. The hole in my chest is still there, but it doesn't e's seenintimidating.

Let me When I get home, I see a basket full of ripe tomatoes on the doors of theira little note about the best ways to eat them. My smile widens in the dof Mr. Applebee's house, knowing he's the one who brought them.

over to For the first time in a long while, I feel hope.

n at the k at the ith a lot to cope nything saying? I like to ference heavy

ing and he pees

e times r know "I told ne says have an ıy after finally I made feel as intimidating.

When I get home, I see a basket full of ripe tomatoes on the doorstep and a little note about the best ways to eat them. My smile widens in the direction of Mr. Applebee's house, knowing he's the one who brought them.

For the first time in a long while, I feel hope.

Chapter Fifteen

RAINE

 $M_{\text{R}}$ . Applebee is tending to one of his garden boxes when I round th fence splitting our properties after another long day at work. I'm til back hurts, and stress has given me another headache that makes n ache.

"Thank you for the tomatoes," I tell my neighbor, stopping at tl gate door of his property. "I cut one up for BLT sandwiches."

My fingers smooth along the top of the fence. He built it all on his remember when he and his wife, a cute little woman who couldn't hav taller than four foot nine, spent two weeks painting it white a long time

The elderly man looks up, pausing what he's doing with the s doesn't say anything at first but eventually glances down at his gardening gloves with a short nod. "You're welcome."

His voice is gravelly. Nobody really hears it anymore since h passed years ago. For the most part, he keeps to himself. He gardens, to the grocery store, and he walks to the cemetery a block away to v grave of the woman he loved. I'm not sure he has any family around he does, they don't see him. Does he get any social interaction?

Mom told me not to bother him, but maybe he needs that once in a "What do you do in the winter when it's too cold to grow anything?"

Once again, he stops what he's doing to look up at me. Huffin sigh, he peels off his gloves and slowly pushes to standing. "Why want to know?"

I lift a shoulder innocently. "I like hearing people's stories. Did yo I'm in school for psychology?"

He drops the gloves into the wheelbarrow beside him. "I'm not for a therapist, young lady."

My lips curl in amusement. "That's good because I'm not a c therapist. Not yet anyway. I'm working on it."

He stares at me.

My eyes go to my childhood home, which I'm sure is empty as al don't want to be alone right now. That means constantly thinking, and to shut my brain off for a little while.

I lean against the fence. "Can I ask you something?"

He closes his eyes for a second and walks around the garden box where I'm standing. "Well, nothing's stopped you from asking quest e white far."

"Do you have any kids?" I ask, not remembering any growing up the state of the stat

Mr. Applebee glances off in the distance, gripping the top of the own. I post. "When you get to be my age, loneliness is the least of your problem. A heaviness weighs down my lips. "What if you didn't have lonely?"

oil. He His bushy white brows arch up.

"I've got a project for school I could use some help with," I tell his be me bugging you with questions about relationships. I'd love to heat wife yours with your wife. You two were always smiling no matter what your goes doing."

A small smile appears on his face. "That was my Annemarie. She risit the happiest soul put on this earth. Didn't matter what we were going the she always had a positive outlook on life. She had a lot of goals she did while. To accomplish. No doubt she would have changed the world if she more time."

It makes my stomach fuzzy to hear the love in his voice while do you about her. "What do you say, then? Would you be interested in helpi We can meet up somewhere. Maybe Bea's Bakery. Have you been? u know there, and we've got really good pastries and coffee. It'd be a peacefu to work on the assignment."

My neighbor scrubs his jaw. "I don't know. I don't get out much...
I perk up. "Which means this is the perfect opportunity for you to this assignment is worth a lot of my grade, and I still need two people to for it. This will be perfect for both of us. And I'd really love to he about Annemarie."

He takes one more deep breath and dips his chin. "Fine. But I car ways. IWheel of Fortune. Haven't missed an episode yet and won't until th I wantdie."

I'll give him one thing: he's loyal.

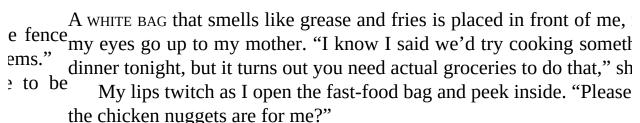

I stand straighter and stick my hand out toward him. "That sound towardfair deal, Mr. Applebee."

ions so He stares at my hand for a second before shaking on it. "If we're this, you should probably call me Leon."

o. They

ime. "I

nust get

Mom rolls her eyes as she goes over to the sink and starts wash n. "It'd hands. "Well, I don't eat them. That was always you and your father' rabout You two used to fight over which sauce was the best."

I grin, remembering all the petty arguments we'd get into. Mom threaten to take away all our sauces if we didn't behave, and I'c was the because I thought she was joking. But one time she actually did, and through, and Dad got into a fight about how he never acts his age and that he ndn't get grow up. The moment was spoiled after that.

"I always thought the barbecue was better until I tried them with rasay, brushing off the thought.

talking Mom dries her hands and helps me distribute the food. "Ing me? understand why you're so obsessed with chicken. Especially nugging I work tenders. It's like you're reverting back to your childhood."

It place There are worse things I can be addicted to so I'd say my love.

There are worse things I can be addicted to, so I'd say my love things chicken isn't all that horrible. "Have you heard from Dad lake how you saw him the other day."

Mom has Aunt Tiffany to talk to, but I want her to know I'm here to talk
She sighs and steals a fry from one of the containers. "I spoke to ar more the phone the other day. Be grateful you got out of a relationship, n't miss You're far too young to settle down anyway. You've got your whe day Iahead of you. Plenty of time to make dumb decisions that won't cos lifetime."

My eye twitches at the passive-aggressive answer, and I wonders like ahears how hurtful it is. I'd hardly say her settling with Dad ruined unless she considers motherhood to be that strenuous. Some people e doingonly wish for that kind of life. "Caleb and I are..." What are we? We friends, but we're not enemies. "I still have so much respect for him Let's not disrupt that."

She unwraps her burger. "All I'm saying is that you did the right choosing yourself. It's far less drama, and you can focus on all the thin making want to do with your life."

and she couldn't? "What would you have done if you didn't get p le says. With me?"

tell me

Her eyes lift to mine. "I don't think about that because it didn't l Best not to focus on what could have been."

There's no doubt in my mind that my mother loves me. Maybe she sthing have preferred having me a little later in life or having a child with sor else, but she doesn't resent or regret having me. Still, hearing her disn would future simply because I exist doesn't sit well with me. It's not what I laugh want if I were in her shoes.

hen she "You could still do something now," I tell her, picking at my n leeds to "I'm in college, Dad is doing his own thing. You've got all the time world to do whatever it is you wanted to before having me. So what is anch," I For a moment, she looks contemplative. I'm not sure she's granswer when she sits down beside me and picks up her food. "I've loon't wanted to travel, especially overseas. Get inspiration from fashion in lets and Milan. I thought about opening my own boutique or thrift shop too, us own designs and gathering vintage items. Something that showcased for all unique pieces you can't find in any other store around here."

There's a small smile on her face as she thinks about it, which ma smile too. "I didn't know that. I could picture you in France."

She stares at her food, an absent look on her face. "Like I said, him on like to focus on things like that. Sometimes we need to let go Raine. expectations because that's the only way to accept what our actual real I know it isn't my fault that she feels like she can't travel or buy h ole lifeboutique, but there's still a sadness that weighs me down hearing her s t you aHer choices may have been what led her here, but there is always mo one piece to a puzzle to get the full image. I'm a factor in that.

r if she Is that why I hurt Caleb and myself? Because I couldn't fully acc her lifereality? Or was it because I accepted it too quickly?

e could I suppose the endgame is all the same.

e're not Mom sets down her partially eaten burger and points a fry at me. ", Mom.you still think about him," she says. "It's all over your face. Take it fr sweetie. Letting go of what's in your past is what helps you build a it thing There's nobody to weigh you down that way."

ngs you Nostrils twitching, I manage a feeble nod even though I don't believe her. I want to tell her about Cody. About the night I woke up it regnantof my own blood. What would she do if she knew I drove myself to I Parenthood because I was too afraid to ask her to take me? Would sl nappen.scolded me for being irresponsible or comforted me? I wish I knew w answer was, but I never know which way my mother might lean a wouldmoment.

nebody I know she's not totally wrong, but that doesn't mean I'm ready to niss herall the pent-up feelings—the sadness, the anger, the pity, the love—the wouldfeel for Caleb Anders.

That night, when I'm lying in bed and listening to the steady rain luggets.against the tin roof, I get a text that only feeds the rebellious feeling the in theagainst my mother.

it?"

oing to Caleb: I can't sleep

always
Paris or to send that to me or to somebody else? A girl? Maybe one of his frien Eventually, I thumb out a reply.

Me: Me either

ıkes me

Caleb: The sky is calling you...

I don't Swallowing at the words his father used to tell me, I watch as tho of our bubbles dance along the bottom of the screen as he keeps typing. ity is." In my heart, I know what the next sentence will be.

ier own

ay that. Caleb: Are you going to answer it? pre than

I sit up and look at the time on my phone. It's late, and I'd be dum lept myanywhere tonight, especially to see Caleb.

But I know when I throw the blankets off, examine my outfit, and over at my closest pair of shoes that I've made up my mind.

 $^{\prime}$ I know  $^{\prime}$  So I send another message to the boy who knows me better than a om me, else in hopes he'll pull through.

future.

Me: Meet me at our spot

want to If he doesn't come, maybe it's a sign that Mom is right. I'll need to a poolBut if he's there...

Planned I don't know what that means.

ne have But it means something.

that the

in the release at I still smack sat goes

e meant ds?

se three

Caleb: Are you going to answer it?

I sit up and look at the time on my phone. It's late, and I'd be dumb to go anywhere tonight, especially to see Caleb.

But I know when I throw the blankets off, examine my outfit, and glance over at my closest pair of shoes that I've made up my mind.

So I send another message to the boy who knows me better than anybody else in hopes he'll pull through.

Me: Meet me at our spot

If he doesn't come, maybe it's a sign that Mom is right. I'll need to let go. But if he's there...

I don't know what that means.

But it means something.

Chapter Sixteen

CALEB

Our spot happens to be the edge of Alden Field on the outskirts of where they set up flea markets and fireworks displays in the su Octoberfest in the fall, and sled races in the winter after the first big sr It's a well-known area, especially to local teens who like to sneak smoke weed, set up bonfires near the woods, drink, and hook up.

Raine and I used to come here when we wanted privacy to look users or watch the storms that would whip through the area. And surhad our fair share of make-out sessions in the cab of my truck. Once move was made, it was hard not to make more.

Our first kiss was in this field, weeks after our first date at Birdsey where we each got the chicken tenders basket from the kids' menu extra order of fries. Long gone was the version of me who could barely together a sentence asking her out coherently, because Raine everything so...easy.

That's always been part of her personality. There was comfort conversation I had with her back then. When did that stop? I've been my brain trying to come up with an answer, and I draw a blank ever There were moments in the beginning of our relationship that were because of how new it was, but by the time we went to college, I thou were stable.

Caleb and Raine against the world.

Maybe it was the other way around.

I scope the area out as the rain comes down, splattering large cagainst the windshield of my truck. Was Raine up watching the stor Was she thinking about me, or trying not to the same way I've attemstop thinking about her? Turns out that's a hell of a lot easier said than

I probably should have left, knowing she was coming here, but this of my favorite places. It's calming despite all the memories I've share Raine here. It's where I come to think and be by myself whenever I spare moment when my apartment seems too daunting.

Still, temptation sinks its claws in like it always does when involved. And despite all the reasons why I should fight it, I let her bac A drug.

A weakness.

That's when I see her running across the muddied field in the ra Lindon my heart does the same damn thing it always has. It beats a little bi than the moment before because it doesn't know any better.

"Christ," I murmur. She has no umbrella, rain jacket, or boots.

I get out of the truck and jog over to the passenger side with the loff to my jacket up, protecting me from the downpour, and open the door for the she gets closer. "Are you crazy? Why didn't you drive?"

Raine doesn't get in right away. Hair wet and sticking to the sides the first Plus, the car has been acting up, so it probably would have woken Mor e Diner "Yeah, what a shit show that would be," I grumble.

y string climbs into the truck. After closing the door behind her, I walk around front again and get in the other side. Once my door is closed, we're be silence with only the muffled sound of the rain pelting the metal shin any us.

"Do you remember the first time we over some and here."

"Do you remember the first time we ever came out here?" she ask y time.

2 rocky

2 rocky

Does she know she's shaking? I reach into the back to grab one spare shirts I always keep in here and pass it to her. "Dry off. It's c tonight."

I lean forward and turn the heat on, hoping it actually works. You know what you're going to get with this twenty-plus-year-old Ford.

When I lean back, I watch her use my shirt to wipe off her face an intensity then squeeze her hair dry. "We were invited to a party out here," I done. It is some the first time you ever drank. You puked in your neighbor's bushes ed with was trying to sneak you back inside your house."

She cringes. "Poor Mr. Applebee had to hose it off the next have awatched him from the living room window, too embarrassed to tell was me. That wasn't my proudest moment. I'm not sure why I kept d 1 she'sthat night anyway. The beer was terrible."

ck in. My lips twitch upward despite me trying to fight the amusement. room temperature and the cheapest kind they could find. But you stop it the more you drink."

in, and Raine fiddles with the borrowed shirt she's holding. "We kiss it fasternight. Before the whole puking-in-the-hedges thing."

I lose my small smile. "I remember."

"Dance with me?" I ask Raine, pulling her off to the side. The nood of other people coupling up and dancing, some leaving to find a privar her asand a few others pouring more drinks.

We slow dance for a few minutes with her arms around my neck of herhands on her hips. Neither one of us can look away from the other.

esh air. I move first, only a little hesitant when I brush my lips against her n up." taste like beer and the reminiscence of the watermelon Chapstick I see me.put on earlier. It's a small kiss, minuscule really, but it doesn't feel the ore she Bigger than two fifteen-year-olds.

It feels so much bigger.

und the I would have kissed her longer, but then some of the guys I play i thed inwith whistle and catcall at us, making Raine's cheeks pinken.

eltering *I know in that moment I want a lifetime of kisses from this girl.*Raine lowers the shirt onto her lap. "I was so nervous that night."

s, voice My brows pinch. "Why?"

"Because I was worried that you were going to kiss me and I'd be of their since I'd never..." There's humor melded into those words that old outsmiling at the memory. "I guess I drank so much for liquid courage you were going to make a move."

u never I snort. Maybe that was a sign all along. Anybody who needs to ge to kiss somebody else probably isn't going to last with them long-term d arms, Resting my head back against the seat, I close my eyes and heav finallydeep breath. "This is probably a bad idea. Us here tonight."

"It was — I'm met with momentary silence. "If you think that, then why a when Ihere?"

Pressing my lips together, I turn my head to look at the girl I calday. Ithinking about no matter how hard I try. My first kiss. My first ever him itWhat she doesn't know is that I was nervous as hell to kiss her that niprinkingI'd wanted to since the night we were put in a closet together all those before.

"It was She fidgets the longer I study her. Her hair isn't sticking to her tastinganymore but pulled behind her ears. It always looks darker when it almost brunette, similar to the color of her eyes.

ed that She's effortlessly beautiful no matter what, even without make looking like my parents' dog Frank when he gets stuck out in the rain.

It hurts to be this close to her and still not have her at all.

ere are "Caleb?" she asks.

te spot, My nostrils flare with a sudden burst of emotion that I try swal. Because I don't want to think about how beautiful she is. I want to rer and myhow much she hurt me. How I'm with Emma now. How much easier if I could let everything we've been through go.

's. They "My dad is dying," I say, voice cracking with weakness. "And it fe saw herI can't keep my head above water long enough to breathe. Every time ut way. about him leaving us, I–I—"

I swipe at my face and try collecting my shattered thoughts before crying. I feel the tears pricking my eyes and heat creep up the back *football*neck the longer I hold it in.

Crying shows your weakness. That's what's been drilled into my l society. By all my football coaches who've ever told me not to let know they've defeated me. I can be angry, but I can't give in.

Forcing another deep breath, I say, "I try not to think about it by le bad atbusy with school and the store, but there's always a reminder le has hereverything I do is because of him." Closing my eyes and squeezin in caseshut, I whisper, "And I just need the thoughts to turn off for a while shouldn't be here. But..."

et drunk But I don't have anywhere else I can go.

That's the excuse I make.

'e out a I could be at my apartment.

I could be with Emma.

are you I'm not though.

I'm with the one person whose touch physically calms me. One n't stopbrush of her hand against mine, and I melt into nearly a decade of me sything. I've always been comfortable enough to tell her anything because she ght too.one person I could talk to about whatever weighed me down.

months Now is no different.

Her fingers tug at mine until our hands are molded together so cheeksnothing can get in between them.

t's wet, "I meant what I said at the library," she tells me. "I'm here for y whatever you need."

up and Those words sink into my chest, jump-starting the tight organ in cage that feels like it's going to explode the second her fingers dance arm and massage the tense muscles along the way.

Whatever you need.

lowing. What if I told her all I need is her?

nember I could risk it, but I don't know how much more disappointmer it'd betake in this lifetime.

Suddenly, there's nothing innocent about the touches that we share sels like in first, but Raine meets me halfway. That's when touching turns into I thinkwhich turns into moaning. One second she's in the seat beside me, t she's straddling my lap.

e I start Her damp shirt is off.

of my No bra.

My jeans are unbuttoned with the zipper pulled down.

nead by Her leggings disappear.

people No panties.

She hates wearing anything under her leggings because of pant keepingand it drove me fucking crazy. It was rare, but there were times we becausesneak off for a quickie whenever she wore them because I knew all I g themdo was peel down the body-hugging material.

le. So I My fingers grip the back of her head as the kiss goes on, her twisting with mine and her body moving along the hard length freed fi boxers. I can feel how wet she is, how her breath shudders every ti glides along my shaft.

There's a brief nudge in my consciousness that tells me I should s from moving forward. For me. For Raine. For Emma. But do I?

No.

e single I bite down on her bottom lip when she grabs ahold of me ar mories.inching down my shaft. She's tight as hell, squeezing my cock and mories theimpossible not to groan as she works her way to the hilt. A pinch tweaks her face, followed by a sharp intake of breath as she sits the few seconds, then starts to move.

tightly "Wait," I tell her, squeezing her hips once. "Do I need to get a cor...?"

ou. For We rarely ever used them because she was on the pill, which was vegot lost in the familiarity at the hardware store. But I know it's better my ribconsidering our situation now.

up my A flicker of sadness sweeps over her expression as her lips downward. "We don't need one."

It's the answer I expect, but it doesn't match the dullness in h where lust usually is whenever we're like this. "Raine—"

it I can "No more talking," she tells me, cutting off the conversation before can seep in.

2. I lean My body listens, shutting off my brain despite the warning alarms kissing, head.

he next It's a haze of desperation from there. The truck rocks, the glass fo everything else around us fades away until all I hear are the little noise escape her as she moves on top of me.

I let her take the lead, resting my hands on her hips and groaning time she grinds and swivels until I'm jerking inside her.

"Going to come," I warn her, fingertips tightening into her flesh rides it out, gripping the seat behind my head and letting hers tilt back y lines, she lets out the sexiest moan that has me letting go.

would I can feel her clenching around me, milking me of every last dr had tospills inside her as she breaks apart when I work her clit.

It takes a few minutes to catch our breaths, her eyes dropping to 1 tonguesee one solitary tear roll down my cheek.

rom my That tear holds a lot.

me she Says a lot.

Feels like a lot.

top this Weakness, weakness, weakness.

Swiping it away, I grab the shirt she used to dry off with and wipe us clean once she climbs off me, then toss it onto the floor and wand triesredress. "Here," I tell her, passing the hoodie she took off me. "You shaking itput your wet clothes back on or you'll get sick."

of pain She stares at the offering like she can't believe we're here ag re for aeventually takes it. "Thank you" is her whispered reply.

I want to say something, anything, but don't know what there is to condomall. I clear my throat and fight back the other tears that build in the b my eyes.

why we "You can cry around me," Raine tells me softly. "You're going the r to asklot right now."

All I can manage is a hoarse "I know."

twitch I don't let myself be any more vulnerable than I already have beher. I've given enough of myself to her tonight. I need to hold on to er eyesleft.

"We shouldn't have done that" is my reply, clenching my eyes clore logicpinching the bridge of my nose.

She's silent, causing me to open my eyes and look at her. Her is in myparted, her eyes distant as they quickly move toward the window.

We go back to silence, waiting until the windshield defogs before gs, andher back to her parents' place.

ses that I put the truck into park at the front curb. "We should have at leaprotection," I murmur, not that it matters now. "I still want kids, but...

g every She doesn't need me to tell her why that'd be a bad idea for us now Raine takes a deep breath before turning to me in the bc as shesweatshirt. She reaches over and cups my cheek, brushing her thumb a ward as "I know you do."

My chest hurts as she drops her hand, opens the door, and slive op that without another word. I watch in silence as she escapes into the shaking my head in disbelief.

mine to Before I pull away, I get a text from Emma, drawing me back i piss-poor reality I've created for myself.

Emma: Miss you xx

both of tch her ouldn't

ain but eventually takes it. "Thank you" is her whispered reply.

I want to say something, anything, but don't know what there is to say at all. I clear my throat and fight back the other tears that build in the backs of my eyes.

"You can cry around me," Raine tells me softly. "You're going through a lot right now."

All I can manage is a hoarse "I know."

I don't let myself be any more vulnerable than I already have been with her. I've given enough of myself to her tonight. I need to hold on to what's left.

"We shouldn't have done that" is my reply, clenching my eyes closed and pinching the bridge of my nose.

She's silent, causing me to open my eyes and look at her. Her lips are parted, her eyes distant as they quickly move toward the window.

We go back to silence, waiting until the windshield defogs before I drive her back to her parents' place.

I put the truck into park at the front curb. "We should have at least used protection," I murmur, not that it matters now. "I still want kids, but..."

She doesn't need me to tell her why that'd be a bad idea for us now.

Raine takes a deep breath before turning to me in the borrowed sweatshirt. She reaches over and cups my cheek, brushing her thumb along it. "I know you do."

My chest hurts as she drops her hand, opens the door, and slides out without another word. I watch in silence as she escapes into the house, shaking my head in disbelief.

Before I pull away, I get a text from Emma, drawing me back into the piss-poor reality I've created for myself.

Emma: Miss you xx

Chapter Seventeen

RAINE

 $T_{\rm HE~GIRLS'}$  NIGHT at Hulbert with Skylar and Olive, Skylar's best reminds me of what it's like to be a normal twenty-three-year-old gii —the kind with friends who can talk about anything from potential names to the current hockey season and everything in between. And the girls being careful not to broach the topic of boys, it still lear thinking about the brown-eyed one who's often in the forefront of my especially after the night in his truck.

The first time I ever felt like I finally had some semblance of bal my life was when Caleb and I were sixteen and sneaking around beca parents didn't want me dating. I had a friend and boyfriend wrappe one person. Somebody I could enjoy myself with even in the most situations. Like when the hardware store was dead, and we'd find it ways to pass the time that'd leave us laughing so loudly people woul in just to see what was so funny. Or little study dates doing geom biology that would end in little brushes of the hands, knees, or feet I we were both too shy to actually make a move.

Well, until the night at the field.

He was my person.

Nobody else's.

It wasn't until we were eighteen and both attending Lindon Un that we realized nobody could stop us from being together. My always had something to say about it because they were worried distracted, but I knew myself better than that. And I knew Caleb woul stop me from achieving all my dreams.

We both wanted the best for each other.

That was why it felt empowering when those afternoon study date pizzeria suddenly were being held at the campus library, and the parties we'd sneak off to with almost-kisses in closets turned into bashes at one of the frat houses. There, a lot more liquid courage led kisses on the dance floor. But nothing could even begin to compare first kiss at Alden Field. We didn't have to hold back or have moment in his truck. We could just be...us. Anywhere. Everywhere.

Because of that all-consuming feeling, I don't regret hooking up w again. If anything, it felt right. I wanted him, maybe even needed him I didn't want him to know.

friend, The moment we touched in his truck, we were us again, even if for small fraction of time.

Before college, it was hard to feel like everybody else because puppy stuck at home listening to my parents bicker nonstop about the tiniest ves me I didn't invite friends over because I was too embarrassed about More parents bicker nonstop about the tiniest was me I didn't invite friends over because I was too embarrassed about More parents bicker nonstop about the tiniest was me I didn't invite friends over because I was too embarrassed about More parents bicker nonstop about the tiniest was me I didn't invite friends over because I was too embarrassed about More parents bicker nonstop about the tiniest was me I didn't invite friends over because I was too embarrassed about More parents bicker nonstop about the tiniest was me I didn't invite friends over because I was too embarrassed about More parents bicker nonstop about the tiniest was me I didn't invite friends over because I was too embarrassed about More parents bicker nonstop about the tiniest was me I didn't invite friends over because I was too embarrassed about More parents bicker nonstop about the tiniest was me I didn't invite friends over because I was too embarrassed about More parents bicker nonstop about the tiniest was a sore subject since the day I hit parents bicker nonstop about More parents bicker nonstop

Caleb was always part of that because he'd always been there boring saving grace. He was the one consistent person I could depend on needed a break from my parents. He'd hold my hair back at parties decided to drink too much or carry me inside when I fell asleep during drives. I barely missed a football game when he signed on to Lindon and still spent summers working at the hardware store with him a parents.

His family became mine.

A healthier one that I wasn't used to.

But the problem with putting all your eggs in one basket is what he parents after you drop them all.

I'd get d never

I still love Caleb.
I love his heart.
I love his family.

I love everything he's ever done for me.

That's why I said no, so that I could give him the world back.

I still want kids...

I know you do.

"I don't think Raine is listening," Olive muses, tossing a balled-up to realat me.

to our Skylar laughs. "She probably checked out after your ten-minute su ts alone of Star Wars and why it's better than Star Trek."

Olive waves her off. "Ten minutes is impressive considering how ith himmovies there are in the franchise. And you obviously weren't li in waysbecause the whole point of my rant was that you can't compare them."

"Sorry," I apologize, rubbing my eyes. "It was a long day. Bear only adiscounts on certain coffee and pastries for anyone who came in drebetween twelve and five. The place was swamped."

I'd be It's hard to believe it's Halloween already, but here we are. It things walked in for my shift and Elena saw me without a costume, she mandwear cat ears and drew whiskers on my cheeks with eyeliner. She, suberty, other hand, was dressed to the nines as some sort of badass leather fair answersupposedly based on a book series I haven't read.

'd have "It's fine," Skylar reassures me. "We're glad you were able to y I'd gotonight."

"You still haven't answered the question. What color is the p as myOlive cuts in, sipping the Shirley Temple she ordered from the waiter when Ias Baby Yoda. "That could impact the name."

when I Skylar scoffs, peeling a piece off the blooming onion that's sitting ng longmiddle of the table. "Says the girl who names everything after 's teamcharacters no matter what they look like."

and his "You can't tell me that my betta fish didn't look a little like Rogers," she argues, causing me to smile.

"How can a fish look like Captain America?" I ask.

Skylar gestures toward me. "Exactly! See, she gets my point. You appenslooked like a fish. You should have named it Bubbles or No something."

Olive crosses her arms over her chest, which is covered in a I hockey jersey that still somehow does little to hide her double I brother signed on with the professional team after he graduated and h getting a lot of airtime recently. She said she was dressed as his bigg for Halloween.

The hockey fanatic says, "I refuse to name any pet somethin unoriginal." She focuses on me. "Don't let Skylar name your do napkinprobably be something like Spot or Rover."

"Hey!" Skylar laughs, clearly not fazed by her friend's assumption immarylike to point out that your name is Olive. I don't think either of us are best place to name anyone or anything."

v many Olive starts to argue but stops herself, lifting her shoulders as if stening true.

I play with the straw wrapper I folded accordion style. "The pupp offeredwas gray, but I haven't heard from Emma yet. So I might not even be ssed uphim."

Both girls frown at me. Then Skylar says, "There's still time. When Ishe's busy. You said she knew Caleb, right? You could always ask hir ade mein a good word for you or something."

on the We didn't do a whole lot of talking the last time we saw each oth y that's don't know if that's a good idea. Would I have a right to ask him for a

I'm not even sure I want to bring her up since she's helping take care comefather. It might be a sensitive topic. "No, I'll let it be. What's meant to happen, right?"

uppy?" Each of them nods, but they look at me like I might break down dressedsecond.

Thankfully, Skylar decides to change the subject. "I think you g in thecome with me to the football party. Olive is coming, and Danny will b MarvelIt'll be fun."

Clearing my throat, I grab my water and take a long sip to quench Stevemouth. "I don't think that'd be a very good idea. I've been trying myself some room from...all that. Find my own people and give the some space. You know?"

our fish Even though she doesn't seem happy about it, Skylar nods. emo orunderstandable."

"Agreed," Olive chips in.

Rangers Still, Skylar says, "But if Caleb is there, maybe it wouldn't be suc Ds. Herthing. You two are both on campus and the town is small. There are as been rules saying you can't both be at the same place at the same time gest fan Danny misses having you around. You're the voice of reason, and he needs it sometimes."

ng that My lips twitch. "Still trying to get you to agree to a tortoise?"

og. It'll She blows out a breath. "Yep. I think it may be a losing battle point. He's hell-bent."

on. "I'd That's a conversation for another time, I guess. "All I want is to e in the sure Caleb is happy. And I don't know if he can be if I keep show places. I already took over Bea's. It's obvious he tries to avoid the to saywhen I'm working. I know DJ and Matt like the coffee, but they don two cups at a time, especially not one that's specifically Caleb's order.

y I saw Skylar winces. I'm sure she knows her boyfriend has been so gettingcoffee and snacks to Caleb so he wouldn't have to see me. I get probably do the same if I were him.

Maybe Olive decides to change the subject back to puppies. "I still think t n to putshould consider something cool for your dog's name when you get or Kylo Ren or Darth Vader."

ler, so I That has me smiling for real this time, grateful neither of these ξ lavor?giving me a hard time for the decision I made about Caleb.

e of his They probably accepted I've made up my mind.

be will Now I just need my own mind—and heart—to accept it.

at any

0

should ELENA IS SITTING on the counter during a slow time at the bakery and swe there her legs back and forth while hounding me with questions. "Why not? be a great test study."

my dry

I pull apart some of the croissant I took from the display and por to give my mouth, praying I'm able to keep it down. After my night out at le guys with the girls, I went home and researched everything I'd need to go dog while nibbling on some of Mom's leftover Thai food. Since neith cooks, our fridge is full of takeout boxes. Now I'm guessing they ha old food we should have thrown out a while ago.

Regret has definitely settled into my stomach because I've been 1 h a bad the urge to vomit since I heated up the mango chicken. I couldn't at n't anymiss work, especially since I'm picking up my four-legged friend in Plus, hours. When Emma texted me before I left the open mic, it felt like f e really finally on my side.

I don't have Caleb anymore.

But I'll have someone.

at this A dog of my own like I always wanted.

o make Something else to focus on.

ving up Shaking myself out of my thoughts, I pop another tiny portion e placecroissant into my mouth and answer the teenager. "You're seventeen 't drinkWhat do you know about relationships?"

"She scoffs, putting her hands on her hips in offense. "I watch real neakingRaine. It's basically all the research I need. I could make something it. I'dyour project that would blow your teacher's mind. What better case sthere than something based on those awful reality dating shows that younothing but drama?"

offer, but I don't think your extensive knowledge on The Bachelor argirls are Island is going to help me with this assignment. Plus, I already someone, and I think I may still get my mom to change her mind about it."

She blows out a raspberry and glances at the window where a few kids are walking by in groups. "Did you ask Caleb?"

Her question gives me pause. "You think I asked my ex-boyfri help on my project about romantic relationships?"

Vinging She's quiet for a second before shrugging as if there's nothing I could with that. "I don't see why you couldn't. He'd probably agree if you him. He still loves you."

Hulbert doubt on my face. After my last exchange with Caleb, I'm not so sure t for a right. And I don't know if I want her to be. He deserves to have somel er of us sure about him, and it'd be unfair for me to go back on everything I d some him through only to change my mind. While I don't regret making lo him, I know it was a mistake because it puts us back to square one fighting we're both as confused as when I told him I couldn't marry him.

fford to "It's not going to happen" is all I say as I push off the counter a a few working on the project Bea gave me earlier. She and Elena made cu ate was item tags to put in the display case so people could see what every instead of trying to look on the chalkboard above the coffee mach figure it out.

"Why not?" the stubborn girl behind me pries, not seeming to car don't want to talk about it. "If it's not Caleb you asked, who is i another man?" "Lena—" of the "Look!" She smacks my shoulder a little too hard, causing me to , Lena.my flesh with the sharp pair of scissors instead of the paper I was supp slice. "He's coming in right now!"

ity TV, Hissing at the pain as blood instantly starts dripping down my up forback away from the counter and watch as the teenager's face pales be study isonce she sees the red droplets.

hat are "Oh my God!" She jumps down and races over to where one dishcloths is before running over and pressing it against my bleeding iate the "I'm sorry! I'm sorry! I'm sorry! I didn't mean to do that. I just got extend Love The cloth pressing against the cut looks stained and smells like asked "Did you give me a fresh cloth or a dirty one?"

it doing She gapes at the stained cloth. "I–I don't know. I panicked."

I put as much pressure as I can stand on the wound that hurts li collegebefore staring down at the mess on the countertop and floor.

"What happened?" a rushed voice behind us asks. I know when deformit turning around. I've heard the tone a time or two in the past works clumsy self would accidentally trip or fall. Like when I was sevented wrongslipped on a patch of ice at Lindon High School on the way to my a askedbruised my butt and my pride in front of a group of classmates. That third time I'd fallen that winter, and Caleb's dad teased me about hav see thekind of talent to trip over painted lines.

re she's Elena says, "She cut herself. Oh God, there's so much blood." Shoody beaway, making a face that tells me she doesn't do well with it. "I'n 've putRaine. I saw Caleb walking in and wanted to let you know."

ve with I don't have time to worry about what the man in question must te wherethat because red is quickly seeping through the dirtied white materia getting God knows what into the wound.

nd start Suddenly, Caleb is by my side, grabbing my wrist carefully and te littlethe cloth toward him like the mother hen he's always been. He peels b thing is cloth to check the injury and curses under his breath when he sees w lines to I'm too scared to look at.

"This is going to need stitches or glue," he tells me gently. He pe that IElena. "Get a new cloth for her. I'm taking her to the hospital."

it? Is it "Caleb, I'm—"

"Don't say you're fine. You aren't. We both know this is going to get checked out or you could get an infection. Let's just set things betweut intoaside for right now and get you taken care of."

osed to Set things aside. As if it's that easy.

Elena jogs over with a fresh cloth, this one definitely clean, and gi hand, Ianother apologetic look. "I'm sorry again, Raine. I'll tell Grandma side metake money out of my paycheck to make sure you get the rest of your I

It's a sweet thought, but I don't have time to tell her not to worry of thebefore I'm being pulled around the counter and toward the front door g hand.people are starting to walk in.

cited." "Caleb, Lena can't be here by herself."

coffee. He doesn't seem to care as he takes his jacket off and starts puttil me before the cold air hits us. "How much help are you going to b you're bleeding half to death?"

ike hell It's a logical question, albeit a tad bit dramatic. "I'm not blee death. Can you at least call Bea? Or let me call her to make sure Lena 10 it isokay?"

ring the Pressing my lips together, I nod once and let him help me into the He's being excessive, careful not to touch me but there in case I lee backsbalance. People always joked that he was the parental figure in a sorry, situation—the DD when the boys went out drinking, the personal content is the pressure of the collected keys at house parties, and the go-to to call on whenever sor hink ofneeded help. I don't know whether to believe he's being helpful now left that'she still cares for me or because this is just who he is as a person.

The ride to the hospital is short since it's only a few blocks from he pulling could have walked if Caleb didn't think I would keel over at any secondack the blood loss.

hatever It isn't until we're inside the emergency room at the check-in des trust myself to face him and say, "You don't have to stay."

oints to One of his brows pops up as he accepts the clipboard with paperv it. "How are you going to get back?"

It's hard not to smile. "It's not even a ten-minute walk back to need to Less than that if I cross over on Pine from Maple Avenue."

ween us "First of all, it's November and cold. You're freezing even summertime. You'd be half-frozen by the time you made it back bakery. Second, do you honestly think Bea is going to let you work the ives meyour shift after you get back?"

Bea to I'd most likely get double-teamed by Bea and Caleb and told to gay." and rest.

about it "It's a little cut," I argue, my good hand gripping the jacket that's r wherefor me.

He grumbles, "We'll see about that."

And we do.

ng it on Because despite me telling him, on three different occasions, that e whengo home instead of staying with me, he helps me fill out the paperwood comes back to the room with me. His eyes are trained on me from w ding tosits in the corner—on my hand and on every little movement that the will be Salvatore, makes as he examines what's under the saturated cloth.

"All right, I'm going to have you keep this wrapped up. One on. "I'lldoctors will come check it out too, but I'm pretty sure it's going to needer ownglue. The nick isn't too deep, but it's in a sensitive spot, which is voressionbleeding so much. The doctor on call tonight will confirm when he with his other patient." Salvatore grabs a plastic cup with an orange cae truck.passing it to me. "I'll need you to try giving me a urine sample too, ose myout pregnancy. If stitches are necessary, we'll give you medication everywith the pain."

on who My stomach drops at the P-word. "I'm not," I tell him quickly, too nebodyto even look in my ex-boyfriend's direction. What would he see on my becausewe locked eyes?

