

When you're bound to LOVE

Introduction

I introduce myself as uSiphosenkosi Ngudla. Most of my friends usually call me Spho. Some call me ubhabha since I'm the youngest one in my squad and the only one not married. The rest of who I am will be unfolded in my story as follows. Molweni manene namanenekazi. I met my boyfriend, Simphiwe, 3 years ago while I was still a junior at work. As unusual as some might think we met at a club one night and kept in contact since. We moved in together after a year and that's where we are. His business is up and running. Our relationship.....well thenthat's down and crawling. I never minded helping him start his business, providing capital.....from my own savings, taking care of his son. Our life had never been better. Ekhaya as far as my memory serves, I grew up with both parents, I remember mama esithi I had an older half-brother somewhere out there. His name was Sibulele. He never visited, I don't even know what he looks like. My parents fought a lot, often my father would beat my mother after arguments and I had to pretend I couldn't hear anything. We depended on him for everything whenever I asked umama why singahambi she would ask me who would pay for my school fees and put food in my belly, and so wanyamezela. She went through all the pain. I also went through my own pain where my mother turned a blind eye and deaf ear to everything....

It's a Friday afternoon, my favorite day of the week. I packed my things from my work desk into my bag and walked out my office. "Spho." I heard my annoying boss call me. Me: "ewe bhuti." I turned and went to his office. Me: "Harold." H: "Hi. Please close the door and sit." he looked like he was about to pass out. I did as told and sat down. Me: "are you okay?" I asked with the least bit of interest. Honestly? I just wanted to get home. H: "yeah..I just need to talk to someone." ndaske ndabhidwa. He did not at all befriend anyone in this office ever since he arrived now xa exakekile he needs to talk? Look at God's amazing work. Me: "about what? Don't you want to call your-" H: "no...look I know I'm a jerk okay? It's just...I've just worked so hard, to get this company to come around and its impossible. I can't let people go, I....all I've been trying to do is save everyone else from getting fired. I cut my salary in half just to compensate for the cleaners salaries. I sold my second car. I'm, I can't do this anymore. So....the head office called. He said we're merging with Cell-com." Me: "but There's going to be retrenchments. People are going to lose their jobs." H: "no. I couldn't let that happen. They're only letting go of the dead weight. Cellcom is doing the retrenching to come join us." Me: "well...it all worked out. So it's a good thing right?" H: "yeah...but you'll have a new boss. I'm not going to be part of it." Me: "you can't leave. Ever since you got here nobody has lost their job, the company is in good hands-" H: "Hun, I'm old. The CEO that is joining is younger and more advanced than me. You'll be in great hands. I'm counting on you to help him. Okay?" Me: "what about you?" H: "I'll be fine. I'm moving back to Australia." Me: "when?" H: "this is my second last week." Me: "so next week Friday is your last day?" he nodded. I went over to hug him. Me: "I wish you all the best." H: "thank you Spho. Enjoy your weekend." Me: "you too." I took my bag and went to my car. Well, I didn't like Harold but it was sad seeing him like that. Usually he's bold and head on, right now he looked so weak and defenseless. I felt so sorry for him, simultaneously hating my new boss already. I don't even know who he is yet he's already on my last nerve. I drove home listening to Metro FM trying to block out my thoughts and focusing on getting home. I finally parked my car inside the garage. My honey was home. His red Audi was parked in its spot. I got out my car and walked into the house. "mamaaa!!!" Buhle came running. Me: "my baby!" I picked my little boy up and kissed him. Me: "Unjani uBuhle wam?" Buhle: "uright. Look mama, look what I made for you." I gasped. Me: "this is sooo beautiful baby! Who did this? You?" he blushed. "hey.." the older version of him appeared. Me: "Uyaphi? All dressed and ready?" he kissed my cheek. Me: "Simpfiwe." Him: "babe. Ndisaya apha eFinnezz. Ndizobuya kwangoku." Me: "but I just got here." Simphiwe: "babe. Trust me. Ndifuna uyolanda intwana yam. Isuka eDubane baby. He doesn't know his way. We're going to have a few drinks, then come back here. Ok?" Me: "okay." he kissed my lips. Simphiwe: "I love you." Me: "I love you too." he bent down and tickled his son. Simphiwe: "ndiyeza kwedin. Ungagezi." he went out. I put my bags down, ndakhangela into yopheka while Buhle was watching cartoons. I decided to make something quick because I was tired and a bit lazy today. I made pap and wors with spicy tomato gravy. While doing the cooking I tidied up the house and cleaned. Once I was finished cooking I joined Buhle with his cartoons. Soon after that Simphiwe came back with his 'friend from Durban.' I will stop right there. You might notice a bit of tension in the household, if not, that's okay. We've been trying to play it off. Buhle is Simphiwe's son, with his ex. He comes over every Friday to Sunday. He calls me mama and enjoys every second here with me. Simphiwe on the other hand thinks it's confusing for the boy to have two "mama's" in his life. Hmm.... I don't know if that meant I should pay less attention to the boy or tell him to call me sisi. I was confused, anyway, Khange kuphinde kuvanwe. Back to the story. Simphiwe: "baby." he came to me. He was drunk. Simphiwe: "nanku lomjita bendithetha ngaye. Lakhe, this is my woman." he smiled. Lakhe: "molo sisi." I shook his hand. His eyes fixed on mine. Me: "hello." Lakhe: "it's a pleasure to meet you." Me: "same here." I let go of his hand before it got too awkward. Me: "so, I'll dish up." Simphiwe was already in the kitchen with his head peeping in a pot. Simphiwe: "andiselambe." Me: "suka ndiphake." Lakhe: "do you need help?" ndanentloni ngulombuzo. I don't know why. Me: "no I'm fine. You can have a seat." they went to sit so that ndiphake. While they were talking, I eavesdropped. Simphiwe: "so....iphi la cherrie yakho? U-Banger?" Lakhe: "andina cherrie mna." Simphiwe: "come on, you had a girl, we called her Banger eskeemin because ebeyi flame lamntana. What happened?" Lakhe: "we broke up." Simphiwe: "oh? So, ubusithi ulapha ebhayi for how long?" Lakhe: "for good I hope." he looked up and I diverted my eyes back to my task. Simphiwe: "ushiye i-durban for PE?" Lakhe: "yeah. I have a new job lined up. Its a bit hush hush for now but ke, that's the deal." Simphiwe: "great. Awuy'fun i-beer?" Lakhe: "no." he looked over at Buhle. Simphiwe: "I'm confused." Lakhe: "andizokwazi usela kukho umntana apha." his phone rang. Lakhe: "excuse me." he got up waphuma. I took out the trays ndabeka plates on them. Simphiwe: "he's changed. He's not the same crazy guy I know. Spontaneous and wild. Uske wanyaba ngoku. Buhle uqhelile mos ubakho ndisela." Me: "maybe he hasn't changed but perhaps Grown." Simphiwe: "what are trying to say?" Me: "I said what I wanted to say. I'm not trying to say anything else." Simphiwe: "so ndim lo ungekakhuli?" Me: "akhange ndithethe ngawe ke mna." Simphiwe: "but that's what you're implying. That mna since ndisela phambi koBuhle andikhulanga." Me: "I didn't even mention uBuhle. I was referring to the crazy and spontaneous friend you used to have. Perhaps he has grown out of that." Simphiwe: "I know exactly what you mean Siphosenkosi. Ndikuvile." Lakhe came back in the house. Simphiwe walked out. Lakhe: "and now?" I just shrugged and put the trays on the table. Me: "Iza Buhle my love. Come pray and eat." he got up and closed his eyes, with his little hands joined together in front of his chest. Buhle: "God please bless our food and family. Amen." Lakhe: "Amen." Me: "amen honey." Lakhe: "uhm...let me check up on Simpra. Make sure he's fine." Me: "ok." he walked out after his friend. Me and the boy ate our supper. Then washed our dishes. We went to the bathroom to have our night bath together bengekabuyi abo tshomi. I put Buhle in his pajamas and I got into my gown sayobukela i-TV in the lounge together. It was around 1am when I heard a knock on my door. I'd fallen asleep with Buhle on the couch. I checked who it was and it was the retard plus his friend. Drunk to death. I opened the door. Me: "don't you dare make a sound and wake up uBuhle or I swear -" Simphiwe: "shhh. Hleli nje ungunywe nywe nywe. Khathule." andakhubeka. Me: "put him on the couch." I took Buhle to the room ndabuya for uzovala. Me: "and wena? Where you gonna sleep?" Lakhe: "I'll go to....the hotel." Me: "unje? You barely know PE and you're going to drive around drunk? Ubanjwe apha or get hijacked or even worse uwe nalemoto. Sizothini kokwenu? Nxx! Lonto anizikwazi man nidibane." I locked the door. Lakhe: "you're gorgeous naxa uvuka." I was dumb for a few seconds and a bit motionless. I don't even know when last I was complimented. Plus bendivuka and a bit groggy. Also, Lakhe was light brown, caramel skinned stunner. Easy to look at with a bit of a meaty bone body. And fit. Me: "I...uhm...enkosi. There's a room. You can share it netshomi yakho." I opened the spare room and noticed I forgot to put in the sheets. They were neatly folded by uSis Thobeka on Thursday when I insisted that I will take care of it since elega i-meeting yeskolo somntanakhe. Me: "Oh my Goodness." I made the bed as quick as I possibly could. When I finished I turned around and found him right behind me. My heart beat raced rapidly at this point. I was suddenly afraid of him. I began shaking involuntarily. He looked as sober as a judge and unshaken. Not even blinking. Me: "Lakhe." I breathed. Lakhe: "Yes." Me: "you didn't drink did you?" Lakhe: "nope." I didn't know whether to sprint for my life or slowly escape. How could I let a man I didn't even know come into my house and offer him a place to sleep. He could be a rapist. A serial killer! What if he cuts off my boobs? Lakhe: "why are you scared?" Me: "I'm not." Lakhe: "Don't lie to me. You're nervous. You're shaking. Do you.....think I might hurtyou?" that last sentence was as broken as my heart. Whispered yet screaming for help. Me: "no." I lied. I know you're about to. Lakhe: "hm." he looked at the bed. Lakhe: "thank you for your hospitality." he stepped out of my way and I fast paced walked out that room to my own and locked myself in there with uBuhle. What the fucking hell was that all about! Hebethuna Simphiwe brought home a psychotic killer? What was this?

I struggled to sleep all night kwade kwabetha u6am. I got up and brushed my teeth then went to the kitchen. The house was a bit dark, a little bit of light was seeping through the closed curtains. I checked the kettle with my hand and it was steaming hot. Me: "ouch!!" I blew into my hand. "I thought I'd make you some coffee when you woke up. I'm sorry." andothuka I almost fainted. Me: "Can. You. Stop!" Lakhe: "stop what?" I looked at the cup in his hand. Me: "being weird! You're freaking me out!" he looked disappointed. I felt bad suddenly. Me: "look, xa uvuka, uthi good morning. You have a bit of light in the house. You don't loiter in the dark and have hot cups of coffee ready." Lakhe: "noted." I took a deep breath. Lakhe: "can I start over?" Me: "how is that possible?" Lakhe: "go back to bed." his tone confused me so much. Was it an order or a special request. You see, he sounded like he was mad, his voice. But his facial expression was the sweetest smile in Babylon. How? Tell me how? Me: "ok." I went to my bedroom and sat in bed impatiently waiting for my poison. It was almost 30 minutes later when he came in carrying a tray. It smelled so nice. Did I have this in my fridge? Lakhe: "and breakfast is served. This is for the little one." Me: "Lakhe, this is amazing...but you can't be doing this. Kukho u-Simphiwe who is jealous of everything even himself." he smiled. Lakhe: "he's asleep, uzovuka around in a while. Besides, I won't tell if you don't." oh what the heck. A little appreciation did no harm. This was so nice of him. Lakhe: "I'm sorry I scared you ekseni. I was just...." Me: "just what." I nibbled on the food. Lakhe: "mesmerized. I don't know what came over me. You were making that bed and all I could think of was you sleeping on it. Same as emini, while ubuphaka, all I could see was you sitting down and eating. You work too hard." Me: "Lakhe-" Lakhe: "I know it sounds crazy....and I know uyicherrie yetshomi yam. Its just that sometimes my feelings overpower my pride. It happens rarely, but when it does I express it. That's what my doctor said." Me: "doctor?" Lakhe: "yes, abazali bam bandisa kwi psychologist because I didn't show empathy or emotion for anything when I was growing up." Me: "why?" Lakhe: "its just the way I am." Me: "sounds scary." Lakhe: "it is for me too....I have to watch people walk out of my life and not feel a thing for them. I know it should hurt but it doesn't." Me: "so, unabo oo-sister and brother?" Lakhe: "a sister, yes. Uhlala emonti." Me: "oh that's lovely." Lakhe: "and you?" Me: "never met my brother." Lakhe: "oh..." Me: "so this doctor, he still treats you?" Lakhe: "yes. once a month I have a session." Me: "why don't you show emotion?" Lakhe: "doctors say it could be caused by a continuous case of post traumatic stress I suffered years ago that might have affected part of my brain." Me: "how is that even possible?" Lakhe: "if you can't live down a certain event that happened. Become afraid of certain things. Like attaching yourself to people, pets." Me: "what happened to you?" he looked around. Lakhe: "Simphiwe uyavuka. Enjoy your breakfast." he walked out the room kanye xa ekhwazwa yitshomakhe. I wonder what scarred him so badly that he can't even function his emotions himself? After eating my breakfast wavuka uBuhle and ate his. Wangena Simphiwe looking grumpy as usual xenze ububhanxa. This time I wasn't going to bother to ask. He took out his clothes wayovasa then came back wanxiba. Black shorts, flip flops and a white vest. I bathed Buhle ndamnxibisa brown short shorts and his white all star. Ebengafuni ke unxiba phezulu since it was hot. I applied sun screen on him and let him play outside with his top off. I made the bed ndayovasa nam finally. Decided on wearing my military green short jumpsuit. I combed my hair, tying it in a pony tail and wore my brown gladiator sandal that had laces to my calf. I went to the kitchen to clean up the breakfast dishes. Simphiwe ehleli kwi lounge with a cold one probably for ibhabhalaza. Simphiwe: "and then? Ngamasimba anton anga uwanxibileyo?" no he wasn't mad, he was just rude like that. I ignored him. Simphiwe: "heeee...ayisandikhwazi indutsu ngeloxesha ufane awandihoya." he stood behind me holding my waist. Simphiwe: "iyabatyiswa lento uyinxibileyo. The way this ass is popping out....I don't know if ndizobanayo enyi focus namhlanje. Kutheni ungathethi nam baby?" Me: "I have things to do Simphiwe. No time for your sexual fantasies." Simphiwe: "okwe round eyi 1." Me: "No." I dried my hands finished. He walked away. Lakhe appeared from the bedroom. His cologne made my tummy tremble with butterflies. He was dressed in tight denim shorts, a plain white t shirt and moon rock Yeezy Boosts 350's with a navy Fabiani cap. His Rolex hung on his wrist carelessly while clicked on his iPhone 6s Plus. Lobhuti was so damn relevant, it actually stung deep in my heart. He looked up at me ndabalekisa amehlo. Me: "I have some errands to run." ndayolanda bag yam neskipa sika Buhle. Me: "come honey boo boo, let's go." Simphiwe: "uzomenzi moffie lomntana." Me: "better that than a drunkard." I muttered. Unfortunately he heard me. Simphiwe: "mxiimm." I dressed the boy saphuma sahamba. It was after 3 when we came home. Me: "what in the world." I turned down Buhle's duck song which made him sulk. Buhle: "mama kaloku!" Me: "yima baby." the yard was parked with 6 cars and I had no space. I stopped my car, taking Buhle out the car sayongena. It was a madhouse of laughter, marijuana smoke, hubbly bubbly, cigar, cigarette, alcohol. I was just dumb. Funny enough, imoto ye-owner of this house was nowhere outside! I looked around ndaphuma phandle eback. I didn't know these people, Lakhe wasn't here even. I went to Buhle's room ndayothatha his changing clothes and left the house. Just as I reached my car, yamisa Audi ebomvu. But it wasn't Simphiwe driving. Me: "Lakhe what is This?" he got out the car and looked at the cars. Lakhe: "kwenzeka ntoni?" he looked confused. Me: "ubuza mna? Wena?" Lakhe: "I left after you did. Ndisiya ebankeni and had a meeting with an estate agent who showed me a few houses then ndaye Bay west. I left Simpra esithi uzondilinda ngeculo. Which I thought would be a couple of beers." I put Buhle in my car ndamfaka amabhanti. Lakhe: "Spho, wait. Maybe There's an explanation. Suveske uhambe. Let me find him." Me: "akekho pha." I don't know why I was being emotional. Lakhe: "maybe he's asleep besithi udiniwe. Ima apha. I'm coming." he disappeared in the house. I rolled down my car windows and went after him. He was standing by the bedroom door. Then shut it closed with his head down. Me: "ngubani lo ulapho?" he almost got a fright. Lakhe: "maybe we should give him space. He's not doing too well." Me: "uthini ngababantu balapha!" Lakhe: "let's just go." he pushed me out the house. Lakhe: "let's have some dinner and a movie with Buhle." Me: "no I'll be fine." I got into my car and drove away. I stayed at my friend's house, Zingisa. She was married to Dumisani, top lawyer at his own firm. Zingi owned her own salon. They had two kids one of them being Buhle's age, the other was 2. It was just a 4 year gap, with kids that didn't even count. They all played together. Dumi and Zingi sat with me in their huge lounge sipping wine. Dumi: "have some wine wethu, uzivise kamandi, awuyi ndawo. You're sleeping here tonight. Lamakhwenkwe enu awanambeko yazi." I laughed. He was older yes. Too much older when he drank and somehow thought he was part of the girls. Zingisa made him like that, she included him everywhere because he didn't have that many friends. Sometimes I think none at all. But he was a nice man and supportive. Non-judgemental and honest. Zingi: "I want to know more about lotshomi umtsha." Dumi: "uwoah...usiswakho. Khawuve." I laughed. Me: "There's nothing to tell." Dumi: "like hell there isn't. Did you see her eyes sparkle baby?"

Everytime he's mentioned. Mjonge." Zingi: "ndimjongile. Spill. Do you have feelings for him?" Me: "no." Dumi: "you find him attractive?" Me: "maybe." Zingi: "uyambawela?" Me: "no." Zingi: "we know you haven't had sex in the past 4 months." Me: "okay. That's good to know." Dumi: "I suggest you don't fall for the trap. Here's what I think. Simphiwe has stopped paying attention to you, goes out late, comes back when he wants, has a password on his phone which is a common sign of cheating." Zingi: "wait...unayo nawe password." Dumi: "babes, you send me the nasty ndisemsebenzini everyday. You know abantwana play with my phone. Anyway, this isn't about you. Bhabha wam, why do you think all of a sudden, Simphiwe brings home a hot friend umazi ngumntu oneskhwele hleli nje but doesn't even mind this man around you. Its like he doesn't care at all. Think about it. Ulinda MNA. This friend makes moves on you, makes you feel appreciated and fuzzy inside. They're waiting on you to slip. If you fall for the trap, if you go ahead and open your legs to this Maps Maponyane, he will go back to his friend amxelele. Ushiywe wena ibengathi nguwe ihule when he throws you out your house ngeloxesha Nguye oqalileyo. This is a common man trick. Don't fall for it." I swallowed hard. Is that what they thought of me? Bedibene nje bona they are planning me. Zingi: "ungalibali uthandaza babe. Aba bayazibhanxa subahoya tu." Dumi: "I never liked that Simphiwe to begin with to be honest. Qha ke uyamthanda wena so andingen ndawo." Me: "I didn't ever look at it this way. Thanks Dum." Dumi: "akhongxaki tshomi. My time has come. Goodnight ladies." he got up and went to bed. I felt like someone punched me in the stomach. To think I felt comfortable with Lakhe. That I began to trust and like him. Now I was just disgusted. Zingi: "friend. Suyicinga Yonke lento okay? Just focus on your work and development. I know its hard but don't you think maybe you should be focused more on yourself. You've been with Simphiwe and supported him all this time. Has he done that with you? No. So don't waste too much of your time again. Focus baby girl." she got up and went to bed.

The next morning I bathed Buhle and myself preparing us to go home. Zingi and Dumisani were going shopping as a family although they insisted we went with them I declined. I drove home ndafika noko ku-empty. I went inside the house, finding Lakhe in the kitchen with plastic gloves on and a black plastic bag. He looked up and I could've sworn he sighed in relief. I don't know why he was acting. Buhle: "mama!" he ran to the opposite direction. I looked over and saw his mother sitting on my couch. Simphiwe sat on another watching TV. Me: "molweni." all of them were snaky. I didn't know who to greet and who to leave. And why was maka Buhle here ngelixesha? Why was she here at all because Simphiwe fetched and took him home. I went to my bedroom ndayonxiba a navy maxi dress. Ndabuyela ekhithshini. Lakhe: "I was worried when you didn't come home." Me: "cut the bullshit act Lakhe and continue nalento uyenzayo." I took Still water from the fridge ndaya eroomin. The little family sat in the lounge without moving an inch. Every part of me was breaking. How could Simphiwe bring this woman into our house? I walked into my en suite bathroom, lifting up the seat to pee and there. Right there were used condoms floating about. I could feel the bile working up inside me. I threw up in the sink multiple times. "Spho?" Me: "get out!!" I rinsed it and my mouth. Lakhe: "but you're sick." Me: "don't act like you fucking care Lakhe. Hamba!!" I could hear laughing all the way from the lounge. I was the fool. Lakhe: "Spho, ndiyak'cela. Don't shut me out." Me: "Lakhe. Get the fuck out of my sight man!" he stood still as rock. Lakhe: "I'm not going anywhere." Me: "you knew he was cheating on me and you kept quiet." Lakhe: "it wasn't my place. I did all I could to make him sto-" Me: "don't lie!" I pushed past him to the bedroom. I took out my suitcases and packed my clothing. Lakhe: "Spho. Don't do this now. Don't give this girl the power endlinakho. You can't show her defeat." Me: "you are the last person to pep talk me Lakhe. You saw it happen. You were here. You did nothing. You said nothing. I'm the fool apha! Nangoku kumnandi mos." he walked out the bedroom. I continued packing my things. My shoes. My underwear. Every single piece of item I owned in this house. "Uyaphi kengoku bra?" I heard Simphiwe say. Lakhe: "ndiyahamba Simphiwe." and I heard the door slam. The bedroom door opened. Simphiwe: "utheni kwi tshomi yam?" I kept quiet. While I bent down next to the bed to open the drawer, I saw a pink panty. I didn't own any pink underwear. Simphiwe: "Spho ndithetha nawe." I took it and threw it at him. Me: "maybe you should flush those down the toilet too." Simphiwe: "baby-" Me: "uvale lomlomo Simphiwe. Umvale vingci." I zipped closed my suitcase. Simphiwe:

"you can't leave me like this Spho. Ndiyak'cela mntuwam. I made a mistake. Please ndicela sithethe." Me: "you better get the fuck away from that door Simphiwe or I will smash your head in it I swear." Simphiwe: "Baby. Cela undimamele." I lifted up my suitcase and swung it at him he ducked quickly but it scraped his arm. Simphiwe: "baby. Please? We can talk about this. Ndicela undixolele." he took my suitcase and put it down. I opened the door, he closed it. Me: "Simphiwe." Simphiwe: "ndiyakucenga Spho. It was a mistake. Bendinxilile. This is our life you're throwing away." Me: "andiva?" Simphiwe: "we built this home together, njani uyekelele after one stupid mistake." Me: "had I been the one who did this stupid mistake would you be so willing siqhubekeke?" Simphiwe: "baby ndiyakuthanda. I know that unomsindo, I understand but please don't leave." Me: "ebhedini yam Simphiwe!! This is my home!! You couldn't even use the spare room?? You couldn't even wait ukuba ke ndingabikho ebhayi? You did this ndiyobhatala i-swimming lessons zika nyana lo wakho!! What is your problem??" Simphiwe: "baby....andinayo i-problem. Ndicela undixolele please

Spho." Me: "ndiyabanda Simphiwe? Is that it? I don't satisfy you?" Simphiwe: "you do....everytime-" Me: "kengoku Kuthen ungandityi mna ufuna uyotya onondindwa estratweni!!! I'm always in this damn house!!! Andiy'fumani mna lencanca uphisa ngayo!!" Simphiwe: "ndicel uxolo Spho. I will never do this again." Me: "you're right. You're never doing this again! EVER." he sighed. Simphiwe: "ndiyak'thanda mntu wam. I'll do whatever it takes. Enkosi For-" Me: "You think ndizohlalela lekaka? You must really think ndidom ne? That's what you think of me? You'll never do this to me again because I'm leaving you Simphiwe." Simphiwe: "ha.a man Sphosenkosi bra, yinton ngoku?" Me: "who was it?" Simphiwe: "ubani?" Me: "lomntu uleli naye ebhedini yam. Ngubani?" "Ndim sweetie!" she laughed. Noma: "xa ungakwazi uyiphatha indoda funeke ithini dear? Kunini ndincedisana nawe? Hayi sisi please. khasinyathelele bekukdala ngoko. Baby? We have to go to umama, usilindile." I stared at him. Me: "why? Ndikwenze ntoni Simphiwe?" that's when the tears came. Simphiwe: "ayinguwe Spho." Me: "then why would you do this!!" I screamed. Noma: "yohh, hayi sana ide uncame. Tshini bawo." she opened our door. Me: "I did everything for you Simphiwe. All of me, was invested kuwe! Nomntanakho. All along ndim isibhanxa." Simphiwe: "ndicel uxolo Spho." Me: "that's all your dumb ass can say?" Noma: "jonga man Spho. Haha! Lonto unegama lendoda. Don't you think that's a bit of a turn off. No wonder uvinjwa, jonga sweetie, akho need yocenga ububhanxa. Awufunwa-" Me: "I think ubhidiwe. lizperm zise ntloko. I am leaving. You with your broke man. NGUYE umntu ondicengayo because I know he will never survive without me! Watch." Noma: "haha! Lonto u-bitter-" Simphiwe: "Khavale umlomo man

Noma!! Spho....can we please talk about this." Noma: "talk about what?" Me: "nanku mntu wakho. Thetha naye." I pulled away my suitcases and loaded them on my small Renault Clio. Buhle: "mama!" Noma grabbed him and held him tight on to her. Simphiwe: "babe..." Me: "goodbye Simphiwe." Simphiwe: "baby please don't do this to me. Ndiyak'cela Spho." he cried. I took everything of me and drove away. The hardest part was seeing Buhle for the last time. This was why ebengafuni andibize mama, he knew all along, I was just a guest in my own house. I drove out on to the freeway wiping away my tears. I did not know where I was going but I knew I couldn't go home. I stopped at Tops and got myself a bottle of Vodka. With a lot of ice. I got 3 other bottles of wine. Ndabhatala ndaphuma. I drove to the Radisson Blu hotel. I felt like being alone and not seeing anyone where if it were the other hotels, I might bump into a client. I booked myself in and went up to the 18th floor. All my suitcases piled in the wardrobe and I sat with my ipad on the bed looking through property websites. I poured a shot of vodka and gulped it down. The bitter taste was no better than the one in my heart. Every shot went straight to my heart until I couldn't feel anything anymore. The time I woke up was with a ringing sound in the background. My mouth was dry. It felt like my head was replaced with a tavern. I stunk. Not stank or stinked. STUNK. And bendizisinda. I looked around the room. My head was pounding. I took the phone and stared at it. A number I didn't know. Me: "hello." "Spho?" I wasn't sure of the voice. Me: "speaking." I took my iPad to check the time. "are you okay? I've been trying to call you since last night. I thought something bad happened to you." Me: "ndithetha naban?" stupid iPad was off. "ndim uLakhe. Uphi?" where did this psycho get my number? Me: "ufuna nton uLakhe bawo? What does he want now?" I complained. Lakhe: "please hear me out." Me: "why???!!" my phone beeped, I checked it. I had another call coming in. Me: "I have to go." Lakhe: "at least tell me uphi. Can we meet for dinner?" Me: "Lakhe. We're not friends. You don't have to feel bad for what happened." Lakhe: "I don't feel bad. I feel great. Ndonwabe ukufa as a matter of fact. I'm glad you left him. He doesn't deserve you. You're an amazing woman Spho. You deserve happiness." Me: "enkosi. That's the last thing I need right now. I have to focus on myself." Lakhe: "that's a good idea. If you need a friend, I'll be here for you. Uyeva?" Me: "I have enough friends." Lakhe: "I'm sorry Spho." Me: "you don't waste time do you." Lakhe: "I've always been efficient and effective." Me: "you can't even wait until I'm okay." Lakhe: "There's no reason for you to wallow in self pity for a man that didn't know your worth. Oyena mntu suppose uyakhala nguye, if I were you I'd be in the club making it rain. Undi-invite ke qha ndifuna uncedise ngemvula nam." I chuckled. Me: "goodbye Lakhe." I hung up and checked my other missed call. Shiitt!! It was 10am. Monday morning. My phone rang again. Me: "hello?" I tried sobering up. H: "where are you? The new CEO is here. I thought you'd like to meet him before everyone else. Just for today though." Me: "uhm...I'm a bit busy at the moment H. I have meeting in a few minutes." H: "okay. That's fine. Mr Sobukwe will be here next week Monday for the official start of business." Me: "okay, i'll meet him then. Thank you Harold. Goodbye." I hung up and sunk back into bed. My head was heavy and face was swollen ingathi bendibethwa. I went to take a shower deciding to go buy breakfast plus a few things for food while I'm at it because I didn't want to be seen. I also needed headache pills. I threw on a tracksuit and went about my business. Bought what I needed then went back to my hiding place. It was impossible. I still had to work. Emails came in every 2 minutes and I wasn't coping at all. Finally my phone rang. Me: "Zingi?" Zingi: "hi friend. Unjani?" Me: "I'm fine." Zingi: "what's wrong?" Me: "nothing. I'm just busy with work." Zingi: "okay. Ndizoza ke later on vha." Me: "I'm not home." Zingi: "okay. Uphi?" Me: "can we please talk later babe? I'm really busy." Zingi: "okay. Later." I hung up and focused on my work. At 4pm. I closed down everything ndabuyela kwimbhondlela yam ye-wine because the vodka was finished. I had 8 missed calls from Simphiwe, I wasn't even about to check my whatsapp. I had the first glass of wine while running myself a hot bath. When I went in I had another. I relaxed in the warm water. What was I to do with myself after work? Huh? Sit? I was so used to getting home, cooking for him, sibukele TV andibalisele about work. Ahambe while I watched my ratchet shows abuye ndisahleli, cuddle and sleep. Now what? As much as I enjoyed Zingi and Dumi's company, they were married and I didn't want to be in their space. 3 whole years of my life had just been wasted. Yi-diploma leyo bethuna. Ngendine honors mos ngoku or better yet a PhD. Kumandi uba ngamadoda ne? All you have to do is find a good woman who will breastfeed you through life. Isn't that just amazing? While I put my life on hold, for him to start up his business. Spending my savings on him. My time. My resources. Data bundles zam busy researching for him! Hebethuna do you understand the cost of data bundles are equivalent to i-lobola these days? Senditshuba, iinkomo ezimbini ke? I did everything to make sure he was sorted not even once ndava u'enkosi mntuwam'. I never did it for that though. I wanted him to be proud. Kodwa namhlanje uyakwazi undenza oluhlobo? Wow. Just wow. And Noma? Hayini guys uNoma? Uyay'qonda la-lifestyle bendiyi maintainer kulandlu, constructing that family? Does she know the expenses? In fact ndinayo ne-feeling ethi ndizocengwa Nguye ba ndibuye because Simphiwe ngunxilayo and uyathanda izinto eziduru u-brothers. Its a pity now uzosela i-Milk stout nembhambha. Shame uswine. I drank my remaining expensive wine kalok ndiya afforda mna. My phone rang disturbing me from my thoughts. I got out the bath to fetch it ndabuya ndangena kwakhona emanzini. Me: "hello?" Lakhe: "its me again...." Me: "Lakhe honestly. Please torhwana. Ndisazihoya." Lakhe: "uyazihoya? Ngantoni?" Me: "I'm in the bath, talking to myself. Ufuna nton?" Lakhe: "heheheeee!!! Yuuh andihleki. Just dinner. I promise I won't bother you again. Just once." Me: "I wonder yinton e-funny." Lakhe: "bendithe kuwe I'm here for you, andinayo picture yakho uthetha wedwa mna ugqagqanisela idonga. Busenothetha nakum. Qha u-stubborn. Uphi." Me: "I don't feel like being outside around people. So...please." Lakhe: "okay ndiyakuva. Well, I bought a new house. I'm moving in ngomso. Please help. I am hopeless when it comes to decor. I beg you." I sighed. Lakhe: "please?" Me: "fine. I'll help you." Lakhe: "great! I'll send you my new address." Me: "okay." Lakhe: "uyeke uthukisa apho ukhe uyolala and enjoy your evening uyevha?" Me: "enkosi. You too." I hung up. I wonder where he got my number. I finished with my bath ndaya ezinguben. Thinking what did I just get myself into. I took two pain killers and I was off.

The next morning, I woke up to a text. "Good morning gorgeous. I hope you slept well. I am looking forward to seeing your smile today. Here's my address below. Have no breakfast please, it'll be served right here by yours truly." I have to admit. There was a bit of a grin on my face. I quickly wiped it away when I remembered Dumi's speech. But what reason would he have now to play me? I was done with Simphiwe anyway. I got up, took a shower and looked through my suitcase for clothes to wear. I didn't need to be fancy. It was windy outside. I took out thigh ripped skinny jeans ndanxiba. My all black Adidas Superstar which Dumi bought me in Amsterdam for my birthday last year. I also wore my black Adidas sweater and my silver Michael Kors watch. Most of the items of clothing I wear are bought by Zingi and Dumi. Everytime those two go overseas they bring back presents for everyone. I specified on clothing and watches and perfumes only. Anyway, I took my bag and drove Piglet to Kragga Kamma. Piglet is my car's name. Its cute and small and red instead of pink. I followed my GPS thoroughly until I stopped in front of a mansion. "You have arrived at your destination." said uMaVero on the navigator. Me: "What The Hell." I stared in awe. How many armies live in this house? The gate opened and I drove into the vast yard which looked like a rain forest in Spring. Oh God, was it beautiful. The grass was rich green and thick. At the far end I could see a beautiful garden with blossoming flowers. There was a mini water fountain in the middle of it ndaske ndakhamisa. Were those ducks? Someone pinch me please? You know how rich you have to be to have a pond right? With ducks? WOW. The gracious house stood high like a castle of a royal family. It looked magical. He opened his front door. Dressed impeccably as his front lawn was mowed. I felt so small and awkward. I got out the car. Lakhe: "hi. Sorry man, I was in an early meeting. I'll change quick and we can get to business." Me: "you told me not to eat breakfast." he smiled. Lakhe: "of course. I'll be with you shortly. Welcome inside my cute shack." Me: "you have a sense of humor I see. Ngubani omnye ohlala apha?" Lakhe: "just me." Me: "why such a magnificent house?" Lakhe: "I like to move around. I'm claustrophobic." Me: "uh huh. Yeah I'd probably get lost in here. You'll need to paste signs on the walls." he laughed. Lakhe: "as long as I know where my bedroom is, I really could care less about the rest of this house. I'll be back. Make yourself at home." I stared at the boxes all over. There was no furniture. No chairs. Nothing. The only thing set up, I saw was the kitchen. Spik and span. Not even a crumb on the floor. He came back less formal and opened his fridge. Lakhe: "had a look around? What can we do with it?" Me: "its gorgeous. You have ducks in your pond? Are they real?" Lakhe: "yeah. They're so cute. Did you see the one that has a limp? Ahhh my favorite. Her name is Zanno. The other is Titi, omnye ngu Kaylen, she has the big eyes. Those are my babies." I looked around with a half sarcastic, half amused look on my face. His pets are ducks people. Me: "first you need to buy furniture." Lakhe: "I'm having that imported from China. What I need here is TV and home theatre system. Speaking of theatres, I have a mini cinema just down the passage. I also need to buy gym equipment for the gym. And Some bedroom things." Me: "how many bedrooms?" Lakhe: "15." Me: "Good Jesus! That's half a month of bedrooms." he giggled. Lakhe: "yeah. Also 6 toilets. 2 kitchens. 3 lounges. A play room. A gym. A basket ball court. An indoor swimming centre." Me: "how about a shopping mall? Do you have that too?" he laughed. Lakhe: "mxim. As I was saying. A sauna room, a wine cellar, a bar and gentleman's corner, a laundry room. I've lost track of what else." Me: "you have a bar? Is it stocked?" Lakhe: "not yet unfortunately. I'll have to go to the store later in the week. I'm flying my wines in on Friday." Me: "for a second there, I thought you said wives." Lakhe: "I'm single. No relationship. No kids." Me: "same. What's outside?" Lakhe: "you'll think I'm bragging." Me: "oh please. Enlighten me." Lakhe: "well, There's a tennis court. A put-put course. A braai-ing area. An outdoor swimming area. A go-kart racing track and mud slide." Me: "so...how much could this cost? You don't have kids. No wives. Who will play here?" Lakhe: "you...hopefully." he looked up at me. Lakhe: "we're friends right?" Me: "right." I liked it here. My own little playground. Plus we have ducks. Lakhe:

"breakfast is served. He made me a cheese omelet. French toast and beef sausages. I ate. He poured me juice. Me: "wine please." Lakhe: "for breakfast?" Me: "Yes." he shrugged and poured me a glass." Me: "what kind of job do you do?" Lakhe: "I own a few hotels. I'd like to go into property and clubs if possible this year. You?" Me: "what else." Lakhe: "its a bit of asilent job." Me: "tell me." Lakhe: "no." Me: "fine. Then ndiyahamba." Lakhe: "hawu. Just like that?" Me: "I feel we should be honest with each other. From now onwards. whether you think it would hurt or not. I want you to tell me. If that's not going to work for you, then we won't work." Lakhe: "okay. I understand. I will be honest. All I need is a little respect and patience. Then we will work. I don't intend on hiding my occupation for life but that's a contract I signed. I can't let anyone know until its finalized. I promise you'll be the first to know." Me: "I respect that." he looked at me with that look. Ya'll know that look. It was a hungry dog, rip them jeans off look. Lakhe: "I want you." I gulped my glass of wine finished. Lakhe: "I'm just being honest." Yaphuma inyani eSouth Africa. Me: "is that all you see?" Lakhe: "definitely not. You're a smart woman, extremely beautiful, caring and respectful. I still want you.....in my bed." Me: "if you promise not to bother me again." Lakhe: "oh I can't promise. We have a house to decorate angel. Nobody has to know." he gave me his phone. Lakhe: "you can delete all threads of messages, phone calls directed to you. I just want you." I deleted everything of mine and double checked. Me: "done." Lakhe: "wonderful..." he pulled me closer to him and kissed my lips. Lakhe: "are you comfortable?" I kissed him back. He picked me up and walked to the bedroom. His lips never leaving mine and he placed me on his bed climbing on top of me. He fondled and squeezed my breast gently then suddenly stopped. Me: "why are you stopping?" Lakhe: "because you're not ready..." Me: "what? Lakhe please don't play games." Lakhe: "Spho, you're shaking. You're not ready to be intimate with another man. I don't want you to regret yourself after this. I don't mind, I'll wait." Me: "please don't make me think about this Lakhe." Lakhe: "baby I can't do this. I don't want to feel like I'm forcing myself on you. You're vulnerable and andicing ndithathe advantage yalonto." Me: "so nawe awundifuni?" I sobbed. God I felt so embarrassed. He sat next to me and held me in his arms. I burst into harder sobs right then, just breaking down. I held on to his t shirt wishing he wasn't him. Why didn't he just do me and forget about it. Why was he so nice? He was rubbing my back and curling my hair around his fingers as much as I hated it, I began calming down. Lakhe: "of course ndiyakufuna. I want you to be strong and able. I will never take advantage of your pain. Ndizobalapha at every turn. It'll be okay." Me: "I feel so dumb. I gave everything. My all into that relationship, and I am the fool." Lakhe: "babe you'll need to understand that not all men are like this." Me: "he wasn't like this either. He was a good man." Lakhe: "yes. I remember that he was a good guy. Honestly andiyazi kumoshakele phi." Me: "its me. Maybe I bored him." Lakhe: "yeah probably." I smacked him. Me: "you're supposed to make me feel better!" Lakhe: "I'm also supposed to be honest." he kissed my forehead. Lakhe: "I'm sorry uyeva?" Me: "its fine. Do you have any more wine?" Lakhe: "unfortunately not. Let's go shopping. They say something about retail therapy." Me:

"argg..." Lakhe: "Iza." he pulled me out of bed. Lakhe: "so uhlala phi ngoku? At home?" Me: "no...I'm at a hotel. Which I need to get out of soon before I go bankrupt." Lakhe: "ngey'phi lo hotel?" Me: "Radisson." he smiled. Lakhe: "great choice." Me: "uncumele nton kangaka?" he shrugged. Lakhe: "ndizofownela cab so long. You freshen up." Me: "we can take my car." Lakhe: "uhm...no babe. We're taking a cab." Me: "itheni moto yam?" Lakhe: "ayithenanga. Qha ndibawela uphumle. Let someone else do the driving." Me: "then why don't you drive it." he stared at me then at it and giggled. Lakhe: "freshen up." Me: "I wonder iphi eyakho imoto ulibele uhlekana neyam." Lakhe: "you can ask me that same question ngomso. We're putting it on hold." he spoke on the phone when I went to wash my face and dry it. In 20 minutes the cab arrived and we went to Walmer Park. Me: "and then?" Lakhe: "ndibawela ukuya eBay West kodwa mna." Me: "kwathini ungatsho kengoku?" Lakhe: "cela ukuya eBay West." Me: "I'm not the driver." the driver took off again. Me: "kutheni undijamele." I could feel his gaze even though I was looking out the window. Lakhe: "ndifuna ukonwabisa. I want to make you so happy you forget how pain feels. I love seeing your smile, its like a morning sunrise. A new chance. A new day." Me: "wow uyiyo ne poet ngoku." Lakhe: "unje ke wena." Me: "ndiright." Lakhe: "how about..." he moved closer to me and whispered in my ear. Lakhe: "you move in, while you're looking for a place of your own." Me: "uhm...no." Lakhe: "you'll have your own section of the house. And me...." Me: "that's cute." Lakhe: "please?" Me: "I'll think about it." we arrived at Bay West and walked in. He held my hand. Which surprised me a bit. I wasn't sure what we were. Lakhe: "I want to check something here." he went in a shop called Levisons. I looked around ndadibana ne-price tag. My throat went dry kwaphela ukuqava. He bought a few shirts and pants. Lakhe: "what do you think babe?" Me: "I don't think you need my help. You're already doing well by yourself, 'babe'." he put the clothes on the counter to pay then turned to me. Lakhe: "yinton kengoku ingxaki?" Me: "can we drink now?" Lakhe: "no. Masiye kwa G Star." Me: "exciting." he paid and we left with the paper bag. Sayongena kwa G Star. Lakhe: "what size jean are you love?" Me: "34." Lakhe: "perfect." he took two jeans and a t shirt that matched his wayobhatala. Me: "I don't see how this is helping me." Lakhe: "ina. Go out there and buy something and bring it back to me. I don't want you back here without at least 10 items of clothing in your possession. That does not include shoes or make up. 10 is minimum. Go." he gave me his black card and I walked out the shop. I was already so damn annoyed. Why does he have to be so insistent. Wait....he didn't mention liquor. I turned around with the hugest smile on my face. Lakhe: "No Alcohol." Me: "and I'm the boring one." after my shopping spree, I found him standing on one of the balconies. His back faced me so he didn't see me coming. Lakhe: "everything is in order, I'll knock this one out by the weekend.....No, ndise bhayi.....this has to be the final one, I can't fuck it up.....andiyazi ke Loco ufuna ndithini? I've had enough.....Look, I'm getting old man. I'll come in on Friday... Don't fucking G me, don't do that. I said I'm done." I had to come up with something that made me not seem as though I was eavesdropping. Me: "honey, I'm done." I bumped into him. he stood up and stared at me. Serious look. Scary look. Did I disturb him? Lakhe: "none of your fucking business." he hung up and smiled. Lakhe: "I see your hands are full. Ndizofumana a fashion show endlini." Me: "I'm hungry." Lakhe: "of course. Its just....the restaurants here are a bit...." Me: "a bit what?" Lakhe: "a bit stale." Me: "what do you suggest then?" Lakhe: "anything you want my lady." Me: "then you cook." Lakhe: "I'd be glad to." he called up the Uber and we went back to his house. He placed all our shopping bags in the bedroom. Me: "ina ke. Enkosi." I gave him back his card. Lakhe: "keep it. whatever you need, use it." Me: "I have my own money." Lakhe: "I know. But just keep it." Me: "but I dont-" Lakhe: "do you always have to fight me? Love, Keep it. Okay?" I nodded. He walked to the kitchen and started preparing our dinner. Me: "do you need help?" Lakhe: "ewe babes, if you could sit down and stare at me. That would be great." Me: "sit where? You have no fum-" he picked me up and placed me on the counter while I giggled uncontrollably. Lakhe: "there." Me: "uyathanda upheka ne?" Lakhe: "ndithanda ukonwabisa wena more. I'm just going to make something quick." Me: "make pizza." he smiled. Lakhe: "okay." he took out the dough from the fridge. Lakhe: "any favorite toppings?" Me: "lots of cheese and pepperoni." Lakhe: "nice." he prepared the pizza while the oven pre-heated. Lakhe: "so I thought, I'd get you something for putting up with me today." Me: "another present?" Lakhe: "this is the first nje." he put the pizza in the oven and set a timer. Me: "so your credit card is just paying me to keep you company?" he smiled. Lakhe: "maybe." he came around to me and kissed my chin. Me: "so..." Lakhe: "you'll get it...tell me...why ungandithembi?" Me: "because, I just don't. You're my ex's best friend even." Lakhe: "okay. I want you to know that I don't want to hurt you. Secondly, ingenaphi eyoba ndiyi tshomi ka Simphiwe? Worse ude um'upgrader umse kwi premium uthi Best friend." I rolled my eyes. Lakhe: "I'll never do you like that. Look at me." I looked at him. Our eyes locked into a strong gaze. Lakhe: "I'm not going to hurt you." Me: "awuthakathi Phof?" he smiled. Lakhe: "mxim." he kissed my lips...this is why I asked if akathakathi. When I was staring at him all I wanted to do was kiss him. Wrap him around my body. Lakhe: "uzolala?" Me: "I have work tomorrow. Khandiye today and izolo." Lakhe: "so?" Me: "Summerstrand is moons away, funeke ndivuke ngentseni ndiye pha ndiphinde ndiye msebenzini?" Lakhe: "for the last time kaloku. Then you can move in here." Me: "uzama ukwenza ntoni?" Lakhe: "nothing." Me: "I said I'll think about it." Lakhe: "There's plenty of space here." Me: "hm...I'll tell you ngomso." Lakhe: "great. How about undibonise ke impahla oyithengileyo. I hope There's underwear." I laughed. Me: "aren't you just nasty. Khasuke." I went to the bedroom and fitted on my clothes, showing him every outfit. Lakhe: "its beautiful baby...so ayikho lingerie for real?" Me: "no..." Lakhe: "I bought you wine." Me: "haha! Is that your bait?" he smiled. Lakhe: "cela ubona kaloku." he sulked. Me: "just a peek." I took off my clothing. One by one. Turning around in a circle until I faced him again. I could see his little buddy was standing at attention. Lakhe: "you look stunning." his voice a bit low. Lakhe: "but There's a problem with the... Turn around babe." I turned my back to him. Lakhe: "its just the..." my bra snapped off and fell on the floor. I felt so shy. Lakhe: "and then..." he whispered in my ear with his right hand holding my breast. Lakhe: "loosen a bit of tension here.." his left hand slowly moving with the tip of his fingers around my body to the front. Lakhe: "this area also needs a bit of attention." he kissed my ear while his fingers slid into my panty and found the clitoris. I couldn't speak. Me: "La-" Lakhe: "shhhh.....I got you." I touched the hand that still held my breast gently. The other was rubbing softly in between me. Me: "justI...." Lakhe: "relax baby." Me: "I want to climax." I moaned. Lakhe: "hayi baby...so quickly." Me: "faster." he stopped and walked away. Me: "Lakhe?" he pressed something on the oven and came back to me in full force. Dragging me against the wall. He kissed my lips and neck then kneeled before me. My panties were off. He lifted my leg and hung it on his shoulder. Soft, gentle kisses were placed on my thighs and finally without warning he began sucking on the clit. His tongue flipping back and forth making me scream!! Me: "Lakhe!!!" he lifted the leg higher holding it up and went at it. Ohhh it felt sooo dammmnn goodddd! Me: "don't stop baby! Oooooohhh!!!" my legs were shaking, and something was moving inside of me. Me: "Lakhe...." I held on to his head. Me: "babbbby!!" he held on me tighter and I finally climaxed on his face. I breathed slowly and he stopped, staring up at me. his face was dripping wet. A slow naughty smile crept up on his face. Lakhe: "oko wawunxibe la jumpusit yamajoniI've wanted to do this." Me: "unezimanga." he stood up. Lakhe: "dinner is served." then kissed me. I was naked in the middle of the empty lounge. He took off his t shirt and fitted it in my head with arms. Lakhe: "ima apha." he left and came back with a towel and slippers. Wandisula. Lakhe: "time for you to eat, uvase sizoyolala. And by ulala I mean more of this." he kissed my lips. Me: "can't we skip dinner?" Lakhe: "no." serious look again. He held my hand to the kitchen wakhupha the finished pizza and placed slices on our plates. Wayikhupha nyani i-wine yam and poured me a glass. We ate our dinner and talked for a while. I haven't felt that light in forever. The oral was just new to me kuba ibingeyonto yenzekayo with Simphiwe. Now this new thing made me excited and I just want more. After our dinner I almost ran to the bathroom. Umntu wabe ephole engqondweni. Lakhe: "no shower. We're bathing baby. Ungxamele phi?" ukuba ebesazi indlela endimbawela ngayo. We sat in the bath together and before I knew it I felt something literally vibrated beneath me. Me: "what the fuck is that?" Lakhe: "just relax baby. The bath has 16 pulsating jets and its floor vibrates with something called Swedish release." Me: "that is intense." Lakhe: "just listen to it." Me: "this is getting me drunk." Lakhe: "its getting you to relax." he held me in his arms. Me: "what's your full name." Lakhe: "Masilakhe. But you can call me Lam." Me: "aww." I giggled. Me: "how come you're single? Everything you do is...amazing. You're attractive...rich...sweet...good God your tongue game is out of this world...so why are you single. What's wrong?" Lakhe: "I'm not a relationship person." Me: "hm...so you're using me?" Lakhe: "no babes. You're ..." Me: "its okay...everyone uses me kakade. Caba ndiyindawo yonyela. Its okay though." Lakhe: "you're officially drunk now." Me: "but andixoki. You can use me all you want wena....at least your sex is satisfying." Lakhe: "I haven't even fucked you yet. What if ndinencanca eshotayo?" Me: "ndizay'lenca kaloku ayisecace." he laughed. Me: "if we not in a relationship then what are we doing? I'm unclear." Lakhe: "we chilling nana." Me: "chilling?" he stuck his finger in my mouth. Lakhe: "shhhh." Me: "thetha.." Lakhe: "I'm trying to get you to relax yazi." I stopped right there and sat still. I was afraid of the tone of his voice. I don't know what it was about it but jonga it shook me qha. After our bath we got out ndasulwa and led to the bedroom. He took out lotion and started massaging my back then onto my ass and thighs. Down my legs and to my feet. Wandirabha kamandi. I was so sleepy and dizzy. Not sure if it was the bath and Swedish nton nton or the wine. Kodwa bendiziva kamandi. His hands were coming up again to my thighs. Lakhe: "phakamisa umzantsi Kancinci." I lifted up and placed a pillow under me. He opened my legs and sat in between them. I knew better than to question him. His hands freely roamed over my legs and squeezed my ass. I was perfectly comfortable and sleepy. Out of nowhere I felt him penetrate my pussy with a finger, it went deep inside. He pulled it out and went in again. Pacing faster. His thumb massaged the entrance of my butt and I held onto the sheets. Me: "Lakhe..." I breathed into a pillow. He went on and spanked my ass. Ndaminda into the pillow below only to arouse my clit. Me: "baby.....again..." I whispered ashamed of myself. Where had my morals vacated to? He spanked me again ndaphinda ndaminca. Sensationalizing my clitoris. Me: "faster!!" he did it again and again then stopped. Lakhe: "baby?" Me: "please don't stop.." Lakhe: "please forgive me..." Me: "wha-" he penetrated deep inside of me. Lakhe: "ohhh....yesss..." and he pounded on me. I bit into the pillow. He held me tight and thrust through harder. Me: "Lakhe!!!" I could barely move. Lakhe: "ahhhh!!" he crushed into me one more time and stopped. Lakhe: "I'm soo sorry." he breathed. I couldn't speak.