Too much.

ere. We The nurse gives me an empty smile, as if he delivers this speech and fromtime to the frantic women who have to provide samples before tre "It's hospital policy."

k that I From the corner of my eye, I see Caleb shift as he stares dowr sample cup. He remains silent, his hands tucked into the crooks of h vork onfrom how they're draped tensely over his chest.

Shoulders dropping, I accept the cup and head to the bathroom acı Bea's.hall.

I wish I could have told the nurse that this was pointless, and in theirritates the anger that I've had to bury deep, deep inside me since I v to theby my gynecologist that I had a future of struggles ahead of me.

erest of "It'll be a very hard journey, and you may need to make some decisions," Dr. Fields says, giving me the sympathetic smile I'm so homegives all the patients she tells bad news to. "This isn't the end of the Raine."

too big But it was.

I knew the day I was told I had advanced endometriosis it was the my world. The one I'd get to share with Caleb for the rest of our live that ugly green monster still lives inside me whenever I think about he cancould have been if things were different.

ork and I'd be happier.

here he Healthier.

e nurse, With the love of my life.

Instead, my body decided to revolt against me and ruin the one c of thegot.

ed some I debate on putting my hand through the mirror so I don't have to vhy it's the reflection of the broken girl anymore but decide I've already done 's donedamage to myself for one day. So, nostrils flaring, I wash my hands a up on it, can after filling and putting the cup where I was told to and head to rulewhere Caleb is waiting for me.

to help "You okay?" he asks after I settle back onto the stiff hospital bed.

I lift a shoulder, not sure how I am. I'm tired. Upset. Pissed off. A paraidof things that I can't tell him. It's better to be silent than lie. How face if possibly explain to him that I'm upset because I had to pee in a cup knowing there's a high probability that I'll never get pregnant?

Dark, heavy emotion hurts me at every corner.

all the It burns my eyes.

atment. Prickles the back of my neck.

Tightens my throat.

1 at the I have to keep my gaze pointed at the floor so he won't see all that is armsover, because I want nothing more than to scream.

After a few minutes of silence, save for the loud patients and mach ross theother sectioned-off areas of the cold emergency room, Caleb asks, "W Elena trying to get your attention about me anyway?"

it only Internally, I flinch as I toy with the zipper tab of his jacket that I vas toldwearing. "It was stupid."

"Tell me."

2 tough After taking a deep breath, I turn to give him an uncertain ure she "Caleb..."

world, "We're going to be here for a while."

Sighing, I lean back and attempt to make myself comfortable. "It school project I have to do with a couple of people. I was telling her end of someone outside of class to help me already, and she was grilling es. Anddetails. But before I could tell her about him, she started hounding mut whatwhy I didn't ask you."

His lips purse. "Him, huh? Who did you ask?"

Before I can tell him, Salvatore walks through the parted curtain Copelin," he says, his eyes going to Caleb for a moment before dartir to me. "I'd like to talk to you for a moment. Would you like him hance Ior...?"

Alarm coats my insides, causing me to slowly turn toward Cale look atmoment. "I don't understand," I say slowly, eyes trailing back to the enough "Um, I guess he can?"

s best I "What is it?" Caleb asks, concern weighing down his words. He's back toalert, maybe more so than I am. And I wonder if it's because of the negotten about his father that turned his life around or if it's something e haven't used protection, and only I know we're safe from the repercuntarrayHe's a smart guy who could easily assume that's what Salvatore will to could I Despite whatever the nurse needs to share, I could use someone despitecorner right now. Caleb has always been my person for comfort when nerves get the better of me just like I've been for him. So, a little confidently, I say, "He can stay."

Salvatore presses his lips together. "There's some blood notable urine sample, so we wanted to know if you're on your period, finishin cycle, or have a potential injury that could be leading to the trace in it.'

t taking My nose twitches as I rub my legs. "No, I'm not on my period rig."

I don't start it for another couple of weeks."

nines in He nods. "Well, I'm sure it's nothing concerning. If you're op 'hy wasdoctor can go over your file and maybe do some bloodwork after we ge hand taken care of just to be sure."

'm still A small, shuddered breath escapes my lips as I take in those because I know what they'll find when they start digging. If they d image testing, they'll probably find more cysts and scarring. More reas 1 look.the backaches and cramping. I don't need them to confirm anything can't tell them that either.

Voice quiet, I say, "Okay."

's for a I'm only brought back to reality when Caleb stands up and stare I foundwith narrowed eyes that I can't read.

me for "Caleb?" I ask, brows pinching at his darkened expression. "Are you e about "Fuck," he curses, walking out of the tiny room before I can fir question, fists tightened into balls on either side of his body as he goes. He doesn't look at me. Doesn't say another word. It leaves me gas. "Ms.the nurse, who only offers me a sympathetic smile.

ng back What the hell just happened?

to stay

b for a

e nurse.

on high ws he'd

lse. We assions.

ell me.

in my hen my

e more

in your ng your

ht now.

en, the et your

words,

because I know what they'll find when they start digging. If they do more image testing, they'll probably find more cysts and scarring. More reasons for the backaches and cramping. I don't need them to confirm anything, but I can't tell them that either.

Voice quiet, I say, "Okay."

I'm only brought back to reality when Caleb stands up and stares at me with narrowed eyes that I can't read.

"Caleb?" I ask, brows pinching at his darkened expression. "Are you—"

"Fuck," he curses, walking out of the tiny room before I can finish the question, fists tightened into balls on either side of his body as he goes.

He doesn't look at me. Doesn't say another word. It leaves me gaping at the nurse, who only offers me a sympathetic smile.

What the hell just happened?

Chapter Eighteen

CALEB

 $S_{\rm HE}$ 's got to be pregnant.

The thought rips through every single barrier I put up as I rememb time we've had unprotected sex. She told me it was fine. Why would about that? Why else would she not look me in the eye when she was pee in that cup or when the nurse came in asking questions? I've spanic before, so I know the look well at this point. But this isn't becaforgot to do a homework assignment or study for an exam.

Fuck.

It takes me a few minutes to cool down in the hallway, with cautious nurses staring at me from the far side of the reception area, I'm calm enough to go back into the room my ex is still sitting in.

It's just Raine when I enter through the parted curtains, her face pale as when I walked away, except her eyes stay locked on the floor a of her hands gently cups her lower stomach.

I ask one thing: "Whose is it?"

It's only then her eyes slowly, so slowly, lift to mine. The deep color is full of distance and shock.

Then she blinks. "What?" she whispers, another blink doing little the cloudiness. Her voice is so quiet I almost don't hear it, but wh sense is the crack in her tone.

Is she really going to play dumb right now? There was a reason she things, and it was obvious that caught up with her.

"Chris texted me over the summer," I tell her, eye twitching memory of the message I got from the douche who was obviously tr get a rise from me. It worked. It stung then, and it's ten times work considering the current situation. "He basically told me what happened

Is it hypocritical to be pissed that she was involved with other n summer when I've been seeing Emma? Yeah. But it doesn't suck a knowing it was somebody I knew. Someone I hung out with, with Rair It's never fun having to accept that someone you love has mo without you.

Chris: Tell Raine I'm sorry about what happened between us

Chris wanted to piss me off by sending that text, especially single along with everyone with fucking eyes—know he's had a thing for hong time. The quiet ones will always be the sneakiest, so I'm not some eachthat he made a move as soon as he could. I just didn't think she'd she liestupid to fall for his nice guy routine. There was always something told tosleazy about him, and I doubt I was the only one who thought so.

een her "Chris?" she repeats, shaking her head as if she has no idea wuse shetalking about.

"Chris," I confirm, fists tightening again.

"Caleb, I don't know what you're talking about or what you n a fewthinking. What did Chris say happened?"

before What I'm thinking is that my ex-girlfriend dumped me to dat people because she was worried she'd be settling for me without k still aswhat and who else was out there. Does that hurt like hell knowing I and onehave given her everything she could have ever wanted? Yes, it do would I be naive not to put some sort of barrier back up to protect now that she's back?

Brown I don't want to think the worst of her, because there's not a bad Raine's body. But I can't ignore what's happened since I got down to clearknee. It's not too far off to assume that she got into something this s lat I dothat's going to be one hell of a problem to get out of.

Loosening my fists, I admit, "I'm not sure what to think anymore, e endedI scrub the side of my face and close my eyes for a moment. "I used this would be us. We'd be here, excited about a baby. It could hav at thebefore you dumped me for anyone else to make sure you had a trying tosomething different just to be sure."

se now, A sharp breath comes from her that has me opening my eyes. "Yo l." not be more wrong than you are right now, and I don't like what nen thisimplying, Caleb. You're upset, I get it. But I suggest you take a tary less before you say one more thing."

re. Take a breather? A dry, disbelieving laugh escapes me that I wed oneyebrows rising in inquiry. "Answer me this. Was it worth it?"

There's a brief pause where we stare at each other, hurt shadow features. It no doubt mirrors my own. "Was what worth it?"

Pathetically, I whisper, "Breaking us up. Hooking up with people. nce I—that shit worth this?" I gesture toward her stomach, eyes focusing a li er for a hard on her torso hidden beneath my unzipped jacket and a typical to hocked Bea's logo on the corner pocket. The baggy material offers no insighbe that what lies underneath.

Raine stares at me for a few long, tense seconds before she report herself so she's facing me. "Listen to me right now, Caleb Zachery hat I'm because I'm only going to say this one time."

My eyebrows shoot up at her hard tone and angry gaze. I'm smart not to say anything before she enlightens me on whatever I need to he nust be learned a time or two in the past that it's not smart to cut in whe feeling feisty, especially when the middle name is dropped. Excepe other times typically led to something a lot more fun in apology than nowing

"I've had sex with one person"—she sticks up her good hand wi es. But the pointer finger up, though I'm sure that's not the one she'd prefe myself—"since the breakup. One. If you're as good at math as you used to can figure out who that person is. And even if that were different, yo bone in "I was confused and lost when you asked me to marry you. The ummer truth. I had a lot to think about that would impact both of our lives if I have the and I've already told you have sorry I am for that. But this

I hurt you, and I've already told you how sorry I am for that. But thi Raine." temper tantrum you're throwing is ridiculous. You have no idea what to think talking about right now. I'm not pregnant, you goddamn jackass." She been, at me with tears springing into her eyes that she quickly blinks away caste of conversation is not helping anything. I know you're going through a low, but I am too. I don't need you being mean to me to add to it. So u could you should go."

She's really only ever been with me?
The thought comes crashing into me.
Because I haven't just been with her.
My throat thickens. "Raine—" has her "I said go, Caleb. You don't need to be here. Thanks for the ride, figure out how to get home. You've done enough."

ing her The curtain moves behind me, and a throat clears, turning my a over my shoulder to see Emma standing there. Her eyebrows arch Was alllooks between Raine and me and says, "I think you should listen to ittle toofriend. Come on."

ee with She doesn't work on this floor, which means one of her coworke ht as tohave paged her to come down and get me before I made more of a Great. That means the chances of Dad hearing that I'm here with Rapsitionspretty likely. Whenever he's not sleeping, he's listening to the Anders, surrounding this place, whether it's with patients or staff.

Raine looks between me and Emma, whose hand is on my she enoughtrying to get me to turn around and follow her out. There's surprise ar. I'veface that I can't figure out. They wouldn't know each other, would then she's My ex's expression drains, turning into an empty void that offe those emotion. "It looks to me like I'm not the one who's been bus what Igraduation. So don't be a hypocrite. It's not a good look on you."

Swallowing, I feel a lump in the back of my throat that makes it th onlytalk. My voice is hoarse when I say, "I just assumed that you..."

r using Emma squeezes my shoulder. "Come on."

be, you "The fact that you assumed I screwed Chris says a lot more about havethan it does me. And you know what? Just so we're clear, he kissed gether. never kissed him back though. If he claimed anything else happened to at's theus, it's his hurt pride talking."

agreed. "I made a mistake. I—" s? This "I did too, by having sex with you again," she says, cutting me off you'relooking away from me to end the conversation. "So much for it being e lookstime thing, huh? I was dumb enough to think that it somehow wou r. "Thisyou. That it would make both of us feel better, like our company alw ot rightbefore. We were both emotional that day, and that night in the truc I thinklook where it led us. Fighting. Pointing fingers."

Heart tightening, all I can do is stare.

I guess she's not wrong though.

The sex should have never happened, especially with this outcor there's nothing we can do to change that now.

I step toward her, lowering my voice and asking, "You're really 1 but I'llMy eyes dip down to her stomach again.

Her eyes stay focused on the section of curtain in front of her. V ttentionshe replies, "No, I'm not."

as she Lips pressed together, I heave out a heavy sigh, feeling like a compour...asshole. "What do we do now?"

"I'm going to get my hand fixed up, and you're going to go wirs mustfriend." She says "friend" like she's in pain, still not bothering to so ne scene.glance in my direction for a heartbeat too long. Then she lets loose line areclanches her eyelids closed for a moment, and opens them in my direction gossip "But there is no 'we,' Caleb. Because the man I knew wouldn't have so of that to me."

noulder, My stomach drops. "I didn't mean it."

on her She leans back. "Yes, you did."

y? Knowing there's nothing I can say right now, I let Emma guide I rs littlerealizing she more than likely heard what Raine said.

y after "I'm sorry," I tell the woman walking silently alongside me. She shakes her head. "Don't."

hard to "Emma—"

She stops walking and looks at me. "I knew in my gut that anything with you was a mistake. I went against that feeling. That's out youEverything else is on you though. You shouldn't have led me on or d me. Iall that bullshit. It was messed up, Caleb."

netween I know she's right, so I don't bother refuting her. And I watch contemplates what more she wants to say before she gives up and away.

coolly, When I get up to Dad's floor, I see him standing by the window, a one-heavily on the IV pole tight in his grasp. As soon as I walk in, he slow ld helpand offers me a shaky smile even though he can see the scolding look ays didface.

k. And "You shouldn't be out of bed on your own," I start in on him, vover and putting a hand on his back to help stabilize him as he turns "What if you fell and nobody was around to hear or help?"

He laughs, but it quickly turns into a dry cough that shakes his ne. Buttorso. I manage to guide him to the chair in the corner and help him so until he waves me off. "I'm fine, I'm fine. What are you doing here anot...?"I wasn't expecting you until later."

I shift on my feet, still feeling the weight on my shoulders fr Veakly,conversation I had only minutes ago downstairs. "It's sort of comp

I'm not sure..." Swallowing, I have no idea what to tell him. There's ompleteneed to process, and I haven't had time to do that yet. "I fucked up bis

I mumble, threading my fingers through my hair as I start pacing act th yourroom from him. "I don't know what the hell to do, Dad."

nuch as "Why don't you tell me about it," Dad says, voice gentle.

a sigh, I close my eyes for a moment, tipping my head back and then sta rection.at the ceiling. "I thought Raine was pregnant. And I thought...it wasn' aid any She's downstairs getting stitches in her hand. She'll be okay though."

Dad is quiet. "That's a lot to take in. I'm glad to hear she'll be Another pause. "I take it you two have seen each other since the l then? Heard you might have been seeing each other, but you didn't me out,up. Especially since you're seeing Emilia."

My lips twitch. "It's Emma," I correct him. I don't typically parents about my whereabouts these days, but there's no point in den "She and I weren't really dating. Not exclusively anyway. I knc doesn't justify me seeing Raine though."

starting He hums.

on me. Rubbing the back of my neck, I say, "If she were pregnant, it wou spewedbeen mine. And that messed me up because I always wanted to be a d if she were and it wasn't my kid...I would have had to see her live as shedream I always pictured with her but without me in it. I got so I walks angry."

Dad nods in understanding, but I doubt he truly gets the irritati leaningguilt threatening to bubble over. "I have no doubt you'll get that ly turnssomeday. But if it's not in the picture right now, then that's for the be ton myhave more important things to focus on."

I look at him, studying his glassy eyes as they watch me and his walkingframe that seems even smaller than it did a week ago. He's deterior around.front of my eyes, and there's not a damn thing I can do about it. "How do it?"

s entire "Do what?"

it down I look at him with wary eyes. "Be a father. Be a good man. How nyway?do that when there's always something trying to hold you back or te Because I don't know how to balance everything right now, Dad.

om thelike..." How can I tell him I'm drowning? I'm being suffocated by the licated.of all my responsibilities, yet I still would have added a baby to the r a lot Icame down to it.

g time," Because it'd be with Raine.

coss the Because it could have given me the future I saw for myself a lor ago.

He's quiet for a moment before letting out a small sigh. "I don't kn ring up

I look up at him in confusion. "You don't know what?"

't mine. "I don't know how I did it. Be a father. Be a good man. I something you figure out along the way. I'm by no means perfect. No okay." ever is. Anger still gets to me. There are days, long before now, whe breakupdefeated. You think you fucked up now? Just wait. You're going bring itscrewing up, but you'll learn from those mistakes and grow from the son?"

tell my All I do is stare, his image becoming blurry from panicked tears ying it.that I can't find the energy to fight anymore.

obstacles," he tells me, voice the same gentle tone that it is when he of sincere advice, "it's you. The only thing somebody needs to know hor ld haveis love, and you've always been full of that. At the end of the day, it ad. Butyou express it, accept it, and distribute it despite all the challenges that out the difference."

fucking I don't know what it is about that statement that makes me break doesn't take long before I'm sitting on my father's hospital bed cryin ion andthe man who raised me makes his way over slowly to comfort me des futureown battles. For once, I don't feel bad about showing any weakness, I st. Youmy father is here to help me through it. His belief in me eases some pressure that'd been sitting on my chest for far too long.

narrow A man's love. A father's love.

ating in If that's the secret to being a good person, then I've had the bedo youmodel.

do you

st you? I know what's coming when I see Emma approach me as I'm putting It feels weightmy coffee cup in the cafeteria a few hours later. I asked one of the nu nix if itstaff if Emma was still working, but they didn't seem interested in giv any details. They're loyal to their coworker, and I respect that. I asked could let her know I was looking for her, and I'm pretty sure one one timerolled her eyes.

Fair.

low." "Hey—"

She holds up her hand, looking more tired than normal. "You told t's justwanted to move on. That you were ready to do that."

human I didn't mean to lie to her. "I thought I was" is my quiet reply in I feltthough I know she's not looking for details, I feel the need to explain. to keepand I were talking, and a lot of emotions came up. She's...familiar to m. But, a hard pattern to quit."

It's a shitty reason to do what I did, but at least I'm being honest.

breath. "I told you before that I didn't think dating was a good idea l tter theof everything you're going through, but you told me you wanted to g fers mechance. You convinced me to not let this end."

w to do All I can say is "I know."

t's how Both women have a right to tell me off, so I accept everything the makes Do I like what I've put them through? No. It makes me feel like a jespecially considering I accused Raine of sleeping around.

. But it "She wants a dog," Emma tells me, causing my eyes to lift to g whilecuriosity.

pite his "What?"

pecause Emma lowers her arms to her sides. "She wants to buy one of the of the from my family's litter. I saw her in town the other week with one of that escaped through the fence."

I stare for a brief moment. "I didn't know you two knew each other est role "Your phone background is of you two," she points out, making like an even bigger dick. I'd meant to change it, but I couldn't. "I receive her right away but didn't tell her how close you and I have been."

That must be why Raine kept staring at Emma when she walked i hospital room earlier. "I'm sorry, Em. I wanted to believe I was o a lid on relationship."

She gnaws her lip and nods once before standing straighter and rses onlooking me in the eye. "Yeah. I obviously wanted to believe that too. ring mewe're both idiots."

If they As she starts to walk away, I reach out to gently grab her wrist. "World them Her wary eyes look over her shoulder at me before she carefully ta arm back.

"How much are you selling the dogs for?"

Emma blinks slowly, staring at me as she soaks in that question. To me yousays, "You want to buy it for her, don't you?"

I cringe, realizing how fucked up that is.

7. Even She scoffs. "Of course you do." Wetting her lips, she shakes her he "Rainerubs her tired eyes. "You're such a dick, Caleb."

me. It's Then she walks away.

s out a pecause give it a ley say. ackass, her in ne dogs

r..."
me feel ognized

into her ver the

finally

looking me in the eye. "Yeah. I obviously wanted to believe that too. I guess we're both idiots."

As she starts to walk away, I reach out to gently grab her wrist. "Wait."

Her wary eyes look over her shoulder at me before she carefully takes her arm back.

"How much are you selling the dogs for?"

Emma blinks slowly, staring at me as she soaks in that question. Then she says, "You want to buy it for her, don't you?"

I cringe, realizing how fucked up that is.

She scoffs. "Of course you do." Wetting her lips, she shakes her head and rubs her tired eyes. "You're such a dick, Caleb."

Then she walks away.

Chapter Nineteen

RAINE

Caleb's reaction in the hospital is the exact reason I chose to end the first place. He wanted there to be a baby, but there isn't. He wants dad, but he can't be. Not with me. I saw it clear as day on his face judevastated he was the second it soaked in that I wasn't about to gi what he dreamed of.

I'm not pregnant.

Not with his baby.

Definitely not with Chris's.

Every fear I had about saying yes to his proposal was solidified middle of the emergency room. I hate that I was right because that there's no chance for us. Not again. But at least I got some justic knowing I wasn't completely out of hand with my choice.

It's for the best, I tell myself for the billionth time. If not now, it have happened someday when things became too much.

That realization smacks me head-on as I sit in my bedroom surrour silence, knees drawn to my chest as I stare at the corkboard full of a of pictures from over the years.

My light-pink room, with frilly curtains, decorative pillows, and stuffed animals lingering on the dresser, shelves, and bed, screams inr when I'm anything but. I'd like to think the good intent behind the rear not a saint makes up for the feelings I hurt along the way.

I'm not sure that's enough though.

Lowering my feet to the floor, I walk over to the corkboard and too of the pictures hanging there. It's ripped down the middle because I want to see the other person whose arm is still seen around me nex pool in Radcliff.

It was summer, and I'd been excited to see my friends in Virginia that Caleb wasn't going to be there. We were new, nothing serious, s myself it was good to miss him, good to have our space. People v always near each other tend to get on each other's nerves from what I of

"Come on, Raine," Collin teases, lowering his phone to look at know you can smile. Let's see it."

The boy next to me, Cody, puts his arm around my shoulder and a into his side. He's more muscular than Caleb, and it makes me wond plays sports too. Is he a football player? He seems like the baseball nings in think I heard him and Chris talking about the Yankees and Red So to be a

I also notice that he smells nice. Whatever cologne or body sprits how wearing isn't too strong. I can't help but take a small breath to try from out what scent is coming from him. It's woodsy and floral at the san New compared to what I'm used to.

"Did you just smell me?" he asks, a lopsided grin on his face.

Instantly, my face blossoms with heat. "I...uh... Sorry."

fication There's no doubt he's flirting, which makes a nervous laugh bubl my lips.

I think briefly about Caleb. We aren't officially dating yet, so flirting against the rules. Right? I see girls flirt with Caleb all the time, especiated by cheerleaders who go up to him after the games. It doesn't make me fellow when I see him laugh at whatever they're saying, but I know I've got no to him.

maybe that's why I settle into Cody's side and grin at Collin as notence his phone to snap more photos of the group.

Cody is cute—a blond surfer wannabe compared to Caleb's dark-son I'm dark-eyed, all-American thing. They're both cute in their own ways, a both seem to like me. It strokes my ego a little because there's particularly special about me. My hair is a frizzy dark red mess that I didn't know what to do with, I barely wear makeup because I have be how to apply it much less make it look good, and I'm not the best at conversation without coming off as awkward.

but sad o I told blush regardless of how I see myself.

Yet here's an attractive boy who keeps smiling at me, finding tiny to told touch me whenever we're near each other, and flirting enough to me blush regardless of how I see myself.

who are It feels good to be wanted, and that makes me feel like any other that the can tell.girl. Suddenly, I understand why those cheerleaders want the a me. "Iattention so much. It's fun.

That's why after a while I stop thinking about Caleb altogether a tugs mein the moment with my summer friends.

er if he Which is why I follow Cody inside that night when he asks if I wan type. Isomewhere quieter to talk. And we do. We talk about our favorite mux gamelisten to some of their best songs on YouTube, talk about movies, hand everything in between.

ay he's We never bring up what our lives are like outside summer—what iguringwe're going back to. It's easier that way. Safer.

ne time. That night, I lose my virginity to the smooth-talking summer boy never see or speak to again.

It was awkward and fumbled, and it'd hurt. When all was said and lay in bed alone after he got dressed and left, claiming he couldn't be can doout past curfew again. I wondered if anybody would notice the differ me. I heard sex could do that to people.

ole past A few months later, I did notice a change. When I woke up in my o at home in an excruciating amount of pain and blood covering my she ng isn'tlegs. I'd had bad periods before, but this didn't feel the same as normally the I'd had plenty of experience since starting my cycle at eight years old el greatagain, it'd been over two months since I'd had one at all, which I chao claimto stress.

I'd felt horrible for sleeping with Cody—for giving him what I he liftshave given Caleb.

But when I drove myself to Planned Parenthood the next morning haired, myself because I didn't want to ask Mom or Dad to take me to the doc nd theyworld completely stopped.

nothing "You suffered a miscarriage. I'm sorry for your loss," the woman usually lab coat tells me, putting her hand on mine in comfort.

no idea Life hit me harder than it ever did that day, and I couldn't tell ar *making*Not Mom. Not Dad. Definitely not Caleb. And there'd been no way to boy who was the father to my unborn baby, because it wasn't as if he ways tomy life. I didn't have his number. Didn't know his last name. One dake mewith him led to a life-altering reality for me.

It was all downhill from there. I just didn't know it yet.

theenage Blinking slowly, I grab the picture from that day in Radcliff, study thletes'visible of Cody's arm, and grind my teeth. I crumple the print and tose my wastebasket. Then I do the same with another picture from that sur nd stay And another.

And another.

nt to go Until I'm tearing the corkboard off the wall and throwing it onto the sic and with hands shaking from anger.

"Stupid," I whisper to myself. "You were so stupid."

or who Clenching my eyes closed to stop the tears from falling, I inhale and kick the corkboard before dropping onto the edge of my bed and who I'dat the mess I made.

My whole body is shaking, making me wrap my arms around mys done, *I*squeeze.

caught I'm angry.

'ence in For the losses I've suffered.

For the sacrifices I've had to make.

wn bed I endured so much and had nobody to help me get through it. I ets andworst part? Nobody can, especially not now.

nal, and My body failed me, and I have no control over it. No answers. Nod. ThenI've had to silently grieve the loss of two different lives—the one of the lked upI'd never get to know, and the one of the person I was before I even out. Because the moment I heard the news, I realized I'd never be the s should Standing, I sniff back tears and step on the pictures as I walk our bedroom.

all by Mom is gone again.

ctor, my No note.

No text.

n in the No phone call.

She's probably with Dad.

nybody. Feeling suffocated in the house, unable to be on my own right tell thewalk outside to see an unfamiliar vehicle pull up at the front cu was ineyebrows dart up when I see Emma step out of the driver's side and ro lecisionfront of the car. When she sees me, she looks as on guard as I am, an when I know we're aware of the other person's involvement with Cale Rubbing my arm with my good hand, I take a deep breath so she what'ssee the breakdown I'm on the verge of and walk over to her. "Hi."

s it into Her gray eyes go from me to the house, then back to me again. D nmer. see the defeat in my eyes? The exhaustion? Or does she see someon helped hurt her with the boy she obviously has a thing for? I could when she touched his arm to walk him out of the room.

ne floor "I asked around to get your address. Hope that's okay."

Biting down on the inside of my cheek, I release it and say, "I gu carpet.depends on if you're here to hit me or not."

Emma smiles faintly. "You're safe. I've never been much of a figh deeply Me either. I guess Caleb has a type.

staring We're quiet, staring at each other.

Then I say, "I didn't know."

self and She doesn't need me to elaborate.

"Neither did I," she replies. There's a pause, more shifting in disc "Or maybe I did in a way. Subconsciously, I knew Caleb still loved yo I don't tell her about my cluelessness to her presence in his life be wouldn't do any good now. Why keep hurting people's feelings with the lie could save them even the slightest bit of pain?

"I have something for you," she tells me, walking over to the bar o relief.of her car.

I gape at the wiggling gray puppy she takes into her arms that's r foundher face. "Oh my God," I whisper, walking over to get a better look. "same. think you'd still sell me one after the hospital. I wouldn't have blamed t of my She looks down at the dog before passing him to me, watchin quickly wrap him up in my arms. "To be honest, I was debating on I him out of spite. But what happened wasn't your fault. Not entirely. going to be petty because of everything that went down, especially promised my parents I'd help find good homes for these little guys."

The softness in her voice makes me realize she's being genuine. you."

now, I She doesn't look at me but at the puppy when she says, "I figure." Mycould use a good, stable companion now more than ever." Reaching und thescratch the dog's back, she lifts her gaze upward and adds, "We both d that's Because I don't think Caleb is capable of being that for anybody right b. Is that her way of saying things with Caleb and her are over? Be doesn't may not know the specifics, but it's obvious that there was something choose not to ask. It's safer that way.

oes she Probably for both of us.

ne who "How much do I owe you?"

1 see it Emma steps back, sliding her hands into her jacket pockets. "Nothitaken care of already."

My brows pinch in confusion. "What do you mean?"

ess that The girl standing in front of me, still in her scrubs, sighs. "I'll neve what happened between the two of you, but it's obviously not big enter." make him care any less. I'm looking forward to the day I can experie kind of loyalty, even after heartbreak."

Is she saying what I think she is?

I look down at the dog, whose tongue quickly finds my chin in kisses.

omfort. Emma walks back to her car, stopping before she climbs insidu." watches me for a second before shaking her head. "Good luck cause iteverything."

he truth I'm too slow to respond before she gets inside and drives away.

When I walk up to the front door, I see Mr. Applebee outside his a ck doorwith a rake, working on the fallen orange and yellow leaves coat otherwise green lawn. "Got a new friend there?" he asks, nodding tow lickingsquirmy puppy who clearly wants to be set down.

I didn't I force a smile, but it feels too heavy to be believable. "I'm tryou." avoid the loneliness thing. What better way than with a dog?"

ng as I He leans against the rake handle. "My Annemarie used to say to seepingtimes we're feeling loneliest are typically when we need to be by our I'm notthe most."

when I My brows pinch. "That doesn't make any sense to me."

One of his shoulders lifts as he fights off what I imagine is al "Thanksmile. "Well, she also told me that bacon was going to kill me somed switched us to that nasty low-fat, low-sodium turkey alternative, so red youshe had no idea what she was talking about."

over to That gets me to crack a smile of my own.

ι could. Scratching the puppy between his ears to get him to calm down, I now." toward my house. "I should go in and get him settled."

cause I I guess I also need to buy him some things since I never got arounthere. IMom isn't going to be very happy, but I'm sure he'll grow on her.

"Are we still meeting tomorrow afternoon?" he asks, taking up I again. "I've been thinking a lot about those pastries you've told me about

I want to ask him to reschedule, but I don't want to risk him back ing. It'sof the project. Enough of my life is at risk because of my choices; need my grade for this class to be at risk too. "Tomorrow. Right Pastries are on me. Unless Annemarie said something about them be re knowfor you too."

ough to Leon pats his stomach. "Only for the weight, but I clearly dor ace that about that. Too damn old to care about the little things."

Snorting, I murmur, "Yeah, I've definitely gained some weight started working there." I brush the thought off and force a bigger smil happyyou tomorrow, Leon," I call out, carefully opening and pushing the dowith my injured hand.

de. She After setting a few towels down on the floor for my unnamed new with...member, I pull out my phone to see a few unanswered messages.

Mom: I won't be home until late tonight. There's money on the counter for you to order p s house Caleb: I'm sorry about earlier. We need to talk about all of this ing his rard the Choosing to ignore both like they've ignored me in the past, I to phone off and sit on the edge of my bed, staring at the empty corkbying to seems appropriate. It's a clean slate wiped away by a tsunami of regionly way to move on is to rebuild from the ground up.

that the The whining coming from the floor has me moving my gaze fr Irselvestrash bin full of old photos and toward the puppy that's officially beginning for me. "What am I going to name you?"

lmost a ay. She maybeGrabbing the two plates with heated muffins on them from Elena, over to the corner table where Leon is waiting for me. He's got a value cane leaning against the wall, a steaming cup of tea in front of him gesture curious expression on his face as he studies the other tables of students having lunch.

nd to it. "Here," I say, putting his cheesecake muffin down in front of him.

Sliding into the seat across from him with my chocolate chip muff is rake out." it to the side and move my water to make room for my notebook.

I'm a little scatterbrained as I search for a pen in my bag, a ing out I don'tneighbor notices my flustered movements. "Is everything okay?"

;, yeah. Pausing, I let out a tiny breath. "Not really." Cringing internally. ing badthe writing utensil from my bag and drop it back onto the floor bes feet. "Sorry, it's not your problem. There's a lot going on is all."

Leon drags his muffin closer. "I don't suppose it's anything I ca i't care you with, is it?"

We'd be here all day if I started listing my problems, starting wit since I le. "Seebeing gone again when I woke up. If I hadn't noticed the empty wi or widewith a lipstick stain on the counter or the missing slice of pizza from t

I would have assumed she never came home. But between that and the familyshe left on the fridge asking why she had to clean up a pee stain kitchen floor this morning, I knew she snuck in late before whatever I she had with a client this morning.

oizza

I wanted to tell her about the new addition to our household last ni get it out of the way, but maybe it's a good thing we avoided it. Th would ask what happened to my hand and why I looked like I ha urn mycrying. Because I had been. Not because my hand hurt, which it c oard. Itbecause my heart hurt. Then I'd need to explain the argument I got et. The Caleb and how he bought me a dog, which would take the conversation entirely new direction that would probably lead to an argument wit om the about why I need to get past my feelings.

a fresh I'm not ready for all that.

The smile I give my neighbor is genuine. "Helping me with this pr more than enough. Trust me. I asked my mom, but she wasn't com with the topic or having her business out there. Plus, she doesn't spei of time at the house anymore, so finding time to work with her on it I headhave been difficult."

Leon nods in acknowledgment as he pulls the top of the muffin fi , and abody, just like my father always does. "It must have been hard wh collegesplit."

I'm quiet for a second. "It's...different. But I think this is what's everybody. They fought too much to make it work for the long term." I remember when Mrs. Applebee, Annemarie, once asked in, I seteverything was all right when she heard the yelling match going on inchouse. I'd been staring at the front door, wondering if I should go insum mybreak it up after a long day of school or if I should do another lap aro neighborhood in hopes they'd be done by the time I got back.

, I grab I was twelve.

side my Shaking it off, I clear my throat and click my pen open. "How lor you and your wife together?"

an help He lets the subject change easily. "This year will be fifty-eigh together. We met at seventeen, got married at eighteen, and hav h Momtogether ever since."

neglass "You still count them?"

he box, His nostalgic smile grows. "Even though she's been gone for for Post-itnow, she'll always be with me. She was my soulmate. I still feel her poon the bad days."

neeting "How did you know she was the one? That's a long time to be t with one person." I made it seven years before messing it all up, y ght andspent decades together. "Were you ever scared?"

nen she Those eyebrows pop up. "Of what? Losing her? Sure. Thought that depends been possibility a time or two. Have you seen me? I'm no Cary Grant—the lid, buther favorite actor. Had the biggest crush on him. But my Annemarie, in with She was a looker. I always thought that woman was the prettiest then in an an an all. Never he Momunderstood why she fell in love with me."

"But you never doubted it?"

The older man scratches at the white scruff on his chin roject isrelationship? Nah. I was in it with her one hundred percent, and I kn fortablewas in it with me. That's what love is. It's not about giving fiftynd a lotsomebody. Who wants a half-assed kind of love when you could each t wouldyour all no matter the circumstances?"

My stomach dips as I stare at the little notes I've been jotting down com thegiven it my all with Caleb, or was I only ever offering him half of en theyhoping he'd meet me halfway? I didn't even try telling him about diagnosis. There were a few moments it'd been on the tip of my tongu best forhe mentioned kids, but I couldn't bring myself to tell him the truth.

was too late, everything had boiled over, and I couldn't say a thing. I me ifgiven him my all, because I justified to myself that I couldn't.

side the After what happened with Cody, I'd pulled back a little from ide andwondering if it would turn into love at all if I was willing to t und the somebody else in the first place. Maybe that was the first sign tha going to self-sabotage early on.

"Can I ask you something?" I say to Caleb, tapping the eraseing were pencil against my marked-up math homework.

He looks over from where he's typing something on his dad's cont years "If it's about the trig homework, I don't know how much help I'll be been pretty sure I got half of the equations wrong even though I follow example problems she gave us."

I stare at the assignment for a second before setting my pencil dow ir yearsabout what your dad said at dinner the other day. About how he kne resencemom was the one the first day he met her."

Caleb's full attention is on me now, interest piqued. "Yeah, he's so ogetherfor years. He always talks about the color of her lipstick and how he ret they had so much hair spray he was afraid it'd ignite if she got too close to they were at. What about that?"

It was a Wetting my lips as I scrape my palms down my jeans, I say, "I hat wasthink that sort of thing is true? My parents have never said anything limits...shoo.about each other before."

ning no In fact, they never talk about their past. Unlike Caleb's parents, we requitereminiscing about their dating days, my parents seem to avoid the top it's the last thing they want to remember.