He pulled out and out came the liquid from me. Lakhe: "baby?" Me: "what happened?" Lakhe: "I don't know..." Me: "no, please explain because my pussy is throbbing." Lakhe: "the view baby....it was the view. Your ass. Your moans. the little squirts....yuuuh. I just lost control of the situation. I needed uba ngaphakathi qha." I turned around and lay on my back. Me: "u-dangerous shame." Lakhe: "xolo baby." he kissed the neck. Lakhe: "ndiyaxolisa vha..." he was climbing on top of me again. Me: "awuxolisi tu...nako uphinda." Lakhe: "emnandi iyaphindwa nje." Me: "but you're-" he entered me again. Lakhe: "I'll be gentle I promise.." he said kissing my lips. My thighs already shaking. Me: "love....khayibambe apho vha." it felt like it was itching a hard to reach spot. He kissed my lips while stroking in and out. That made me come closer to my orgasm. He kept staring at me and kissing me. Me: "baby..." Lakhe: "hm." he kissed my lips. Me: "I'm almost there." Lakhe: "ndilinde kaloku baby.." he groaned. Me: "but baby..." I cried. He went faster. I clawed onto his back biting his shoulder he drove faster. I kissed his neck feeling my orgasm closer again. I opened my legs wider..... finally.... Me: "yesss!!" he kept going and finally it dropped. I melted underneath him and he stopped. We were wrapped in each other's arms. I was sleepy and wanted to go at it right that second. I just didn't want to let go. That was the best sex I've had in my lifeand I was becoming suspicious. Something wasn't right here. Everything was too much on point. He was perfect. Why? He got up and went to fetch a towel. Lakhe: "wachama ebhedini omnye umbala." I smiled just for entertainment. then he wiped himself. Me: "iphi condom?" Lakhe: "I don't have babe." Me: "we didn't use it?" Lakhe: "no." Me: "Masilakhe. You did-" Lakhe: "babe. There's no big deal. Sizothenga morning after pill Ksasa." Me: "and what about disea-" his facial expression changed. Lakhe: "uzam'ukuthi ndine Aids Siphosenkosi?" that was the first time I've heard him call out my full name and that voice convinced me he was officially pissed off. Me: "no, not you...not i-AIDS. I'm just saying. Sobabini we don't know-" Lakhe: "I KNOW that andina AIDS mna. Do you?" Me: "uhm...I.."

Lakhe: "I ntoni? Une AIDS wena?" Me: "no." I squirmed like a little mouse.
Lakhe: "kengoku ingxaki iphi?" I was shaking from head to toe. I couldn't keep quiet about my health. I was scared. Why was he so defensive? Me: "I just felt you should have asked me beforehand. Its not an ideal conversation to have right after uve kamandi but I'm concerned about my health and yours. So xandibuza its not accusations. Nam I'm to blame. Ndaziphi njebe ndihlel kulandlu being faithful Simphiwe undiphathela Std after Std and I don't even know. I'm just saying....we should be more careful." Lakhe: "then masiyo tester ngomso, usele uhlaba kuphele ingxoxo. We'll go to your preferred doctor and have all tests done qha." Me: "thank you." he got into bed. Me: "suqumba kaloku." Lakhe: "andiqumbanga." Me: "then why unje about this topic?" Lakhe: "can you just fucking drop it?!" it felt like a knife was stabbed straight into my heart and twisted and turned. Only I wasn't dying. It felt so much worse. I've never felt so dirty even on my worst day. It was cold under the blankets and I held back my tears. How could I have been so utterly stupid? Dumi utshilo clearly and I didn't listen to him. Lonto Lakhe didn't bother wasting time. Uye wa-naar ndim immediately after sex. I closed my eyes waiting for morning to dawn and the alcohol to level down in my system. I couldn't drive in this state. I would most likely break down and crash my car killing myself. And I wouldn't mind. I don't know what was keeping me alive anymore.

I heard the sound of birds chirping, light in the room. Morning had come. I got out of bed and starting picking up my clothes. Mr Man wasn't in bed. I don't know where the hell he was and I was glad bendibawela abuye sendemkayo. I put on my clothes, ezi bendize ngazo. He could keep the ones he bought. Everything ebisithi mna I took. What was missing was my car keys. I don't remember where I put them and what frustrated me was that i-empty Le shit yendlu so they should be bloody visible! I went through the kitchen, the bedroom. Everywhere. Dololo Piglet keys sana. "Good morning baby. What are you doing?" he appeared at the door way. Me: "leaving." Lakhe: "without saying goodbye? I thought I'd feed the ducks while you were asleep, awubawel uzothi hi kubo? Zanno is giving me problems today, akafun ukutya. I'll make breakfast." I ignored him nokok'loqa kwakhe and looked through the bags of clothing ndade ndasifumana. Lakhe: "Spho." I looked at him. Lakhe: "kwenzeka ntoni ngoku? Why am I being ignored?" Me: "look, I was stupid to let you in. Letting you convince me you were different. Last night you showed me your true character. Xa undonyanya kangaka after being concerned for the both of us, I won't be in your life any longer. Don't call me. Don't text me. You can go back to your stupid friend umxelele you fucked me. I don't care. Just get out of my life." Lakhe: "Spho. Yima. Baby you don't unders-" Me: "Suka phambi kwam Masilakhe!" Lakhe: "wait!! Spho, can you just listen to me!" he held my arms and I bit him. Lakhe: "ouch!!!" he let go. Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi!!" I ran out the door to my car and drove away. I was a coin away from breaking down. I couldn't do this here. I put on some radio and listened to Metro before I got to the hotel my phone rang. Me: "hello." H: "please tell me you're coming in today-" Me: "I'm on my way H, just give me 45 minutes." H: "okay. We'll talk when you're here." I got to my room and showered quickly ndanxiba. I tied my hair up. Slapping a little make up on and I went to the office. Just as I parked, there was a crowd of people. Carrying cameras and recorders. What was happening? I hurried inside ndaya kwi office ka Harold. H: "finally. How are you today?" Me: "I'm fine. What's happening outside?" H: "I don't know. Our PR just upped and left. A lot of people are quitting Spho. I feel like I'm sinking." Me: "why are they quitting?" H: "they're afraid they will lose their jobs. When people hear mergers they think retrenchment. Which is probably true but not in this case. Please hun. Call them, hold a meeting and explain what is happening. The new CEO wants to meet me in an hour. Our CFO is also nowhere to be found and I can't begin to explain what that is doing to the rest of our accounts." Me: "I'll sort it out." I went to my office and started on a job that wasn't even mine. With the list I was given by Harold, I tracked down my colleagues and then went out to meet with four of them. By the time I was back in the office it was after lunch time. My landline rang. I answered. Me: "Good day, you're calling Spho at G-com, how can i-" Zingi: "start by explaining unyamalele phi and why phone yakho i-off! We thought you were dead! Simphiwe Uhleli ne nkazana esileyo endlinakho!! Where are you?" Me: "my phone probably died, but I'm alive....and...I broke up with him." my focus was simply on my work today, I couldn't think about my love life at all because it simply did not exist. I instantly had flashbacks of last night. That man's sex was oxygen. Spho, Focus. Zingi: "oh sweetie. Kwathini ungatsho? Uphi kengoku? Uhlala phi?" Me: "I'm at a hotel. Looking into a new place." Zingi: "ungazi apha nje? We have plenty of room." Me: "no babe. I'm good." Zingi: "hayi man Spho! Utheni na." Me: "please don't insist. I'm not in the mood to be around anyone. So ndiyakcela." Zingi: "oh ok." Me: "I have to go. I'm a bit busy. Ku-hectic emsebenzin." Zingi: "alright. Goodbye then." I hung up. It was only after 6 when I finished my work. I got up and left the office, driving back to the hotel. I just wanted to sleep. The minute I got to my room I took off everything and snuck into my bed and I dozed off. It felt like a few minutes later when I was woken up by a knock on my door. Nobody bloody knew where I was so who was it? I looked through the small peep hole. Room service. I opened. Me: "yes?" the lady rolled the tray in. Me: "I didn't order anything." she smiled. Lady: "one of my bosses insisted." and she walked out. Andazi noba bendisozela okanye. I went back to bed and slept. Days later, it was Sunday morning I woke up and packed all my belongings. I'd found a flat on Friday and was moving in today. It was in Humewood and far from all I knew. All I had was my bags anyway. I bought a bed which was already delivered and had to buy a sheet and duvet. Now, I was running low on funds. I couldn't spend anymore on luxury, bekuzofuneka ndibe basic for a few more days and lay off the alcohol, which was probably a good idea, given that I was to meet my new boss and have to put up a front of good work for him. It was almost month end anyway I'd survive till then. After I'd moved everything of mine in I sat in my new living room. Only Zingi noDumi knew ndihlala phi. And as if on cue, I heard a knock on my door. I opened for them bangena with a green bean bag and flopped it on my floor. Zingi: "at least you have something to sit on." I smiled. Me: "this is so cute. Enkosi." Zingi: "so ...uziva njani ngoku?" Me: "one puzzle at a time. I'm happy I finally got a place. Now I just need to focus back on umsebenzi. I missed too much this week. Worse ukuba that new boss is starting ngomso." I did not dare tell them about the Lakhe saga. I didn't feel like any more pity. Already bendisenziwa umntana. Being called every day to make sure I didn't commit suicide. It was bad enough. Zingi: "did you google him?" Me: "why would I want to do that?" I picked at the packet of chips in my hand and chewed. Dumi: "as we speak." he clicked on his Note 5. Me: "why? Ndizom'bona mos ngomso." Zingi: "aren't you curious? I am. Did you find anything babe?" Dumi: "nope. Not even Google knows. Ithetha nge merger qha. No new bosses appointed." Zingi: "what if its still Harold? Maybe they changed their minds!" I started to get excited again. Is this why Harold's been in a lovely mood lately? Me: "I hope and pray its him! We worked so well this week together, it would be a great business relationship." Dumi: "okay. We have lunch reservations my ladies, if you may ..." he opened the door for us saphuma. On our way to the car I bumped my breast with my wrist while trying to reach for my hair. My nipple almost stung. Me: "alisebhlungu bele lam." Zingi: "utheni? Periods?" Me: "they're due some time this week. But Kuthen ezoba sensitive kangaka amabele am?" Zingi: "it happens sometimes...its not like you have sex anymore." Me: "I trust you to keep pointing that out." she giggled. We drove to our spot for lunch satya and had a few drinks. I went home around 5. feeling a bit crampy on the tummy. I started at the toilet ndachama. My period had started. Almost a week early. I looked for my tampons ndafaka enye ndayolala... I was up by 4am. I started reading the news on the net then went on Facebook. I hadn't been online for a while. In my newsfeed, while scrolling, I stumbled upon Simphiwe's latest picture. The caption: "She said Yes! My wife to be.. Thank you God." it was a picture of the mother of his child and him. Her left hand visible with the ring on it. Ndakhubeka umphefumlo. All over again. It clearly didn't matter to him Yonke into endamenzela yona, why should it matter to me. Ndayenza ndimthanda at the end of the day and he chose another woman to be his wife. I was drowning in heart ache ingathi nditshizwa ngetyuwa engxebeni. I got up ndayovasa and looked for clothing afterwards. I found a red tight fitting dress that was long sleeve and had a tiny turtle neck. I wore my Christian Louboutin nude heels. Pushed back my hair and wore make up. I made my bed then went to fetch my bag ndaphuma endlini by 6:30am. I drove to work, going inside my office and setting up my desk. At 7:30 Harold arrived. And the rest of the staff. I was in a foul bitter mood but I need to put on big girl panties and work. H: "Spho." I looked up at the door. H: "your new boss is here." I smiled at him. Me: "cut the act Harold." H: "I'm serious." he laughed. H: "come meet him. He's in my office. You look absolutely stunning by the way, is that a new perfume?" Me: "uyadika yazi. Yes. It is." H: "smells like heaven." I got up and followed him. I know he was pulling my leg. He wasn't going anywhere. Ebethe akazobakho apha xa kufika omtsha but he was here. Me: "H, stop playing." I smiled. he stood at the door of his office. H: "introducing Mr Sobukwe." I went inside the office. When I saw him I almost choked on saliva. I couldn't breath. Ndaske ndabila ikhwapha immediately. Did my prayers not reach heaven gates? Is this a joke? What date is it today? H: "Spho?" he sat me down. H: "oh God, what's happening now?" he waved a file at my face for air. Me: "I'm fine.." H: "oh...good. Wooh, that was close. Anyway, Mr S, this is our favorite lady. Our new Managing Director." Lakhe: "lovely to meet you Miss." I stared at his extended hand with disgust. As if it didn't get any worse.....

Harold left us alone in the office. Me: "No." I paced up and down like the psycho I was starting to become. Lakhe: "babe...I don't understand what made you leave me olahlobo. I thought we had a great time." I stared at him. Uphilile guys lomfana? Has someone ever sounded sooo convincing, you began wondering if nguwe lo ubene mistake okanye mhlawmbi you didn't understand what was said, or you probably did little to heal the broken. Man, have you ever felt that way? Me: "firstly, I'm not your babe. Secondly, you were the one who showed me leopard spots right after we had sex!!! You knew I worked here! You just wanted to make it difficult for me! As if wena nala ndrwantyu yetshomakho haven't done enough damage to my emotions, you want to rule my work life too?! What kind of man are you?" all this time I was ranting and raving, he just sat on the desk and listened intently without a sound. Me: "I QUIT. I'm not going to work for you! You can give your promotion to Harold! I, Siphosenkosi Ngudla wase Humewood (because I mean really....it needed to be said.) am out." I turned on my heel. Before I reached the door, he grabbed me and pulled me close to him and kissed my lips. How I missed these lips. I had to push him away because I was getting dizzy and hypnotized. Lakhe: "I never meant to scare you away. Andifuni undishiye Spho..." Me: "after the way you treated me that night???" nanko unonyembezi. Lakhe: "what you said brought back hurtful memories." Me: "bendizoyazi njani lonto? How am I supposed to know anything if awuthethi nam?" now I was getting confused. Hurtful memories? Lakhe: "I'm an adopted child... Ndashiywa ngumamam ndina 7 with no form of education, no relatives and no chance of survival. I was left alone with her dead body in our shack for 3 days before I got any help. Ndathathwa zii-social workers that were called to my case and I was put in foster care. Everyone knew my story. Then, it was a taboo topic. They knew my mother had i-AIDS and I was teased about it for months on end. I had no friends, nobody wanted to come near me. Ibingathi ndizobosulela ngeloxesha andinanto mna. I was being emotionally abused by my mother's faults. I don't even think it was her fault, its never your intention to contract the disease. Things happen-" Me: "Lakhe.." Lakhe: "no, you want the truth, you need to be able to bear with it all." Me: "I can't." Lakhe: "then how do you expect me to? I lost my way of speaking with you but I never meant to hurt you at all. I'm sorry Spho." I looked away. Lakhe: "please? I miss you." I was being the emotional weakling again. With tears in my eyes and ready for action. He pulled my face by my chin with his hand. Lakhe: "ndicela undixolele." Me: "you never called me once. Or even sent an email to explain." Lakhe: "I had to go somewhere...I made sure to send dinner every night to your room. Ndiyakwazi how much you like eating. I couldn't risk sending lunch here, it would reveal my secret." Me: "how did you know my room?" Lakhe: "I partly own the hotel love." Me: "stalker." he smiled finally. Me: "I found a flat in Humewood." Lakhe: "I heard, ngoku undiqhwabela ithanga. Usisi wase Humewood. Andizofumana invite for dinner?" Me: "no." Lakhe: "aww...well I'll have you know, my winery has arrived, so has my furniture...you're also not invited." I smiled. Me: "I'm inviting myself. That's our house now." Lakhe: "seriously send me address yakho ndizoyazi ukuba uzifihla phi when you run away from me." Me: "No." Lakhe: "fine. I'll find it myself and God forbid when I do." Me: "good luck with that." he kissed my lips. Lakhe: "congratulations on your promotion to MD. Le ufuna uphisa ngayo ke phof." he kissed me again. Me: "that counts as sexual harassment ke apha." Lakhe: "might as well have you on my new desk right now, sibenento yoxoxa ku mantyi." My insides screamed for him. Konwaba intliziyo. Me: "I can't...I'm on my period." Lakhe: "oh that sucks...yilento mos ndiphantse ubulawa nge cephe." Me: "uzuhlekise. I have work to do." Lakhe: "let me make you dinner tonight...your place." Me: "okay. Wear something sexy." he smiled and kissed my forehead. Lakhe: "I will. Let me watch your ass while you walk out." I laughed and catwalked out his office. When I reached mine, I shook my head. Where do my morals escape to when he's around? I feel like a teenager going through stages. I even smelt like him. Heee, ubhuti wamadada.

Later that day. Lakhe arrived at my place with a plastic from Pick n Pay. He was dressed casually. G star jeans, a black t shirt and black Adidas Tubular sneakers. Me: "you might need this. Andiyazi usiza uskimile nje." I wrapped my apron on him and he started cooking. Lakhe: "enkosi baby." Me: "awufun uncedo?" Lakhe: "I'm not into men." I laughed. Me: "i'll be on the bean bag then." I went to relax and stretch. Lakhe: "baby funeke undikhumbuze to order furniture online vha." Me: "I thought you already had." Lakhe: "no, for apha babes." Me: "I already have it chosen." Lakhe: "oh? Ifika nin." Me: "in 7 days." Lakhe: "you could say awufuni qha instead of lying to me, you know that right?" Me: "you're too persistent." Lakhe: "is it so bad xa ndifuna only the best for umntuwam?" Whatever do you mean now? Khange athi we just chilling? Before I could respond to that statement there was a knock on our door. Lakhe: "hlala phantsi. I got this. You need to relax." he went to open the door. His whole body blocked the view and ebemde ubhuti wakho. I tried peeping under his bracket legs. I saw four pairs of feet. Male formal shoes. Female stilletos. Those are Louboutins. Both of them. The stilettoes matched mine. Has to be Zingi and Dumi. Lakhe: "Hello, can I help you?" Zingi: "hi. Sizeku bhabha. She home?" Lakhe: "ubhabha? There's no baby here." Dumi: "obviously a new flame." they giggled. Lakhe: "excuse me?" Zingi: "uSpho? Is she home?" Lakhe: "oh yes. She's resting." Zingi: "sicela usivulele simbone ke bhuti. That's why we're here." Lakhe: "of course." he opened the door. Me: "hi guys!" Zingi: "hey sweetie. We thought uyabawela ukuya eGinger for dinner. We didn't know you had a guest. Who is he?" Me: "uhm..." Zingi: "hi Uhm. Nice to meet you." Lakhe: "Lakhe. Is my name." he said as he chopped finely. Zingi: "oh...wow. Erh...well then...nice to officially meet you." Lakhe: "first time." Zingi: "excuse me?" Lakhe: "you said officially meet me, I've never met or seen you before unless You've spoken about me nobhabha." Zingi: "I...well..." I shook my head signaling for her to stop talking. Lakhe: "like you're doing now just without words." Dumi: "its like he has eyes on the back of his head." he whispered. Lakhe turned around with a sweet smile on his face. Lakhe: "I just wanted to prepare a nice dinner for my lady. She had a long hard working day and she deserves to have her food on time, her bath run and her feet massaged until she's asleep. I'm sorry if I seemed a bit unwelcoming." Zingi: "awww. That's okay. Sorry for being pests, we're leaving you love birds alone." Lakhe: "bye." Me: "you don't have to go. Babe...its a chance to get to know my friends." Zingi: "no, no hun...that will come another day...you two.....have some love and catching up to do." she giggled. Me: "I'm not following." Dumi: "I think it would be nice if we stayed and got to know Lakhe." Zingi: "love, its rude." Lakhe: "its okay. I've prepared enough food. Stay." he turned around and went back to his cooking without another word. I had a feeling that he didn't want anyone around him. No friends. Nothing. He wasn't, cold per say...just....distant. Dumi: "so...Lakhe. What do you do." Lakhe: "what do I do where." his eyes focused on his task. Dumi: "your line of work." Lakhe: "I'm the new CEO of Golden-Cell. By profession, I'm a qualified architect, IT technician, and a chef." after a dead silence, he put down the knife and stared at him. Lakhe: "You?" Dumi: "an advocate." Lakhe: "that's cute." he went back to the knife and washed his utensils in the sink. My heart sank. Zingi: "uhm...so, how's work babe?" Me: "its great. I've been promoted to MD!" Zingi: "oh that's wonderful!" we hugged. Zingi: "ubumfownele umamakho?" Me: "no.." Zingi: "why not? At least check on her." Me: "she's fine." Zingi: "please?" Me: "ngomso. I'll call her." after almost an hour of chatting, wathetha ubhut bae. Lakhe: "dinner will be ready in just 10 minutes." Me: "he's a good cook." Dumi: "is it... plus a good architect and a good IT technician. And, and, and...." he sighed. Dumi: "how is that even possible." Lakhe: "I believe if you go to a real university and study real subjects." Dumi: "oh but, thats awfully a lot of subjects for one human being. How old are you?" Lakhe: "would you like your food breathing hot or corpse cold?" Me: "Lakhe." Lakhe: "it was meant to be a joke." Dumi: "you should have been a mortician." Lakhe: "I took the course, just didn't end well." Dumi: "Zingi...get your bag." Lakhe: "I'm just about to serve dinner." Dumi: "its clear you don't want us here." Lakhe: "I said no such thing." Dumi: "you didn't have to. your actions imply that. Your responses also indicate you're hiding something." Lakhe: "what a good lawyer. For real, stay." Dumi: "we're leaving straight after dinner." Lakhe: "whichever tickles your ears Dumz. Is it okay if I call you Dumz? Dumzet, Dud'latey, Duba-dub-dub." Zingi and I chuckled. Dumi: "Dumisani." Lakhe: "hm." he dished up and brought us our food. Lakhe: "enjoy." we started eating our meal. Zingi: "wow! Lakhe...this is delicious." Lakhe: "thank you Zinglet." she blushed. Zingi: "how is the steak so tender on the inside yet tasty and juicy?" Lakhe: "its a secret. Maybe I'll show you one day." she smiled. Lakhe: "Dumi, you enjoying the food?" Dumi: "its fine." Lakhe: "thanks Dumadumdum.." I almost choked on my food. Zingi: "is there dessert?" Lakhe: "definitely. I have some ice cream and strawberries if you give me 10 minutes, I'll whip up a chocolate syrup real qu-" Dumis: "no...we have to go now. Unfortunately." Lakhe: "oh. Bye then." Me: "let me walk you guys out. Ndiyabuya Lakhe." he collected the plates and I walked my friends out. Me: "I'm sorry. He's a bit of a nut." Zingi: "I think he's sweet. And funny...and his food is Amazing!" Dumis: "I don't trust him. Something isn't right." Me: "I thought so too but he had a rough upbringing. He doesn't like being around people a lot. I think its the second time he's avoided being with a group." Dumis: "second time? He's clearly hiding something and wena Spho are too blindly in love to see it!" Me: "if you're upset about him teasing you, he was just trying to be nicer. He's not your normal, easy going guy. Its difficult for him to interact." Dumis: "I just hope you know who you're sleeping with." he got in his car and slammed the door. Zingi: "I'll call you later." I hugged her and went back up to the flat. Lakhe was washing dishes. Lakhe: "hey beautiful." Me: "am I your girlfriend?" he looked at me and dried his hands. Lakhe: "what?" Me: "I wasn't stuttering. Are we in a relationship or not? Are you my boyfriend? Or what? I'm unclear." Lakhe: "now? I thought we-" Me: "thought we what? what do you feel? How do feel about me?" he just blinked and stared at me. Me: "you're not gonna say anything Lakhe? Really?" Lakhe: "I'm not sure what to say. You're already upset, if ndithetha lento uyifunayo uzothi ndiyaxoka and get angry, if I am honest with you and tell you what I feel uzocimba ndiyaxoka again then whichever answer you get you're going to turn it against me and assume I'm using you for some odd reason." Me: "Wow. Sow'gqibile undiphendula Lakhe." I went to take a shower. I knew he didn't want me to at night, I was doing it to get a reaction out of him. Dololo sana. I got into bed and covered myself ndiqumbe ndinjalo. It was about 30 minutes later, I was getting really sleepy by then. My eyes were closed and my breathing was lighter. Lakhe: "I love each and every minute I spend with you. You bring light into my dark soul...I feel my heart when I see you. I can feel it for the first time...I just don't know how. You make me happy without even trying to. Just seeing you is enough for me. That's why ndifuna ukonwabisa...that's how I feel about you." I dragged my eyes open and looked around. The room was dark. He wasn't here. I sat up straight immediately frightened. I already missed him. Me: "baby?" just like that. He was gone.....

Chapter 7

Again, I'd barely slept a wink. I got up early to have a shower. My period had stopped. The tampon was clean. Which didn't make much sense at first but I remembered its probably because ndiyeke uhlaba recently so my periods were irregular. I took out some clothes to wear. I didn't know what exactly to wear. To be honest, I was distracted by what happened last night. How could he just leave me like that? I took out my black umbrella skirt and a fitted white shirt ndanxiba. Looking through my shoe bag, I found my Balmain stilettos. When I was done with everything, my phone beeped a message. I checked it: 'Good morning angel. Best part of my day is to watch you come into the office. Wear my favorite smile.' Me: "mxim." I walked out the flat to my car. I drove to work figuring out a dialogue of what I'm to say when I see him. I got to my office just after 7am. To my surprise. Everyone was here. I suddenly felt late. Was my watch wrong. I went to our receptionist. Me: "Bianca." B: "hey Spho. How are you this morning?" Me: "I'm good. How are you? And the baby?" she was 5 months pregnant and super excited. Not mentioning the baby was a sure way of getting attitude from her. B: "we're doing so well! You know he kicks so much but here at the office, he's so quiet and disciplined." Me: "that's so sweet. So why is everyone here so early?" B: "oh. Its one of the new orders the new boss gave. We have to check in at the office at 7am. Monday to Friday and knock off at 3. I think its great." Me: "Check in?" B: "oh yes. Sign here. And the exact time you're in the door." what the fuck is this? High school? Me: "why?" B: "well, yesterday, about 8 people didn't show up on time. Everyone comes in whenever they want." Me: "but their work is always complete and up to standard." B: "well...its what the boss ordered." Me: "I'm not signing this shit." yep, dialogue sorted. I stormed to his office. It was wide open with a contractor working there. Me: "Give us a minute." the guy got up and walked out. Lakhe: "ahh. My lov-" I closed the door. Me: "what are you doing?" Lakhe: "you didn't return my text." Me: "you make us sign registers? This isn't high school Masilakhe!" Lakhe: "you don't even say good morning." Me: "everyone in this office does their work properly and on time! Why do you need to pressure them like this!" he just looked at me biting his lip. Lakhe: "are you done?" Me: "Answer me." Lakhe: "firstly, punctuality is professionalism. It is the key to great business. It screams responsibility and diligence. People take you seriously when you're at work on time. Your boss takes you seriously when you're at work on time. You work more. You work harder. And smarter. Isn't that how you got your promotion? I make it MY business to build every individual in this office to their full potential. Which means grooming them to their best purposes and ensuring them a way to better themselves. Whether we have room for more management or to open a new branch. I don't work with sloths. I don't like dead weight. Every week I need a report of every one of the people who work in your team and or report to you. I want to see progress. Every Friday, you and I. We have a meeting at 3. Now if you'll excuse me. I have a company to run." I lost the argument. I was now being dismissed. Me: "why did you leave me alone last night? Where did you go? Without saying anything." pulling out a classic 'Blame it on him' girlfriend move. He needed to be wrong one way or another. He had to be. Lakhe: "please close the door on your way out." he sat in his desk without so much as a look in my direction. Yuuuh andatyhafa. I walked out with my tail in between my legs straight to my office and closed the door. I started on my work. He had just given me another pile of work to top it all off. It was already Tuesday. I had my own work and the reports to finish by Friday. God, I just wanted to kill him right there! How dare he? Without another second to spare I started working immediately. With my work here at the office, at home would be the reports. I had to monitor my team day in, day out. By lunch time I was almost done, just had one more meeting and I was ready for home. I didn't need to have lunch. I was going to get home, take off all my clothes, make myself food ndihlale on my bed naked and eating while watching a series. I wanted this so bad, I was excited as hell. I walked to Boardroom A to set up my meeting and my client arrived just in time. We greeted. Me: "if we may have a seat and begin." we sat down. The door opened again and in popped Mr Sobukwe like a bubble in the air. I felt bile working up inside me. Me: "Mr S, can I help?" I tried a smile. A.a, didn't work. Lakhe: "I hope you haven't started yet. I thought I'd sit in. Good day Mr Hamilton, I'm Mr Sobukwe. The new CEO." I swallowed my anger and continued with my meeting which was being hijacked right before my eyes.

I was home at 6 in the evening because I had to finish the first two reports. I locked my flat and flopped on the bed ndibawela ulila. I had a perfect afternoon planned. It was ruined! I was dead tired. Having to drag myself up to the bathroom and run a bath was no joke. Finally I sat in the warm water, scrubbing myself. When I was done bathing, I got out to dry up. Wrapping the towel around my body. There was a knock on my door. I peeped. It was him. He knocked again. I opened. Me: "what do you want?" Lakhe: "why do you treat me like this Sphosenkosi? Why am I such an enemy to you? You're always fighting me and I'm always trying to make you happy. Does that even make sense? What do I do wrong?" Me: "You have anger issues. You ridicule my friends. You refuse to answer my question until I fall asleep. Then you disappear. Then you dismiss me in the office." Lakhe: "babe. I didn't ridicule your friend. He just doesn't like me. You caught me off guard. When you got mad, I didn't want to be all up in your face and irritate you so I left. And do you think you're the only person that gets mad? You know....damn it, you can, more than anyone I've EVER known say the most hurtful things to me. I thought it was impossible but yeeyi, sisi. Yuh." Me: "what am I to you?" Lakhe: "there you go again confusing me." Me: "am I your girlfriend or your booty call

!!!" Lakhe: "you're You're my girl. My Girlfriend. I brought you dinner." he held up the plastic nervously. Lakhe: "please." I let him in. Me: "don't disappear again." Lakhe: "I won't. I promise." I took the plastic from him and set up the plates. Lakhe: "I'm thinking of buying the building. If we up our profits by 15%." Me: "that's impossible." Lakhe: "with you as my MD. I don't think so. If we keep that up, we'll own the building by the time Bianca gives birth." I laughed. Me: "don't bring Bianca in this." he kissed my neck. Lakhe: "maybe...we should have our own." Me: "our own what? Bianca?" I chuckled. Me: "no thanks. She talks too much." Lakhe: "no....our own." Me: "I don't follow." Lakhe: "for an MD. You're quite slow." he nibbled my ear. Lakhe: "our own baby." Me: "don't be ridiculous." I laughed. Me: "we both just got new jobs. HOW would we manage me falling pregnant ? Because you know damn well, I'm not going to be in it alone." Lakhe: "hmm...I can imagine you storming into my office just like you did this morning. Only this time, your big belly would lead the way and of course I'd just melt into your demands...you would be looking so gorgeous carrying my daughter in your womb." he rubbed my tummy. Yazi ebendicapkisa ngoku ndisiva kamandi. I've been wanting to have a baby but I didn't want to have one now because I had a new job. Me: "you really know how to manipulate people don't you?" he turned me around and kissed me. Lakhe: "No, I just like manipulating you." Me: "you really pissed me off today." Lakhe: "so did you. No text. No good morning. No manners. Such shame." Me: "maybe you should punish me then." Lakhe: "ooh...is my private road clear?" Me: "squeaky." he picked me and tossed me on the bean bag. He pulled my right leg over the other and sat behind me holding it in front of me. Lakhe: "such behavior, deserves such punishment.."

Me: "punis-" he spanked me hard and brushed my skin after. It was stinging.
Me: "I'm sorry." Lakhe: "I beg your pardon?" he stuck his finger inside me, stroking carefully in and out. Me: "baby..." he lifted my leg up some more and opened me wide. Without warning he devoured me. His tongue massaging my clit. I held onto his head. Me: "Lakhee...baby!" he sucked on it for a little while. Me: "baby I'm gonna cum...yima!!" my legs were shaking, and he was going faster then stopped. He pulled me down to his waist and entered himself deep, paralyzing my legs. He pulled it out slowly and went in again gently. Lakhe: "look at me." I stared into his eyes. Me: "ba-" Lakhe: "shhhh..." he breathed. Not breaking our gaze for once. I held on his t shirt pulling him closer and breathing more carefully. He thrust in faster, deeper. Gripped me tighter. I was getting dizzy close to climax. My eyes fluttered. Lakhe: "my love.." he breathed. Those wordselectrified me somewhere. Deeply. Lakhe: "stay with me." he groaned. I wrapped my legs around him. Me: "harder baby!" he pounded faster. Lakhe: "ooh damn!" I climaxed and melted underneath him. He breathed quicker, his mouth slightly open. Lakhe: "oooh...ohhhh...ahhhh." he stopped and let it all go. He had a hard encrypted look on his face. I wasn't sure if it was fear or pain. Then he closed his eyes getting up. Me: "are you okay?" Lakhe: "after that? Definitely." I took the towel that had once covered my body and wiped myself. Lakhe: "I'll dish for you. You need to eat." Me: "not too much." Lakhe: "enough though. You need your energy." Me: "for what? I'm about to sleep." Lakhe: "oh no you aint. You ran away from me for almost a week. You owe me a couple days' sex." I laughed. Me: "uphambene yazi. I'm sure awuziqondi. But uphambene." Lakhe: "ndiright." my phone rang. Who could that be? I checked my caller I.D. Random 060 number. Lakhe: "who is it?" Me: "don't know." Lakhe: "then answer it." Me: "no. This is my leisure time. I spend it with my boyfriend." Lakhe: "aww. That is so sweet but answer your phone baby. Nam izokhala eyam and I'll have to attend to it." Me: "I don't want to attend to mine though. Its so much admin." he brought the food. Lakhe: "your furniture is getting delivered on Saturday morning." Me: "you didn't have to do that." Lakhe: "I wanted to." he wiped the corner of my mouth. Lakhe: "besides. The only piece of furniture you have has cum all over it." Me: "you're disgusting." I ate my food. When we were done, I got into bed in his arms. Me: "so...how did you end up being CEO." Lakhe: "Its a long story. For another day baby. Today we need to rest." I couldn't help but notice his phone was put face down on the dresser. It was dark so you may be asking 'How you know?' That's because it kept lighting up every few seconds with no sounds. And that usually means its on silent. I waited for him to fall asleep. Which wasn't hard. All I did was play with his beard and tickle his ears. I managed to sneak out his arms and bed. Lakhe: "yaphi..." he groaned. Me: "need to pee baby. Ndiyeza." Lakhe: "hm.." and he carried on snoring. I took his phone and tiptoed to the bathroom, locking it behind me and I looked at it. Obviously password locked. And it only needed four digits. Fuck! What was his birth year? I tried to recall. He never told me. The phone lit up again in my hand without me pressing it. A message was coming in. Went black again. A call came through, it just stared at me quietly. Loco was the name on the caller. Didn't that mean crazy or something? I flushed the toilet and opened the door. To my horror, he was standing at the door staring at me. Lakhe: "uyenzan phone yam?" he whispered.

Lakhe: "well?" I pressed and faked tears. Trying my best to remember a hurtful memory to support them. Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi. You better start talking." Me: "I thought you were cheating." Lakhe: "what?" Me: "I just don't know who to trust anymore. You disappear, you come back. You face down your phone. I can't take another disappointment Masilakhe. I don't want to invest myself into someone that won't do that to me. I stayed with Simphiwe for 3 damn years pouring all my hard work into his ass and he went on to marry another woman. I cannot go through that shit again. I'm sorry." I gave him his phone. Lakhe: "baby? Come on. I am not cheating. I just work a lot. What do you mean Simphiwe is married to another woman? Uyifumani phi lonto?" Me: "I saw it on Facebook. Everyone did. He proposed to her." he hugged me. Lakhe: "I will never do you like he did. You're an amazing woman. You're enough for mna. Don't doubt that please?" I nodded. Lakhe: "ndicela uyeke uz'comparisha nalantombi. And most importantly, uyeke MNA undicomparisha nala swine. I am nothing like him." At least I was out of trouble. Khaniyibone bethuna la look. Ubhuti wamadada isn't someone to fuck around with. If looks could kill, ngenindingcwaba kungoku. Lakhe: "7746." Me: "what is that." Lakhe: "my password. Just don't sneak out on me." Me: "can I look no-" Lakhe: "no. We're going to bed. Usile yazi." he picked me up and carried me to bed while I giggled. When we got to bed he tucked me in his arms. Me: "what does 7746 mean?" Lakhe: "it means Spho." I blushed. Why did I even doubt him? I still had to check but I was halfway certain that he wasn't double playing me. But who is Loco? And why is he calling him at this time? Me: "you have a couple of messages by the way." Lakhe: "from?" Me: "I don't know. Your phone kept brighting." Lakhe: "hm" he sighed and kissed my forehead. Lakhe: "sleep." I closed my eyes and tried to find some sleep..

About two weeks later. Saturday. I woke up early from bed. Lakhe didn't come over last night saying he had work left over to do. I brushed my teeth, showered and got dressed in casual. Blue high waisted leggings and a white crop top. I cleaned my little house, changing my sheets. Putting my dirty laundry into one bag. Today was laundry day and I was going to use Bhut Bae's house for it. My furniture was delivered this week because ndizjikisile before. Just placing it in the lounge was all I could do now. This was what I wanted. Bendingxamile gqithi. I quickly signed bahamba abantu babantu. It was two couches that formed an L when joined. A black Plasma TV. Plus a glass coffee table. I'd unwrap everything when I got back. I closed all my windows and locked my door, taking the bag to my car. I drove to Kragga Kamma and arrived at my boyfriend's estate. There was a black BMW parked in his yard ngo reverse. I parked my car ndayongqkongqkoza emnyango. Yes there was a bell but I believed in knocks more. Wavuleka umnyango. A strange man was standing there with a burger half way into his mouth. We stared at each other for a full minute while he chewed on his bite wade waginya uswine. "what you want?" Me: "ungubani?" Him: "the owner of this house. Wena ungubani?" Me: "ndikhangela uLakhe. Where is he?" he stared at the bag in my hand. Him: "you're moving in?" Me: "ndicela uLakhe." he savagely bit again on his burger and chewed. I studied him. Before getting pissed off. Realizing he was so much similar to Lakhe. Same stance when standing. Legs far apart. Broad big shoulders. He just didn't have the face. That mean look. This one looked adorable. Like a little puppy. So I pushed him aside and walked in the house. Him: "hesana!!" Me: "Lakhe!" I walked to his room. Ndangena. Bed was made. He stood by the window with his phone in the ear signaling me to keep quiet. Lakhe: "yes sir, I understand your frustration and we're working thoroughly to solve your situation, trust me. I'll look into it again and see if we have any developments. I will give you a call on Monday morning....Thanks." he hung up. Me: "baby, who is that psycho in the lounge." "that psycho? G ngubani lo ?? She just stormed in here like she owns the place." Me: "excuse me? Mr Wait for me to chew my burger like a toddler. He stuffs his mouth. I'm not gonna wait for that!" "I will stuff your face if you keep talking." Me: "oh please try." Lakhe: "Okay! Both of you! Yinton ingathi ningoo K? Damn." Me: "I got here first." I mumbled. "I stay here." he replied. Me: "baby. Who's this imbecile?" Lakhe: "this imbecile is my brother, Sands. Brother, this is my girlfriend. Ndicela nivane because xandingekho you'll have to tolerate each other." Me: "ubuthe kum you had a sister." Lakhe: "I never said only." I looked at this Sands. He stared back at me. Me: "babe. Ziphi mpahla zakho. I'm here to do laundry." Lakhe: "laundry room babe." he kissed my cheek. Sands: "I'll be in my room." he walked out. I went to the laundry room and started on the washing. Not much to do than sort the clothes, empty pockets and toss them into machine. There was even a dryer so biyimpolo nje. I walked out and heard voices so I slowed down and listened. Sands: "are you out of your mind?" Lakhe: "Sandile. Khawundehle man." Sands: "No Gazi. Akhonto ndizoyehla at all. First this stupid CEO nonsense that you know nothing about, now a girlfriend?" Lakhe: "firstly, before we get things twisted. I went to university. Ndiyayazi lento ndiyenzayo. Secondly, why ndingazobana cherrie? You had no problem with Banger." Sands: "because Banger ebengenzi washing. She was a booty call. She knew her place. This one is too bloody controlling. Next thing you know, you'll be forced into marriage! Uyabona uyafosta lomntana!" Lakhe: "Spho would never force me to do anything." Sands: "wenza i-flop Lakhe. Blind. This chick is gonna get seriously hurt when she finds out the kind of dog you are." Lakhe: "uthethi kaka kengoku." Sands: "kwamna? Do you think uzomelana nalent-" Lakhe: "shut up! I will deal with Spho, uyi responsibility yam. I don't understand why Une worry kangaka." I tip toed back to the laundry room and digested my new findings. What were they talking about? Was Sands really his brother? Were they gay? That's probably why Sands engaged me. He was jealous. Were they GAY?? What the fuck? I recalled their whole conversation. They Were Gay! Is that why he didn't want to come over last night? Because his boyfriend was home? Oh my God, oh my God!! Why can't I stop acting crazy? Lakhe: "babe." I busied myself. Lakhe: "love wam." Me: "hm." I was so disgusted. I didn't know what to do. My clothes were in his machine! I needed my clothes people. I had to wait until they finished. Me: "I'm going to make lunch." I ran out the room ndaya ekitchen. Sands was spawned on the couch like tomato paste on a pizza. I shivered in disgust. To be honest, I have nothing against gay people. I believe in letting people live their lives as much as they liked. It just became a problem where there was a possibility that Lakhe could be fooling me. I wasn't sure. My phone rang when I was in the kitchen. Again the number from last night. So ndaphendula today. Me: "Hello?" Caller: "Hi Spho." I went ice cold. It was the bastard. Simphiwe. Simphiwe: "before you hang up, hear me out." Me: "you have 5 seconds." Simphiwe: "babe, funeke sidibane and figure out how we're going to make our bond payments because we have to split them now." Me: "I don't live in that house anymore. Its not my responsibility." Simphiwe: "Spho. You know I can't afford that house by myself." Me: "ungaceli fiance yakho ikuncedise nje? Hm? Isn't that how marriage works?" Simphiwe: "baby ndicel uyeke lento uyenzayo tu." Me: "don't ever fucking call my number again! Andinguye ubaby wakho Simphiwe uyevha? Go to hell. I hope you get kicked out that house too. Ubuyele kula lokishi ndakufumana uhlala kuyo. Bastard!" I hung up the phone. When turned around I found Lakhe leaning on the mirror fridge. Ndaske ndamjonga naye andamazi ndimthini. He didn't say anything nam ndathula. To be honest I was a bit nauseas. I took a glass ndagalela amanzi ndasela. Lakhe: "bhabha." Me: "hm...." Lakhe: "what's going on?" I checked my phone for the time ndabona message. I viewed it. 'I tried being nice and considerate. You decided to insult me. Ukhumbule ke sisi lendlu is in YOUR name. When you're blacklisted by the banks and hounded by credit bureau ungabuyi ukhalela mna. I tried helping you.' I swallowed in pain. Yehla inyembezi yokuqala. I couldn't take it anymore. I was just defeated by life. Every time I tried getting up, it kept knocking me down. How could I afford i-bond yendlu ese blue water and my flat in Humewood? And my car, my petrol and clothing accounts as well as cellphone plus my mother's allowance even on my promotion salary? How? How? How?!!! Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi." Me: "I have to go-" Lakhe: "Siphosenkosi!" I ran out to my car and started it. Lakhe: "Spho!!!" he screamed behind me. I sped off instantly. In my mirror I could see the BMW revving toward me. I got on the freeway ndayinyathela accelerator. My phone rang on the passenger seat. I looked at it and back at my mirror then wiped my tears. By the time I opened my eyes again I saw a sharp curve and I hit the brakes. The car bumped on the pavement and rolled over to oncoming traffic. It landed on its side. Me: "ohmy God." I'd survived. Before I sighed in relief a loud bang hit me.....kwacima izibane..

"Phakama! Phakama! Phakama man Sphosenkosi!! Get up!" my mother was standing on top of me next to the bed. I jumped up and washed my body with the water in the small tub. Ma: "uzundityele ixesha mna andinaxesha la Le nonsense yakho vha!" I washed faster and got dressed in my uniform. Ma: "masambe." Me: "ibhedi mam-" Ma: "itheni?" I left it like that and we took a taxi to the clinic. I hurried behind her safika sangena kwi queue. This wasn't our regular clinic. Ibise town intle and I wasn't sure why we came here. Mama wayobhalisa waphinda wahlala nam. I knew better than to start asking questions. In an hour, one girl came out the room walking painfully. She was in tears. What did they do to her? Just then my name was called out. I glued my behind on my chair. My mother dragged me up and to the doctor. He closed the door and smiled. Doc: "hello Siphosenkosi. How are you my angel?" I kept quiet. What did he want to do? Doc: "you can wait outside ma'am. We won't be too long." my mother left me in there alone. Doc: "I'm going to need you to relax okay? This won't hurt at all. You're just 10 weeks I see. Almost as small as a jelly bean. Take this pill and have a rest there." The rest of the day was one of agony, blood and tears. I lay in my bed at night and sobbed myself to sleep.

Mother was gone in a few days again. Her job made her leave a lot, I didn't want to be alone again. Not here with him. He came into my room and stared at me with disgust. "Uyazbona izenzo zakho zenze ntoni? Uzumxelele net unyoko uyow'ndibona." I didn't reply, I kept quiet as always. "uhlale apho ndiyabuya. Uyevha?" I nodded. When he walked out the room I got up from bed. Under those blankets I was already dressed in my tracksuit. I quickly put on flip flops grabbing my school bag and dashed out. To my surprise it was horrifyingly cold. I regretted leaving instantly but then remembered his smell on top of me. The aching of my legs from being pulled apart. The blood. I had to run. "HEY!!!" he yelled behind me. I ran as fast as possible. The rain slapped my face angrily and the winds dragged me back. I pushed forward. Running. My feet were ice cold and wet with the rest of my body. I ran until I couldn't breath anymore. I struggled for oxygen and kneeled in the middle of the road crying and trying my hardest to breath. Me: "Please..... Help..... Me." I tried to push out screams. My chest was closing in on me and then I fell down.

Voices were on top of me. Whispers.. I couldn't see. I tried opening my eyes. "she's awake." I heard. "how?" someone asked. "Hi angel." who were these people? Ndiphi kanti? "uyandiva?" I slightly nodded. "Usesbhedlele. We found you unconscious two weeks ago on the highway. You were almost frozen to death. You're okay now...everything is going to be okay." she had kind eyes. A beautiful smile. Like an angel. I was feeling really warm, she took one blanket off and gave me water. I could sit up. The room was heated. A white old man came in. He reminded me of the man who gave me the pill which made me bleed for hours. The man who was scraping my insides clean. I was shivering in my bed. Doc: "hey...you're finally awake." he sat next to me and checked my eyes. Doc: "there is a lady who wants to take you home and wants to take care of you. Open mouth." I opened my mouth. Doc: "lovely. We're going to keep you here for a few more days okay? So you can familiarize yourself with your new family." I have a new family? Doc: "starting tomorrow, we'll do some exercises to oil up your joints okay? You must be tired." Me: "get up..." Doc: "you want to get up?" I nodded. He helped me out of bed and I could feel my spinal cord cracking back to its place. We walked a few meters and went back to bed. I met the woman who was to take me home. She had a teddy bear in her arm, with a big smile on her face. "ndingu Zama mna. Did the nurse tell you I'm taking you home with me?" I nodded. Where was my mother? Zama: "ina baby. This is for you. My husband thought you'd like it." he was wrong. It was a beautiful bear but she had a husband...my mother had a husband....he hurt me. I started crying. The machine next to me was beeping. Zama: "hun? What did I do? What's wrong?" the doctor came straight in. Doc: "please escort Mrs Ngudla out." he injected something that made me weak. I closed my eyes....

I opened my eyes to bright lights. Lakhe: "Spho. Its me. Lakhe." my whole body ached from head to toe. My head was heavy. I looked at him. Ngubani lo? He was standing next to me. Me: "who." Lakhe: "you're awake!! Oh Thank God." he ran out. I looked around the room. Then Who was this? "You are crazier than I thought and suicidal. Why would you -" he kept quiet when this Lakhe walked back in. Another man came in and checked me. Man: "ahh...welcome back." What was happening? Man: "you're in hospital. You were in an accident a few days ago." Lakhe: "6 days ago. Its been 6 days you haven't woken up." what was more confusing was.....I fell asleep in hospital. The doctor injected me. How did I get in an accident? Man: "do you remember hun?" Me: "the woman...she came in....with a teddy. Where is...she?" Lakhe: "what woman? Where!" Me: "I almost died." Man: "well.....yeah... But you survived." Me: "it was cold. I froze. Into coma." Lakhe: "doctor what's happening?" Man: "I'm not sure." Me: "the nurse....she said she found me. I almost died. She said a woman was taking me home." Man: "Oh God." he held his forehead. Lakhe: "what?!" Man: "I need to take her for a PET scan immediately." Lakhe: "why? What's wrong!!" Man: "I don't think she remembers a thing. All of this, could not have happened recently. Can you get a hold of her parents?" Lakhe: "I tried, her next of kin is her best friend. She says she is on her way from Gatwick." Me: "her husband thought I liked the teddy. I didn't like the husband." Man: "This won't be long." other people entered the room and my bed started moving. Man: "you're going to be okay. Just trust me." he held my shoulder. I was put onto a stretcher bed, thinner than the one I was on before. "Just relax hun. Don't mind the big light." he placed a needle into my vein and I felt a sharp sting. After a while, I was entered into tunnel shaped cylinder with my eyes closed. "still doing okay?" I could hear him. Me: "get me out." Him: "okay love. Just a few more minutes. Stay still." I waited a few more minutes. I couldn't hear him anymore. Me: "hello?" Him: "I'm still here baby girl. You want to talk?" Me: "I want out." Him: "okay. Just let me finish okay?" Me: "okay." I don't know how long I was there. My body was becoming stiff and I couldn't move. Finally he got me off and wheeled me back to my room. My eyes were weak. Lakhe: "Doctor? What's wrong? its been an hour and a half!" Doc: "it should take a day or two to get the results. Then we'll find out what is the problem." Lakhe: "what could be the problem? She looks like she doesn't even know who I am." Doc: "it is possible that she is suffering from amnesia." Lakhe: "so she Doesn't know who I am." Doc: "Masilakhe. You need to be patient. We will do whatever we can." he walked out of the room. "this is your chance." Lakhe: "chance for what Sandile? You better not talk shit or I swear I'll knock you the fuck out." Sandile: "you need to let go bra. Its fate. She doesn't know you. Chances are, she never will. Uyamva she's talking crazy. Do you really want that type of life? Bhatala fondin ii-bills u'slyze qha." Lakhe: "Get the fuck out." Sandile: "Lucky you're making a mistake my brother." Lakhe: "Get the fuck out." Sandile: "G? Its me." Lakhe: "I'm saying it one last time Sandile." Sandile: "fine. I'm leaving. Kodwa wenzi flop bra." he walked out. I looked at him. Lakhe: "I promised you I'd never leave. I intend to keep that promise. Ndiyayazi awundazi. So, this is our time to start afresh." he got into bed next to me and hugged me. Lakhe: "jonga....." he took out his phone and turned on the front camera. Both our faces showed on the screen. I giggled. Lakhe: "you are still so beautiful." he went to pictures. Lakhe: "I took these every chance I got. Apha wawulele .. Look at that mouth." I smiled. This was me. I just wished I was there. Lakhe:

"here, you were walking out my office...apha ubusenza washing yethu. Which by the way yomile....it was also the day of your accident." a slow tear rolled sideways because I was laying on my side. Me: "stop." Lakhe: "you don't have to worry bhabha." when he said that, my heart felt so warm with love. I turned around and hugged him tight. Lakhe: "its okay baby. Everything is going to be okay."