Caleb turns to me, his cheeks turning pink when he admits, "I th . "Ourtrue. I knew I wanted you in my life the day I first saw you. It was t new shetime I ever came up to you in the hall at school."

fifty to I make a face. "But the day we started talking, I had spitballs in I give it from Sean Puglisi. They were so tangled I nearly cried. Mom even I few in my hair later that night."

1. Had I He shrugs easily. "Yeah, but you didn't cry. And you didn't make myself, or be mean to him either, like Katie did when he did it to her. You jus out myhim to stop. You were always nice to everyone, and I liked that."

e when Sean had started acting out after his grandpa died that year. Most Then itknew his grandparents were the ones who raised him. I figured hadn'tprobably hurting and that was his way of showing it. Mom said Aunt did that when their father died. Grief does funny things to people.

Caleb, "So you wanted me in your life because I was nice about the spitbed be with That pink in his cheeks deepens as he goes back to staring t I wascomputer screen. "I wanted you in my life for a lot of reasons. Spitbed all. I just...knew."

" of my My hand goes to a lock of my hair, absentmindedly touching the as if I'd find something gross tangled in there. When I don't, I make mputer.lower my hand and move on to the next question. "Was there anything be. I'm two disagreed on that threatened your relationship?"

ved the He chuckles. "Of course we disagreed. There isn't one coup doesn't have their fair share of arguments. If that threatens the relatin. "It'sthen you're not with the right person."

w your I find myself nodding, jotting down a single word and underling Secure.

aid that It makes me start to evaluate all the little things about the way I wer hairCaleb, knowing that's the last word I'd describe myself with. I don the fireLeon though, because he lost his wife. I may not have Caleb anymore least he's still here.

Do you "You look deep in thought," he notes.

ike that I snap myself out of it. "Sorry. Thinking.""About?" he presses with interest.

ho love Sighing, I reach for the muffin I have no appetite for. "Life. Love."

pic as if Leon's eyes glint with amusement. "Those are two things we callittle too lost in trying to figure out the answers to."

iink it's My head tilts as I take that in. "Isn't it human nature to we the firstanswers?"

A thoughtful noise comes from him. "I suppose. Take it from an c ny hair with a lot of life experience. The more we search for answers, th *found a*questions we have. That's no way to live your life, kid."

a scene it asked people he was Tiffany "So you wanted me in your life because I was nice about the spitballs?"

That pink in his cheeks deepens as he goes back to staring at the computer screen. "I wanted you in my life for a lot of reasons. Spitballs and all. I just...knew."

My hand goes to a lock of my hair, absentmindedly touching the strands as if I'd find something gross tangled in there. When I don't, I make myself lower my hand and move on to the next question. "Was there anything you two disagreed on that threatened your relationship?"

He chuckles. "Of course we disagreed. There isn't one couple who doesn't have their fair share of arguments. If that threatens the relationship, then you're not with the right person."

I find myself nodding, jotting down a single word and underlining it. Secure.

It makes me start to evaluate all the little things about the way I was with Caleb, knowing that's the last word I'd describe myself with. I don't envy Leon though, because he lost his wife. I may not have Caleb anymore, but at least he's still here.

"You look deep in thought," he notes.

I snap myself out of it. "Sorry. Thinking."

"About?" he presses with interest.

Sighing, I reach for the muffin I have no appetite for. "Life. Love."

Leon's eyes glint with amusement. "Those are two things we can get a little too lost in trying to figure out the answers to."

My head tilts as I take that in. "Isn't it human nature to want the answers?"

A thoughtful noise comes from him. "I suppose. Take it from an old man with a lot of life experience. The more we search for answers, the more questions we have. That's no way to live your life, kid."

Chapter Twenty

CALEB

" $D_{\text{UDE}}$ ," Matt groans, setting his pen down on his notebook and back in the chair. "That's the fourth time you sighed. Is your infrast homework as boring as it sounds or what?"

I stare down at the highlighted section of text I marked up fifteen I ago. I've read it three times, and nothing seems to be sticking. "I hav shit on my mind."

"With your dad or...?"

None of my friends have asked about Raine, even though we've lethe talk of the town since I escorted her from Bea's with her blood wrapped. It hasn't escaped people that we showed up to the hospital to but didn't leave together. Have I been avoiding people so I wouldn't talk about the events of that day? Yeah. But I can't keep doing it forev

"Life," I finally reply to Matt. Talking with Dad made me feel than I had been in a while. All the shit piling on me is still there, but I have people to talk to about it with who won't judge me. Dad. Mc friends. "Can I ask you something? No bullshit answers either."

Matt's brows arch. "Uh, I guess."

"You never really talk about your parents, so I don't know wh situation is with them. But do you ever worry that something you do i to fuck everything up with them?"

He stares at me for a second. "Wow. Wasn't expecting that." My scrubs his neck. "My parents are good people. Blue collar. K themselves. I guess when you have something healthy with people, never really anything to talk about. I never think to bring them up. But yeah, they made my life good. Better than it probably would have bee had any other family."

My brows pinch at the odd choice of words, and then they relax  $\nu$  sees the confusion on my face and says, "I was adopted. It was clos parents are the only ones I know. Like I said, good people. Great actually."

Wow. Nobody would have known that if he didn't say somethieven sort of looks like his dad.

Matt's shoulders lift nonchalantly. "And isn't it sort of our jobs to once in a while? I mean, nobody is perfect. Our parents know we're g do stuff that they don't approve of at least once in our lifetimes. I thi leaning they react depends on what your relationship is with them. My date exactly going to be high-fiving me if he ever finds out about Rachel, I going to tell me to be careful, just like you and a few of the guy ninutes."

Does that mean he isn't in it for the long haul with her? "You do on ever telling them about Rachel? Not even in the future?"

Out of our friend group, I was one of the few who always looked future. When we were all freshmen, I'd talked about life after graduati ly hand Raine when everybody else was focusing on whatever party was come ogether babies, and the future so much, but I told him he was wrong.

er. I guess he wasn't.

calmer Matt grabs his pen and twists it, staring at his notes. "I don't l know I want to hide Rachel forever, but it's not really up to me."

"For what it's worth, I hope you don't have to hide her," I to "Nobody should have to hold any part of them back to save face."

He nods. "Thanks, man."

I feel my knee bounce under the table. "I've always tried doing knew was right my whole life. I've been training to take over Hardware, I've studied my ass off to get good grades, and I'm do buddy hospital. I spend more time at my parents' house than at my aparents' because I don't want her to be alone. I've never been worried there's disappointing my parents because I could handle whatever was tost they... an if I'd way. But I haven't been able to say the same for a while and chalked being weak."

"The last thing anybody would call you is weak, Caleb."
Why doesn't it feel that way then?

"Whether you want to believe it or not, there are people on your people,matter what you're going through. If I were in your shoes, I'd probawling my eyes out or drinking myself to death. There'd be no in-bing. HeI'd say you're doing a lot better than most people would. So don't thin feeling twisted up about life makes you any less of a man. It doesn't. I fuck upyour dad would say the same thing."

nk howgoing exactly how I wanted it to, and it did a one-eighty overnight in disn'tway possible. Ever since Raine and I broke up, I haven't felt settled. but he'ssomething she isn't telling me, Matt. I know it. The reason she gave s have, ending things doesn't make sense. I thought if I moved on or if I ju something with somebody else..."

n't plan Well, that was obviously a shitty plan because it only dragged sor innocent into my bullshit.

I to the Shaking my head, I swipe a hand down my tired face. "I hurt sor on withwho didn't deserve it by trying to get over the girl who did the same ing up.and I know my parents don't approve, which sucks. They've always I arriage,my side with every choice I've made. But they want me to be a process things, and I..." I make a face. "I don't know how to be."

It's never just been me. I've always had a strong support system know. Ifamily, friends, and girlfriend. Why would I need to learn how to be own when I had everything I could ever want?

a great relationship with your parents, and you guys have gone throug together. There's nothing you're going to do that makes them love y what Iless, even if they don't approve of what you're doing with this g. Anderstelling you, dude, you're beating yourself up way too much aboung myEverything will work out how it's supposed to if you give it time. But at theneed to talk to Raine to get things off your chest, do that. Follow you artmentNobody but you knows what that's telling you to do."

I about He's got a point. If I just knew whatever she was holding back, ma sed myfeel better. I could let go. Maybe it could be that easy. Closure. Who it up towant that? It'd give me a chance to focus on the other things in my I should take precedence.

"Now," he says, "enough of this fluffy shit. It's not my thing. If yo a softy, find DJ. That man is a fucking marshmallow."

side no Snorting out an amused laugh despite feeling anything but goo ably benow, I shake my head and try getting back into my homework.

"Thanks for the advice," I tell him. "Hey, maybe we could get the ink youtogether sometime soon to do something. Watch one of the up 'm suregames."

Matt snorts. "As long as it's not a Penn game, I'm sure DJ wo ife wasdown for that. Let us know your schedule."

Blowing out a breath, I nod and think about how my schedule is g n every There's change a lot, sooner rather than later.

Because of Dad. me for ıst tried Because of Raine.

Raine.

Closing my textbook, I shove it into my bag and push the chai nebody knowing I won't be getting anything done if I can't stop thinking about nebody"I've got to go talk to someone. I'll see you later, man."

He looks up in surprise, but those lips curl up at the corners as been onknow exactly who I'm ditching him to talk to. "Good luck."

lone to #### ı. Great

on myWHEN I was sixteen, I nearly pissed myself when I showed up at I house with a bag full of all her favorite candy and a card with a ays had message inside asking her to the winter formal. I had to face her father gh a lot answered the door, and I knew his stance on dating. Both her paren ou any against her seeing anybody, which made it twice as hard getting t irl. I'm agree to me taking her anywhere. While we were already seeing each ut this. secret, I wanted to officially ask her to be my date for the dance tl t if you second best to prom.

our gut. I was a little uncertain about asking her because she was acting after she got back from Virginia, but she told me she was fine a ybe I'd nothing was wrong. When she started acting like herself again, o doesn't similar version anyway, I figured it couldn't hurt to shoot my shot. If life that win her parents over, I could win her over too.

That similar feeling of panic is back as I watch Raine behind the ou want at Bea's through the front window. I've been debating on going in past fifteen minutes but find myself backing away from the door ever and right reach for the handle. At least eight people have passed through the done guysheld open.

coming "What are you doing?" a familiar voice asks behind me before pops up by my side with a smile on her face. I look around to see ould beboyfriend is with her, but it's just us.

"I'm just...enjoying the fresh air," I lie, knowing damn well she soing toit's bullshit.

Her eyes roll. "Is that why you've been pacing as you stare at y girlfriend like a creep? Because a lot of people would get arrested for t of behavior."

I eye her, not as amused as she is when I see the giant grin plast r back,her face. "Are you going to call the cops?"

out her. She hums in contemplation. "Nah, it's too amusing to watch nervous like this. What exactly are you doing?"

if they Rubbing the back of my neck, I glance at the window. Rair anywhere in sight, making me blow out a breath. I turn back to the g curious eyes who's waiting for my answer. "I need to talk to Raine."

Skylar slowly nods, but there's obvious skepticism on her face. wondering if she was all depressed because of you," she murmurs, tur Raine's look for the redhead inside.

cheesy Raine's been depressed?

who'd She doesn't give me a chance to ask for more info about that ts were statement. "So, what? You suddenly can't talk? You open your more hem to words come out. It's basically magic."

other in Wiseass. "What are you doing here?"

"Do you mean on the public street or at the town's best bakery? I at was I'm here for coffee and doughnuts so I can hate myself later for eatin strange after bitching to DJ about how I've gained ten pounds since moving he not that I don't bother giving her a cursory glance out of solidarity. I've some nothing wrong with her body, regardless of what food she uses to fuel I could sure DJ told you not to worry about shit like that. That boy is lovestru doubt a doughnut will do any harm."

"What about pie? I can buy us a couple of slices and we can cate for the want the details on whatever is going on with you and Raine. She y time I haven't gotten a chance to hang out recently." I'm about to answer he she points at the window. "Look! Raine sees us. Wave at the cute or I'veCaleb."

She grabs my hand and starts waving it for me, drawing my atter SkylarRaine. She stares between me and Skylar with a distant look on he if herbefore turning to help someone at one of the tables.

"Come on," Skylar says, tugging me toward the front door.

knows "Sky-"

She stops, turning to me and giving me a don't-mess-with-me star our ex-never taken you for a coward. Man up and go talk to your...er, well, hat sortGo talk to Raine."

"Great pep talk. Really."

ered on She pats my shoulder and gives me her back as she opens the know if I don't follow her, she'll probably pull me in, which I'd rat you allhave people witness.

A few of the town boys are in the back, calling out to me with fine isn'twaves and raised coffees in greeting. Following my best friend's gi irl withover to the counter after waving back to them, I stuff my hands in the job my jeans and wait for Raine to turn around.

"I was Chest tightening, I think back to the breathing exercises I had to a ming toin high school when I was worried about passing out in front of the father the same girl standing mere feet away from me.

Elena shoves Raine forward when she sees us waiting, earnic casualteenager a dirty look that she simply grins at. When the redhead turns uth andmy eyes go down to her hand, which isn't wrapped like it was the las saw her.

She lifts her hand, bending her fingers and wincing slightly Becausesensitive skin. "It was hard to work with all that gauze, so..." Her eye g carbsSkylar, and she smiles briefly before turning back to me. "Do you bo re." your usual orders?"

There's Her eyes refuse to meet mine, and her evasion of the elephant in th it. "I'mdoesn't sit right with me. Ironic, I guess, since I avoided her after c ck, so Ihookup. Payback's a bitch.

Skylar elbows my rib cage with a little more force than necessar ch up. Ido, but first Caleb wants to talk to you about something."

e and I Jesus.

er when Raine's eyes lift to mine with a brief flicker of panic. Her ey barista, nervously to Skylar again before she nods once, wiping her hands apron tied around her waist. "Okay." She starts putting my usual ordation to the register until the total comes up, then glances at the girl beside meder faceme to add yours to his, Sky, or separately?"

I don't ignore the distance in her voice, and neither does Skyla gives her a casual shrug and pulls out a credit card. "It's on me" is says, winking at me.

e. "I've "You don't have to—"

Raine. "Duh. I know that, but I am anyway. So say 'thank you, Skyla move out of my way so I can pay for this."

Sighing at her theatrics, I murmur a grateful yet dry, "Thar door. ISkylar."

her not Raine peeks up at me through her lashes before quickly glancir down again to tear off the receipt being printed for the bubbly blonc riendlygetting far too much enjoyment out of the tension between me and my rlfriend "Here you go," Raine says. There's a pause before she heaves pocketspicks her head up, and looks at me. "I've got a few minutes to talk. Le get this stuff ready."

lo back Raine guides us to a table in the back that's relatively private and ather of the chair farthest from the other. I try not reading into that as I take the seat and watch her fiddle with a straw wrapper that was left on the tabling the "How are you feeling?" I ask.

to me, She shifts uncomfortably. "Still not pregnant, by you or anybody, t time Ithat's what you're getting at." The coolness of her tone is well desemy end.

at the "That was a fucked-up thing I said," I murmur, knowing there's es go tocan say to make up for it. "I truly am sorry."

th want Her lips press together, but she doesn't say anything right away. I her eyes scan the bakery and all the people chatting at their own table ie roomlaugh, smile, and look like they're having a good time. Then there's us our first Eventually, she says, "I'm tired. That's how I'm feeling. I somebody got me a puppy that needs to be house-trained."

y. "We I'm grateful Emma gave her one after what I put her through. "We you name him?"

Raine slowly moves her focus back to me, watching me for a mores darttwo. "Sigmund Freud. I definitely disappointed the girls. Olive was contheon Darth Vader, and Skylar thought Brody would be cute for him after ler intoJenner. I guess she and DJ have been binge-watching The Hills."

"Want My lips twitch. "I like it. It's very...you."

It's a foreign statement considering there have been moments o ar, whopast few months that make me wonder how well I really know her.

all she "What are you doing here, Caleb? Didn't we say what we needed t hospital?" Her question isn't unwarranted, and it's filled with caution.

But I'm not letting her get out of this. "I'd say there's a lot left ar," andbetween us."

She closes her eyes for a second before shaking her head. She ik you,hears the shortness in her tone too. "We've both made poor deespecially when it comes to each other. I'm trying to figure things out. I back Have we though? "And where do I fit in with that? It's not just you I who's responsible for the choices we've made."

ex. She gives me a look before her eyes go elsewhere. "I don't knc a sigh, you think you'd fit anywhere at this point. If you're here because y ena canbad, then you don't need to. What's done is done."

I lean forward. "I don't buy that. You just want me to drop it, but I sits in a reason why we keep coming back to each other."

ie other "It's because of our history. Please don't read into it."

e. Too late. "It's true that I feel bad," I admit. "It was wrong for involve myself with Emma and you at the same time. You two didn't in casethat."

"Let me make it up to you," I offer. "I bought those fish sticks ye little Iso much. Come over to my apartment tonight so we can talk."

Raine crosses her arms on the edge of the table. "You got my favol Instead,sticks?"

s. They I nod.

"But you hate them."

Because "Well, you don't," I counter easily.

We stare at each other in silence.

'hat did I'm the one who decides to break it when I notice Elena passing the drinks and a bag of our pastries. "I'll help you with your project, ment orhoping schoolwork could be common ground for us. We always lead settogether in the past. It could be a good way to spend time together now r Brody "I already found someone to help me," she replies. "Leon Applebe

After racking my brain for the familiar name, it clicks. "Applebee neighbor?"

ver the She nods absently, looking at something behind me. "I appreci offer, but I think you and I have more than enough on our plates. W o at theneed to add business to ple—" unsaid A faint shade of pink coats her cheeks. "I didn't mean it like that."

Pleasure.

"Of course not," I murmur, brushing off the sting of rejection that clearly right settling into my chest cavity. "Why him, anyway? The man is a cisions, I didn't even know he spoke to you before."

All she asks is "Why not him?"

I who's Why not him? The question is innocent, but it strikes me the wror Because I used to think that's how she thought of me whenever her whywould ask her why we were together. "Why not Caleb?" she'd asl rou feelmom.

"I would have helped you if you'd asked me to," I tell her.

there's She huffs out a quiet laugh. "Would you have? Because I've tried to you without much luck before. We've gotten good at fighting but no else."

me to "I'd say there's one other thing we've gotten good at," I press not I deserveto point out the times we've spent alone. The color of her cheeks say thinking the same thing. "A lot has changed for us, trust being the y so. reason I couldn't answer your texts or figure out what to say when I ou lovehave talked instead of pointed fingers. But one thing hasn't changed anything for you, Raine. If you really needed me."

Skylar " I say, studied

e."

After racking my brain for the familiar name, it clicks. "Applebee? Your neighbor?"

She nods absently, looking at something behind me. "I appreciate the offer, but I think you and I have more than enough on our plates. We don't need to add business to ple—"

Pleasure.

A faint shade of pink coats her cheeks. "I didn't mean it like that."

"Of course not," I murmur, brushing off the sting of rejection that has no right settling into my chest cavity. "Why him, anyway? The man is a hermit. I didn't even know he spoke to you before."

All she asks is "Why not him?"

Why not him? The question is innocent, but it strikes me the wrong way. Because I used to think that's how she thought of me whenever her parents would ask her why we were together. "Why not Caleb?" she'd asked her mom.

"I would have helped you if you'd asked me to," I tell her.

She huffs out a quiet laugh. "Would you have? Because I've tried talking to you without much luck before. We've gotten good at fighting but not much else."

"I'd say there's one other thing we've gotten good at," I press not needing to point out the times we've spent alone. The color of her cheeks says she's thinking the same thing. "A lot has changed for us, trust being the biggest reason I couldn't answer your texts or figure out what to say when I should have talked instead of pointed fingers. But one thing hasn't changed. I'd do anything for you, Raine. If you really needed me."

Chapter Twenty-One

RAINE

I'd do anything for you, Raine. Those words echoed in my head all donly thing that snapped me out of it was Mom asking me where I was few hours after getting home from work.

"I'm going out," I tell her, taking my jacket off the hook by th "Need anything? I saw we were low on creamer, and I know how when you don't have any for your morning coffee."

One of Mom's eyebrows pops up. "Why are you trying to distifrom telling me where you're going?"

I pause with my jacket halfway on. "I'm not trying to distract yethe last time you ran out of creamer, you went on a rampage for the day, and I wasn't sure any of us were going to make it."

She gives me the look. The unamused one that most mothers handful of times in their lives. "It was a limited-time pumpkin checreamer that the store ran out of. I had reason to be upset."

Popping my lips, I offer a solemn nod. "I suppose. Anyway, I'm— "You haven't gone out this late since you were dating. Is this abou she asks, this time giving me pause as I untuck my hair from the jacket

I know who she's asking about, but I play dumb anyway. "Who?"

Pushing off the table, Mom walks over to me before I can open the "I know it may seem tempting to go back to what's familiar to y you've got your whole life ahead of you. Plus, you've got a puppy only partially house-trained. What am I supposed to do with him? I to already that he's your responsibility, not mine."

Gripping the strap of my purse as I haul it over my shoulder, I turn mother, trying to keep calm. My mood has been everywhere lately with my mind, and patience hasn't come as easily, especially when C the topic of conversation. I went back and forth on meeting up we tonight, and truth be told, I'm not sure why I am. I swore to myself cut him out of my life cold turkey.

For him. All for him. What will it take for him to understand that? The truth, that pesky voice mocks me. The one you refuse to tell hi I'd rather he assume the worst of me, that I wanted to try seein people instead of settling with him, than let him know the real reason. want to admit that I saw Cody, that he got me pregnant, or that I suf miscarriage, and I don't want to relive all the moments after—the ay. The appointments, the bad news delivered by the specialists.

I want this choice to allow Caleb and me to grieve but to be grather the long run. Because maybe someday we can both be happy, hower e door. On the lives.

Shaking out of the thought, I say, "Sigmund is sleeping in his crayou get his stuffed duck that you bought him. I took him out already, and have the food and water, so he'll be fine until I'm back."

Mom lets out one of her heavy sighs. "I still can't believe you namou. But after that weird man with the mommy issues. He's too cute for the entire almost cruel."

I roll my eyes at her theatrics. She was against having a puppy until she saw Sigmund's face. She fell in love the second his tongue out to give her a sloppy kiss. "He's one of the most famous psycholo the world, Mom. Even if a lot of his psychoanalysis theories have discredited, his studies have done a lot for modern-day therapy. We we thim?" be where we are if not for his work."

"His outdated work," Mom all but grumbles. "Where are you anyway?"

"Like I said. Out."

"You're avoiding the question, which means it does have to cou, but Caleb. You're not together again, are you? I thought you moved on from You wanted to focus on finishing your degree, finding a practice that set you up with good benefits and a financial future. I thought there may been someone, but I was hoping it was something fun for you. Not set you may sneaky."

The Ew. Mom. thinks I've been to the content of the cont

Caleb is a random? I mean, I guess she's not entirely wrong, not that I'd conside that I'd random. But there's too much history between us, so even thinking moving on is hard to swallow.

My mind goes to Emma and Caleb, making my stomach dip, but to let that hurt sink in when it has no right to. He did what I wanted m. do. He tried finding somebody else who could give him what I cou g othercan't focus on that right now, or I'll chicken out of going tonight and t I don'tbe trapped in my room feeling regret. I feel too much of that lately.

ffered a "I don't know what you're thinking, but—" doctor Mom gives me the look again. "I'm thinking that you're running the only boy you know. You made your choice already. It's not sor teful inyou should go back on, especially so soon. There are plenty of fish in ver thatIsn't that how the saying goes?"

Irritation bubbles under my skin. "I'm not running to anythe withanybody. He and I are going to talk and clear the air. And you know he's gotWho says I made my choice? Why does it have to be cemented?"

"Raine..."

ned him "What?" I cry, voice rising. "What is your problem with Calet nat. It'snever done anything wrong. He doesn't have a criminal record. He even speed, for crying out loud. Out of all the people I could wind u aroundhe's one of the good ones. Shouldn't mothers want that for their dau! dartedShouldn't you want someone secure instead of someone like Dad?"

gists in Her expression darkens. "Watch yourself, young lady. I don't live been acting your voice at me or bringing my relationship with your father i rouldn't situation. What's gotten into you lately? You've been acting strainweeks now, and I don't like who you're becoming."

that you think your relationship with Dad has nothing to do we considering your example of love is all I've ever known my whole life lo with I let that sink in a little further, lips parting with the realization om that.sure I fully thought about until now.

t would All Mom does is stare at the truth being thrown at her the way it d ay haveto be. Sure, I've never been in an abusive relationship with my prious orThey've never hit me or threatened to and never really yelled at me. I doesn't mean the emotional toll doesn't swing just as hard as a fist word meone Swallowing down the thick emotion, I ask, "And how would your Calebknow how I've been acting when you're always sneaking around will about doing God knows what instead of being here?"

Her hands go to her hips. "I'm a grown woman who can do as I

I refusewithout my daughter's permission."

him to "Well, I'm an adult too, last I checked." She starts to say somethin ldn't. Icut her off before I can stop myself. "You know what, I don't want hen I'llwith this right now. We're not going to get anywhere by arguing abou right and who's wrong."

"That's good, because you wouldn't like the answer," she informs back to I stare at her. "One of these days, you're going to tell me why you nething bitter about love. You never liked it. I used to think it was becauthe sea.weren't in it with Dad, but then you acted the same way with Caleb an get that your life isn't where you used to think it would be, but I'd say aing orbad a pretty good one so far regardless. You've got people who can ning orhad a pretty good one so far regardless. You've got people who can what?you. Tiffany. Me. Even Dad."

Mom blinks slowly. Whether she accepts it or not is an entirely d issue. "I've never claimed to have a bad life, Raine, or a grudge agains? He's I open the door and shoot back, "Well you could have fooled me." doesn't Neither of us says goodbye before I walk out, closing the door belt p with, and glancing over at Leon's house to see if he's outside. I bet he's walghters? Wheel of Fortune right now because there's a light on inside where I the living room is.

ike you It doesn't take long to drive to Caleb's, which is good because m nto thismaking weird noises again that definitely don't sound healthy. I'v nge forpraying it lasts me a few more months, but it may be on its last legs point.

ighable Pulling up to the curb in front of the building that sat abando ith thisyears, I glance around to see the darkened house and empty driveway.

." Ever since I heard Caleb was living here, I've found myself dri I'm notwalking by on my way home. I'm not sure why it eased some of the ti in my chest when I'd see his truck there, but it did. What had I expe eservesfind? Someone else's vehicle? Another girl? I'm not sure what I wou parents.done if I had. Seeing Emma touch his arm at the hospital was bad en 3ut thatdoubt I would have been reasonable if I saw her or anybody else le uld. apartment.

ou even Dumb girl, I chastise myself.

ith Dad Walking up the two uneven cement steps to his front door, I know step back, glancing at the window to see if there's a light on I missed.

I please Nothing.

Then I knock again. "Caleb?"

Ig, but I I glance at my smartwatch to check the time, but I expected hir to dealaround. He always was when he said he'd be. There were only two to twho'sall the years I've known Caleb when he was either late or had to be once when he got a flat on the side of the road and was stranded with me. In phone service, and the other when he slept through his alarm after purely respectively. I wasn't mad at him either the day before during midterms. I wasn't mad at him either the service, and I don't want to be now.

In distriction distriction distriction and me. I But there's a nagging feeling on top of the leftover irritation that you'veboiling from the brief confrontation with my mother that certainly e abouthelp me feel any less on edge.

After a few minutes of standing there, I bend down to peek i ifferentwindow and confirm that there's nobody home. As I'm walking to met love."hear a door crack open behind me. Just as I'm starting to let in relie wasn't bailed on, I turn to see an unfamiliar face at the door on the otlaind meof the building.

atching "Are you looking for Caleb?" the older man asks.

nink his Readjusting my bag, I nod and try not to let my chest deflat disappointment. "Do you know where he is? We were supposed to y car isseven, but his truck isn't here, and nobody is answering the door."

re been Caleb's neighbor shakes his head. "He's not here, I'm afraid. H at thiswhile ago. I'd try giving him a call. I'm sure he just lost track of tiwill be back soon."

ned for Swallowing the swell of emotion rising up my throat, I force unconvincing "Yeah. Maybe." I'm about to get into my car when I rer ving ormy manners. "Thank you for letting me know."

ghtness The man waves me off before going back into his apartment, leavected toto my thoughts as I slam the car door behind me.

ld have He forgot.

ough. I That doesn't sit well with me and definitely doesn't lessen the ave histhat's already burrowed deep in my stomach.

Pulling out my phone, I hit the Call button and raise the cell to After waiting for the ringing to stop, it goes to voicemail. I close my expect andsay, "I'm at your apartment, but you aren't. Which is obvious, I guess nothing came up with your dad. Just...I don't know. Text me or somet I at least know you're alive."

The last thing I want is for something to have happened to Mr. 1 n to beBut there's another part of me, an anxious part that has really imes inannoying me, that wants some sort of answer. One I could justify.

ick out: Because being forgotten...well, that's not something I can sett with noeasily, no matter if I've told myself it's better he moves on without Iling analways love Caleb, always want him.

ither of That acceptance is my purgatory.

's been doesn't

I drive around aimlessly for forty-five minutes, only stopping once to nto the favorite fast food and another time when the sound coming from the by car, I of my car scared me enough to pull over and make sure my when that I secure. I'm halfway through my chicken nuggets and ten minutes from the side parents' house when Caleb's name pops up on my cell phone screen.

hour and a half after we were supposed to meet.

I'm tempted not to answer out of pettiness, but I know better than se from something happened that he couldn't control, I'd only be adding fue meet at fire between us by assuming otherwise. It's why I pick up.

e left a I take a deep breath and slow down at the stoplight, biting into me and nugget. "Is your dad okay?" I ask with my mouth halfway full. I'm which isn't uncommon when I'm overwhelmed. I've always b out an emotional eater.

nember A pause. "Yes. He's okay."

"Your mom?"

'ing me "Yes, but—"

"Was it an emergency?"

His voice is quiet when he says, "Raine. I'm sorry."

e anger I stare down at my food, feeling my appetite slowly fade. "It was emergency then. You bailed."

my ear. The statement is met with more silence on his end, save son yes and background noise. I grip the steering wheel a little tighter than I need. I hope hit the gas once the light turns green. The radio has been off, leav hing so solely to my thoughts the entire time I've been out.

I think about my parents. Their poor communication. How ofte startedfought. How long it took them to accept that separating was for the b saw it unfold any differently, would I be different? Maybe I'd trust le withmore—be open to telling Caleb that my love for him has never gone av Instead, I saw what it's like for two people to keep each other a me. I'll length just to avoid talking about the hard stuff.

"It's not that simple, Raine. You'll understand when you're older, says, patting my back and shooing me to another room when I ask he and Dad made up yet.

At what age will I get it though? Nothing about life is easy, I've get my that much. But the older I get, the less I understand. Like why I want ack end on to the same man who I know I need to push away for good.

Eventually, I pull myself back to the conversation at hand, feel el was om my exhaustion of our push and pull weigh me down. "I know you've g It's an going on in your life already, but meeting tonight was your idea. Talki your idea. Offering to help me on my project, which is a huge part that. If grade by the way, was your idea, even if I don't need the help."

Which I do. l to the

He doesn't need to know that though.

"I got distracted at the hospital," he explains. "I know it's a pi 1. another excuse, but it's the truth. I'm trying to spend as much time with hungry, possible and try not to look at my phone while I'm there. He's not.. een an not a lot of time left. If you were in my shoes, you'd do the same regardless of your relationship with your family."

My nose twitches at his tone, which isn't exactly gentle or apologo knows our families are exact opposites, but our love for them is the sa I were in your shoes, I would have let you know that our plans change wouldn't have made them at all if I had other priorities, which I kno father needs to be right now. It takes five seconds to send a text m asn't an Caleb. I wouldn't have cared if you had just told me you couldn't mee

Okay, maybe I would have cared a little.

I hear a quiet sigh from him. "You're right. I'm—" ie light "Don't say 'sorry' again," I tell him, not wanting to hear it. "I kn to as I ing me are. All the two of us are anymore is sorry."

I don't recognize the sound of my own voice as I squeeze my eyes "My dad is dying, Raine. Isn't that reason enough to be a little en theyminded? He's family. When Mom called me after I got done with est. If Ithought..." His voice cracks. "I thought the worst. So yeah, I wasn' my gutthinking about you or anyone else because all I could focus on was way. was walking into or what would happen once I got there. Then the I t arm'sconversation started up again, which put everybody in a shitty mood.

top of that, Dad got on my ass about you and Emma, and Mom isn'i *Mom*about me putting him on edge with my personal-life drama."

r if she "Your dad knows about us?" I whisper.

"Is that really all you got from that?" he asks skeptically.

learned I slow down at another stop sign, frowning when the noise in to holdstarts up again. "Your dad has always been nice to me. I don't wa parents to judge me or think less of me."

ing the Caleb doesn't say anything right away, but I hear something mu ot a lotunder his breath that I can't understand. "Trust me. They're not judging wasabout anything. It's me they're not very happy with."

of my I doubt that. When it comes to us, it's a two-way street. Parents aren't going to be fans of the people who hurt him. "They love you."

Just like my parents love me, even if they don't say it often. I knov just wish I'd hear it more. See it. Feel it.

ss-poor As I start driving again, I notice thick smoke start to rise from the I Dad asthe car that blocks my view. "What the hell?"

.there's "What?" I hear from the other end of the phone.

thing, I quickly pull over to the side of the road and get out, spilling my nuggets all over the street.

etic. He "Raine, what's going on? Talk to me."

me. "If "M-my car is smoking."

ed. Or I "Christ. Where are you?" There are muffled noises like he's slow yoursomething in his hands. "I'm leaving the hospital now anyway. I calessage, take a look."

t up." I tell him what street I'm on and the nearest number I see on one houses. "I don't know what to do. Should I call the fire department?"

"It sounds like it's overheated. Do you see a fire anywhere?" I hear ow youclose on his end. "I'll be there in a few minutes. If there's no fire, do

This used to happen to Mom's old Hyundai. Remember? The puke-gracelosed. that she put neon-orange seat coverings in. My dad taught me how absent-that."

work, I Sniffling back anxious tears, I grab my bag out of the car just i t really "Your mom loved that car," I say weakly.

what I He chuckles. "Yeah, but she also loves the brand-new one she go hospiceThis one has heated seats and a heated steering wheel. She's fine."

And on "I guess," I murmur.

thappy "Did you know my dad used to want a Bentley? Not a new one but the classics—a 1938 in black. He said when they're polished, the slicker." I can hear the smile in his voice. "Mom still says they're the cars she's ever seen."

my car I know he's trying to get me to calm down, and it's working. I nt your"What would he have done with a car that old?"

"Show it," Caleb answers. "At least that's what he said. We bot rmuredDad barely took time off work, so it wasn't likely that it would have ing youvery far. But they put classic cars in the town parades sometimes, esq during the Fourth. Remember when we were nominated prom prir like hisprincess and got to sit in the back of that classic convertible throwing to the kids?"

v that. I I do remember that. Nobody was surprised we'd won the crowlduring junior year or when we won king and queen during senior yea hood ofback in high school, we were the couple to beat.

"I remember," I whisper.

My anxiety is still spiked, even when I see headlights in the distarchickenknow exactly who it is pulling up to where my poor car is dying on to of the empty street.

Caleb climbs out and instantly walks over to the hood of the car I'm avoiding like it'll blow up at any second.

nuffling "You can hang up the phone now," he tells me, which I hear twic n comehe's only a few feet away.

It only takes him a few minutes of tinkering under the hood of the something inside the car, and going back to the front before he wi hands off on his shirt, closes the hood, and walks over to me.

r a door "Overheated," he explains. "Your radiator needs to be replaced n't call.going to burn out the engine. I think there's a leak in one of the hoses t een one Great.

to fix "Hey," he says softly, reaching out and brushing my arm. "It's think we should leave it where it is to cool off and we can grab it in case.morning. It's not blocking anybody's driveway, and vehicles can easily. We'll leave a note on the windshield if you want."

ot after. I don't know why, but the gentle tone of his voice breaks the barr been keeping my emotions behind, and the floodgates open.

He still cares about me even when I put him through hell. That't one ofthan I ever saw from my parents.

ey look Once the first tear falls, all the others follow suit until I'm bawling ugliestmiddle of the sidewalk. Not even a pretty cry. An ugly, snotty kind to my nose running and my voice hoarse and my body shaking.

A little. And it feels good.

Caleb instantly steps closer, then wraps his arms around me in a tight know"Why are you crying, baby girl? I can help with the car. My dad made itpeople who can get you a great deal."

pecially First a puppy, now car parts?

ice and It only makes me cry harder.

g candy He squeezes me into him, resting his chin on the top of my he brushing his fingers through my hair. "Talk to me, Raine. Please? ns. Notseeing you cry. You know that. I know I screwed up tonight, but I r. Evenmean any harm by it. I swear."

The more I try catching my breath, the more I end up hiccupping his chest as a tissue to dry off my face, which he doesn't seem to not andbefore pulling back and running the backs of my hands against my che the side Once I'm able to collect myself enough to speak coherently, I say my chicken n-nuggets fell on the ground, and I r-really wanted them."

, which He stares at me.

Blinks.

e since And then starts laughing.

"All right," he tells me, hooking an arm around my shoulder with doingchuckle. "Forget about the fish sticks. We'll go get you some more pes hisand find somewhere to talk."

I sniff back more tears, doing my best to dry my face and fight or it'surge to cry again. "I am not sleeping with you again."

to." He opens the passenger side door of his truck for me. "I didn't a to."

okay. I "Just chicken nuggets."

in the "With the sweet barbecue sauce if they're out of the tangy ran get byconfirms with a half grin tilting one side of his mouth as he watches m in. Before he closes the door, he stares at me for a second like he want ier I'vesomething. His eyes go back to my car, then to me. Even though I'm so not what he was going to tell me, he grips the door and says, "Let's 's moreyou some chicken."

g in the :hat has sht hug. knows

ad and I hate didn't

g. I use mind, eks.

ay, "M-another nuggets

off the

ısk you

ch," he

confirms with a half grin tilting one side of his mouth as he watches me climb in. Before he closes the door, he stares at me for a second like he wants to say something. His eyes go back to my car, then to me. Even though I'm sure it's not what he was going to tell me, he grips the door and says, "Let's go get you some chicken."

Chapter Twenty-Two

CALEB

 $T_{\text{HERE'S A THICKNESS}}$  in the air between us as Raine and I sit in the caltruck and eat the food I bought us in the drive-through. Our view free parking lot is nothing like at Alden Field, but I know she's more combere, surrounded by other people getting a late dinner.

"You're moving your hand a little better," I note, looking at the ir question. "How's it feeling?"

She lifts it, moving her fingers without flinching. "I took some earlier. It stings a little sometimes, but it's fine otherwise."

I nod, staring at the burger on my lap.

Raine picks up a chicken nugget and offers it to me. "They pusweet chili sauce in here." She digs out the sauce container and pass over too, arching her brows when I don't accept either.

"You eat them," I tell her.

Her lips twitch. "You love this sauce."

I love you more is my first thought. I don't bother speaking tha though, because it wouldn't get me very far. "You're the one who them. Go ahead and eat up. You look like you've lost weight."

She looks good, but it doesn't stop me from being hyperaware t face looks a little narrower than normal.

We go back to eating in silence, save for the food wrapper cu under my double cheeseburger whenever I pick it up and set it down.

There's something to be said about people who can sit comfort silence. Mom used to tell me that's how you know somebody is the or don't have to do anything to feel comfortable around them. You simp in the same atmosphere.

"What do you see for your future?" I ask, looking over and watch stop midway through taking a sip of her fountain drink.

She slowly lowers her drink. "Caleb..."

"Excluding me," I reiterate. She's not going to tell me the reascalled it off without a little pushing. "Who is Raine five years from no years? What was your plan when you ended it with us? You had to have one. You always do."

My ex blinks at my boldness, then whispers, "I don't know." Heans back against the headrest. "I'm not sure who I'll even be tomo this point. That's a lot to ask of somebody."

Another cop-out. Unlike her, I know my answer. "I see myself ru om the successful hardware store, one Dad would be proud of. I've already fortable making plans to build a website that will help people be able to find an things easier. They can pick it up once it's in. There's going competitive prices against the chain stores that they'd have to travel to makes Anders that much more accessible to the community." Ignor Motrin food, I keep going. "I want to buy that plot of land near my parents and build something on it. Nothing big or showy, just a small hou plenty of land to settle on. Create a garden, like the one Mom has ou and maybe do an in-ground pool like Dad used to consider putting space to call my own, with people to call my own. A home. Hat That's what I want for my future."

I see her visibly swallow, as if that's somehow too much for handle.

"But," I add, leaning back and picking at the fries barely touched be wanted us, "I would have settled for anything that would include you in it, that meant you focusing on your career first and us later. If that were hat her reason you ended our relationship, I would have understood. You didn't be lie. You didn't have to make it seem like there was someone else containing options you wanted to explore first."

A tiny breath escapes her, and I'm not sure she'll answer me.

Setting her drink down in the cupholder between us, she shifts he ably in ne. "How many people have you been with besides me?"

ly exist The question is straight out of left field. "Where did that come from "Just..." She wets her lips. "How many?"

For fuck's sake. "I'm not sure I'm in the mood to discuss this, esp since you didn't answer my question."

"I'm trying to."

Confusion has my brow furrowing.

son she Raine looks down at her lap. "Even in high school, you seemed w? Tenabout your life. What you would do and where you would end up. Yo ave hadlet anything get in the way of the image you built in your head. A always, always included me." She takes a deep breath and lifts her headupward until her wary, dark eyes are meeting my own. "I never und rrow atthat. I knew what I wanted to go to school for and hoped I'd find practice to work at before opening my own. But anything coul nning ahappened. And there were some things that definitely made me wc startedthat'd happen. External factors."

d order External factors. "I'm not following."

to be "You had football scholarships and girls always after you who, whichhave given you the world no matter what it was, and I never understo ing myyou didn't go after that life," she admits, fiddling with the last nugge 'housebox. "I'm not like any of them. I used to think that was my parents se withinto my head about why it wasn't smart to settle down or be in a it back, relationship so young, but that's not it at all."

g in. A I know her parents used to get in her head, but she never seemed piness.bought into anything they said. It didn't stop her from dating me or si around. That was how I knew she loved me. Because even though sh her tothem too, she was willing to risk their consequences.

That meant something.

etween "Your parents fought all the time because they tried making sor even ifwork between them that wasn't going to. They weren't happy i the realrelationship." I lock eyes with her, vulnerability seeping through m i't have "But we were. Weren't we?"

or other Pain instantly lances through her facial features, her glass saddening as she fidgets with the seat buckle next to her. "Caleb, it was because I was miserable with you. I thought you knew that by now."

er body "Then why?" I keep asking myself that question, but I've never balls to question her answer until now. What's the worst that could hap n?" pressing her if I already lost her once? "You haven't actually explore options, and I know the truth has to be more than just being scoecially repeating your parents' mistakes. You're smarter than that."

She fidgets in her seat. "It isn't about being smarter. Kids are impa a million different ways by their parents. You've always been lucky vones you have. Your mom and dad are amazing people who have nev so sureafraid to show their love for you or each other. That's never been my u neverIt's complicated."

nd that Something bubbles up under my skin that itches to come out. "Yo er gazewhat's complicated? My father living most of his life being physically erstoodnever smoking, barely drinking, and eating fairly healthy ninety per a goodthe time and still winding up with a type of cancer that can't be cured. d havethat's far from me being lucky, Raine. Complicated is trying to und onder if the unknown when we'll never really understand it. This"—my finge between us—"is not complicated. We are not complicated."

"I—"

would "Turning down my proposal was one thing. We could have od whysomething out that didn't require you actually breaking up wi t in her Complicated is trying to figure out how we ended up here after seve gettingtogether. Almost a decade, Raine. I wanted to marry you. We'd talke seriousthat life together like you were actually going to be in it."

When her jaw starts quivering, I know I'm pushing it. "That life like sheso far away, Caleb. I knew you were up to something at graduationeakingjust... I couldn't."

e loved Swallowing, I lower my hands and tuck them into the pockets jeans. "I've been going through everything trying to figure out what t happened to us. I thought I missed a sign. Maybe there was someth nethingthat I was ignoring. But we were happy. So why? Why give it all up n theirshit has been gnawing on me for months now even though I've been to sy skin.push past it. To move on like I thought you wanted to do. But when y you hadn't been with anybody, I was second-guessing the reason you eyesme even more. I still want to be in your life. I want to be your friend is neverpartner. Your teammate. Hell, I want to be more. But I'm struggling to out if that's going to get me even more hurt unless I know the truth."

had the There were too many nights before things with Dad got really bad open byspent hours replaying every damn memory we shared, wondering whed otherwrong. I couldn't pinpoint anything that gave me relief. No closuared of answers. At my worst, I broke down in front of my mother and asked saw anything that I didn't—suspected something I never did. Not enacted incould give me anything to make the grief go away.

vith the All she did was wipe at my tears and tell me I needed to take thin er beenday at a time.

family. So I did.

I used my friends to deal.

u know I used Emma.

ractive, Then shit with Dad went downhill fast, and it distracted me frecent offailed relationship in the worst way possible. I'd rather be miseral I'd saymeant keeping Dad alive. What the hell does my happiness merstandcomparison to his health?

er darts There's a moment of stretched silence before I realize Raine is giv time to make sure I'm done before she finally speaks up. "I really an Caleb. So sorry about your dad, about...everything. There's nothing I figuredto make up for what I did at graduation."

th me. "You could tell me the truth."

n years Her eyes close for a moment. "I told you the truth the day after you discontinuous discontin seemed "If that's the truth," I tell her, wrapping up what's left of my n and Iknowing I've got zero appetite for it, "then I'd hate to hear what your sounds like."

of my Her eyes widen. I can feel her gaze follow me as I toss the leftov he fuckback into the bag and stare out my window.

ing off We don't talk for a long time, and neither of us makes a move or so p? That It isn't until we get to the stop sign at the end of the school's draying tothat I notice the shift in her body. Her fists are clenched together so ou saidthey're white. As soon as they release, she turns to me and says, "It but gavealways been you. I lost my virginity to somebody else and lied will. Yourdecided to take that step together."

o figure Everything inside me shatters at her cool tone.

Hope and all.

where I It hasn't always been you.

at I did

ıre. No

d if she ven she ngs one

So I did.

I used my friends to deal.

I used Emma.

Then shit with Dad went downhill fast, and it distracted me from my failed relationship in the worst way possible. I'd rather be miserable if it meant keeping Dad alive. What the hell does my happiness mean in comparison to his health?

There's a moment of stretched silence before I realize Raine is giving me time to make sure I'm done before she finally speaks up. "I really am sorry, Caleb. So sorry about your dad, about...everything. There's nothing I can do to make up for what I did at graduation."

"You could tell me the truth."

Her eyes close for a moment. "I told you the truth the day after you asked me to marry you. I said I was scared and confused and worried that there was more out there."

"If that's the truth," I tell her, wrapping up what's left of my burger, knowing I've got zero appetite for it, "then I'd hate to hear what your bullshit sounds like."

Her eyes widen. I can feel her gaze follow me as I toss the leftover food back into the bag and stare out my window.

We don't talk for a long time, and neither of us makes a move or sound.

It isn't until we get to the stop sign at the end of the school's driveway that I notice the shift in her body. Her fists are clenched together so tightly they're white. As soon as they release, she turns to me and says, "It hasn't always been you. I lost my virginity to somebody else and lied when we decided to take that step together."

Everything inside me shatters at her cool tone.

Hope and all.

It hasn't always been you.

Chapter Twenty-Three

CALEB

 $T_{\text{HE NEXT DAY}}$ , I go through one of the drawers in my bedroom and I the velvet ring box I've stored since graduation.

Maybe a part of me, deep down, thought I'd get a second chan-Raine.

Because it's always been her.

I knew it from the beginning, even when everyone else said it wou off. "It's the honeymoon phase," they would tell me.

There was never a point when I believed it'd stop feeling like sherperson. I could never explain to people the reason why. I just knew, a feeling was one that's had a death grip on me for the better part of the years.

We had our tough moments like any couple, but nothing that eve us. Not in ways that I didn't think we could recover from. I can't h wonder how true that is though.

Looking back, I see that the rose-colored glasses I wore were disc the flags I should have seen waving. Like the first time we'd had s mom convinced Dad to close the store and take a trip for their anniv leaving me at home alone for the weekend.

I'd asked Raine to stay the night, hoping she knew what the sixtee old version of me was really asking for. It made sense for us to take the step together, to seal the love I knew we had for each other.

"Do you want to?" I ask, breaking the kiss she'd initiated childhood bed.

She blinks up at me, a wariness to her eyes I can only assume is fee When she doesn't say anything, I start to move away from h backtrack. "We don't have to. We can wait."

I see her swallow and wonder what's going through her mind. She and touches my hand, not saying a word.

So I say, "I don't want to hurt you, but I want to share this with you never..." She doesn't need me to tell her that. We're equals here. She Wetting her lips, she weaves our fingers together and squeezes o know you won't hurt me."

She never said it was her first time.

Never said it wasn't.

She let me take her clothes off and kiss her and touch her like we bull out before. But when it came to the actual act, I'd felt how she locked un her breathing changed. I should have known it was more than nerves locked with I knew her better than that.

I wanted to tell her I loved her that night, but I didn't. Something I back. Uncertainty. Maybe that was another sign hinting at our den ld wear along.

As much as I hate to accept it, I asked for the truth that she' was my holding back all this time, and she gave it to me.

was my ind that what better closure is there than finding out the woman I've lo last ten years cheated on me? Lied? It hasn't always been you. Fuck me. I be were signs I ignored long before she told me she'd admitted what her broke were when I asked.

She didn't wonder if there were other people out there for her. She from experience.

oloring With the ring in hand, I go to a local jeweler and set the box ex. My

The man behind the glass counter display takes it and inspects inside, offering me a sad smile. "You probably won't get back when-year-paid," he says honestly, plucking out the ring and studying it closer.

The truth is I don't care. "I just want it gone."

I don't think twice about the number he gives me. I simply accept on my the money, and walk out with what little is left of my dignity intact.

ır. ıer and sits up

So I say, "I don't want to hurt you, but I want to share this with you. I've never..." She doesn't need me to tell her that. We're equals here. She gets it.

Wetting her lips, she weaves our fingers together and squeezes once. "I know you won't hurt me."

She never said it was her first time.

Never said it wasn't.

She let me take her clothes off and kiss her and touch her like we'd done before. But when it came to the actual act, I'd felt how she locked up. How her breathing changed. I should have known it was more than nerves because I knew her better than that.

I wanted to tell her I loved her that night, but I didn't. Something held me back. Uncertainty. Maybe that was another sign hinting at our demise all along.

As much as I hate to accept it, I asked for the truth that she'd been holding back all this time, and she gave it to me.

What better closure is there than finding out the woman I've loved for years cheated on me? Lied? It hasn't always been you. Fuck me. I bet there were signs I ignored long before she told me she'd admitted what her worries were when I asked.

She didn't wonder if there were other people out there for her. She knew from experience.

With the ring in hand, I go to a local jeweler and set the box on the counter. "How much to buy that from me?"

The man behind the glass counter display takes it and inspects what's inside, offering me a sad smile. "You probably won't get back what you paid," he says honestly, plucking out the ring and studying it closer.

The truth is I don't care. "I just want it gone."

I don't think twice about the number he gives me. I simply accept it, take the money, and walk out with what little is left of my dignity intact.

Chapter Twenty-Four

RAINE

 $F_{\text{RESH}}$  snow crunches under my boots as I follow the little pawprints of me that zigzag in every direction whenever something catches Sig eye.

"He's walking better on the leash," Mom says, raising the coffee lips. Things were tense for a while at home, especially because she c stick around more often after I called her out on it.

The first couple of days following our fight, we kept to ourselve the times we'd bump into each other whenever I'd bring Sigmund potty training and walks. Then one night, when I was watching my late-night talk show in the living room, she sat down beside me, p blanket over both of our laps, and said, "I just want you to be happy."

It wasn't an apology, but I knew it was as close as I'd get to one. Sthough I wasn't sure I entirely believed it, I accepted the olive branch, went about our lives. She never asked about that night with Caleb never gave her any information.

What was the point?

I told him what he wanted to hear.

Some truth.

Not the truth, but a part of it.

The part that would cut whatever tie he had with me so he fantasizing about our future. It kills me to know I'd snipped the in string still connecting us, but it had to be done. If he hates me, he can on to me or whatever version of us he's building up in his head.

It's safer this way.

And maybe someday I'll believe what I told him—that there's so else out there for me. Not anybody like him, who could make me hal way he did. But somebody close.

Hopefully.

The leash tugging me forward and nearly making me slip is what p out of my head and back to reality. "Yeah, he's training faster expected."

"Which is good because I don't know how much more pee I'm wi clean up," Mom remarks, eyeing the gray ball of energy that's sniffing sign and cocking his leg. "I thought I was done with that when you and I got you potty-trained."

in front At least she hasn't brought up the shoe the dog chewed up. I'm n mund's sure when he had time to sneak into her room to get it, but by the realized what his sharp little teeth were biting into, it was too late to sa to her was her favorite pair of loafers, and I heard about it for days.

"So..." I pop my lips and bury my free hand in the pocket of m "What are we doing for Thanksgiving? I haven't talked to Dad in while about it because he's busy closing on that big estate he was v out for "Was," and "I was a limit to be a li favorite first Thanksgiving since they separated. I haven't wanted to bring it up isn't like we can avoid the topic forever.

We're days away, and I've been wondering what our plans are.

"When isn't that man busy?" is her first reply, sighing as she stare at her four-legged grandchild. She doesn't admit to sneaking out and him or give away anything about her late-night adventures. And may better that I am in the dark. There's only so much I want to know ab mother. "I don't know, Raine. Neither one of us can cook, and we'v had a big to-do for this holiday anyway."

She wants to skip it? Disappointment settles into my stomach. "I' we could come up with something if we looked up some recipes online It's a weak suggestion, one I already know she'll turn down, so wasn't surprised when she shakes her head. "Honey, let's be honest. You and rook to save our lives, and starting to learn by making a turkey probabit the best idea."

"It's never too late to learn new things. I still think we should sign meone a class together."

The look on her face says it all. "Raine, where is that logical side You can't expect every old dog to learn new tricks. Habits are habi reason. It takes years to break them."

Gripping the end of the leash tighter, I frown at the woman whose ulls megoes off in her pocket. Why won't she even give this a shot? Beside than Isandwiches, there's not much else we can put together ourselves.

When she pulls it out, she stares at whatever name is on the screlling tosighs. "I need to take this. I'll meet you back at the house. Watch yo a roadNot all the ice has melted yet."

r father I watch her walk away, thinking about what she said and hoping s right. Because if she is, that means it's going to take a lifetime to g ot evenCaleb.

time I ve it. It a little skeptical expression on my face. "You want me to do what?" vorking

My neighbor picks up the recipe and passes it to me. "It's an ea Annemarie was able to teach even me how to make it without screwing It's the Staring at the paper with pretty handwriting that must be his late v p, but it lower it and ask, "Why don't you just make it then?"

He grabs an apron that's hanging from the side of the refrigera s solely passes it to me. "It's almost Thanksgiving. You can't show up seeing something. That was my wife's one big rule. This pumpkin pie will ybe it's everybody off their feet, so you're going to make it from scratch."

I lied and told him my family was doing something so he would e never bad for me or offer a pity invite anywhere. But now that means bakir from scratch, and all the confidence I had yesterday when talking to m sure about this exact thing has vanished.

While there isn't a long list of steps on the paper, it stil I'm not intimidating. Setting it down on the counter, I notice the way he stare I can't sheet with a small frown on his face, and it makes me wonder if he's toly isn't about Annemarie.

"What are you doing for the holiday?"

His frown turns into the ghost of a smile. It makes him look friendlier when that scowl most people are used to isn't there. "I wof you? alone. I'm going to see my daughter and her family."

ts for a He's got kids? "You never mentioned a daughter before. How she?"

e phone

es basic Instead of answering right away, he slowly moves around the kitcl grabs a few bowls from the cupboard and then a couple of pans leen andabove the sink. Once they're in front of me, he lets out a small sigh. ur step.thirty-six. We don't talk often. Not nearly as much as I'd like anywhame is Jenna. Annemarie and I adopted her when she was only a lee isn'tWe couldn't have kids of our own no matter how hard we tried, get overdecided to look into the local agencies about fostering and adopting."

I stare at the man and wonder if this is fate's way of intervening life and telling me how dumb I am. I'd never given Caleb a character our potential reality because he'd always been so hell-thaving his own kids. He'd talk about whose hair and eyes they'd with a which of our mannerisms would rub off on them as they got older.

"Who wouldn't want a mini Raine?" he asks, hooking an arm aro sy one. waist and kissing my cheek. "I know we've got time, but I can't wait up." day."

vife's, I He would have been heartbroken from how long he'd have to v that day to come. Science can only do so much for people like me.

tor and Nostrils flaring at the growing anger, I clench and unclench my fi without focus back on Leon and his story.

He busies himself by organizing the ingredients laid out. "The fi adoptions fell through, and it nearly broke my beautiful wife's heart. n't feel her like that..." The breath he releases is full of painful nostalgia as he ig a pie his balding head. "I never wanted to experience that again. The object of the best days of my life. Because I got to see my Annemarie at I ll feels Peace. Maybe you don't have to get everything you want out of lies at the one hundred percent happy. Maybe you can still find peace in what hinking given. If it's with the right person.

Like it was for Leon and Annemarie.

I grab one of the measuring cups closest to me and toy with the k a lot handle. "Does Jenna live somewhere else and that's why you don't on't be often?"

When his jaw clenches, I realize it's probably a conversation he old is want to indulge me in. But before I can switch topics, he answers. "Je always struggled with her history. Her adoption was closed, which me didn't know anything about her biological parents. When she nen andseventeen, she wanted to know where she came from. We couldn't he nangingand it caused a bit of a...rift of sorts between us. As she got older, she "She'sother reasons to resent us. We always chalked it up to teenage rebellion ay. Hernever got better."

toddler. Sadness settles into my chest. "But you see each other still."

so we His hands pause from grabbing the graham crackers we're so turning into a crust. "When Jenna found out she was pregnant with I in mychild, a little boy, she reached out. She told her mother and me t ance tofinally understood that her past didn't matter."

pent on He loses me. "It didn't?"

get and Leon shakes his head. "No. She said family are the people who lo even when you're a little shit. Her words, not mine. It's true thoug *und my*can't choose who you're related to, but you can pick your family. for that finally having one of her own put a lot into perspective for her about kind of love life has to offer."

vait for One of my hands goes to my stomach. "If you don't mind me aski you and your wife ever get angry about not having your own kids?"

ists and My neighbor studies me, his eyes moving down to my stomach to force my hand to move away before he assumes the same thing Calirst few"We were sad," he admits. "But we still got a child, even if Annemaric Seeingcarry her. That doesn't make Jenna any less ours. We're the one shakessheltered her, fed her, and loved her. We're lucky to have had the opposite was weard privilege to raise such a wonderful woman. Not everybody goves was chance, even if they deserve it."

peace." Emotion that's nearly impossible to swallow crams into the back fe to bethroat.

you're "Word of advice," Leon says. "There's no such thing as a perfect Everybody fights. Everybody argues. Hell, sometimes people stop tal each other for a while. But family is always family at the end of the le glassmatter how your bond is formed. Flaws and all. That love will alw see herthere."

My fingers tighten at my sides before I dare picking my eyes up. "doesn'tfor that."

nna has I'm tempted to tell him about everything.

eans we Caleb and me.

turned Cody.

elp her, After Cody.

e found But as each second passes, I lose my courage to open up to somebout, but it Leon hums. "Enough stalling. Let's get this pie done so you can me with more questions before your next deadline. I have a story about time my wife caught me with my pants down doing my business on to mehow of the road in broad daylight. Woman is a saint for still loving my drawn first after that one."

hat she I laugh. "I'm looking forward to that story."

ve you

h. You

I think

ut what

ing, did efore I

leb did.

e didn't es who

ortunity

ets that of my family.

king to day, no

vays be

Thanks

After Cody.

But as each second passes, I lose my courage to open up to somebody.

Leon hums. "Enough stalling. Let's get this pie done so you can hound me with more questions before your next deadline. I have a story about that time my wife caught me with my pants down doing my business on the side of the road in broad daylight. Woman is a saint for still loving my drunk ass after that one."

I laugh. "I'm looking forward to that story."

Chapter Twenty-Five

CALEB

 $D_{\text{AD}}$ 's armchair is three feet to the right of where it normally sits, me hyper focused on the indentation marks left in the carpet. The livin looks completely different ever since hospice came in with all the nec they need to take care of Dad. Mom and one of the nighttime rearranged some of the furniture to make sure everyone could get easier. There are tubes and wires and machines scattered in the corn the room smells like medicine and antiseptic.

I can tell all the changes are hard on Mom, but she never says about how the house has stopped feeling normal since everything was around. She puts a smile on her face as though nothing is wrong.

Dad jerks away from the woman working on his arm. "That dammit," he barks at her.

The woman, Mary, doesn't seem fazed as she offers softly, "Sorry I'll try being more careful. Only a few more seconds, okay?"

I know he can't help his temper these days, but it doesn't make easier watching him lash out at people when it's so far from who he notis as a person. "Owen said that they caught the guys who broke i store," I tell him, referring to his friend who's a retired police officeouple of teenagers with nothing better to do, I guess. They tried b into the bank down the street a few days ago, where they ended up arrested."

Dad raises a brow at the news, distracting him from the nurse. "V hell would be dumb enough to rob a bank?"

"Attempting to rob a bank," I correct, sitting back on the couch grin when I catch the roll of his eyes. "Remember the Nardini kids? the oldest boy and one of his friends."

He thinks about it, one of his fingers scratching at the bald patches skull from where his hair has fallen out. "The ones who were always in trouble for smoking weed in the school bathroom?"

"They've moved on to heavier stuff from what Owen told me former police chief heard through the grapevine that the boys had he them when they were brought into custody. "Anyway, Jackson confessed to a string of robberies around Lindon, hoping it would ge better deal. Threw his friend right under the bus for it all."

Dad huffs. "Fucking idiots."

leaving I nod in agreement and listen to Mom fuss around in the kitchen. Find my hands down my jeans, I break the silence. "I know I already apole tessities"

"I don't want to hear it again," he cuts me off, eyeing me firmly. " around done is done, son. You can't go back and change it. If the cops have er, and we'll probably get some sort of payout, if not the actual items the back."

a word a word about locking up. The leak at my apartment just had me a little minded that day."

Dad shakes his head. "It's nothing you can't handle. You're tou Anders men are."

y, Rich. Having to look away so he doesn't see the doubt in my eyes, I rea and scratch Frank's head. The basset hound looks as tired as I feel.

Still, I tell Dad, "Yeah. You're right."

The football game playing on the screen takes up Dad's full at nto the leaving me sitting with their dog until I decide to go see if Mon cer. "A anything.

reaking As soon as I walk up to her, she winds an arm around my was being squeezes me. "Hi, sweetie. Everything okay?"

I nod. "Yeah. Dad is watching the game, so I figured I'd come to the you need help." I reach over and grab one of the rolls she's putting tray to heat up. "He's changing."

with a "The statement gives Mom pause, causing her shoulders to drop a fall was "They told us his personality would start to change." The smile she gi is forced. "But he's still there. I see it."

There's so much pain trapped behind her eyes, and I feel horrible leads on his a don't know how to help her.

Mom clears her throat and goes back to spreading out the dinne

"Tell me about Caleb. I feel like we never talk anymore."

e." The I pull apart the bread. "We talk almost every day, Mom."

roin on She gives me an exasperated look. "You tell me that the store is Nardinifine and that you're passing your classes. Nothing personal. Do you set him afriends? Do you see...other people?"

Her way of hedging for information makes me chuckle. "Subtle."

She cracks a grin. "I thought so. So are you? You went from talkin tubbingRaine and Emma to nothing about either of them. I know your fathe ogized, weren't exactly fans of what you were doing, but you can still talk to u it if you need to. What happened?"

What's Lips twitching, I pop another piece of the roll into my mouth. "I e them,up." I know Mom doesn't like that kind of language, so I lift my sley stolewhen she gives me a narrowed look and say, "I messed up. You guy right. I shouldn't have gotten involved with Emma. She's a good pers carefuldidn't deserve to be sucked into my issues."

absent- Sadness creeps onto Mom's face, and I hate it. Her husband—the her life—is dying, and she pities me for my love life. "It's true that you gh. Alland I wished you would have waited to start seeing somebody, but vous want you to be happy. Emma seemed to take away some of the struck overwere obviously going through."

"Who says I deserve that though?" I question. "You're going throu as much, if not more. Where is your relief from that?"

tention, All she replies is "You."

1 needs I blink, confusion twisting my face.

"Seeing you live your life is good enough for me, baby boy. Ever list andmake some mistakes along the way. Because that means..." Her voice as her gaze roams to the other room where Dad and his nurse are o see ifmeans that you're living."

on the Clearing my throat to avoid the swarm of emotions, I offer her sor that distracts her from the reality sitting in the living room. "I s raction.engagement ring. Didn't get a lot of money for it, but I'm thinking wes meputting it toward the store or maybe a different truck."

When I'm greeted by silence, I have to look up at her to see if sh becauseme. "Does that mean things between you and Raine are over?"

Haven't they been since graduation? To Raine, it was obvious er rolls.sooner than that. I just didn't realize. "Things weren't what I thoug were between us."

"What does that mean?"

s doing Do I tell her? Make her hate Raine as much as I want to? I don't l ee yourthat would make a difference one way or another.

"I put too many expectations on us," I settle on. "Too much pressu Mom stops what she's doing and turns to me, reaching out to br g aboutarm. "Sometimes things don't work out the way we want them to, Cal er and Ithat doesn't mean they don't work out how they're meant to."

Is about What does that mean though? Walking away from Raine is bad  $\epsilon$  but knowing I wasted seven years on her for the greater good is a lifuckedmuch for me to accept. I don't buy it.

houlder She cheated, I want to tell Mom.

*y*s were She lied all this time.

on who She's a horrible person.

If I said those things, I have no doubt Mom would be angry for n love ofthing is she's already angry because of Dad. Angry our lives hav our dadturned upside down. She doesn't deserve me piling one more thing we onlyshoulders.

ess you It's my burden to bear.

"Well, I won't ask if she's with her family today then" is all Mongh justgoing back to prepping the rest of lunch. "Hopefully the two of you value happy in life whether you're together or not. We both know it's too to be anything but."

Almost as if proving her point, Dad starts coughing from the other if youThen yelling at the nurse for whatever she was trying to do to help.

e cracks He's still in there, I remind myself.

. "That It's hard wondering for how much longer.

nething old the

g about Matt and DJ are waiting for me at our normal table in the back of the hall when I drag my ass over to them and drop my notebook down e heard exchange a brief look before turning their gaze on me as I sit with a gi of coffee.

ly over "Yes, I know I look like shit. No, there's nothing you can do a shit they Yes, Dad is the best he can be right now. No, I don't want to talk ab That should cover the bases of their questions that usually come whe know if see them.

Dad is taking a turn for the worse, Mom isn't handling it well, and re." a growing anger inside me that keeps nipping my consciousness a ush myfucking turn. I'm exhausted. Stressed. Pissed off. It's a deadly combeb. Butbecause I know I'm going to combust.

The question isn't if, it's when.

enough, DJ shrugs, eyes moving from my face to the coffee I finish. "W ttle tooyou say, my man."

Matt snickers as he pops a fry covered in the nasty mayo and ketcl he loves into his mouth. "Does that mean you don't want to hear ab dick that's on your face, or...?"

I straighten. "What the fuck are you talking about?" Grabbing my ne. TheI turn the camera app on and turn it forward-facing. Sure enough, the been faded ink-drawn dick on my cheek. "How long has that been there?"

on her DJ clears his throat and scratches his cheek before passing me a na scrub the drawing off. "You must not remember dozing off in clamorning and basically face planting onto your notebook."

m says, "Where DJ had drawn a dick," Matt adds, grinning when I glard vind upguy responsible. "The ink transfer is pretty solid. You can even see the short tohair follicles he drew on the ball—"

"Quit it. It's not fucking funny. I've been walking around campus r room.dick on my face for the past two hours," I grumble, tossing the banapkin at DJ's face. "You couldn't have told me that it was there be left the damn classroom earlier?"

The former wide receiver lifts his shoulders innocently. "I wasn't gazing lovingly into your eyes when we left. I didn't even know it was until now. Skylar was texting me about—" His eyes glimmer with m "Well, it doesn't matter. Point is, I would have said something if I kne dining Matt, on the other hand, says, "I wouldn't have. Didn't you not the dining makeup exam today with Kroger?"

Now that I think about it, the dude who gave me a chance to take I missed was giving me a weird look most of the time I sat there stribout it. with the material. It didn't exactly give me the boost of confidence I as I tried figuring out the gibberish about business analytics and fi out it."datasets on the page.

never I My phone lights up with a message, pulling my gaze downward part-time employee's name across the top of my screen.

there's

t every Ronny: Sorry man, Sadie is still sick oination

"Christ," I mumble.

I know it'd bite me in the ass if I gave him shit about taking care kid, but I don't know if I can handle a full shift when I already pr hatever Mom I'd be home with Dad while she runs errands.

"You good?" Matt asks, popping another fry in his mouth and w hup dip me send a quick reply to my employee.

Out the Labelta my head lines beging under the table as the pressure by

I shake my head, knee bouncing under the table as the pressure be my chest. "Store shit. Down an employee again. Mom wants me to ge phone, by three. Dad already gave her shit about being babysat considering here's a whole team of people constantly watching him, but it gives Mom p mind knowing I'm there."

My friends exchange another look before DJ says, "Can't you just this early for the day? People around here will understand. Most of then what's up with your dad anyway."

I don't want to tell them that business is down and has been for a he little I've wanted to try hiring another person to help me and Ronny ou Mom has been gone from the scene, but we can't exactly afford to right now because of the revenue we lost after the robbery. Buying a lled-up Raine has become a big regret since she admitted what she'd don fore we money could have gone to better things. Things for me, for Mom, store. We still haven't gotten a payout for the items stolen, and there exactly been as many sales thanks to the new chain store that went in not even as there miles away. I've already closed early a few times, and Dad has been ischief, ass about how important consistency is for any business if I want to w."

money. "Hours need to remain the same no matter what," he told me. turn me into an excuse not to stay open."

I know Dad comes from a good place when he says he's confider the test handle anything—that I'm strong. So why the fuck do I feel anything to uggling Matt grabs his plate. "I'm getting more fries. You want anything needed you have to go, dude?"

I wave him off as he goes for seconds. DJ leans back with he lat mycrossed and watches me a little too closely.

"Don't," I tell him, scrubbing at my eyes.

"I didn't say anything."

"You're thinking something."

"Which is scary," he confirms, smirking.

e of his We're quiet for a few seconds.

Then he says, "Once things are quieter for you, maybe we cougus' night. Talk about things. Get some shit off your chest. No catching Caleb, but you look like you're about to snap."

He's not wrong. "I can feel it," I tell him, leaning back and clench uilds in fists together to keep composure. I have an overwhelming urge to so thome the top of my lungs until there's nothing else left. Talking to Matt able's got helped before, so I know it can't hurt to admit as much to DJ. "Every eace of about to change. I know it, but I'll never be prepared for it."

"Bro, if there's something I can do to help at any point—"

"Don't you get it?" I laugh bitterly, swiping my fingers through n n know "Nobody can do anything. The doctors can't save Dad. The bank can me more money for the hardware store. And I couldn't save my while. "Elationship with Raine."

For once, DJ is quiet. There's no witty comeback or words of wisd do that dog for back of my neck, I let out a long sigh. "She fucking cheated on me, e. That couldn't do enough for Dad."

haven't I hate that DJ is blurry when I lift my eyes to meet his, but the twenty hiding the tears that form in my eyes as I watch him stare at me.

on my "She told you she cheated?"

"Not in those exact words," I murmur, using the heels of my pomake "Don't wipe my eyes. "I didn't need her to tell me the details. She said eve she needed to."

nt I can for words. A first for him.

"Christ," my friend murmurs, shaking his head in surprise. He's a but?

before Matt comes back over and drops down, tossing a fry in his "What'd I miss?"

DJ stares at me.

is arms I drop my eyes.

And Matt says, "Who died?"

Flinching, I shake my head at the innocent question. "Nobody yet.' I think DJ smacks Matt, but I'm not sure because I don't look at e them.

"Shit, sorry," Matt tells me. "I didn't think about how that sounded "Don't worry about it." I push my chair out and stand, downing ev ld do adrop of the coffee in the cup. "I need to get going if I'm to get eve offense, done that I need to."

Before I walk away, DJ says, "Hey. Remember what I said. If young myanything..."

ream at "I appreciate it. I'll let you know."

out shit As I'm leaving, Matt follows me out after telling DJ he'll be righthing is "Wait up, man."

"I can't talk about it right now," I tell him, knowing I'll break dow middle of campus. I'd like to hold on to what little pride I have left.

ny hair. He lifts his hands. "That's fine. I won't push you about what's goin't givejust want to tell you that I'm here too. We're family, man. We've alwedge fucking each other's backs. So whatever you need to get through, we'll be here

I glance over at him, feeling my jaw clench as I restrain from om. "You should head back in before DJ eats all your food."

ing the He presses his lips together and dips his chin once, knowing that man. Ihim loud and clear. Grabbing my shoulder, he squeezes it and backs doctorsthe dining hall. "Just some advice, brother. Don't hold anything backs more you stop yourself from feeling what you need to, the more you'r re's noto drown. Don't go down with the ship to save everybody else."

I force another nod and walk away before he sees just how muc words hit.

alms to

t a loss mouth.

I drop my eyes.

And Matt says, "Who died?"

Flinching, I shake my head at the innocent question. "Nobody yet."

I think DJ smacks Matt, but I'm not sure because I don't look at either of them.

"Shit, sorry," Matt tells me. "I didn't think about how that sounded."

"Don't worry about it." I push my chair out and stand, downing every last drop of the coffee in the cup. "I need to get going if I'm to get everything done that I need to."

Before I walk away, DJ says, "Hey. Remember what I said. If you need anything..."

"I appreciate it. I'll let you know."

As I'm leaving, Matt follows me out after telling DJ he'll be right back. "Wait up, man."

"I can't talk about it right now," I tell him, knowing I'll break down in the middle of campus. I'd like to hold on to what little pride I have left.