6 weeks Later. My first day outside hospital, I struggled to walk a bit and still couldn't remember anyone in my current life. All these people that came in I have never seen in my life. All these events they mention. It was like being introduced into a new life. Everyday Lakhe said it was a second chance but I also wanted these wonderful memories. He walked me to the car and drove home. I stared down at the controls of the car. Could I drive? Was I able to do this without help? But that's the reason of the accident. Clearly I couldn't. Where was I driving to? Oh no...my heart sank when I had one more question about this accident. I looked at him. Lakhe: "what's wrong baby?" Me: "was there anyone else in the car?" Lakhe: "no babe. Just you. Why?" he looked a bit distracted. Me: "I can't drive can I?" Lakhe: "ubukwazi. Do you want me to tell you what happened that day?" I nodded. Lakhe: "you'd just met my brother. Didn't get along that well. Ubusenza washing in the laundry room and then went to make into yokutya. Before you could begin, you received a phone call. Someone said something that upset you over the phone and you ran out crying. You got into your car I tried to stop you but you were speeding off. You took a turn too late and crashed." he stopped talking and breathed. Lakhe: "the most painful thing was watching the car roll over right before my eyes and there was nothing I could do to stop it. When it finally did, I got out the car but another car in on coming traffic crashed into you." He wiped his eyes. Lakhe: "I thank God...you're here with me today. We're home." he pulled into a gigantic house. It looked like a house in a movie. With a beautiful huge lawn. Me: "who was it?" Lakhe: "Who babe?" Me: "the person that called me. Who was it?" Lakhe: "why?" Me: "maybe angayazi kwenzeka ntoni. Why did they upset me? Do you know who it is?" Lakhe: "no babe. You never told me. Even phone yakho got lost in the wreckage. I'm sorry."

My day was spent resting on the sofa and going to the toilet. Something was distracting him. He was awfully quiet and that made me uncomfortable. Me: "will you be honest with me?" Lakhe: "of course my love." Me: "what's wrong, you look worried." Lakhe: "everything is fine. I'm glad I didn't lose you too." he hugged me. Me: "too?" Lakhe: "you're the only person I have in my life. Please don't scare me like that ever again." he let go of me and walked down the passage. I ought to give him some breathing space so I went outside to the garden. There were 3 cute little ducks in a pond. They quacked and swam in the water. Ndaqondba mandihlale apha ecamkwabo. What could he have meant when he said he was glad he didn't lose me too? Who else did he lose? I didn't have the energy actually I don't know why I'm even bothering myself ngemibuzo. I got up to go fetch a camera. These ducks were too cute. I went inside the house ndaya eroomin yakhe. Before I went in, I peeped. He was leaning on his arm by the window. He looked like.....he was crying. I knocked on the door. Me: "Lakhe?" he wiped his face. Lakhe: "love." avoiding eye contact. Me: "ndiyak'cela uthethe nam. Please. It hurts enough that I'm in this new environment and I trust you to guide me through it. I also need to know what is wrong. Andithandi ukubona unje." Lakhe: "baby, I'll be fine. I just need time." Me: "Lakhe. Talk to me." he sat on the bed. Lakhe: "I can't." the room fell awfully quiet with each of us deep in our own worlds. He was sitting on the bed, I was staring out the window. I don't know for how long we were in that phase but kwakhala iphone finally. He looked as if he didn't hear a thing. Me: "your phone." Lakhe: "hm?" Me: "your phone is ringing." he looked around and found it with his eyes. Lakhe: "I can't stop thinking. Its like....my whole life has crashed and spilled all over now I can't stop thinking." Me: "ucinga ntoni." he looked up me. Lakhe: "that I love you more than I've ever loved myself." these past 6 weeks he had been in and out of my hospital room but I've never not even once heard him say this. Lakhe: "you couldn't stop bleeding. It hurt me so bad Sphosenkosi. I can't imagine how it must have felt like kuwe." I could not say a word. I didn't want to disturb him. He just said he loved me. A man that didn't even talk about his feelings? It was a big step for him. Lakhe: "it was too early, but it still hurts so bad." he stood up and I saw the strong man I have started to know again. He looked lost and seemingly didn't want to be found. Me: "I feel a bit tired." Lakhe: "of course. Come here." he got me into bed and slipped in after me. He held me in his arms. We laid there quietly. Me: "how long have we been together?" Lakhe: "about 3 weeks before the accident and now its just over 2 months." Me: "cela undibalisele how we met." Lakhe: "uhm...its quite funny actually. At the mall. I was new to the city. I was asking for directions but we both established that was a lie to get to talk to you." I smiled. Me: "what was I wearing?" Lakhe: "a long navy dress. You had longer hair, ziyaphinda ziyakhula ngoku though." Me: "and then what happened?" Lakhe: "well, our first date was you coming over for breakfast then we went shopping. Sabuya ndenza supper. We had pizza and each other." Me: "hmm..." Lakhe: "I enjoyed it so much." Me: "the pizza?" Lakhe: "noo. You. That day. Then it kept getting better. You work for a company called golden-cell, I've just been appointed CEO kuyo. Its difficult without you. Harold offered to take your place until you're fit and proper again." Me: "Harold? The white man that came to the hospital a few times?" Lakhe: "ewe." Me: "what made you stay? If it were only 3 weeks, why didn't you just turn and walk away." Lakhe: "I promised you andisoze ndikukhubekise and ndizohlala ndikunye nawe no matter what until wena utsho mandihambe. Not that ndizohamba but ke...." Me: "thank you. I don't know bendizokwenza njani without you." Lakhe: "baby.." Me:

"hm." Lakhe: "why ungafun ubona umamakho? You banned her from your bedroom and threatened suicide everytime efuna usondela kuwe." Me: "If you tell me why you were crying I'll tell you." he kept quiet. Me: "I know all you want to do is protect me. Don't you realize I want to protect you too? I feel the exact same way about you." Lakhe: "I know babe." I was really feeling tired now. I closed my eyes for a few seconds whiffing his cologne. God, did he smell so damn goood. I kissed his lips he kissed me back. Lakhe: "uyabawa ngoku?" Me: "heee. Hayi kengoku. I'm just kissing my boyfriend." he kissed me again. Holding my head. I sucked on his soft lips, my hand brushing on the soft beard on his face. Lakhe: "ubuthe udiniwe ke." Me: "bendidiniwe." Lakhe: "lala ke sisi." Me: "no baby." Lakhe: "yes...lala. Subastout." I obeyed his commands ndavala amehlo to sleep.

"I'm so sorry my angel. I didn't mean to scare you. Are you okay?" Zama was standing next to my bed. The doctor was helping me exercise. I just nodded. Zama: "just after this sizogoduka vha." I smiled. After my exercise, I was dressed warmly and she signed a few papers. Saphuma phandle. For the first time in a long time I saw sunlight. A bit of wind, but there was sunlight. The clouds hung around the sun just as my doubts and fears lingered in my new light of happiness. She opened her Polo Vivo and helped me in with the seatbelt neatly locked around me. She drove. I didn't ask where she lived so I didn't know. I was given a chance so many times to ask questions. I didn't. Instead she spoke a lot. She spoke for me. Maybe that's why I agreed to leave with her, she was my voice. She parked in a yard with nicely cut grass and a white brick wall around it. Zama: "we're home Spho." I got out the car and followed her inside. In the house, I heard barking. I was terrified of dogs. Why was it in the house. Zama: "honey!?" a tall man walked out the kitchen and smiled. Zama: "Spho, this is my husband, Khaya. Hun, nanku Spho." he looked at me. Khaya: "she's so cute." he extended his hand and I backed away quickly. Khaya: "I thought you might like someone to play with, so ndikuthengele uboy. Would you like to name him." he held the small puppy up in the air. That was the cute one. Not me. Zama took the puppy and handed it to me. I just smiled. Me: "Mr Giggles." they both laughed. Zama: "come angel, izobona room yakho." she took me to my room. The walls were pink, with butterflies. My bed was pink with orange flowers on it. Zama walked out and left me alone with Mr Giggles. I stood by the door, I wanted to listen what was said. Khaya: "baby. I don't know hey." Zama: "njani mntu wam? What don't you know?" Khaya: "did you see the way she wants absolutely no contact nam? Its like she doesn't trust me at all. Uyandoyika lomntana mna." Zama: "she's just shy. Remember she had a panic attack just by seeing me? Its still early baby." Khaya: "Kodwa, did you have her checked properly? I think something is wrong. Akhomntana unokoyika oluhlobo....unless she's been hurt." Zama: "hurt? Uthetha ngantoni na ngoku?" Khaya: "I mean hurt. I work with abantwana and abantu abanje. I'm a psychologist." Zama: "I haven't forgotten Khaya, but kengoku Spho is just a little confused. Okay?" Khaya: "okay, but ke, keep an eye on her. She needs the extra attention." Zama: "I will, ude waya eskolweni?" Khaya: "yes, I also bought her new uniform. Angaqala on Monday. For now just get her more warm clothes and try finding out what she likes, such as food, intwezimandi-" Zama: "relax! Remember I've been wanting to do this for years? We finally have a baby girl. I will do everything and anything to protect her." Khaya: "enkosi mntu wam." I went back to bed. The little puppy barked at me, I put him on the floor waske wajikeleza then went to the corner and pee'd. That is just disgusting of you Mr Giggles. That is nasty. Zama: "Spho." I looked up. Zama: "its time for lunch angel." I wanted to ask questions now. Me: "sisi." she came in and sat next to me.

Me: "am I going to go home?" Zama: "no baby. This is your home now. Ufuna ugoduka wena?" I shook my head quickly. Me: "Mr Giggles pee'd." she smiled. Zama: "what's wrong sthandwa? You can tell me anything." Me: "uphi umamam?" Zama: "shewas taken by the police. She sold things that were not allowed." Me: "what things?" Zama: "things I don't want you exposed to. She can't protect you anymore, not while ephaya. So I got custody of you." I nodded. Zama: "you can call me anything you like. Noba uthe mama, okanye Zama vha." I nodded. Khaya came inside the room. My heart was bursting out my chest from fear. Khaya: "hey.." I stiffened. He stopped and looked at Zama. Khaya: "izanoty, the food is ready." I struggled to breath again, holding on too tight. Zama: "Spho??!!" Khaya: "kwenzeka ntoni ngoku?" Zama: "she's not breathing!" he stepped back. Khaya: "just hold her, rub her back." the tears were at the verge of spilling. Zama: "she isn't letting go." Khaya: "just wait." I finally exploded into a well of tears. "Sphosenkosi....baby?"

I woke up immediately. Lakhe: "baby? Spho?" this wasn't a dream. I was regaining more memory. Lakhe: "why ukhala kangaka? You almost choked me. Uphupha ntoni?" Me: "ndifuna umamam." Lakhe: "now I'm confused.

Ebekhona umamakho in hospital, you chased her out. Baby please tell me kwenzeka ntoni." Me: "I remembered." Lakhe: "okay..that's good." Me: "where is she?" Lakhe: "I booked her into a hotel. Ndimbize over for dinner?" I nodded. I got up. Lakhe: "Uyaphi?" Me: "I need to find something to cook." Lakhe: "okay, I'll get dressed sizokuya kwa Woolworths. Come here." I went to him. He changed my clothing into grey sweatpants, my black Superstars, plus a sweater. He got dressed too in jeans and sneakers. Saya emotweni. He drove to the mall. We went into Woolworths and I ended up in the clothing section where he was in the food section. I pushed around my trolley looking through things. "Spho." I looked up and saw a medium height man. He had light skin and a big beautiful smile. He looked surprised. "baby? Wow. Awusemhle. You cut your hair?" I stared at him questionably. Me: "I'm sorry....I don't remember you." "haibo...are we like that now? Its me..." Me: "you?" "Simphiwe.....remember now?" I shook my head. He looked confused. Simphiwe: "heee...are you for real?" Me: "Simphiwe?" Simphiwe: "yeah...I've been trying to call you for the past few weeks my love. Akuphumeli nanye efownini. I even tried your friends, they said abakwazi uphi. I got so worried. I'm so happy that you're still here." he hugged me. Simphiwe: "baby, ndicela uxolo ngento Yonke man. You really didn't have to settle the house plus all other bills. I don't deserve that. Landlu ibiyeyethu sobathathu, I was wrong. I want us to talk about this." Me: "a house?" sobathathu? Who was the third? if I had a house with this man. And we had Bills, who the hell was Lakhe and how in the fucking world did he get into my life? Simphiwe: "honey boo boo misses you so much. Speaking of which, where is he. Buhle!!!" "Tata!!!" a squeaky voiced replied. He came running. Buhle: "mamaaa!!!" he screamed when he saw me. I had a child? He hugged me. Me: "hey.." Buhle: "uvelaphi mama? Ndakhumbula mna. Uzohamba nathi?" Oh My God...I was a mother? Simphiwe: "Spho...please mntu wam. I made a huge mistake. Please come home." Lakhe suddenly appeared out of nowhere with the most deadliest look on his face. I shivered. Lakhe: "Spho. I'm ready to go." I swallowed. Me: "Lakhe, who is he? How could you not tell me I had a family! Why would you do that?" Lakhe: "This is not your family." Simphiwe: "heeee, hayi mfo. Yinton ngoku?" Me: "Lakhe, ngubani ke lo?" Lakhe: "I've never seen him in my life. Your mother is waiting. Masambe." Me: "I'm not going anywhere with you. My child needs me." Lakhe: "Masambe Siphosenkosi ndingeka phumi esmilweni sabaphilayo." Me: "No." Simphiwe: "you heard my lady. She said no. Khona ungubani WENA sow'ngazondazi."

Lakhe bent down and gently removed Buhle from his grip on me and without a warning scooped me up into the air, throwing me on his shoulder and pushed his trolley out the shop.

Chapter 12

I screamed and cried all the way home. This psychopath ignored me ingathi andikho. When we arrived at home, he looked at me. Lakhe: "yazi, what I'm doing is saving you from heart ache. Its not because andik'thandi." Me: "why didn't you tell me about uSimphiwe noBuhle?" Lakhe: "because, it would cause you heartache. I don't need you to be upset usaqala uphila." Me: "how would seeing my son upset me? Umbonile indlela ebendibambe ngayo? He said he missed me Lakhe. Uyenza njani into enje?" Lakhe: "masingene endlini Sphosenkosi." he got out the car and took the grocery out the car. Lakhe: "umamakho will be here in two hours. You might want to bath in the meanwhile." he walked into the house. I stayed in the car. I wasn't going anywhere. Why would he not tell me anything to help me remember my past? Was he even there beforemaybe he was like my new guardian. Like Zama was when I was in hospital. It was only about an hour later when I heard the car door open. Lakhe: "Spho." I looked out the window. Lakhe: "kuyabanda ke apha. Best undiqumbele usiva shushu utyile." I ignored him. Lakhe: "alright then." he got out the car and opened my door. I held on to the seatbelt. Lakhe: "what would it take for you to trust me?" Me: "tell me the truth. I'm not going inside that house until you do." he looked at me. Lakhe: "kuyabanda apha." Me: "cacile kaloku ndizogodola." Lakhe: "what is it that you want from me then?" Me: "inyani Lakhe. Who is that man?" Lakhe: "utshilo mos Ngu Simphiwe." Me: "you said you didn't know him, You've never seen him in your life." Lakhe: "I might have lied." Me: "what is he kum?" Lakhe: "he's your ex boyfriend." Me: "and why must I believe that?" Lakhe: "akhange afike kuwe acele uxolo? That's because he fucked up your relationship, emotionally abused you for months and cheated on you, in your house. I got with you and he engaged the other woman. Which, by the way is the mother to Buhle. He's not your child." I kept quiet and looked at him. Lakhe: "I know I lied a little, but I don't want to see you hurt again. I don't want you to re-live that memory in your life because ibibhlungu nakum." Me: "I'm sorry." Lakhe: "I know, can we please just get inside the house. I need to bath you before umamakho afike." Me: "I can bath myself. I just need some time alone." I got out the car. Lakhe: "okay." I went inside the house ndayongena bathroom. I ran my bath. Lakhe: "baby..." Me: "I acted like an idiot. You've been nothing but good to me and I was ready to just throw it in your face. I just don't know what I'm missing. I hate not knowing." Lakhe: "its okay babes, izothatha ixesha kaloku. I don't want you to rush it. Can we move on?" Me: "have you told me everything I need to know? No surprises will come back at me in the future?" Lakhe: "ewe baby. No more surprises." I got into the bath after undressing. Me: "okay. I'll be here....bathing." Lakhe: "I'll check on you ugqiba kwam upheka." he kissed my cheek and closed the door behind him. After my bath I got dressed, ndaphuma ndisiya to the lounge. Lakhe: "here she is." mama was setting the table when she looked up at me. Mama: "hello my angel." Me: "hi." I let her hug me. I confused myself so much not knowing this woman saved my life. The first one was the one that I didn't want near me. Not Zama. I loved her warmth and her hugs so much. Mama: "its okay mntanam. I know now...Lakhe told me you're still a bit confused." Me: "I'm starting to remember...just slowly." Mama: "you will be fine sthandwa. Its a whole journey." Lakhe: "I'll be right back ma, kusekho nje something I need to sort out." Mama: "okay bhuti." he left, taking the second passage which led to the other section of the house. Mama: "uMasilakhe undixelele kwenzake ntoni at the mall." Me: "I don't understand why he lied." Mama: "he was protecting you from pain. He loves you Spho. Let him love you. He doesn't want to hurt you." Me: "I know." Mama: "I don't think you do." Me: "mama, please. I don't want to talk about him." Mama: "ufuna uthetha ngantoni?" Me: "ukuxelele uLakhe about Simphiwe nhe?" Mama: "yes." Me: "well, Simphiwe says I settled the house. And all the other bills. Clearly, Lakhe did that, I knew nothing about it." Mama: "okay, so....what's the problem?" Me: "why would he do that?" Mama: "Spho. You must let that man take care of you. Let him-" I heard a loud bang and jumped up! Me: "What the hell was that?" I didn't know whether to go look for him or wait. Mama: "it sounded like a gun shot. Hlala phantsi sisi." Lakhe appeared from the passage ingathi akava nto. Lakhe: "you used to call me on my cellphone, late night when you need my love. Call me on my cell phone, late night when you need my love...and I know when that hotline bling-" Me: "Lakhe!" I whispered. He looked at me. Lakhe: "dinner is ready." Mama: "did you hear the loud gun shooting?" Lakhe: "Nope. When?" Me: "ngoku man Lakhe! Someone just shot something!" Lakhe: "oh. Well, let me call the neighbors to check if they're okay." Me: "someone is in our house Masilakhe!" Lakhe: "no baby. They're not. I just came from the other side. And There's no one here. We're having dinner in five." he went to the telephone. Lakhe: "that could only mean one thing, and I know when that hotline bling that could only mean one thing. Ever since I left the ci- Oh Hello Mrs Jordan, how are you? Is everything okay?" he listened. Lakhe: "oh alright, my girlfriend heard gun shots, our property is clear and I just to make sure you're okay.....That's fine ma'am. Alright. Good bye." he hung up. Lakhe: "dinner time." he smiled. Me: "what did she say?" Lakhe: "oh, her sons are playing with fire crackers." Mama: "well I'm glad." she went to the table. How could he have not heard anything? That was not a fire cracker. Why was he singing and so jolly? Something smelt fishy. We sat down to eat and I looked closely at him. Mama was telling him some story about my childhood and he was laughing like someone broke his fucking tickle bone. Me: "excuse me. I need the bathroom." Lakhe: "need any help?" Me: "no love. Sit." I walked to the passage and slipped into the joining entrance which led to the other side. To my surprise he walked in the other side. Not a single grin on his face. Me: "baby, I think I'm lost." Lakhe: "indeed. Udlule toilet ezimbini down the passage. Boggles my mind how you ended up here." Me: "told you to put signs on the wall. Haha." I turned and went back sighing deeply. Now I was convinced he was hiding something. It bothered me but I was afraid of him. He was everywhere. When I went back to the table ebengekho. Me: "mama...." Mama: "again, Spho, please my baby. Can you please just trust. Not everyone wants to hurt you." Me: "fine mama. I'm just a bit uneasy." my mother stayed with us for about 2 more hours and her Uber took her to the hotel. I kept asking her to stay but she refused. I loaded the dishes in the dishwasher ndayivala and switched it on. When I turned around, I found Lakhe staring at me, leaning on the fridge. Me: "hey babe." I pretended not be frightened. Lakhe: "hey." Me: "what's up." Lakhe: "There's somewhere I need to be for a few hours. Will you need anything before I leave." Me: "no. Uyaphi?" Lakhe: "somewhere. Let's get you to bed." I walked to the bedroom with him behind me. Me: "you can go baby. I'll manage." I got into bed, he tucked me in. Lakhe: "to stay still....I hope to God so." he kissed my forehead and walked out the room.

Deep into the night, the bedroom door opened then closed. I heard footsteps to the walk-in closet. I think he was undressing. I heard plastics. Something beeped and opened then closed again. The footsteps went to the bathroom and the shower turned on. Now I was wide awake without moving an inch. I was too afraid. I wasn't dare going to cross him and his boundaries. The Lord knows I don't want to find out what the danger behind the Look is. The shower was turned off. The footsteps came into the bedroom. All the time, my eyes are shut. He got into bed and crawled over to my side. The bed was big and laying low. He almost had to crawl until he reached my back. I swallowed. He held me. I couldn't stay in that position, I was going to start shaking. His body was cold as ice. I started moving. Lakhe: "hey.." Me: "hey." I yawned. Me: "buye nini." Lakhe: "few minutes ago, just took a cold shower. How do you feel?" Me: "about what?" Lakhe: "uziva njani baby....health wise." Me: "oh. I'm fine. No pains. I think I got proper rest." Lakhe: "hm..." Me: "maybe I should start looking into work..." I knew he would say no. He won't let me do a thing. Lakhe: "I think that's a good idea. It will keep you busy....and you might remember a few more things. Just need to take it slow, I'll talk to Harold." I'm sure you're as surprised as I am. Where was the camera? Was I being tricked? Me: "serious?" Lakhe: "ewe baby." he kissed my neck. Me: "I thought you'd say no. Isn't it too early?" Lakhe: "its not like you'd be carrying cement packs and pushing iikiriva. Exercising your brain too is a nice idea." his erection was poking at my spine. Lakhe: "masilale mntu wam." I turned to look at him. Lakhe: "ndiyakwazi ke. The minute you start looking at me awufun ulala. Come. Izola-" I kissed his lips, holding his hard dick in my hand. Lakhe: "baby." he whispered. Me: "I'm fine." I rubbed it in my hands. Lakhe: "kodwa..." Me: "shhhh..." I kissed him. His hand slipped into my under wear. Lakhe: "awusemanzi. Cela uphuza baby?" Me: "yima baby. I want to do you." I went underneath the blanket, found it and sucked it in. I held his balls and massaged them while sucking. Lakhe: "Dammmn..." he held my head pushing me gently deeper. Lakhe: "oh baby." I took it out my mouth and softly kissed it then slid it back in. He gasped. I took it out again. Kissing his balls and rubbing the dick with my hand. Lakhe: "ooooohhh." he pulled me up and kissed my lips. I straddled him. Both my legs on each of his sides. He plunged it straight in. Me: "Lakhe..." he stroked from underneath me while I tried to catch my breath. His thumb softly place on my clit when I was grinding on him. Me: "baby..." Lakhe: "yes." my toes curled, ndiminca. Me: "I think I'm gonna....." he held me to him and in one move got on top of me, placing me under him. His waist only moved. Me: "Lakhe..." he kissed my lips drilling in faster. I dug my nails into his skin. Lakhe: "ahhhh...." he groaned onto my lips. He was shaking. Grabbing the pillow under my head. Me: "baby!!!" I opened wider for him and he stopped, pulling out of me. He went down and kissed it, my thighs were shaking. He had his finger tickling my opening. His tongue twirling around the clit. I was about to reach my peak. My body was started to shake. He stopped again coming up to me. He kissed my lips and entered himself again. He was slowly pulling in and out. And suddenly upped the pace. His lips never left mine. He went deeper and breathed on my neck. Me: "Masilakhe !!!" he picked himself and thrust harder. He pulled my leg to the air. Lakhe: "ahhh!!! Yesss!!!" I melted under him climaxing hard. He stopped and held me tight. In a short little while, he got up and went to the bathroom. Wabuya kunye ne towel, wandisula then himself. He threw it on the floor then got into bed. Lakhe: "that was amazing. I think I should leave more often, ndizobuya ndincancwe." Me: "don't you dare." I giggled. Me: "you just looked upset uhamba kwakho. I'm not sure if its me or..." Lakhe: "definitely not you my love. I'm just stressed at work. Akhonto ibitheni." Me: "so everything is fine now?" Lakhe: "yes. Everything is fine. Goodnight love." he tucked me into his arms with a firm grip. Me: "goodnight." A few days later, Bae was at work. I was taking a breather after trying to get back at it. It wasn't coming easily at all. I was beginning to hate myself. I was in a 27 year

had a responsibility. They needed to be taken from their penthouse to the pond for a swim. After 30 minutes babuyele and fed. It was an easy job. So I went to the duck penthouse and took one. It started quacking so hard and flapping. I screamed and dropped it. Okay, maybe it wasn't so easy. Me: "Zanno.." one looked around. There she is. Me: "come Zanno, Iza baby." I picked her up taking her to the pond. I went back to fetch those two kicking and screaming ndabafaka pha. They swam in the pond. I went to fetch their food in the house and the telephone was ringing. I picked up. Me: "hello." the other line went quiet. Me: "hello???" Caller: "uphi uLakhe?" Me: "he's at work." Caller: "ndithetha nabani?" Me: "noSpho. Who is this?" he sighed. Caller: "this is the only call I have." Me: "okay." Caller: "ndim uSandile. Lakhe's brother. I need him to come. Please call him." Me: "come where? Une meetings throughout the whole day, he'll only be free after 6pm." Caller: "Spho. I'm going to need your help. My minutes are almost over. Ndise Humewood police station. I need someone to bail me out." Me: "I can come. How much is it?" Caller: "its R5000." Me: "okay. Ndizofownela Uber. I'm coming." Caller: "okay." I hung up. Finally! Something to keep me busy. I called an Uber and went to feed the ducks while waiting. Ndababuyisela kwi penthouse yabo. I went to go find the card Lakhe left me. I found it and took my bag ndaphuma sefika Uber. He drove me to the bank ndacela andilinde, after my withdrawal we went to Humewood police station. Ndayongena pha. He was released after I paid the amount. Sandile: "do not ask." Me: "I didn't." I walked out. We got into the car. Me: "are you gonna tell me what happened?" he ignored me. Ndamyeka ke mna. When we got home I went to check on the little ducklings. Ndabuyela endlini because it was cold. Me: "hungry?" he nodded. I went to the kitchen, frying beef patties, egg and bacon. I toasted the bun a little ndamenzela burger. Since he loved those. I poured him juice. Me: "here." he stuffed his face as usual. Sandile: "enkosi." he said with his mouth full. I switched off the stove and walked away. Sandile: "Spho." Me: "yes." Sandile: "enkosi. For getting me out." Me: "Lakhe would've done the same." Sandile: "yeah. That's another thing.....please don't mention this to him." Me: "I just withdrew from his account." Sandile: "he won't notice." Me: "I don't like lying to him Sandile. I never do that, it doesn't end well." Sandile: "please? He won't be happy if uyivile. I can't deal with that today." he looked quite afraid. Me: "okay. But You've got to tell him sometime." he nodded. I walked to the bedroom again to try and find my way into my work. Around 5 I went to go prepare for dinner. Sandile: "let me get that." I sat down. While he cooked. Me: "nonke kokwenu niyathanda upheka?" Sandile:

"oh yes. Umama wethu made sure to drill that into our heads. Its probably the only domestic thing I can do." Me: "nice. Where is the rest of your family." Sandile: "well, my sister Nwabisa is in EL. So is umama notata. Lakhe is here. Besise Durban sobabini." Me: "are you going back there?" Sandile: "I don't know. Ndiyafuna. At the same time, I've never been without my brother." Me: "that's why you're so attached to him." Sandile: "yeah." Me: "why don't you want him to know about today?" Sandile: "he gets stressed. Especially lately." Me: "what happened? How did you end up there? If you want me to be quiet, you better tell me." Sandile: "I robbed a bank." Me: "what?" Sandile: "undivile ke sisi." Me: "Why???" You have enough money as is. Why would you need to-" Sandile: "before you judge me." Me: "I'm not judging you." Sandile: "I don't know man Spho. I'm just used to it." Me: "used to it? Like a hobby?" Sandile: "yes. Its a hobby. Do you have hobbies?" I thought deeply. Me: "I don't know." Sandile: "still having trouble remembering?" Me: "yes." Sandile: "ask your best friend to help you. If its possible, she will know what you like the most. Go experience those things maybe the more you do them, the more you'll start to remember." Me: "you're right. Thank you." Sandile: "I'm sorry for being a jerk kuwe. You didn't deserve that." Me: "its fine." Sandile: "so, everything is going well?" Me: "I think so." Sandile: "what's wrong?" Me: "its nothing really." Sandile: "its something." Me: "has he always been secretive?" Sandile: "yes. He doesn't talk much. Even when he's frustrated." Me: "why?" he shrugged. Sandile: "the only time I've ever seen him crying was when the doctor said you lost the baby. I'm sorry for that. It couldn't have been easy." Me: "I beg your pardon?" Sandile: "the....." he stared at me. Sandile: "Spho." Me: "I lost....a baby?" he closed the pot. Sandile: "Spho, please...I thought you knew." I could feel my heart breaking in pieces. Lakhe: "molweni." he walked in. Lakhe: "ufike nini fondini." the house was dead quiet. Sandile stared at me apologetically. Lakhe was confused staring at him and back at me. Lakhe: "kwenzeka ntoni?" I walked away, he grabbed my arm. Lakhe: "you're not going to do that to me." Sandile: "khawume Masilakhe, just wait." Lakhe: "no, she's not going to run away again. What is wrong? Kwenzeke ntoni Sandile?" Sandile: "I'm sorry." Lakhe: "for what?" I couldn't control my tears at all. How could he look me in the eye and lie to my face? He said he wasn't hiding anything else! Sandile: "Spho, ndicelu xolo sisi. I'm sorry bra." Lakhe: "can someone tell me what the fuck's going on!!!!!" he yelled. Lakhe: "Sandile? wenzeni!!!!" Sandile: "I didn't know!" Lakhe: "what the fuck don't you know!!! Why is she crying!!!!" he strangled him. Me: "Stop It!!!!!! Stop!!! Stop!!!!!!" I screamed. Me: "YOU are the problem Lakhe! Nguwe!! How could you not tell me about the pregnancy?" he swallowed and stared at me. Me: "Why???" for the first time, I could see the pain written on his face. He wasn't the same anymore. This wasn't Lakhe. Me: "how could you not tell me." he was back to the closed and sealed self that did not say a word. Me: "Lakhe?" he picked up his bag and walked out.

Sandile: "he's hurt. Ebengayazi uzoyiqala ngaphi. Ndiyayazi ayikho mnandi Spho. Please understand." Me: "he said we met 3 weeks before the accident. How did I fall pregnant?" Sandile: "well, ugqirha uthe you could have been 3 weeks pregnant ungekazazi. The embryo was only beginning." Me: "and I lost him." Sandile: "it was an accident, Spho. Ubungayazi. Ndiyamazi ubrother wam xa evale umlomo akaphindi afune uthetha, please understand him. I don't want him to be alone again." I turned around to walk out. Sandile: "he loves you." I walked to the bedroom. I lay in bed with my aching heart. I lost someone I didn't even know existed. So why did it hurt so badly? When I relived the memory of the clinic, was that when I lost him? My second baby. I cringed at the thought. Why did it have to be me? Ndenzeni mna bawo? I stayed in bed with my wet pillow until I fell asleep. Lakhe didn't come to bed nor did he bother coming back home. When I woke up in the morning, I felt like staying back in bed but there was a knock on my door. Me: "ngena." Sandile: "hi." he walked in and stood by the door. Sandile: "I just came to say I'm sorry. I didn't mean to hurt you or him." Me: "its okay Sandile." Sandile: "I made some hot chocolate." Me: "do you have sleeping pills?" Sandile: "no, but there is a bottle on the bottom drawer. They belong to him. Drink one only zi-strong. Do you want some toast?" Me: "I'll manage. need to get up and exercise anyway." Sandile: "okay." he placed the hot chocolate on the dresser and walked out. I got out of bed ndayokwenza toast. I put on some butter and went to the bedroom with water nesonka Sam. I ate and drank the pill ndabuyela ezingubeni. Soon enough I fell back asleep.... I woke up from a deep sleep, feeling very heavy. I was uneasy. I opened my eyes and saw him standing next to the bed with his hands in his pockets. I sat up and looked back at him. He didn't say a word. Nam ke ndizovala owam umlomo. I got out of bed and went to the bathroom. When I came back, he was still standing there. Me: "are you going to say something or stare at me like that all week?" he shook his head. Lakhe: "you haven't eaten." Me: "I don't feel like eating-" Lakhe: "you have to. You need to be physically healthy and strong so that-" Me: "I know, so that my brain works. It works just fine. Because when I was losing my second chance in having a baby, I felt it Lakhe, I saw it happen. When it was detaching from my body? Have you ever felt life detach itself from you?" I looked at him. His eyes were full of tears. Lakhe: "yes." he sat down. Lakhe: "I was there." my feelings came to a still, he was in pain too, and that hurt me more. He was weak and I couldn't put him down any longer. I sat next to him and hugged him. Me: "you should've told me." Lakhe: "I'm so sorry." he cried. Lakhe: "I'm soo sorry Spho." Me: "its okay." I kissed his head. Me: "its okay baby." Lakhe: "he was not even there, it was too early, but he existed. He was growing." I rubbed his back. Me: "its going to be alright." Lakhe: "he left with a piece of me Spho." Me: "that piece is still there my angel, its just feeling a bit defeated. We still have Zanno, Titi and Kaylen. They still need their daddy." he chuckled. I wiped his face. Lakhe: "I'm sorry I didn't tell you." Me: "its fine. We'll get through it." Lakhe: "I love you Spho." Me: "I love you too Lakhe." he breathed. We lay together in bed, cuddled under the blankets. Me: "bekunzima sana izolo. When I first tried to take them, baske baphambana bangamageza. I think it was Kay, she's the one with the big eyes?" Lakhe: "ewe. She's difficult. Funeke uqale ngoZanno. Umbize ngegama. Then the other two will follow. If you're whistling." I laughed. Me: "only if I'm whistling?" Lakhe: "precisely." Me: "I'll remember that next time." Lakhe: "ufike nini uSandile?" Me: "emini. When I was feeding the girls." Lakhe: "uth uvelaphi? Lonto nizi friends. What happened?" Me: "he didn't say much. He's not that bad.." Lakhe: " That's nice. So nincokola ntoni?" Me: "lonto uyazthanda nendaba. Just stuff nje. Khange sithethe nakakhulu izolo. He was just apologizing for being a jerk before." Lakhe: "oh. Must be nice." Me: "what is?" Lakhe: "having Sandile as a friend. Khona ufunani endlinam bendithe makahambe." Me: "Sandile is used to being around you. You took a decision of just upping and leaving him alone in Durban. Ebezohlala njani ngaphandle kwakho?" Lakhe: "firstly, he has those ghetto friends zaKwa Mashu. Nezinye ezise Mlazi. He never stayed 2 minutes in the house unless ulele or uyatya. How can he not live without me?" Me: "sometimes its not about talking to someone, but perhaps having them around. He enjoyed your presence. It made him feel safe." Lakhe: "I see. Makahlale ke." Me: "uzuthethe naye kaloku. You're the one that tried choking him izolo." Lakhe: "arg he's fine." Me: "talk to him!" Lakhe: "only if you eat." Me: "masambe ke." Lakhe: "lonto uyekile ufana noZanno, with that little limp." Me: "ndizok'fak' impama uyeva?" Lakhe: "xolo baby ndithule." I went to the kitchen, he went to the lounge. Lakhe: "grand?" Sandile: "shap bhuda." Lakhe: "sho." kwabukelwa i-TV. Me: "Masilakhe." he looked at me. I squinted my eyes. He hid his face with a cushion. I walked to him and stared at him. Lakhe: "hehake baby. Ndiyathetha njena." Me: "andikuva." Lakhe: "okay kaloku ndizokhwaza." I went back to the kitchen. Lakhe: "uzohlala mos." Sandile: "andikayaz Ta." Lakhe: "andibuzi ndiyak'xelela." hehake. Would I ever get Lakhe to talk properly bethuna? Clearly this is the best I would get if he had to interact with other people. I made myself a sandwich and some tea ndayohlala phantsi to eat. They were watching TV and fighting over the channel. Sandile was watching Animal Planet. Lakhe wanted to watch some Crime Investigation show. I took the remote ndayofaka Cartoon Network ndavala umlomo wam. There was no more argument. Lakhe: "hayi kengok baby. Sizobukela oo-popeye?" Me: "cartoons. Popeye is on Boomerang." Lakhe: "yintwenye nje baby. Ababantu babhabhayo." Me: "usenoyohlala eroomin yakho ubukele Le ithandwa nguwe." Lakhe: "ndifun hlala nomntu wam nje." Sandile: "sendakhiqwa na ngoku." Lakhe: "akhokwanto ondiphathela yona ke wena ngaphandle kothetha. Intoyazi kukhamisa." Sandile: "worse ba kutsho wena ba mandihlale." Lakhe: "sizoy'thini indlu eDurban?" Sandile: "rent it out. Funeke ndiyokhupha izinto zam pha." Lakhe: "so kuzofuneka ndifikele hotel xandisiya?" Sandile: "rent out the back cottage. At least kubekho someone around the property." Lakhe: "I'll call Jeff and see if he's willing to move there. He likes that property." Sandile: "unosele ehlala ngaphakathi ke xa inguye. At least I trust him." Lakhe: "I'll give him a call ngomso. What are we having for dinner?" Sandile: "I'm having pizza, Spho? Ndiyamazi ubrothers hates take aways." Me: "I'm with you on pizza." Lakhe: "fine. I'll make myself dinner." he got up and went to the kitchen. Sandile called the pizza store. I went to take a bath in the meantime. Uggqiba kwam I wore a long yellow dress and white sandals. It was around 4 emini and I don't think I was going anywhere but I didn't want to be in pajamas. I went out to the lounge wandijamela uLakhe. Lakhe: "Uyaphi?" Me: "nowhere." Lakhe: "awusemhle. Awufuni uyobona tshomi zakho?" Me: "I do." my heart jumped in excitement. Lakhe: "okay. Itya ke kqala. I'll take you. I'll let them know you're coming." I went to sit in the lounge with Sandile. Ephethe box ka Large yeda. Sandile: "nantsi yakho." Me: "a whole box?" Sandile: "I don't share pizza." watsho esitya. I dished two slices on a plate ndatya ndibukele TV. Lakhe brought his own food, watya. Vegetables and steamed fish. Uggqiba kwethu, we got ready to go. I took my bag ndaphuma. In the garage I became so confused. There were 3 different cars. Me: "don't you have a black car?" Lakhe: "no baby. Uyibona phi imoto emnyama?" Me: "I don't know. I just had this feeling you had a black car." Lakhe: "nope. All my cars are white. Sandile umntu ka black." Me: "hm." I got in the big white Mercedes Benz. Me: "funeke ndiphathe 3 step ladder for lemoto. This is ridiculous." he giggled. Lakhe: "uske uzenze umakhulu yazi." he drove me to Zingi and Dumi's house. Lakhe: "you're doing quite well yazi." Me: "nyani?" Lakhe: "yes. There's more improvement in the work You've done." Me: "so you're spying on me." Lakhe: "I'm not spying if you leave it on the table." Me: "I don't know if I'm doing so well." Lakhe: "ndiyayazi mna. Suyingxamela. It will be easier." he held my hand. Me: "enkosi mntu wam." we finally arrived wandikhapha ukuya emnyango. Lakhe: "just give me a call when you want to go home." Me: "okay love." the door opened, Zingi was standing there with a smile on her face. Zingi: "hello! Come in guys." Lakhe: "I'm not staying." Zingi: "aww why not?" Lakhe: "work." Zingi: "hayi wethu. You're the boss. Stay." Lakhe: "No." he turned around and walked to his car. Zingi: "oookay. He's being weird again?" Me: "uyamazi nje." I came in the house. Zingi: "did you guys fight?" Me: "nope. We're good." Dumi: "so why is he throwing you out the house then?" Me: "I just wanted to visit my friends." Dumi: "was that your idea or his." Me: "okay. Why do I feel like I'm being investigated?" Zingi: "hayi wethu Dumi. Anyway, uyithanda njani ba ndifowanelwe Ngu Simphiwe. Ucela ndithethe nawe." Me: "I met him at Woolworths." Zingi: "yeah. Utsho naye. Ebendibuza udyola noLakhe na wena, I said to him andazi niks. All I know is that ubukwi accident and he was there for you. Oko ke esithi ufuna uthetha nawe I must help him." Me: "Lakhe says Simphiwe cheated on me and was abusing me emotionally." Dumi: "that is true." Me: "but, Simphiwe uthi ndibhatele yonke into including our house when I left him. My bank statement does not reflect that." Dumi: "ayisecace ibhatelwe ngubani." Me: "but why would he do that?" Zingi: "because he loves you. He wants to protect you from pain. The way ebekhala ngayo esbhedlele. He didn't stop. He never left your side. I don't know hey...he's one in a million." Dumi: "yeah. I give him an applause for that. Maybe he's not so bad. I might have misjudged him before." Zingi: "uyakthanda mntase uLakhe. Don't even begin to entertain uSimphiwe. He wasted your money and your life and still betrayed you. Ibizovakala ke if at least, he wasn't cheating. Bendizomthethelela, kodwa hayi sana, umoshile mpela." Dumi: "you were distraught when you found out. Walahleka iintsuku kanti uzivalele kwi hotel. We were so worried." Me: "yeah. I think I'm glad I don't remember all of this. Maybe its for the best." Zingi: "at least you know who you are." Me: "yeah, and I recognized umama. I'm regaining a bit of my memory. I dreamt of the day she took me home." Dumi: "inoba uye wakhululeka naye. Ebengekho right." Zingi: "usekhona?" Me: "yes. I'm going to her ngomso. Spending the day. Also, I need you guys to help me with my hobbies. You must know best what I like. Maybe that will trigger some of my memory." Zingi: "that's a great idea. Kutsho uLakhe? He's so smart." she bragged. Me: "no actually....his brother." Dumi: "that dodgy looking guy uthand urhorhozela emven kwakhe is his brother???" Oh my God." Zingi: "he's not dodgy just because he likes wearing black. In fact I thought he looked a little like uLakhe." Dumi: "that guy looks nothing like uLakhe. What kind of person only owns black clothing?" Me: "its his favorite color. Apparently his car is black too." Dumi: "its a bit disturbing. Indixuzelisa isusu." Zingi: "anyway, uhlala nani lo brother?" Me: "ewe." Dumi: "something is making you uncomfortable about him?" Me: "no." Zingi: "yes. Ukwenzentoni?"

Me: "he did nothing. He just...." Dumis: "just what?" Me: "he called the house izolo efuna uLakhe. I asked what the problem was, he said he needed to be bailed out of jail." Zingi: "jail?" Me: "that's not all. When I bailed him out, uthe ndingamxeleli uLakhe." Dumis: "why? Ebefownela uLakhe mos kakade. So he would have to know." Zingi: "exactly. Kutheni funeke ifihliwe. Uyinton etrongweni Khona?" Me: "he said his hobby was robbing banks." Dumis: "I knew it! I knew there was something dodgy about him!" Me: "Dumis please don't tell anyone about this. I have reason to feel he's not really put together in the head along with his brother. They can literally strangle each other near death one day and talk like they're best friends the next." they both stared at me. Dumis: "you think There's something they're hiding?" Me: "no." Dumis: "so nothing suspicious has happened?" Me: "nope. He just sits there and eats." I couldn't tell them about the gun shot/fire cracker. I had already said too much. I didn't want to be caught in fire. Zingi: "don't worry, your secrets are safe here. Just don't tell anyone else kwenzeka ntoni kwakho. Because we do have friends esingabaxeleli Yonke into. Wena awuzoyazi which. So its best that if ufuna u-empty'sha isfuba uze kuthi. Njenga ngoku, nobody knew about your break up with Simphiwe or what happened. Abamazi nalo Lakhe ngubani. So don't just trust anyone that claims they're a friend." Dumis was texting on his phone. Kudala phofu but ibingathi he's uncomfortable. I don't know if I was the only one seeing it. His finger tapped lightly on the arm rest every time he waited for a response and his eyes were darting. He noticed I was staring at him. Dumis: "unyansile uZingi. Fez ebelapha just yesterday ezobuza ngawe instead of going to see you." Me: "enkosini guys. I appreciate it." we went on to talk about other useless things and soapies. Dumis: "guys, ndiyabuya ngoku vha, I just want to check on something at the office quick. Kuthiwa the alarm is on." Zingi: "uzoya wedwa?!" Dumis: "babe, the security company sent a car, ndizoyojonga qha ba akwenzekanga nto. Relax." Zingi: "okay love." he kissed her. Dumis: "bye hun." Me: "bye Dumz." he left. Zingi: "finally." Me: "yinton ngoku?" Zingi: "nothing." Me: "its something. What's happening?" Zingi: "he's just changing man. Mjonge uhlobo anxiba ngayo ngoku." Me: "well, its not like I have something to compare with. Memory remember?" Zingi: "oh." she showed me pictures on her phone. Meh "urg." Zingi: "exactly. Now he's joined a gym, he has a trainer, he wears tighter suits. At first, I thought he was just imitating uLakhe, which is adorable. But now he has a slang too. He talks like....like he's rapping." I laughed. Zingi: "he's going through a mid life crisis, this one. Akaz'boni." Me: "sometimes, its nice to change." Zingi: "it was amazing when I thought he was changing. I loved that instead of complaining and being grumpy, waske walandela lento ayibona ingathi is attractive. I appreciated the effort." Me: "that being Lakhe." Zingi: "his style, not yena ubuqu. Keep up." I giggled. Me: "alright. So Lakhe's not attractive." Zingi: "he, himself knows he's attractive. The way he walks down a passage, his legs in a perfect structure. That cologne." she sniffed. Me: "haha. Bunozibona." Zingi: "anyway, I'm not so sure anymore. What if he's cheating?" Me: "Dumi? He's is not the cheating type. He's probably out there picking out some flowers or a present to surprise you with. He's sweet." Zingi: "yeah. That does sound like him." she smiled. We lazed about for a while until it was dark outside. Me: "can you drive me home?" Zingi: "yeah sure babe. Masambe." we went to her car and she drove to Lakhe's house by my direction. Phof I was guessing from landlela size ngayo. Luckily it was the right track. She dropped me off and waited while I walked to the door ndavula and waved. She hooted and drove away. I walked inside the house. It was dark. No lights were on plus all the windows were open. My heart started beating fast. I didn't know whether to call out for someone or quickly run to my room. So I slowly stepped into the passage. I walked a few steps in the darkness. Something was odd.....oh shit. I was in the wrong passage. This was home right? I would turn into the joining hall ndibuyele kule yam i-passage. So I took one further step and something crumpled under my shoe. I began shaking. Why the hell was I stepping on plastic all of a sudden?? I took another step. Again, plastic sound. I opened my mouth before I even yelled his name.....a hand cover my mouth and locked both my arms into one of his. "Keep Still. Don't move another step." he whispered in my ear. I nodded. "I'm going to remove my hand and carry you to bed. This never happened.. Uyeva?" I nodded again. He removed his hand. Me: "San-" I could feel the deadly stare in the dark. I shut my mouth immediately.....

I was locked in my room for the longest time. I decided to drink the sleeping pills before I drove myself to insanity kuba kaloku bendingulo ulindele uva a sound. Soon I fell asleep which felt like a mere 10 minutes. By the time I woke up on Sunday morning, There was a little bit of sunrise. I turned around and found Lakhe next to me fast asleep. I didn't even hear him come in. I went over to his side. Me: "baby?" I whispered. He opened his eyes staring right at me. He looked pissed off but I thought he was quite cute at this point. Me: "hi, ubulele?" he was quiet, just staring. Me: "babe?" he closed his eyes again. I assumed he was still sleepy. Lakhe: "could've gotten yourself hurt last night." Me: "hurt? Ubuphi wena?" Lakhe: "Sandile plays a lot with his friends, I usually leave him to it. When I asked you to call me xa ufuna ugoduka bendingakuteketisi." Me: "ubuphi wena?" Lakhe: "I had work to do." Me: "but what -" he stuck his finger in my mouth. So apparently, this means I talk too much. Or ask too many questions. I pulled it out. Me: "it was dark, and cold. Kuvulwe zonke ii-festire. There was plastic on the floor. What were they doing?" Lakhe: "It is best that you begin to stay out of other folks' business." he got up and went to the bathroom. When he came back, he hopped into bed. Lakhe: "I need 2 hours of sleep. Please wake me only after 2 hours." Me: "ok." I have to admit, I was afraid of going out the room. I had to though...eventually. I got out of bed. Lakhe: "UYEKE USANDILE." he ordered. Me: "I was just going to feed the ducks. Geez." well, if I bumped into him, I would've asked. I'm still going to though. I washed my mouth ndaya eKitchen. Sadly there was no sign of him anywhere. Maybe naye ulele. I took the duck food ndaphuma ndaya kubo. They too, were sleeping. I didn't want to disturb them or anyone else for that matter. Maybe I should just take a walk. Ndabuyela endlini and took a shower. I went to get dressed. Looking through the closet and ke shame I saw my sweatpants first ndafaka zona. My sneakers and a vest. The sweater was zipped open. I took one of Bae's watches to keep track of time. Ebe the two hours mos? I had an hour and 15 minutes left. I walked out the house and out the gate. It was a cool day outside. Sunny with a little breeze. I walked down the street ndabuka the neighbors houses. There was no other like my home. They all looked different but gorgeous. "wow. That watch is beautiful." I looked back down on earth. I had been so occupied by the houses andiboni nomntu ozayo. I couldn't tell whether usuka ngasemva or phambili. Me: "enkosi." and I went back to my sight seeing. He looked as though he was jogging. Eyilonto itakatakayo ecamkwam. "my name is Ben, I live down there. Kulo direction uhamba ngayo. I've never seen you here before. You live here?" Me: "Yes. With my boyfriend, Masilakhe. That house." Ben: "hm...nice house." he was still now, walking normally. Ben: "would you like to jog with me?" I laughed. Me: "no I'd like to look at these houses." Ben: "Lovely. Sesizofika nakweyam. Its open for coffee." Me: "Ben, you did hear me say ndihlala ne-boyfriend yam right?" Ben: "I did. Uhlala nawe kaloku, not nam. I don't see how that's my potato." I giggled. Me: "well that is MY potato, and no thank you. I will not have coffee at your house." Ben: "lunch perhaps.." Me: "do you ever give up?" Ben: "do birds stop flying?" Me: "you're not a bird." Ben: "point taken. But I do believe in reaching for greater heights, thus not giving up." Me: "well, you should. I'm happy endlinam." Ben: "then why are you out here taking a walk by yourself?" Me: "I need not explain myself to you." Ben: "True. So what do you do?" Me: "I used to be MD at Golden Cell." Ben: "Wow. My brother has just been appointed to be their business lawyer." Me: "wena wenzantoni?" Ben: "I own an Engineering company, plus a little NGO." Me: "hm..." Ben: "this is my house.