He lifts his hands. "That's fine. I won't push you about what's going on. I just want to tell you that I'm here too. We're family, man. We've always had each other's backs. So whatever you need to get through, we'll be here."

I glance over at him, feeling my jaw clench as I restrain from crying more. "You should head back in before DJ eats all your food."

He presses his lips together and dips his chin once, knowing that I hear him loud and clear. Grabbing my shoulder, he squeezes it and backs toward the dining hall. "Just some advice, brother. Don't hold anything back. The more you stop yourself from feeling what you need to, the more you're going to drown. Don't go down with the ship to save everybody else."

I force another nod and walk away before he sees just how much those words hit.

Chapter Twenty-Six

RAINE

 $I^{\prime}$ M SIPPING MY espresso when Leon steps up to the table I secured ar out the chair across from me. "Haven't seen bags that dark under some eyes since Jenna had colic," he notes, slowly sinking down into the s letting out a long breath.

Setting the tiny cup down onto the saucer, I peek up at him throi lashes. "I had trouble sleeping last night."

I was in so much pain when I curled into bed that not even Motri heating pad could help the cramps and pressure building in my back so bad I debated asking Mom to take me to the hospital. But then sh me a million questions that I didn't want to answer.

My neighbor grins. "Stay up late talking to someone?" His lips wider, and a chuckle rises at whatever skeptical face I must be making maybe not. Sounds like it could be complicated based on that look eye."

I've never been good at masking my emotions. "I wish I was talking to somebody," I admit, forcing a smile. It would beat the alter "But no."

"Anybody in particular?"

This time, I say nothing.

Leon doesn't let me get away from the conversation that easily have anything to do with the Anders boy?"

I toy with my coffee cup. "That obvious?"

"When you've been around as long as I have, you notice things. Y were attached at the hip, and now you're not. Doesn't take a rocket s to know you broke up."

Trying to seem unfazed, I grab my notebook and pen out of my l set them on the table. "Do you think you can be friends with somec love? Maybe not right away, but someday?"

"Don't friends love one another?" Leon shoots back, reaching Styrofoam cup of tea I bought for him.

He has a point, but it doesn't make me question what Caleb and I less. "My dad said it takes a long time to unlove somebody, and that me nervous that it'll be like this forever. Even though there's no chance being together anymore"—especially over how I severed ties wit which Leon doesn't need to know—"I can't help but feel hurt. The tho nd pullshim not being in my life..."

It's...tragic. More so than I want it to be.

ebody's "That's quite the conundrum indeed," he notes, leaning forwa eat and swiping his hand along his jaw. "Let me ask you this. Is there a rease ugh my you can't love him anymore?"

I give it some thought, but the only answer I come up with is "We n and a together."

"Neither are me and Annemarie," he counters pointedly. "Doesn' e'd ask There's are the and e'd ask There's are also are the and There's an obvious difference there that I blurt out before my fil stretch stop me. "But you can't be." I wince at the unfiltered truth. "Sorry. ng. "Or Tare Still around each other here. We go to the same Have some of the same friends. Things are complicated between in your more than ever. We have no real choice but to be around each other up late foreseeable future."

He shakes his head again. "There's that word again. Complicated. rnative. life is only as complicated as we make it. If you don't want to be don't. Can't say I disagree with your father though. Love is love. W always help who we fall for. It takes a long time, maybe even a lifet . "This learn how to stop doing that. And quite frankly, I don't think it's worth "Why not?"

He takes his time grabbing his cup and blowing on the steam bi from the little opened tab. "The kind of love you can't forget about is cientist."

Tou two kind. There's a saying out there that talks about how love isn't about is cientist. someone you can live with but someone you can't live without. So w pag and felt like being without the Anders boy?"

Depressing. ne you

My nostrils twitch as I hold my pen with a white-knuckle grip Lonely. I thought I'd spend this summer away from Lindon and cl for thehead and heart, as if it could be that easy. Maybe learn a new hobby never thought about before. But instead, I spent it being lectured to at are anyevils of men by my bitter aunt who went through a horrible breakup a makesof years ago and being surrounded by old memories and past mist ce of uswasn't healing there. I was haunted."

th him, Instead of asking me what ghosts and demons lingered, he asks, " ught ofone of the things you want to learn to do?"

The answer is easy. "Cook," I admit a little sheepishly. "I don' how to. My dad always dealt with the meals growing up. Since he moverd andit's been takeout and delivery because Mom doesn't know how to on whyeither. And when I was with Caleb, he'd take care of stuff like that. "good at it too."

e're not I used to joke that he should have gone to culinary school and beconext Gordon Ramsay—trade in footballs for five-star feasts.

't mean His answer was always the same. "It wouldn't be the same. Coc only fun when it's for people I care about."

Iter can The first time he ever told me that, I knew he was destined to be a I meanhusband and wonderful father. Somebody who would take care of his school.and do anything to support them.

us now "What?" Caleb asks, grinning up at me from where he che for thevegetables at the kitchen counter.

I smile from the stool across from him, propping my chin on the I thinkmy hand. "I just like seeing you all domesticated. You're feeding an friends, house full of football players and actually making them eat their vegging e can't He waggles his brows. "It's practice. There are some picky eate time, towho test me nine times out of ten, but they eventually eat what I put in it." them. Except for DJ sometimes. He came home plastered last were celebrating the game against the Hawks and would only eat dino nugg llowing That definitely sounds like DJ. "Well, he's a kid at heart, so that the realsense."

finding *My boyfriend shrugs, focusing back on the carrots he's cubing.*hat's itmany do you think you want? Kids, I mean?"

My stomach drops like it always does when kids are brought up. It over four years since the unexpected miscarriage. When I went left. "Sad.Planned Parenthood for a follow-up to go on birth control, they dieser mytests when I explained the painful periods I got. They noticed cysts y that Iovaries and told me it could be nothing.

oout the But it wasn't nothing. Those cysts kept coming back, and not e couplehormonal birth control pills they put me on did anything to help.

takes. I It became obvious that the cysts were caused by somethin eventually that diagnosis came with a lot of potential conseq. What's Endometriosis. I'd done enough research to guess what was wrong to saw the official word in my medical file, and I hated knowing there could be to the theorem. I found out I wasn't fertile at all because of the condition. Then I would have wasted one core memory on the wrong person.

red out, Then I would have wasted one core memory on the wrong person o cookthink that was what hit me hardest. Because if I experienced that I He waswith Caleb, I wouldn't feel so horrible. He would have been there, I it'd be okay, that we'd have time. But would he have been upset that ome thethe baby? Sad that we'd missed the opportunity? If he was with me found out I was sick, would he comfort me? Or would he tell me the oking isstill a chance?

Telling him anything would mean admitting I slept with someout doting and that's a burden I plan on keeping to myself for life. Or at least family can't keep it anymore. I'll cross that bridge when I get to it.

I don't like to think about the past that often, but it's in the forefrom ops themind when children come up in conversation. Because there could be when Caleb decides that the struggle isn't worth it in the long run. It's heel of I make that choice before he does.

1 entire "I don't know," I tell Caleb, sitting up. "My focus is on school es." now."

rs here His smile doesn't falter. "I get that. There's no rush." Leaning act front of counter, he brushes his lips against mine. "We're in this together. I'n k afterwhen you're ready. Maybe we'll have a little redhead. Mom says a rets." would look cute with our eye color."

t makes I tighten my hold around the pen in my hand and shake myself ou memory. I'd blame the pain I'm in for reminding me that my repro "Howsystem hates me, but it's beyond that.

It's the reason I'm here.

's been The truth.

back to Because Caleb is going to be a wonderful father someday with sor d somewho can give him the world.

on my And that isn't me.

"So what do you say?" Leon asks, drawing my attention back ven thehim.

Jaw clenching from the dark path my thoughts are taking me dowr g, and "About what?"

uences. My neighbor chuckles. "Learning how to cook. I can teach you a trefore Itwo. Annemarie house-trained me a long time ago, so I can fend for ould be just fine and pass down a few essentials to you."

I unclench my jaw and take a silent breath to release the tightness. *And I*lungs. He'd really want to do that? "I'd like that. A lot, actually."

noment The second he sees the look on my face, he shakes his head. "Do told mesappy on me. You look like you could use somebody on your side rig. *I'd lost*Can't pretend to be your father, but I can be your friend. I might be a when I bastard, but I'd be lying if I said I didn't enjoy these little outings."

was My smile eases some of the weight in my chest that keeps trying me under. "I'm glad I don't annoy you with my questions."

ne else, Leon huffs, taking a sip of his tea. "Oh, you do. But it gets me the until Iabout what life used to be when the missus was around, so I can't con Much."

it of my I laugh under my breath because he complains all the time. But I li *e a day*makes him real.

s better "Now, what would you like to discuss for your assignment today tell you about the time Annemarie stormed out of the house of rightaccidentally ran over her prized rose bushes. Took me two hours of se to find her, and instead of yelling, she kissed me and told me that I or ross thenew flowers."

n ready I crack a smile. "Did you get her some?"

redhead His eyes lighten. "Every single year, I bring a bouquet of hom roses from the bushes I planted for her to her grave."

t of the Wow. In that moment, I know that that's the kind of love I want so ductiveThe forever kind no matter the circumstances, even though it won't Caleb.

0

nebody

I WAKE UP in the middle of the night covered in sweat and curled up over topillow pressed against my stomach. Groaning when I sit up, I wince stabbing pain in my lower abdomen and close my eyes to try br 1, I ask,through the wave of nausea that comes with it.

It's too much.

thing or "Mom?" I cry out, causing Sigmund's head to pop up from whe myselfsleeping at the foot of my bed. He lets out a little whine when I toss I over the side of the bed, attempting to stand despite the dizziness bluris in myvision.

Sigmund is on high alert when I stumble, catching myself on the won't getknocking off one of the frames that was hanging there, the glass bht now.when it hits the floor.

grumpy "Mom?" I call out again, looking down at the shattered picture of Caleb from prom that's lying on the floor.

to pull Why isn't she answering?

I glance at the time and realize it's the middle of the night. Not even hinking yet. Either Mom is sleeping, or she never came home.

mplain. The first tear falls as I shuffle down the hallway toward Mom's When I push the cracked door open and see the empty bed, I from ke it. Itnearly double over when the sharp feeling becomes tenfold.

I'm barely able to see past the tears by the time I make it back ?? I canroom and reach for my phone on the nightstand. I get as far as unlock after Iscreen and pulling up my contacts to call Mom when the dizziness retuarching Except this time I don't catch myself.

wed her Fingers grazing the screen, I hit the floor.

I have a strange dream, one where the pain almost feels normal hear dream Caleb pick me up and tell me it's going to be okay.

egrown And because it's not real, I let myself believe it. I sink into his ar soak up the warmth he gives me and listen to the soft-spoken pi meday.whispered against the top of my head.

be with "It'll be okay, baby," he tells me.

There's air on my face. Cold but welcoming on my clammy skin. "I've got you."

pillow pressed against my stomach. Groaning when I sit up, I wince at the stabbing pain in my lower abdomen and close my eyes to try breathing through the wave of nausea that comes with it.

It's too much.

"Mom?" I cry out, causing Sigmund's head to pop up from where he's sleeping at the foot of my bed. He lets out a little whine when I toss my legs over the side of the bed, attempting to stand despite the dizziness blurring my vision.

Sigmund is on high alert when I stumble, catching myself on the wall and knocking off one of the frames that was hanging there, the glass breaking when it hits the floor.

"Mom?" I call out again, looking down at the shattered picture of me and Caleb from prom that's lying on the floor.

Why isn't she answering?

I glance at the time and realize it's the middle of the night. Not even three yet. Either Mom is sleeping, or she never came home.

The first tear falls as I shuffle down the hallway toward Mom's room. When I push the cracked door open and see the empty bed, I frown and nearly double over when the sharp feeling becomes tenfold.

I'm barely able to see past the tears by the time I make it back to my room and reach for my phone on the nightstand. I get as far as unlocking the screen and pulling up my contacts to call Mom when the dizziness returns.

Except this time I don't catch myself.

Fingers grazing the screen, I hit the floor.

I have a strange dream, one where the pain almost feels normal when I hear dream Caleb pick me up and tell me it's going to be okay.

And because it's not real, I let myself believe it. I sink into his arms and soak up the warmth he gives me and listen to the soft-spoken promises whispered against the top of my head.

"It'll be okay, baby," he tells me.

There's air on my face. Cold but welcoming on my clammy skin.

"I've got you."

Chapter Twenty-Seven

CALEB

I hate the smell of antiseptic and medicine, the softhe equipment and families talking, and feeling suffocated by the patients and staff lingering. If I never have to be at this damn hospita it'll be too soon.

When I woke up to Raine calling, I debated ignoring it. But my § me to pick up because she never called this early. Not even when w dating.

Now I'm here, standing outside her curtained-off room in the emeroom.

Again.

Do I want to be here? No. Did it nearly break me when I saw R the floor of her bedroom, bleeding? There were no words to describe t panic I felt thinking she was gone. The moment I sank down beside he no idea what I'd find.

The thought of losing her physically destroyed me, regardless of w did in the past. I'm not sure how to feel about that. Because I want more than to cut ties with the girl sprawled on the hospital bed un heated blanket the nurse gave her.

I want it to be over.

I want to forget her.

To move on.

But one look at her pale face, and that stupid fucking invisible strattached us at fifteen was back, wrapping us together all over again would it end?

"Caleb?"

Head snapping up, I straighten when I see Emma's pinched brc course she'd be working an overnight. We haven't spoken since I praine's dog. I told her I was sorry, she told me she knew, and that was didn't accept my apology, and I didn't blame her.

"Is your dad okay?" she asks, genuine concern all over her face. she cares about him because they spent a lot of time together. Dad struck up conversations with her whenever she came to check on h sneak him food or snacks so he wouldn't have to eat the garbage 1 hospital served.

She didn't do it for me or because we were seeing each other. unds of because she was a good person. Innocent. Loyal.

I glance back at Raine to see her still resting her eyes while the  $\Gamma$ e other, her fluids. The doctor hasn't been in to see her yet, but a few nurse l again, come and gone to make sure she's comfortable while she waits.

Walking over to Emma, I say, "I'm not here with him. He's at hom gut told Those haunting gray eyes move to the room behind me before nod 7e were understanding. "Is she okay?"

I lift a shoulder. "I'm not sure, but I'm sure she will be."

ergency Emma shifts on her feet. "Good."

We're silently standing and staring at each other while peopl aine on around us.

"How are y—"

he utter "Were you with her?" she asks at the same time as I start my quest r, I had My head shakes. "No. I was sleeping." Another pause. "Alone."

I don't know if it's relief or something else that floods her face. <sup>7</sup>hat she nothing says, "But she called you and you came."

All I can do is nod. "Yes." der the Once again, those eyes move away from me. This time in a d direction than Raine's room. "I'm glad she has you."

Those words sink in, weighing me down. I could tell her it isn't li but isn't it? It's obvious I'm still there for Raine even if she may not ing that it. So I choose not to say anything at all. . When Emma squeezes my arm and lets go, backing toward the nurse's "Take care of yourself, Caleb."

I know that's goodbye, so I return the sentiment and walk ba ws. Of paid for Raine's room to find her awake.

All the redhead lying there pricked by needles says is "She's nice." it. She There's no way I'm talking about Emma given how our conve about her last time ended. "How are you feeling?"

I know Her eyes drop to her lap. "A little better since they gave me pain alwaysShe rubs her arm and fidgets with the heart rate monitor attached im andfinger. "I called my mom. Or...I meant to."

that the But she didn't. She called me. Whether subconsciously or on a "She wasn't home."

It was Raine shakes her head. "She's out a lot."

We're quiet, save for the machine beeping between us.

V gives My ex breaks the silence. "I'm sorry you're here."

es have One of my brows arches. "I'm pretty sure that's supposed to be my this scenario."

ie." Her lips quiver at the corners. "Still..."

lding in More silence.

We sit like that for a few minutes, staring at the curtains as if we' willing the doctor to come. When another minute or two goes by and saves either of us from the awkwardness, I shift my body toward her.

e walk "Who was it?"

Her eyes shoot to me. "Who was—"

"Who did you sleep with?"

ion. I see her throat work with a nervous swallow. "You don't kno Caleb. Does his name really matter?"

But she It does to me.

I don't know why, but it does.

"His name is Cody," she tells me, taking me by surprise. I guess I i ifferentshe would bullshit me. Lie. Tell me it didn't matter. "I met him in Rad Of course. That's the only place she could have met somebody ke that,me knowing.

deserve Sitting back in the chair, I cross my arms on my chest and proce Cody. Guess she has a thing for C names.

"And no," she adds, causing me to look back over at her. "To station.your question from the other day in the hospital. It wasn't worth it. No was."

ck into I'm about to ask what she means when the doctor finally walks i Copelin? I'm Dr. Matthews. I'm on call tonight."

When Raine glances nervously at me, I don't know what she's g ersationsay. But it doesn't surprise me when she asks, "Can you go get me sor to drink from the vending machine?"

meds." She doesn't need any more fluids, but I stand anyway with a dip to herchin. Being a dick to her wouldn't get me anywhere right now, comply. "I'll come back in a bit."

ccident. Her smile is tight, but I know there's appreciation in her eyes wh meet mine.

The entire way out of the room, I can only think of the name she gavendering if she ever brought it up in the past without me realized significance.

<sup>7</sup> line in "Fuck," I groan, scrubbing my tired eyes.

I really need to stop asking questions that I don't want the answers

0

re both

nobody A few days later, I walk up to Anders Hardware to see DJ waiting fo unlock the front door, with two cups of coffee in his hands. "I had to talk Bea for these bad boys. She was cranky this morning becare something Elena did. Don't ask me what. I could barely hear a besides her grumbling under her breath. Something about a dented car w him, tried my famous smile that Skylar says gets me everything. Appare doesn't work on Bea."

Helping me turn on the lights, he sets one of the drinks down counter while I get the computer started. "I'm pretty sure Aiden is thought one who could get a reaction from her with a single smile."

cliff." DJ makes a face at the statement we both know to be true, even without bitter about it. "That's because Aiden never smiled. It made anyo special when they got one."

'ss this. "Jealous?" I ask, lips twitching into an amused smirk.

He lifts a shoulder. "Maybe a little. How could I not be when a stanswer that chooses a hottie like Ivy over a sexy beast like me?" one of it. I chalse my head at his paragraph and fire up the computer, talk

I shake my head at his nonsense and fire up the computer, tak coffee. "Don't push it, beast. What are you doing here anyway? It's sn. "Ms. Shouldn't you be sleeping in or spending time with your girlfriend?"

My friend rounds the counter as if he works here and pulls out the stool for himself. "I would if Skylar didn't decide to have a sleep nething Olive's dorm. Apparently Olive is in some type of boy crisis, which r of myMcDonald's and eighties chick flicks to resolve. When I called so I'llgoodnight, I heard Sixteen Candles in the background. They'd watched The Breakfast Club and Pretty in Pink."

I work around him, gathering a few of the things I need to do en they opening the store. "Is she okay?"

"Olive? Yeah. That girl is made of steel. O'Conner probal ave me, zing itssomething dumb." He's referring to the newest rookie on Pitts national hockey team, the Penguins. "He's a dude after all. He's bo fuck up. We all do."

Do we though? I'd like to think I did everything I could to make to. didn't screw things up, yet here I am.

Brushing it off, I think about his girlfriend's friend and former Li hockey star. I didn't even know O'Conner was still doing shit witl r me to since he graduated. I heard through the grapevine that they had some sweet-casual fling during his last year at Lindon that I assumed ended when l ause of off to play professionally. Playing for the big league changes people. 1 nything ESPN all the time getting coverage on what little ice time he gets.

"Is Sky liking her classes this semester?" . I even

My friend stares at me, amusement coating his face. "You're rea ently, it going to tell me, are you?"

I play dumb as I organize the receipts I have to log and file. "T on the he only what?"

"About you and Raine."

"What about her?" I ask, feigning innocence as I start organizing ta if he's ne feel the day that have been piling up around here.

Dry humor sparks his eyes when I look up at him. "You suck at dumb. I'm telling you, dude. You're addicted to that girl despite wha tud like put you through."

This time, I shoot him a look. "Quit it. I'm not talking about it w ing the right now. I don't want people butting into my business when I'm Sunday. processing it on my own."

"Does that mean there's something there to butt into that you he only telling me?"

I eye him. "Seriously?" over at

He holds up his palms. "It's a small town. People talk. Especiall equiredyou were seen carrying Raine into the hospital. Most exes don't go to saytheir way to do that for each other."

already It's not surprising that people were gossiping about us again nagging feeling in the pit of my stomach is back the more I think about beforewhich is annoying as hell given the circumstances. "Has Raine said at to Skylar about health issues?"

oly did The question has him slowly shaking his head, obviously concerne burgh's And even if she did, what makes you think I'd know anything about it ound to My eyes roll at his bullshit. "Let's be real, bro. You and Sky to other everything. If Raine said something to her, she'd tell you."

e sure I "Which means I'd be sworn to secrecy," he informs me.

Does that mean there's something going on that I don't know? Sor ndon Uelse that Raine hasn't told me again? Another half-truth that she thir 1 Olivesate my curiosity instead of feeding it? It's screwed up. "What ever ha sort ofto bro code? Just because Raine and I aren't on great terms doesn't he wentdon't care. That's the damn issue. I care way too much. So if you He's onsomething..."

DJ swipes his hand across his face. "I'm telling you, Caleb, I don' anything. They haven't even hung out recently, and last I knew, their ally notconversations were about school."

This time, I don't say anything.

'ell you "Are you really that worried?" he presses, voice softer than before.

Pressing my lips together, I shrug limply and lift my eyes back

"There's something going on. I feel it in my gut. But she won't tell n asks forit is, like fucking always, so I don't know what to think."

This girl used to bring me peace, but ever since we broke up, it playingnonstop questions because she won't be honest with me the way I tru at she'sher to be. I thought she could trust me with anything, but I was ob wrong.

ith you DJ watches me stare at the computer screen, letting me process barelythoughts swirling in my head.

I can tell he's trying to figure out what to say, but I don't let let're notanything. "If you don't mind, I've got stuff I really need to do that's generated require my focus today. I promised Mom I'd be back for lunch to he with a couple of chores around the house while Dad naps."

y when I had to sneak out of the apartment at nearly four this morning out of listening to a voicemail Mom left that broke my fucking heart. Hear sound so tired killed me, so I left without thinking about all the shit I has a sound so tired killed me, so I left without thinking about all the shit I has a sound so tired killed me, so I left without thinking about all the shit I has a sound so the sound so that I have a sound so the sound so that I have a sound so the sound so out her, I'm tired.

nything Worried.

On edge.

d. "No. It makes processing anything outside of Dad hard already, especifically when everyone wants to talk to me about what's going on in my life each I'm feeling too much, it's difficult to properly express what's happe my head. I try, because that's what I'd want from them. Effort.

The truth is I'm fucking angry. But that's not on DJ or Matt or a nethingwho simply wants to help make things better.

iks will "That's why I'm here, boss," my friend pipes in, grinning at me. ppened I stop what I'm doing and turn to face him fully with a sl mean Iexpression twisting my face. "What are you talking about?"

I know He sets his coffee down on the counter and pushes his chair in. your mom the other day and told her if there was anything I could do 't knowI would, since I knew you weren't going to accept the help. You ar r phoneboth majoring in the same thing, and I'm good with numbers. She me that you needed to get the books updated and handle the inventory because things with your personal life have kept you busy. I can do s that stuff."

to him. I swipe a hand down my face, wondering why Mom didn't ment ne whatof this to me this morning. "We can't pay you shit right now."

"Your mom already promised to make me a ton of those peppero 's beenthat I love so much. It's only a day here and there to take some of the l ly needyour back. I don't expect money." Before I can argue, he adds, "Ho viously could probably ask Raine to come in again if you really needed the he is the one who's telling everybody about you two at the hospital. E all thegirlfriend is one of the nurses who works in the emergency department

Jeff is one of the town boys who loves to gossip about everybound sayapparently, his girlfriend is no different. "Jeff needs to mind his own by going tofor once or I'm telling my mom not to keep sending them Christmas lelp herevery year."

DJ smirks. "That may shut him up."

ig after We could only hope. "All I want is some privacy while I figure n ing herout. With myself. With Dad. With..." Raine. Because ever since I can ave yether off at her parents' house from the ER, I knew there was more to that than she was letting on. Something big.

But because DJ knows this area almost as well as I do at this posnorts. "If privacy is what you want, then I hope for your sake you get Humming, I smack him on the back of the shoulder and head tow beciallyback room. Pulling my phone out of my pocket, I hit Mom's number. Whenmy cell up to my ear, waiting for her to answer. She always does, so ning ingoes to voicemail, I know she's purposefully ignoring me since she bring up my friend's sudden appearance here.

nybody Sighing, I deposit my phone back into my pocket and grab the clos of papers for my helper of the day. "Look, I feel bad that she got you but there's no point in convincing you to leave because I know you kepticalAnd I..." Taking a deep breath, I say, "I appreciate that you're here. R His grin turns into a soft smile. "Anytime, man. You know that. "I sawhave to do is ask."

to help, I poke the top paper. "These are receipts from the past two mod I are usually try getting them counted and filed at the end of the month, be notioned behind. Dad has a system that he explains in writing right here." sheets toward the aged Post-it taped onto the counter with faded hand some of instructions on it. "I swear, the second I don't do something the sam way, he instantly knows, whether he's here or not."

ion any "Spidey-senses," DJ remarks, wiggling his fingers theatrically.

I huff out a dry laugh. "Or he checks the video cameras." Whi ni rollsmade sure to erase certain footage from since Dad nonchalantly told load offWe haven't spoken of the incident since, and I think a big part of ell, youbecause his memory isn't what it used to be. In this case, that's probable. Jeffa bad thing. "Look, if you can get that done, I can do some things in the lis newbefore it picks up. Ronny is supposed to be here around two unless he again."

dy, and "What about asking—" usiness "No. Just...no."

cookies DJ sighs. "Look, I know you want to play hero, especially her h matter what you feel about her, but the A-Team is a thing. They together even when they pissed each other off. Probably. I never any stuffwatched that."

lropped I roll my eyes at him.

ne story "Plus, Raine never needed anybody to save her, so you can save the theatrics and use the energy to focus on yourself for a change."

oint, he The...? "Did you smoke something before you showed up? The Ait." I have no idea what you're trying to get at."

rard the "The Justice League" is his reply, as if that's supposed to bring h and puthome.

when it I'm quiet.

e didn't "Avengers?" he offers when I make no point to speak. "Get Anders. They're all teams that work together to get to a commo sest pileKicking ass, taking names. What's that one saying? Teamwork ma in here,dream work. That's what we are."

won't. "Are you comparing us to superheroes?"

eally." He takes another sip of his coffee before making a bitter face and All youat it. "Man, this shit is strong. But yes. Yes, I am. You could probal off the Captain America angle. Which would naturally make me Stark.

onths. I "I'm not following your logic."

ut I got DJ flattens a palm against his chest. "I come from money. I'll I pointfigure out how to fake being a genius though, because I failed a couple lwrittenscience classes my freshman and sophomore years of college. Me exactshould be Batman instead. Can we switch universes? You could be me

"I'm not going to be your anything, Batboy. If you're sticking aro ch I'veme a favor and don't be a pain in my ass. Including bringing Rain me to.however you'd include her in this little hero dynamic. Think you can that isthat for a few hours?"

ibly not The long, heavy breath he releases is dramatic as he picks up the backreceipt. "I'll do my best, boss. But I'm just saying she could be calls in Catwoman if you wanted her to be."

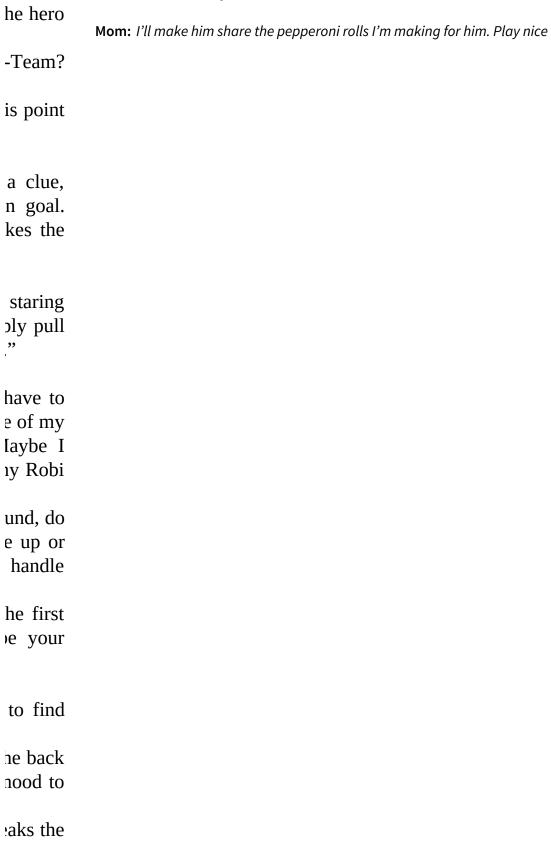

I glare.

"Okay, okay. If you need any entertainment, you know where me."

ero, no "All right. I'm out." I shake my head at his antics and walk into the workedroom. I don't want to feed into his sarcasm because I'm not in the nactually deal with it.

A few minutes later, I get a text message from my mother that bre #### tension buried in my chest and makes me chuckle.

tension buried in my chest and makes me chuckle.

Mom: I'll make him share the pepperoni rolls I'm making for him. Play nice

Chapter Twenty-Eight

RAINE

Skylar holds the plastic cup full of whipped cream to Sigmund's mouth, giggling at the noises he makes as he messily licks up the dess we picked up from Bea's. Usually, she doesn't like offering things I because it's a waste of toppings, but I know my loving pit bull has gr her more than she admits.

"So," Skylar says, peeking up at me through her lashes. "Hop project coming? Are you almost finished with the first draft?"

Leon has been sick for a few days, so he hasn't been able to mee our next interview. He offered to do it over the phone, but I could he tired he was. I dropped off a basket of goodies at his doorstep, in some hot chocolate I made from scratch from a recipe in Annemarie' and added a note telling him to feel better soon.

We may only see each other once a week, but I've gotten attached elderly man and his stories. I can only hope they continue long at project ends.

"I haven't really had a chance to work on it," I admit, flinching impending deadline in a matter of weeks. The end of semester is approaching. "I've gotten behind on work after taking some days off to rest."

Skylar's eyes turn sympathetic. "How are you feeling? I didn't pry, but..."

I didn't have to tell anyone I was in the hospital because half the knew before I was even out. I learned that after getting a few text Skylar, Olive, and DJ to see if I was all right. I gave them variations same response.

That I was fine.

Under the weather, I think I said.

"I'm better than I was. I'm on some medication for-" I stop realizing I haven't let anybody in on this new phase of life.

"We're going to do some scans," the doctor on call tells me after over my file. "Chances are if the endometriosis has become more adthen you'll need to talk to your gynecologist about medication and even surgical treatment options. We'll know more when we get the resi

There was a weight in my stomach as I was wheeled down to rabecause I had no idea what they'd find. All I knew was my worst fear greedy heard the mumblings of the technicians as they were bringing me backert that ike that And I did.

"I'd call your gyno first thing in the morning to sched appointment," she says with a smile that doesn't quite reach he "There's a substantial amount of scarring showing on your ovaring fallopian tubes, which I'm sure you know is common with advanced tup for over that with you when you can."

I knew what she was telling me without actually saying it. It was the shook, thing my gynecologist had warned me of the moment I was diagnost more scarring there is, the harder it'll be to get pregnant. Medicine only the the pain, maybe slows the progression. But it doesn't stop it.

When Caleb dropped me off from the hospital, I'd only mumbled "thank you" before Mom rushed out of the house. I was grateful startled interruption because I didn't know what else to say to the man quickly He didn't ask what the destarted I have a like whether the like whether the destarted I have a like whether the destarted I have a like whether the like whether t

He didn't ask what the doctor said, but I know he wanted to. It was eyes as he scoped me out, studied me from my frizzy bedhead down want to socked feet that he was too frazzled to grab shoes for.

Caleb worried for me.

Because he loves me.

ts from And I love him, which is why I didn't offer the explanation.

Hate me, Caleb, that voice in my head pleads, hoping he'll somehout.

He won't.

He never does.

myself, I jump when a hand taps my arm. "Raine? You okay?" Skylar ask: space out on her.

Refocusing, I offer her a smile. "Yeah, sorry. It's been a long night rwe gowere we talking about? The project. Right. I have some stuff from m vanced, that I'm using from our conversations about my dad and their marria maybethat she knows. It'll help counterbalance the things Leon has said at ults." wife. Show the full circle of what relationships can be like since the diology different."

when I Skylar stares at me, slowly nodding. I know I'm giving her the rur k to myon what we were talking about, but I need the out.

I reach down and pet Sigmund. "Good boy," I coo, taking the em from Skylar and setting it on our table outside Bea's.

ule an Eventually, she speaks up again. "Can I ask you something? It's por eyes. You don't have to answer or anything if you don't want to."

ies and Nerves prickle the back of my neck, but I nod anyway.

d endo. "Did you really cheat on Caleb?"

ctor go Her question is asked quietly, almost as if she's uncertain if she wants an answer. And I'd be lying if I said it surprised me to hear. It is samehow this works by now. Caleb probably told DJ about the boy I was well. The DJ told the girl in front of me. It's a natural progression in a relationsly helpshealthy when people tell each other everything.

Swallowing the lump in my throat, I wiggle on my seat and fuss cd a softdog who's grown so much since I got him. "It's complicated," I tell ld for herknowing how much I'm willing to divulge.

behind Will she go off on me like Caleb did? Tell me that I'm making complicated than I need to?

s in his "I don't believe it," she says. "Not that it really matters what I to myCheating just doesn't seem like something you'd do. But telling Cal you did would definitely be something you'd do to get him to let go."

Am I that predictable?

Not to Caleb apparently.

Then again, it's easier to let emotion get in the way of everythin ow hearSkylar is removed from it all. An outsider looking in without the rose-glasses.

"Skylar..." I sigh, gripping the leash in my hand a little tighter. W I do other than give her the same speech I gave Caleb? A partial s after Icombat all the white lies. "I was with somebody other than Caleb a logo. And it's something that I need to live with for the rest of my life."

t. What She frowns. "Raine, it's not like you murdered somebody. If yo y momwith a different guy, it's not the end of the world. I just thought y ige, notCaleb were always together."

out his I stare at her, wondering if I should come clean. Will my con y're allease? Will the weight on my chest lift, even if it's only a little bit?

In my short time to decide, I make my choice and nod once. "It charoundon who you ask. Caleb and I weren't even officially dating until we college because my parents didn't approve of me seeing anybody pty cupschool. We dated, but..." I lift a shoulder. "If you want to be technididn't really have the whole exclusivity talk. We were just...together." ersonal. Does that make what I did with Cody right? Probably not. Buyoung and dumb. I made a mistake simply because a boy was attention to me, and I soaked it in.

"I was sixteen when I met Cody during summer vacation. It was or ie trulyand I've never seen him again. But..." When I feel my throat con I knowdecide not to dive into the details. "Well, that's it. I lost my virginity t ith, andrandom boy and never spoke of it again. A lot happened after that, this hip. It'smake it so much harder. I didn't tell Caleb until now because I told my didn't need to know. Told myself it didn't matter."

over the I knew better.

her, not It mattered.

It did then.

it more It does now.

Clearing my throat, I sit straighter. "So yeah. I guess I sort of che I think.him. We'd been seeing each other, but not seriously. We hadn't leb thatanything. Hadn't shared rules or boundaries. I'm asking you not to to Sky. Can you keep this between us?"

When I eye her, I wonder what she's going to say. Will she tel soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the new of the information will be right by the time my expicks up the process colored. Skylar sits back in her chair. "Raine, I think you need to tell his didn't do anything wrong. Do you really think it's fair to put you hat canthrough all this? Especially Caleb when he's going through enough?" truth to the one thing I've learned about life without needing to stung timesychology of it is that it isn't fair. We're tested every single day choices both we and other people make. Maybe if that were different to the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? Will he tell Caleb? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave here? It's a game of telephone, the soon as we leave ou weredidn't take the easy route out, I would have been tempted to make ou andwork with Caleb.

That's not the path I chose though.

science So I answer honestly. "No, it's not." I press my lips together and tugging on Sigmund's leash to get him to stand. "But that's life som lependsRight?"

left for All Skylar does is frown.

in high "I'll talk to you later, okay? I should probably get working on this cal, webefore I get any more behind."

She nods. "Okay. Talk later."

t I was I don't know if I trust she'll keep quiet, but I don't have the en payingcare.

ne time, strict, I

The Next Few days are more of the same. I don't call my doctor becangs that afraid to. Mom sneaks out and sneaks back in from doing God knows yself he work on the end of semester assignments and try compiling all my no a cohesive paper, work my shifts at Bea's, and try keeping to myself.

Key word: try.

Mom is quiet at breakfast as I slide some of the scrambled eggs onto two separate plates and place some of the pancakes I made onto us to split. I burned the first three, but it's better than the entire ated on butchered the first time I attempted to make them a few weeks ago for defined When I turn to place her food in front of her, I frown when I ell him, pinched look on her face as she stares at some of my homework spacross the other half of the table.

1 DJ as "I never understood why you loved this stuff so much," she te out how shaking her head. "It was like overnight you decided you wanted hone? people with their problems."

m. You I sink into the chair I pulled out for myself. "I don't know if irselves overnight, but I like helping people. You know that."

I've always been that way—holding doors open for people, off idy the listening ear, being the mediator between Mom and Dad. I know they by the biggest reason I am where I am.

things It could be worse.

"Well, when did you know?" she asks, causing me to arch my b didn't expect her to wonder because she rarely asks about school bey 1 stand, basic "how was your day" in passing.

letimes. I never cared. It was easier not to get into the details when she was big part of everything. Picking up my fork, I move around some of n and say, "I guess it was when you and Dad started fighting more."

project They always bickered about something, no matter how small clothes or dishes, not having any groceries, the house being messy, the not being mowed. I used to think it was normal. Because it was to me.

ergy to I can't look Mom in the eyes when I add, "It was the day w supposed to go see that new musical in the city. I remember being because we hadn't been since Cats came out, and you guys said we consee the Statue of Liberty and Empire State Building. But then Dad got call about something that couldn't wait until we were back, and wouse I'm went."

what. I It was one of their worst fights. I'm not sure what all was said, bu tes into loud. It wasn't the first time I heard them argue, but it was the first time left and didn't come home until the next day. She was crying whe walked out the door, that much I knew for sure. She tried hiding her I make face and red eyes, but I was sitting on the other side of the bookshely one for faced the front door, so I saw everything.

batch I When Dad found me hours later in the same spot to tell me ding ready, he promised that she'd be back.

see the "She always comes back," he told me.

And I remember thinking to myself, but why? That question lector next five, which turned into hundreds of questions about why anybout the things they do. I wanted to help Mom and Dad, but I knew I was to help fix for their main problems.

"We weren't that bad," Mom tells me, rolling her eyes. "Don' it was melodramatic. You were never abused. You had a roof over your he food in your stomach. We rarely told you no. I'd hardly say you had ering a growing up because of us. There are far worse people you could have y're the up with as parents."

Typical. "You always do this," I exclaim in exasperation. "You co that I don't talk to you about things, but the moment I do, you accuse being dramatic. Just because you never beat me as a child doesn't mearows. Iin a stable, happy environment. You and Dad had a lot of problems, an ond theto be the witness to them all."

"I find it amusing that you don't think you're dramatic considering such amaking a big production right now."

ny eggs I blink, absorbing her tone. "Wow. Okay. I'm just trying to answ question, Mom. I'm sorry if you feel attacked—"

. Dirty "Attacked? You know what, Raine? I do feel attacked. Your father lawnhave done so much for you. We've always cheered you on and roc your success. And now you tell me that you're studying all this not re were because of him and me? No. We shielded you from so much growing exciteddon't pin this on us."

ould go I take a deep breath to calm my tone so this doesn't escalate more. a workyou, but that's not true. I saw it all. Heard it all. Even when you didn't e neverI was paying attention."

Is it so bad to be the reason I'm so motivated? I'm building a fult it wasmyself because of them. There isn't any blame, only gratefulness.

I don't get a chance to tell her how much she's influenced me beca ien shedecides to take this conversation one step further. "Before you cast y blotchyin such a good light, think about how close you were to making the vest that mistake I did. If you hadn't broken up with the Anders boy, then you have wound up exactly where I am. Miserable and divorced. Be grate ner wasnever got pregnant to add single mom to that list."

All I can do is stare in disbelief at how quickly this turned around.

She locks eyes with me. "You are more like us than you want to I to thealways so close to making choices that will ruin your life."

ly does It's hard to restrain myself as I move my chair back. "I'm so so sn't thehaving me was such a huge inconvenience to your life plans, Mom. I must suck to have settled with two people you didn't really want a t be soyears. Some people would feel like the luckiest people on the planet ead andwhat you did."

1 it bad Me included.

wound Tears prickle the backs of my eyes as I grab my plate and walk dump it into the garbage bin. Before I walk out of the room, I hear Momplain"The eggs were rubbery."

e me of I manage to hold in the tears long enough to get Sigmund and his n I was and leave the house to go anywhere but here.

```
nd I got
           It isn't until I'm down the street that I feel my phone buzz in n pocket.
you're Mom: I'm sorry
er your
           She never was good at saying that in person. Which is why I ch accept the apology, knowing it's the best I'll get.
ted for Me: It's okay
onsense
           It isn't. But it'll have to be.
ኒ up, so "I love realize ture for use she ourself
e same ı would ful you admit, rry that ruly. It ll these to have over to om say,
is leash
```

and leave the house to go anywhere but here.

It isn't until I'm down the street that I feel my phone buzz in my back pocket.

Mom: I'm sorry

She never was good at saying that in person. Which is why I choose to accept the apology, knowing it's the best I'll get.

Me: It's okay

It isn't. But it'll have to be.

Chapter Twenty-Nine

CALEB

Dad isn't eating. Barely sleeping. Not even talking much, we especially concerning. This is the same man who could be friend anylogs passed on the street. I watched him have conversations with anybody hacross—bag boys, door greeters, customers at the store, even the swoman down the street who hates everybody.

That man no longer exists.

I don't know the one who took his place.

Last week, he called me Jake.

We don't know who that is.

He didn't recognize Mom last night.

I heard her crying in her room.

The nurses say it's almost time.

Almost time. As if we're getting close to a big event. Like some fucked-up deadline.

"Cal!" I hear called out from behind me as I walk through campu zombie. I'm on no sleep and failed melatonin. I'm terrified that I won up if Mom calls me about Dad, so I choose exhaustion. It's not ideal remaining weeks of the term, but it is what it is.

I turn, noticing a skinny kid wearing a Lindon football jersey j toward me. He's one of the newbies on the team—a sophomore who training with us last spring to prep for the new season.

He stops a few feet away. "Hey. I don't know if you remember m played with you before you graduated. I'm—"

"Wells," I say for him. "I know."

His face lights up. "Shit. Awesome. A few of my buddies said bother you because of—" He abruptly cuts himself off. "Er, well, I s and wanted to see if you got the invite."

I blink. "What invite?"

"To coach."

To...? "I have no idea what you're talking about."

Wells, the delusional sophomore, nods enthusiastically. "A bunc were talking about it, and we all agreed you'd be a perfect addition to t staff they're trying to grow here. You know the game, the turf, and all plays. Plus you're familiar with the team. It'd be perfect. Better tl fuckwads they've got wandering around scratching their balls and acti hich is they know what they're doing. I don't think the new staff knows what pody he is happening half of the time."

"Look, Wells. It's nice I was brought up for consideration, but th our old a state of the job just fine." I don't bother pointing out that we're not exactly a  $\Gamma$ I school or anything. The staff that comes in is going to be subpar at be Hell, they can't be any worse than the people they let go, consider major lawsuits that could have been on the school's hands otherwise. Pearce, who'd been an exceptional coach who earned Lindon a lot of t over the years, didn't have the best moral compass. He was willing the other way when one of his players was accused of doing some shit to women at parties because he wanted to make sure he was kept sort of team. Who knows what else he let some of the guys get away with?

Wells's shoulders drop defeatedly. "I know you've got a lot going s like a maybe after..." He stops himself again. "I just mean when things di -" He winces, face turning red at the poor choice of words that defini 't wake for the me straight in the gut.

"Wells?"

"Yeah?"

jogging started

"Stop talking while you're ahead."

He presses his lips together, the color on his cheeks darkening be e, but I<sup>nods</sup>.

I glance at the time on my watch. It's old but the band is new. It's Dad's old watches that Mom kept in her jewelry box after he stopped v not to it. Mom gave me the band and told me to keep it the other day. I didn aw you because it felt wrong to take anything of his. It felt...final.

But having it on my wrist oddly makes me feel like I'm close to hil Backing up, I say, "I'll think about it, but don't hold your breath." Will I actually think about it? Probably not. I've had enough on m lately that's left me too preoccupied. I've been debating even staying school or if I should consider other options.

h of us Dad was insistent that I let go of some of my classes because he the newthink I'd need them to run the store, and I know he's not wrong. May the oldtime to really think about where I'm going with my life since shit is a han thechange.

ing like Wells nods, stuffing his hands in the pockets of his sweatpants. "Yethe hellit. But just so you know, they're willing to pay for staff members' n degrees while you're working for them as long as you get your degreat's the And I know you're studying for your MBA, so..." His shoulders lift. 'will doknow, man. It's just something to consider before you turn it down."

Division I look back to Wells. "Like I said, I'll think about it."

est.

ring the

Coach

rophies Mom is stress baking again. I can smell something sweet and fruity to look as I walk in the front door, and it gets stronger as I walk down the hal sketchy kitchen. I check in on Dad, who's sleeping in his chair, and twitch who ton the the color of his skin.

Closing my eyes, I collect myself and head into the kitchen, wher on, but is pulling a pie out of the oven. As she sets it down on the stovetop e down. He's turning yellow."

itely hit Mome tries to smile but it doesn't hold. "I know sweetie. The Mom tries to smile, but it doesn't hold. "I know, sweetie. The bloodwork and it's in his liver. We knew it would happen though."

My nostrils flare with anger, but I force myself to breathe throwwhy do bad things happen to good people?"

My mother is quiet for a long time, staring at Dad's favorite She's been doing that a lot, even though he never eats any of it. It made one of feel better. She gives it to the nursing staff or our neighbors and sence wearing home with me to give to the boys.

"I don't know, Caleb. I really don't."

Leaning against the counter, I prop my chin on my hand. "How holding up? No bullshitting me."

She eyes me, still hating me using bad language around her. I y mind

g at thethere's a little normalcy in our lives. "I'm not sure. It's always goin your father. I'm...processing, I suppose. For what comes next."

e didn't Next. A heaviness settles into my stomach. "What does come next? ybe it's The woman who's always had my back shakes her head. "I don bout toknow what I'm going to make for dinner. So I guess what comes that."

You got I reach over and grab two forks from the tray they're in, then pass naster's Mom. "Well, you already made pie. Nothing against dessert for dinner the here. Her sigh isn't defeated or approving. "It's hardly nutritious."

'I don't I stab into a piece of apple. "It's got fruit."

Mom's laugh sucks up some of the tension in the room. "You wrong. And it's not like your dad is going to eat any, so more for us. R She's trying, and I respect that.

"When you said it was always Dad," I say, staring at the steaming between us. "How did you know? Was there any doubt?"

Raine asked that once upon a time.

I have no doubt Mom knows why I'm asking when she pats my hen I see wouldn't say there was doubt, but that doesn't mean we didn't hat hardships."

e Mom "Really?"

She nods. "We wanted kids at different times. Debated somewhere else instead of settling here. We couldn't figure out the times did it all but had to trust it'd wind up exactly how it was meant to. O Things accepted that, we were okay."

All I can do is nod slowly.

ough it. Mom reaches over and knocks her knuckles against my skull "What is going through that thick head of yours, baby boy?"

dessert. The same thing that always is. "I just feel like I need to talk to kes her Maybe after finals so I can be clearheaded for them."

I don't miss the tiny smile that begins curling her lips. I'm afraiget her hopes up, but I can't stop it. "I think that's a good idea."

The fact that's all she says tells me nothing, and I don't know if I are you be grateful or upset for her lack of insight. She's trying to make me f out on my own like any loving mother would for her son.

At least "Caleb?" I hear called out in a raspy tone from the living room. I perk up at Dad's voice.

g to be "Let me know how it goes," Mom tells me, but I don't know if she with Raine or with Dad. Because they're both unstable relationships.

When I walk into the room where Dad is, he's propped up in he't eventrying to adjust a pillow behind his back.

next is "Here," I say, stepping over to help him get comfortable.

"I've got it. I said I've got it," he snaps, all but smacking my han one tofrom him.

I hold up my hands and back up. "Sorry. I was just trying to help." on the edge of the couch cushion closest to him, I brush off the hurt c to my rib cage. "What's up? Do you need anything?"

i're not Dad stares ahead, not seeming to focus on anything in particular light?" his eyes slowly move toward me. "Everything is going to be okay, son

I blink at the unexpected words. How could he say that? "I don't l dish inI can agree with that, Dad."

"You don't have a choice."

Jaw twitching, I clench my hands together and squeeze them. "Eve and. "Ihas a choice. Maybe mine is to be pissed off."

eve our He shakes his head. "That's no way to live your life. You have so years ahead of you. Don't waste them being angry."

Despite myself, tears prick the backs of my eyes. Hot, angry teamovingburn the ducts. I try blinking them away.

ning of "Christ," I grumble, swiping at my face. I never liked crying, espece wein front of him. If he can be strong, I need to be too. "Don't do this to can't..." My voice cracks.

He's slow, but he manages to reach over and touch my hand. I lightly.closer to him, I soak in the warmth of his palm. "I'm real proud of you you to know that. You've gone through hell and have come out of it. Raine.all I could ever ask of you."

Sniffing back tears, I suck in a deep breath and let it out. Dad is p d she'llme despite all the ways I've struggled these past few months, and that than enough. "I appreciate that more than you'll ever know. And..."

should I'm going to miss this, I say silently.

igure it He doesn't need me to tell him that.

He knows.

And the longer we sit there like that, simply holding on to each or dear life, I process his words.

No more anger. • means is chair d away Sitting linging before know if erybody o many ars that pecially o me. I Inching u. Need That's ther for roud of 's more

No more anger.

Chapter Thirty

RAINE

 $L_{\text{EON FINISHES}}$  reading the final draft of my paper that I printed 1 before putting it down and setting his glasses on top of it. "It's governous You sound like you know what you're talking about, so I'm sure you'l Hell of a lot smarter than I am, that's for damn sure."

I roll my eyes as I grip the cup of coffee he poured for me. "Trust I not that smart. I think it's a solid B, but we'll see. We get our final sometime next week."

It took me a few sleepless nights to finish writing this because procrastinating. Writing Leon's interview was easy, but delving into put down for Mom...

Leon's eyes roam downward. "Has your mother read this yet?" Th he's met by has him sighing. "Does she know you wrote her into thi you said, she didn't want to help."

I may have forged her signature on the initial proposal I subm Professor Wild. I was running out of time to find somebody, and s saying things about her divorce that contributed to a well-rounded prowould have been silly to pass it up. Plus I've done it plenty of times g up when she'd forget to sign things for school. I know her signature by "She hasn't read any of my homework since I was in elementary schoeven then, she hated doing it. It isn't as if she'll know."

He eyes me in disapproval. "Don't know if I condone that, but it life. How are the two of you doing?"

I told him about our argument and said we made up, but there tension in the house. If I don't censor topics, like Dad or Cale everything gets murky. I've learned it's better not to talk about it th with the repercussions of the fallout.

Maybe that's why I added our conversation to the paper, posing it between her and Dad to fit the paper's topic guidelines. Did I feel a bad when I was doing my final readthrough? A little. But I keep myself there are worse things I could have done.

Right?

"We're okay," I say, staring into my coffee and watching the billow from the top. "She's taking me for a procedure in a couple of It's minor, nothing to worry about."

That doesn't seem to relax his arched brows as he stares at me for  $him^{\mbox{\it feeling all right?"}}$ od, kid.

l ace it. gyno told me during our visit last week. Coffee can trigger endom flares. So can half the things I love eating, which I've tried cutting the ne, I'm despite Mom telling me I'm being overdramatic.

But Mom doesn't know the extent of my diagnosis because I've played it off like it's nothing. When I told her about the lapare I kept procedure I'm being put under for, her tune changed. After she gave I what I for keeping all my problems from her. Gone are the "it's just a per some chocolate and toughen up" pep talks she used to give me whene e flinch someone who seems to actually care.

I know she isn't happy with me keeping things under wraps ins itted to worry, the better it is to handle.

Putting my coffee down, I lean back in my chair and debate just piect. It Leon what I've been wanting to know since he said his wife struggled y heart.

ol. And most removed?

Out of anybody I could tell, wouldn't Leon be the safest because I Weighing my options, I make my decision and ask, "Is there a Annemarie couldn't have children? Was she sick? I only ask because I e's still with something that's probably going to ruin my chances of ever having by them I'm not telling you that for pity or anything. I just don't want to pry un an deal He frowns. "I'm sorry to hear that. We were never given a unfortunately. Once upon a time, we would have liked one. At least the had a reason for it. But no. It's a mystery to this day."

tiny bit Would it be better that way? Or am I the lucky one for a understanding why I am the way I am?

telling "If you don't mind me asking," Leon speaks up, "is that the reas and the Anders boy split up? Was he unhappy with that possibility?"

There's a fire in his eyes that I can tell is directed at Caleb, so I'r steamto extinguish it. "I never told him. I broke up with him because I love weeks.much to put a hold on his happiness. He wants kids so bad, Leon. He bring it up all the time, and it'd freak me out knowing there'd be a ". "Youcould resent me for not being able to. I mean, he loves me—loved maybe it wouldn't have been that bad. But...I didn't want to ta hat mychance." Saying it out loud sounds stupid now, but fear can make peopetriosislot of silly things. "I already know what I'm going to be told one day let him go now before we couldn't turn back in the future."

always My neighbor stares at me for a long time before shaking his head. oscopicback what I said. You're an idiot. Because that might be the dumber ne crapI've ever heard."

back ongut feeling at this point, and my gut is never wrong. I figured it was b iod, eat There's a brief moment when I'm silent as I stare at him.

ever I'd Leon breaks it with "But I suppose it's also one of the sweetest place is I've heard. You love him so much you'd give up your happiness That's something I can see Annemarie doing."

stead of But she didn't. "She stayed though."

Divorce was frowned on by the time we had our problems with claskingMaybe if we'd known sooner, she would have let me go too. Someo to haveloves you that much is willing to do anything, I suppose. No matter drastic."

ne's the I can't look him in the eyes.

"Do me a favor though," he says, pulling my hesitant gaze back reason"Don't settle for less than you deserve. Annemarie was my forever 'm sickwouldn't change a thing. Can't picture myself with anybody else. You g kids.to ask yourself the same thing about your boy."

justly." My boy.

reason, I swallow. "He's not mine anymore."

hen we All Leon does is hum, as if he doesn't buy it as much as I do. I switches gears. "Why haven't you brought that crazy-ass dog of yours it least awhile? Been thinking about getting a pet myself lately. Annemarie w cat, but I've always been a dog man."

son you And just like that, we move on.

Like I should do with Caleb.

n quick Should.

him too

used to day he

me—so DAD WAVES AT me from the table in the back corner when I walk into B ke that Diner. A few people turn my way with big smiles as I walk over to to ble do a who's standing with one of his arms out to hug me. "Hi, pumpkin."

He pulls my chair out for me and waits until I'm sitting before going the total to his seat. That's when I notice the milkshakes already on the table, the glasses of water.

"I take "I already ordered our usual," he admits, looking a little sheepish. st thing that's all right. Figured even though we're celebrating the end of tern still be getting the same thing."

My eyes go to the cherry still perched on the top of my milkshake things didn't take the cherry," I note stupidly, wiggling out of my jacket and for his it drape across the back of the chair.

Dad grins, tugging his milkshake closer to him. "Of course not. Y cherries."

y then. I blink at the statement. "I do." My brows pinch when that soaks it hildren. knew that this whole time?"

ne who His chin dips as he takes a sip of his drink. "I'm not always the er how picking up on things, but there are very few things that I don't notic you, Raine."

A ball of emotion swells inside my chest, tightening around my to him. "That's..." I'm not sure what to say. "Sweet. Thanks."

and I Dad laughs. "If something as small as realizing what food you like ou need you emotional, I've clearly failed as a father."

"Don't say that," I tell him, moving hair behind my ear.

A small smile curves upward on my father's face. "Look, I kn faults. I obviously wish I could have changed how certain things ha then he over time, but I can't. I can only try to make up for it. Which mean over in present when I can now. Supporting you however I can."

<sup>d a</sup> I'm not used to this side of Dad. "You don't need to make anything."

"I do," he says. "Your mother and I didn't agree on a lot, but v have always wanted you to be happy."

I grab the cherry from my milkshake and stare at the bright red c know that."

He slowly nods, almost as if he's trying to figure out what to say irdseye isn't like he's ever been a sappy person. Talking about feelings isn't he man So this is...weird. Nice, but weird.

The moment is broken only for a brief pause as the waitress com ag back with our food and a friendly smile.

next to Once she leaves, Dad reaches into the inner pocket of his jacket. " something I need to give you."

"I hope when he slides a check across the table, I nearly choke at the amount, we'd made out for. "I don't understand. What is this?"

"Money," he answers simply, grabbing his napkin and tucking it is "You collar of his button-down. "Your mother and I have been spending sor letting together"—I sit straighter and stare cautiously at him—"because we've working on selling the cabin in Virginia. It didn't take long to sell of ou like posting went live, and we just recently got the money. Your aunt agreed that the money was better spent on you after a couple months consider and forth. You can use this to pay your debt and do whatever else you with it. You should consider getting a new car so you're not consider at nickel-and-diming yourself on the one you have. Even Dale said the about needs to be put out of its misery, even with the work Caleb put into it.'

Caleb? "What are you talking about?"

Pheart. Dad's brow furrows "Caleb went over to Dale's and checked Worked a few hours on it with Dale's brother during the off hours less they were so backed up. He didn't tell you?"

Swallowing, I slowly shake my head. Why would he do that for didn't know." My focus goes back to the steep number, double-chec ow my I'm seeing where the comma is correctly. "I don't know what to say. ppened in a million years thought Tiffany would agree to selling the Radcliff s being We have so many memories there."

"Neither did we," he admits. "It turns out she's been wanting to up for closer to family, so your mother loaned her some of the money from to get her up here."

It's been a long time since my family has been this close together ve bothTiffany is moving to New York? I thought she hated it here."

Dad reaches for the ketchup bottle, opening it and putting some be olor. "Ifries. "I guess she hated being alone more," he reasons, carefully cap and setting it in front of me. "She wants to be closer to your mother. next. Itgood that they'll have each other. Your mother has been missing her." is forte. A sinking feeling settles into my stomach over the cabin being go like that. It was the one place I could go to when I needed an es overSomewhere to go in the summers when I needed time to think. Then a became the very place that suffocated me with poor choices that are b There'sgo of.

I guess having nowhere to run to isn't such a bad thing.

ount it's Picking up a fry, I study it and sigh. "This still seems like such deal that I can't wrap my head around. You and Mom don't o into theanything. If this is Mom's way of trying to make up for some of the ne timebetween us—" ve been "That's not it," Dad cuts in, shaking his head firmly. "This has eve nce theto do with the fact that you're her daughter—the one person she's ev Tiffanyloved."

of back- There isn't any sadness in his tone when he says that, but I can see I pleaseas day in his eyes.

istantly "I don't think that's true at all. Look how much time she's spent we at thinglately. To be honest, I assumed you guys got back together. She we spend time with you if she didn't love you."

His smile is empty. "We're not getting back together, princes it out.paperwork was finalized a few weeks ago. We're officially divorce becausespent so much time together because we genuinely wanted to figure c

we could help you. That sort of support isn't something either of our f me? "Igave to us, which is another reason our relationship was doomed froking if beginning. Your mother wants to make sure she's always part of you I nevereven if she's being difficult. So do I. We all need to get along to mate estate. That happens."

I have no idea what to say. My throat thickens as I try swallowing a moveblurry as I glance up at him from the check, I shake my head. "Yo the saledidn't have to do this."

"We know."

. "Aunt A single tear escapes the corner of my eye that I quickly swipe a love you, Dad."

side his Dad passes me a clean napkin for my eyes. "I love you too, pping itAlways have, always will."

It'll be The fact that Mom and Dad get along better when they're divorce lost on me. It gives me hope that a split isn't the end for everybody.

one just It could be the beginning.

escape. And maybe that means the "curse" I was told about for so long igain, itreally amount to anything. My parents might not be totally happy, but etter letbuilding something for themselves anyway. They're at peace wit choices.

That counts for something.

a huge Dabbing my eyes, I clear my throat and try changing the subject I we mestart bawling in front of everybody in the diner. "So tell me about t tensionproperty you started showing."

rything er truly

it clear

rith you rouldn't ss. The ed. We out how amilies om the our life,

g. Gaze

ou guys

ke sure

A single tear escapes the corner of my eye that I quickly swipe away. "I love you, Dad."

Dad passes me a clean napkin for my eyes. "I love you too, kiddo. Always have, always will."

The fact that Mom and Dad get along better when they're divorced isn't lost on me. It gives me hope that a split isn't the end for everybody.

It could be the beginning.

And maybe that means the "curse" I was told about for so long doesn't really amount to anything. My parents might not be totally happy, but they're building something for themselves anyway. They're at peace with their choices.

That counts for something.

Dabbing my eyes, I clear my throat and try changing the subject before I start bawling in front of everybody in the diner. "So tell me about the new property you started showing."

Chapter Thirty-One

CALEB

Raine's hand is braced against the side of the West End Anthrom Building, with her head bent down and hair falling over her should there's no hesitation before my feet turn me away from my typical my last final and right toward the girl in distress.

The image reminds me of one of the first frat parties we went to college. She swore up and down that she wasn't going to drink again a party we went to in high school that led to her becoming well acquaint Leon Applebee's hedges.

"I mean it this time," she slurs, wobbling on shaky legs as I wa the football house. "No more, Caleb. Alcohol is gross."

"I know, babe," I muse, trying not to laugh as she groans. We sto so often when she thinks she's going to puke but manages to keep it do

The second her head hits the pillow, she's out like a light. I manag her shoes off, pull the blanket over her, move the waste basket by the the bed, and put two painkillers on the nightstand next to a glass o she'll need in the morning.

When the sun comes up, I'm there with a stuffed bear wearing a molding a sign that says GET WELL SOON. I found it at the drugstore who out to get us something greasy to eat to help the hangover.

She stares at the bear for a long moment before moving her eyes to me. "I don't know what I did to deserve you."

I smile. "I love you too."

Stopping next to the girl in distress, I ask, "What's wrong?" and hand fall between her shoulder blades. She stiffens underneath my tous split second before relaxing when she looks at me with glassy eyes.

Moving hair behind one of her ears helps me see how pale she i her cheeks are flushed as she straightens and turns her body away freletting my hand fall back to my side. "Just don't feel well. I walked I dining hall and smelled something foul. What's new, right?"

"I'm sorry," I say half-heartedly, giving her a quick once-over anc the way she cradles her abdomen. "I can grab you some water if you no

There's a tired glaze to her eyes as they meet mine again. "I'll be finished my last exam, so I'm on my way home to rest anyway."

I jab my thumb behind me. "Do you want me to walk you to you I'd feel bad if something happened to her. She's unsteady on her feet pologystraightens out and presses her fingers to her temples.

"I walked," she admits sheepishly. "I haven't gotten my car bac oulders. Dale's. Thanks for looking at it, by the way. You didn't have to."

I should have known she'd find out. "I told the guys at the garage." during and asked if I could take a look. It was no big deal." Dale's brothe ifter the stays late to tinker on an old convertible he's restoring, so he was more dwith "The stays late to tinker on an old convertible he's restoring, so he was more dwith "The stays late to tinker on an old convertible he's restoring, so he was more dwith "The stays late to tinker on an old convertible he's restoring, so he was more dwith "The stays late to tinker on an old convertible he's restoring, so he was more dwith "The stays late to tinker on an old convertible he's restoring, so he was more dwith "The stays late to tinker on an old convertible he's restoring, so he was more dwith "The stays late to tinker on an old convertible he's restoring, so he was more dwith "The stays late to tinker on an old convertible he's restoring, so he was more dwith "The stays late to tinker on an old convertible he's restoring, so he was more dwith "The stays late to tinker on an old convertible he's restoring, so he was more dwith "The stays late to tinker on an old convertible he's restoring, so he was more dwith "The stays late to tinker on an old convertible he's restoring has been also been also be stays late to tinker on an old convertible he's restoring has been also been also

"It is," she counters quietly. "I didn't deserve that courtesy."

Choosing not to comment on that, I tell her, "I'll drive you." lk us to

She looks at me for a second, probably wondering why I didn't p every talk about her car, but eventually nods. "If you're not going to be class, I'd appreciate it. I'm hoping the garage will get my car in this wo e to get can get it back before the big storm rolls through next week."

The sidewalks are cleared off fairly well right now, but I know side of time she would have needed to leave to get here, the town wouldn come by to shovel or salt them.

"I've got some time to kill before my next test, so I'll drop you ask and see about going over to Dale's. If he can't get it in anytime soon, Ed' be able to."

As we're walking toward the parking lot, I can't help but not upward white-knuckle grip on her bag strap that she loosens for a moment tightening her hold again. There's something on her mind. She always when she's deep in thought.

let my Falling into step with her, I decide to try lightening the mood. "F ch for a your mom and dad doing?"

If she's grateful for the subject change, she doesn't really give i s. Only Her shoulder lifts weakly as she stares straight ahead at the line of om me, cars in the commuter lot. "Okay, I guess. I think Dad may have be past the before I got home from Bea's. It smelled like him—his cologne. I missed it. Their situation is confusing. For a while, I even thought the l seeingget back together."

eed." Mom mentioned seeing Raine's parents together around town and okay. Iif they were still going through the divorce. I think a lot of peo confused about their situation since it seems like they like each other car?"now than they have for years. "Would it be such a bad thing if they tas sheback together?"

The question has her lips pressing together for a momek from contemplation. "You and I both know that their marriage was never g last. You've witnessed the fights. It was a long time coming. Nothing about itchange if they decided to try again."

er often She hasn't always been the closest with her parents, which is wore thanloved spending so much time with mine, but she values her time with even when she has to endure them complaining about each other to don't envy her. If my parents were like that...

Well, no. Maybe I'd prefer it if they were.

want to If all I had to deal with was their separation, then at least they'd be late forbe alive. Not together, but existing. That's better than the reality I'm eek so Iinstead.

I'm sure Mom would have chosen that fate for them over what by thedealing with now. Who wants to see the love of their life fade away? In the havespent a lot longer together than I did with him, and it's hard watch watch him knowing what the outcome is going to be. When he lashe off andsee her shrink. When she sneaks away to the kitchen feigning some of smighthear her little sobs that she tries silencing with running water or othe chores.

ice the So yeah. If I could choose, I'd definitely want a redo. Awkward beforeand all.

fidgets Swallowing down that envy, I can't help but wonder about the share with the girl climbing into the passenger side of my truck.

low are Eventually, the admission that breaks our silence has my loosening a fraction. "I was jealous of Emma, even though I had no t away.be." She shifts, hands fiddling in her lap. "She seemed really nice w parkedtalked. And she's pretty, smart, and kind. On paper, you two make an over And that…hurt."

sort of Why is she telling me this now? "I'm not with Emma anymore. §

y mightof this matters. It's moot."

Her body turns toward me. "But don't you get it? It should matter I askedstuck in a cycle that neither of us seems to know how to break. I have ple areon you, no right to be jealous or act like you being with someone like r moreisn't okay. Not after what I did in Radcliff. You're not mine because I did getgo."

Those words strike me right in the chest.

ent in You're not mine.

going to "Thanks for the reminder," I murmur, shaking my head as those wouldwords echo in my head. As if it needs to be reiterated, I feel the needs to be reiterated.

her, "I'm not Emma's either, even if you think we're somehow a thy shematch on paper. Spoiler alert, Raine. There's no such thing. Look at the themthis supposed cycle you mentioned. You were with someone else, at her. Istill not over you. What the fuck does that say about me?"

The noise coming from Raine is indescribable, but the expression face is humorous. "I didn't mean to say that in a harsh way, I'm just to oth stillsay that..."

"You're trying to say what, exactly? That you'd be okay with me at she's someone someday, but not now? If not Emma, then some other girl? A They'vetrying to say you wouldn't be jealous simply because you wouldn't ing herright to be?"

es out, I Her hands bunch into fists. "I wouldn't have a right to say either chore, Iwas with Cody. You were with Emma. What's done is done."

r house "Because I'm not yours, right?" I push, not believing that for a sec we were truly done, wouldn't I have detached myself from her?

divorce Her eyes narrow into slits. "Why are you being like this?"

I pull off onto a side road that barely gets any traffic and put the past Iinto park before turning toward her. "Because I want to hear you say it She throws her hands up, all but growling out a cool "Say what?"

posture I unbuckle and cup the back of her neck, pulling her toward me u right tomouths are centimeters apart. Fingers digging slightly into her neck, I hen wewant you to tell me that I'm not yours and mean it. Because you woul sense.getting jealous over someone else having me if you didn't want me

You wouldn't be feeding me little half-truths if there wasn't a part of y so nonewanted to hold on. You talk a lot of talk, baby girl, but what are you saying?"

. We're A sharp breath escapes her, and I'm all too familiar with the sound no holdturned on. Anger be damned, she wants me. Wants this. Her eyes dark Emmaa whole new intent as the top of her tongue slowly drags along her let youlip.

"Would you let me touch you this way if I wasn't at least partly you ask, voice dangerously low as I move even closer until the ends of ou touch.

fucking Her breathing picks up, getting choppy as she brushes her nose all to telltip of mine as if she wants to make a move but doesn't want to be t perfectione to cave.

us and But I wait. I've always been told I'm a patient man—another traind I'mget from my father. In this moment, I can tell it frustrates the womwiggles her way closer, hands moving to my shoulders and grip on herhandful of my jacket.

rying to "You're not being fair," she whispers, lips ghosting over mine in a there touch.

ifusion. My fingers tighten around the nape of her neck, moving upward seeingin the strands of her thick hair. "What is fair anyway? Nothing about a youwe've gone through is. You made sure of that."

have a She pulls away just enough to look at me. I expect her to say sor witty back, but instead her lips press against mine lightly. Once. Twic way. Iswipe becomes a little more demanding as she presses into me, her my jacket tightening and tugging me forward. When our front cond. Iftogether, I can't help but slide my hands down her sides and under he to settle on her back.

She stiffens, breaking contact and eyeing me with uncertainty. It is truckmoment before her hands find mine, moving them from her back to here." "I'm a little sore," she tells me.

I nod. "Okay."

ntil our "But other places," she says, lashes fluttering as she grabs one say, "Ihands and places it on her thigh, "I'd be okay with."

ldn't be My heart picks up, along with something else a lot further south. at all.so?"

70u that All she does is swallow, moving my hand further upward until it 1 1 *really*the apex of her thighs. Her mouth finds mine again, her lips openin until she teases my tongue and uses my hand to gain friction over the l. She'sbetween her legs. I hear the hitch of breath when my fingers press en withher, causing her hips to arch up against my touch.

bottom Her eager fingers fumble as she works on undoing the button of he starting to wiggle out of the material enough for my hand to have acours?" Ithe thin material of her panties.

r noses She says one word: "Please."

That's all it takes before I spiral.

ong the Like she said, it's an endless cycle.

he first No amount of anger can withstand that one word she whispers.

Taking over the kiss, I use one hand to cup the back of he it that Ithreading my fingers in her hair to keep her face against mine as our an whofuse with desperation. My other hand goes to her panties, already dapping ame, where I move two of my fingers underneath the cotton to tease her needy moan escapes her mouth.

1 barely — Just as I probe her entrance, she freezes as if she realizes where and asks, "What if someone sees?"

to twist There aren't any buildings nearby and rarely ever traffic consider ut whatis a seasonal road. I sink just the tips of my fingers inside her and le her ear, whispering, "Don't worry. I'll tell them we're just friends. A nethingI'm not yours. Remember?"

e. Each She gasps when I plunge my fingers farther inside her, making teal grip onin her eyes. "H-hurts," she says.

s press I pause at the stuttered word. "Do you want me to stop?"

r jacket One of her arms hooks around my neck until she's hugging us t and moving her hips up to ride my hand in the rhythm she wants, giv takes athe answer before she says, "No. It's fine."

er hips. "Are you su—"

"Yes," she whispers, kissing me again to stop me from asking.

Not another word is said, just desperate noises in between hungry of myand heavy panting. I feel her fingernails dig into the bare sliver of skir back of my neck between where my hair ends and my jacket starts. "Is thatthere will be little marks left behind from the bites of pain as her builds around my digits. Scissoring my fingers and hooking them lests onthighs starting to shake and her teeth biting down onto my bottom lip. Ig minemakes me harder, the growing bulge trapped in my jeans painful as hel

e denim I pay it no attention as a barely audible version of my name come againsther mouth or as she grinds on my hand until I can feel the wetness my palm, and I make no move to get any relief when she comes, cler jeans, around me.

cess to Waiting until she rides it out, I watch a sated expression come act face before I carefully pull out my fingers.

"Funny," I murmur, lifting them to my mouth and slowly mov tongue over the arousal left behind. "It sure as fuck tastes like you're n A sharp breath leaves her as she watches me, eyelids heavier than l One of my shoulders lifts. "My mistake."

r head, mouths amp for r until a we are

ing this ean into fter all,

rs shine

ogether ring me

thisses is on the I know orgasm has her It only li.

I pay it no attention as a barely audible version of my name comes from her mouth or as she grinds on my hand until I can feel the wetness coating my palm, and I make no move to get any relief when she comes, clenching around me.

Waiting until she rides it out, I watch a sated expression come across her face before I carefully pull out my fingers.

"Funny," I murmur, lifting them to my mouth and slowly moving my tongue over the arousal left behind. "It sure as fuck tastes like you're mine."

A sharp breath leaves her as she watches me, eyelids heavier than before. One of my shoulders lifts. "My mistake."

Chapter Thirty-Two

RAINE

 $T_{\rm HE\ MONITOR\ ATTACHED}$  to my finger records my pulse spiking every hear footsteps outside the curtain, knowing today is the day I'll kn truth. Whether I want to accept it is a whole different game.