Bring your boyfriend sometime. I'd like to get to know him too. As a friend."
Me: "hm..." Ben: "hm?? What?" Me: "I'll tell him." Ben: "you said his name was?"
Me: "Masilakhe." Ben: "niyafika?" I nodded. Ben: "well it was nice to meet you.....?" Me: "Spho." Ben: "beautiful." his dog came running to the gate wagging his tail. Ben: "that's Nelly." Me: "okay. Sharp." he went in his gate and I went about my business. I got back home with 20 minutes to spare from the 2 hours. Ndaya ekitchen. To my disappointment, he was awake. Standing there, dishing out breakfast. Me: "hey. I just took a walk. Around the neighborhood." he stared at me and back at his task. Me: "I didn't want to disturb you and Sandile. Even Zanno, Titi and Kay were asleep." he ignored me flat. Throwing the pan in the sink and it made a loud cringing sound. He took his plate and walked to the lounge. What the fuck? Me: "Lakhe." he ate. Me: "Lakhe ndithetha nawe." Lakhe: "I'm trying not to lose my appetite Siphosenkosi." I went to the bedroom with tears in my eyes, almost bumping into Sandile. Sandile: "Spho?" I closed the bedroom door behind me ndayokhangela mpahla yonxiba. I called a cab also. If I disgusted him, I was going to get out of his sight. I changed my clothes and packed a few in a bag ndaphuma. Sandile: "Spho?" I was headed for the door. He grabbed my arm. Lakhe: "myeke! If she wants to leave makahambe." Sandile: "like the last time? That is NOT happening. Niyanya nobabini this time." Me: "khandiyeke wethu Sandile." Sandile: "not until you tell me what's wrong and Uyaphi." Me: "buza LO what's wrong. I took a bloody walk because he wanted to sleep in peace! I didn't want to disturb him, so ndihambe. When I come back, he's THIS. I can't do this. Andizokwazi ucengana nendoda endala Sandile." Lakhe: "bungasoze ukwazi uyicenga kaloku unayo nenye." Me: "What?" Lakhe: "don't what Me!" Me: "ndizamthini umntu onje ke mna?" Sandile: "woah....Lakhe, what do you mean unendoda entsha uSpho? Since when?" Lakhe: "mbuze ba uvelaphi." Me: "I was taking a WALK!" Lakhe: "heh. Inoba ucingba ndiyi mookie wena." Sandile: "Spho. Thetha nam. Kwenzeka nton?" Me: "my cab is here. I'd like to go." Sandile: "I can't let you go. Unfortunately. Kuzofuneka ndithethele uLakhe kuba akakwazi uzithethela uyila bullet ilinde utsalwa yena. Akabuyi mva emvakoko. He loves you. But he is upset." Me: "Sandile, I appreciate your concern kodwa bubuxoki obu. Andinandoda bitheni mna." Sandile: "Lakhe uyifumanaphi lento uyithethayo." Lakhe: "uyekane nam. Hoya tshomi leyakho iye ndodeni." Sandile: "mntase. Suhamba please. Let me talk to him abit. Ndizova ingxaki isukaphi." Me: "mandiye kumamam ke." Sandile: "awuzokwazi ukuya ndawo until you fix le yalapha kwakho as umfazi. I'll talk to the driver." he walked out before I could protest. So there I was standing by the door with my bag. He came back. Sandile: "Iza." he took my bag wandisa e-lounge. Lakhe: "ningakuliiinge nizondifundekela ndizihlelele mna niyeva?" Sandile: "khawume Kancinci bhuti. Sifuna net ukwazi what you mean by uSpho unendoda." Lakhe: "ungambuzi nje." Sandile: "ndibuza wena bhuti." cwaka umntu. Sandile: "Lakhe. Lakhe. Lakhe. Lakhe." Lakhe: "I will fucking punch you in the throat if you say Lakhe one more time." Me: "Lakhe." we giggled. Lakhe: "mxim." Sandile: "asizokuyeka ude uthethe lento ikutyayo." Lakhe: "andiswelanga nto kwenza ke mna." Sandile: "siyayiqonda lonto bhuti." Lakhe: "mbuze ba uvelaphi! Nanku." tshin bethuna, is this about that jogging guy? Me: "are we fighting about Ben?" Lakhe: "hewha." Me: "u-BEN? Really?" Sandile: "who's Ben?" Me: "his neighbor!" Sandile: "we have a neighbor?" Me: "he lives down the street. He was taking a jog while I was walking. He even invited you to lunch. How can he be indoda yam?" Lakhe: "he didn't invite me. He invited YOU wathi emven koko uzise mna. Apparently I'm the potato." I couldn't help but laugh out loud. Sandile: "how did you suddenly become a vegetable bhuti wam?" he chuckled. Lakhe: "zendibeyi salad." Me: "wait...how did you know? Are you spying on me?" Lakhe: "you're spying on yourself busy taking my watches. Uyodibana namadoda akho. Uba charmer nge watch yam. Imagine." Me: "your" I stared at it on my wrist. Me: "how.." Lakhe: "uthi nyawu ngoku." Sandile: "oooh, its the one connected to your phone. Oops." Me: "ayondodam uBen. He's a nuisance. He talks too much also. Besides, you're not a potato." Lakhe: "ayisecace andilo tapile. When last did you take a proper look?" heee ndiphoxwelani ngoku? Lakhe: "and ndiyaya kula lunch. Ndibone lo Ben ungena tapile. Inoba uyibhatata k'le ndawo akuyo. Swine." asayihleka noSandile. Lakhe: "awukwazi nomenzi salad. Ulazelaphi tapile khona? Phof uzothin ungalazi enxiba nee-leggings." my stomach was sore from laughing. Worse kuba lomntu was dead serious eshwabula. After a while we calmed and watched some TV. Lakhe: "futhi iyadyola latshomi yakho." I looked at him. Me: "uthetha nam?" Lakhe: "ndithetha nawe." Me: "ngeyiphi lo tshomam." Lakhe: "kanye Le uyicingayo." Me: "I'm not thinking of anyone. Khona buhlala eDurbz kodwa awukhulumi, awung'khulumele phela." Lakhe: "don't change the subject. Dubaduba lo wenu." Me: "nooo...he's not." Lakhe: "uzuth anditshongo. And futhi Andifun bantu bazolila apha endlinam bezokwenza isizungu ingathi sibhujelwe. Undincede sisi. Nidibane pha kude." Me: "Lakhe, uyifumanaphi lento uyithethayo." Lakhe: "I saw him. Udyola nomnye mntana, looks 19 if not 20. Ebehamba naye, doing shopping." I was getting soo damn confused. Me: "no man. Not Dumi." Lakhe: "inoba ndiyimfama ke. Ndiyampampatha xandijonga umntu." I didn't want to laugh at all. How could he think this? Lakhe: "ungahambi uthetha ezinto. He didn't see me. I saw him. Qha ke ndiyathanda ungazingeni ezabantu izinto. Its not my place, neither is it yours." Me: "now I must not tell Zingi?" Lakhe: "what proof do you have?" Me: "but she's my friend-" Lakhe: "ingxaki yakho kuthand ungena into zabantu.

Uzobhidakala. Batshatile ababantu, you're coming with these news will rock their marriage hard. Do you want to do that? Ungenaphi?" it was true. Ndingenaphi? At this point they were both my friends and I couldn't tell which I knew better because as far as my memory serves me. They're equal. Me: "I need to see my mom. Lakhe: "she's still in church. Uzophuma aze apha." yakhala phone yasendlini. Sandile went to pick up. Sands: "yep?" Lakhe: "awuphenduli olohlobo iphone!" Sands: "yes she's here." Lakhe: "that better not be your boyfriend. Ndizomhlaba aphambane mna. Akandazi nondazi." Sandile: "Spho-" Lakhe: "nguban lowo!" Sandile: "Learn To Trust." I went to go answer. Me: "Spho speaking." Zingi: "hey boo its me. Usendlini?" Me: "yes I'm home." Zingi: "great. Can we hang out? I'm bored. Abantwana ndibase kumama. Andimazi uphi uDumi." Me: "okay. There's lots of activities here." I was feeling guilty. Dumi was probably with his girlfriend. Zingi: "okay ndiyeza ke." I hung up. Lakhe: "and then? Umphanga? Ya, its time for me to disappear." Me: "you're not going ANYWHERE. You told me about this! You will Suffer with me!" I followed him to the bedroom. Lakhe: "I'm not staying for anything in this world." Me: "then say goodbye to these." I pulled up my top. Lakhe: "for 2 hours. I'll stay, if she starts crying, I'm leaving." Me: "if you dare leave." Lakhe: "torture Sandile. He fixes problems better than me." Me: "Sandile didn't tell me about potential cheating." Lakhe: "it is not potential. It is reality. He is cheating! You're about as in denial as his own wife." Me: "mxim. Just bath and come say hi." I went back out. Me: "we're expecting a guest Sands." Sandile: "oh, lo ucheat'elwayo?" Me: "no uZingi." Sandile: "I'm confused. Lo unomnyeni ocheatayo?" Me: "he's not cheating." Sandile: "uyi Blesser labhuti. Let him prosper." Lakhe: "yintoni Blesser?" Sandile: "umdala nyani. You don't even know who you are." Lakhe: "huh?" Sandile: "Blesser is a rich guy, who sponsors young girls. Amnike Mali for her hair, take her shopping, trips, those things." Lakhe: "why would he want to do that?" Sandile: "because ikuku imandi." Lakhe: "heee hayi nawe Sandile. I am banning that name under my room." Sandile: "but its

the truth. Sizothi yinton ke?" Lakhe: "whatever suits your fancy." Sandile: "ice cream ke. Imandi ice cream. Besides, it makes you look cool." Lakhe: "so nawe uyi Blesser?" Sandile: "andinaxesha lalo kak-" Lakhe: "Banned." Sandile: "really? We're banning shit too?" Lakhe: "my house." Sandile: "awusethule nopopi. What's wrong?" Lakhe: "ku-cheatelwa yena kaloku." Me: "mxim. I'm going to make snacks." Lakhe: "no need. Sandile will do so. Khandikhape ndiyovasa." I walked after him. Sandile: "I'm not even asked. Its like I'm paid to do it." in the bathroom I sat on the toilet seat Wangena yena kwi tub. Me: "I feel so bad." Lakhe: "andiphindi ndikuxelele izinto wena yazi." Me: "but she's my friend." Lakhe: "keep it together." Me: "I'm keeping it together." Lakhe: "tie it up." Me: "its tied." Lakhe: "and put it away. Don't look at it." he bathed and we discussed some work issues until Sandile knocked. Lakhe: "yes." Sandile: "ufikile." Me: "okay ndi-" Sandile: "NO! Stay there." Lakhe: "Sandile, get in here." Sandile peeped. Lakhe: "get in." he stepped in. Lakhe: "wenzani pha." Sandile: "we're talking....just give me a few minutes to vibe." Lakhe: "vibe what?" Sandile: "just stay here please. I'll keep her company." Lakhe: "heee ooSandile." Sands: "don't you judge me." he stepped back out. Me: "do you think he likes her?" Lakhe: "definitely." Me: "I have to-" Lakhe: "KHAWUYEKE izinto zabantu! Yoh." I sat still and helped him bath. Ugqiba kwakhe wayokhangela isinxibo. Me: "I can't....I have to go to her." Lakhe: "I'm almost done." Me: "you're not even wearing underwear!" Lakhe: "I know." he came closer to me. Me: "get your ass dressed. Uze!" I walked out the room. The two were sitting cozily on the couch. Me: "hi." Zingi: "hey angel. Why didn't you tell me Lakhe had a sexy brother? And this wine.....Jesus, Is that you?" Me: "well..." Zingi: "he's such a gent." Me: "I'm sure. There's a cinema, awufun bukela movie." Sandile: "that's a great idea Spho! You guys choose the movie, I'll bring the snacks." Zingi: "and more wine." Sands: "your wish is my command." I was so confused. Finally Lakhe came through. Lakhe: "hi." Me: "maybe I should invite Ben." Lakhe: "try me." I giggled. Lakhe: "uright Zingi?" he tucked me under his arm. Zingi: "I'm perfect! Hey, we're watching a movie. I need a bathroom. Spho, you always choose great movies. You choose. Hahaha!" she stumbled down the passage. Lakhe: "is she....drunk?" Me: "yep." Lakhe: "I hope she's not drinking my wine." Me: "buza Sandile. He's her host." Lakhe: "and then?" Sandile: "I brought snacks. Where did she go?" Lakhe: "home." Sands: "What!!" Lakhe and I almost fell down laughing. Sands: "oh kumnandi ngoku? Mxim." we made our way to the mini cinema. Lakhe: "siyabashiya aba xa kufika umamakho." Me: "okay baby." Lakhe: "did I mention how gorgeous you look today." he kissed my forehead. I blushed. Lakhe: "umhle queen yam. Shota nge qhiya emnyama ngoku kuphele uxoxa." Me: "ubuxoxiswa ngubani." Lakhe: "nguBen." as he sat down. Me: "awusamthandi." I sat next to him. He put my feet on his lap. His facial expression changed. Me: "what's wrong?" Lakhe: "its nothing baby." Me: "unje ke..." Lakhe: "I'm just glad you're here...and you're mine." Me: "bundigxotha ke." Lakhe: "hayi sisi. Nguwe umntu obefuna ukuya kuBen. Awuthunywanga ndim. They would find his body in a 12 feet grave before he tries to steal my treasure." Me: "oh?" Lakhe: "khawuzapha ndiphuze." I sat on top of him and kissed his lips. Lakhe: "we might not make the...beginning of this movie." I smiled. Zingi: "guys..." she was standing by the door. We all looked at her. Sandile ebehleli a little before the screen. We were by the door. Sandile: "what it is?" Me: "Zingi." she looked extremely scared, her voice a bit shaky. I got off Lakhe. Zingi: "who is on the other side of that door down the passage?" Sandile: "Why?" Zingi: "they're calling for help..."

Lakhe stared at her. Lakhe: "the only person that needs help here nguwe. First you were seeing Jesus, now he's calling you for help. Does that make sense?" Zingi: "I thought I..." Sandile: "were they screaming? Banging? What?" Zingi: "kind of like whispering." Sandile: "khazohlala phantsi boo. You're hearing things." Zingi: "I'm sorry guys." Sandile: "its okay hun.. Hlala apha. There's no one there. Funeke uyeke usela Le-wine." Zingi: "but its nice-" Lakhe: "its making you Crazy." I pinched him. Lakhe: "nyani mos. Kuthiweni ke? Wena baby sekhe wava umntu ucela uncedo aphe ndlini? As a permanent resident of this household?" Me: "well no." Lakhe: "nantsoke." Sandile: "movie is starting." Lakhe: "I don't feel like watching a movie." Sandile: "hamba kaloku." Lakhe: "masambe mntu wam." Me: "siyephi?" Lakhe: "hlala ke with your friends." I got up and followed him. Me: "Lakhe." Lakhe: "hm." Me: "you're being rude." Lakhe: "I am? How?" Me: "firstly stop talking to everyone ingathi singabantwana." Lakhe: "I didn't talk to anyone as though ngumntana." Me: "mxim." Lakhe: "you want me to be more open to people. I'm more open, now I'm too open?" Me: "you can be open without ridiculing everyone you come across." Lakhe: "oh?" Me: "baby I appreciate your efforts, but can you please turn down the sarcasm, just a bit." Lakhe: "babe. Pick and choose. You want me to be open and sarcastic or quiet and cold. There's no in between." Me: "fine Lakhe." Lakhe: "uqumbile kengoku?" Me: "what does it look like?" he shrugged and walked to the kitchen. I went to the telephone to call for my mom but I needed her number which meant asking the psycho and I wasn't about to. So I stood by the phone. He stood next to me. Lakhe: "and then? Is the telephone also whispering for help?" I grinned a bit. That was a bit funny. Lakhe: "hm? silinde call ka Ben?" I ignored him. Lakhe: "or mhlawmbi eyaka Dub?" he laughed. Lakhe: "usayikhumbula baby la-show ka Dub ku Sabc 2?" I hid my smile, I wanted to laugh so badly. Lakhe: "ufuna ufownela bani baby?" Me: "mamam." he dialed the number and it rang. Ma: "hello." Me: "hi mama Unjani?" Mama: "ndiphilile my angel. Wena Unjani?" Me: "I'm fine I-" I heard something in her background. Me: "uphi?" Mama: "ndikhona love wam." something wasn't right. Me: "useza mama?" Mama: "ohh...hee, hayi mntanam. Uhm...andikazohamba my angel. Sizophinda sidibane." Me: "are you sure uright?" Mama: "I'm sure baby." Me: "okay mama. Goodbye." I hung up the phone. Lakhe: "so..." Me: "cela undise kumama. Something is not right." Lakhe: "what are you talking about?" Me: "she sounds funny. Maybe akaphilanga and she doesn't want to stress me." Lakhe: "how did you come up with that now?" Me: "its the only explanation." Lakhe: "or maybe she just wants some time alone." Me: "no." Lakhe: "baby. Is there a time where awungeni into yomntu? If your mom was sick she would tell me." Me: "no she wouldn't. She has pride." Lakhe: "Spho. Stop. Let me take you shopping and-" Me: "I'm not gonna let you bribe me while umamam engaphilanga. Masambe. Get your keys." he sighed and took his keys. I went to his car ndayogibela in the passenger seat. Kalok iyagibelisa lena imoto funeke unyuse umlenze straight. He drove out to the hotel my mother was in. Me: "is she in your hotel?" Lakhe: "no, she picked Courtyard." safika eCourtyard. Me: "did you stalk her room number?" Lakhe: "no, I booked the room. I didn't stalk." we got out of the car. Lakhe: "kutheni unervous? Feeling guilty already?" Me: "why would I be feeling guilty?" Lakhe: "because you're making me help you spy on your mom." Me: "we're just checking." I knocked on the door. I pushed him away from view. Lakhe: "what are you doing?" Me: "she'll see us in the hole before she opens then pretend she's not here xa ebona sithi. Don't be dumb." he held his hand over his mouth. Me: "this is not funny. This is the real deal.

Shhh, here she comes." the door opened. Me: "hello." she stared at me in surprise. Why was she in her gown still? Its after midday. Mama: "heeyyy." she said nervously. Something was definitely wrong. Me: "can we come in-" Mama: "No. Uhm....I was unpacking. There's a mess." Me: "mama." "Baby? Ngubani lowo? Buya alok." what the fuck? Was I hearing things or? Lakhe: "so this was nice. Besizothi Hi qha, come angel we have shopping to do." Me: "mama, Uhleli nomntu?" Lakhe: "yes honey. Maside sihambe." Me: "mom!" she was embarrassed engathethi nelinye. Didn't she say utata was in Cuba?" Lakhe: "call me when you need anything mama. Bye." he pulled my arm. Me: "I was supposed to deal with this." I said in the car. Lakhe: "you weren't supposed to interfere. I keep warning you about ungena izinto ezingakufuni. You never listen. I don't know what it would take for you to get the hint. Uyiqalile lento kum, I was lenient on you, because I cared about your feelings. Into ezokwenza, not everyone is Lakhe, they not gonna let it fucking slide. Stop being inquisitive. Yeka ungena indaba zabantu. That do not include you, I keep saying. Uzokhubeka ke." besendikhubekile. He drove. I was sure that couldn't have been utata, xa kaloku umama engafuni ndingene ndimbone. Or even say anything that ufikile. Who was it then? Lakhe: "ufun utya nton." Me: "I'm not hungry." yangena moto kwa McD's. Lakhe: "one happy meal please." he said on the intercom. "andiva bhuti?" Lakhe: "khang'ungandiva ndithe ndifun happy meal." Me: "nguban lo uzotya happy meal?" Lakhe: "you. Since you acting so childish." Me: "Lakhe. Ungak'linge undiphambanise mna uyeva?" Lakhe: "uzandithini?" Me: "Lakhe. Do not test me." Lakhe: "ndithin ndik'quize?" "hello." Lakhe: "hi. Ufuna ntoni apha?" Me: "ndizotyha McDonald's xabektheni?" Lakhe: "utheni uMcDonald's?" Me: "hayi Lakhe ndinoske ndilambe." Lakhe: "ok. Sisi cela undiphe Triple Boerie burger, medium meal, Sprite for cooldrink, and some McNuggets." she told him the total. Lakhe: "enkosi." he drove to the next window to pay for his food then collected it and drove away. Me: "I thought you hated take aways." Lakhe: "I do. My brother doesn't." Me: "uyithengele Sandile Yonke lento?" Lakhe: "yep. He loves McDonald's." that is so sweet. Me: "but he's not-" Lakhe: "He loves McDonald's. Ikhona indawo ofuna Uya kuyo?" I shook my head. Lakhe: "shopping?" Me: "I just want to be home. Minding my own business. Umama is cheating on utata." Lakhe: "you don't know that." Me: "if he was here, he would want to come see his princess. He always did." Lakhe: "ncoooh bethuna. Princess ka tata." I looked out the window. Lakhe: "don't let this bother you baby. Please." Me: "its not." my heart was aching anyway. I didn't want utata to be hurt. He would be. Lakhe: "babyyy." he parked th car inside our driveway. Me: "I just want to be alone." Lakhe: "okay." I went to my bedroom and got into bed, covering myself. In a short while....I fell asleep...

"Spho...wake up sweetie. Its time to go to school." I woke up. Khaya was standing by the door. He had a pink fluffy gown in his arm and a pink little bag. Khaya: "I bought these for you. Some toiletries and a gown to keep you covered and warm." Me: "uphi umama?" Khaya: "she's making your lunch. I'll put this here, you can go bath now." he placed the gown and bag on my dresser then walked out. I got out of bed and wore the gown, taking the bag to the bathroom. I bathed in the tub as I have for the past couple of days. It was so nice and big. When I went to get dressed in my school uniform, there was a little knock on my door. "hurry up sweetie." it was Khaya's voice. I quickly dressed and fixed my hair then walked out to the kitchen. Mama: "there she is. You're so beautiful." Me: "enkosi mama." Khaya: "okay. I'm out. Enjoy your day ladies." Mama: "uhm...?" he kissed her cheek. Mama: "aren't you taking Spho to school?" Khaya: "I thought we agreed, you Would."

Mama: "I haven't bathed and ndine appointment namhlanje." Khaya: "okay, let's go princess." I stood dead still. Khaya looked at Zama. Mama: "its okay baby. You can go." Khaya: "sthandwasam. She isn't ready, let's not force this on her. Please? Makakhululeke ngexesha lakhe." Mama: "okay, I'll cancel my appointment." Khaya: "okay. Ndiphumile." mama was upset, or was she angry? I couldn't tell. Khaya got in his car and started it, reversing out the garage. Me: "is he going to hurt me?" she looked at me. Mama: "no baby! He would never do that. He helps those who have been hurt before. Did someone hurt you?" Me: "we're gonna be late." Mama: "okay, but you can tell me anything my angel...anytime vha?" I nodded. She dropped me at school and came to fetch me later. I was in my room doing homework, when

I heard arguing. I came out the room. Khaya: "You better get the hell out of my house." I heard the voice that rattled my bones. He was here. How did he find me. "She Is Mine." he bellowed. Khaya: "jongapha bhuti. This is my house. If you do not leave-" Tata: "uzothini? Call the police? Go ahead and see if you-" Khaya threw a punch at him and kicked him to the floor. Mama: "Khaya!!" Khaya: "ndithe fokofa kwam! Akho kwanto yakho apha you dog!!" he threw him outside. Khaya: "you better stay away from my family. Or I swear to God I will burn you alive!!!" he slammed the door closed. Mama: "Khaya." Khaya: "not now Zama." he went to his bedroom. I just stood there not knowing where to go to next. Mama came and hugged me. Mama: "he's never going to hurt you ever again uyeva?" I nodded. I went to finish my homework and went to have dinner. Everything was fine. Khaya was back to normal, after dinner he went to watch TV. I helped mama with the dishes. Someone knocked on our front door. Mama opened and two men stepped in. "I am detective Mashaba, We are looking for a Mr Ngudla, is he home?" Khaya: "yes." he was already wearing a jersey. Mama: "Khaya wenza ntoni?" Khaya: "lock these doors and have the alarm on at all times. Ubize brother wam azosa umntanam eskolweni. Don't let that animal anywhere near my child!" Mama: "what is happening!" Detective: "your husband is under arrest for assault. I assume that he already knows. Let's go." they left with him. Leaving my mother crying. It was all my fault...why did I come here?

I woke up and looked around. Another memory. I missed him now. I got out of bed and walked to the lounge. Some strange man was sitting on the couch and another standing next to him ingathi yi-body guard. "Ah! Finally! Someone in de house popping op. Hello." he had a funny gay Mexican accent. He was dressed in a grey suit with a pink shirt and navy shoes. The chiffon on his neck also navy. He had mirror cat eyed shades on ndabawela ukuyihleka ndazibamba. Me: "can I help you?" he stood up. "my neym is Loco. You are?" Me: "Spho. What are you doing inside my house?" he giggled. Loco: "Your ? House?" he giggled. Loco: "you so cute." yep he was definitely gay. Loco: "where is the Lucky? My favorite amigo?" Me: "the Lucky is not here." Loco: "oh. Guess I wait then." just when I turned ndiyobiza uSandile to come deal wangena umfana. Lakhe: "Loco." Loco: "ah." he smiled and batted his eyelashes. Loco: "Lucky. I been waiting." Lakhe: "I see that. Sphosenkosi nd'cel undiphe umzuzu." Me: "wantoni?" Lakhe: "ndicela uye roomini." Me: "ngubani lo?" Loco: "or we can go back and the forth and the back. And I come in and fetch my men and go back out. Think we make each other point." Lakhe: "Siphosenkosi!" I turned and left immediately. Loco: "beautiful." Lakhe: "your men are not here." Loco: "how come this house the only place they were in last?" Lakhe: "I wouldn't know." Loco: "but you must know." Lakhe: "but I don't." Loco: "but you must." Lakhe: "I do not." Loco: "I can go on forever. You must know, where is Sun?" Lakhe: "he isn't here." Loco: "donda esta el?" (where is he) Lakhe: "I don't know!" Loco: "this not going to end good for us Lucky." Lakhe: "if I find anything I'll tell you first. Por favor deje mi casa." (Please leave my house) Loco: "vuelvo enseguida Lucky. Vuelvo enseguida." (I'll be back Lucky, I'll be back.) he walked out. I was in the bedroom, minding my business when Lakhe came in. Me: "who is that?" Lakhe: "Siphosenkosi. You are beginning to fucking piss me off!!! This shit is not attractive! Why can't you just trust me for once!! Everything is a bloody investigation kuwe and it is stopping. TODAY. Uyandiva ndithini? If I say No, its a no, respect my fucking privacy! I will tell you when I'm most comfortable! Sundipusha man!" he threw a plastic on the bed next to me and stormed to the bathroom. I sat in bed shaking. I didn't know what to do. It hurt that for once he actually yelled at me. He said I was pissing him off. I didn't want that. The bathroom door opened. He walked out and stood by the door. Lakhe: "I apologize for the way I spoke. It was uncalled for. Just that its difficult trying to control all these emotions I'm feeling. I'm sorry." he walked out the door. I looked at the plastic he had thrown. I didn't even want to touch it. All I needed was to go do something. Like cooking. I went to the kitchen to start preparing supper. Was Sandile and Zingi still watching a movie? Phof, andingeni ndawo. Before ndiphoxwe again. I boiled the macaroni and fried some onion, peppers on a pan to prepare for mince. I spiced my onion well and stirred. When cooked, I added the mince plus a little bit of water ingazotsha i-pan yam ye-stainless steel. When I finally finished with both, I looked for the casserole dish and prepared the oven I mixed the mince and the macaroni, grating cheese on top. It was the most easiest meal and resulted in me wanting to do something else. While it was in the oven I began cleaning the kitchen. Lakhe stood by the door. Lakhe: "what's happening?" Me: "kumdaka apha. Just need to get it cleaned." Lakhe: "uhm...phi." Me: "just needs a fresh breath." ugqiba kwam e-kitchen , I went to clean the lounge. The oven was on a timer so I wasn't worried ngayo. Lakhe: "Spho, I said I am sorry." Me: "yes. I heard and accept your apology." Lakhe: "I got you something, did you check the plastic?" Me: "nope. It wasn't my business to." Lakhe: "come on baby. You are the one person that is deep inside me. Yonke into yam I share with you.....in due time. I was wrong ngokungxolela." the problem is that he didn't really yell. Ebethetha qha ngomsindo. Which There's a difference. I can yell at someone to come closer from a distance. But xandithetha ngomsindo, that comes from deep within. There's issues there. Me: "okay." he brought the plastic from the bedroom. Taking out a box. Macbook. Lakhe: "this is for you." Me: "me?"

Why?" Lakhe: "your laptop needed an upgrade. I got you this and this." he took out an iPhone 6s. Me: "Lakhe.....really." Lakhe: "I know its a bit dumb buying the 6 kuzofika i-7 soon, but we can change it if you want. Whenever." Me: "when we fight.....you don't need to buy me gifts to apologize. Its not necessary. I'm not going to run away again or hurt myself. Xandirongo, ndixelele. Ewe ndizokhubeka but ndibe ndiyazi ndirongo." he nodded. Lakhe: "so I can take these back?" Me: "you want to start another argument?" he laughed. Lakhe: "you can call your dad hun..." Me: "I had another stretch of memory.." Lakhe: "tell me all about it." we sat on the couch and cuddled while I told him what I was remembering. Lakhe: "he sounds like a super hero." Me: "I have a positive feeling about him." Lakhe: "that's nice mntuwam. We will find out his number sim'fownele. I'm sure he'd be happy to hear from his princess, who happens to be my queen today." his fingers were running through my short hair. Me: "hm...wake me up when the timer goes off." Lakhe: "hayi. Bendik'shiye ulele apha, ungak'linge undihlolele mna." Me: "just a tiny nap." Lakhe: "no. We're watching the cartoons. Nanku Gumball. Ziphi ezi zimbini?" Me: "haven't seen them anywhe-" Sandile appeared from the passage. Lakhe: "Oh...Good God. Sandile really?" Sandile: "hayi ke ndenze ntoni kengoku! I'm just walking!" Lakhe: "you know exactly what you did! Kutheni unje?" Sandile: "Spho uthetha nganton ubhuti?" I shrugged. Lakhe: "you're going to clean that cinema yourself. I want it with glitter." Sandile laughed. Sandile: "yuuuh. Ndiyi nton kwi cinema yakho mna. Oh Please." he walked to the kitchen wabuya ephethe 2L ye Coke and two glasses plus his McDonald's. Sandile: "is the McDonald's for me? God knew what he was doing when he made you my brother. Ndiyabulela Somandla. This never gets old." Lakhe: "you are disgusting. Undibone ugqiba kwakho. The chicken is out the oven." Sandile: "is it roasted or burnt?" Lakhe: "roasted." Me: "I'm cooking macaroni and cheese. Ncedile baby wenza lo chicken ecaleni." Sandile giggled to his bedroom. Lakhe sighed. Lakhe: "the chicken isn't for supper sthandwa sam." Me: "oh? What's it for?" Lakhe: "all in good time..."

The next morning was a Monday. I was up by 5:30am to make umfana some breakfast. After that I went to put out his suit and shoes. He chose his tie and shirt. Lakhe: "ngubani xesha?" Me: "its 6:05am." Lakhe: "funeke ndiphume by 6:30." Me: "ambotya ke." Lakhe: "what are you doing today." I fixed his tie. Me: "a bit of work, ndizongena at the office also." Lakhe: "okay. Should I get you a driver?" Me: "I'll manage." Lakhe: "might as well hire a driver to drive you around." Me: "I think I need to start learning again. How to drive." he looked at me. Lakhe: "not yet baby. Its too soon. The doctor will let us know when is the best time to try. We have to work on one thing at a time okay?" Me: "I hear you. You can get a driver ke so long. Go have your breakfast." Lakhe: "get back to bed..." Me: "I'm doing no such thing. I need to clean-" Lakhe: "asizoxabana kwaksasa ke. If you don't want to be in bed, ambovasa sihambe. You're not cleaning this house ingathi uqeshiwe. In fact, call agencies and find us a helper. Wena umsebenzi wakho kulendlu kupheka, and this bedroom." Me: "plus the laundry-" Lakhe: "and the helper will iron." Me: "okay." Lakhe: "this side is the only part she cleans. The second section is off bounds. So are my ducks. Please feed my babies. The gardener must not touch that pond or their penthouse. I do that myself ndim utatabo. He only mows and trims." Me: "crystal." Lakhe: "great. That's your task for now, ugqiba kwakho uze kum at the office. I want to doggy you on my desk." Me: "heeee uMr Sobukwe. Is'ngcolo esingaka." we went to the dining area. Zingi came out the room behind Sandile. What was this? What happened? Yazi bendim'libele? Heee. Did they..... Sandile: "good morning family. This looks amazing. I am famished!" Zingi: "uhm..guys...I have to get going." Lakhe: "of course. I'm sure Dub is waiting." I kicked him under the table. Zingi: "see you later guys." Sandile walked her out. Me: "he has hijacked my best friend." Lakhe: "hayi wethu she needed that dick recharge. Ayeke uba lonely kulandlu." Me: "you promote cheating in marriage?" Lakhe: "definitely Not. Kodwa ke in this case bobabini barongo. If he gets some ass, why can't she get some dick. I doubt he's home even." Me: "I don't believe you." Lakhe: "stop feeling guilty." Me: "no, today I'm not feeling guilty ndoyika ezinto uzithethayo." Lakhe: "I would never cheat you mna mntuwam. That you can take to the bank. If I gain enough liver to sign half of my life, estates, money and fortune kuwe, andicingi mntaka somnci ndiyobhatyaza. I fear being broke." Me: "you fear being broke more than losing me?" Lakhe: "I fear being broke because of losing you. You leaving me would leave me broke. I wouldn't mind being broke unam, but ke uzobe undishiyile." Me: "and how about now..." Lakhe: "all the money in the world does not matter to me, as long as I have you." he kissed me. Sandile: "arrgg, Romeo and Juliet." Lakhe: "ungam'hoyi la Satan." Sandile: "namhlanje ndingu Satan. I wonder uzoy'gainer nini liver." Lakhe: "I wonder uzovasa nini. Let me get going. Thank you baby for breakfast, I love you. Remember to come to me xa ugqibile with the task so I can do that thang." he kissed my lips. Me: "I love you too. Bye." he left the house. Sandile: "I'll the do the dishes." I chuckled. Bendiya mos all he would do is load them on the washer. Sandile: "I'm glad you guys are doing okay. He seems more human. Uyakwazi nokuthi uyamthanda umntu without thinking about it for a few weeks." Me: "maybe he did think about it for a few weeks.." Sandile: "touche." I went to feed the ducks ndabuya ndayohlala on the bed starting to call the agencies. I had 4 interviews set for Wednesday for the helper and 3 for the gardener. I just needed to take another nap kakade it was too early still. My phone rang. Me: "hello?" Lakhe: "how is it going? Any luck?" Me: "yes got a few interviews for Wednesday." Lakhe: "wenzantoni ngoku?" Me: "I'm just chilling for now." Lakhe: "batyile abantwana bam?" Me: "yes. They've eaten." Lakhe: "do you mind spending a few minutes nabo? I'm sure they're feeling a bit neglected." Me: "heee hayi ke i-worse." Lakhe: "pretty please?" Me: "fine!" Lakhe: "thank you. Usisthandwa bonanje." Me: "ok." Lakhe: "uzoza ugqiba kwakho ne?" Me: "yes ndiyeza." Lakhe: "perfect." Me: "bye hun." I hung up. I didn't have a choice I couldn't take a nap. So I got up ndanxiba njee then went out the room. Sandile was sitting on the couch watching TV. I was dying to ask kwenzeka ntoni phakathi kwakhe noZingi but it was apparently none of my business. Sandile: "Uyaphi?" Me: "Lakhe asked me to pet the ducks. Some how baqumbile." Sandile: "I don't know what it is about those ducks. Thought they kept him sane, but now There's you.." Me: "kept him sane?" he looked at me and back to the TV ingathi Khange aqalise uthetha. Me: "I love him too by the way." Sandile: "I know." I went outside to the duck house. Me: "hey guys.." well of course they couldn't hear me. I picked up Zan and brushed her neck. I had to whistle for them to follow me to the pond sayohlala pha. Me: "I wish you guys could talk. There's so much happening here that I can't speak to anyone about..." I put them in the water and they swam in a circle then came back to me. Me: "its too much personal for my friend. Whereby your daddy doesn't want to talk at all. I can't ask umama because she has her hands full with some man that isn't my dad. Its a whole blob, you know? I'm not sure what I should be doing anymore. Its difficult minding your own business. Inoba bendizithanda indaba ne? That can't be right." I heard footsteps from my side. I looked. Sandile: "you talk to yourself too?" Me: "I was talking to the ducks." Sandile: "right. So does Lakhe apparently. You want me to drop you off Kuye? I'm on my way out." Me: "no its fine. I still have to bath and stuff." Sandile: "I'll wait." he had his serious look on. Okay, so again I was being chased out the house. Sandile: "I'll get them back to their place." I got up and went inside the house. I had an urge to know what it was that he was hiding. I wanted to know everything. I went to peep in the window, seemed like he was struggling with the girls. I quickly ran to the joining hall and crossed over to the other side ndangena kulamnyango. It look like a warehouse, completely different from the first section of the house. There was plastic everywhere. Even hanging from a ceiling, ropes on the floor, chairs everywhere.....and a bucket. Something about that bucket made my bones

buckle. I had to get out before I was caught in here. I walked out the door and ran again to my bedroom. Took a shower and went to look for clothes. I wore a tight navy bandage skirt and a long sleeve top that cut off just before my belly button, so I had to pull up the skirt a little. I wore red stilettos and combed my hair. My things were ready for the office, I just grabbed my bag and phone ndaphuma. Thank goodness we were taking the i8. I would never be able to get on la wagon ka baby inkulu. Sandile drove quietly to the office building. Which was a bit awkward. Me: "you okay?" Sandile: "why wouldn't I be?" Me: "uthule." Sandile: "sometimes I appreciate silence in a world that never stops talking." iyuuuh. Ndamvala kanene owam umlomo. The drive was silent without even the radio and andithandi tu ubhotorosha abanye abantwana. Sandile: "what." Me: "uthetha nam?" Sandile: "ewe. Uyandisinda. What do you want to ask?" Me: "Zingi." Sandile: "what about her." Me: "what happened." Sandile: "maybe you should ask her." Me: "ok." I looked out the window. Indidikile Le family inempoxo yazi. Sandile: "its not that I don't want to tell you, its just that she asked me to keep quiet and I don't like violating promises." he parked the car. Me: "I understand. Bye." I got out the car. Sandile: "Spho." Me: "yes." Sandile: "sorry." Me: "for what?" Sandile: "I have a lot on my mind, I didn't mean to be a douche." Me: "that's fine." I closed the door. Me: "I'm used to it anyway." I walked into the door. The receptionist looked at me. She: "can I help you?" Me: "yes, I'm here for my boyfriend." Lakhe: "husband." he hugged me from behind, andancuma bethuna. Me: "hey." Lakhe: "morning love. Let me get my stuff quick." Me: "Uyaphi?" Lakhe: "we have a meeting in 30 minutes." he pulled me to his office. Everyone was staring at us ndinazo nentloni Kancinci not sure what was happening. Me: "babe. Kutheni sijongwe kangaka?" Lakhe: "sijongwe nguban." he was tidying his desk. Me: "everyone." Lakhe: "I wouldn't know. Its not like bebengayazi siyadyola. Bebefika esbhedlele ndipha." Me: "oh." Lakhe: "you look stunning mntuwam. Yeyyi..I'm so lucky. I wonder ndenze ntoni?" Me: "you seem a bit high." Lakhe: "oh wow. Really babe? Ayabibhlungu intliziyo yam." Me: "where are you taking me?" Lakhe: "out for lunch baby. Let's go." kuske kuthini na. Me: "are you trying to distract me?" Lakhe: "even with your memory loss, that degree still slays. Yes I'm distracting you. I want us to have some fun, before I break up with you." we walked out the office. I was already distracted by what I witnessed in the house. What was in that bucket! Water? But for what? Paint? Lakhe: "are you even hearing me?" Me: "what do I want to eat for lunch? Anything babe." Lakhe: "you're still worried about your mom?" Me: "yes." why would Sandile be so vacant in that space kodwa its bare olahlobo. Xa kalok ethanda kangaka uhlala pha. What's with the open windows? In fact, lamfana ebese ndlini couple days ago ufuna ntoni? Lakhe: "ai ndikuncamile." Me: "I'm just a bit dry man." Lakhe: "dry?...where." he brushed my thigh. Me: "I'm not in the mood for sex Lakhe man." I've been really distracted hey? But if I was to snoop I couldn't let on that I was on to him. I needed to distract him too. Me: "siyaphi?" Lakhe: "Bay West." Me: "siyothini baby?" he shrugged one shoulder. Me: "uqumbile kengoku?" Lakhe: "nope." he was leaning on his door while driving, fist under his chin. Of course ebequmbile. Me: "I just enjoy time at home baby. Together alone. Not out there." Lakhe: "I thought you were tired of being couped up endlini oko, so I was trying to make you happy. You could say ufuna siyendlini qha and not shut me down as if I'm some hungry fox always looking for sex." Me: "haibo. When did I say you're a hungry fox?" Lakhe: "you didn't have to say it. Its how I feel." finally! He is starting to loosen up! Me: "I'm sorry baby, it wasn't suppose to seem that way. I enjoy having sex with you nje....its never a problem. And awuyiceli oko, Kuthen ikuhlupha lento?" Lakhe: "I don't want you to be uncomfortable....you just got out of hospital, I don't want to tire you out or be inconsiderate." Me: "babe....I'm not an invalid. If you want to have sex, we'll have it as long as uyicela. There's no reason why not." Lakhe: "K. So do you want to go shopping or home?" Me: "we can go shopping my love." he smiled. This smile was so familiar...too familiar. It touched deep inside my soul and rattled my heart. Lakhe: "what's wrong?" Me: "nothing." I was struggling to breath again. Lakhe: "Spho." Me: "no, I'm fine." he stopped the car on the side of the freeway. Lakhe: "Spho, you're not. Look at me. Baby? Please breath. Slowly." I tried exhale and inhale. Slowly... Lakhe: "what just happened?" Me: "take me home please." Lakhe: "Okay. Okay baby." he started again and drove us home this time.

On our arrival, Sandile was not there. Ebetshilo phof. I took off the shoes and sat on the couch. Lakhe made me some hot chocolate. Lakhe: "baby? What went wrong? I need to know to prevent it from happening again. You can't just lose your breathing like that...Sphosenkosi, that scares me. I'm not ready to go through that again." how could I tell him? I didn't even know kwenzeka ntoni kum. Me: "your smile triggered something. I'm not sure, I just panicked." Lakhe: "was it bad? It reminded you of someone?" Me: "I think so. But it can't be bad...I've remembered up to a time where I lived with Zama." Lakhe: "so it could be a happy memory but iyakothisa because you're awake?" Me: "I think so." Lakhe: "I'll call the psychol-" Me: "No, Lakhe. Just sit. You like fussing around, I want you to sit next to me and hold me. Leave the doctors alone!" Lakhe: "okay." he sat down and held me in his arms. Lakhe: "sthandwasam...I want you to be able to talk to me about anything. I don't want us hiding anything from each other for fear of hurting omnye wethu." Me: "uqumba kangaka wena, ufihle worse." Lakhe: "baby.

Andifihli nto mna. I told you everyt-" Me: "and Loco right?" Lakhe: "Loco is history in my life." Me: "if you say so." Lakhe: "I'll tell you baby, but I'd have to get you pregnant first ungakwazi undibaleka ndibenomntu wondithethela xa ungasandifuni." I looked at him. Me: "that intense?" Lakhe: "I love you so much." my heart melted by those words not because he said them, but it was the look in his eyes that gave it up. Distraction? Our telephone rang. Me: "I wonder who that could be." he got up to answer the phone. Lakhe: "Sobs speaking." Sobs? Since when sana? Lol. Lakhe: "and you are?" he looked at me. Oh oh.... Lakhe: "I see." I didn't like that look. Lakhe: "oh, I'd love to. Give us 5 minutes." he hung up. Me: "babe....?" Lakhe: "wear your shoes. Bout time, I taught this little Ben of yours some manners." he threw his jacket on the couch, loosening his tie. Me: "Lakhe, what are you going to do-" Lakhe: "uzondifumana phambili Sphosenkosi."

Indlela eya kwa Ben I tried hurrying behind him. Kwayena ke Phof abuya azondibamba isandla ndingawi. He helped me up the stairs and knocked on the door. A tall slender woman opened. Ndabhidwa. Sana, was this the right house. "hi, ndingu Lorraine. I'm guessing you're Spho right?" ebejonge kum. Me: "yes, isn't this Ben's house?" Lorraine: "excuse me. Come In. Ben!!" Lakhe: "baby...I need to talk to you." Me: "wait Lakhe." I pulled him in the house. Ben came out of nowhere with a smile shining bright like a diamond. Me: "molo." Ben: "hello. This must be Masilakhe. I'm Ben, this is my wife Lorraine." Me: "wife? You never said you had a wife." Ben: "you never asked. Anyway, she just came from East London. Doesn't know much people here and I was trying to trick you into being her friend. That's why I was luring you in my house." he sighed. Me: "awww, that's so sweet! Kwathini kengoku ungatsho?" Ben: "I guess I was misjudging. I thought you wouldn't agree." Me: "Lakhe, honey. Kutheni ume apho, come here. This is Ben." Lakhe: "I heard." Me: "Ben this is my boyfr-" Lakhe: "husband. Its lovely meeting you both...baby, we have a guest coming in a few minutes." me: "huh?" Lakhe: "yeah. Uzofika singekho." Ben: "that's okay. Maybe we should have a chill session. Braai some meat and so forth. Sonke." Me: "nice." Lakhe: "okay. We'll discuss it another time. Thank you for having us." Ben: "no problem. I hope you don't mind, I searched for your telephone number." Lakhe: "absolutely fine. Thanks." Me: "it was nice to meet you Lorraine. Bye Ben." we walked out. Me: "and then?" Lakhe: "then what?" Me: "you were so adamant uzokhaba umntu next thing uyajika." Lakhe: "Khange ndithi ndiyokhaba umntu, ndithe ndiyofundisa i-manners such as umntu xa ekubiza ngokuzithoba uyaya kuye." LOL. That was a lie. Me: "what did you want to talk to me about." Lakhe: "Lorraine. High school ex." Me: "oh?" Lakhe: "yes. It was nothing serious wethu, just thought you'd like to know from me before anyone else. I have no intentions of making you uncomfortable phambi kwabantu and I don't want anyone else to make you uncomfortable about anything. Especially ngam." Me: "does she know, This Lakhe or the previous one." Lakhe: "previous. Everyone knows previous. This one belongs to you." he squeezed me in his arms. Me: "why do you keep telling people you're my husband kodwa awukabhatali ne-lobola." Lakhe: "ufuna ndiyibhatale?" Me: "no, I was just saying man." Lakhe: "maybe I should go pay nyani." I laughed. Me: "I can't imagine you doing that." Lakhe: "my wife....umfazi wam. Unkosikazi. Umkam. My half.....yep, sounds better." Me: "babe. Don't go doing that." he smiled. Lakhe: "okay ke." we arrived at our house sekungathi kuzonetha. Lakhe: "you hijacked me from the office wena. lyaphela imali yam pha." Me: "they'll call when they need you." I kissed him. Me: "so handsome." Lakhe: "enkosi." he blushed and hugged me. Lakhe: "let me get my laptop. Just need to check a few emails vha." I also needed to fetch mine. I undressed and wore my pajamas. He also undressed and wore a tracksuit sayohlala in the lounge. He lit up the fireplace wazozisonga in between my legs. His laptop below his tummy, neyam ndiyi beke on mine. With a towel under it. Lakhe: "babe. Here's your dad's Skype details." I typed them in and gave him a video call. It rang for a very long time before a face popped up on my screen. Andothuka. "Princess." he smiled. Me: "hi..." he hadn't changed from my memory. Exactly the way he was. Dad: "how are you doing my baby?" Me: "ndiphilile tata. Wena?" Dad: "I'm great. Umamakho told me you were in an accident. My flight home is booked for later today. I might arrived there tomorrow evening." Me: "aren't you working tata?" Dad: "yes I am baby." Me: "well, I'm doing fine. You don't have to come." Dad: "I want to. You're my only baby girl." Me: "but tata your psychology is needed there. I understand." he kept quiet... Dad: "baby? I left psychology 9 years ago. I've been practicing surgery apha eCuba. Did you forget now?" Me: "oh..." Dad: "ndiyeza mntanam. Okay? I'll be there soon. I miss you so much." Me: "khumbula nam tata." there were tears in my eyes. Dad: "let me see that beautiful smile. Put your crown back on. Let's see." I smiled. Dad: "that's my angel. Uzofika ke utatakho vha. I bought you something." Me: "what is it?" Dad: "uzobona xa ndilapho." Me: "please be safe." Dad: "I will be. I will be there too. Don't cry mntanam." Me: "okay." Dad: "I love you princess." Me: "I love you too king." I closed my laptop ndilila. I missed him so much. Lakhe: "love?" he hugged me. Me: "I'm fine. He's coming." Lakhe: "okay baby. Calm down." it was funny how I became so much more closer utata first time than I was to my mom. Is it because I remember him from my memory? But I only remember him taken by those detectives still. Not further. It was clear he had a deeper impact on my life. I was his only princess after all. Me: "I want to take a nap." Lakhe: "lala apha kum. Iza." he positioned himself properly and I cuddled on his chest. Me: "what about work?" Lakhe: "it can wait. Let's sleep." after I closed my eyes and almost drifting off. Lakhe was snoring lightly. I felt a feather light movement above me ndavula amehlo. Sandile. He covered us with a thick blue polar fleece blanket and tip toed away eyovala ifestire yase kitchen. I fell back asleep...

My mother had fallen asleep in my room after utata was taken. His brother, Uncle Lani had come to fetch me the next day for school and taken me home. A few days later Khaya came home. It was Thursday. I came home from school with umama and at home bekukho Khaya and Uncle Lani. Uncle Lani was shorter and chubby, with a light complexion. Khaya stood up and I ran to hug him. Khaya: "hey...how was school?" Me: "bekumandi." Khaya: "that's great princess. Go change uzondibonisa what you been doing at school." I went to my room and changed out my school uniform. I brought him my very heavy bag (when I was at school, it wasn't that heavy.) I had to drag it to the lounge. Khaya: "did you miss me?" Me: "yes." I really did. His presence was missed. I took out my book and showed him my Maths. Khaya: "wow. This is great work angel." I showed him all the other subjects and we started on my Natural Science project. Uncle Lani was helping mom in the kitchen with supper. Mama: "guys, supper will be ready just now." Me: "but mama, asikagqibi." Mama: "you have to eat baby." Khaya: "we're almost done princess. Just put this over here." Uncle: "wow. Doctors in the house!" I giggled. Lakhe: "doctor in the making. I have a mini me here." Me: "done." Uncle: "perfect! Masiy'fote." he took out his fancy phone and took a picture. Mama: "dinner time." I went up to the table and we sat down for dinner. Mama: "can we please close our eyes to pray? Dear God, we thank you. For your mercy and grace. We thank you Lord for protecting us at all times and bringing home my husband. We thank you for the roof above our heads and the food on this table. In your Holy Name. Amen." Us: "Amen." we opened our eyes and started eating. After dinner I helped Khaya wash the dishes. Mama: "come Spho sweetheart, time for your bath." I dried my hands and went to take a night bath. I wore my pajamas and got into bed. Khaya came in my room and tucked me in. Khaya: "I missed you too mntanam. I will do absolutely anything to protect you. Nobody will ever hurt my baby princess ever again. Uyeva? Undixelele if ukhona umntu okuvisa kabhlongu. I will never let that happen." I nodded. Khaya: "goodnight princess." Me: "goodnight daddy."

I woke up from my nap kudlala i-TV. It wasn't very audible though. Sandile was on the other couch watching it with a bowl in his hand and a spoon.

Lakhe was also awake. How long had I been out? Lakhe: "hey sleepy head." Me: "hi." my heart still ached from missing my dad. The thought of him brought tears to my eyes. Lakhe: "kwenzeka ntoni ngoku?" Me: "I still miss him." I hid my face in his chest like a little baby. Lakhe: "okay, baby uyeza nje. Yoh, I'm beginning to think ndizoshiywa ndiphambane apha ngulomfo." Me: "mxim." Lakhe: "he lands in joburg at 6am." Me: "how do you know?" Lakhe: "There's only one plane landing from Cuba." Me: "I need to keep myself busy." Lakhe: "baby.." Me: "hm?" Lakhe: "you're really close to him ne.." Me: "I guess so." Lakhe: "I'm glad." I went to the kitchen. Me: "I want to make red velvet cupcakes-" Sandile and Lakhe: "Dibs on the bowl!!" Me: "huh?" Sandile: "I said it first its mine-" Lakhe: "ha.a Sandile! I said it." Me: "what is going on!!" Sandile: "I get to lick the bowl." Lakhe: "I put on dibs." Me: "ah you'll fight it out." Lakhe: "I'm going to help." Sandile: "nam." Me: "I want you both out of my kitchen! Stay at the door." Lakhe: "but baby, I'm helping." Me: "I don't need help." Lakhe: "but I love you." Me: "nobody is licking the bowl." Sandile: "please." Me: "bye." I took out the ingredients and mixed the batch. When I poured them into the pan, entered them in the oven. I made some icing. I licked the bowl too. :) I went to sit in the lounge with them, bebukele some soccer game. Sands: "Paul, Sbu and Hunter are in town." Lakhe: "andizaz ezitshom zakho mna." Sands: "the Beamer squad." Lakhe: "ude Ube kwesiphi squad wena? Its beamers ngapha, its Aston Boys ngapha, wena uphi?" Sands: "I enjoy lingering in between. I'm not going to associate myself ngenxa yemoto endiy'qhubayo." Lakhe: "bazofika nini." Sands: "tonight. Bazozobulisa then go. Andizobakho ke for at least a few days." Lakhe: "bye." Sands: "what did Jeff say about the house?" Lakhe: "he's thinking about it. Funeke ayo consulter umfazi kalok." Sands: "very soon nawe." Lakhe: "sisaqala nje. Uyamva baby uSandile uyandigezela?" Me: "uzobethwa ndim uSandile tshonge friends ezingacacanga apha." Lakhe laughed. Lakhe: "ingathi uyabazi. Kukho lo unes'bunzi esigoso." Sands: "you are the meanest man alive." Lakhe: "hayi ke mninawa xasigoso ndisthini mna?" Sands: "mxim." Lakhe: "ndifun ubone baby lo ingathi yi bompie. Ingathi udiniwe xa ehamba Uhlel ekhefuzela noba uyaphakama ibangu mcimbi." he fell down laughing. Sands: "uright!" Lakhe: "why ufuna uphuma wedwa kwesi squad. Uzenza lo usexy, abanye awubahoyanga. you're the mean one, not me." Sands: "and people wonder why you don't have friends." Lakhe: "tshomi yam Ngu baby mna. Andinayo ne-worry yase rhini. My squad is my girl." Sands: "yavuya wena." Lakhe: "undiqumbele? I was playing. Baby akho bompie pha babi bonke ngokufanayo." Sands: "mxim." Lakhe: "uzundishiyele BMW i8 yam torhwana. Ukhe ubaphoxe uhambe nge Benz. Benz is part of Beamer right?" he laughed. Sands: "mxim ndiyahamba ke mna." Lakhe: "ndithule ke. You can have it. Its yours." Sands: "forever?" Lakhe: "ewe. I don't use it anyway." Sands:

"uyandi'briber?" Lakhe: "is it working?" Sands: "mxim. Enkosi." nyani in about an hour zafika friends zakhe. I had checked on the cuppies and they were ready ndacima i-stove. I went to the lounge. The three guys were hanging around Lakhe ingathi kuziwe kuye. Clearly they liked him. Lakhe: "baby, ungabaphi cupcakes aba. Mabahambe sizimince." that was unnecessary, just ebefuna kwaziwe qha Ngu BABY ke lo. Me: "molweni." Sands: "andinovinjwa ekhaya." the guys greeted. "I'm Paul." I shook his hand. Me: "hi Paul." the next one was Hunter. The last one looked at him wearily. "hi." Me: "hello." as though he froze. I let go of his hand. "I'm sorry. Just that you look familiar. Igama lam ngu Sibulele. Its nice to meet you." I stared back at him.

Something was ringing bells in my head ngoSibulele. Kind of like a warning. I just saw red. Paul: "you and familiar. He says that to everyone." Hunter: "first time etshilo since ephume esbhedlele. I thought he forgot that line." they laughed. Me: "esbhedlele? For what?" Sibulele: "I was in an accident." everything was whirling around me. 'I was in an accident' kept ringing in my head over and over again. I was feeling really light headed. Lakhe: "babe? Are you okay?" my brain shut down.....

I woke up. Lakhe had his arms around me. Sandile was sitting on the bed. Sands: "hey." Me: "hi." Lakhe: "baby..." I sat up. Me: "what happened?" Sands: "you collapsed." Me: "how long now?" Lakhe: "about 5 minutes." I was quite embarrassed. Me: "baphi....the rest." Sands: "in the lounge." Lakhe: "love....it turns out Sibulele was driving the car that bumped into you. Maybe that's why you reacted to him?" I don't think so...the reaction part. That can't be why, can it? No...there was something more there. "Sands... Is everything ok?" someone said from the other side of the door. Sands: "yeah bra. Everything is fine." Me: "I want to talk to him...about the accident." Lakhe: "are you sure baby?" Me: "yes." Sandile went to fetch Sibulele wabuya naye. Sibulele: "hey.." Me: "hi." then it was quiet... Me: "I'm sorry....I believe I was in the wrong, I caused the accident." Sibulele: "no, it wasn't you. The car rolled over. Nobody could've been able to control it. At least we're both alive. So its okay." Me: "how come you never came to check if I'd survived. I never saw you once." Sibulele: "bendizile when we were in hospital. The day before I left. You were bandaged on your head and unrecognizable from what I'm seeing now. Abazali bam came to fetch me and I was transferred to Durban immediately." Me: "that's okay...my mother wouldve probably done the same. If I could remember her. I can't remember a thing in my present life. I have snippets of my childhood qha." Sibulele: "it will grow back soon. You need to be patient and calm. Stay away from stress nezinto ezikhubekisayo.

Trauma is caused by pain. Don't allow it to happen." Me: "thank you Sibuu." Sibu: "a pleasure. If There's anything I can do." Lakhe: "thank you Sibuu." Me:
"thank you." Sibu left the room. Me: "I was making cupcakes. I need to put icing on." Sandile: "can I do i-" Me: "nope. I'm going to do it." Lakhe: "can I have some icing?" I kissed his lips. Lakhe: "no baby. The one you made. Me:
"no. Ndizoyipha uSibu." Sandile laughed. Sandile: "he's allergic though.
Anyway mnike, uzayipha mna." Me: "who is allergic to icing sugar?" Sandile:
"Him." I clapped once ndaphakama. Lakhe: "sure you're okay?" I nodded. His phone rang. Lakhe: "babe." Me: "hm?" Lakhe: "its your mom." Me: "ngubani xesha?" Lakhe: "its 20 past 6." Me: "oko kwayizolo emini, uqala ufowna ngoku?
At 18:20pm?" Lakhe: "baby, maybe she wants to explain?" Me: "or shut me up because uyeza utata? Right... Of course she wants to explain." I walked out.
Yes, I wanted to talk to her, but not ndinje. I was weak, and the thought of her cheating on utata made me angry. I hated it! Ibindenza naar. Therefore I needed to calm down much more than now. I went to the kitchen and put icing on the cakes. Lakhe was first in the kitchen ezolanda eyakhe. Me: "you have one." Lakhe: "thank you baby." he kissed my cheek and took the second one ephuma. Sandile came and took his two. Sandile: "you're God sent." Me: "abanye abantwana bona?" Sandile: "Sibulele akayityi cupcake." Me: "uzotyantoni ke yena? Find him something." Sandile: "ha. a Spho uzozikhangelela yoh." he took the rest of the cupcakes to the lounge. While I was cleaning up wangena Sibulele in the kitchen. Sibu: "I'll just have some juice." Me: "in the fridge." Sibu: "enkosi." he walked out after he poured himself a glass. After my cleaning I went to the bedroom where Lakhe was. Me:
"wenzantoni babe." Lakhe: "working love. You kidnapped me from work remember?" Me: "oh." Lakhe: "oh and Zingi asked you to call her back xa ugqibile." I took my phone and took her number from his. I dialed and listened to it ring on loudspeaker. Zingi: "hey babe." Me: "hey hun. Unjani?" Zingi: "not so good." Lakhe looked at me and shook his head. Me: "do you want to come over?" I stared back at him with a straight face. He looked at me with a shocked expression. Lakhe: "where?" Zingi:

"no, baby I can't come over. Can we meet up for coffee?" Me: "okay.
When?" I don't think anyone has coffee after 6pm but..... Zingi: "now. Can we meet at Salt?" Me: "okay love." Zingi: "sharp." I hung up. Me: "what is your problem?" Lakhe: "I told you she can't come cry here. I said it specifically because I knew. I'm not being mean but I need to focus babes." I went to the closet to find something to wear. Lakhe: "babe?" Me: "don't you need to focus?" Lakhe: "not for wena mntu wam." he came to the closet. Lakhe: "uzonxiba ntoni?" Me: "Jeans. Top." Lakhe: "I bought you a white highwaist pant some time ago. Unxibe la top yakho i-half yakwa Adidas i-white. Then your black coat." Me: "ayikho half la top." Lakhe: "nxiba ndibone." I rolled my eyes and undressed. Lakhe: "sundi-confuser vha. Don't do that all at once." Me: "baby please go work. Iya torhwana. And andizokwazi unxiba la pant imhlophe I'm too clumsy." Lakhe: "uzayinxiba ke kanti. It looks sexy." Me: "yikhuphe ke." Lakhe: "babe...I'm just trying to make you look nice, kutheni nje ingathi andifunwa?" Me: "I don't want to wear the white pants ku-late. I don't want it dirty." Lakhe: "but awuyanga yo-jaiver nje. But its fine. There's the denim jeans?" Me: "I like this." it was a black short jumpsuit with a gold zip down the back. Lakhe: "mna ndizonxiba ntoni?" Me: "Uyaphi wena?" Lakhe: "k'le ndawo Uya kuyo. Andicingi mntu wam tu ndik'yeke umke wedwa. Ungalahleka ndingaze ndiphinde ndik'bone. I can't let you see better people unje." I laughed. Me: "awuphilanga kanene." Lakhe: "I'm serious Spho." Me: "babe. You need to trust me. I'm having coffee with Zingi. You're dropping me off, and LEAVING, ubuye uzondithatha. This is one place only." Lakhe: "okay." Me: "zip me up." he stuck his hand inside the jumpsuit and hugged me. Lakhe: "miss you already." Me: "shame baby. Nyusa kaloku." Lakhe: "seyiz'nyukele njena." Me: "the zip, silly!" Lakhe: "oh sorry." he zipped me up. Lakhe: "andisavinjwa man." Me: "andizok'phendula yazi. Which shoes?" I held up my thigh high straps. Did I own these before? They look so hoe'y. :v Lakhe: "ndafa bawo." Me: "tie me up baby." he sighed and knelt down. Fitted the shoe on my foot and started tying up the laces to my thighs. When he was done, he looked up at me and smiled. Me: "usuke apho." Lakhe: "cela uyobulisa ke." Me: "No. Come, get up." we stood up and I looked in the long mirror. Lakhe: "nantso into yam madoda." he took a picture with his phone. I combed my hair in the bathroom. I looked at my make up bag. Me: "babe.." Lakhe: "mntuwam. Ondishiyayo." Me: "how do I look? Without make up." Lakhe: "you're beautiful my angel." Me: "the uneven tones? The little scar?" Lakhe: "baby. Umhle qha. You don't need this make up at all." Me: "are you saying that because you're staying behind or because you mean it?" Lakhe: "both." Me: "so you don't want me to slay?" Lakhe: "hesana. Did you see your outfit?" I took out my foundation and began the process. Lakhe: "so.....you know this how." Me: "I watched the videos on YouTube." he laughed. Lakhe: "I see." after I was done he looked at me and smiled. Oko eme apha. Lakhe: "plum lipstick. You look gorgeous, my glazed donut." Me: "thank you sthandwa Sam." Lakhe: "so I'm really not invited huh." Me: "no. Call Ben. Bother him for a while." Lakhe: "I might just." we walked out the room. I took my clutch bag and phone and his card. Lakhe: "heee. So he's allowed to go but I'm not." Me: "he doesn't mind crying." we walked out the bedroom. Sandile: "siyaphi?" he stood up. Lakhe: "SIT." Sandile: "I'm on my way out." Lakhe: "no you're not." Sandile: "ndikhapha ii-boys. They're going out." Lakhe: "that's nice." Me: "bye guys." they waved goodbye ndangena emotweni. Sandile: "bhuti-" Lakhe: "I don't want your silly comments tonight." Sandile: "uzoshiywa uphambane ulibele ubangu tamkhulu. Why you wearing tracksuits bra?" he laughed. Lakhe: "I don't answer to you." he got in the car and started. Me: "sum'hoya wethu uSandile usile yazi." Lakhe drove quietly. Andazi noba kuqunjelwe mna or what but ndathula. Lakhe: "would we still be this close if we were married?" I swallowed. Me: "yes baby. Why not?" Lakhe: "your thigh is distracting me." Me: "what's wrong?" Lakhe: "I want you." Me: "for once can you get out mind out the gutter? Just once." Lakhe: "only if you would agree to be my wife." was that a proposal orndim lo udom? I just got so irritated that minute ndavala umlomo wam. Lakhe: "baby." my heart was beating too fast. I was scared. I was confused. I was emotional. This wasn't my dream of a proposal. It wasn't even a proposal. Ibiyi ultimatum. Really?? He turned up the music on the radio. Bendisiva shushu gqithi ingathi aside sifike kulendawo siyakuyo. Everytime he stopped at the robots he looked at me. Without another word out of his mouth. I was being unfair though. I needed to speak out, so I turned down the music. Me: "uthini na Lakhe?" he looked like he was shaking. Me: "Lakhe." yamisa imoto. Lakhe: "I said...ndicela ubengu mfazi wam." he whispered. Me: "here?" I didn't know whether to be disappointed or happy. He got out the car. Oh God, please...NO. He opened my door and kneeled down just like he was doing when he was tying my shoes. Lakhe: "at this point I know I look crusty as shit. With my old tracksuit and sneakers. While you're sitting there beautifully like the queen you are. I didn't plan this at all. Andizazi mandithini. I never thought there would come a day in my life where I would stare all day at the woman I love trying to measure how much she means to me. Zange nangemini enye sekhe ndacimba ndiyoze ndiguqe phambi komntu ever again since I lost my mom. I love you so much. And its weird because ayikapheli ne-3 months ndikwazi. Ndixolela usokola ndingabinanto than to lose you. I'm not easy, I know that. Ndiyabulela ngondinyamezela mntanomntu. All of this is just a short cut version of why I love you just before a truck knocks me down ndisaguqe apha. All in all, please marry me." Me: "you're ruining my make up." I cried. Lakhe: "that's why I didn't want you wearing it. Qha ke...kuthwa ndinomona." I got out the car and hugged him. Lakhe: "baby?" Me: "Yes?" Lakhe: "YES!!!!!" Me: "no, wait-" Lakhe: "sow'vumile! Haaa! Can't take it back." I was laughing so hard trying to explain. Lakhe: "now you're stuck with me for the rest of your life." he kissed me. I cannot believe I didn't even see this coming. Me: "masambe baby." Lakhe: "siyaphi?" Me: "Zingi?" he looked confused. Me: "well?" Lakhe: "oh, yes. Masambe. Ndinomfazi kaloku. Ingqondo ime ndaw'ninye." Me: "just get in the car husband. Ngena." he closed my door and drove me to Salt in Richmond Hill. Lakhe: "ndibuye what time?" Me: "in 2 hours. Call me first." Lakhe: "okay nkosikazi. Although you look like my mistress right now and all these girls are staring at me ingathi ndingu tata omdala. Oh my God, I forgot to shave!" I laughed. Me: "you are so dramatic. Firstly, akujongwanga wena. Allow me to flourish. I love you husband." I kissed his lips. Lakhe: "love you too." I got out the car and walked into the restaurant.

A waiter came to me. Him: "hi sisi, table for one?" Me: "two. I'm waiting for my friend." he directed me to a table ndayohlala phantsi and called Zingi kanti naye uyangena. I got up and hugged her. Zingi: "you look so sexy." naye wabe eyi flame. She was wearing a maroon wrap around dress that had a long ass slit up her thigh. Me: "thank you. So do you angel. Unjani?" Zingi: "I'm a mess man." we ordered our food and drinks." I knew we weren't gonna have coffee. side look Me: "kwenzeka ntoni Zingi?" Zingi: "I had sex with Sandile." Me: "whaaaaat." I acted shocked but she clearly saw I was faking it. Maybe I didn't put that much effort into it. It was kind of an 'haha I know' moment. Zingi: "he told you. Didn't he." Me: "he did not. He respects you. He said he's not breaking promises." she sighed. Me: "how was it?" Zingi: "so amazing..." I laughed. Me: "amazing? Wow. I'm going to need a glass of wine." Zingi: "I need a bottle." Me: "so what's the problem." Zingi: "it happened so quick...we didn't use protection...." Me: "Oh No." I was beginning to stress. Zingi: "I know. I had to rush out that morning to buy the pill." I sighed, but I had another feeling. Me: "I'm still waiting for the bad part. I feel like There's more." Zingi: "I got nauseas afterwards and threw up." and back to the stress. Me: "you threw up the pill?" Zingi: "yes. I saw it in the throw up. Completely undissolved." Me: "and then what happened." Zingi: "I went to the doctor, he did some tests." Me: "and....everything is fine right?" Zingi: "no...I'm pregnant again." Me: "I am extremely confused. In a day???" zingi: "no! I'm 15 weeks!" I stared at her, shocked. Me: "is the baby okay? The pill! The drinking!" Zingi: "he's fine. Everything is perfect." I sighed again. Me: "at least the baby is fine. I'm sure Dumi will be so happy." my mind bounced to the fact that he's cheating and I was looking at my best friend straight in the eye having to keep this secret. It hurt so bad. Zingi: "yeah..I'm not so sure about that. He said he didn't want another baby." Me: "then he shouldn't have been having sex. No offense." Zingi: "andiyazi ndizomxelela njani uSandile. Goodness, I can't even look at Dumi. Not that he's ever there." Me: "are you dating Sandile or its just a fling?" Zingi: "I enjoy his time. And sex....I don't know....he's sweet. Even today, besihleli kunye. He's sweet and adorable as hell." Me: "uhm...Zingi... You're married." Zingi: "I know Spho." Me: "don't you think maybe it would be beneficial for your household if you kind of....paid more attention to Dumi. And what he's up to." Please take the Hint! Zingi: "Dumi is always working!

Akanalo ixesha lam. Or the kids anymore. There's this stupid big case he's working on. So much so, ungena ngo 1 emke ngo 6. Is that sane?" we got our drinks. Me: "maybe....Ikhona into emhlopheyo or angaxolanga ngayo." Hint #2. I'd be damned. Zingi: "ah well...ba akathethi how does he expect me to know? In any case. I want to abort this bab-" Me: "don't you Dare!" I couldn't let her finish that sentence. Me: "you're a mother! You cannot abort that baby! You will NOT! And you're not having wine either." I took her glass. Zingi: "Spho, this is my decision. Giving birth to babies can't be all that I'm doing for Dumi." how I wish I was in your position. With a little someone growing inside of me. Me: "now its kind of too late Zingi. You and Dumi need to pull yourselves together and raise this baby the same way as the first two. You're not going to punish this baby for your faults and I'm not letting you harm her either! So you're just gonna have to suck it up." she sighed. We stayed quiet for a few minutes. Zingi: "I think its a boy." Me: "I'm betting on a girl." Zingi: "I think I like uSandile." Me: "how?" Zingi: "njani ba how ngoku?" Me: "when you're married don't you kind of just like your person and no one else?" Zingi: "things change in the long run Spho. I still love Dumi, but Sandile at this moment.....damn." this scared me. If I told her what Dumi was doing, she would have an excuse to keep having sexual relations with Sands. If I didn't, I'd probably go insane because I care about her marriage and family. I just didn't know what to do. I was too involved. Zingi: "anyway....how are you doing?" I snapped back to reality. Me: "I'm good. I'm great." Zingi: "and...what else? Hey, are you permanently staying with uLakhe or you going to move back to your place again? Cuz if not, I'd like to use it." Me: "to fuck Sandile privately? The least you could do is find a hiding spot." Zingi: "yeah but ndizoxelela uDumi kuba you sold it. Therefore he will never go there." Me: "Zingi, I don't want you to fuck up your marriage. Please." Zingi: "relax Spho." I was so upset it wasn't even funny. I drank the wine in silence. She was on her phone smiling and texting. No doubt that was Sands. Me: "have you done this before?" Zingi: "done what?" Me: "cheated? On Dumi." Zingi: "no, why." Me: "I'm just asking." Zingi: "Sands uyabuza sizobuya nini. He's ditching his friends at Finnezz." well, I also wanted to spend time with my fiance anyway. Me: "whenever you're ready." Besendimkhumbula shame. Ebengaxoki ngoku ebesithi I'm his only friend. He's also my friend. I texted him. Me: "we're coming home." Him: "you can't baby, my other girlfriend is here." Me: "ndikufake impama ke mna." Him: "lol. Sow'dikiwe yi-friend yakho?" Me: "no, yena udikwe ndim. Apparently Sands d game is on point." Him: "Iza kumntu wakho ke baby. I'll lick you to sleep." I asked for the bill and take aways on our food. Zingi: "and then?" Me: "we're going home love." Zingi: "heee. Wena noLakhe." she shook her head. Our bill came, she paid it and I took the plastic. Saphuma ukuya kwi BMW yakhe. She drove to my house in KK and parked on the driveway. Sandile was waiting by the garage. Me: "goodnight guys." Sandile: "no, we're having game night. I have the games set up." Me: "nope. I need to get to my bae." ndabashiya apho. My boyfriend was on the bed, his laptop next to him and a few papers in his hand. Suddenly, out of nowhere, someone started speaking and I began wondering why God was asking about a financial report email? Lakhe: "I received it yes. I'll go through it tomorrow at work. My wife just worked in. That's enough business for the day." "alright man. Enjoy." Lakhe: "sure thing Luke." then I heard two beeps. Me: "what the fuck was that." he smiled. Lakhe: "I have speakers in this room and a Bluetooth connection plus wifi calling." Me: "this is our bedroom Lakhe!" Lakhe: "I apologize." Me: "baby, this is for you study room, not for our bedroom. This is an anti work station. I'm here to get licked. Please!" he laughed. Lakhe: "wow...now I know how to get you home. Khawuzapha." he pulled me in his arms while sitting on the bed. I stood in front of him. Me: "I didn't rush over here to get a hug." Lakhe: "unezmanga yazi. Ithini tshomi yakho." Me: "heeee...mk. I'm unable to develop the can ngoku." Lakhe: "andiyiva ke Le English yase transkei mna." I chuckled. Me: "mxim." he pushed away all his work to the other side of the bed and unzipped me. Taking off my jumpsuit and underwear. Me: "izihlangu bab-" Lakhe: "keep them on." he pulled me on top of him turning around to lay me on my back. His tongue swiveled around my clit. Me: "baby.." he sucked on it slowly and wiggled his tongue. Me: "ooohh yeesss..." he held my legs apart. His tongue worked its way down and up again. I held onto the pillow for support. Me: "Lakhhe!!" he got up and kissed my lips. Lakhe: "kunini ndikubawela baby?" he groaned pushing himself in. Only then he took off his t shirt. Lakhe: "please hold me..." he kissed my neck and pulled his muscle out and back in. I listened to the smooth organ kneeding my insides so tenderly. Lakhe: "baby..." his voice sounding more urgent. I'd forgotten. I held him and he kissed my lips humping faster. His lips were stuck on mine I wrapped my legs around his waist. He pounded himself in once and stopped, trying to catch his breath. Lakhe: "I am so sorry. That was a really poor performance. Kunini ndilambile." Me: "undiqhathile baby." Lakhe: "I know mntuwam. I feel so bad. And Warm...and fuzzy." Me: "baby..." I complained. He looked at me with a smile then disappeared under the blankets.

About 20 minutes later Sandile came to knock on our door. Lakhe: "yinton." Sands: "uhm, we have a problem bhuti." Lakhe jumped up and got dressed. I too, got dressed casually. Lakhe: "hlala apha." he hissed. Me: "babe-" Lakhe: "Sphe. Uzohlala apho. Siyevana?" he said as low as possible then he opened his door and I saw a gun pointing at him. "noooow....do you have the time for me???"

Lakhe: "what are you doing Loco? This is not smart of you." Loco: "Me knows buuuuut I'm doing anyway." Lakhe: "I told you I know nothing!" Loco: "I think you lie. You lie to me." Lakhe: "what reason would I have to lie?" all this time they were standing in that one position. Loco didn't see me. He didn't know there was someone else in the room with Lakhe. I took the small cylinder vase and smashed it broken on the visible hand. Loco: "ouuucchh!" he dropped the gun. I heard gun shots and Lakhe grabbed the one on the floor shooting down the passage. Funny enough these weren't the normal loud gunshots. They just sounded so soft and quiet. Lakhe: "lock this door." he closed it behind him and I locked. My heart was beating so fast. It was the longest hours of my life having to wait there in the dark. Ndizibuza ndiziphendula ukuba lo Loco ufuna ntoni kuLakhe. "Spho." he knocked sekukdala. I jumped up and opened the door. He took off his bloodied t shirt. I didn't want to ask so many questions instead I kept quiet and waited for him to say something. I peeped out the door and everything looked normal. Zingi came to our room and knocked on the open door. Zingi: "is everything ok? What happened? I took a nap and all of a sudden xandivuka you're both upset." she looked at the broken pieces on the floor. Me: "we're not upset hun." Zingi: "okay. Uphi uSandile?" Lakhe got into the bathroom and took a shower. Me: "I'm sure he'll be back soon. Umhlambi he went out to check his friends." Zingi: "uright uLakhe?" Me: "he's fine. Yeah." Zingi: "okay." she sat down on the chair. Zingi: "I don't know what got over me. Ndiveske ndozela ndalala in minutes." Me: "maybe the baby is firing you out." Zingi: "maybe so." I started picking up the pieces quietly. Lakhe came out the bathroom and walked to his closet. I cringed in embarrassment. Zingi: "uhm...I'll be in the other...uhm..yoh." she walked out and closed the door. Me: "what the hell? Masilakhe!" Lakhe: "yinton?" Me: "why did you do that?" Lakhe: "this is My bedroom. Andizozimela mna for abantu abangayaziyo indawo yabo." he got dressed. Me: "we're going to have to talk about this sooner or later." Lakhe: "about what now?" Me: "what happened hours ago! And where the hell is Sandile!" Lakhe: "Spho-" Me: "No. This time, it is My business. You almost got fucking killed! I have the right to know what the hell is happening! If I'm to marry you, I must know what the hell this is." he looked at me then moved closer to me. He stood right in front of me and kissed my lips. I pushed him away. Me: "don't fucking piss me off." Lakhe: "ufuna ukwazi ntoni ke Sphosenkosi." Me: "what is Loco to you and why does he want to kill you!" Lakhe: "its not a problem anymore. Its taken care of thou-" Me: "Don't Lie." Lakhe: "akaphinde asihluphe uLoco." Me:

"Masilakhe Sobukwe." Lakhe: "nkosikazi-" Me: "tell me!!" Lakhe: "I can't baby. I'm sorry." Me: "so is that what's going to happen now? We're keeping secrets from each other?" Lakhe: "no..." Me: "fine then Lakhe. You'll be on the couch until you're ready to open your mouth." I threw him a pillow and a blanket. Lakhe: "I have a 15 bedroom hous-" Me: "Get the fuck out of this one and Sleep on the COUCH!" I screamed. Lakhe: "baby." Me: "Mfana!!" I warned. He took the pillow and blanket walking out of the bedroom. Me: "ndifike ungekho net apho!" I paced around the room ngomsindo. Me: "Masilakhe!" he peeped. Lakhe: "baby?" Me: "go to the other room. We have a guest and awuzokwenz ubuxelegu k'la lounge." Lakhe: "kodwa baby-" I stared at him. He quickly walked away. Where the hell was Sandile? Watsho engena. Sands: "mntase." Me: "Sandile. Kwenzeka ntoni?" Sands: "yoh...mntasekhaya kumoshakele man..." Me: "what are you talking about?" Sands: "uphi ubhuti?" Me: "akekho apha. Uye kwenyi room." Sands: "cela ungamqumbeli torho. All of this is my mess and he's been trying to fix it for me." Me: "then kutheni engathethi nam? I almost lost him and I don't even know why! Is that fair? Ukuba ibindim lo he would've demanded to know." Sands: "I know sis. Its difficult though. For us to just talk about izinto zethu. Nam andinokwazi uthetha izinto zakhe kuwe, funeke kutsho yena. Vice versa. Its not that we're trying to hurt you." Me: "its fine Sandile. Its whatever. Zingi was looking for you." I held the door for him. He walked out the door and I closed it. What in the world was happening here? I took the pill for sleeping and got into bed. I couldn't believe I almost lost him like that. How did I get the strength to take that vase and attack a man I didn't know? I could've failed and gotten us both killed. I just needed to focus on other things for a minute. My dad was on his way, that was something right? Yeah.

I woke up in the morning ndiziva ndisindwa. I opened my eyes and saw an arm around me. Then I heard snoring. I couldn't even get irritated. I just couldn't. Instead ndiye ndatyhafa. I looked at his face. He looked so peaceful and sweet. Me: "Masilakhe." he shifted and moved closer with his loud breathing. No better than the snoring. Me: "Masilakhe vuka man." Lakhe: "hm.mh." Me: "how did you get in here?" Lakhe: "baby kusebsuku." he mumbled. Me: "no its morning. You're going to be late for work. Get up." Lakhe: "sorry alok." he yawned. Me: "mxim." I tried getting out of bed and he pulled me back in, locking me in his grip. Lakhe: "cela undixolele. I got cold without you kengoku ndabuya ndazolala. I did ask wena wandifaka ebeleni. I thought that was a yes." Me: "Masilakhe." Lakhe: "yes baby." Me: "the place I was living in before." Lakhe: "yes. Isekhona babes." Me: "I need you to sell it. Today." Lakhe: "for a second I thought you'd say ufuna uyohlala pha." Me: "and move out of my house? Uphambene." he smiled. Lakhe: "and yeyakho baby lendlu. Why do you want me to give the place away? You were renting pha. So I paid for the next 3 months kakade." Me: "Zingi wants to use the place for yena noSandile. I'm not comfortable with the cheating." Lakhe: "I see. Kutheni ungaske utsho ke." Me: "andifun uba ngathi ndinomona. I tried last night umxelela ayeke but she doesn't want to hear. I don't know what else to do." Lakhe: "you're going to tell her that you're not comfortable in letting her cheat on her husband especially in your space. Therefore, you won't be involved in any scandals or lies in the future. Ukuba uthula ngoku uyow'xoxa ubom bakho bonke. Ibengathi nguwe kengoku ixoki. Set it straight kwangoku." Me: "fine." he kissed my neck tenderly. It felt so nice but I was still mad. Ndiyilonto izilwayo ndimyeke ndimxhaye. Luckily for him, he just stayed where he was, doing what he's doing without extending it. After a while he stopped and I felt him breathing lightly. He had fallen asleep again. Me: "Lakhe! Work." Lakhe: "I am so tired baby. Ha.a. Yuh." Me: "hayi Masilakhe awuzokwazi tshi." Lakhe: "No." I let it go right then. Lakhe: "we're sleeping in today. Sizovuka emini, sivase sitye and come back to bed." Me: "no, I'll have to prepare for utatam." Lakhe: "he's living with us right?" Me: "uhm...baby....I am not going to be able to do that. I can't sleep with you ebhedin yakho, ekhona yena. Its disrespectful." Lakhe: "I understand completely. Sizothini ke." Me: "I don't know." Lakhe: "use your flat for a few days. He's not staying that long mos." Me: "I don't know babe..." Lakhe: "then he can stay in the flat. Or I'll book him a hotel." Me: "I'll ask him when he's here." Lakhe: "okay nkosikazi. We must go choose your ring futhi." Me: "something small and simple. Plus I can't wear it before uthethile nabazali bam." Lakhe: "I know. We'll have to go to kwabam ke nam in East London. I'm sure my dad will give me his liver if he found out ndizotshata." I smiled. Lakhe: "he never knew what to do to me to get me to talk to a girl. Wazama wancama." Me: "you never had girlfriends?"

Lakhe: "I did. There was Ncumisa, Lorraine but we weren't serious, after her, in varsity there was Kristen, Hlumelo, Dez, then I started working and building my career kwecwaka for a very long time. Then came Bianca who stayed only a few months. Been single since." Me: "I was waiting for at least a two page list." Lakhe: "I would've lost focus if bendihoye amacherrie. I needed to be successful more." Me: "when last did you talk to him?." Lakhe: "couple of days ago. Those 10 second calls." Me: "10 seconds?" Lakhe: "yeah. He's like, Hee mfondin! Usaphila? Oh. Hayi ndiyacheckisha mfo. Sho. And he hangs up." I was laughing at the voice imitation so bad. Me: "that's it?" Lakhe: "he talks noSandile longer ke. Ude azivalele eroomin ke yena. Andizazi zindaba ezivelaphi ezi almost everyday." Me: "maybe, you should reach out often. Xa ekwazi ukucheka nawe you got to call him and make sure he's okay. Talk to him about stuff he's doing." Lakhe: "that's why Sandile is there-" Me: "and you.

He needs both his boys." Lakhe: "okay. Ndiyakuva. Can I sleep now?" Me: "fine. Sleep." I got up and went to brush my teeth, washing my face ndaya e-kitchen. Me: "hi Sands." Sands: "hello." Zingi came out the room and again, I felt a bit uncomfortable. Zingi: "babe, today Ikhona into obusy yiyo?" Me: "not really why?" Zingi: "great. I have a crisis at the salon, also I have to take Zimi for her check up. Lulonke has to be at school. I need your help." Me: "how?" Zingi: "my suppliers only know me, so can you take the kids." Sandile: "I can take them." Me: "that's alright. I got it." Sandile: "but you can't drive." Me: "I don't have to." Zingi: "okay. Here's my mom's address. I'll call her ngoku. And here's the school address." Me: "okay. The doctor?" Zingi: "of course, nantsi neyakhe. I have to go." Sandile: "can I drop you off?" Zingi: "I called a cab already babe. Sizodibana efownini. Right?" he nodded. Zingi: "goodbye Spho." she left the house. Me: "will you manage breakfast?" Sandile: "sure." I went to take a shower. Lakhe: "Uyaphi?" Me: "I'm taking the kids to school." Lakhe: "which kids?" Me: "Zimi noLulonke. Phof Zimi needs the doctor." after my shower I looked for clothing. Lakhe: "so...we're babysitting?" Me: "yes. Phakama. You have to drive me to places." Lakhe: "uurrgg..."

I went in Zingi's mom's house to fetch the kids. She knew who I was, I didn't. Me: "molo ma." Her: "hi bhabha. Uright?" Me: "ndiphilile mama Unjan wena." Her: "ndiright sana. Zingi told me what happened, I hope uba right sisi." Me: "I'm fine mama. ndiya ngoba right wethu." Her: "heee sana. Khawutsho. Ithini into yalentombi?" Me: "uZingi? Everything is fine." Her: "no its not. Kutheni engasekho endlini? The last time ebezise abantwana baye bazobonwa ngutatabo ebuza uphi yena. He thought she was here." Me: "oh, ebehleli nam ngalomini. Like izolo." Her: "ohhh....hayi kulungile ke sisi." the kids were ready and I felt like I was seeing them for the first time. Lulonke was a big boy, probably around 6 years of age and Zimi was the little 2 year old buttercup. She looked so beautiful. Me: "okay, let's get going angels." Zimi: "thatha." I picked her up with her bag in her carseat and we went to the car. Me: "babe. This is Lulo." Lakhe stared at him on the rear view mirror. Lulo: "hello." Lakhe: "hi." Me: "and this...is Zimi." I installed her seat in. Zimi: "booooo booooo booooo!" she giggled. Lakhe: "uhm...ok." I put on their seatbelts and got into my seat. Lakhe: "great. School first?" Me: "hm." he drove the car to Lulonke's school. Me: "goodbye sweetie." Lulo: "you must come in with me sisi. The teacher must see the parent every morning." Me: "Oh. Lakhe, please watch Zimi." I took Lulo into school and signed in with his teacher ndamshiya khona. Lakhe drove to the doctor. Lakhe: "so...Zimi-" Me: "no." Lakhe: "akalambanga umntana?" Me: "she's barely able to say hello." Zimi: "bhubhu." Lakhe: "she already learned my name. Yes baby?" Zimi: "Imi nambile." Lakhe: "so she is hungry. I'm bhubhu by the way." Me: "uzotya xa egqibile. Her appointment is almost now." Lakhe: "babies have appointments now." Me: "mxim." Zimi started sobbing in the back. Me: "what's wrong angel?" I gave her, her doll. She pushed it away and continued crying. Me: "I'm so bad at this." Lakhe: "just take her." Me: "that is illegal. Umntana uhlala kwi baby seat at all times." Lakhe: "just take her." Me: "its illegal." he stopped in the parking lot and took off his seatbelt. He took the baby from her seat and hugged her. Lakhe: "yintoni ingxaki sisi?" Zimi: "nambile." Lakhe: "sizotya ntoni?" Zimi: "uMeki!" he laughed. Lakhe: "okay. Even though I don't know what that is." they got out the car sayongena ku doctor. After the check up we left the doctor to find something to eat. Lakhe: "so what does she eat?" Me: "I don't know what babies eat. I never had one. Baby food perhaps?" Lakhe: "khabuze kumamakhe what uMeki is." I called Zingi. Me: "babe, utya ntoni uZimi. She's asking for uMeki." Zingi: "Meki is McDonald's and she can't eat that now. She already had her porridge, get her fruit and one small yogurt." Me: "that's it?" Zingi: "yes. Gotta go now." she hung up. Me: "fruit and yogurt apparently. Meki is McDonald's and not allowed at this time." Zimi was looking up at him with her hand on his beard. He stared back at her. Lakhe: "it looks nice ne? It does, doesn't it." Zimi: "bhubhu." Lakhe: "ndim lo." Me: "Lakhe." Lakhe: "yes babe?" Me: "did you hear a word I said?" Lakhe: "weren't you on the phone? Sorry baby." Me: "she must get back in her seat, umamakhe said fruit and yogurt." Lakhe: "she can sit right here. Let's drive my little soldier." Me: "Lakhe! That's dangerous-" Lakhe: "its an automatic, I'm controlling the steering and pedals. Relax." the car started moving. Zimi hit the hooter loudly. Lakhe: "tell them to get out the way baby." Zimi: "boooop boooop!!" she giggled. She looked so happy and bubbly. Yet I wanted her to sit in her seat still. We drove to Walmer Park and bought her yogurt kwa Woolies and some fruit. I was pushing the trolley. Lakhe was holding her. They kept popping random things in the trolley. I wasn't even paying attention because bendizixelele andingeni ndawo. He paid and we went to the mall. Zimi was on his shoulders shouting and laughing. He held my hand. Lakhe: "where to now?" Me: "I don't know daddy. You choose." Lakhe: "I smell jealousy." Me: "I'm just happy she's having fun. She's a cute child." he kissed my forehead. Lakhe: "you're so overprotective ngaye." Me: "if she were mine I would be too. She needs to be kept safe. One can never replace this." Zimi: "Tata!!" she screamed. Zimi: "Tataaaa!!! Nako Tataaaa!" I looked at where she was looking and Dumi was walking out of Zara with a young girl in his arm and shopping bags zakwa Mac and Zara. Andakhubeka bawo. He literally froze. Lakhe turned and walked another direction. Poor Zimi just stared behind her. Me: "come here baby." I took her off and cuddled her in my arms. Me: "maybe we should go home?" Zimi: "uMeki bhubhu." she whispered. Me: "and get her some Meki please." he held my waist walking to our car. When we got in she sat on my lap to eat her yogurt and fruit. We left shortly after she finished sayothenga McDonald's. Which got her off the dull mood. In no time. She held her happy meal safely on her lap with a smile on her face. We arrived home sayongena endlini. Sandile wasn't here. I always knew because he's allergic to his room during the day. Uhlala Kla couch and watch TV all day. Zimi sat on the couch and started eating her meal. Lakhe: "uthini ke." Me: "ngantoni." Lakhe: "am I still lying. Umbonile ngawakho amehlo shopping for make up." Me: "she looks so damn young akekho se-high school lamntana! What the hell is he thinking! Does he even think! Did you see him ignore his child! Why would he do that!" Lakhe: "babe. Don't stress. She's probably forgotten about it already." Me: "what he did. That was shitty. I can't believe this." he sat down next to Zimi and watched Disney Junior. He was spread out on the couch, Zimi dropped her food and climbed on top of his chest clapping her hands. Me: "she really likes you." Lakhe: "jealousy." someone rang our gate I answered. Me: "hello?" "Hi its Ben. We just came to say hi." Me: "alright. Come on in." I buzzed them in and suddenly started thinking. How does Loco go in and out as he pleases. Lakhe: "who's that?" Me: "your new friend." Lakhe: "hmm....awusamthandi." Ben: "hi!" Me: "molweni Ben." he came in with his wife and I invited them to the lounge. Lorraine: "you have a baby?" Lakhe: "Yes." he said boldly. Me: "can I get you some juice?" Ben: "do you have tomato juice?" Me: "uhm....no. Its just Mango and Orange only." Sandile walked in. Ben: "water will be fine thanks." I went to fetch water andinalo ixesha lalo umuncu Uhleli ecamkwakhe. Sandile: "ngoban aba?" he followed me to the kitchen engxola ke Phof." Me: "our neighbors!" Sandile: "what they want?" Me: "to say hi. Lakhe needs some friends." Sandile: "who's baby is that even?" Me: "Zingi's." Sandile: "oh." Me: "what?" Sandile: "nothing." Me: "tell me." Sandile: "I know its stupid....but I feel used." Me: "used how?" Sandile: "Zingi ufika kum, feeling really upset, I go all out to try and make her feel special. We make love and the next morning akafuni nondibona. She dismisses me like I'm some prostitute." Me: "oh....wow. Did you discuss this with her?" Sandile: "without looking desperate? How!" Me: "aren't you desperate?" Sandile: "I'm not. Kaloku xa engandifuni as her boyfriend and just wants a shag, makatsho sizovana. Now I have to do all these extra duties and its becoming really tiring." Me: "tiring how? You wanna call it quits?" Sandile: "Andithandi uhlala apho ndingafunwa khona." Lakhe: "ahem! Sorry to break up your little meeting but you have guests." Sandile: "hahaa! Ingathi ungutata nyani. Look at you holding hands with your baby girl." Lakhe: "shut up." he walked away. Me: "talk to her and lay out the rules of this Relationship." I took the water and went to the lounge. Ben: "beyokhiwa eTsitsikama na." I smiled. Me: "drink your water Ben." he smiled. Lakhe: "hee." Lorraine: "Ben, we're going to be late for our event." Ben: "don't you guys wanna come with? Its our annual chari-" Lakhe: "NO." Ben: "its for a charity, a good cause." Lakhe: "still no." Ben: "you don't look like a guy that-" Lakhe: "whatever you say Benedict, Benjamin, Benzilla, Benfrederick, whatever the hell your name is, I'm not coming. And I'm not letting you blackmail me into coming so that I can donate. I already have charities, so I'm not interested." I was so embarrassed. Ben: "oh. But its quite eventful. Not just about donations-" Lakhe: "this living room will become quite eventful if you don't stop talking." Sandile bendimva ngasemva ephela yintsini etsharhwa nangamanzi. Ben: "I just thought you'd enjoy." Lakhe looked at him one last time. Ben: "what charities do you support?" Lakhe was quiet then. Me: "disadvantaged schools, he helps build libraries and computer labs." Ben: "Nice. If you ever need help with engineering mentorship, never hesitate to call. Me myself I always fancied teaching but my dad said not under his watch." Me: "that would be so nice of you Ben. Lorraine, what do you do?" Lorraine: "I'm a doctor." Me: "oh...that's nice. Isn't it baby?" Lakhe: "princess needs a change. She has food all over us." Zimi took off her top wanqenqa ngecala. Me: "I'll bring her a top." I went to fetch her a top from her bag ndabuya senxityiswe t shirt enkulukazi. It looked like an oversized dress on her. Ben: "next time, I'd really like to invite you Spho. Its a wonderful event, you'll really enjoy it." Sandile: "aren't you gonna be late?" Ben: "of course, masambe babes. Enjoy your day guys." Me: "bye Ben." I walked them out. Umka kwabo I went back inside. Me: "you are so rude!" Lakhe: "me?" Me: "would it hurt you for once to just be polite to the next person. You embarrass me with this attitude! It is Not attractive. Ukwenze ntoni UBen!" Lakhe: "akazanga kum apha UBen. Uze kuwe. He must stop hiding behind my name athethe lento ayifunayo. I'm giving him a clear platform wazixela ke nyani nako nangoku eku inviter wedwa. He must leave me alone." Me: "he was trying to reach out to you and you shut him down before he said a word!"

Lakhe: "ah...sometimes uyandibora wethu." Me: "you don't even know him!" Lakhe: "well...that's the point I'm trying to make." Me: "how can you make friends, if you're bored with strangers!" Lakhe: "babe...extroverts give me such a headache. There's just too much dialogue and so much information. I get bored." Me: "you know what? MXIM! I try, for you. I try!" Lakhe: "udikiwe ndim ngoku?" his phone rang for a second. Lakhe: "babe..." Me: "what!!" Lakhe: "itsnews about your dad."

Me: "utheni utatam Masilakhe?" Lakhe: "babe, you need to relax yazi. Apparently he didn't board his flight last night." Me: "why?" Lakhe: "if only we could locate him." Me: "you can't find him?!!" Lakhe: "Spho, khaphole man. I'm trying here." Zimi: "bhuhhu." Lakhe: "yes my angel." Zimi: "Imi funi lala." Lakhe: "lala sthandwasam." she put her head on his chest. Me: "maybe I should call him." Lakhe: "yes you can try that so lon-" Zimi: "shhhh." Lakhe: "okay I'm quiet." I went to my bedroom and tried to Skype him. It didn't go through. Maybe he missed his flight? Or maybe he postponed? Right? He'll be here.. he's just having some travel trouble. I needed to calm down. I walked to the lounge. He gave me the phone. Lakhe: "answer." Me: "hello?" "hello mntanam." it was my mom. Wow. Me: "molo mama." Mama: "Unjani sisi?" Me: "I'm fine mama. Wena." Mama: "ndiright." there was that awkward silence that made me uncomfortable. I couldn't ask why or who. I had to wait for her to talk. It was culture. Mama: "ndicela uxolo mntanam. It wasn't meant to be like this." Me: "okay." Mama: "ndiyamthanda utatakho, kakhulu. Ndenze impazamo...I hope you are able to forgive me." Me: "andiyazi mama. As much as ndisiva kabhlungu, what about utata? Uzocela uxolo nakuye?" there was a long pause. Me: "you're not going to tell him?" Mama: "baby." Me: "mama, I didn't think we keep secrets in our family." Mama: "my angel this is very difficult for me." Me: "mama, I have to go. I have to look for utata. He's not answering." Mama: "why." Me: "why nton ma?" Mama: "why are you looking for him? usemsebenzini." Me: "he's my father and ndibawela ukuva ilizwi lakhe mama." Mama: "oh. Well, he had an emergency the last time he called. Bekuyizolo. The hospital he specializes in collapsed. I think upha." Me: "upha? In the collapse?" Mama: "he wasn't there when it happened. He said so." I finally relaxed. I was so relieved. Me: "oh. Okay. I'll just leave him a message then." mama: "okay angel. Enjoy the day." Me: "you too mama." I hung up. Lakhe: "I think someone just fell asleep." Zimi was fast asleep on his chest. Me: "funny how you don't vibe with adults but you're so kid friendly." Lakhe: "children are innocent and raw. I like that. No ulterior motives, no back stabbing. They're straight up." Me: "should I take her to bed?" Lakhe: "don't worry. She can stay here." he really wanted a baby. I felt so bad for losing the one we could have been expecting. He is now attaching to Zimi. That did kinda hurt. Could it be possible that I now won't be able to have kids? I've already lost two babies. How was it possible now for the third? Lakhe: "baby?" I looked at him thinking uthetha nomntana. Lakhe: "are you okay?" Me: "me? Yes I'm fine." Lakhe: "why kengoku Uhleli apho ingathi use clinic?" Me: "ndiyacinga wethu lento thethwa ngumama. Ndiyabuya vha." I went to the bedroom ndathatha phone yam. I googled a number for a good gynecologist in PE. Once I got it, I dialed the number. "Dr Ferreira?" : "hi. This is Sarah speaking, her assistant. How can I help you?" Me: "I'd like to book an appointment." Sarah: "alright. I'm speaking to?" Me: "Siphosenkosi Ngudla." Sarah: "alright, I have an opening for Friday afternoon at 3pm. How is that for you?" Me: "its perfect." Sarah: "great. I'll see you then." I hung up. I went to the lounge. Lakhe: "come here baby." I sat by his head, he put it on top of my lap and exhaled slowly. Lakhe: "this is perfect." Me: "can I ask?" Lakhe: "yeah sure baby." Me: "uyamfuna umntana?" Lakhe: "yes but not now..." Me: "not now?" Lakhe: "I don't want a baby yet. I want us to be in a better place." Me: "I'm not sure what you're saying." Lakhe: "I want us to have a baby. But we need to focus on our wedding first. Sitshate, kube healthy endlini." kanene kusekho leyo. I haven't told anyone yet because I feel my parents need to know first. Lakhe: "so, uthini umamakho?" Me: "tata is still in Cuba. The hospital he works in collapsed. He wasn't there when it happened but ke uyancedisa ngoku. I don't know why he didn't call me." Lakhe: "he must've forgotten babe. Hey, kutheni singayi ekhaya eMonti? We can drive down tonight." Me: "whaat." I laughed. He looked at me with that serious look. Me: "u-sure love?" Lakhe: "yes, why not. When you father comes sizobuya nathi for him." Me: "what about work?" Lakhe: "so we're going to East London. Andiyazi undibuza ngomsebenzi ingathi ndiqeshiwe pha." Me: "okay. Let me go pack then." Lakhe: "for me too vha." I went to the bedroom ndakhupha bag ezimbini. The one was Gucci and the bigger one was Louis Vuitton. I packed in the Louis V for me because I needed more clothes and shoes wethu. I took our toiletries and everything else ndagqiba. I changed into more comfortable clothing which was a chocolate brown loose maxi dress and sandals. I went to the lounge. Me: "how do I look?" Lakhe: "awusemhle. Uyaphi?" Me: "for when we leave kaloku. Should I put on a doek or.." Lakhe: "no, its not necessary. Come sit with me please." Me: "are you driving okanye we flying?" Lakhe: "I'll drive. Why u-nervous kangaka? Relax." Me: "I'm nervous because I've never met your parents." Lakhe: "yes you have. And they loved you kakhulu." Sandile: "that is a complete lie. He's trying to get you to loosen up." he walked in the lounge with a big sandwich. Sandile: "kuzokwenziwa umphako? Or are we eating in East London? I can't wait for that shame." he took a big bite. Lakhe: "Uyaphi ke wena." Sandile: "ndiye khaya tshi. Awuzondishiya ndodwa apha. Besides, I'm gonn stay there from now on." we both looked at him. Lakhe: "njani?" Sandile: "I'm moving to East London." Me: "wait, did you just make that decision now or kudala uyicinga." Sandile: "no I just made the decision about a second ago. I'm moving." Lakhe: "iyafana nawe lonto." Unjani lomfana? Me: "but...what about Zingi?" Lakhe: "I thought that would make you happy." Me: "why would it make me happy Masilakhe?" Sandile: "Zingi undenza into yakhe yodlala. Andinalo xesha lalonto ke mna. I have a business to run." Me: "will you at least tell her? Now I'll be the one having to lick the wounds and making her better." Sandile: "hayi ke." Lakhe: "go pack. We're leaving after taking Zimi home." Sandile:

"sekhe ndapakisha ndisiyaphi mna." Lakhe: "suit yourself then." I went to make sure there was nothing in the fridge that could spoil and cleaned some stuff out. Honestly, I was really nervous, annddd, How does Lakhe lie with such a straight face on. Lakhe: "heey. Look who's up?" he was carrying Zimi and she rubbed her eyes with her little hands. Zimi: "mama." she extended her hands and I took her. Me: "finally. Your time has expired." I kissed her forehead. Me: "awulambanga honey?" she nodded. Lakhe: "I'll make her some food." I got an SMS from Lulonke's school telling me its time to fetch him. Me: "baby uLulonke funeke ayolandwa." Lakhe: "hamba noSandile love. Nizobuya sendigqiba." Me: "udiniwe?" Lakhe: "no, I just feel that uZingi asked You to take care of her child, if she comes here afike ungekho wena eshiyekile umntana, it won't be nice. Some people don't just trust anyone, and nam if it was me, I wouldn't want umntanam ashiywe komnye umntu. Once Zingi says its okay, I can look after her kids, I'll gladly do so. Masingenzi izinto ngokuthanda kwethu. Take her juice box and banana with you.." Me: "you're so sweet." I kissed his cheek then took her things and asked Sandile andikhaphe uyolanda the boy. Sahamba sobay'3 with uZimi. Being a mom for the day was quite fun. These kids were well behaved and sweet. On our way back, Sandile bought them ice cream saye ndlini. When we arrived, nyani kwabe kufika noZingi and Dumu. Sandile: "hehake Sonini nanini. This? Today? Hayi Wow." Me: "please calm down." he completely ignored me and continued talking to himself. Sandile: "you really outdid yourself shame. Hayi mntaka Joseph ndincamile. Le double up yezi bindi ivelaphi? Sithengiswa phi ndiyosithenga nam? Heeeee. Goduka sathana, awuphakekwanga ndim kule game." Me: "Sands." Sandile: "I'm calm. I'm calm. Bendicel ungaqalwa qha ngumtyholi. I'm tryna do right by God." Me: "okay." we got out the car and I carried Zimi inside. Lulonke followed me with his bag. Me: "awulambanga boy?" Lulonke: "lambile-" Lakhe: "the food is almost ready. Are we staying for dinner guys?" Dumu: "yes-" Sandile: "no. I have plans." he said coldly. Me: "Sandile?" Sands: "what." Me: "can I talk to you?" Sands: "No." watsho ehlala kwi couch yakhe. The angry trait was the exact same neyaka bhuti wakhe but, what I knew is, once he figured out a plan, bekuzobamnandi eSouth Africa Kuye. That wasn't good. Lakhe: "honey? Come help me please." ndanikezela Zimi ku mamakhe and went to the kitchen. Me: "we have a situation out there, I think San-" Lakhe: "I don't even care. Its the least of my worries, listen, which plates should I use? Maroon rectangular? Or these crystal white Chinese?" Me: "Your brother is pissed off, that his girlfriend's husband is having dinner with us With their kids." Lakhe: "like I said, least of my problems. So which plate?" he wasn't taking this seriously enough. Lakhe: "bhabha, chill out. Sandile isn't dumb. He doesn't do dumb shit either. He knows how to control himself. He's not some zoo animal. Chill." Me: "maroon rectangular." Lakhe: "perfect choice. I love it." ...