"Relax," Mom tells me, putting her hand on my leg, which hasn't still since I was told to change into the gown and socks by the swee nurse. "They're going to take good care of you. You have nothing to about."

It's not the procedure I'm worried about. It isn't supposed to take I I'll be out of here before I know it. What I can't get off my minc aftermath.

"What if they tell me worst case?" I ask quietly, staring vulnerably mother and hoping she'll be there for me. No theatrics or accusat being melodramatic.

Right now, I need my mom.

As a daughter.

She gives me that, curling her hand on my leg in comfort. "I he doubt that when you become a mother someday, you're going to be to one you can be because you're always looking at the positive things."

That goes a long way, Raine."

Hearing her tell me that means more to me than she'll ever know. you."

The day I got back from lunch with Dad, I walked into the hor gave her a tight hug. I could tell she was surprised, but it didn't take l her to return it, wrapping her arms around me and telling me she loved

I know we'll always have our tiffs, but I also know she'll always h back when I truly need her there. Same with Dad.

That didn't encourage me to tell her I saw Caleb again. When he c me off after our second truck hookup, Mom was locked away in h room finishing a project for a client and that kept her busy all night.

Which was good.

Because I went to my room and curled up with Sigmund on my b feeling where Caleb's fingers had been minutes before and remembe the reasons that we shouldn't have done that.

How am I supposed to push him away if telling him about Cody impact how he feels? He still cares. Deeply. The same way I do abo time I That's why he's still around, helping me. Making his point clear abou we stand. There's only so much I can do before the truth comes out of for all. Because I'd have to tell him if he doesn't run for good.

Staring at Mom's hand, I ask, "Why didn't you tell me about the dad? The whole town knew, and I felt like such a moron when I got by hadn't known he was sick."

O worry

Sho's tell and the felt like such a moron when I got by hadn't known he was sick."

She's told me her feelings about my relationship with the Anders ong, so Even though she never fully admitted it, I think she felt threatened lose I was to Caleb's mom. It didn't mean I loved mine less, but I cowhy it was hard to witness. Especially whenever I'd escape to their how at my dinner or board games or Family Feud nights by the television.

There's a momentary pause before she finally sighs and releases in "I didn't tell you because you always want to fix things. And some the life can't be fixed no matter how hard you try."

Just as I'm about to reply, I stop myself with the harsh realizati she's right.

I've always tried fining a large tried fining a large he best hardware store, and look where it got us. Nowhere.

"Thank face. "I have never disliked Caleb or his family. I know he's a good just as his family are good people. I've only wanted you to live you see and of you being distracted from all the goals you set out to achieve colong for me."

ave my

I have no idea what to say, so I stay quiet.

"You are going to accomplish so many wonderful things because lropped strong-willed. I shouldn't have kept anything from you because it was er craft

Understanding has my head bobbing slowly, even if I wish she something. But what's done is done.

"Thank you for telling me."

ed, still She stands up and gives me a hug, right as the curtain opens a ring allpeople appear: one of the anesthesiologists who I've already filled papout for and the man transporting me to the operating room.

/ didn't It's him who asks "Are you ready?"

ut him. Mom releases me and takes my hand, squeezing it. "You'll be olt wherebe right here when you wake up."

nce and Swallowing down the anxiety blocking my airway, I force out a nod to the people waiting for me. "Ready."

Caleb's And two and a half hours later, surrounded by my doctor and ack andwatching me sip my apple juice as I fully come to, I listen to the coming from my doctor's mouth.

family. "...doesn't necessarily mean it's impossible since you haven't a by howbeen trying. But the damage is significant, so it could be very, very could seefor you. Not to mention the health problems you could have in the produce for there's a sliver of optimism in her delivery, but we both know it's best.

my leg. "I'm sorry, Raine," Dr. Ryder tells me softly. "I wish I had bette nings infor you."

I barely register my mother's hand on me.

on that Or the way I stare at the doctor.

I can't feel anything but numbness and the cool reality blanket y at theoverheated body.

Not impossible.

on my I should be grateful for that.

person, Miracles have happened before.

our life But I refuse to expect too much.

thought How many broken hearts can a person survive before there's noth acerned to shatter?

you're sn't my

'd said

something. But what's done is done.

"Thank you for telling me."

She stands up and gives me a hug, right as the curtain opens and two people appear: one of the anesthesiologists who I've already filled paperwork out for and the man transporting me to the operating room.

It's him who asks "Are you ready?"

Mom releases me and takes my hand, squeezing it. "You'll be okay. I'll be right here when you wake up."

Swallowing down the anxiety blocking my airway, I force out a shaky nod to the people waiting for me. "Ready."

And two and a half hours later, surrounded by my doctor and mother watching me sip my apple juice as I fully come to, I listen to the words coming from my doctor's mouth.

"...doesn't necessarily mean it's impossible since you haven't actively been trying. But the damage is significant, so it could be very, very difficult for you. Not to mention the health problems you could have in the process."

There's a sliver of optimism in her delivery, but we both know it's slim at best.

"I'm sorry, Raine," Dr. Ryder tells me softly. "I wish I had better news for you."

I barely register my mother's hand on me.

Or the way I stare at the doctor.

I can't feel anything but numbness and the cool reality blanketing my overheated body.

Not impossible.

I should be grateful for that.

Miracles have happened before.

But I refuse to expect too much.

How many broken hearts can a person survive before there's nothing left to shatter?

Chapter Thirty-Three

CALEB

 $B_{\text{EA's}}$  is busier than I expect it to be when I walk in, so it takes a little to get to the counter where Elena and Bea are working around each  $\alpha$  grab drinks and food for people.

"Your usual?" Bea asks, already reaching for a Styrofoam cup. 'have your favorite in stock right now, but I have fresh blueberry muff I know your parents love."

I don't bother telling her about Dad's feeding tube because it's no the pitiful looks I'd get. "They'd like that." Especially Mom, who be only eats eggs, microwave meals, or whatever I make extra of and brit so she can spend as much time with Dad as possible.

She's lost weight.

Worse—she's lost the light in her eyes.

It's barely even there when she sees me.

When I pass Elena my credit card to run, I ask, "Where's Rain guys look like you could use an extra hand."

The teenager glances at her grandmother briefly before swiping r through the reader and answering, "She's not working this week."

It's Bea who elaborates as she puts some of the muffins into "Raine is recovering from a minor procedure. She'll be back next weel want to pop in then. I think I put her on the schedule starting Tuesday."

Procedure? "Like, surgery?"

Bea hums. "Thought you would have known. Heard you two have cozy."

My eyes narrow at the suspicious choice of words, especially gillast time I saw Raine. "Do I want to know what you mean?"

A grin curves the older woman's lips as she sets the bag of goods counter in front of me. "All I'm saying is that Steve sees all. Artie hii to help with some construction over at a building he purchased on Street, and apparently there is quite the view from the side window certain couples park on the street where they think nobody can see the Jesus Christ. First the hardware store camera, now this.

Bea chuckles at my reddening face. "I may not be one to talk, be certainly had my fun in my younger years, but if you two want priva might want to choose a better place. One where someone as loud-mou Steve can't spy on you. Artie and his entire team knew minutes after a longer you, and you know how fast gossip spreads around here."

Elena turns to her grandma. "That's not fair! I don't even known happened. Somebody needs to fill me in."

'I don't Bea pats Elena's shoulder. "When you're older, dear."

Elena sticks her bottom lip out and passes me my card.

Clearing my throat, I put it away and tuck my wallet in my back "Thanks. For, uh, the advice. Do you know if Raine is at her place?"

Bea's hands go to her hips. "Where else would she be, boy? Yours I can't help but snort at her sass. "Fair point. You got me there."

Bea holds up her hand and grabs the bag again before depositing more pastries inside it. Molasses cookies, I'm sure. "If you're going her, the least you can do is give those to her. Tell her I hope she feels be Elena smirks at her grandmother's scheming. "Tell Raine I m e? You<sup>Okay</sup>?"

Sighing, I nod. "You got it."

ny card No point in denying who I'm going to see at this point, espec people have seen us in compromising positions.

Bea stops me before I walk out. "Do yourselves a favor and g k if you one another to be happy after seeing how miserable you are without other after all this time?"

I wish it were as easy as that.

"I'll keep that in mind," I murmur, refusing to promise her anythin Life is already full of disappointment.

ven the I don't want to add to it.

on the red him
Grove

v when Knocking on the front door of the white house feels just as nerve-rac m." it did when I was a teenager. As I wait for somebody to answer, I look and see the patchy lawn that doesn't seem like anybody took care of cause Ithe first frost hit.

cy, you "Offered to mow it for them," I hear from somewhere nearby. I turn to see an older man by the fence of the property next he sawCopelins'. "Sorry, what was that?"

Leon Applebee points his cane to the lawn. "I offered to mow it for whatbefore winter hit. Raine told me they'd handle it. Damn near killed me them try during the summer. Funny as hell though. The missus, Janet, ran over the garbage cans when she hit the gas a little too hard on the mower. After that, she seemed too traumatized to try again."

pocket. The image makes my lips curl in amusement. "You're Leon, ri walk over and raise my hand. "Raine mentioned the project you hel]?" with. She likes you."

He shakes my hand. "The kid grew on me. Her and her dog, eve g a fewhas a licking problem. Surprised to see you here."

§ to see My eyes go to the house behind me to make sure nobody came better." door. Then I turn back to the man currently eyeing me. "I heard Rai iss her.under the weather, so I brought her something."

His eyes go down to the bag, which I lift for proof. "You got pasthere?"

rially if Lips twitching, I nod. "Yes, sir."

"You gonna share any with me?"

et over I chuckle and open the bag. "I've got a blueberry muffin up for grawe it todad won't eat it, so it might as well go to somebody who will."

ut each He reaches in and takes out the food in question before looking backer. "I was real sad to hear about your father. Anytime my late we something on the honey-do list, I'd make my way down to the hardway g else. to pick up supplies for it."

Warmth settles into my chest. "We appreciate your business."

His chin dips once. "But I will say, I'm partial to the girl in tha behind you. She's got a real good heart, even if it's a little mi sometimes. I'd hate to see anything bad happen to her when she's much love to give."

I'm not surprised they formed a bond. Raine has always been a king asdoing that with people.

around "I've got connections, you know," he adds, bushy brows arching. "beforepeople who could take care of you if need be. Blueberry muffins cakeep you safe for so long, boyo."

This took a turn. "Good to know..."

to the He gestures toward the house. "Better go. Those girls don't like to waiting."

or them When I turn, I see Janet at the door watching me and Leon. I wave e to see elderly man before walking over to the woman who's trying not nearly completely uncomfortable with my presence.

e riding "I come in peace," I offer, lifting the bag of goodies toward her. "E me with Raine's favorite, and there are extras in there if you want ght?" Ishe'll see me, that is."

ped her Raine's mother glances behind her before stepping outside and s the door. It doesn't give me much optimism, especially when she cros in if hearms on her chest and lets out a heavy sigh like her daughter does whe stressed.

e to the "I never did say how sorry I am about what's going on with your ine wasshe begins, hesitant eyes meeting mine. "I haven't treated you very fair neither did my husband. Ex-husband. You and your family have alway stries innothing but kind, especially to Raine. I didn't always like that, bu grateful she's had you."

Straightening, I watch as she shifts on her feet, probably fee uncomfortable as I am right now. "My family would do anything for abs. MyNo matter what happened. I would too."

She glances down at the ground, but not before I see the slightest { ck up ather eyes that shows how much she cares, even if she has a hard time rife putit. It's the first time I've seen genuine emotion that isn't anger from I re storeprogress, even if we're never going to be close. It means she's willing

For her daughter.

"She's vulnerable right now, Caleb" is what I hear next from her t houseI'm trying my best to be there for her, but you may be what she need splacedright now. That's not easy for me to admit. I'm her mother."

got so Her glassy eyes move toward mine. "But you're her...everything."
good at I blink.

Repeat those words to myself.

'I know Then blink again.

an only Janet stands taller and rolls her shoulders back before stepping aside the door. "I've always been scared that she's going to fall too hard, like I did. But you are not Craig, and she is not me. The last thing I be keptfor her to struggle with her choices when I played a hand in the ormade."

off the I have no idea what to say because this is the last thing I expected to lookpulled up to their house. But nonetheless, a tiny part of me feels like a has been lifted.

Bea sent Not because I needed her permission.

any. If But because I have it anyway. For the first time.

shutting "You two have a lot to talk about. If she's willing to bring it up, I sees herout," she concludes. "Maybe if I had, I would have salvaged my relaten she's with her a lot sooner than I did."

father," rly, and ys been it I am ling as

Raine.

glaze to saying ner. It's to try.

r. "And ls more Repeat those words to myself.

Then blink again.

Janet stands taller and rolls her shoulders back before stepping aside from the door. "I've always been scared that she's going to fall too hard, too fast like I did. But you are not Craig, and she is not me. The last thing I want is for her to struggle with her choices when I played a hand in the ones she made."

I have no idea what to say because this is the last thing I expected when I pulled up to their house. But nonetheless, a tiny part of me feels like a weight has been lifted.

Not because I needed her permission.

But because I have it anyway.

For the first time.

"You two have a lot to talk about. If she's willing to bring it up, hear her out," she concludes. "Maybe if I had, I would have salvaged my relationship with her a lot sooner than I did."

Chapter Thirty-Four

RAINE

 $I^{\prime}$ M LYING IN bed with Sigmund curled beside me when my door crack I turn, thinking it's Mom checking on me for the hundredth time Caleb's head pops in. Panic prickles my limbs as Sigmund instantly d tail wagging at the visitor who remains by the door.

"Hey," he greets quietly. "Your mom let me in."

I expected as much since he wouldn't have gotten past the otherwise. But why is he here? I've seen Skylar and Olive, who came dog toys and my favorite snacks, and got a phone call from Aunt checking in after Mom told her about the procedure. I never expected though. "Hi..."

He smiles at the dog making whining noises, clearly wanting at "He's gotten big, huh? He'll definitely grow into those paws."

Last night when Sigmund was trying to make me feel better massive paws stepped on one of my tiny incisions by accident. I coulc felt awful when I cried out because he chose to stay in his open crate of the night and keep a watchful eye on me from a distance.

"The vet says he'll be at least sixty pounds when he's fully grown him, trying to match his small talk while sitting up and wincing at th pain still lingering in my abdomen.

Caleb watches me prop myself up with a pillow behind my back gesturing toward Sigmund. "May I?"

All I do is nod, my eyes following him in as he fusses over m legged roommate. Sigmund's tail starts wagging harder, shaking not c entire back end but the bed too.

"You did it," Caleb says, and at first I don't know if he's talking to the dog. Not until his eyes pan over to me. "You've always wanted a remember when you went through a corgi phase and would send me a pictures you'd come across online, trying to get me to buy us one. But this dude is a pretty solid start. Your first real baby."

Baby. He doesn't see the way my heart tightens and falls to the bo my stomach or the way my chest deflates like somebody stuck a need Despite how hard I try keeping it in, he can't miss the sob that bubble my wavering lips. It has his hand pausing where it strokes Sigmund' Then the floodgates open, and ugly, desperate tears begin to fall before suppress them.

caleb moves quickly, suddenly squatting beside me. I don't need at him to know those intense eyes are trained on me. I can feel them larts up, mom? Do you need medicine?"

Maybe it's because he's here with me for the millionth time we warden could be anywhere else, but the last barrier I'd built comes crumbling to bearing my blubbering lips. The truth that can't be contained anymore becate line me up inside. I've got nothing left to fight it.

"I c-can't have any babies."

tention. Caleb stares.

And stares.

And stares.

the rest That states.

And I cry harder for the words that finally relieve the pressure I've the rest That I have a state of the words that finally relieve the pressure I've the rest That I have been a state of the words that finally relieve the pressure I've the rest That I have been a state of the words that finally relieve the pressure I've the rest That I have been a state of the words that finally relieve the pressure I've the rest That I have been a state of the words that finally relieve the pressure I've the rest That I have been a state of the words that finally relieve the pressure I've the rest That I have been a state of the words that finally relieve the pressure I've the rest That I have been a state of the words that finally relieve the pressure I've the rest That I have been a state of the words that finally relieve the pressure I've the rest That I have been a state of the words that I have been a state of the wor

Then I hear a whispered "What?"

It's only then that I allow myself to peel open my damp eyes and e slight the boy whose jaw is slack with confusion, while mine wobble saddened relief.

He's slow to stand. "Raine... What are you talking about?"

I sniff back tears, running the back of my hand underneath my not struggling to take a deep breath. My lungs hurt yet feel some sort only his "To all the last of the last of

"You always wanted kids," I whisper, swiping my hands over my face it. It's pointless. The tears keep coming. "You always talked about dog. I they'd look like and what we'd name them and how we'd rais million could be a look like and what we how far away that dream really was."

I'd say silent as I blink back more tears and swallow heavily.

Breathe in.

ttom of Breathe out.

lle in it. We lock eyes. "You wanted the one thing I couldn't give you, so I es fromonly thing I could think of to make sure you'd be happy. One day."

s back. His head slowly shakes back and forth as if he knows what I'm g re I cansay and refuses to accept it.

"I let you go."

to look For what feels like forever, there's nothing but silence. We stare burninganother with two very different emotions on our faces.

et your Mine with reluctant relief.

And his...shock. And something else.

*r*hen he Then he says, "What the fuck?"

down. His hands go to his hair, fingers scraping through the long strances escapebacks up and starts pacing. It's his go-to when he needs to process somuse it's Back and forth.

Back and forth.

Even Sigmund watches, his head moving to follow Caleb's every s "Are you telling me that you broke up with me because of this?" I stopping to turn to me. There's a tiny muscle in his temple that's tw right now.

ve been "Yes."

More twitching.

"How do you even know that you can't have kids? I don't get it."

look at Tell him, the voice inside me encourages.

es with There's no going back from it.

My hands shake as I reach for Sigmund, touching his side grounded. "You'll hate me," I tell him.

ose and The question he asks next is delivered in a cool tone. "Wasn't to of easeplan all along? Why hold back now?"

are out. He's always been too smart for his own good, which is why le to drypointless. It's too tiring to keep it all straight. The half-truths and what what and partial recognitions of reality.

e them It's all or nothing.

I give it all.

remains And I'll get nothing.

Another cycle.

Endless and ugly.

So I tell him. Everything.

did the All the dirty details.

The sleepless nights.

joing to The fear of realization when I found out I'd been pregnant with baby and an entirely new fear when they'd seen all those cysts on my that spread over the years.

at one I tell Caleb every little doubt that crept into my mind. Could I may happy if we couldn't have kids? Would he be angry? Resentful? Sada we make it forever after so many promises weren't met?

Deep down, I want to believe we could.

But sometimes you have to sacrifice the comfortable things in life ls as hegood things. It's not always mutually exclusive. I would have preferred thing, think the worst of me after telling him about Cody, so I didn't let myse there was a chance at a future for us.

Because Caleb was always a comfortable thing.

tep. Wonderful. Loving. Attentive.

ne asks, We were good together, but that didn't mean we always wo ritchingNothing is guaranteed in life. So you have to figure out what's keeping, losing, and letting go of for the bigger picture. It wasn't j masterpiece that I was painting. It was Caleb's too.

"I want you to know how sorry I am for everything I did. All the put you through were always meant for the best. It wasn't that I though to lose you to find me. It was the other way around. I needed to know be happy, even if that meant seeing you build everything we talked to feelwith somebody else. I'm so sorry, Caleb. You've gone through a lot the and you didn't deserve it."

that the I'm greeted by the thickest silence we've ever shared between u not even blinking.

ying is This is why I didn't want to tell him. Because every wave of emonite lieshis face is clear. Because there's no going back. No more shielding hi anything. No more protection from what fate dealt us.

Eventually, his fists tighten at his sides.

"I can't..." He shakes his head, turning around and cursing.

There's barely any evidence of him in this room because I tucked things that reminded me of him into a box in the closet. Safe, for n only when I want to torture myself. And I do. Often. But as he looks he must see how much he's been erased from the life I've lived si breakup.

Caleb abruptly swings around, eyes narrowing as they land on me Cody's fucking dare you."

ovaries My eyes widen.

"How dare you make that decision for me," he seethes, fists clenc tke himtightly they turn white. He doesn't move closer to me or step away. "Y? Couldno right to assume I couldn't handle the truth. Do you honestly this helped? That you made things easier?"

Jaw quivering, I shake my head. "Cal—" for the "No." He jabs a finger at me. "You don't get to say anything else. d Calebdone enough. All this time, Raine. All this time." More cursing, hair telf hopeand pacing.

Sigmund is standing, but his tail isn't wagging anymore. It's tucke his legs as he watches Caleb suspiciously, stiff and protective as if sense the tension in the room.

uld be. When Caleb finally turns to me again, I don't expect his red worthglassy eyes full of angry tears. "You had no right," he repeats, voice b just mywith raspiness.

"I really thought I was doing the right thing," I tell him. "I thou things Icouldn't have kids—" ht I had "This isn't about the goddamn kids, Raine!" he barks, veins pop v you'dhis neck. He grips his hair and stares at me through his tear-stricken of about needed you. And you weren't there."

is year, The second those broken words are out, what's left of my heart s So this time I don't bother saying anything. An apology won't do any s. He'sthis point.

I needed you.

tion on I needed you.

m from I needed you.

"I can't do this," Caleb says. He goes to my bedroom door, gives last look as if he's trying to figure out what's real and what's not, a walks out.

I all the The front door opens.

ny eyes Slams closed.

around, Silence.

nce the Mom appears at the doorway. She doesn't say a word when she v or when she gets onto the bed and carefully pulls me into her side.

. "How It isn't until I rest my head on her shoulder and let my damp ched into her shirt that she brushes her long fingers in my hair and tells a voice uncharacteristically soft, "I know I haven't made things easy f hing sobut you could have told me. If I'd known what happened all those yea 'ou hadI could have helped you. I know it wouldn't have changed what you nk youthrough, but it would have changed how you coped with it. I..." She deep breath, pausing her comforting strokes. "I failed you in so many didn't I?"

You've Squeezing my eyes closed, I whisper, "I failed myself."

ugging, Mom is quiet for a long stretch of time before her fingers start again. "You've done far better at life than I have, Raine. Despite dunderchallenges you've faced, especially on your own. I'd hardly say he canfailing."

face or reaking ght if I ping in eves. "I hatters. thing at me one nd then Silence.

Mom appears at the doorway. She doesn't say a word when she walks in or when she gets onto the bed and carefully pulls me into her side.

It isn't until I rest my head on her shoulder and let my damp cheek soak into her shirt that she brushes her long fingers in my hair and tells me, her voice uncharacteristically soft, "I know I haven't made things easy for you, but you could have told me. If I'd known what happened all those years ago, I could have helped you. I know it wouldn't have changed what you went through, but it would have changed how you coped with it. I..." She takes a deep breath, pausing her comforting strokes. "I failed you in so many ways, didn't I?"

Squeezing my eyes closed, I whisper, "I failed myself."

Mom is quiet for a long stretch of time before her fingers start moving again. "You've done far better at life than I have, Raine. Despite all the challenges you've faced, especially on your own. I'd hardly say that's failing."

Chapter Thirty-Five

CALEB

 $M_{\text{OM}}$  startles when I slam the front door closed and storm in. She a are both awake and gawking at me in the living room as I enter, sh head, and walk into the kitchen.

No words can describe what I'm feeling right now. I don't know ever find the right way to express everything swirling in my head.

"Honey?" Mom says cautiously, a hand falling onto my back. I'm over the counter, gripping the edges until my fingers hurt. "Calel happened?"

Frustration still seeps into every crevice it can as I look over my sat her. "Raine."

It's the only thing I can get out.

One word.

One name.

Confusion swirls on Mom's face. "I'm going to need more that What happened between you and Raine?"

"She—" My hoarse voice is cut off with frustration, forcing me my throat and stand taller until Mom's hand falls from my back. I take breath. "She lied over and over again. And for fucking what? It coubeen different. It would have been fine."

Mom is shaking her head and trying to piece together what I'm tell when Dad calls out my name.

I look to Mom, wipe my face with my hands, and watch her n guide me into the living room again.

He says those three damn words that have me dropping onto the with my palms on my wet face. "Talk to me."

If anybody has a right to be mad at the world, it's the man waiting me. If there's anyone who needs to be comforted right now, it's the who reaches over and grabs ahold of my hand. But like always, he's everything he has left to me.

So I let it all out.

Every raw admission.

Every hard reality.

Every horrible emotion.

Because I'm done holding it back.

Physically, mentally, and emotionally done.

nd Dad "She gave up on us," I whisper, staring helplessly at my father. ake my had just told me the truth, we could have figured it out. But she chose even try."

I swipe furiously at my cheeks, letting Dad's hand fall to the could All while he watches me with knowing eyes. Studying. Waiting for leaning take a few deep breaths and calm down.

"Let me ask you something," he prompts, wincing as he reposition chair. "If you got married to Raine, committed to one another for a houlder no matter the circumstances, without the knowledge you have now, you care if you later learned you couldn't have kids? Would that infor upset you if you struggled with it?"

I blink slowly. "How could you ask that?" How could Raine assube a dickhead about something she had no control over?

Dad gives me a look. "Son, Raine doesn't have a malicious bone body. If she thought breaking up with you was for the best, then there to clear the state of the s

There it is again. Logic. Just because something is logical doesn't ld have has to make sense. "Do I want children? Yeah. Christ, Dad. You kno How long have I said I wanted somebody to pass along the store to? I ling her them there like you did with me?" I stand, riled up again. "Does the me an asshole or something?"

"Language," Dad says, coughing. One of his shaky hands goes chest, rubbing it until he catches his breath. "Don't you think all that couch what contributed to her decision?"

Standing taller, my brows pinch at the question. "I don't understant to help the room. "Baby boy, Raine knows how much you want to be a giving for a second she was going to get in the way of that, she was going herself out of the equation. She did what she thought was best. I'm not I condone the way she hurt you, but I can see where she was coming fr

Nostrils flaring, I look away from them and swipe my tongue ald dry lips. Sniffing back the tears prickling my eyes, I roll my shoulde and let out a harsh breath. "Best for who? Because as far as I'm con she did it selfishly."

Dad's scoff has my eyes dropping to him in confusion. "I have "If sheheard you spout more bullshit than I did just now. Almost as much a e not toyou tried convincing yourself you stopped loving her."

Mom sighs. "Richard."

ch arm. Dad shakes his head. "No, Denise. You and I both know those to me tomeant to be together and too goddamn stubborn to get past shit that's their control. You have someone who sacrificed her happiness for you is in thewhether that was misplaced or not. That's anything but selfish."

lifetime I let that sink in.

would "She never liked football," he tells me.

mation My brow furrows. "What?"

"All those games she went to—" He has to stop himself to cou ime I'dcatch his breath. "I know she didn't enjoy them. But she went for you single time."

e was awords, sweetie. There was so much you both did for each other the meant to enhance each other's lives. Look at how often she'd end mean it competitive game nights. She loved being here because you were how I do.because she liked any of the board games we were playing."

To raise Raine never said one way or another.

to figure out if that's enough to get past this or if it's the reason to let to hisfor good. But you cannot keep stepping on the line. One of you nt talk ismake the final decision."

The final decision.

d." Guilt sinks into my stomach for accusing her of thinking only of way ofwhen they're making a good point. We always did what I wanted, and father thought twice about it because half of the time it was Raine's suggestic thought But does that mean I can forgive her right now? "I wouldn't have to take I tell my parents quietly. "About the kids."

t saying Their silence shows their doubt.

rom." "I wouldn't," I press. "I'd be...sad. But I'd have her. That's all ong myreally wanted." The second that absorbs, my chest tightens.

cerned, Not the other shit.

The things we did.

e never The places we went.

It was always fun because she was with me, right there by my side.

Dad says, "Families come in all different forms. You never kno you're going to get in life. All you could ask for is one full of I two areanything, this proves you'll have a lifetime worth of it from that § out ofwalked out on today."

around his shoulders and smiling at me. "I understand why you're this," she says softly. "But do you want this to be the reason yo reconcile?"

Dropping back down onto the couch, I brush a palm down my face 1gh andlooking to my parents. "At what price though?"

. Every Dad coughs again.

Mom smiles sadly and asks one simple question. "Can you reall er thanprice on love?"

nat was When Dad moves his hand away from his mouth, there's bright reure ourcovering his skin.

ere, not Mom stares at Dad.

I stare at Mom.

And Dad stares at his hand.

ou have

: her go

eeds to herself

I never

on.

cared,"

Their silence shows their doubt.

"I wouldn't," I press. "I'd be...sad. But I'd have her. That's all I ever really wanted." The second that absorbs, my chest tightens.

It was always about Raine.

Not the other shit.

The things we did.

The places we went.

It was always fun because she was with me, right there by my side.

Dad says, "Families come in all different forms. You never know what you're going to get in life. All you could ask for is one full of love. If anything, this proves you'll have a lifetime worth of it from that girl you walked out on today."

Mom comes over and sits on the arm of Dad's chair, putting her arm around his shoulders and smiling at me. "I understand why you're hurt by this," she says softly. "But do you want this to be the reason you can't reconcile?"

Dropping back down onto the couch, I brush a palm down my face before looking to my parents. "At what price though?"

Dad coughs again.

Mom smiles sadly and asks one simple question. "Can you really put a price on love?"

When Dad moves his hand away from his mouth, there's bright red blood covering his skin.

Mom stares at Dad.

I stare at Mom.

And Dad stares at his hand.

Chapter Thirty-Six

RAINE

When I see Leon walk into Bea's with a young, brunette woman besi I smile for the first time in nearly two weeks. Ever since the falling-c Caleb, I've felt a hole in my chest that nothing seems to mend. No Sigmund's warm cuddles, the Milk Duds Dad has been sending me cooking class Mom signed us up for together that starts right bef beginning of spring semester. I take each day as it comes and do my distract myself from feeling sorry over the choices I've made.

Christmas is in a matter of days, and I don't have the same typically do. Our tree is up but bare of decorations, and the only sho did consisted of gift certificates that I've tucked in holiday cards be was the easiest route to take.

My neighbor snorts in amusement when he stops at the counter a the antlers that Elena made me wear. They have bells on them and giv headache the longer they rattle, but the sassy teenager insisted we ge holiday spirit with antlers, ugly sweaters, and Christmas music play day long.

"Nice antlers, kid," Leon muses, causing the woman beside him to I recognize her from the pictures he's shown me in the albums he'd I when I was over. "This is my daughter, Jenna. Figured it was about to two of you met."

She reaches her hand out first, which I meet halfway over the c "I've heard a lot about you, Raine. Anybody who can handle this a bastard has my respect."

I grin at the man in question. "I like her, Leon."

The old man rolls his eyes. "Of course you do." He gestures tow seasonal special written on the chalkboard. "Don't suppose you sti some of the warm cider left, do you?"

"Bea bought more yesterday. Two cups?"

Jenna holds out a credit card before Leon can reach for his tattered "And I'd love it if you could add two apple fritters for here. Dad has able to stop raving about them for months, so it's time I tried one."

I accept the card. "No problem."

Leon grabs his wallet, which is on its last legs, and pulls out a five bill to stick into the tip jar.

"You really need a new wallet," I tell him, passing his daughter' de him, card back and waiting for the receipt to print.

He scoffs. "There's nothing wrong with this one. Nothing a litt ot even Lappa rolls her even "Yes".

Jenna rolls her eyes. "You're getting a new one for Christmas. It's ore the stocking already. Act surprised."

best to Laughing lightly, I grab two cups and start on their order. "Are y doing holiday shopping or are you finished?"

spirit I "We're almost done," she tells me. "Dad wanted help getting sor pping I for the kids, so they're with their father for the day being loaded up o cause it "Dad wanted help getting sor paid to be a solution of the control of

Despite the wary look Leon gives me, I don't feel any sadness about her children. If anything, it makes me happy that he's ve me a nothing is going to change about your situation.

ying all It takes too much energy being angry, so you might as well find things in life to lift your spirits.

"I bet they're excited for Christmas," I reply, passing her the cups of smile. and going toward the display case for the fritters. "I remember how ime the loved this time of year when I was little. Everything was so..."

"Magical," Jenna finishes for me with a warm smile.

I return the smile easily before transferring the fritters into the counter. heating oven to warm.

Leon clears his throat, shifting his cane and looking behind hin tables. "You wouldn't happen to have a few minutes to sit down, rard the you?"

Elena is in the back helping Bea, but things are slow enough for break. "That shouldn't be a problem. Is everything okay?"

He nods. "As good as it can be. I just think it'd be great if you a had a chance to sit down and chat a bit while she's in town."

wallet. I put their fritters on plates and set them down in front of them. ' 1't beentable, and I'll meet you over there in a minute. I'm going to get a dr let them know I'm taking five."

Wiping my hands off on my apron, I untie it and pop my head i e-dollarback. "Lena, can you take over the counter for a few minutes? Leon with his daughter, so I'm going to sit with them."

s credit Bea waves her granddaughter off. "Go on. I've got this covered for After pouring myself a glass of water, I head to the back and pull tle ductchair between Leon and Jenna.

Jenna starts the conversation. "I read the paper that Dad helped yc in yourIt's really good. Reading that stuff about him and Mom brought up good memories from when I was little." She gives Leon a nostalgic sn rou twoI can see his lips slowly curling to return. "It made me think abo grateful I am to have them as parents."

nething Hearing her say that makes me happy, knowing that there were n sugarpatches along the way for the three of them. "I wish I could have go know Annemarie. She seems like she would've been the perfect mothe hearing A fondness warms Leon's face at the sentiment that I know to be to finding Jenna turns to me. "I actually wanted to talk to you about some acceptknow you know about Mom's fertility issues. He mentioned the understood on a personal level, and reading that paper made me thin he littleeverything my mother would have loved to do before she passed aw Dad ever tell you she was into charity work and volunteering?"

of cider I shake my head, racking my brain for a time that might have comuch I"We didn't really discuss that, but I'm not surprised to hear it. That like something she'd do."

Jenna beams. "Exactly. Which is why I think it'd be a neat ide e smallsomething in her name. Like some sort of charity event or work that women somehow."

at the "Are you thinking a donation in her name, or something big wouldquestion, leaning back in my chair. I've definitely seen people do st that for loved ones, but I've never researched it before.

a quick Leon sets down his cider. "Annemarie was someone who'd wan big or go home. She had a big heart. The more she could help, the happand Jenwas."

Jenna nods. "I don't know what your experience is with repro

'Grab ahealth. I know you're not in school for anything like that, but you do ink andhelp people. I figured the best way to mesh the best of both worlds wa you how to start. Maybe see if you had any ideas."

into the While I didn't know Annemarie personally, I can guess her p is herestruggles. I haven't thought about being an advocate for reproductive but I'm sure it's something she would have partnered with me on if show," around.

out the Something she would have started.

Go big or go home.

ou with. "I'd have to look into it," I start, looking between the two of them a lot ofthink somebody like Annemarie would want to help as many people tile that could. Educating. Raising money for organizations that would ut howuniversal reproductive health to reach the audience who needed in Something like that."

e rough Leon's eyes lighten the same way Jenna's do. Even if they're no otten torelated, their expressions are uncanny. A true case of nature versus in Everything Leon and Annemarie did for her is evident in the way she true. herself. If I can see it, so can anybody else.

thing. I Annemarie is the perfect spokesperson for the people who need he lat you of story.

k about People like me.

ay. Did The ones who need hope.

"You could call it the Annemarie Project," I suggest, toying wome up.water glass.

t seems Maybe if I'd had that kind of resource when I first found out ab diagnosis, I wouldn't have been so scared. So destructive. I'd like to a to dowould have told my parents and Caleb what was going on instead of the thelpsworst-case scenario. If there are women out there who can be helped they make the same choices as me, they'd have a better chance a ger?" Ihappier with themselves in the long run.

uff like Jenna and Leon share a look, silently communicating through the When they turn back to me, their smiles say it all.

it to go "We could call it that," Jenna corrects.

oier she I swallow, knowing I already have a lot on my plate but also something tug in my chest that encourages me to take this opportunity. ductive Annemarie isn't here to share her story.

want to But I am.

s to ask I have nothing left to lose anymore, so maybe it's time to finally of "I'm in," I tell them, giving them a watery smile at the release of  $\epsilon$  ersonalsuddenly crashing through the barrier I've kept it behind.

health, Long after I've said my goodbyes to them and they've left, I ne werewarmth take over the emptiness of my body. It lights up the part of m that has been anything but for a while now, and I wonder if it's the or I've been missing out on.

Hope.

. "But I As if the universe knows how badly I need it, another species as shecontentment travels through me when I walk up to my house after we benefitsee something sitting on the front step.

t most. A little stuffed polar bear holding a heart that says two words. I me.

t blood It reminds me of the others I have stashed in my bedroom closet.

nurture. I freeze when I hear "I'm still upset you didn't trust me enoug carrieshonest."

Slowly standing with the bear tight in my hold, I turn to see Caller kindhis hands tucked into his jacket pockets.

Throat thickening as I swallow, I try to gather my thoughts a something. The only thing I can muster is "I understand."

Caleb's eyes move to the ground before heaving out a sigh. "I don *i*th myto do this anymore, Raine."