After dinner, Sandile was already outside by the swimming pool etshaya. I didn't even know uyatshaya mna. Me: "Sands." Sandile: "now's not the time." he started taking off his clothes. Me: "what.....wenzantoni!!" Sandile: "smoking. Undressing. What it look like?" he was in his briefs already. Throwing the cigarette stub on the ground and stepped on it wakhulula izihlangu. Out of nowhere, he just dove into the swimming pool. I've never been so confused in my life. Was he in love with uZingi? Phof mna the reason why I'm outside was because I was embarrassed for the both of them. Zingi and Dumi. Today I caught Dumi with that girl and He Saw I saw him see him! Then kubekho aba babini. Zingi and Sands. And if Sands is acting weird, how am I ever to be comfortable. Ibiyilo tension. He suddenly appeared after a very long time under water. Sandile: "Why are you still here?" Me: "you know why." Sandile: "hm...well, this is my thinking space, you can find your own, somewhere else. Be gone." and he disappeared back into the water ndaske ndahleka u'Be Gone' lo kqala. Lakhe: "hey. What are you laughing at? Uphi uSandile? Why you here?" Me: "Sandile is under water, he just chased me away from his thinking space and I'm too embarrassed to be inside the house." Lakhe: "so the mean one must be me? Again? Hayi sisi, come fix your other marriage. Andingo Dr Phil mna, futhi mabafokofe apha ndifun hamba mna nomfazi wam." he pulled me back to the house. Me: "the breeze outside is so nice." Dumi: "you guys have such a beautiful house. God! Is that a go kart race track? Jesus!" Lakhe: "Yes! And a put put course, a lot of other sports also." Dumi: "hayi no, its flippen cool. Do you have a jaccuzzi?" Lakhe: "yep. Its in Sandile's room." watsho ejonge straight ku Zingi. Oh Bawo. Ndingesemince. Lakhe: "he chose the jaccuzzi, I chose the walk in closet." Dumi: "totally worth it." Lakhe: "yeah...but the bubbles though. Uright Zingi? You seem a bit stiff. Would you like a glass of wine-" Zingi: "I'm fine." Lakhe: "hm... I would invite you guys for a movie, but we're driving to East London tonight." Dumi: "oh. Nihambeni kakuhle." Lakhe: "thank you Dumicles. That is so nice of you." Zingi: "we should get going." Wangena uSandile. Dripping water. The briefs stuck on his body as though ugalelwe nge honey. Everything was glittering. Lakhe put his hands on his hips. Lakhe: "hayi ke Sandile. Really? My Italian tiles." Sandile walked straight to his room without a word. Zingi: "Dumi, please get the kids." her voice was shaky. Dumi: "yima man Zingi. Bra, Lakhe, give me a brief of what you do mfondini. This is a piece of heaven if not all of it.

How do you do it?" Lakhe: "persistence, hardwork. The textbooks are only for information. Trust me, they don't teach what I know eskolweni. You need a thick skin and passion for what you do. Don't go there for your salary. Think about the day abantwana bakho bengena sonka. Ungasekho ke wena. Don't pass up opportunities because you think you're safe. Go all out. Stretch yourself." Dumisani: "damn. I don't think I have the time for side things hey." oh??? OH??? Lakhe: "then you'll just be a regular lawyer for the rest of your life. I love my money almost as much as my woman. And I need to keep them both." Dumisani: "but for a lawyer though? What am I to do?" Lakhe: "why not open another firm? One of your more experienced would run it, uqeshe i- graduates. People that are hungry to grow and want to go far. Passionates only." Dumisani: "that is a great idea Masilakhe. I should be expanding my name." Zingisani: "Dumisani, I really need to get Zimi home, kuba late." Dumisani: "argg...okay. Let's go. Listen man, Lakhe....we should get together. Just to bounce things off. I enjoyed your company." Lakhe: "ey...hold it. I'm not gay." they laughed. rolls eyes uwoah. Lakhe: "I'll give you a ring when I'm back in PE." Dumisani: "woah...slow down brother. I'm really not gay." they laughed again. Lakhe: "ey man. Nihambe kakhle. Bye Zinglet. Let me fetch Lulo, I think he's still gaming." he went to fetch the boy wabuya naye. We said our goodbye bahamba. Me: "and then? Best friends?" Lakhe: "oh please." Me: "excuse me? You were all over each other, kuyintsini. Am I the only one that noticed Sandile's cold movements? Something is wrong with baby, khayom'hoya torhwana omnye umntana. He's sad." Lakhe: "baby.....ndiyakucela. Sandile is a different kind of person. Andikafuni ukungcwaba. Whenever he is in that state kubhabha izinja ziwe iintaka. Never talk to him. Just let him be. The minute he explodes kunomntu ombangela iscefe. He will blow their head off.....Literally. Myeke uSandile Siphosenkosi. Please." right then he appeared at the passage way, fully dressed again. Sandile: "Are we ready to go?"

Our first biggest mistake together was letting Sandile drive us to East London. By the time singena khona, which by the way was a whopping 1 hour and 50 minutes later, intsula yam biseyi biltong. Yeeeeeyi, uyay'qhuqha itha lobhuti akadlali. And jonga ndik'balisele. Sucimba uyi cautious driver. No, no. Siphidani? He leaned on his door with only one hand at the bottom of the steering wheel. He looked as though he was watching television. Sayongena bethunana gungqu emonti umntu oko wayehleli olahlobo. Ndayiqonda apho, likhona itontsi apha. Somewhere, somehow. There is some kind of drop. Meanwhile, Lakhe ebelele ke erhona as usual. I was the only one on the verge of death, staring at it. Once we arrived emonti, noko wabuya umva ku 240 wahamba ngo 120. Which was muuuch better. I think 120 is for freeway, yes. Xa zibaleka zonke imoto iyilo marathon. Buuuut ungekavi u240. Mntaka dabs, you know nothing. I woke Lakhe up. Lakhe: "sesifikile? What's your time?" Me: "its twenty to 8." yuuuh. Sandile: "1 hour 50." Lakhe: "argg. That's child's play. Uzukhe uhambe ngala i8. Andiyazi uyishiyele bani. Takes you an hour and a half without traffic." next time andizoyiphendula ndingekabizwa ngegama. I was tired of this secret language code or whatever of theirs. Me: "guys, this isn't healthy." Lakhe: "andicingi ndiqhube 4 hours kaloku mna. Andisoze." Sandile: "siye ICC mos?" Lakhe: "ndibawel Blue Lagoon kodwa yazi." Sandile: "me too. But ndizobase ICC. Nizondingxolela nina kulandlu. Uzoya ngomso endlini?" Lakhe: "yeah. If ndiye ngoku, asiphinde sihambe. Uyamazi umama Unjani." Sands: "okay. I'm gonn get myself into yokutya ke mna. Ya'll want anything." he drove into McDonald's. Lakhe: "I'd rather starve to death." Me: "it can't be that bad baby come on." Sandile: "give me 3 McFeast Deluxe medium meals please, eziphi drinks guys?" Me: "Sprite for me, no ice please." Lakhe: "same." Sandile: "2 Sprites and 1 Fanta Orange no ice please. And an Oreo McFlurry. Enkosi sisi." I assumed he was fine now. Ndimbona ngokutya oku. When he's mad, akafuni nokubona ukutya. He barely ate supper. We got our order wayomisa eICC. Sandile: "goodnight'ini. See ya'll tomorrow endlini." waphuma nokutya kwakhe. Me: "bye Sands." Lakhe got into driver seat and took us to Blue Lagoon. Me: "don't you book prior for places like these." Lakhe: "not me baby." he drove into the gate and parked. Lakhe: "I'll be back." wayongena reception. When he came back, he was holding keys. Lakhe: "masiyolala mntuwam." sayongena ke endlini yethu e-cute. After settling down, I put the burger and chips on a plate for the both of us. Ebe naar nje ngokujonga okakutya. I was really hungry though so I started eating. And good God, was it delicious. Yangena kamaaaandi nala drink. He sat down and ate too. Very slowly. Picking at that burger kodwa wade wayigqiba. Then sipped his cooldrink. We sat on different couches sabukela TV very quietly. It was very comfortable actually. Just being there around kodwa kuthulwe. I was finally falling asleep. Ndafunyanwa bubuthongo bendlela and let go. It felt like a short while when I heard the toilet flush. I checked the time. 00:12am. Lakhe: "baby." ebebhinqe i-towel. Me: "hey." I stood up and stretched. Ndakhulula ilokhwe yam. Me: "you okay?" Lakhe: "I'm not feeling too good." Me: "come. Let's go to bed baby. Sufeketha." we got into bed and he cuddled me under my arm. I know My Lakhe wouldn't just 'cuddle'. Une tendencies zothanda uphatha kaloku yena. Me: "baby? What's wrong?" Lakhe: "my tummy is biting me." Me: "ncaaaw bethuna ubaby wam. Awufuni amanzi? We don't even have meds here." Lakhe: "hm.hm. Sleep time." I kissed his head. Soon he started snoring nam ndozela ndalala. Short time later, I felt him tossing and turning. Kuyo Yonke lonto, one of his body parts has to touch me. If its not an arm, it has to be his leg or head. I looked at him. Ebengombathanga tu. I sat up ndamombathisa. For a little while wa-right but again started pushing the blankets away. I was soooo fucking sleepy! God, I will Never Ever make him eat take away food ever again! Ndicela nje ubuthongo? Lakhe: "babbbby." he breathed. Lakhe: "susu." Me: "sizosithini baby? Do you think reception has something?" Lakhe: "phone." I got up ndayokhangela phone and dialed for reception. Apparently, the only thing they had was Panado. I don't know how that would help at all. But I guess for the pain? Better than nothing. I wore my gown ndayolanda ndabuya. He took one pill. Lakhe: "hold me please." -_- he was laid in between my legs, I put my arms around him. His head comfortably on my breasts. Finally he fell asleep. I too, fell asleep eventually. It felt like a minute later when he jumped up and ran out to the bathroom. I heard him throwing up. Lakhe: "baby." he muttered. I got up ndaya ebathroom. Lakhe: "you can't come in." Me: "please open." Lakhe: "no baby." Me: "Masilakhe, khavule man. Sibadala utheni na." he opened. Lakhe: "I need a mop." Me: "come here." he stepped closer. Me: "I love you, uyeva?" ndamkhulula iskipa endingayaziyo besinxitywe nini. Lakhe: "its a mess. It was dark. Bendingaboni." Me: "its okay sthandwasam. There's stuff here. Get in the shower, I'll clean it up." he switched on the shower Wangena kuyo. I fetched the stuff to clean and wiped up the floor and seat. I put a towel on the floor for him to step in xa ephuma. I washed my hands ndayosula wabuya naye from the bathroom. Me: "how are you feeling." Lakhe: "no better. I need cold." Me: "no, uzobane ngqele." Lakhe: "kushushu." Me: "masiyohlala efront ke." I took the small blanket ndamombathisa ngasezantsi. He lay there quietly wade walala. I checked the time. It was 03:56am. If I could get 4 hours in. Ndinga right. As I was about to sleep. Lakhe: "babbbby?" he moaned. Me: "yes my love." Lakhe: "kuyabanda ngoku." Me: "masiye roomin ke love. Come." I helped him up sayongena eroomin. He finally fell asleep but now I couldn't. I just stared at him. He's never allowed to have take aways. Ever again. This is not on. To think, I thought ebezenza cool by not wanting take aways. He got really sick. Ak'suba akazithandi, but akakwazi uzitya. Within an hour he was up again. I had left the bathroom light on for him. In no time, it was morning. Ndijongene ne-sunrise. I immediately called Sandile. Me: "bhuti? Please help. Lakhe is sick. he's been throwing up all night. Ndicela uze nento or come take us to the doctor." Sands: "okay, kuvuliwe chemist. I'm coming." meanwhile Lakhe bendigqibom'vasa. I massaged him and dressed him. Sandile arrived ne plastic yee-pilisi namayeza. He also brought him breakfast. Me: "Sandile...I hope this isn't from a restaurant hey." Sandile: "no relax. This won't make him sick." Lakhe took a couple of bites in. And drank ipilisi neyeza. Lakhe: "Iza." Sands: "these will knock him out for at least 5 hours. Nawe ulale vha. I'll check on you guys emini." Me: "okay. Enkosi Sands." Sandile: "no problem mntase."

he left. When he was gone, I asked myself. How in the world does Sandile get around. Akanamoto Kuye kaloku because sihambe nayo. How did he get a chemist so quick and be here in record time also? Bawo. I got in next to my fiancÃ©. Lakhe: "I love you too vha." Me: "lala mntuwam."

I woke up around 9am. For the first time akhange akhe avuke. I checked his temperature apha esbunzi. He was still very hot. At least he was asleep. I went to take a shower ndaxukuxa and came back to dress. He was really knocked out shame. Engeva niks. I kissed his forehead. Cwaka. Was he even breathing? Well Phof I could feel his breathing so he was fine. I was bored now. So what's next. I took my phone and played with it. Downloading games and such ndahlala ecamkwakhe. He woke up around 11. Really almost

5 hours later. Lakhe: "baby?" he was looking the other side. Me: "ndim lo." he smiled eguquka. Me: "uziva njani?" Lakhe: "little better." Me: "awulambanga?" he shook his head. Me: "you have to have a bite or two ke. To keep energy up usele iyeza." Lakhe: "lizondilalisa." Me: "hayi awuzoyisela Le pilisi izok'lalisa." Lakhe: "okay. Sizoya ngomso ekhaya vha." Me: "alright babe. Akhongxaki." Lakhe: "you look so beautiful." Me: "enkosi bhuti. Come, get up. Exercise your legs." Lakhe: "khandiphe phone yam, I need to send an email ku Sandile." Me: "you could just send him a text." I gave him his phone. Lakhe: "no, an email will get to him quicker." Me: "a text would." Lakhe: "he checks emails more regularly than texts. So email." he sent the email and in few minutes yabuya response. I didn't know what they were chatting about so I butted out ndaqhubekeka ngeyam phone. Around 2 midday. Wafika Sandile Sobukwe ephethe plastic again. Sandile: "ninjani?" I was yawning kukozela. I hadn't slept properly all night, it was starting to catch up with me. Me: "I'm sleepy. Someone kept me up all night." Lakhe: "uxolo mntuwam." Me: "its okay my love. I'm just going to take a nap ne." Lakhe: "okay. I'm on the balcony if you need me." he got out of bed ndangena mna. When he walked out the door I heard him ask ku Sandile in a very low tone. Lakhe: "did you bring it?" Sandile: "relax...its here." Lakhe: "let me see." I listened carefully by the window. Lakhe: "its perfect. Khange bakunike problems?" Sandile: "Nope. I gave them the invoice you emailed me. So everything is set?" Lakhe: "yep." Sandile: "are you nervous." Lakhe: "Msunu lo wakho uyeva? Sekhe nda-nervous phi mna. Don't fucking piss me off." Sandile: "Shhh.you gonna wake Spho up. Uzothini Kuye if she comes here and you have that shit in your hand?" Lakhe: "khathule nawe. Umane undibuza icala lenja apha. Vala mngxunyo lo wakho. Goodness." Sandile: "fine. I'm gonn prepare the others. You need to do this ngoku bhuti." Lakhe: "okay. I got it." Sandile: "don't shake. Go inside and fix you up. Ungangxami." Lakhe: "okay." I went back to bed ndangena khona and closed my eyes. Lakhe moved around the room for a while. Lakhe: "Spho..." Me: "hmm..." Lakhe: "thought you were sleeping." he got into bed. Me: "trying to." Lakhe: "let me get in with you." Me: "umnkile uSandile?" Lakhe: "yeah." Me: "thought uhamba naye." Lakhe: "why would you think that babe? I'm still sick remember." what then were they talking about? Me: "hayi nam bendiqonda." Lakhe: "let's take a nap my love." I couldn't fight the sleeping temptation at all, I just fell nje. I woke up about 3 hours later all wrapped up in my fiancÃ©s arms. He was awake and staring at me. Lakhe: "you look intensely beautiful." Me: "enkosi baby. How long have you been staring at me." Lakhe: "since you fell asleep." Me: "psycho." Lakhe: "I'm feeling so much better, thanks to you." Me: "I'm glad my love." Lakhe: "you took care of me...at my weakest." Me: "you weren't that weak babe. Everybody gets sick." Lakhe: "that.....on its own. When you say that, its like kuwe its so natural. To me, its big. You don't even tell me too often uyandithanda. You said it last night. After the trouble I gave you, you told me uyandithanda.....no matter what. You're beautiful, inside and out mntuwam." Me: "awww. You gonna make me cry again." Lakhe: "I'm the one that should be crying." Me: "as long as you're feeling better. Come here." I kissed him. Me: "let's get up siyothenga some groceries kwa Pick n Pay or Spar ndizokuphekela supper." Lakhe: "we're having dinner ekhaya baby." Me: "oh." I wasn't too nervous about it anymore because I thought besisiya ngomso. Lakhe is sweet, Sandile is okay, the rest of the family can't be that bad right??? Rigghht?? I got up and went to freshen up ndanxiba decently. A black long dress. My hair was combed properly. Lakhe: "perfect. He wore his dark G Star Raw jeans. A black t shirt and all black Adidas Stan Smith's. He took his military green jacket. Me: "ready." Lakhe: "perfect." Me: "maybe I should wear the green dress. This it too much black. Ingathi sizilile." Lakhe: "whichever makes you comfortable my love." I changed into my other dress yona it wasn't too loose fitting not too tight either. Me: "Uhm-" Lakhe: "I like this one. Masambe." Me: "but -" Lakhe: "no buts. Its perfect. At least asizilanga." he took my purse saphuma ukuya emotweni. He drove to his parents place. It was a beautiful quiet suburb. The nervous rant began. Kukhala Gu gu gu gu! Esifubeni Sam. He finally stopped outside a gorgeous white mansion. It had a huge gate with the letter S on it in the form of a snake. I was a bit skeptical about that piece. Once the gate opened I saw Sandile standing outside the house with an older looking man behleka bencokola. On the right side of the house kudwele iimoto with different foreign names. There was the regular Mercedes Benz, which I know of course. 3 of those. I absolutely loved the black one it was open on top and had white leather seats. Another car had a crown badge and a signature like name then a bigger version of it. Good Jesus, how many cars did these people own? The grass was immaculate. The whole lawn was perfect. Me: "baby!!" Lakhe: "yes?" Me: "who's going to feed the girls?" he smiled. Lakhe: "I thought you forgot about them. Its already sorted babe. Let's go in." Me: "first, I like that car. That black open top. That is just beautiful. Benz is my favorite." hint hint Lakhe: "its a Mercedes Maybach love." okay? As if it made some difference kweyam i-life. We walked toward the two men. Sandile and the other guy. The conversation had died down already. Older guy: "My Lord!! What am I seeing? Ziphi iz'pecs zam Sands? Give them." he fitted on his shades ke phof. Older: "No Man. Jesus must be tricking me. Ha.a." heartbeat accelates. Lakhe: "Khawuyeke tata torho." Older: "Noooo. This cannot be real!! You brought a woman home? YOUUUU? No! NOKWAKHA! Vela mkam. Izobona!!!" Lakhe: "this is not necessary tata! You making her nervous." Tata: "this is real? Oh my God. Sandile, Iza namanzi." Lakhe: "mxim. Iza baby." hebana. Lakhe: "its okay. Come." we went inside the house. An elegantly dressed woman came toward us. "Vicky hun. Is dinner ready? My baby is home. Oh sweetheart." she hugged him tightly. Lakhe: "mama. This is Spho." she looked at me and smiled faintly. Ma: "Hi Spho. How are you angel?" Me: "I'm fine ma, how are you?" She: "oh please sweetie, call me Stella." Sandile and his dad came in. Lakhe: "this is my dad..." Me: "hello Ta." he looked at me and shook my hand. Tata: "hello mntanam. Welcome to our family." Stella: "don't be silly Rob, she's just visiting." Rob: "well, Nokwakha. She is no longer a visitor but part of our family." Me: "enkosi tata." Lakhe: "yes, and I'd like to make an announcement after dinner." Stella: "oh, please don't tell me she's already pregnant." something stung deep inside me. Something indescribable with words but only actions. Lakhe: "No, she's going to be my wife." Tata: "YAAASS!!!! Finallllyyy!!! Eyyy uMpinga madoda!" Stella: "oh Rob please stop.." she looked at Lakhe. Stella: "honey, is there something you want to talk to me about?" Lakhe: "no Stella." she stared at him bewildered. Stella: "since when do you call me by my name?" Lakhe: "since you asked my fiance to. I believe when we enter this agreement she will be equivalent to me, that would make her your daughter. If she isn't saying mama to you, why should I?" she slowly stood up and walked to the kitchen. Tata: "I'm glad you're home nyana. Phewu, ndikukhumbulile ke khona. How's the new house?" Lakhe: "it is the best. Beyond beauty. Enkosi tata. The agent really knew her work." Tata: "andthis lovely lady...? Umfumene phi?" Lakhe: "avenues tata." he blushed. Tata: "that's my boy!! Come sweetheart. Let's all have dinner and catch up." ...

After dinner, the boys were together in the lounge. I was in the kitchen ndisiya ke phof ukuyoncedisa uStella. But no, she wasn't doing anything as a matter of fact. She was on the phone making a hair and nails appointment while sitting on the high stool. Vicky was hand washing the dishes kodwa lkhona dish washing machine. Me: "ndik'ncedise phi sisi." Vicky: "hayi ndiright nontombi. Hlala." Me: "hayi wethu sisi, andinanto kwenza. Ndizohlala ndithini." I took the dry towel and wiped the dishes. Me: "uhlala apha nawe?" Vicky: "ewe ndihlala apha." her voice sounded as though there was no hope. Ukhumve umntu othetha ngomoya ophantsi? Me: "but its a beautiful house though." she smiled. Vicky: "awuyifanelanga lendawo yazi." before ndikhubeke I listened carefully and observed her smile. Vicky: "abantu balapha aren't what they seem. I just hope awuphulukani nembeko yakho. Uhlale u-sweet oluhlobo." what on earth did she mean? Me: "batheni sisi." she looked at her boss who seemed to be totally oblivious to the both of us. Vicky: "Too many secrets. Too much privacy. Ubhut' Lakhe is very lucky to have a woman like you." that last sentence was quite louder than the first two and that was because he just walked in. Me: "oh goodness!" Lakhe: "yinton ngoku?" Me: "I forgot the interviews." Lakhe: "postpone them." Me: "its last minute Lakhe. Suppose ziqala ngomso Ksasa." what was up with me? I already had no memory, now I keep forgetting things? Lakhe: "look, don't stress. I'll work out something my love. Stop frowning." he kissed my forehead. Lakhe: "umfumene umamakho? She called a while ago." Me: "my phone is in my bag." Lakhe: "okay, ugqiba kwakho uncokola umfownele please." Me: "any news from my dad?" Lakhe: "not yet unfortunately. He'll be here soon. Don't worry." Me: "ndizomfownela before I go to bed. Lakhe: "okay. We leave at 20:00pm." Me: "alright." he walked back out ndaqhubekela with the dishes. Vicky: "uyak'thanda yazi. Zange ndambona ubhuti mna enje. Not even once. Ingathi wonwabile kakhulu kulendawo akuyo." Me: "enkosi sisi. Ndiyamthanda nam. it was a rocky start but, I do love him." when we finished, I sat on one of the stools. Stella had left the kitchen. Vicky was sweeping and mopping the floor, we let it dry sihleli kwizitulo. Me: "so, ungowaphi sis Vicky?" Vicky: "Mdantsane." Me: "awunabantwana pha." Vicky: "ndinabo. USesona una 8, uAthabile una 13, lo umdala ke uKhanyisile una 18. Uzongena University kulonyaka uzayo." I could tell she was so proud. Vicky: "Athabile ungumntu we-sports. He loves boxing. Intombi yam encinci ke yona izithandela ukucula." Me: "that is so sweet. UKhanyi uzofunda phi kulonyaka uzayo?" Vicky: "ebesithi ufuna ukuya eNMMU. Andiqondi ke kodwa kuba ikude, kodwa ibeterana kunala Durban ebeyifuna. Ndiske andayazi kutheni engafun ufunda kwalapha eMonti." Me: "oh well, mama, abantwana bayayithanda i-freedom. It helps them discover themselves. If bendikhumbula mna, bendizokwazi ukuxelela how I got out of home and how it went. At least sikhona ebhayi mna noLakhe she won't lose direction." Vicky: "ewe wethu. UKhanyi ngumntana othanda icawa. And ndiyavuya kukho wena ke endlini eBhayi. Uzokwenza njani kengoku for lento yakhe."

Me: "the best thing now is to apply, for both university and res." Vicky: "oh. I hope ayiduri kakhulu. Ebesithi uTata uRob uzom'bhatalela. Kodwa andifuni ubalu xanduva." Me: "its not that bad mama." I didn't even know. What I did know is, if Mr Rob, offered to pay, kucacile that money wasn't an issue, kakade he's wealthy. Ncanca mfondini afunde umntana. Vicky: "okay." Me: "nantsi number yam. Xa Ikhona into afuna uncedo ngayo." Vicky: "enkosi sthandwa." the time was past 8 in the evening. Where was Lakhe. I went to look for him ndamfumana in the lounge ehleli nelinye i-lady with long hair and heels nomamakhe. Stella: "oh, Spho darling. I thought you left already. This is Dez." bendizohamba ndiyephi? Me: "hello." I smiled. Dez: "hi." she sipped her wine. Stella: "Dez was engaged to Lakhe a few years ago. Its like they never broke up judging from how close they still are." I looked at Lakhe. He was staring at the floor. Dez: "anyway, Masi, I heard you bought a new house in PE. Do you have pictures?" Lakhe: "uhm...no..." Me: "yes you do. Show her the pictures Lakhe. Of your beautiful new house. The one you share with your new fiance." Dez: "haha...fiance ? Oh please. Lakhe said he'd never get married. Who's the girl being strung along Mass? You will never change will you? You said you'd wait until I'm back, I'm here now." I could feel the fire burning my heart. I was being stabbed emotionally. All he did was sit there and play dumb. I just wanted to go home. I didn't even have a home. Dez: "Spho, can you please get me another glass of this amazing wine love?" she thought I was the maid? What ??? Wait, whaat? I stepped out the lounge ndayoma phandle ndizobethwa ngumoya. The pain slowly left me and all I could feel was rage. I was angry that he lied. I was angry that he couldn't stand up for himself or for me at that point. I was also mad that it could mean he wasn't over her. "Spho." Me: "Don't. DO NOT." Sands: "hayi fondin yinton ngoku? Its me." Me: "take me home Sandile." Sands: "No." Me: "Sandile, Take Me back to that hotel. NOW." he looked at me in the eye. Sandile: "I can't do that Spho." Me: "Sandile!!!!" I growled. Sands: "what's wrong? Why are you like this? I've never seen you like th-" Me: "Sandile. I'm going to get into that car. Count to five. If you're not in it. I'm driving." Tata: "kwenzeka ntoni ngoku?" my hands were shaking. Sands: "I don't know Ta." Tata: "my angel...what's wron-" the minute he touched me, I shook him off me and screamed. Sands: "Spho!!!" Me: "get off!!!!!" Sands: "I'm not hurting you, I swear! Listen-" I pushed him away, breathing heavily. My chest hurt as bad as that day....the day I ran away from home. I didn't have anyone to protect me. They all weren't going to protect me. Tata: "Sandile, myeke...I'm not sure what's wrong. But whatever it is, its not to be disturbed. Keep an eye on her okay?" Sandile: "I'm taking her to the hotel tata. You can direct the doctor to Blue Lagoon. Masambe Spho." we got in the car and he drove away. Sandile: "we gonna have to make a deal. I protect you Only and if only you tell me what that episode was for? You almost strangled me and my father! Why?" I felt sick to the pit of my stomach. I hated myself so much. Why didn't that man just kill me ndingabisa phila? Why doesn't God do it? He had the opportunity to kill me in that accident but noooo, he just had to make my life more unbearable. Not only have I lost my memory and have reminder of that monster back in my head now I have fits. What grown woman has to live like this? Everytime I get hurt, There's this instinct to run so far away. Just kill me. I really don't deserve this. Sandile: "Spho, I'm here to help you. I care about you. You're like my little sister now. Help me understand kwenzeka ntoni." he arrived at the hotel ndayongena endlini. He followed. Sandile: "Spho. What happened inside there? Ngumama? NguLakhe? Who upset you?" Me: "please leave. I want to be alone." Sandile: "I'm not leaving you here by yourself!! Spho, what happened just now isn't you! Tell me what's wrong!" Me: "stop shouting at me!!" I cried. Sandile: "okay, I'm sorry. I'm not shouting. I swear. I'm sorry." Me: "I can't.." Sandile: "what can't you do?" Me: "I can't tell you." Sandile: "yes you can. Ungandixelesa nantoni na mna." I sat down on the couch. He sat down on the other one. Sandile: "utatam, is worried about you. You're all he asked about after dinner." Me: "what about Dez." Sands: "who the hell is d.....oh." Me: "yeah. Oh. Go back to your family Sandile." I looked through my bag taking out my phone. Me: "I just want my mother and father by my side now." Sandile: "this isn't about Dez Spho. Something is wrong." she had tried to call me. I had two missed calls from her. Sandile: "Sphosenkosi. Thetha nam."

Me: "please go." I was shaking again. Sandile: "Spho." his phone rang, he looked and ignored it. Sandile: "Spho. Spho. Spho. Spho." Me: "stop." Sandile: "talk to me. I promise I won't bite. It will stay between us." what would make this shaking stop!! Sandile: "I promise on my life." Me: "I was....he..." how could I start this? Where. Me: "my mother was never home. Because utatam used to beat her. When she left, he would....hurt me." Sandile: "hurt you?" Me: "he raped me. Everytime she wasn't there. Even when I got pregnant wandisa e-clinic to get an abortion then she would leave. I ran away from home. He wanted to rape me again. I had to go. It was so cold....there was a big storm. It was raining heavily. I collapsed in the highway after a very long time of running. And woke up in hospital weeks later. I'd been in a coma. Ugqirha had contacted abantu be-foster care and that's how I got my mom and dad that I have now. Every time I get hurt, something boils deep down inside of me and I have to go. I can't let another man hurt me again. My dad isn't here to protect me anymore. I have to go." Sandile: "No. You don't have to go. I'll protect you. Come." he hugged me. Sandile: "I'm so sorry Spho. I truly am. I wish there was a way I could fix it. But I guess, I just have to have your back from now on. Its gonna be okay mntase." the door opened. Lakhe: "Sandile! What the hell are you doing?" Tata: "okay. Hold on party pants. Before you start yelling, what the hell was happening in that house? And what is that girl doing back in my house? Ubizwe nguban?" Sandile: "can both of you just keep quiet or leave? Ndiyanicela." Lakhe: "uphambene Sandile! Unxilile yazi. Get -" Tata: "Masilakhe!!! Stop it!" he pulled him away. Tata: "while you were playing host, pouring wine and eating caviar kumandi kula lounge. Sandile was trying to take care of your mess! I told you, something is wrong, siseza apha. He has established a bond. Shut the fuck up and wait your turn." after a dead silence, I wiped my face and sat up. Me: "can you please take me to my mom?" Sandile: "ye-" Lakhe: "No. Baby, ndicela sithethe. Please?" Me: "I just want to go home." Tata: "angel, please talk to your fiance. He will take you home. Masambe Sandile." I went to the bathroom. Sandile: "I'm not going anywhere tata. You can go but ndizolala apha. There's a second room." Tata: "nitheni na namhlanje? What do they feed you in PE? Ndithi kuwe masambe." Sandile: "A N D I Y I N D A W O. Is that clear enough?" Tata: "ndikufake isihlangu ke mna usandibuza ubutwetwe. You better get your things boy." Sandile: "hehake tata." Lakhe: "hamba man Sandile! Stay out of my business!" Sandile: "if you could handle it, I wouldn't have to stay!" Lakhe: "what are you trying to say-" Sandile: "you Always fuck things up! ALWAYS! You get the best of everything and I have to watch you Fuck up! Why don't you ever fucking learn?" Lakhe: "Get Out." Sandile: "you'd have to kill me first." Lakhe charged forward and grabbed his neck. Tata: "Masilakhe!! Masilakhe stop it!!" Sandile threw him off and pushed him threw the glass sliding door. It shattered to pieces. Lakhe stood up from the pieces. Tata: "Heyyy!! Stop this madness! Sandile!!!!" Sandile: "undiyeke Tata! Ndiyeke!" I got out the bathroom. Lakhe walked out the front door. Tata: "that went better than I expected. I thought I'd have to cover two hospital bills again. At least the glass is fixable. Looks cheap though." he looked at me. Tata: "Spho. My angel. Are you okay?" I didn't know if I was okay. What I did know is that I wasn't myself. Tata: "don't worry about this. The boys fight all the time, sometimes ndikhupha phone yam and play candy crush while they're at it. Its not your fault at all." Me: "I don't feel like myself. I want to go home." Tata: "okay sthandwa. I'll book you a flight for tomorrow morning. Everything is gonna be okay vha? Ndizobalungisa aba babini." I went inside my room and locked it ndayokhwela ebhedini.

In the morning, I was up and washed. Ndanxiba my tracksuit and sneakers. Packing the rest of my things. I got out the room Kukho Sandile by the kitchen. His father was talking to some guy observing the broken glass by the balcony. Sandile: "I got you some breakfast." Me: "enkosi." Sandile: "how are you feeling?" Me: "still the same. Like There's a hole inside of me." Sandile: "stop imagining a hole. Fill it up with flowers and diamonds." Me: "I don't think that's healthy." he chuckled. Sandile: "nobody is going to hurt you. You got yourself a big brother now, if ukhona okuhluphayo undixelele. I'll sort them out." Me: "not if you're going to break sliding doors. How did that happen." Sandile: "ahh...its nothing. He'll be back. We'll talk it out. its gonna be fine. Uzoqumbela utata next. I'm off the hook." Me: "why?" Tata: "okay. Tea party is over. Time to hit the airport. Let's get going ladies." Sandile: "heee.. Hayi andiphinde ndikuse eOh Mi wena." Tata: "uxolo kaloku nyana. Masambe ke." he took my bag, Sandile opened the door. Lakhe was standing on the outside about to come in. He stared at us. Then at the bag. Wangena endlini and switched on the shower. Tata: "good morning to you too." we walked to the car. Me: "tata, your tyre is flat." Tata: "oh? Heeee..." he walked around the car. Tata: "its two of them. How?" Sandile: "we'll use mine." sahamba ukuya kweyakhe. Sandile: "I am going to Kill Him!!!" the tyres weren't even flat. They were sliced open. ONKE. Sandile marched back to the house. Tata: "oh hayi bawo. Kwakhona torho? Yhini ukuphumla Somandla." he followed behind him. Lakhe couldn't have done this. He wasn't this petty. I went after them. Sandile: "Masilakhe!!" Lakhe: "kanti ufokofa nini!!" Sandile: "you slashed my tyres!! Bendizohamba njani!" Lakhe: "and why would I do that Sandile? Ndiyinton kwama tayere akho?" Sandile: "Masilakhe I'm warning you ne-" Tata: "khanimeni. Woah. Every time you two are here. Yi-fight. Kodwa xanikude niyavana. Khanindincediseni ngale Maths. Why is that?" Lakhe: "Tata, khawuthathe uSandile umke naye. Andinalo xesha lala kaka yakhe mna." Tata: "No...I'm sick of this. Masilakhe switch off that shower uhlale phantsi. Sandile sit the fuck down. Niyandiqhela mos." they all sat down. Tata: "Lakhe. 1 minute." Lakhe: "uSandile tata akanofika azenze mna ku Siphosenkosi xandingekho. It is my job to make her feel better, yena unoske andibize andixelele kwenzeka ntoni angasuke acinge yi-chance yakhe. He must stay away from her qha!" Tata: "you still have 47 seconds left." Lakhe: "that's all I need to say." Tata: "Sandile. Talk." Sandile: "firstly, andizenzi Masilakhe kuSpho. She will attest to that. The reason why kakade she left the house izolo was because you brought your ex in the house, entertained her and made Spho feel inadequate. Furthermore, even after umbona ephuma endlini, you did below nothing to find out if she's okay or explain to her kwenzeka ntoni, ndifika kuSpho sefuna ukugoduka. Had she stepped into one of those cars and drove Again in the state that she was in, it was going to be my fault kwakhona? I was trying to calm her down and stop her from leaving, in those efforts wafika utata and assessed the situation, which she reacted to in a very bad way. I offered to take her where she wanted to be so that angavi anymore pain than she already was feeling. I told utata, angafownela ugqirha to come here and make sure she's alright. Sisalinde leyo I tried finding out what was wrong." Tata: "and...what was wrong?" Sandile: "Spho will have to tell you. Its not my place." Lakhe: "today its not your place-" Tata: "khawume mfana. Awukayigqibi Le yakho yongahoyi izolo the woman you call your future wife. Itsho Kwenzeka ntoni?" Lakhe: "nothing happened!" Tata: "okay, suthetha nathi. Its fine. But you owe Spho an explanation And an apology. Problem is, her flight is in 2 hours time." Lakhe: "please don't leave." Tata: "ha.a. Uyava ukuba omnye umntana akaziva right. Usenesbindi sendlovu sothetha lento uyithethayo." Lakhe: "Tata, lento ifuna mna noSpho Kodwa." Tata: "fine, I'm giving you 10 minutes. Iza Sandile, help me contact Uber." they walked out.

Lakhe: "baby." Me: "Lakhe kwenzeka ntoni. Why did you not tell me you were engaged before?" Lakhe: "I'm sorry Spho." Me: "sorry isn't going to fix it. What happened? Uthe kum you stopped dating after Dez to focus on your career. Kanti benizotshata." Lakhe: "andiyazi ndingathin Spho. I really don't." Me: "Masilakhe, ndicela uthethe inyani. That's all." Lakhe: "Dez and I dating for quite a while, we were young and in love. We got engaged. Amaphupho ethu ebengafani. She wanted to travel, her family was rich, so they afforded it. My family on the other hand, was also rich but wanted me to make something of myself ndingami ngabo. She couldn't wait for that, so wathi uzokhabe ehamba and see the world." Me: "so, you never broke up." Lakhe: "we did break up. When she was in England. We broke up." Me: "you said to her you'd never get married until she came back. Was I the second choice kuba ucimba akaphinde abuye?" Lakhe: "Spho, I love you...I swear I do..." Me: "I'm just not her. Right?" Lakhe: "baby, ayikho lonto." Me: "ngeyiphi ke ekhoyo Lakhe? Are you getting on that flight with me or are you staying here?" Lakhe: "Spho, ndicela ungayiyenzi lento. I want us to properly talk about this. Please stay. One more day." Me: "Are We Going Home. Or Are You Staying Here Lakhe?" he just stared at me. I held back my tears as hard as I possibly could. My whole world was in his eyes. And it was falling apart. Lakhe: "sthandwasam." Me: "don't touch me." Lakhe: "Ndiyakuthanda Siphosenkosi." Me: "then why ungafuni sihambe? Why did you let her ridicule me? Why did you keep quiet?? She treated me like her maid and you kept quiet! Masilakhe. I'm not going to force you to do anything. You're a grown man, you know what you want." the door opened. Tata: "time to go angel." Me: "Goodbye Masilakhe." I walked out the door.

When I arrived in PE, my mother was waiting at the airport for me. I collected my bag and went to her. I couldn't keep the tears in any longer. My eyes were stinging from all that. Mama: "hey baby." she hugged me and I broke down in her arms. Mama: "oh sanalwam. Kwenzeke ntoni." I didn't even know what just happened. It just hurt everywhere. Mama: "shhhh...its okay my love. Let's go." she took me to the car and we went back to her hotel room. Mama: "awulambanga?" I shook my head. Mama: "talk to me sweetheart." Me: "funu tatam." I sobbed. Mama: "okay, he's on his way baby. Uyeza mntanam." she hugged me again, rocking me back and forth. Mama: "its going to be alright my baby." Me: "I just feel like dying ma." Mama: "no man in this world has the right to make you feel that way. You're not going to keep on with that mentality. He doesn't deserve your downfall. Come sthandwa. Nantsi adcodol. Take a bit of a nap." I took the pill and got into bed. Mama: "I'm here for you mntanam. I always will be." Me: "thanks ma." I sniffed.

School had become a lovely environment. I changed from my old one to a new one in town. I had many friends also. I was doing my grade 9 and very well too. In my classroom, there were 10 girls and 6 boys only. Which meant fight. The girls liked to confront each other about who's boyfriend was who. I sat back always and watched with Lisa. My new best friend. It was Friday, lunch break. I went to the tuck shop with my pocket money I'd collected during the week and bought myself a pie and cooldrink. Then a chocolate for mom and dad to share. If I had more money I'd buy two, but I didn't so... I went to our spot and sat down eating. Lisa came. Lisa: "not too messy. Brandon is looking." Brandon was the dork of the class. Let me rephrase, School. He wore big glasses and had freckles on his cheeks. His eyes were light crystal blue and he had blonde hair. Plus braces on his teeth. Which ruined the whole thing along with the glasses. So, actually I didn't really care, I ate my pie. Lisa: "you are so hopeless. Listen, ndisaya tuck shop. I'll be back." she ran to the tuck shop. After break, we hopped all the way to class, singing. Teacher: "okay, listen up guys. We have an Arts and Culture play next week. And its for marks." Lisa: "what's the play about?" Teacher: "the birth of Jesus." she smiled. Lisa: "but its November." Teacher: "Yes it is." Lisa: "Jesus was born on Christmas." Teacher: "will you be at school on Christmas smarty pants?" the class laughed. I didn't. She was my friend plus it wasn't that funny. Teacher: "okay. So any volunteers for Joseph?" some boy in class yelled: "Brandon!!!" the whole class laughed again. I didn't see what was so funny again. Teacher: "alright, Brandon? You okay with that?" he nodded. Teacher: "great! Mary? Who's our Mary?" I lifted my hand. I loved Mary in the Bible. Teacher: "amazing!" I smiled shyly. Lisa: "what! You're married to Brandon? Eeww." she whispered. Me: "what's so eww about him?" Lisa: "could've at least chosen Jade." Me: "did he volunteer? No." the teacher took down everyone's names. We had a play to rehearse. For Grade 9 pupils it would've seemed a bit stupid. But, this is for marks and I promised utata I would pass. After school, I waited outside for daddy. Brandon was waiting for his dad too. Lisa had left with her older brother in Grade 12. I wish I had an older brother. Brandon: "you look pretty, Nkosi" Me: "thank you. But Nkosi is a boy name. I'm Siphosenkosi. Call me Spho." Brandon: "can I call you Mary?" I laughed. Me: "absolutely not." Brandon: "okay, Spho it is." Me: "can I touch your hair?" he smiled. Brandon: "yeah. I wash it everyday." I giggled and brushed through the soft curls of a white boy's hair. I took out my brush and pushed it back. He didn't seem to mind. We chatted about school, a lot about Social sciences class. Me: "hey, what do you want to be when you grow up?" Brandon: "I want to be a doctor. Like my dad. He's really smart." Me: "mine too! He's also a doctor." Brandon: "that's great. We should be doctors too. Just to make them proud." Me: "yeah, I want to be a baby doctor." Brandon: "that would suit you. I want to heal broken hearts." Me: "a heart doctor?" Brandon: "yeah. A heart doctor. There's your dad." I looked behind me and waved. Me: "come say hi." we went to the car. Khaya: "hello." Brandon: "Hello Spho's dad." Khaya: "are you waiting for your dad? I can call him for you and give you a lift." Brandon: "that would be nice." Khaya: "get in guys." we got in the car and my dad called Brandon's dad. He agreed to the lift and we took him home. Brandon: "bye Spho, and Spho's dad." Khaya: "bye boy." Me: "bye Brandon." he ran to his house and we went home.

I woke up from my nap some hours later and I could hear another voice besides moms. It was a male. I listened carefully. Ma: "I don't know what happened baby. I just feel we should be there for her and let her talk when she's ready." the other voice started talking: "I'm not letting anyone hurt my baby Zama. I swear if I ever see him, I will kill him with my bare hands." I sat up. Me: "daddy?" he stood up from the chair and walked to me. Khaya: "my princess." I jumped up and hugged him. Khaya: "Unjani sthandwasam?" Me: "I'm okay now tata. You're home." Khaya: "of course I am." we let go. Me: "I'm ready to go now." Mama: "wait baby, where are you going?" Me: "we're going home. Its me, you and dad." Khaya: "princess, home is quite a distance away. Kodwa mna nomamakho are talking about buying a house here in PE again. We want to be closer to you." Me: "I want to be as far away from this place as possible." Khaya: "but love you have your job." Me: "with him there. No thanks. I'll get another job." Khaya: "Spho...tell me what happened?" Me: "its such a long confusing story." Khaya: "I have no where I'd rather be. Start talking." I started from the beginning, waking up at the hospital. Till this morning. It was a long draining explanation and all he did was nod. Once I was done, he exhaled. Khaya: "so where does he live?" Me: "dad....just let it be. Its for the bes-" Khaya: "no it is not." Me: "he's....not the average Joe." Khaya: "of course not. I've been living through wars for the past 6 years. I will kill him the best way I know how if he ever comes near you again." I ignored that. Dad would never kill a fly even if it sat on his last meal. Me: "tata, do you remember Brandon?" Khaya: "Brandon who?" Me: "his dad was a doctor. Brandon Verandon-Scott." Khaya: "oh...yes. He's a doctor too at his father's hospital. Cape Town." Me: "oh." Khaya: "why?" Me: "I just regained a memory of him." Khaya: "awww, he was your best friend. But he went to Medical school. You attended Nmmu." Me: "he's a heart doctor isn't he?" Khaya: "yes, he is." Me: "he always said he wanted to fix broken hearts." I giggled. Khaya: "that's sweet of him. Always been a sweet little boy." Mama: "I absolutely adored that boy and his sweet little sister." Khaya: "yeah, bakhuliswe kakuhle abaya abantwana. They respect anything and anyone they come across." Mama: "of course." Khaya: "Anyway, how about an early dinner? I need to show you guys pictures and tell you all about Cuba." Me: "perfect. I need to change." Mama: "me too." Khaya: "okay. I'll be back in a few." he kissed my forehead. Khaya: "my beautiful baby princess." Me: "I'm glad you're here dad." Khaya: "me too mntanam. Me too." ...

2 days later I went house hunting with my father. We viewed two houses and went for lunch together. Meanwhile, my mother had volunteered to fetch the rest of my things at Lakhe's house. I remember I had the appointment with the gynecologist in the afternoon, half of me wanted to just cancel, but I was doing this for myself. Me: "tata, I've got a doctor's appointment this afternoon. Uzokwazi ukundikhapha?" Khaya: "sure princess. We'll go after we finish here." I nodded. Khaya: "what's the appointment for? Psychologist?" Me: "No. Just a check up." Khaya: "alright." Me: "uzohlala this time? You're not going back to Cuba?" Khaya: "well...." Me: "tata!" Khaya: "I'm kidding baby. Of course ndizohlala. I'm starting at Greenacres Hospital next week." I smiled. Me: "that's great." Khaya: "There's something I want to show you...but all in good time." Me: "its another present?" Khaya: "yes my sweet. You'll love this one." Me: "I loved all your presents tata. Especially the driving lessons." Khaya: "so when are you starting?" Me: "Monday." Khaya: "perfect, I've retrieved also, CV yakho kunye ne Degree yakho. I'm loading them onto your profile on LinkedIn. Also taking them to an agency. Soon you'll have a job you're qualified in." Me: "Oh Tata!" I hugged him. Khaya: "anything for you sthandwasam. As long as you're far away from that scum." he paid the bill. Saphuma and he drove me to my appointment. When we arrived, I was 15 minutes early. Sayohlala phantsi salinda. The doctor came to us. Doc: "Mr and Mrs Ngudla, you can come this way please." I laughed. Me: "this is my dad. I'm Miss. Not Mrs." she blushed apologetically. Doc: "I apologize." Khaya: "oh that's fine." he smiled. Khaya: "go ahead princess I'll wait here." he had his phone in his hand. My dad's looks were quite questionable actually. He was built, and physically fit. Now unale trend ndiyiqaphelayo intsha of wearing tighter clothing. Today was worse because ebenxibe denim shorts and a green Lacoste sneaker. He looked young, but the carefully trimmed beard gave it away, oo-whitey hair bebesekhona. As for hair on his head? It was always like dust. Very little and neatly combed. I went in and the doctor examined me, performing a few tests wade wagqiba. Me: "is there anything wrong?" Doc: "not that I can see at the moment but I'm taking these to the lab and I'll contact you for your results." Me: "oh. How long will it take?" Doc: "at least Tuesday or Wednesday. Since its the weekend from today." I nodded. After my appointment we left for the hotel, I had my own room though. It was leya yaka mama before. They moved into another one. Bigger I suppose. Anyway, me and dad went to their room samlinda pha while having a snack. She arrived ephethe a plastic ediniwe. I was confused. That could not have been my clothing. Mama: "molweni." both of us looked at her waiting for an explanation. Mama: "ndiyabulisa!!" Me: "molo mama." Khaya: "yinton Le ikulo plastic?" the veins on his forehead became visible kwangoko ndayiqonda ngumsindo. Mama: "its just some stuff I bought e-shop." Khaya: "kanti ubungayi kulandlu yalantwana?" Mama: "he refuses to let me take anything. Uthi ucela uthetha noSpho." Khaya: "Give me that address." Mama: "Khaya-" Khaya: "jongapha Zama. Ungak'linge undiphambanise mna. Give Me That Address." watsho evula suitcase yakhe. He took out his gun wayifaka on his back. I didn't even know he had a gun! Me: "tata, wait." Khaya: "No, Sphosenkosi. I am going alone. He's not going to come and make demands. Akayiyo i-president. Angandiqheli amasimba mna. Iphi lendawo maka Spho." she told him. Me: "mama!" my father left the house. Mama: "I'm sorry baby. Uyamazi utatakho akaphazanyiswa enomsindo." What I don't understand is utata akazange wambetha but she's still scared of him. Mama: "maybe we should just let him my angel. They can talk man to man." Me: "with a gun mama? I'm not trying to lose my dad." Mama: "what makes you think you'll lose utatakho? Have faith in him." bendingcangcazela ndingayazi yeyiphi eyiphi. Only 45 minutes later Wangena utata with big full bags of my clothes. Khaya: "ngand'xelel ub'thuvi mna." he mumbled. How.... Khaya: "its time for our dinner and movie girls. Masambeni." I was still shocked.

Saturday morning, I woke up refreshed. Ndayovasa and got dressed. Nude leggings and a nude crop vest. I wore an olive green sleeveless summer coat. I looked through the shoes and took out the nude 6 inch pump. Me: "Christian Louboutin." I read on it. Me: "cute." I wore that and combed my hair. Khaya: "princess." he knocked on my door. Me: "ndiyeza tata." I opened for him. Khaya: "hey sweetheart. You look pretty." I put on some perfume. Me: "I think I wanna do my hair." Khaya: "I like it though..." Me: "yeah, but I want a change." Khaya: "we have only 3 hours before your surprise arrives." I was so excited, I was hoping it was a car. A big one! Me: "then masambe kwangoku. Ndiyoflerha." we left for the salon with mom also. Wenza dry curl yena. I did two french braids kuba bendifuna next week ufakela something like a weave. We left the salon. Khaya: "its time." he drove the car. I was so excited. Indlela was quite clear, the boards showed Walmer. But then yangena imoto e-Airport. Okay, so where were we going? Did he book a surprise trip? He did, didn't he? :D Khaya: "okay. 10 minutes from now." we got out the car sahamba sayongena ngaphakathi. Me: "tata cela undixelele." Khaya: "no, I actually don't want to ruin it. Ima apha." I was standing at Arrivals. Zange ndaba lost oluhlobo. I looked around me and both of them were giggling by a coffee shop a few meters away. Bendibhanxwa na apha? I looked at them. Me: "Dad? Kwenzeka ntoni?" Khaya: "look behind you." he pointed behind me. I turned around and saw him walking into the airport. His gold hair was in a roughed up angle, erhuqa bag yakhe. His eyes searched around until they found mine. I smiled. He smiled. Me: "Brandon!" I ran to him. Brandon: "hey." he hugged me tightly. Brandon: "I've missed you so much." Me: "Oh Brandon." I looked at him. Good Jesus, was he gorgeous. Ithwani na xa inje? Brandon: "well? Are you going to stare at me all day?" I laughed. We went to my parents and found them having coffee. Khaya: "Brandon! Hello." Me: "tata. You can drop the act." he smiled. Khaya: "you look well." Brandon: "I am well, thank you Mr Ngud'la." Khaya: "Princess, why don't you help Brandon check in and take him to breakfast?" I knew what he was trying to do. Me: "okay. Come Brandon." we started at Avis to fetch him a car. He drove to the Radisson Blu Hotel where he booked himself in sayobeka bags zakhe. We drove to Blue Waters Cafe for breakfast, getting a table that overlooked the ocean. Me: "my dad convinced you to come right?" Brandon: "it didn't take much convincing. When he told me about the accident and your memory, I came as soon as I possibly could." Me: "yeah well. I'm getting better now." Brandon: "it doesn't look like it. What's wrong?" we ordered our breakfast. Me: "I only remember a small part of our friendship. The first day my dad took you home, when I was brushing your hair. Remember?" Brandon: "I don't think I'd ever forget.. Well, that's where our friendship began. Couldn't spend a day without each other. When I fell sick, you would ask your dad to take you to my house after school and spend time with me. Making me sandwiches and brushing my hair. My mother loved you so much. We also shared birthdays. We'd force our parents to throw us both a party, so basically we were both born twice a year." I giggled. Me: "tell me more." Brandon: "our matric dance, we went together. Had a difficult time trying to convince everyone we weren't dating." I smiled. He had this warm vibe about him that I liked. I think every time I'm familiar to my positive past I feel this way. Brandon: "then the last day we spent together....it was worst. Through out all our fights that week when I had to go, you slept over at my place. You helped me pack everything whilst not even talking to me. I remember, when you closed my last suitcase and ticked off the checklist. I asked you to come with me...." Me: "why didn't I come with you?" Brandon: "you were scared, I wish you'd come with me. I needed my best friend all these years. Mom passed away 2 years into my studies. I failed dismally. Every aspect in my life just went downhill. We'd lost contact and I didn't have anyone by my side." Me: "I'm so sorry." I held his hand. Brandon: "I'm just glad I finally got out of it. Dad helped me through it. Anyway, how have you been doing?" Me: "I don't know to be truly honest." Brandon: "tell me what you do know." Me: "I just keep regaining memory one at a time. Yet its happening sooo slowly. I never know when its going to happen. On top of it all, I've had to adjust to someone I barely know, trusted him, relied on him for everything, and then out of nowhere he just drops me." Brandon: "who would do such a thing? Don't they understand what a treasure you are?" Me: "thank you Brandon." Brandon: "so what do you do now? Where are you living?" Me: "I'm still just sitting. To top it all off, he is my boss. I can't work for him. So I have to draft a resignation letter, and look for another job. I live at Courtyard with mom and dad." Brandon: "I think its good, you're starting afresh but you can't let this man compromise your career. He doesn't deserve that power, I do understand though where you're coming from." Me: "what are you up to." Brandon: "I'm a cardiothoracic surgeon." he smiled. Brandon: "I heal broken hearts." I laughed. God, I was so happy. Like genuinely happy that this human being existed. Me: "how is that working out.." Brandon: "very well actually." Me: "girlfriend? Wife?" Brandon: "I have a girlfrien, her name is Tammy." Me: "can I see her picture? Why didn't you bring her along?" Brandon: "I didn't want to overwhelm you. Besides, she sends her warmest regards, you'll meet her when you go to Cape Town." Me: "I'd love to." our food arrived and we ate. After our breakfast we took a walked to the beach. I took off my heels and rolled up my leggings. He also took off his shoes and rolled up his pants. Me: "I feel as though there's something you're not telling me." Brandon:

"what?? That's ridiculous." he chuckled. Me: "Brandon. I'm not dumb."
Brandon: "we've covered the most important parts of our lives." I stood by the shore. The cold water ran up the sand and wash my feet, sinking me deeper in its dampness. He stood in front of me. Me: "what else happened the day before you left.." he hugged me. Me: "Brandon." Brandon: "its all in the past babe." Me: "the smallest amount of information can help trigger a block of emotions.....and memories." he exhaled and looked at the ocean. Brandon: "I wanted you to marry me, so that we can elope to Cape Town together." I chuckled. Me: "what?" Brandon: "I know...you just smacked and told me that people that date get married we can't get married because we're best friends. I just didn't want to lose you." he looked in my eyes. Me: "I'm here now." he smiled. Brandon: "I'm glad." we continued with our walk.

Sunday evening Brandon was due back in Cape Town. I really didn't want him to leave but he had work to get to. We sat together at the airport waiting for his boarding time. I enjoyed talking to him and the way he looked at me when he listened. Me: "its time. Let me walk you." Brandon: "few more minutes.." Me: "for what." he smiled and shook his head. Brandon: "for all those years....I need a few more minutes." Me: "I'm not going anywhere, I'll email and text, you'll visit when you can." Brandon: "you're coming to Cape Town right? Its absolutely gorgeous. You'd love it." Me: "okay." he got up after a while and we hugged. Brandon: "I'll call you as soon as I land okay." Me: "alright. Enjoy your flight. Goodbye Brandon." he kissed my forehead and walked away. I watched him go through the boarding gates and still waited until his plane took off then I caught a cab to the hotel. Umama ebehleli notata on their balcony. I knocked on their door wazovula utata. Ndayoziphosa ebhedini. Khaya: "and then?" Me: "I know what you were trying to do dad. Its not going to work. Brandon and I will always be friends and in case you didn't know, he has a girlfriend." Khaya: "psss...what was I trying to do? My only crime was to bring you your best friend ubenomntu woncokola." Me: "dad, I don't need a man." Khaya: "absolutely baby. You have me. I just thought seeing Brandon would make you happy. That's all." Me: "I was happy. Thank you." I checked my phone for any messages. Khaya: "he'll call, don't worry." my phone rang just then ndayiphendula without even looking. Me: "hello?" Zingi: "hi babe. Unjani?" Me: "I'm great and yourself?" Zingi: "I'm good. I'm having a little braai here endlini. It me and the kids kunye noDumi but he has a soccer game he's going to watch with his friends at Finnezz. How about you come over and keep me company?" Me: "that would be nice babe. I'll be there soon." Zingi: "okay." I hung up. Me: "I'm going to Zingi's place." Khaya: "I'll drop you off." Me: "Tata. I'm not a baby." Khaya: "neither am I. Ndizokusa kuZingi." I didn't argue with him. Me: "I'll go change then." ndahamba ndaye roomin yam to change. I could really decide on what to wear. It was a bit chilly though, I felt like dressing up also. I took out a light brown bandage dress and a matching coat ndanxiba. Taking out red stilettos and wore them. I took my purse with phone and wallet ndaya ku tata. Khaya: "heee, princess. Uyo qhayisela uZingi ngesinxibo or what? You're so dressed up." Me: "its a girl thing tata." Khaya: "ai, andiyingeni. Let's go. Ndiyabuya my heart uyeva?" Mama: "okay baby." my dad drove me to Zingi's house. On my arrival nyani kungekho anything out of order. Khaya: "okay my angel. I'll see you later vha. Love you." Me: "bye tata." I got out the car ndayongena endlin then he left. Me: "molweni bethuna." Zingi: "is that a new man? Oh My...." Dumis peeped at the car. Dumis: "new man? What?" Me: "can we not? Please guys. Where the kids?" Dumis: "I took them to their gran." Me: "you said the kids were here Zingi." Zingi: "I forgot they weren't. Awubawel glass ye-wine?" Me: "yes why not." Dumis: "you know I love you right?" I gulped the wine. Yahla kamnandi ukufa. I needed to be drunk for this. Me: "yes." Dumis: "and....I would do anything to protect you right?" Me: "of course Dumis, can we talk about this later? Andikahlali naphantsi sana sowundithutha." he sighed. Zingi: "how about uyojonga braai injani." Dumis: "okay babe." he went out the back. Me: "another one." Zingi: "okay slow down. Kwenzeka ntoni." Me: "I just need to feel loose. Lakhe left me for some ex of his that lived in England. She thought I was her maid at that. Then my dad hears of this and goes ooofff! I didn't even know he had a gun." she poured another glass ndayisela. Zingi: "I'm so sorry b-" Me: "to top it all off, he calls my former friend, all the way from Cape Town to comfort. He is so sweet. I just can't do anything about it because I'm still inlove with that fool! He's the only man I want and he chose another woman." Dumis walked back in. I was getting tipsy. Me: "is it a thing , for men ? Uthi uthanda umntu and still have the audacity to hurt them?" he looked at me with a stupid facial expression. Zingi: "I don't think it was his intention to hurt you." Me: "of course not. Neither was it mine to fall in love. Now, I lost a place to live, I have to squat at the hotel with the parents, also, I lost a man, I have no one to goof around with, and most importantly I've lost Interest in my Job. On top of all of that. Memory." Dumis: "Spho...this was not my intention at all. I had no say in it. I was forced. Please do not hate me." Me: "I'd never hate you. I don't have the hate."

I heard a car door closing outside. Me: "we have guests? Oh wow. Just when I'm in NO Mood to meet new peepul." Dumis: "I'm so sorry. I really wasn't given a choice he....." there was a knock on the door. Zingi: "Dumis please get the door." he went to open. Zingi: "everything will be okay hun." Me: "argg Zingi, I don't want a pity party. I don't want to felt for. If I could just fly to Mauritius right now and forget my troubles and drink this wine. Life would be amazing." Zingi: "awuzokwazi uzibaleka ke sisi ingxaki zakho. Sooner rather than later you'll have to face them." Me: "urrhh." I sighed. Me: "what's that smell?" I looked to my left, the direction which Dumi was to open the door. He was here. Oh God.... Lakhe: "molo Spho." this was like a nightmare repeating itself over and over again. Me: "eWorse yeyoba ude ufake iitshomi zam kule dyubhadyubha yakho. What do you want ngoku Masilakhe?" Lakhe: "You."

I stared at him. Ebendidika ke qha, but I missed him so much. Me: "Uthini Lakhe?" Lakhe: "baby, I acted like a fool. Ndicela uxolo. Can you please forgive me?" Me: "that's it? That's all you're going to say?" Lakhe: "Siphosenkosi, uyayazi how much you mean to me. I can't sleep without you by my side. You know that I get cold. I've never had to do this, kodwa I cannot afford to lose you." Me: "after all these days. Since Wednesday. Wena uziva Sunday, that uyagodola? Hmm? Ndim caba isdenge that can only warm your bed?" Lakhe: "that's not it baby. Ndiyakukhumbula." Me: "Kwathini uzundiyeke ndihambe ke mfana? Wahhala wena eMonti with your Dez." Lakhe: "Spho, I asked you to stay but ubungafun-" Me: "oh? So that ndizoba yi maid ka Dez. Mna ndibengu Tryphina ogalela wine nge intervals." Lakhe: "No Spho. That's not what's going to happen." Me: "then what is? Ngoba awundiniki nto. Sisekula block A sasime kuye." Lakhe: "but Spho I want to marry you. That has not changed." Me: "uzamthini uDez ke yena? Phof ke ubuthe komnye uzamlinda abuye awucingi wena utshate. Hmm? Uzamthini uDreamGirl?" Lakhe: "Spho, ndidlulile kuDez." Me: "udlulile ngoku because kaloku ubuyile eMonti. Ubuye nini khona, wait close your eyes." he closed his eyes. Me: "Dumi ibuye nini tshomi yakho emonti?" Dumi stared at him. Lakhe: "ba-" Me: "Thula. Dumi ndithetha nawe andithengisi mbona." Dumi: "andiyazi ubuye nini Spho. I swear." Me: "sowabal xoki nawe ngoku?" Dumi: "he only called me last night." Me: "enkosi Dumi, so wena ubuye last night." Lakhe looked at me again. Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi. Ndiyakthanda uyeva. Whether you believe it or not-" Me: "No, I asked you a simple question, all I need is a Yay or Nay answer. Cela undiphendule." I sipped my wine. Lakhe: "I came back Friday morning." Me: "amazing stuff. Noba bekumnandi eBlue Lagoon ne." Lakhe: "nothing happened." Me: "like hell." I poured myself another glass. Me: "Zingi, aninayo enkulwana kundlana? Ingathi iphela rhow kule glass." Lakhe: "Spho, ndicela ubuye endlini." Me: "umkile ngoku uDez?" Lakhe: "ungena phi uDez Spho!" Me: "first things first, don't you ever put my name in the same sentence as hers. Once we've established that, ungakuliiinge ucimbe uzoqalisa undingxolela mna. Calm your tits. Oyena mntu that forgot the essential details about Dez, NGUWE. I am allowed to ask, because you refused to tell. Ungandiqheli kakbi." Lakhe: "asinokulwa ngento enye oko Spho. I don't like fighting." Me: "who's fighting? Nguwe umntu ozibilisa ikhwapha. Khandilwe nawe mna." Lakhe: "Siphosenkosi ndicela sigoduke siyolungisa izinto zethu as a couple. Please. I asked you to be my wife, for a reason. One, I love you with my entire heart, Two, ungumama womntanam, Three, you're my equal, you're smart, you're beautiful, and you care about me kakhulu. I can't do anything without you by my side Sphosenkosi ndiyakucela." Me: "but you need to make it clear to yourself ukuba ndimephi in your life, be clear that uDez umephi. Umxelele naye ukuba umephi na, so that roles aren't confused. Nguwe umntu o-suppose uyalungisa." Lakhe: "okay baby. Consider it done." Me: "consider what done usame apho ingathi uyafitisha kwa Mr Price?" Lakhe: "yinton uMr Price." Zingi: "usamile???" he took out his phone and made a call wayifaka ku loud speaker. "Hello." ndaske ndacaphuka worse. Lakhe: "Dez, ndicela sivane ngento enye ne. Spho is my wife now, and she's not there because you weren't, she's there because I love her more than anything. Ndicela ungabisaphazama. You and I are over for good." I heard her laugh. Dez: "if that's what makes you sleep at night. In fact, if you weren't so worried about your own feelings bungasoze ufownele mna ku loud speaker-" Lakhe: "You've got things confused again, andikufuni Dez, stop flattering yourself thinking I'm doing this for anyone. I don't want you qha." the call was dropped. Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi." Me: "Masilakhe." he knelt down on his knee. Lakhe: "we can do it tomorrow morning. As long as you're mine. Ndiyacenga mntanaka Ngudla. Please accept this proposal, will you please be my wife?" I looked at the sparkling diamond in his hand. I was torn in the middle. My dad would kill him and me. Nobody could make this decision for me. Bendimthanda but the trust though. It was still lingering by thread. Lakhe: "please baby?" well fuck it. Me: "Yes. I will marry you." he smiled. Me: "phakama kaloku." Lakhe: "funeke ndive ngawe kaloku mfazi." he got up and kissed my forehead. I just fell into his arms because I was tipsy. Me: "uzundibhanxe net. Uyowndibona." Lakhe: "andicingi mntuwam. Asoze." Me: "why did you stay so long in East London?" Lakhe: "Wednesday I attended a meeting with one of the owners of the club I want to buy into. Thursday ndadibana nomntu to manage the place on my behalf and he wasn't suitable. Ndaqondaba mandigoduke best." Me: "so Uzothini nge club?" Lakhe: "I'm thinking of canceling the offer. Its no use if ndizobe ndilapha ebhayi. And have to keep going that side every weekend. Besides, Tuesday ndiye Joburg, There's a business seminar I need to attend and I would love for my wife to join me please?" Me: "yoh." Lakhe: "yintoni baby?" Me: "I don't want to rush into this. I'm still trying to trust you after the whole East London incident. Ndazelaphi kuzobakho nton eJoburg enophinda indikhubekise." Lakhe: "baby. I was stupid its never going to happen again. I promise you. Yilento ndifuna uhambe nam ukuye Joburg, you need to be familiar with all my business acquaintances and deals. Xa bengafumani mna, Ube ukho wena." Me: "my dad hates your guts." Lakhe: "he beat the shit out of me ngolwesihlanu." I laughed. Lakhe: "heee.. Ndisacela uxolo, he didn't even wait. Ubuzile impahla ziphi kwangena impama. Jonga iindlebe zathi Mpo! Ivakele la mpama. Yohh. Ndayicinga semnkile, I could not believe it. So yes, I am afraid of your dad." Me: "he will not let me near you. I kind of told mom, she told him and he asked me so I had to tell him." Lakhe: "its okay baby. I think oomalume bam mabasondele." Me: "not so soon though." Lakhe: "okay. Uzothi Uyaphi ngomso?" Me: "andiyazi." Zingi walked back in. Zingi: "I'm going to call him ndimcele. I'll say I asked you undikhaphe ndiye k'lo tatam emaxhoseni. Luckily the network there is supposedly bad. Therefore no unnecessary long calls." Me: "that would mean ndigoduka early ke namhlanje to butter him up." Lakhe: "enkosi Zingi. So we have that sorted." Me: "sibuye nini." Lakhe: "Thursday baby.. The seminar is on Tuesday evening. Then Wednesday I have a meeting, also a dinner and then Thursday sibuye." Zingi: "nibuye nimithi please. I want to throw a baby shower." I looked at her. Me: "nja-" Zingi: "and I need no excuses..." Lakhe: "and risk getting myself killed ngulatata? No thanks. We're doing the wedding first." I was sure she didn't tell Dumi about the pregnancy. Lakhe: "girls, khame ndiyoncedisa uDumi." he kissed my cheek waphuma. Me: "you didn't tell him?" Zingi: "not yet." Me: "Zingi, are you still thinking of aborting this child?" Zingi: "I don't want another baby." Me: "did you at least think of his opinion." Zingi: "its not his body-" Me: "you're his wife." Zingi: "please Spho, you have a ring on your for 2 minutes and you're already an expert wife? Khawundiyeke wethu." she got up and left me there ndaske ndabhidwa. Lakhe came to me again. Lakhe: "ha.a my love. Andinolunga pha. The fumes are going to ruin my outfit. I can't." Zingi ebekhuphela hormones zakhe apha kum basically. I was her bucket. Ai, mandimyeke ne moods zakhe. Lakhe: "babe?" Me: "yes." Lakhe: "awusemhle namhlanje. Ubuyephi?" yatsho yakhala phone yam. I looked through my purse and saw 'Brandon VS' on the screen ndayifaka ku silent without even taking it out. Lakhe: "and? Awuzoyiphendula?" I looked at him. His right brow was raised. Me: "oh hayi wethu." Lakhe: "oh. Ndisayothenga ice for Dumi. Ufuna undikhapha?" Me: "no baby, I want to check on Zingi. She's not well." Lakhe:

"ok." he left the house. I took out my phone and saw it ringing again, I picked up. Me: "hey." Brandon: "hey you...I've landed. I'm going to collect my bag now. I just couldn't wait to hear your voice. I already miss you." Me: "I miss you too." Brandon: "hopefully, you'll be able to hop over to Cape Town this weekend?" Me: "I'll see what I can do." Brandon: "perfect. What are you doing now?" Me: "I'm at a friend's place for a braai. They called just after I got to the hotel. You going straight home?" Brandon: "yes. I just need a bath and my bed right now." Me: "I'm sure Tammy is happy you're back." Brandon: "I don't live with her. Don't see her much. Anyway, I don't want us to talk about Tammy. This is our time." hmmm? Uthini na ngoku mfana? Me: "oh?" Brandon: "yes..oh. Tell me when to book the return flights okay?" Me: "I will book the flight." Brandon: "no, I will... Don't worry about it." Me: "okay then. If that's what you say." Brandon: "would it be possible if I convinced you to send your CV this side..." Me: "you want me to move to Cape Town?" Brandon: "well...I'd like to have you closer." Me: "Cape Town?? I don't know...let's think about that okay?" Brandon: "alright. Or maybe I should make my way back to PE then." I laughed. Me: "don't try and be funny Dr VS." Brandon: "I love the way you call me. Brand, VS, BVS. I can't believe I once thought it was irritating. Now its what brightens up my day." Me: "aww that's sweet. You're always going to be Dr VS." Brandon: "okay Mrs VS, I'll call you once I'm home okay?" Me: "my battery is struggling on 20% if it happens to be off, leave me a message okay?" Brandon: "alright. Will do. Goodnight hun." Me: "goodnight Brandon." I hung up. I was getting confused, very much confused. I thought Brandon viewed me as a friend, umke apha sigrand mos. Singoo "peto, mtshana." all of a sudden ndingu Mrs VS. What was that all about? I turned around to head to the bathroom and to my surprise, Lakhe was standing there. I don't know for how long but I could judge from the look on his face. Sekhe wayiva langoma ye Isley Brothers ithi busted ? Ukhe uyive xa iqala? Lakhe: "is your battery really struggling on 20% or ufuna angafowni ndikhona?" busted. Me: "uhm...how long have you been standing there." Lakhe: "cela undiphendule." Me: "No and yes." ayikho enye indlela because my phone was on 52. No way I could swap those numbers. Lakhe: "ngubani uBrandon Sphosenkosi." Me: "my friend from high school." Lakhe: "kengoku, kutheni Le friend ingenofowna ndikhona?" Me: "I don't think ufuna uphazanyiswa ngab-" Lakhe: "phazanyiswa? Its not even my phone. The only thing endiphazamisayo is the booking of flights and the secret phone calls. What else are you hiding from me?" Me: "nothing Masilakhe." Lakhe: "nothing? Siphosenkosi, ngubani uBrandon. Yinton kuwe?" Me: "he's a friend-" Lakhe: "so conveniently, your friend from God-knows-where, oh wait, Cape Town, mysteriously shows up for no reason? Uqala nini?" Me: "can we not do this here? Please?" Lakhe: "no, we're doing it Here. Simxoxile uDez ndime k'lendawo. Sizamxoxa ke noBrandon-boy." Me: "my dad called him here. He said it was a gift for me because he knew how close we were sisebancinci. I didn't know he was coming." Lakhe: "your dad huh..." Me: "ewe Lakhe. This is the truth." Lakhe:

"I'm going to believe you, xa usithi yitshomi yakho then let him call. I don't mind. Just do not hide these things from me. Uyiyeke into yonyonyoba." I nodded. Did he even go buy the ice phof? Uwoah.

It was late into the evening when my father called me sisahleli kamandi. I decided to answer before he decided to appear. Me: "hi tata." Dad: "useright?" Me: "ewe Tata." Dad: "its getting late." Me: "Zingi uzondigodusa tata, not long from now." Dad: "okay my princess. Undixelele ufika kwakho." Me: "alright dad." I hung up. Lakhe: "ufuna uhambe ngoku? Yoh. Ha.a ufather usenzela nzima ngoku." Me: "you're the one that wants to go to Joburg. Ingathi ke ngowuba sweet." Lakhe: "no its fine...into endiy'thethayo mna oomalume mabahlangane. Bendingasoze ndisokole kangaka yazi." Me: "you need to be patient. You're still on thin ice." Lakhe: "okay ke baby. Ndiyakuva." we got ready to leave. As much as it was a risk, Lakhe was dropping me at the hotel. I knew that my dad won't be waiting at the gate anyway. So akhonto ibitheni. We said our goodbyes to Dumi and Zingi and left the house. Lonto sihambe ingathi kudala kulindwe sihambe. The atmosphere wasn't the same anymore. Lakhe drove me to the hotel kumnandi emotweni. We really wanted to just go around the city, and dance and sing kuselwe because I was the drunkard and he was the tipsyard. When we got to Courtyard he looked at me with those blazing eyes. Lakhe: "I've loved you since the day I met you. Uyayazi Phof lonto?" Me: "zange utsho kum. I don't even remember." Lakhe: "one day we'll talk about it." Me: "asinoyithetha ngoku?" Lakhe: "now isn't the time. Let's try xasikwi plane eya eMauritius together. We'll have ample time to discuss fight and make up. Ndiyak'thanda uyeva?" Me: "I love you too." he leaned over and kissed me. I held his shirt collar and kissed him some more. He smiled. Lakhe: "hayi baby." Me: "Thula." I kissed him some more. Lakhe: "babyyy." Me: "ndizokutswikila ke mna." he held my thigh and I pushed his hand away. Lakhe: "I love you so much Spho...do you understand that..." I looked at him. Me: "why do you insist on interrupting me?" Lakhe: "because I need you to know you're my queen. My entire world. Uzunditwikile net. Ima show you flames." I laughed. He kissed me again. Out of the blue someone knocked on the window. We stopped and looked. He was standing by the driver's side. Khaya: "cela uphume ndik'bone."Oh Shit.

I got out the car with Lakhe ndaya kwelabo icala. Me: "tata." Khaya: "Benditheni kuwe wena?" Lakhe: "ndicel uxolo tata." he didn't even look sorry. Me: "Tata, please. Can we talk about this?" Khaya: "I want you to get the hell out of here and stay the hell away from my daughter. Andiphinde ndithethe into enye ke mna uyandiva?" Me: "akazokwazi tata." Khaya: "Sphosenkosi andithethi nawe." Me: "dad-" Khaya: "No, andithethi nawe. This, right here, is a good for nothing low life scum, that hides behind big cars and suits. This isn't how I raised you." Me: "tata kodwa.-" Khaya: "I'm not going to argue with you. Go. And you, you better disappear." Lakhe: "Tata, ndicela uthetha." Khaya: "uthetha ntoni nabani? If my daughter wasn't standing here, I would've knocked you out immediately." Lakhe: "ndiyamthanda uSphosenkosi tata. I really do. I want to make her my wife-" Khaya: "no child of mine is marrying a criminal." Me: "hayi tata! Lakhe is not a criminal!" Khaya: "should I tell her or you will?" Lakhe: "tata. Its not even like that-" Khaya: "he's a drug dealer. The reason he doesn't want to be in the spotlight or have pictures on the internet is because he is a drug distributor." Me: "hehake tata. How did you even come up with that?" Lakhe: "I don't blame you tata for not trusting me, I did do wrong ku Spho, but all my businesses are legit. I've never dealt drugs in my life. All of what I have is from hard work." Khaya: "that cute story you keep telling yourself, mane ngoyiphinda nakwabanye. Its not going to work apha. I don't want you near my child, and asizophikisana ngalonto." he pulled my arm and I stood still. Khaya: "Sphosenkosi." Me: "Tata I'm not a baby anymore. I can take care of myself. Yes, I need your protection, but ndiyamthanda uLakhe. He's also there to protect me too." Khaya: "my word is final Sphosenkosi." Lakhe: "listen to your father Sphosenkosi. Inoba uzak'tshata ngokwakhe." he mumbled engena emotweni. Khaya: "heee? Uthini?" Me: "tata!" Khaya: "makathethe ndimve!!" Lakhe: "go inside Spho." he started the car ehlixe festire waiting for me to get inside. My father was fuming. I took his arm ndayongena. Khaya: "the nerve of that boy!! Iyadelela lanto leya!" Me: "Dad. Can you please just relax." Khaya: "Spho, he is changing you. Kutheni sow'thetha nam oluhlobo ngoku?" Me: "Tata, I know you love me. I made the mistake of involving you in my troubles only because you're here and have always been for me. I want to marry him dad. Like you did with mom. I want to have a family." Khaya: "nanku uBrandon! A sensible man with a good head on his shoulders! Not lakwekwe ingena mbeko!" Me: "I don't want Brandon dad. Ndifuna uLakhe." Khaya: "I'm going to talk to you in the morning when your head is back in its place." he walked out my room. I sat on my bed ndikhulula. All I thought about was him, I wanted him by my side. I just didn't know how this marriage was going to happen utata ekhona. Worse ba makafune nditshate uBrandon. Hehake father, hehake sana.

Monday morning I went down for breakfast ndabafumana behleli at the dining hall. Me: "molweni mama." Mama: "hello. Get your breakfast uzohlala." I went to get my cereal ndahlala phantsi. Me: "tata." Khaya: "yes my sweet." heee, and then. Me: "I'm sorry about izolo." Khaya: "its okay." Me: "Tata...Lakhe asked me to marry him. I said yes." he looked at me. Khaya: "mntanam kutheni uzenza lento?" Mama: "I thought he left you for another woman." Me: "I'm the one that left, yes besingavani and I thought it was over. He apologized and made things right. I love him." Khaya: "and if he does it again?" Me: "then it happens again dad. It would be my mistake to make." Khaya: "andimthandi lamfana for wena Spho. I can't change your decision but I'm not happy. Andinguye utata ozokuvalela. All I was trying to do was protect you. Its all because I love you." Me: "I love you too tata."

Khaya: "I have to get ready for work." he got up and left the table. Mama: "he's really disappointed." Me: "I know ma. I just don't want to be miserable with someone else." Mama: "Brandon would never make you miserable. That man loves you." Me: "why wonke umntu epavela uBrandon? Lakhe loves me also. Maybe awkwardly but he does love me." she sighed. Mama: "I don't know but...I doubt your dad will walk you down the aisle." that cut my heart so deeply. I lost my appetite even. Me: "I've got some stuff...to do." I left the table and went to my room ndayovasa. After my long shower. I sat on my bed. I checked my phone and found messages from Brandon. Nothing too much, thank Goodness. I checked my emails and found eyaka Harold. I had more work. Would I still leave the company or was I talking out of anger? Eyy ndiske andayazi. After getting dressed I went to check on my dad ndafika egqibo nxiba. He was in his nice black suit. Me: "daddy." he looked up at me. Me: "please give him a chance. Just one." he sighed. Me: "for your princess." Khaya: "fine. We're having dinner at Blue Waters at 7pm. He must be there." Me: "thank you daddy!!" I hugged him. Khaya: "anything my baby girl." Me: "enjoy your day at work okay? Undiphathele something emnandi." Khaya: "what could I possibly bring you from a hospital baby? Hayi wethu suba spoilt." Me: "okay ke bye bye." Khaya: "bye princess. See you later." he left for work. I went to my room excitedly and called Lakhe. Me: "baby???" Lakhe: "hey my love. What it do." Me: "my dad agreed to give you chance. You need to come to dinner with us at 7 eBlue Waters." Lakhe: "no baby...tonight??" Me: "yes... What do you mean no?" Lakhe: "I have a status meeting at Zest ngo 7 nje. This is the first one I'm doing therefore funekile ndibekhona." Me: "oh." Lakhe: "I'm sorry my love." Me: "its okay." Lakhe: "how about.....you bring your dinner right over to Zest? That way, the minute I'm done I join you? Or even better, your dad can join me in the meeting since

I'm a drug dealer and so." I giggled. Me: "I'll try. Let's talk later. I think Kukho umntu emnyango." Lakhe: "love you baby." Me: "I love you too." I hung up ndayojonga emnyango. When I opened the door, my uncle was standing there. "uhhm....Spho?" Me: "Tanci!" I hugged him. He looked very confused. Uncle: "hi pumpkin." Me: "what are you doing here umbonile umama?" Uncle: "no I didn't. Where is she?" Me: "she's in the other room. Tata is home." Uncle: "that's nice. Let me go say hi to your mom. Ndizobuya vha?" Me: "okay." I gave him the room number and he left. Lakhe was texting me already. Lakhe: "baby kaloku khandihoye tu." Me: "I'm here. My uncle is here also." Lakhe: "great. Mandibize abam nam ke mos." I should invite uncle Lani to dinner too. So I went after him to mom's room. If she knew maybe ebezomxelela but only dad knew about the dinner, and me of course. The door wasn't closed properly but I could hear some arguing inside. Mama: "damn it Phumlani! Yinton ingxaki yakho! How many times must I tell you this?" Uncle: "tell me what! Akhonto undixelela yona mos Zama! I'm always the last to know. Like you, changing rooms!" Mama: "I knew you would show up unannounced! Buzofika Kukho Khaya apha, uthini kengoku?" Uncle: "Zama, you need to make your decision." Mama: "Phumlani, please go. I can't do this with you." Uncle: "Zama...don't do this please." Mama: "I can't leave my family Phumlani." Uncle: "then don't leave them." Mama: "its risky Phumlani. Khaya isn't going anywhere now. He can't find out again. It would kill him." Uncle: "okay...ndiyakuva. You'll know where to find me if you need me." I ran back to my room ndayohlala pha. I didn't even know what to do. Mama and uncle Lani? So that day.....it was him that was here with umama. Oh thank God they changed the sheets everyday. After about 10 minutes I heard a knock ndayovula. Uncle: "mtshana." he smiled more excitedly. Me: "umfumene?" Uncle: "oh yes. Thanks princess. I'm gonna get going vha." I couldn't even ask him to dinner. I didn't know how. Me: "okay." Uncle: "Sho mntanam." and he was out.....

Later in the day, I was ready and made up. Tata arrived from work and he looked exhausted. He got into bed and said he was going to take a nap. Me: "but tata its 6pm." Khaya: "just 30 minutes mntanam. Uzundivuse." Me: "dad, can we change our venue. Sizoya eZest ne. In Walmer." Khaya: "anything you want my love." Me: "Lakhe wanted you to join him for his meeting." Khaya: "okay princess." yep he was really tired. Mama: "give him a moment sweetie." I'd tried to avoid her all day. I couldn't just process what I'd heard. I couldn't. Lakhe texted endibuza siphil told him that we'd be a bit late and explained. Lakhe: "ok my love. Don't forget to pack for tomorrow." oh shit. I hadn't implemented the plan with Zingi. I texted her too. Me: "babe. Nantsi number ka tata. Do it now, he's in his Yes mode." I sent it. In no time yakhala phone ka tata. He was already fast asleep. Me: "dad." Khaya: "hm.." Mama: "khamyeke man sthandwasam." she took the phone and answered. Mama: "Khaya's phone hello? Hello?? Heee." she looked at it. Mama: "ucime phone." I sat next to dad on the bed staring at him. I was so anxious for him to wake up. Khaya: "you know I'm never going to sleep if you looking at me like that." I smiled. Me: "undiphathele ntoni?" he dug in his pockets and took out a lollipop. Khaya: "Shhh." Me: "daddy?" Khaya: "hm?" Me: "ndingahamba noZingi? She's going to Transkei, visiting her dad. I want to go with her." Khaya: "okay." Me: "thanks tata." I ate my sweet quietly. Mama was sitting on the couch with her phone. I sent Zingi a text telling her it was fine. Me: "let me go pack so long." I went to my room and started packing clothes. In a few minutes my mom came to my room. Mama: "Spho." Me: "hi ma." Mama: "You've been quiet today. Uright?" Me: "yes ma." Mama: "okay. Let me help you." we packed my suitcase and went back to her room. Tata ebengeka vuki. Mama: "I think we should let him rest. Kudala esebenza." Me: "he said simvuse. Tata?" Khaya: "hm?" Me: "its been 30 minutes." Khaya: "hm.." Me: "dad?" Khaya: "you can go lovey." he went back to his pillow. Me: "go where?" Mama: "he's really tired." Me: "fine, I'll order in then." Mama: "uzohamba?" Me: "no mama. I'm staying here." Khaya: "wait...ima." he sat up. Khaya: "okay. Let's get ready and go." Me: "udiniwe tata." Khaya: "I promised. I'm gonn keep it. I just need to wash my face." mama gave me a disapproving look. Tata went to take a shower and got dressed sihleli phandle nomama. Khaya: "let's go." we went to the car and drove to Zest in Walmer. On the way there I was texting Lakhe and he was updating me which table he had reserved and how his meeting was going. When we arrived at the restaurant when we met by the door. Me: "Mr Sobukwe's reservation." Waiter: "oh, you must be his lovely wife. Come this way." we were seated down at a table and given menus. Kwangoko waza kuthi umfana. Lakhe: "molweni bazali." Khaya: "hm." he stared at his menu. Mama: "molo Lakhe." Me: "Tata, Lakhe has a meeting in process would you like to join him?" Khaya: "doesn't he have it under control." his tone was icy cold. Lakhe: "I would like for you to have an insight on what exactly I do. Getting you to see that I have the best intentions for your daughter and our future." Khaya: "we'll see about that." Waiter: "Mr Sobz. Would you like the special requests now?" Lakhe: "Yes Greg, please make sure my wife and her mother are well taken care of. I'll be in my table, Tata, is there anything you'd like?" Khaya: "No." Lakhe: "alright then. We may proceed, Thanks Greg." Waiter: "not a problem sir." Lakhe and Khaya walked to their table. I was left with my mother at the table and she was looking a bit distracted. Me: "mama." Mama: "yes hun."

Me: "who was the person in the room with you that day." Mama: "hayi Spho that is none of your business." Me: "oh." I got my drink and sipped on it ndijonge phantsi. Mama: "I don't want you to worry about this. It will never happen again." Me: "okay mama. It was nice of uTanci to visit us today. Just boggles my mind how he knew which room to find you in but doesn't know Le uhlala kuyo notata." Mama: "Sphosenkosi!!! I'm warning you." she hissed. We stayed in silence for the longest time, I was playing with my phone and she was texting on hers. Finally after the long hour bafika aba babini. Khaya: "no I do get it. It wasn't that strenuous. Although its a first." Lakhe: "I'm happy that you see how it all happens." they were talking???. This was a first. Our food arrived also, kodwa the table had only one conversation between two people. I was glad they were talking, it was a step closer. Khaya: "I didn't know you had such an interesting job princess." Me: "oh...I didn't?" Khaya: "yeah, if you still want to go back to work, then I guess its okay." uhm...something was wrong. Very wrong. Me: "what made you change your mind tata?" Khaya: "nothing much. Just had an insight on your company." Me: "its Lakhe's company." Lakhe: "actually, its ours." Me: "you're confusing me." Lakhe: "this was going to be a wedding gift." Me: "now I'm more confused." Lakhe: "now I'll have to think of a new surprise." Me: "okay. I don't know what you're talking about." Lakhe: "I'm signing over some of my shares to you." Me: "shares? What?" Lakhe: "yes. You're a shareholder love." I was so shocked I didn't even know what to say. What shocked me was the part where I don't know what made them friends. Lakhe: "ndiyabulela tata, for giving me a chance. I promise not to let you down." Khaya: "you'd better not." Lakhe's phone rang. Lakhe: "I'm so sorry. Please excuse me." Khaya: "go ahead." Lakhe took his phone to go answer. Me: "tata. Kwenzeka ntoni?" Khaya: "I have never been more convinced he's a criminal." Me: "Tata!!" Khaya: "his business is legit yes. I think by calculating in my head that estate and all those cars and everything else. Its impossible. He can't have that much money. I need you to investigate this. Why? I want you to see it for yourself." Me: "dad, Lakhe owns hotels, besides the company. A lot of other businesses. Can you please give him a Real chance here? Look at how happy he is xa evana nawe. Please tata." Khaya: "fine." Me: "I love you tata. Akekho onothatha indawo yakho ebomini bam. You'll always be King." he held my hand. Khaya: "I love you too." Lakhe came back to sit with us. Mama: "so, have you spoken to your family Lakhe? Uncles and so forth." Lakhe: "yes actually ma. My uncle and dad are planning to come down soon. I insisted on doing everything traditionally ke kodwa. The letters and all." Khaya: "its not much of a point now. We know what's to be expected." Me: "I think its romantic." Khaya: "honey its not even for you." Me: "I know but imagine having to tell my daughter one day of how I got married to her dad. The letter needs to be there." Lakhe: "okay. Letter it is. If it were possible I'd finalize everything right now." Khaya: "you seem pretty excited to be getting married. Most men are terrified." Lakhe: "I'm one lucky man tata. Excitement is an understatement for what I'm feeling." we smiled at each other. Khaya: "well then." he ate his food. Mama: "I'd like to know more about you Lakhe. How and where you grew up." A man came to our table. Man: "Mr Sobz." Lakhe: "Steven. Good evening." Steven: "its been a long time." Lakhe: "yes it has been. This is my fiance and her parents. Mama, Tata, babe, this is one of my few left friends in the Eastern Cape. Besifunda kunye High school. Steven." Khaya: "lovely to meet you. Will you be joining us?" Steven: "oh no, thank you...I'd love to but Yvonne is waiting for me. It was wonderful meeting you all. We'll talk later Lakhe." they looked at each other dead in the eye. Lakhe: "yes. We'll talk later." and he let go of his hand wahlala phantsi. Steven left. Lakhe: "sorry mama ubusithini?" Mama: " How and where you grew up." Lakhe: "oh yes. I grew up eMonti. Born and bred. I studied at UKZN and started work pha. Most of my life in East London was spent in my dad's office. I enjoyed reading. I had a passion for my father's business magazines. It was my brother that liked being outside." Khaya: "oh you have a brother?" Lakhe: "yes and a sister. My whole family lives in East London. Sister wam ke yena is hardly home." Mama: "hm..." Khaya: "you don't mention your mother much." Lakhe: "ukhona naye upha endlini." he picked at his food. Me: "this meat is bit raw. I think I can taste the blood." I pushed away the plate. Lakhe: "you want something else? Taste apha." he gave me his food. Me: "no I think I just want water." Lakhe: "you also have to eat something Spho. Please?" Me: "can I have chicken then?" Lakhe: "sure." he called the waiter and ordered me chicken. Khaya: "what kind of business is your father in?" Lakhe: "my father was an investment banker. Retired now." Khaya: "uh..huh." Mama: "and your mom?" Lakhe: "a professional shopper." she laughed. Lakhe: "she taught me how to spoil her when I was just 14. Xa utata ebuya emsebenzin ebemphathela a diamond bracelet or something nice. So sometimes he used to leave for business, meaning I had to take over as man of the house. I afforded chocolates and flowers then." Mama: "that is so sweet." Lakhe: "yes...I just realized sendithenge convertible yakhe ukuba I was being brainwashed. But I was already older. I'm glad they taught me lonto. Now I get to do it kweyam indlu." Khaya: "but you can't buy time hey." Lakhe: "definitely not. I intend on having my wife next to me at all times." Khaya: "do you have any kids?" Lakhe: "no...no kids."

Khaya: "and when you do?" Lakhe: "I'll have to be home more often. I already am. Well that's when Spho is around." Khaya: "I see." after dinner we had dessert. I was tired and all I wanted was to curl up and fall asleep with my fiance. It was time for us to go home eventually. Tata ebediniwe and had an early morning. So we got going. Khaya: "drive safely." they shook hands. Very awkward moment. Lakhe: "enkosi kakhulu tata nani nihambe kakuhle." mama: "bye Lakhe." Me: "bye." he blew me a secret kiss bangaboni. We got in the car. My parents and I, they drove us to the hotel. Khaya: "I think its about time we move in to our new house." Me: "uyifumene tata?" Khaya: "well yes. I'm going to get in touch with the agent sibenoyoyi bona." Me: "ungalibali tata ndiye transkei ngomso with Zingi ne." Khaya: "okay princess. Nibuya nini?" Me: "I think Thursday if not Friday." Khaya: "alright. Then I guess it will be a great time to get close to my son in law." my heart raced. Would he be able to catch us in the lie? Me: "that would be great." I lied. What the hell was I to do! We got to the hotel. Khaya: "well. Goodnight my princess. I'm leaving early for work Ksasa. I won't be able to see you. Uhambe kakuhle." Me: "thank you dad. Goodnightini." I went to my room ndakhulula and got into bed. I was happy that at lease dad had tried. Lakhe tried too. Mom even. I was finally pulling them together. 20 minutes later, ndisacinga oopoqo bam I heard a knock on my sliding door. I peeped, pulling back the curtain. Me: "Lakhe! What are you doing?" Lakhe: "ndiyagodola." he smiled. I opened the door. Me: "my dad can't find you here Lakhe." Lakhe: "he won't. I just missed you so much. Some alone time finally." Me: "before you get all excited ke bhuti. No sex will be happening here. Or in Joburg." Lakhe: "heee ubaby. Nguban othe ndizele i-sex apha. Uwoah...you and your sinister thoughts. Ndiyagodola wethu mna. I need a hug." he undressed and got into bed. I locked the door and joined him. We cuddled under blankets. Me: "I hope you didn't park your car out there." Lakhe: "relax. I didn't bring a car." he yawned. Lakhe: "I love you Sphosenkosi." Me: "I love you too." in no time he was snoring. Me: "hayi man Lakhe." wothuka. Lakhe: "hm?" Me: "sleep properly." he closed his eyes again and fell asleep. Nam I closed my eyes. But they shot open right then when I heard a knock on my front door. Khaya: "Spho, its me princess, There's something I want us to talk about very quick..." I kept absolutely still. Lakhe: "is tha-" I held his mouth close. Khaya: "guess you're asleep mntanam. We will talk ubuya kwakho." my heart felt heavy. He sounded like he really needed me and I was doing this to him. Me: "Lakhe, baby? Please do me a favor?" he got up and dressed. Lakhe: "please be quick. I'll wait outside." he unlocked and stepped out the sliding door.

I let my father in the room and he sat down on the chair by the desk. Me: "what's wrong tata?" Khaya: "he can come out the bathroom, I know he's here." Me: "who's here tata?" nda-serious mpela kengoku. Khaya: "I can smell his cologne Spho. He can come out." Me: "akhomntu apha tata. What's wrong?" Khaya: "I don't know what's wrong with me mntanam. I've got such a heavy heart and I realize I might have been taking it out on you noLakhe." Me: "no dad. Its nothing like that." Khaya: "I feel like my heart is about to pop out of my chest. Something is wrong, I'm not sure yintoni, kodwa ndiva ingathi Kukho into eyenzekayo." Me: "maybe its your fear that your little princess is not little anymore." I hugged him. Khaya: "Inoba ne?" Me: "you just need to relax tata. I'll always be here for you. My house will always be open to you." Khaya: "okay mntanam." Me: "please take things easy while I'm away dad. Don't over stress. If you need to talk, call me immediately. Okay?" Khaya: "okay my baby. You've really grown up now. You're going to make an amazing wife." Me: "enkosi tata." Khaya: "and tell him I'd better not bump into him here in the morning." Me: "dad akhomntu apha." I chuckled. Khaya: "okay. Let me go. Goodnight. I love you." Me: "I love you too dad. Iza ndikukhapha." I walked him to his bedroom. Ndabuya ndabiza Lakhe from outside. Lakhe: "I was beginning to freeze to death. Uthini utata?" I closed and locked. Me: "I think he's picking up that umama could be cheating. What scares me most is that, its not going to hurt but it might kill him. He hasn't even found anything out and he's already having heart palpitations." Lakhe: "damn.... Sizothini kengoku? He can't find that out Spho, we have to find a way to keep lamntu, whoever it is, away from your mom." Me: "its my uncle." Lakhe: "what!!" Me: "and I don't think its the first time. I think he's caught them before. Its something my mother said exoxa notanci, I was eavesdropping and she said 'he can't find out again' its not the first." Lakhe: "your dad is a great man Spho. He's a real role model. Something like this shouldn't be happening to him." Me: "I don't know Lakhe. I don't know what to do." Lakhe: "talk to your mother and uncle. Baxelegele utatakho uziva njani at this point. If they don't stop and if he does find out, they will be responsible for his death. And that would be the truth." Me: "I guess so." Lakhe: "khawuze ndiphuze. I miss these lips." he kissed me and cuddled me. After a while of just chatting we ended up falling asleep.

In the morning, I woke up ndavasa. When I was done getting dressed I went to my parents room to check on dad. He was already on his way out. Me: "ninjani?" Khaya: "siphilile mntanam. Unjani wena." Me: "I'm fine tata. Just came to see if you're okay." Khaya: "enkosi princess yam. I have to go now. I'll be late for work. Uhambe kakuhle vha." Me: "thanks tata." he walked out the door. I checked after 3 minutes and saw his car driving out the gate. Me: "mama." Mama: "yes Spho." Me: "I have something I need to tell you and I'm going to need you to listen to me very carefully. I know you keep saying its none of my business, and I should keep out of it but lento uyenzayo is hurting dad already. He came to me last night and told me he wasn't feeling well, something about his heart. Now, as much as he doesn't know what you're doing, the moment he finds out he stands a chance of not surviving through it. I am not willing to lose my father over your carelessness mama. With all due respect when it comes to his health, it becomes my business. And if he does hear about this, and falls sick or die. Cela uyazi that I will never forgive you or uncle. Ever." I walked out the door that minute. It hurt for me to actually say all of that but it needed to be said. I wanted to shake her azoyeka lento ayenzayo and focus on my dad. When I got to my room Lakhe was awake and already on his phone. Lakhe: "I'll sort that out when I get to Joburg in a few hours.....Yes.....I know.....Sandile, get off my phone." he hung up. Me: "are you hungry?" Lakhe: "no babes. I have to get to the house and pack. We're leaving at 10." Me: "I've already packed ke mna." Lakhe: "then let's get going. Its already 7, we need to be at the airport at 8." Me: "fine. How do we get to your house?" Lakhe: "cab is waiting outside. Uphi utata?" Me: "he's gone to work. Mama is still in bed. Let's go now." he got up from bed and took my bag for me saphuma. The cab was waiting for us and once we got in, drove us to his house. I would always expect to see Sandile here even though ebethe he's moving to East London. Me: "ngubani ozahlala apha atyise ooZanno?" Lakhe: "taken care of." he rushed to his room and changed his clothes. I followed him wathatha a brief case. Lakhe: "let's go." Me: "your clothes." Lakhe: "we'll buy phambili babes. We're late." Me: "no. We're packing you something to wear." Lakhe: "the seminar is only in the evening. Sizofika kwaksasa and go shopping together. Ndikthele nqa uphetha wardrobe Yonke." Me: "mxim." Lakhe: "leave the bag here. We're starting over in joburg." I dropped my bag in his room taking only my handbag and laptop then we left for the airport. The drive to the airport was phone call after phone call. It was the price of dating a this kind of person. He would always be busy. Me: "have you booked a hotel?" Lakhe: "for who?" I kept quiet avoiding an embarrassing moment. Lakhe: "baby?" Me: "yeka Lakhe.. It was a stupid question." Lakhe: "no such thing as a stupid question love." Me: "just stupid people right." Lakhe: "heee. Yinton ngoku?" Me: "nothing." Lakhe: "it doesn't seem like nothing uske unditshintshele kanje?" I sighed and looked out the window. We arrived at the airport and went to check in. Lakhe: "think I need to get my own plane. This can't be my life." he muttered. Me: "awusena drama." Lakhe: "hayi baby. Andinokwazi uma ndilinde." we finally got to board our plane sekukdala and safety-ed up.