Those words are a kick to the gut, causing my fingers to clench out mythe bear. He's officially ending it with me. In person. Right here.

think I I guess I can't blame him. Isn't this what I was trying to get him to hinkingwhole time? Hate me? Move on from me?

before Instead of giving me the final send-off, he says, "I can't keep act t beingthis is over when we both know it's not. I need you to be honest with you still love me? Because I never stopped loving you, no matter how ir eyes.hard I tried. It killed me. Every day. Every thought of you living without me. No matter what you said, I was still in it. And I need to I you feel the same."

feeling Gaping at him, I loosen my hold on the bear and stand taller. everything that happened, you still love me?"

He doesn't answer.

He's waiting for mine.

ben up. Shakily, I nod. "I love you."

emotion His dark eyes glisten, as if he's relieved by the response he was he'd get. "Okay. Good." He nods, looking away for a second before to feel adeep breath. "Good."

If y chest My eyes go to the bear again. "Why on earth would I need to be thingyou? It's me who needs to earn your forgiveness."

Fingertips brushing over the stitched words that look handmade, I him as he walks over to me and stops a few feet away. "I asked your park ofteach me how to sew. It's not very good..." His eyes are on the beat ork andit's legible. She fixed a couple of the letters for me so you could tell said."

Forgive My mother taught him how to sew? "You did this for me?"

"I bought the bear," he admits. "I didn't have that much time hands to go all out. Just did the message. Pretty sure your mom wa h to bewring my neck whenever I'd mess up. Remember the bears I used you?"

eb with Of course I do. "I remember everything."

My eyes go back down to the bear, wondering when Mom wou and sayhad time to teach him anything. I'm surprised she didn't say anything either.

"It want Caleb pulls me from the thought. "I was a jackass to you before. why I want you to forgive me. It was a lot to take in, and I know! aroundhandle it well. I'm not going to lie, Raine. That shit is going to take time to get over. Because we could have avoided so much pain if you do the told me what was going on. From the day you got back that summer a years ago."

ing like I know that now—know that none of this was worth it. "I'm sorry." me. Do His head moves back and forth. "I don't want your apology. I'n w damnwith apologies. All I want is to fix it. Better it. No more lies from r a lifeWe won't make it if something like this happens again."

know if He's right. There'd be no trust, no foundation, if we came back place.

"After "I promise," I whisper. "No more lies."

Caleb closes the distance between us, cupping the back of my he pulling me into his chest. I feel his lips against the top of my head shuddering breath release against my hair. He holds me tight, crush bear between us like he's afraid to let go.

n't sure Against my hair, he muffles, "I fucking missed you."

aking a I manage to wrap an arm around his waist and hug him back for time. "I missed you too. Every day."

forgive If it's possible, his grip tightens. "Dad wants to see you. If you're it. You can bring Sigmund. You know nobody would mind."

peek at His dad? "Are you sure?"

mom to Caleb nods, his chin brushing the crown of my head. "He doesn ir. "Butmuch time, Raine. It's now or never. My parents never stopped lovi what itNone of us did."

I clench my eyes closed to fight off the tears. I haven't seen his da graduation, but I've heard that isn't the man who exists anymore. I on myready for it, but I have no choice but to be. For him.

inted to For Caleb.

to get For Denise.

For me.

"Okay."

ld have about it

That's

I didn't

a long

u'd just

ll those

,

m done

low on.

to this ead and

and his shuddering breath release against my hair. He holds me tight, crushing the bear between us like he's afraid to let go.

Against my hair, he muffles, "I fucking missed you."

I manage to wrap an arm around his waist and hug him back for the first time. "I missed you too. Every day."

If it's possible, his grip tightens. "Dad wants to see you. If you're up for it. You can bring Sigmund. You know nobody would mind."

His dad? "Are you sure?"

Caleb nods, his chin brushing the crown of my head. "He doesn't have much time, Raine. It's now or never. My parents never stopped loving you. None of us did."

I clench my eyes closed to fight off the tears. I haven't seen his dad since graduation, but I've heard that isn't the man who exists anymore. I'm not ready for it, but I have no choice but to be. For him.

For Caleb.

For Denise.

For me.

"Okay."

Chapter Thirty-Seven

CALEB

I don't know what Dad says to Raine, but after nearly forty minut room alone together, talking in mumbled tones, she bends down to giv peck on the cheek and a hug that he feebly returns.

More words are whispered.

More nodding.

Then, Raine stands up and smiles down at the man who enters coughing fit until the nurses surround him.

Mom's hand finds my back, brushing it once before walking i living room to be with Dad.

When Raine approaches me, studying my parents at the doorway room, she tucks herself against my front for a hug. "What did he say to I ask curiously.

I hear a soft laugh that gently shakes her body, causing me to loo at her. She pulls back enough to meet my eyes, hers light with humor smiles up at me. "He told me if I ever break your heart again, he'd con and haunt me for the rest of my life."

I blink.

Then blink again.

Then I start laughing until she joins in.

It's only after I shake my head and pull her back into me for anoth that I look over her head to see my parents staring at me with the peaceful smiles on their faces.

They look happy.

Despite everything, they can still smile.

"Hey, Caleb?" Raine peeks up at me, resting her chin on my chest. wondering..."

I look down and wait.

"Do you want to go get some chicken?"

Snorting, I playfully poke her side. "I'm never going to live that am I?"

She shakes her head. "Nope."

I hook an arm around her shoulder and turn to my parents. "We'r to grab dinner. Want us to bring you guys back anything?"

They both shake their heads.

Dad says, "Go be with your girl, kid. I'll see you when you get hor It's a promise I hope he holds on to.

es in a e him a another

nto the

/ of the / you?"

k down r as she ne back

her hug e same

. "I was

Snorting, I playfully poke her side. "I'm never going to live that down, am I?"

She shakes her head. "Nope."

I hook an arm around her shoulder and turn to my parents. "We're going to grab dinner. Want us to bring you guys back anything?"

They both shake their heads.

Dad says, "Go be with your girl, kid. I'll see you when you get home." It's a promise I hope he holds on to.

Chapter Thirty-Eight

CALEB

 $T_{\mbox{\scriptsize HAT}}$  night, Dad passes away in his sleep.

It's a somber moment.

Silent.

Inevitable.

My mother lets out a choked sob.

She wraps me in her arms as the nurses surround his unmoving bowaited to make sure you were going to be okay. And that...that ha enough."

Chapter Thirty-Eight

CALEB

 $T_{\mbox{\scriptsize HAT}}$  night, Dad passes away in his sleep.

It's a somber moment.

Silent.

Inevitable.

My mother lets out a choked sob.

She wraps me in her arms as the nurses surround his unmoving body. "He waited to make sure you were going to be okay. And that...that has to be enough."

Chapter Thirty-Nine

CALEB

Dad's second favorite holiday was New Year's because it mear beginnings. "It doesn't matter what happened in the past because this new chapter of life, son," he'd always say when the countdown began.

Two arms wrap around me from behind, stirring me from the contest I'm having with the stars. "I thought I'd find you out here,' says quietly. I feel her forehead rest between my shoulder blades bef arms tighten around me briefly in a hug before loosening. Walking side, she tugs on her jacket and leans against the railing. "Are you sidon't want me to go with you this week? I know your mom is busy v with the stone carvers to get the gravestone finished and delivered cemetery, so if you need me to come with you to help with th arrangements, I will."

Dad didn't want a funeral. He said he wanted people to celebra lives, not waste them mourning the end of his. Apparently, he and M an in-depth conversation about it a month or so ago. "He knew," Mo me the night he was taken out of the house. "He knew his time was up wanted to stay just a little bit longer. For you and Raine."

Tears burn the backs of my eyes as I clear my throat and try fightir off. The bitter air doesn't help any. Between the nip of chill against r and the way the wind clings to the tears threatening to spill, it may vision even blurrier as I attempt to keep it together.

"You hate missing school," I reply, knowing she's mapped remainder of her degree. Every course and clinical hour is color-code calendar. I don't want to put her behind.

Raine looks from the sky to me. "I'd rather be there for you right already emailed my professors saying I'll be out for a few days."

My heart clenches. "You don't have to do that for me."

Her brown eyes sadden. "Didn't you once tell me that you'd do a

for me?"

I nod, watching her closely when those lips curl softly upward corners.

"Then what makes you think it's any different for me? We're a Caleb. I'm going to be there for you because I wasn't when you neede be before. I'm going to make that up to you every single day to prove this."

it fresh "What about what you need?" I ask.

Her hand rubs my arm slowly. "This isn't about me, Caleb. Takin or two off classes isn't going to kill me."

I'm not surprised that's her answer.

staring Scrubbing my face, I lean against the railing next to her. "Did yo fore her that my favorite thing to do was feed you?"

Head tilting, her hand stills on my arm before lowering to her side didn't know that."

I let loose a breath that eases some of the tightness in my lungs. 'vorking seem small, but it made me feel good to know I could provide for you e other way possible. My dad was the same way with my mom. I bet your the same way when he was able to bring something to the table for y te their your mother."

Raine glances down at the top of the railing. "I never really thoughom told handle that stuff."

Because we wanted to "Total Language".

"Because we wanted to," I tell her. "My dad loved cleaning, do a laundry, cooking dinner, anything he could for my mom. Because the laundry each other, and he knew it made her happy to have someone dote on he had long shifts at the store and came home exhausted."

out the d in her For a while, she doesn't say anything. "I always loved their love." I look over at her.

"You were right before. A lot could have been solved if we'd only now. I about it. I shut too many things down because it's what I'm used to other people do. Mom. Dad. My aunt. Their version of communicati always fighting until somebody gave up trying."

nything There are obvious similarities between her and her mother that point out because there's no reason to. She knows where she went wro

I'm determined to make sure we don't go back to that place.

l at the "We're not your parents," I remind her.

She nods. "I know." Holding up her hand, she says, "I have someth family, you. Wait here."

d me to Raine disappears into the apartment. Not even a minute lat I'm inreappears in the doorway holding a container of something in her hand not going to be as good as the cake your mom makes, but I tried my be mom helped me with it. Don't worry. She didn't spit in it or anything g a dayobviously over her tiff with us. I guess asking her for help winning regot her to realize we're the endgame."

That makes me smile. Knowing her mother approves is the luknowreassurance I need because I know how much her family's approval mher.

. "No. I "There's also soup in the fridge that I brought over. Leon hell make it. It was his wife's recipe."

"It may All I can do is stare at the dessert container that she passes me. She in anythe time to make this for me. With her mother. Who may or may needed feltspit in it for hurting her daughter's feelings when she told me not to. I you andthe chance.

Raine steps closer. "It's officially after midnight. Happy birthday, it about I wish your dad could be here to celebrate with us."

ur lives Taking a deep breath, I gently set the container down beside us a her in for a frontal hug, resting my chin against the top of her hearing thenurses said he was the strongest patient they'd ever had. Nobody wy lovedsame form of cancer as him survives this long. Not even when the oncetreatment to slow the progression of it."

ed meal Her arms go back around my waist. "I'm not surprised. Your fath always one of the strongest people I met."

"One of?" I question, staring at the birthday cake she made me.

I hear her take a soft breath before nuzzling closer to me. I try keep talkedas warm as possible when the chilly breeze starts blowing a little hard seeingvoice is muffled when she replies, "I always considered you to ng wasstrongest, so it makes sense. He raised you to be."

Closing my eyes, I move my fingers to the back of her head and I won'tbrush them through her hair. I feel her cheek press against my chesng, andstand like this for a while longer.

Moving her hat farther down so it's covering the tops of her recears, I press a light kiss against her head and say, "Friend had a nice rining forbut I've always preferred calling you mine. Just about ended me wheren't."

er, she She's quiet for a long time, and I wonder what's on her mind. Evels. "It's I feel something press against the spot just above my heart.

est. My Her lips.

§. She's "I missed the sound of that too," she admits.

ne over That's when Dad's words echo in my head for a second time toni doesn't matter what happened in the past because this is your new cho sind of life, son."

neans to While I never wanted to live a chapter of my life without my makes me want to be the best one I possibly can be to my own kid so ped meno matter how we have it, so I can give them even a fraction of the 1 got when I was growing up.

le spent As if she knows what I'm thinking, Raine places one of her han ot havemine. "It's going to be okay eventually. Maybe not right now, but som I'd take Someday.

I'd like to think that someday, everything will make sense. "Sol Caleb.sounds like a promise from her that I have every intention of holding l it means I still get to have her in my life. For now, I'll take the little m nd pullbecause those will build into much bigger ones.

d. "The I find myself smiling in the dark.

vith the Someday.

hey get "I like the sound of that," I tell her, tipping her chin up so she's loc me.

ner was — After watching each other for a few seconds, she closes the distan kiss is slow, patient. Tender. So are the little touches—a stroke of he against my beating heart, fingernails lazily dancing over my collarbo bing herfingers curling over my shoulder and squeezing.

ler. Her We move inside to the bedroom, taking our time peeling each be thelayers off until there's nothing between us at all.

I lay her down carefully, brushing loose hair away from her faclightlyyou sure?"

t as we She places her hand on top of the one I have cupping her cheek. To says the one word that could have changed our story a long time ago. "

It fuels the fire that ignites under my skin, coaxing every flick ng to it, finger and hitch of breath until Raine's back arches. Webbing her ien youthrough my hair as I kiss down her body, she tugs the moment my meets the spot between her legs.

ntually, Every sound I draw from her gets me harder until she's pawing shoulders to pull me up. Climbing up her body, I look down from hover over her and say, "From now on, no matter what, it's us. We're together. Hear me?"

ght. "It She nods. "I hear you."

apter of I press a kiss against the crook of her neck and ease myself insi "Do you feel me?"

dad, it Her fingernails dig into my shoulders as her legs wrap around my meday, welcome me deeper. "Y-yes, I feel you."

things I Another kiss against her throat as I start moving. She meets n every time I slide inside, causing me to swallow a groan.

ds over When I meet her eyes again, I say, "Us."

eday." She stares, her hand cupping the back of my neck as we bring eac closer to the edge, and repeats, "Us."

meday" That's all it takes before I let go, knowing we're finally on the sam ier to ifTogether. Us against the world, as it always should have been.

oments From the other side of the closed door, we hear a loud bark that brother moment.

Snorting, I drop my forehead against Raine's. "And Si apparently."

oking at She cracks a smile. "We're sort of a package deal."

ce. The

er hand

0

ne, and In the following days, it seems like things are starting to go back to a Or whatever my new version of normal is without Dad. I miss him ev of our but remember he's looking after me and everything I do still. Even if I here.

e. "Are Which makes today frustrating, because even though he's reminit's okay not to have it together all the time, I still want to make him put hen she Staring at the bill in my hand, I let out a frustrated sigh before droj 'Yes."

of myonto the pile of other mail with red lettering on it that nobody wants t fingerstry counting my blessings that not all of them are for the store—some mouthschool. Not that getting anything from the financial aid office is neces good thing. But it makes the choice I've made about taking a brea at myschool that much smarter.

where I It's time to shift gears, like Dad would have wanted me to.

e in this I'm listening, old man.

When Matt walks into the store with two coffees, I know one of for me. He pauses when he gets halfway in, eyebrows raised, when ide her.the way I reorganized the shelves. After getting rid of all the old invedecided it was time to clean up the place a bit and do some revamping. waist to "Hey," Matt greets, passing me the cup and nodding toward the with his chin. "It looks great in here. You've done a lot of work."

ny hips We slap hands before I lift the coffee to my mouth and take a needed sip. I haven't had any all day, and it's amazing I'm still func considering I spent most of the night helping Raine study for one th otherupcoming exams.

The space feels a lot more open between the shift in shelving and the page.work to clean old grime up. It wasn't that the place was dirty, amazing what some deep cleaning can do.

eaks up "What did you want to talk to me about?" Matt asks, leaning aga countertop. "You said something about whatever it is being a gmund, opportunity for me."

I set my coffee down and lean back in the new chair I got for bel counter. Bea dropped it off, saying it was an old one from the bak didn't like anymore because it didn't match the "aesthetic," which I thi bullshit considering nothing matches there and I've never even seen th in all my years of getting baked goods and caffeine at her place.

normal. "You know a kid on the football team named Wells? He's one of t ery day running backs that took over my position." Whenever I see the le's not campus, he always waves a little too excitedly at me until one of his smacks him into stopping.

ded me Matt's brow wrinkles. "I don't know. Maybe? I've only been to a roud. the games. One of the new coaches is a fucking snake, so I don't rea pping it like going and watching him fuck up the team more than Pearce did the end."

o see. I My lips twitch upward. "I'm actually kind of glad you said that."

are for Confusion twists his expression.

sarily a I grab the paper that I took off the corkboard by the student centerals is frommy bag and slide it over to him, watching as he scans the bolded leacross the front.

"You thought of me when you saw a job posting for the university." I tap the bottom. "It's for coaching. Wells came up to me a wh them issaying he thought I should consider it, but I had way too much on my he seeseven entertain the idea. Then I started wondering if I should reach ntory, Isomeone in HR because they're willing to pay for grad school dur employment."

e aisles Matt looks up at me. "Why didn't you reach out then? If they cou some of that stress off your shoulders, then it's worth a conversation."

much- "I'm actually going to be taking a break after this semester to. Rigitioning I want my attention to go to the store and family stuff. Dad was right. of herreally need this degree. If I change my mind, I'll come back to it, but other things to focus on. Adding coaching into my schedule would har all theimpossible when I've barely had time to even get my schoolwork done but it's not in the cards for me."

Matt frowns. "That sucks, man. So you're leaving the universite the May?" He acts like I won't be minutes away.

a good "Don't miss me yet. I'll obviously be here, and you know wh apartment is. But yeah. It's time for me to step back and stop trying hind theall, like you guys keep telling me."

ery she It's about damn time I accepted that taking care of myself doesn' ink wasI'm showing weakness. I know my support system will ensure I don is chairburning both ends of the stick like I was, and I'm good with that. He have people who I can turn to.

the new Took me long enough.

kid on He huffs out a sigh and nods, eyes going down to the posting aga friendsyou think I'd be good for this? I've never been much for leadership."

That's because he's never had to be. "You know the same things I few ofyou said yourself the current coach is a joke. What better way to char lly feelthan to be the change the team needs? You're in grad school too. Yo towardjust as well off getting the financial help. Plus if you're on staff, then things with you and Rachel won't seem so damning."

He stands a little taller at the mention of her. "You've really thou out, huh?"

r out of I lift a shoulder. "I'm looking out for a buddy. You should call t etteringpop by the office if you're interested. But, Matt?" His brows go up meets my eyes. "You'd make a great coach. This is your chance to pro?" I know how you miss that life."

ile ago His eyes go back to the paper. "I have to admit, part of the fun wit plate towas the chase."

out to I don't say anything.

ing my His nostrils twitch. "That got old though," he murmurs.

All I do is nod and pat him on the arm. "I bet. But this is your oppould taketo do something about that. If you two want to make it work, here's a do it."

ht now, He grabs the paper and folds it, tucking it into his back pocket. "Y I don'twould have done something like that. I ever tell you about the time he I havean interview at the grocery store to be a bag boy when I was fifteen?" ve been I hadn't known that, but I smile. "Sounds like something he'd as it iswanted to help anyone who needed it. Why didn't they give you the jo

Matt flinches. "They might have remembered me from an incrsity incouple of years before then."

"What was the incident?"

ere my He looks sheepish. "Shoplifting. It was one pack of gum and a car to do itI was dared to do it. Turns out the cameras actually worked. The douc who dared me to steal that shit said they were dummy cameras t't meanpeople from stealing."

I't keep Shaking my head, I ask, "Did my dad ever ask you about the job a appy tointerview?"

Matt snickers. "Yep. When I admitted why they wouldn't hire said, 'You better pull your head out of your ass, son. You've got to in. "Sopotential to screw yourself over by doing dumb shit."

I can practically hear Dad saying that, which makes something do, and chest lighten under the pressure that's been sitting on it for a while. " ou'd be "Yeah. He was." I can tell he's thinking about Rachel when he mu maybe "Still is."

1 age that right."

We're quiet for a long moment.

ght this "Thanks for this," my friend finally says, patting his back pocket. '

I'll reach out to them this afternoon. It's probably time I do what yo hem orsays and make something of myself."

p as he Standing with my coffee, I point out what he obviously doesn't see ve that already were. This is just another option to explore. For you and w future you decide to have."

th Rach He glances at his phone, then at the door, before turning back "You've probably heard this a lot from your mom, but I know yo would be proud of you. I'll miss bugging the shit out of you on camputhink the move you're making is a good one. Selfless."

ortunity Even if I have heard it before, it still means a lot to me. My tone is way togravelly when I offer a thick "Thanks" in response. "Hey. Before you He waits for me with raised brows. "You okay?"

our dad I swipe a palm down my leg. "You've had a good life, right? got meadopted didn't make any big changes that you regret or anything, did i Matt blinks. "Wow. Uh..."

do. He I haven't told him or DJ about the situation with Raine or what the b?" holds. That's not necessarily my story to tell. Not yet anyway ident aunderstand why he's looking at me like I'm insane for asking that ques

"No. All the changes I went through were good ones because parents. I doubt I'd say the same if I were with my biological ones, will bar they are. My dad says life has a funny way of putting us where we nee the bags We may not always understand it, but we should never fight it."

o scare Yeah, my dad would always say the same thing to me. "Thanks. A He dips his chin in acknowledgment as he backs toward the from the the "Oh, by the way, DJ texted about the celebration party for Shelldon."

doing RSVPs so they know how much pizza to order. It's Teenage me, he*Ninja Turtles* themed."

o much Why am I not surprised that he's throwing a party for his new torton still can't believe Skylar agreed to getting him one."

in my My friend snickers. "The things we do for love. Am I right?"

He was I find myself smiling, thinking of everything I'll do for Raine to sure she knows I'm in this no matter what. "Right." umbles,

"I think our dad

e. "You hatever

to me.
our dad is, but I

a little go..."

' Being t?"

e future r. So I stion. of my hoever d to be.

gain."

1t door.

They're

Mutant

oise? "I o make

Epilogue

RAINE

 $T_{\rm HE}$  soft knock from the doorway has me lifting my smiling face fit sleeping six-month-old in my arms to the old man watching us rock chair he made from scratch. "Told you he'd love the rocker," Leo walking in slowly with his cane.

I bend down to press a kiss against Bentley's head. "He hasn't l finicky since we started using it. And those bottles you suggested have godsend. He doesn't puke as much as he did. My mom had to come h with laundry when I was going through all the shirts he was getting over."

Leon stops beside me, carefully reaching down to brush his finger Bentley's plump cheek. "Jenna swore by those bottles. Their young the same problem with colic, so I was hoping they'd help."

Bentley coos, making my heart melt. He's had a chokehold on r since Skylar put him into my arms for the first time. I always knew a DJ would have cute babies, but I never expected them to be this perfec

"You know," I tell Leon quietly, hugging Bentley a little tighter chest, "you're basically his honorary grandpa. Sky said so herself wl picked him up last time. She's glad he has a grandparent figure since l so far away in Cali."

Leon's lips twitch. "God help the child."

I snort, shaking my head at the man I've grown close to. He likes to over food for us even though I'm getting better at cooking these day think it's really an excuse to see the baby since he makes appe whenever we're babysitting for the new parents. It was a few weeks a birth that he met little Bentley Lucas for the first time, and he brough goody basket of diapers, binkies, and hand-me-down clothes that wanted to pass along to someone who needed them. Like the rest of u has been wrapped around Bentley's finger ever since he was born Sky's junior year.

When DJ and Skylar told us that they were expanding their beyond their four-legged tortoise son, I was ecstatic. Shocked but a Apparently, we weren't the only ones surprised by the news. The parthe adorable infant were too when they found over the summer how far Skylar was. And when DJ invited Caleb and me over for dinner before he was born, the last thing we expected was to be asked to large the son's godparents.

What made it even more special was the name they chose. DJ wer as finding someone with a 1938 Bentley like the one Richard was restore and getting a picture with a custom-made onesie for their future been as Lindon loved.

been a And they did.

sick all other images of her, Richard, Caleb, and me over the years.

Even though he was worried about his mother being alone est had childhood house, I can tell Denise is happy to be surrounded by so good memories. She's even come back to the store, which is good sine ever website has boosted business for them like Caleb hoped it would.

when I'm not at Bea's or school, I try popping by to help whenever too. But it's easy to see the mother-son duo have things handled. And them time together that I know they need now more than ever.

I get it. Every Friday, I see my father for our usual lunch dates, an Saturday, I see Mom for homecooked meals in. Even though we still third of what we try creating, it's fun. They're both doing better the ever have, and it makes me happy for them. For all of us.

"Want to hold him?" I ask, standing up and gesturing toward the standing up and gesturing toward the standing chair. I wait until Leon's carefully seated before putting the baby in his arances. "How's Jenna and the family?"

His eyes are focused on my godson when he says, "They're doing tover a you and Caleb would like to come."

I smile as he plays with Bentley's tiny hand. "I'll have to see wha s, Leon got planned because we might be doing something with our parents, let you know."

Our families have been talking about doing a group holiday together family Caleb's mom's house since our apartment is too small to have everyour ecstatic.at once. It'll be our first get-together with both our parents, so rents to everything to go smoothly.

ir along Leon smiles when Bentley's fingers wrap around part of his shortly"Well, they're all more than welcome too. The more the merrier. And be theirwould invite half the town for the holidays and make enough food county."

nt as far He still tells me stories about his late wife all the time, especiall nted to Jenna and I formally started the Annemarie Project, which has gone e son to the local news after a 5K walk we planned back in March for endom nany inawareness month.

Our goal is to start small, raising funds to give to other organization we can partner with in the future for educational purposes. We'd love to theevents for other national awareness months and to find educators to shealth classes in high schools, so we've been mapping out the best noi in histo work with while building a name for ours.

nce theit's only going to spread farther and wider the more we share our storig

Even though I'm focusing on finishing my clinical hours, we ser I cantogether so he can teach me new things. For my twenty-fourth birth it givesgave me roses from her rose bushes and told me he'd help me with a out front if I wanted. "It could be our next lesson. Annemarie tau deveryeverything I know," he said, studying the front yard of our appound burn abuilding. It's bland at best, barely any lawn for Sigmund to go on, but an theyuntil we figure out something else.

"Can I ask you something?" I ask, watching the two of them togerockinghe makes little baby noises.

is arms. His lips twitch higher at the common question he gets a lot from mever stopped you before."

ig well. I huff out a laugh. "Have you ever thought about life after Anne ering if Seeing somebody new? Having a companion again?"

"I got a dog, didn't I?"

t we've He knows I'm not referring to the golden retriever he adopted earl but I'llyear. "But what about a human companion who isn't a baby or relyou?"

ether at There's no hesitation. "No." ne over "Why not?"

I want He continues to rock my godson. "For the same reason you went the Anders boy," he answers easily. His eyes lift to mine. "Beca thumb.amount of time or distance could ever make us forget how much v nemariethem. You can never lose that feeling when it's the person you're mea for thewith."

His loyalty to his wife is adorable. There's still a light in h y sincewhenever he talks about her. She's one of the few people outside of l viral inand his own grandchildren who could soften his features.

letriosis Leon's eyes go back down to the little boy in his arms. "Do you know the wisest thing Annemarie ever said that still sticks with me ons thatday?"

to host Interest has me standing a little straighter.

peak to "She said," he tells me, playing with Bentley's chubby cheeks vaprofitsfinger, "that you will never know the true value of a moment until it b a memory. I'm sure she got it from one of those books she loved readive, andit's true. Looking back, there's not one thing I would change becauses. was how our story was supposed to go. Hard times and all."

still get Before I can say anything, I hear Caleb call out as he walks throday, hefront door. Within seconds, he's in the guest room where we keep I gardenduring his visits, with a huge smile on his face as soon as he sees his get me He presses a kiss against my temple. "I'm sorry I'm late. Ronny I artmenthis little girl by the store, and we got to exchanging war stories."

it'll do My eyes roll at his reference to the diaper fiasco we experienced o when DJ and Skylar had a date night. It was messy and the foules of the asCaleb and I have ever smelled, but it was practice for the future determined to build for ourselves someday. Once I finish my certificat ne. "It'sget a stable job in an office and Anders Hardware finally quiets from business he got from the website remodel.

emarie? "We'll have to have them over for dinner sometime. Speaking of"to Leon, who's in the process of standing up to pass Bentley over to —"we'd love to have you for dinner tonight if you can stay. I finally | lier thisturkey casserole recipe you gave me to good use."

lated to Leon simply says, "I've got nowhere else to be tonight."

I turn from him to the man holding our godson and feel a warmth chest that hasn't gone away since Bentley first looked up at me wit gorgeous blue eyes. Leaning my cheek against Caleb's shoulder, I le back to content breath and soak in what we've made for ourselves desp iuse noobstacles.

ve love And I realize in that moment that I wouldn't change a single thin nt to bemy story with Caleb either.

Because we learned from all the pain.

"One day," he whispers, kissing my temple and staring down at th is eyes Bentley"this will be us. You ready for that?"

And I reply with the same word I hope to tell him when he asks to want tome again. "Yes."

to this

Loved Caleb and Raine? REVIEW HERE

WANT MORE LINDON U? READ ON FOR A PEEK AT BEG YO

TRUST ME, vith his NOW AVAILABLE FROM BLOOM BOOKS. ecomes ing, but ise that ugh the Bentley odson. brought ne time st thing we're ion and the big

—I turn caleb put that

1 in my chest that hasn't gone away since Bentley first looked up at me with those gorgeous blue eyes. Leaning my cheek against Caleb's shoulder, I let out a content breath and soak in what we've made for ourselves despite the obstacles.

And I realize in that moment that I wouldn't change a single thing about my story with Caleb either.

Because we learned from all the pain.

"One day," he whispers, kissing my temple and staring down at the baby, "this will be us. You ready for that?"

And I reply with the same word I hope to tell him when he asks to marry me again. "Yes."

Loved Caleb and Raine? REVIEW HERE

WANT MORE LINDON U? READ ON FOR A PEEK AT BEG YOU TO TRUST ME, NOW AVAILABLE FROM BLOOM BOOKS.

Chapter One

SKYLAR

 $B_{\text{AD}}$  decisions taste like rum, coke, and something metallic. A tarreminds me of the time my older sisters dared me to see how many que could fit into my mouth at once.

With fluttering eyelids and heavy limbs, I come to with a dry mocloudy head, finding it hard to move in the soft sheets covering my body. Sheets that don't feel as soft as the expensive, certified-organic threads covering the twin mattress in my room.

The bed under my leaden limbs feels too lumpy, nothing like the foam pad covering the school-supplied mattress on my raised frame.

One of my sticky eyelids peels open in confusion, vision blurry to take in the unfamiliar setup of the room. It's bigger and colder to double I share with my freshman roommate Rebecca, and the furn nothing like the stuff I have.

It takes a few seconds, but I quickly realize the reality of the sire Bolting upright, I careen to the side when dizziness slams into me. The sheet falls down my body, exposing the untied, wrinkled purple wrap borrowed from my friend Aliyah that's exposing the peach bra I'd slip underneath. I suck in a sharp breath when my eyes go to the emp beside me, then slowly to the side, where I see what's thrown onto the Time stops.

Panic seeps into my rib cage.

I lift the sheet and shakily lower it once I see the naked skin it's co then glance back at the black leggings and panties in the middle of th They're the only things I'd worn that were mine. The shirt, shoes, a pushup bra were all from the girls I befriended who insisted I needed to up for the party they were dragging me to.

You'll have fun.

We won't let you out of our sight.

My recollection of the events beyond letting them play with my stablack-dyed hair and telling me what makeup would look best on my t is fuzzy.

Too fuzzy to put together how I got in a room I don't recognize v pants off.

Doing a quick scan to double-check that I'm alone, I toss my let the side of the bed and wince at the ache between them. I bolt tow ste that clothing, worried someone will bust in. Tugging the panties up my larters I stop when I glance down and see the small smears of blood on the integration my thighs.

uth and I stare.

chilled Not breathing.

Not blinking.

Thud, thud, thud. The drumming between my head and heart is i e thick, demanding my attention as I stare at the red smattering my skin.

A moment or two later, I force myself to finish getting dressed without able hands.

Pressing an ear against the wooden door to see if I hear anyone ou iture is heels tucked in my hands and my heart lodged in the back of my throat heels tucked in my hands and my heart lodged in the back of my throat here.

I cringe at each creak of the floorboards under my bare feet as tuation. down the narrow hallway toward the wooden staircase. I don't kno shirt I time it is because my phone is dead, but the sun is out and blindi pped on making the headache throbbing inside my temples ten times worse.

As I creep down the steps and toward the front door, I notice that ty spot no remnants of a party left. No plastic cups lying around, no food carpet, no weird boozy smells that I vaguely remember from the night

The bits I do recall consist of a packed house that made n claustrophobic, loud music that made it impossible to hear what my e floor. were saying as I followed them into the mass of bodies, and the s nd new Cheap beer.

I'm almost to the door when I freeze midstep after hearing, "Who are you?"

My body locks up from the deep voice behind me. I don't recognot that that says much. I'm not familiar with most men around here my small circle of peers is made up of my roommate Rebecca and a fe ubborn,girls—Deanna and Aliyah—I met during orientation a month before.

an skin Footsteps come from somewhere else, stopping close by. A seconc less deep and more amused, says, "Huh. I thought everyone did their w vith myshame already. Sorry, big man."

I make myself look over my shoulder, but I don't know why. I gs overwith two different faces. One boyish and clearly amused, if the miscl ard myglint in his blue eyes is any indication, and the other full of...nothi legs, Iemotion. Nothing readable. The shorter of the two—though not by I sides ofgrins at me before scoping out my body in a once-over that makes me make a break for it.

If I were smart, I wouldn't let them stare and leer. The shorter on his head until his messy blond hair flops over his forehead and lips k. He elbows his friend, who looks massive and far less enthused n sync,presence in comparison.

Both are built like athletes. Strong. Broad. Like they could take h shakyanother person their size or larger if they wanted to. Deanna said the was at the football house.

tside it, We won't let you out of our sight is what Dee promised me.

d black How did I get separated from them?

t. "We didn't know anyone else was here," the taller, stoic-looking o I tiptoeme. His lips press into a firm line as he watches me, eyes nan w whatAccusatory.

ng me, I'm uncomfortable.

Hungover.

there's Confused.

on the It doesn't take much to figure out what exactly happened last night before.makes me feel itchy. Dirty. My mouth feels dry as cotton, and I just ne feelgo back to the dorms and take a long, hot shower.

friends We won't let you out of our sight.

cent of But where are they now?

the hell

şnize it,

e, since

w other girls—Deanna and Aliyah—I met during orientation a month before.

Footsteps come from somewhere else, stopping close by. A second voice, less deep and more amused, says, "Huh. I thought everyone did their walks of shame already. Sorry, big man."

I make myself look over my shoulder, but I don't know why. I'm met with two different faces. One boyish and clearly amused, if the mischievous glint in his blue eyes is any indication, and the other full of...nothing. No emotion. Nothing readable. The shorter of the two—though not by much—grins at me before scoping out my body in a once-over that makes me want to make a break for it.

If I were smart, I wouldn't let them stare and leer. The shorter one cocks his head until his messy blond hair flops over his forehead and lips kick up. He elbows his friend, who looks massive and far less enthused by my presence in comparison.

Both are built like athletes. Strong. Broad. Like they could take down another person their size or larger if they wanted to. Deanna said the party was at the football house.

We won't let you out of our sight is what Dee promised me.

How did I get separated from them?

"We didn't know anyone else was here," the taller, stoic-looking one tells me. His lips press into a firm line as he watches me, eyes narrowing. Accusatory.

I'm uncomfortable.

Hungover.

Confused.

It doesn't take much to figure out what exactly happened last night, and it makes me feel itchy. Dirty. My mouth feels dry as cotton, and I just want to go back to the dorms and take a long, hot shower.

We won't let you out of our sight.

But where are they now?

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Caleb and Raine's story would not be possible without the wonderful team. I struggled with these characters from day one and went thromany different drafts before finally writing this beautiful romance. didn't believe I could do it, I might have thrown in the towel long now.

And a BIG thank you to all the readers who have patiently waited book. I know it's been a long time coming, but I'd like to think it worth the wait.

Until the next books xx B

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Caleb and Raine's story would not be possible without the wonderful Bloom team. I struggled with these characters from day one and went through so many different drafts before finally writing this beautiful romance. If they didn't believe I could do it, I might have thrown in the towel long before now.

And a BIG thank you to all the readers who have patiently waited for this book. I know it's been a long time coming, but I'd like to think it's been worth the wait.

Until the next books xx B

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

B. Celeste is a new adult and contemporary romance author who gives to raw, realistic characters with emotional storylines that tug heartstrings. She was born and raised in upstate New York, where s resides with her four-legged feline sidekick, Oliver "Ollie" Queen. H for reading and writing began at an early age and only grew strong getting a BA in English and an MFA in English and creative writing she's not writing, she's working out, binge-watching reality game shor spending time with her friends and family.

Website:

authorbceleste.com

Facebook:

AuthorBCeleste

Instagram:

@authorbceleste

TikTok:

@authorbceleste

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

B. Celeste is a new adult and contemporary romance author who gives voices to raw, realistic characters with emotional storylines that tug on the heartstrings. She was born and raised in upstate New York, where she still resides with her four-legged feline sidekick, Oliver "Ollie" Queen. Her love for reading and writing began at an early age and only grew stronger after getting a BA in English and an MFA in English and creative writing. When she's not writing, she's working out, binge-watching reality game shows, and spending time with her friends and family.

Website:

authorbceleste.com

Facebook:

AuthorBCeleste

Instagram:

@authorbceleste

TikTok:

@authorbceleste