We arrived in Johannesburg and walked straight through the airport ukuyophuma. There was a sleek black Mercedes Benz waiting with the door open. The man in a black suit ushered us in. Lakhe: "Josh." Josh: "Mr Sobz." Josh drove us out the airport to Sandton. I was in a new city but it felt like dejavu. Me: "I've been here before." Lakhe: "you remember joburg?" Me: "was I with you?" Lakhe: "no babes. Maybe ubuhamba for umsebenzi." he was staring at his phone typing furiously. Me: "what did that phone do to you?" he didn't hear me. Me: "yoh." Lakhe: "hm?" Me: "nothing." Lakhe: "hayi man Spho." he snapped. Me: "you're busy!" Lakhe: "ndik'hoyile njena uske ubene attitude." Me: "ndilambile ke. And it would be nice if I could get a nice thick unhealthy burger." Lakhe: "where do you want to eat then?" I shrugged. Lakhe: "Mugg n Bean? Steers? McDonald's? Burger King? This is as unhealthy as it gets." Me: "McDonald's." Lakhe: "uske wayi fan lately." Me: "I only ate it once. Brika motho." Lakhe: "ok'salayo..... Fan. Josh, please order us McDonald's, one McFeast medium meal, Sprite for cooldrink no ice and just my normal breakfast for me." Josh: "yes sir." he stopped at a gorgeous hotel building. Me: "bendibuzile." Lakhe: "pardon?" Me: "I asked about the hotel and you asked for what." Lakhe: "I will never book Four Seasons hun. Its already booked for me. Iza." Me: "awukavasi novasa." Lakhe: "yaziwa nguwe wedwa leyo. I'm leaving you at the spa to enjoy yourself. Mna ndiyothatha suit yam. Then be back for you okay?" I nodded. Wandikhapha ukuya kwi spa and we were welcomed by a sweet lady. Lakhe: "I'll see you in a while vha. Love you." he kissed me. Me: "love you too." She led me to a room where I could undress, put on a gown and lay on a table. After taking off the gown also I was covered appropriately and the procedure started. Ndik'xelele inyani ibindozelisa lento mna. I enjoyed it yes and didn't want it to stop. She rubbed those oils on my body slowly. This was life. After I was done I went to the sauna and sat there just to steam. Lakhe: "baby?" he walked in. Me: "hey.." Lakhe: "kutheni ingathi unxilile nje. Bakwenze ntoni ababantu?" I giggled. Me: "they almost put me to sleep." Lakhe: "that's a good thing." he pulled me on top of him and kissed my lips. Me: "wenzantoni." Lakhe: "we have this whole room to ourselves. For quite a while." Me: "I told you no sex is happening. You're still grounded." Lakhe: "ha.a baby sungcola please. Ayifani nawe lonto." Me: "hayi mfana. Yeyiphi efana nam?" Lakhe:

"just once mntuwam? Ndagqibela nini uviswa kamandi?" Me: "ugezile kaloku." Lakhe: "how long am I punished?" Me: "I don't know. It'll depend on how sorry you are." he stared at me with the scary look. That was not going to work. I kissed his lips. Lakhe: "yazi ndinawo amandla akho but its fine. Suka phezkwam." Me: "eshee." I sat next to him. Me: "so I spoke to umama." Lakhe: "you did? Wathini?" Me: "well basically said she needs to stop this because utata akaphilanga. I Said some bad things to her and I feel guilty." Lakhe: "what bad things?" Me: "I said if my dad found out and got sick because of this or dies, I'd never forgive her." Lakhe: "I would've said the same thing. At least now she knows you're serious. She values you more than her affair. She'll do the right thing." Me: "still though...maybe I should call and check if she's okay." Lakhe: "Spho. People need to feel a little sting to realize the delicacy of a situation. Let her feel the sting. She knows you love her." Me: "ne? Okay. I'm really hungry now." Lakhe: "I'm sure Josh is outside now. Masambe, I want to show you something endlini." Me: "endlini? I thought we were staying here at the hotel." my eyes glittered. Was it obvious? I loved the hotel. I don't want to leave. Imagine waking up to a massage for 3 days. No bhutiza. Sihleli ke namhlanje. Lakhe: "no. We can't stay here. My holiday house isn't that far. Let's get going." andatyhafa. We got out the steam room and dried off. Me: "I'll shower at home." I said the word 'home' with a disappointing tone. I was depressed. He walked me out after getting dressed sayongena emotweni. I could smell my Mcfeast ungena kwethu and shame ke I was lusting over it like a hungry dog. I knew the rule was no eating in the car but I was dying. Ndaziva ndines'ngqala. He looked at me. Lakhe: "and then?" Me: "how long till we get home?" I was near tears. Lakhe: "like 2 minutes. What's wrong?" Me: "hungry." Lakhe: "we'll eat when we get home." yangathi undihlaba ngala folokhwe ka sathana. What fuckery was thiiiiissss! I felt like dying shame. Ixesha was just after 1pm. Oko ndandivuke ngo half 6. Me: "I'm gonna faint." he laughed. Lakhe: "and I'm the dramatic one." the car parked in the driveway. To be truly honest I didn't have the time to absorb the beauty of the house. I didn't care at all. All I wanted was to get in and eat. The only thing I could think of was that first glorious bite of that burger. Jesus take the wheel. I grabbed my brown paper bag ndayoma emnyango wase ndlini. Lakhe sure took his African time offloading everything wade wazovula. I walked into the house, the first chair I saw, I grabbed and sat down. Lakhe: "awundilindi nondilinda." Me: "uhluthi kaloku wena." I sipped my cool drink first taking out my burger. The smell was getting closer. Lakhe was standing in that same position, he looked around. Me: "what is it-" Lakhe: "Shhh." he listened carefully and looked around. Lakhe: "There's someone here. Buyela emotweni Spho."

Me: "I'm not leaving you here alone." Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi. Take your food and go." Me: "no." Lakhe: "why are yo-" "Hello?? Who's out there?" a woman's voice called out from down the passage. Finally she appeared with a towel around her body. She had a short cut weave on and walking barefoot. Wow Lakhe. I stared at him. Another one? Lakhe: "What the hell are you doing here Nosi!!" Nosi: "I'm so sorry. I didn't know you'd be he-" Lakhe: "Uzothini wena apha! You're supposed to be in school!" a man appeared behind her. "what's going on here?" Lakhe: "My God." he placed his hand on his forehead. Lakhe: "Nosi!!" Nosi: "uxolo bhuti." Lakhe: "GET.....Now." she could put the rest of that sentence together herself. She pushed the man back. Nosi: "you idiot! Ubusiyaphi-" Man: "I thought there was an intrude-" Lakhe: "you better get the fuck out of my house in 7!!! 6!! 5!!! 4!! 3!!! 2!!! 1!!!" wabuya umfana wabantu rushing out with his pants on enxiba nesikipa ephuma. Lakhe: "I'm so sorry baby." Me: "who's that." I finally took a bite of my delicious burger. Lakhe: "that's my sister. Yesesss!!!" he stormed to the bedroom. Ndatya ke mna mntaka dabs while she was on the chopping board. You would be surprised how that burger slid through me like water. By the time he came back I was left with one bite. Lakhe: "hayi baby. Sowugqibile?" I swallowed, preparing for my final bite. I sipped my cooldrink while staring at him. Lakhe: "you can't hear what I'm saying. Yuuh lo McDonald's wakho." I put down my cup and tossed the last piece of my burger in my mouth, chewed it and swallowed. Me: "is your sister okay?" I ate my fries. Lakhe: "you know what's more disturbing? This." he pointed to my meal with his head. Me: "so we're not talking till Thursday." I crossed my legs. Lakhe: "babe?" I ignored him completely. Lakhe: "baby, I'm just concerned. This isn't healthy and I just don't want you to be sick." Me: "I'm not sick." Lakhe: "baby. You need to stop attacking me. Andiyazi where this attitude comes from." I heard my phone rang and unfortunately he had my handbag. He fished for it wayikhupha. Me: "what are you doing?" Lakhe: "Dr Ferreira? Who's that?" I took my phone and answered. Me: "hello doctor?" Doc: "Hi Spho. I just called to tell you your results are ready. When will you be able to come to my office?" Me: "is it serious?" Doc: "I would rather I spoke to you face to face." Me: "uhm..I'm in Joburg at the moment I'll be back on Thursday." Doc: "I'll book your appointment for Friday then." Me: "okay Doc. Thanks." I hung up. Lakhe: "and...then?" Me: "nothing babe." Lakhe: "hayi Spho. You went to see a doctor without telling me? Why?" Me: "its nothing." Lakhe: "its something. Ndicela singafihlelani izinto please." Me: "but-" Lakhe: "No. Tell Me Spho." I sighed. My heart was in my throat. Me: "I thought there was something wrong with me." Lakhe: "wrong with you how?" Me: "like my womb...I don't think I can carry babies-" Lakhe: "that is absurd Spho! Everyone has accidents it doesn't mean it was your fault. You can have another baby when you're ready. Ayizokwenza soon as possible but it will happen. Uthini udoctor?" I looked at him. I didn't want him to panic. It wasn't that serious mos, all doctors do this. I needed to carefully choose my words. Lakhe: "My God Spho!!" he stormed out of the house. To be truly real, I was also panicking. Why didn't the doctor just tell me nothing was wrong? Because nothing is wrong. "hey." I turned around ndadibana noNosi. Me: "hi. You okay?" Nosi: "yeah. Is he gone?" Me: "I think so." Nosi: "good..cuz I don't think I can face him. I'm Nosi by the way, his sister." Me: "Spho, his fiance." Nosi: "oh, you're the Spho. You're so gorgeous. What do you use for your face?" Me: "Clinique. But andifakanga niks right now. I just came from the spa." Nosi: "lovely. You're a lucky lady. Bhuti is barely emotional. I heard you arguing just now." Me: "ahh...he's kind of, still bare." Nosi: "its improved. Want some tea?" Me: "no thanks. I just had some.....of this." I put my paper bag ndayoy'faka emgqumeni. Nosi: "haha. Uyafana noSandile. He doesn't care what time it is, he's always eating McD's. How is he?" Me: "I'm not really sure. I haven't seen him in a while." Nosi: "oh...mom called me. I think last week. She was over reacting on the phone talking about how bhuti brought a girl home and so forth. She's mean at times, but the best thing is to beat her at her own game." Me: "I can't really disrespect Lakhe's parents." Nosi: "no boo. That's not how you do it. Mom, is a real bitch when it comes to other women. She intimidates people and feeds off their fear. Do not let it happen. Own your place and stick to it." this little girl. Me: "so what do you do? Uyafunda?" Nosi: "I wish. I travel a lot. I just ended up in joburg on Sunday. Now, I'm thinking of going to Mozambique. Hey, you should come with me." Me: "hahaa! Really-" Lakhe: "she's not going anywhere with you. Sit." was he talking to me or her? Hayi ndakhe ndamjonga. Nosi sat down. Lakhe: "what state of mind made you bring a full grown man inside my house?" Nosi: "I didn't think you'd come here bhuti." Lakhe: "that is not an answer. This is my house Nosi! Therefore, no men are allowed in my fucking house!" Nosi: "I'm sorry." Lakhe: "no you're not. You're only 20! You should be in school! Studying something. I don't give a fuck if its about clothes, just do something ngobomi bakho! Do you know how many kids out there want this opportunity? Do you know abanye abantwana banqwenela abazali babo babene Mali yobasa kwi university noba yi college e-cheap. And here you are, traveling the world on my fucking expense. All you have in your name is a poor matric certificate. Not because you're dumb, not because you're stupid. But because you're bloody lazy!!!"

Nosi: "but bhuti I'm taking a gap year." Lakhe: "your gap year will be spent in community college upgrading your matric certificate. Uyandiva? I'm not doing you any more favours. I'm taking your Jeep and your allowance is cut to 0. You will be living with other students. You will understand what struggle is today." Me: "Baby. This is a bit too harsh." Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi. Akeva lomntana." Me: "you're making her worse!" Lakhe: "then uzoyofunda eQueenstown ke. We'll see how walking to school and eating sardines for breakfast lunch and supper will make her worse." Me: "babe." Lakhe: "end of discussion. I'm not having this." Me: "Nosi, please give us a minute." she sadly walked to the bedroom. Me: "babe. Nosi isn't doing this because she wants to. She's not being paid attention to, she needs attention. Its a desperate cry for help. Can't you just sit down with her and talk about what she wants? Stop making decisions on her behalf she's almost 21 now. Thetha naye like an adult if you want her to act like one." Lakhe: "I don't have the time for that." Me: "let me then." Lakhe: "let you what? Awukwazi nondixelela ba uya kwa gqirha kaloku wena you." Me: "babe." Lakhe: "no Spho! I had the right to know. What, were you gonna hide my baby forever now? I'm supposed to be there, supporting you, holding your hand! Kanti undifihlela into enkulu kangaka?" I became so confused. How did he get to that assumption? Me: "my lov-" Lakhe: "No. Don't sweet talk me. I have the right to be there for my angel." Me: "Lakhe, look at me." he looked at me. He was really upset. His jaws were tightened and his mouth set in a firm line. His eyes were blazing red staring at me. Me: "I didn't go there to check for pregnancy. I just went for a check up. She didn't say I was pregnant and we didn't test for that. She just did blood tests and other tests wazisa e-lab. She says ngoku the results are ready. I don't think its serious." Lakhe: "I don't believe you." and he walked away ndashiyeka ndikrawuzelela indlebe.

During the course of the day, ebeshiye card and disappeared to only Jesus knows where ndacela ke mna uJosh to take me and Nosi to the mall. We shopped for clothing at various top boutiques, plus...I did a little his and hers matching. ^_^ I also bought shoes and two bags for myself. Then went to have lunch. I was hungry again but just didn't know what to eat. Nosi: "you okay? You look faint." Me: "I'm just a bit hungry. Maybe we should eat." Nosi: "sure. I feel like having pizza. Something thick and cheesy." my tummy grumbled and mouth watered at the thought. Me: "let's go have pizza." we went to order our pizza sahlala phantsi and ate. Nosi: "I hope I didn't cause any problems between wena nobhuti. Especially that you're pregnant with his baby. That's why he's so stressed." Me: "I'm not pregnant. I promise. I just went for tests with a gynae and that's all it was. Nothing there." Nosi: "oh. Sorry." Me: "its fine. You didn't cause problems. Lakhe is a bit of a nut head at times. I really think you should make him proud though. Show him that you're not just wasting money." Nosi: "but I'm not. Look." she unlocked her phone and went to her gallery. She showed me pictures of artwork. Beautiful pieces. Like a gold mine type of thing. Nosi: "I've been helping these people get their equipment, get space to paint and work, give them a place to stay and food. Then find them a sponsor." Me: "oh my God Nosi. That is so sweet of you." Nosi: "I don't like seeing people suffer because of being homeless and poverty. When ubhuti said that I'm useless and funeke ndiyohlala kwi struggle, it actually really hurt. Yes I'm spending his money.....but I don't want to hurt my latest team. I'm all they have." she showed me a video. They were in a studio, she was talking in the background and encouraging the few people there. They looked young. Although in their dirty clothing and unwashed hair. She was really helping them. Me: "this is what you want to do?" she nodded. Nosi: "the only thing." I would've thought rich girls only wanted fashion and cars and hair appointments. This was so rare. Was it possible that Nosi was nothing like Stella? Me: "I'll talk to him when he's calm. This is a great thing Nosi. Also I do want to encourage you to go to school. For yourself. Still, you'd be helping these people." Nosi: "Luphumelelo. That's what I call them." ndaske ndahlutha. I was really impressed, I was so expecting a spoilt brat. Me: "you're a Godsend. Come, let's go." we finished up and went to do our hair and nails. When we were done, bekusekubetha u6. Yakhala phone. I answered. Me: "hello." Lakhe: "I hope and pray, you're with this child." Me: "yes I am." Lakhe: "Niphi? You and me have a seminar to be at ngo half 7 namhlanje." Me: "we'll be there just now." I hung up. We left for home, still being driven by Josh. Sayofika endlini. Lakhe was half dressed, ethetha efownini. He had earphones in and was focused really hard. He looked really yummy enxibe la brukhwe yodwa and no top on. I craved him so bad. He looked at me with a disapproving look. Lakhe: "I'll see you later Paul." he hung up. Lakhe: "you need to get ready we leave in 45." Me: "baby-" Lakhe: "Spho." Me: "are you still mad at me?" Lakhe: "when was I mad." I took the paper bags of clothing to our room and went to shower ndabuya ndathambisa and looked for a dress in my new clothing. After wearing my black lace under I slipped on my navy dress. It had shoulder sleeves which cascaded into an open back. It clung onto the top on my ass. Showing the round curve then had a long slit from the top side of my left thigh. I took out a red pair of 4 inch pumps. My short hair was already styled thank goodness. I wore a gown over my dress and did my make up ndagqiba. Lakhe came in xasendigqiba. He continued dressing engandijonganga. With his navy pants, he wore a white shirt and baby blue blazer and a navy tie. He wore his happy socks and red Guiseppe Zannoti gentleman slippers. I wanted to die. Engesemhle umntuwam ingathi ngunopopi. I looked at my diamond ring on my hand. Yep, that's my husband. I took off the gown ndayixhoma kakuhle on the hanger. I went to fetch my clutch. Me: "I'm ready." he stared at me. His mouth couldn't close. Me: "we're gonna be late. Iphelile 45 minutes masambe." ndatsho ndiphuma eroomin. He followed after me uphuma phandle. There was a limo waiting for us. Josh was standing outside smiling crazily. Ndayongena. Josh: "you look stunning Mrs Sobz." Me: "thank you Josh." Josh: "dapper as always boss." Lakhe: "you know it." we got in the ride. Wayongena naye and played some soft music. Lakhe's eyes were glued onto the slit of my thigh. Until he clicked on a button, which divided our section of the back from Josh. Eliminating all music as well. It was a black window where he couldn't see us and we couldn't see him. Lakhe: "we have exactly 15 minutes till we get to the venue." Me: "is that so." I watched the houses while we drove slowly by. We were traveling by presidential speed. Quite slow if you ask me. Lakhe: "bhabha.....I know I've been acting silly." Me: "really?" I knew what he wanted. I wanted it too. Who the hell was I fooling? Lakhe: "baby.....I want you.....right now.....asoze kuphinde kulunge if I don't release. At this minute." he was sweating. Me: "I told you we're not having any sex. You're still grounded." he grabbed my face gently and kissed my lips. Lakhe: "I'd rather be punished another 6 months for what I'm about to do." his hand was between my thighs. He kissed my neck and rubbed softly. I was being weak. It felt so good though because he belonged to me anyway. He pulls up my dress and bites on the lace underwear, dragging it down. I undid his pants, pulling down his zip. Out popped his machine as majestic as I missed it. Lakhe: "Shhh....." he whispered onto my lips, pushing himself in....

At the function we barely heard what was said. His hands kept touching my thighs and kissing my shoulder. Me: "baby mani....people are watching." Lakhe: "because I have the most beautiful lady in the room. Let them." when the whole seminar was done we got ready to dash out. Unfortunately, a certain Mr Shaman called on him. Shaman: "Mr Sobukwe. How are you? Its been a long while." Lakhe: "hi...I'm doing great Mr Shaman. And yourself?" Shaman: "I'm good. And this lovely lady?" he held my hand. I shook it once and he kissed it tenderly on my knuckles. Lakhe: "this is my wife." he said coldly. Shaman: "Wow. Just when I thought I was gonna beat you to it." he chuckled. Lakhe just stared at him without a trace of a smile. Shaman: "anyway, it was great seeing you. Nice meeting you as well Miss." I quickly smiled and he walked away. My fiance and I walked toward the door, again we were stopped by some couple. At this point Lakhe was in no mood at all. Lakhe: "Magole." Man: "I didn't think you'd make it." Lakhe: "I did." I thought the whole reason we came here together was that I meet his business acquaintances. Now uqumbile. Man: "hi sisi. I'm MaGee." Me: "Spho, Lakhe's wife. Nice to meet you." Man: "Sobz is married??? Whaat?" Lakhe: "yes. Almost." he smiled. Man: "wow. Congratulations man." Lakhe: "thank you. We'll catch up later?" Man: "sure no prob." we finally managed to leave after about 20 minutes of stopping and talking. In the backseat, being driven home, I could tell he was extremely tired. My phone rang in my purse, ndayikhupha kanti it was a deadly trap. Brandon was written all over the screen. Lakhe: "please answer your phone." Me: "its not that important-" Lakhe: "yiphendule kaloku. It will be nice and short." Me: "haib-" Lakhe: "are you cheating on me Sphosenkosi?" Me: "NO!!" Lakhe: "then answer your phone." I answered the phone. Lakhe: "uyifake ku loud speaker I wanna say Hi." Khange ndiyenze ke lonto. This was my phone not ours. Me: "Hi Brandon." Brandon: "hey babe. How are you today?" Me: "I'm good and yourself?" Brandon: "not too good. Its been hectic at the hospital lately, I had two cardio transplants and had to give analysis on a neuro. There was this bus accident and the whole hospital is a mess. I've barely slept." Me: "I'm so sorry to hear that. Hopefully things have slowed down?" Brandon: "kind of. My patients are recovering well. I'm just missing you that's all." now I didn't know what to say. Me: "I'm glad things are going well. How's Tammy." Brandon: "uhm...she's fine. Why?" Me: "just asking." Brandon: "ah, she's okay. Anyway, is there a chance where you could fly over this weekend. I'd really love to see you." Me: "oh....uhm Brand....There's something I need to tell you." Brandon: "I don't like the sound of that. Listen, my pager just went off, I need to rush to one of my patients quickly, I'll call you later okay?" Me: "alright. Good luck." I hung up. The car was tense. Phof it was only our section. Lakhe: "uyakwazi uyihlisa incanca yomntu shame." I wanted to chuckle but I knew he was being serious and that would be a bad idea. Me: "baby." Lakhe: "hayi sisi. Fownela Brandon wakho. You don't even bother telling him about me." Me: "I was about to-" Lakhe: "yet you didn't want to put him on loud speaker. Yinton Le kungafunekanga ndiyive?" Me: "nothing!! Yitshomi qha kum uBrandon and I'm going to tell him about you. He's busy at hospital." Lakhe: "hospital? Is this the doctor?" Me: "no man. Brandon is in Cape Town. He's a cardiothoracic surgeon." Lakhe: "like I give a fuck. He could be a carpenter for all I care." he folded his arms. Lakhe: "Inoba ikwenza happy lonto ne? That he's a surgeon.

Busy slicing people up." Me: "you're being petty." Lakhe: "kwamna? Huh. Wow." Me: "babe." Lakhe: "no....don't. Its pretty clear Kukho something ngoBrandon. And ishushu itshisa ulwimi." the car stopped. We'd reached home. He got out immediately and left me there staring after him. So I guess I'm not getting the D tonight.

In the morning I was woken up by his voice but engathethi nam. He was on the phone. Lakhe: "how much will that be?" I pretended I was still asleep but I felt my nose blocked. Lakhe: "that doesn't matter. As long as it covers up all expenses. I'll deposit it in a minute.....sure thing." he hung up. I coughed kabuhlungu and tried to sniff and unblock my nose. I sat up. Me: "hey." he was dressing. Me: "Uyaphi?" Lakhe: "meeting." Me: "babe. Are you still mad at me?" Lakhe: "why would I be?" wanxiba izihlangu zakhe. I coughed some more. Lakhe: "maybe you should give your best friend a call. Since he's a doctor and all. Wouldn't want the whole house catching that." he took his keys and left. Ndakhubeka ke bonanje but it was okay. I probably deserved it. I went to brush my teeth and came back to bed, took my phone and texted Brandon right away. "Hi Brandon, its not easy for me to do this. I got back with my ex. The one I told you about, we fixed things and we're getting married soon. I just thought you deserved to know." ndabeka phone, crawling back under blankets. I stayed there for hours watching TV. My whole body was aching and my chest was on fire. My nose felt swollen along with my eyes. Until I decided to take another nap. I woke up in an hour uLakhe eme ngase spilini. I got out of bed ndaye bathroom to rinse my mouth again. I ran myself a bath. Pouring some lavender salts and bath oils in. I undressed ndangena emanzini laying on my back against the tub. The water was warm and inviting yet I still sneezed and coughed. I was so tired and thirsty. Kunzima nentloko leyam. All I did was breath. My eyes fluttering closed. Lakhe: "Spho!!" I opened my eyes. He was rolling up his sleeves. Me: "mxim." I looked to the wall. Lakhe: "worse ubene attitude kodwa uyagula." he kneeled next to the bath and washed my chest and arms. I did absolutely nothing to help. He had to do all the lifting and scrubbing andimcelanga mos. Lakhe: "I need you to get up I'm almost finished." Me: "Lakhe khawuphume apha and find yourself something to do. You're crowding me man!" Lakhe: "crowding you? Ndiyakvasa mos Spho!!" Me: "ngubani othe ndifuna uvaswa nguwe? Ucelwe ngubani?" Lakhe: "I was helping yo-" Me: "I didn't Need your help!" Lakhe: "you know what? Mxim. Just whatever." he took the towel and wiped his arms. Me: "and like a coward you're going to run away again." Lakhe: "what did you just say???" Me: "akho Moya." Lakhe: "Your attitude these days is shitty. That's why I'm leaving! As a matter of fact, I'm booking your flight for tomorrow morning, you're going home. I'm not standing for this shit." he walked out the bathroom. Me: "Mxim. As if I would." I finished myself up ndaphuma emanzini ndazosula going to my bedroom. He was on the bed, texting on his phone. Ndathambisa and went to the kitchen to make myself tea ndabuya ndazoyiphunga in bed. I took my phone and texted Zingi. Hayi ke wandibalisela u-friend nge get together aye kuyo kunye ne-drama yayo. I started laughing hysterically kunzima uphefumla. Mind you ndimane ngokhohlela ndithimle kulo process. He gave me a cheese boy side look. Probably disgusted by me spreading germs all over kodwa I cover my mouth with a cloth at all times. I finally finished my tea ndikwi nyembezi zohleka and put the phone also down. Last I checked, lo uhleliyo had a dinner to get to. I called my dad to check up on him but he was still at work. Yakhala epalini. Brandon's response to my message finally came. "Hey Spho. Sorry for the late reply. Although I don't understand why you're back with him, I hope you're happy and he treats you like royalty. Much Love. Take care." that was sweet of him. Nosi came into the room after a little knock. Nosi: "tshin bhuti usekhona? Hi Spho, I made you something to eat. You haven't eaten all day." Me: "thank you Nosi. I'll try get this in." she left us alone again.

Lakhe: "uhleleli nton imini Le Yonke ungatyi?" I ignored him and picked at my food. Lakhe: "ndithetha nawe Sphosenkosi." Me: "why ungenothula?" Lakhe: "hehake." I started eating but couldn't finish because my chest and throat really hurt. I put the food aside ndatshona ezingubeni. Lakhe: "Spho." he pulled me closer to him. Lakhe: "why are you acting crazy? And insulting me?" Me: "nawe mos undishiye emotweni wazongena apha and ignored me all night." Lakhe: "after what you did? Bufuna ndithini mna? Praise you? Hayi ubu unfair kodwa Spho. I always do what you say kodwa when it comes to Brandon kukho specialty." Me: "he's my best friend-" Lakhe: "all of a sudden? Where has he been all this time?" Me: "he says we lost contact. I remember him from my childhood Lakhe. He's very special to me." Lakhe: "then kutheni mna kungafuneki ndimazi?" Me: "its too soon. All in due time." Lakhe: "masambe siye kwa gqirha. We need to check you out." Me: "for what?" Lakhe: "your health baby." I didn't trust that at all. He was going to do something. This was another distraction. Me: "I'm not going anywhere." he calmed too quickly for my liking and his mood from angry to loving. Something was amiss. Lakhe: "baby. You're sick... You need the doctor.....ASAP. Get dressed." Me: "you have a dinner to get to." I blocked. Lakhe: "its nothing I can't miss." Me: "I just need a chemist." Lakhe: "why are you so afraid of going to the doctor? Are you hiding something from me?" I shook my head. Lakhe: "you lied to me? About your previous visit?" I shook my head again. Lakhe: "then what's the issue? If There's nothing wrong." Me: "I...don't feel like being outside. If I could just get medicine-" Lakhe: "no....actually I want us to go to the doctor. So if you're hiding something. It would be best for you if you told me right now." Me: "I told you everything." Lakhe: "I don't think so... You wouldn't be so against ukuya kwa gqirha." I was afraid also....he was planning something else. I know him. Me: "I'm not against it. I just think....I should let it die down." he was staring at me now. With lazy eyes and he bit his thumb while at it. I panicked. Lakhe: "fine....no doctor." he went to the kitchen wabuya namanzi. What was his mind working on? Lakhe: "ina. Sela." I drank some water ndayigqiba glass. He poured again ndaphinda ndasela. Me: "enkosi." I sat in bed for a while. About 30 minutes later ndatshiswa ngumchamo. So I got up. Lakhe: "bamba apha baby." he gave me a plastic bag waphakama naye. Me: "what's this." Lakhe: "open it." I checked inside. Two small blue boxes. They were home pregnancy tests. Lakhe: "shall we?" ndaske ndomiwa.

Me: "andizoyenza ke lonto mna." Lakhe: "ngoba kutheni? Umithi?" Me: "no I'm not! You just need to trust me." Lakhe: "nako ukwazi undifihlela ngo Brandon." Me: "mxim!!" I went into the bathroom ndayiqhaqha lento. I pee'ed on the first one ndamnika. He took it and walked around the room staring at it. When I was done ebathroom ndabuyela ebhedini. Lakhe: "awuyenzanga eyosbin?" Me: "no. One is enough." Lakhe: "okay." thank God he let that go. Suddenly he jumped on the bed excitedly. Oh My God..... Lakhe: "its negative. So ubusoyika ntoni kengoku?" why did negative make him so happy? He didn't want a baby? Me: "I told you mos andikho mithi. Andiyazi bufuna ndithini." Lakhe: "Great. Now funeke sikuse kwa gqirha for this flu. Its really nasty babe." Me: "later." Lakhe: "but we leave tomorrow morning love." Me: "then ndizoya xandise bhayi." Lakhe: "is there something wrong?" Me: "No baby." actually, I forgot again. It was a regular thing now and it was beginning to bother me manyani. All this time ndihleli and I forgot I had driving lessons. All that money paid, went down the drain. Lakhe: "is it something I said?" Me: "I forgot my driving lessons. Like I'd forgotten the helpers' interviews, like I'd forgotten the ducks. I keep forgetting." Lakhe: "babe. Not everyone remembers everything." Me: "except you." Lakhe: "because I'm used to it. Take your time and enjoy baby." he hugged me. Lakhe: "I want you to get better, only focus on yourself. Yonke enye izolandela. Do you really need to learn driving so soon?" Me: "its been over 2 months now. I want to get back on the road!" Lakhe: "okay baby. Tomorrow. Sizobuyela ebhayi, I'll get you a professional teacher." Me: "thank you." Lakhe: "just two hours a day though." Me: "that's all I need. Kutheni ungayi kwi dinner yakho?" Lakhe: "my wife is sick, I need to take care of her." Me: "I want us to talk though." Lakhe: "ndizophinda ndixhaywe ngoku?" Me: "no. About Nosi." Lakhe: "I've made my decision Spho, uzoya eQueenstown." Me: "ucimba akukho madoda eQueenstown? Do you really think she's going to be stranded pha ngenxa ungamphi Mali? A little reminder ke Phof...your new friend uDumi, do you think his young girlfriend is moneyless? Hm? You do understand that utyiwa ngu Dumi lamntana in return for clothes and food. Probably even tuition fees and turn up money, plus transport-" Lakhe: "Okay!! I get it." Me: "getting her away from the city won't help at all! Hlala phantsi naye uthethe naye ba kwenzeka ntoni. She spoke to me, and I am impressed with what she's doing. Its your turn to sit her down and talk to her. Guide her as a big brother not a boss. Maybe, just maybe, she'll listen to you!" Lakhe: "so you're saying uzobane sugar daddy." Me: "nobody calls them that anymore. They're called blessers. And trust you me, you don't want your little sis caught up kulanto. Imagine one of your older business partners on t-" Lakhe: "Stop it!! I get the picture unfortunately its going to be stuck in my mind. Thula ngoku." Me: "I'm just saying. Thetha naye and hear what she has to say. Don't yell." Lakhe: "fine." Me: "I want to call my dad. So you can go now." Lakhe: "besekukdala ndingagxothwa." he got up waphuma. I dialed my father's number and it rang wayiphendula. Khaya: "my princess." Me: "hi dad. Unjani?" Khaya: "I'm great. Zinjani iilali?" Me: "very peaceful. And a bit cold." Khaya: "wombathe ke. Are you fun?" Me: "ewe tata. Wena uright apho?" Khaya: "yes. I'm fine baby girl." Me: "ukhona umama?" Khaya: "yes, uyavasa." Me: "okay. I just wanted to make sure you're okay." Khaya: "that's sweet of you my angel. Listen, I want to surprise your mom before aphume kwi bath yakhe. We'll talk later vha. I love you mntanam." Me: "I love you too daddy." I hung up.

On Thursday we were back in PE by 11am because Lakhe had a meeting at 1pm with his staff. I on the other hand waited for my driving teacher wafika ngo 12 sahamba to go start at an empty space. He taught me the controls of the car, the movements I needed to make on a regular and finally started with the moving of the car. It seemed really familiar and easy. I quickly got the hang of it but I was still afraid to join the main roads. My lesson was over at 2 ndabuyela endlini to pass time. I thought there was supposed to be a cleaning lady here by now. I started cleaning the house for a while before my phone rang. I was just done ndayiphendula. Me: "yes?" Zingi: "Spho....I need your help bhabha." Me: "yeah sure. What's up?" she sniffed. Zingi: "I need you to fetch the kids from school and keep them till I'm sorted." Me: "is everything okay?" Zingi: "no....no its not." she was crying. Me: "Zingi, kwenzeka ntoni?" Lakhe walked in from work. It was around 4. Zingi: "I can't talk about it right now. I just need time by myself." Me: "okay. Alright hun. I'll go fetch them. Zimi naye is she at creche?" Zingi: "she's at aftercare now. Lulonke is at rugby practice." Me: "okay. I'll be there shortly." I hung up. Lakhe: "hey love." Me: "hi sthandwasam. Baby?" Lakhe: "what is it?" he bit on his apple leaning on the kitchen counter. He looked so adorable and free in that position. Me: "Zingi needs us to take care of the kids. I think something happened." Lakhe: "oh...yoh. I wonder." all he did was stare at his apple ke Phof. Me: "babe." Lakhe: "I hear you hun. Masambe kaloku, then we'll go past their place and fetch their clothes." Me: "perfect." we took his big car. He drove to Zingi's place first. Maybe it was best we assessed the situation before fetching the kids. Zingi's car was outside the garage ndayongena endlin with Lakhe. She was on her couch ezombathe ngengubo. The house was a complete mess. Me: "Zingi! What happened?" I started picking up the pieces on the floor. Zingi: "I don't know Somehow, I thought everything was perfect and I was the whore. Instead I got played." Me: "what are you talking about?" Zingi: "Dumi has been seeing this girl. Some chick ofunda eNMMU. He pays her fees. Buys her expensive clothes. Hair. Takes her out.....that's why ebengenalo ixesha lam Apha endlini. Because he was out there getting some cheap ass." she cried. I hugged her. I felt guilty for not telling her the truth in the beginning. Lakhe was cleaning up ecaleni evale umlomo wakhe. Umazi ngongathandi uzifaka. Me: "I'm so sorry." Zingi: "I confronted him and he told me" she chuckled. Zingi: "he said to me, kanti wena uyinton efownin yam.... He said that to me." I didn't even know what to say. Zingi: "he didn't even say he was sorry. He just took his things and left. Spho, my husband left home for iimpundu zase varsity!" Me: "maybe he is a bit embarrassed. Maybe he also needs space." Zingi: "I'm going to be away for a few days....can you please hold the fort for me? If I stay here, I swear I'll lose my mind. Ndifuna uyobona abantu bak'lo tatam." Me: "okay love. Not a problem. I'll take care of the kids." Zingi: "don't tell him anything." Me: "but he's gonna see the kids." Zingi: "of course he will. Ngabakhe. Just don't tell him where I am." I nodded. Lakhe: "should I pack them a suitcase? What do they need?" Me: "let me do that." I went to pack two suit cases for Zimi and Lulonke. Lakhe made Zingi some food and encouraged her to bath. Akeva yazi uLakhe but I'm glad he's a bit of a bully nakwabanye abantu bakhe bamve nabo. In no time, the house was clean. Zingi was fed and bathed. She packed a few clothes. The kids' suitcases were packed, the baby seat ready. Everything was in order. Me: "you can't drive unje though, at least wait for your eyes to swell down." Zingi: "no I'll fly to East London ooTatomkhulu bazondiphuthuma khona." Me: "okay. Uhambe kakuhle sisi." Zingi: "thank you so much guys. Your relationship is a blessing." Me: "aww enkosi friend. I think your Uber is outside." we all left the house. Eyethu indlela ibiyolanda abantwana, eyakhe isiya eAirport. Lakhe was smiling apha endleleni so before we got to Zimi's creche I asked. Me: "why are you so happy? Yazungcolile. Omnye umntana uva kabhlungu and here you are gleaming like a daisy." Lakhe: "hayi baby ndiyeke mna." Me: "izithi kanti nawe une blessee ndiyonitshisa nobabini mna nidibene ningandiqheli kakbi." Lakhe: "heee. Awuyiboni wena lento yenzekayo?" Me: "what are you on about?" Lakhe: "she's flying to East London right after she snooped on her husband's phone and found him cheating. Suddenly she's going to East London... Who lives in East London." Oh Wow. Me: "I did not see that coming." Lakhe: "she'll be fine. Relax. Sandile will take good care of her. Sizi gentlemen ekhaya. Its a thing." Me: "I think that 'thing' missed you because you are mean. Worse Uthi kumntana bantu uyanuka. You have no shame." Lakhe: "ha.a baby don't twist my words. I said, xa kaloku kwenzeka izinto ezinje akho need yoba kube muncu Yonke into makaphakame ayovasa." Me: "what in the world does that mean? It means Uthi yena unuka muncu. Wow. I'm done with you. Andiphinde ndingavasi ukho. Kanti use kangaka." Lakhe: "uzaw'qina wethu." he stopped at Zimi's creche ndayongena and signed for her. She started screaming and dancing around when she saw me. Me: "well someone is pleased to see me." she ran into my arms. Me: "hey pumpkin." I took her to the car ndamfaka kwi seat yakhe. Zimi: "Bhubhu!!" she held her little hands out. Lakhe: "hey you!" they blew kisses at each other. I got in the car and we drove to Lulonke's school. They were at the rugby field so we all got out the car sayoma with the other spectators. Just two parents and other kids. Lulonke was sitting on the bench, looking at his boots. We walked to him. Lakhe: "hey buddy. What's up?" Lulo: "hello uncle. Nothing much." Lakhe: "kutheni Uhleli wedwa apha?" Lulo: "they don't have space for me to play." Lakhe: "I think they can make space." wahamba waya ku coach. After a few minutes, he was called in. He ran nervously into the field. Lakhe: "go on boy. You can do it!!" Lulo: "I'm not sure uncle." Lakhe: "just grab the ball and run as fast as you can okay? You'll be great." and so on ran Lulo. Zimi clapped her hands for him. Me: "and how did that happen." Lakhe: "well....a bit of arm twisting with the coach. It was fun. I want to see that boy have fun. Look at him." he was running like a lightning bolt! Lakhe: "what the" and he scored a try. Coach: "your boy is quite an athletic. He runs like thunder but I'd rather have the other boys also get a chance." Lakhe: "why play if you not gonna win?" Coach: "they're 6. They just having fun." Lakhe: "the quicker they learn the better. Instead of sidelining him for his talents, how about you do your job and train the others to be just as good." Coach: "you might as well take over since you know what's best." Lakhe: "I'd love to, its just that being CEO and owner of the country's biggest hotels pays so much better..... You go boy!! That's the spirit!" the coach walked away. Me: "and then?" Lakhe: "aren't you seeing this? Lulonke yedwa ohlelsw phantsi because 'he doesn't have space to play' which is bullshit because he's not white. Look at that field. Its lilies all over. I'm gonn be here everyday, akazongadlali uLulonke ngenxa yala racist. He's gonn be on that field everyday." Me: "okay dad. Slow down. Mr CEO." Lakhe: "unomona ke. Mrs MD." Zimi: "mami, funi Lolopop." Me: "sizohamba ngoku vha baby?" she nodded. After Lulonke's practice sahamba. Lulo: "thanks Uncle." Lakhe: "did you have fun?" Lulo: "yeah." he smiled. Lakhe: "you did great out there." Lulo: "uzoza Saturday ne?" Lakhe: "kwenzeka ntoni Saturday?" Lulo: "we're playing a game." Lakhe: "for sure boy! Ndizobakhona. All of us will be there." Lulo: "I don't think my dad will come. He's busy." Lakhe picked him up. Lakhe: "don't worry about your dad. I'll be there. Okay?" the little boy smiled. So Lakhe enjoyed playing happy families with other people's kids but didn't want his own? Funny. He drove us home and when we got there, I ran the kids a bath. Lakhe: "I'll make dinner babe." Me: "sure." I undressed the kids ndabafaka emanzini. I bathed Zimi, Lulonke washed himself. After ndimgqibile lo umncinci I took her to get dressed in pajamas. Her mom had left her diapers for xa elala kuba ebengekamfundisi i-toilet. I put on her diaper ndamnxibisa. She also had this cute pink fluffy gown and kitten slippers. And Jesus, I could've just died of Cuteness overdose! Lakhe: "babe." Me: "yeah." Lakhe: "what did I do now?" Me: "you were excited when the test came out negative. Why?" Lakhe: "where is this coming from?" Me: "you clearly enjoy having kids around you." Lakhe: "I do...but why are you upset." Me: "I'm not upset I'm just confused." Lakhe: "okay. Okok'qala, I said this before, I'm saying it again. I want you to be 100% back on track. You are still getting on your feet, it would be unfair for mna ndisuke ndikumithise kodwa awukaphili ncam. Also that gives us a chance to know each other better, thus focusing on our wedding. You don't need the extra stress..." Me: "I'm sorry...its just that I wish I wasn't so dumb and gotten into that car only to crash, because today I'd still have our baby in my tummy. I still blame myself." Lakhe: "its not your fault. It happened and we're over it now baby. Maybe it wasn't the right time, kodwa liyeza ixesha. Now we get to practice, with.....where is she?" he panicked. Me: "she's behind the curtain." Lakhe: "I don't know what I'd do without you." he kissed my forehead. I really felt better that I'd let that out my chest instead of holding it in and being mad for no reason. I understood now and I was moving on. Me: "you could check on the boy. I'll dish up supper." I went to pick up Zimi from her hiding place andiyazi noba ebecimba I won't notice the pink slippers poking out underneath the curtain. Me: "come angel. Masiyotya." she giggled. Lakhe helped Lulonke get dressed in his pajamas sayohlala sonke at the table. We were officially temporary parents....

Friday morning I got the kids ready for school, Lakhe was on the bed using his iPad. Me: "babe. You need to get up, we're almost done." Lakhe: "okay." Me: "nawe funeka uphangele ke. Uzovasa nini?" Lakhe: "now." Me: "what are you busy with?" finally he looked up at me and put the iPad down. Lakhe: "nothing." waphakama wayovasa. Zimi was done with her things. So was Lulonke all I did was make sure they had breakfast and stayed clean. Lakhe came to the lounge 20 minutes later ephole enqayini Le angenayo phof. Me: "Masilakhe. Where's your suit?" Lakhe: "its Friday." ndaske ndamjamela. He was wearing his tight jeans that had a grip on the ankles. A crisp white shirt that also fitted him perfectly tight. He rolled his sleeves up and unbuttoned the two top buttons. My concern with this outfit was that he was wearing two completely different shoes. Zimi laughed hysterically until she fell off the couch engayekanga nohleka. Lulo: "uhm. Uncle?" Lakhe: "before you judge me." Me: "I'm already done." I packed the lunches. Lakhe: "wait. I'm not sure which shoe I should wear. My Boosts or my formal Louboutins?" Me: "your formal louboutins. Please hurry." Lakhe: "awukanxibi nawe nje." I undid my gown. Lakhe: "oh." wajika wayongena eroomin. Soon enough we all went to the car, taking the smaller Benz this time. I don't know why but ke. I put on my shoes while he drove. We dropped the kids off and we went to the office. I stayed for only two hours ndambona he's a bit busy so I called for a cab to take me to the doctor. Me: "Sobz." I peeped in his office. Me: "ndisaya kula appointment ke vha. I'll be back soon." Lakhe: "what appointment?" Me: "doctor. Its Friday." Lakhe: "right now?" Me: "yes." Lakhe: "wait for me then. I'm taking you-" Me: "uhm...no." Lakhe: "no what? Ndizohamba nawe ke kanti." Me: "you don't have to, I called a cab." Lakhe: "why would you do that? Cancel it." Me: "but why? You're busy njena." Lakhe: "hayi baby. Hayi. Don't do that. Kutheni ungafuni ndihambe nawe?" Me: "its not that at all. I just..." Lakhe: "you just what? I thought we're engaged to be married izinto sizenza kunye. What now?" Me: "okay then." Lakhe: "okay then means what?" Me: "you can come with." Lakhe: "une tricks kodwa wena yazi. Lonto zi-funny ezi tricks zakho." Me: "whatever." I cancelled my cab and we drove to the doctor's office together. Bendi tense in the car because I was nervous. I didn't want him next to me in that doctor's office. This was my business. We arrived and I booked my name ndalinda. Lakhe: "yazi ndilambile. What are we having for supper?" Me: "I'll cook something." Lakhe: "I was thinking maybe we take the kids out since its Friday." Me: "awuzityi take aways." Lakhe: "McDonald's and all the other unhealthy places. I think I trust Spur. They have nice veggies and steaks. Also a playground for the kids." Me: "okay." Lakhe: "also, the game is at 9am ngomso. Funeke sivuke early to take Lulonke there azoba ready." Me: "you're really into this ne." Lakhe: "being an uncle? Most definitely. I like spoiling kids." Me: "okay baby. Calm down." Lakhe: "stop stressing. Everything is going to be okay." we were called in by the doctor sayongena kwi office yakhe. Me: "this is my fiance, Masilakhe. Babe, this is Dr Ferreira." Doc: "lovely to meet you sir." Lakhe: "likewise." Doc: "Spho, I have your results here. It is my policy not to share results over the phone which is why I've called you to fetch them." Me: "is it bad?" Doc: "no, you have absolutely nothing with your womb. You're healthy." Me: "oh." I was so relieved. Me: "is there anything else?" Doc: "no dear. Here are your documents. Please sign here for me. If you ever feel There's a problem, feel free to call me." my heart was light and I felt my shoulders loose. I signed with a big smile on my face. Lakhe: "ubune stress santoni ke?" Me: "I don't know." we left the doctor's office, driving back to ours. Since it was Friday. The kids were coming out of school at 12. I had my driving lesson then so Lakhe would have to fetch them. Everything today was smooth sailing and going according to plan.

Saturday morning I was woken up early by Lakhe for a change. The minute I woke, I thought of my dad. He was probably expecting me home soon. I didn't know how I was going to tell him ndihlala noLakhe again. Or if I would just lie and tell him I'm with Zingi at her house, helping her with the kids kuba Dumini engekho. I just didn't know. I showered quickly and went to get dressed. Lakhe was dressed and ready ebusy nabantwana. Zimi was the only one refusing to get dressed. I had to chase her around the house until she got tired, wathatha dummy yakhe and stuck it in her mouth. I don't even know where she found it but I'm guessing kungoku bebeghubhulula bag noLakhe. I dressed her in white leggings and long pink top with pink pumps. Lakhe had managed by the grace of God to tie up all her hair into one bun on the top of her head. She was finally ready. Lulonke wasn't much of a hassle. He was done in no time with his rugby shorts and t shirt. They played barefoot so bekungekho need yee takkie he just wore his flops. I made some sandwiches and packed fruit and juice for the kids. Sahamba ukuya emotweni. Taking the big one today. Ungandibuzi nge chop and change of cars. I know nothing. We made our way to the field. A lot of the parents came out as well and I was surprised to see other black parents as well. Kodwa I didn't see black kids at practice. I kept wondering kwenzeka ntoni kakhle kakhle. Lulonke went for his warm ups and I finally got to feed Zimi who kept bouncing about on my lap. Lakhe: "you look beautiful." he kissed my cheek. Me: "you tell me everyday. Unazo nemini ukhe undibhanxe." Lakhe: "hayi baby I always mean it. You're always going to look beautiful." Me: "have you decided what to do with Nosi?" Lakhe: "she has good intentions. I like her idea. So maybe I might fund it." Me: "maybe? Its great baby." Lakhe: "I know, but is it viable. Does it work? So she gives artist a place to work, some food, what if the sponsors aren't interested their work? So far only two of them have been successful." Me: "don't you think with your name on it this initiative would go much further than just 2 artists? You have a big name. Use it." Lakhe: "the time." Me: "Lakhe, stop trying to prove you weren't right." Lakhe: "look, I'll give it some thought. Maybe on the condition that she returns to school. I'd do it." Me: "good." Lakhe: "I'm glad my family is taking to you. Utata ebek'buza." Me: "really? Phof I left rather suddenly ndingekho right so.." Lakhe: "yeah...and I got a hell of a lecture that day, ndathi ndibuya ebhayi ndavuthuzwa ngempama still. You got all these men so crazy for you." Me: "nooSandile bakufaka amanqindi uyongena kwi sliding door. Awuna luck shame." Lakhe: "hayi uthandiwe. Think that should be igama lakho lase mzini. Thandiwe." I laughed. Me: "mxim wena." Zimi was done eating ephinda kwakhona encanca idummy. Me: "ifunyenwe phi Le?" Lakhe: "in her bag. At least it keeps her grounded and looks adorable." Me: "she's two! Get rid of it." Lakhe: "while she's still in diapers? No chance. Yeka umntana Abe happy. If bingowam ebezobase beleni kungoku." Me: "2 year old? Breastfeeding?" Lakhe: "uzoyeka xa ena 5." Me: "uphambene." Lakhe: "utsho kum? Ndim lo uphambeneyo. I'll show you just now umntu ophambe-" Me: "I'm kidding!! But andicingi ndincancise ixhekwazi mna. Maybe at 2 angayeka." Lakhe: "3." Me: "I wonder libele likabani Eli lizobalide." Lakhe: "Lelethu." he smiled. Lakhe: "Lelethu." he said again. Me: "that is not going to be -" Lakhe: "our child's name!" he laughed. Me: "mxim. The game is starting." we watched the game as we possibly could, I mean 6 year olds playing rugby? Okay. It was cute though. Probably half time when the teams met up and discussed whatever strategy. I don't know much about rugby. I just paid attention to the score. Zimi jumped up and ran to the field. Ndaske ndayihleka before ndiyilungise. She was running to her brother and futhi wafika wabambelela kuye. Lulonke didn't even know what to do. Imagine Zimi is short already, all the team members are huddling in a bent position waske watyhoboza umntu wama naye. I hurried over to fetch her sabuyela kwi bench zethu. Engayihlekanga uLakhe. He was standing in a distance with other dads. Zimi: "mami, uBhubhu. Bhubhu!" she pointed at him. Me: "baleka uye ku Bhubhu." she got on her feet and paddled All the way to Lakhe. Wamtsala nge jean. He picked her up ndambona enqenqa on his shoulder. So for sleeping purposes she knows where to go. Good thing. I was chatting up to one of the mothers. She was Xhosa also, husband at work. rolls eyes she was an internal auditor by profession. Cute. Me: "so what does your hubby do?" She: "oh. He has a computer engineering company." she said proudly. Me: "that's really nice, nihlala phi?" She: "in Humewood, and you?" Me: "oh, we're in Kragga Kamma. Here's the man of the moment." Lakhe: "baby. Ulele ke umntu wakho andiyazi noba ndiyi bhedi yenu okanye." I see jealousy....ngoku bendihleli ndodwa Khange aqalise undihoya, now I'm with ufriend he has excuses to come. Me: "bring her blanket ndizom'bamba." Lakhe: "no its fine I got her. Nawe uright mos? Do you want juice? They're selling juice and hot dogs." Me: "no baby I'm fine. Enkosi." wahlala phantsi umntu. (let me breath inner peace.) Me: "I never got your name." She: "Onetta. And you?" Me: "Sphosenkosi. This is the man, Lakhe." he looked very far away ingathi akhange ave niks. Onetta: "oh that's nice. Hey, nanku Gummy. I didn't think he'd make it." she squealed in excitement and waved. I saw well built man, very light in complexion coming in the gates. He was dressed in sweatpants and a t shirt plus sneakers. Khange kuthiwe usemsebenzini na. Okay shut up Spho. You know nothing. I pretended to fuss over a sleeping Zimi while Onetta and her husband hugged and kissed. Lakhe: "baby, hold her please. I'll fetch her blanket from the car, I think Lulonke needs my motivation on the field. His game is a bit weak today." I took the child and he casually did that cat walk of his emane ngozijonga ke ubhuti wakho not wanting the spotlight on anyone else but him. Onetta: "Spho, this is my husband. Nangamso. Gummy, this is Spho. Umama ka Lulo." YIMA. My phone rang ndisazo cacisa. Me: "excuse me." I picked up. Me: "hey babe." Zingi: "hi tshomi ninjani?" Me: "we're great love. We're at the game." Zingi: "which game?" Me: "leya ka Lulo ye-rugby. Zimi just fell asleep, ukhangele uLakhe wambhaqa and ran to him. Xa emfunqule she fell asleep on his shoulder." she laughed. Zingi: "uwoah. How is Lulo doing?" Me: "he's doing great hey. He plays really well." Zingi: "I miss them...I'll be back on Monday vha." Me: "okay tshomi." Zingi: "please give them a kiss for me." Me:

"will do babe." I hung up. Lakhe was already here with the blanket. Me: "Zingi says hi. Ubuya Monday. Have you heard from uDumi?" Lakhe: "nope and akazoyokhangelwa ndim." he put the blanket over the baby. Me: "aren't you worried?" Lakhe: "I'm not getting cheated on, so nope." he kissed me full on the lips and walked off. You don't even know the amount of embarrassment I was in. No regard whatsoever for the poor man standing there. Me: "I'm sorry....he's too distracted by the game." Onetta: "totally fine. We'll meet him afterwards." xa sekukdala sendilibebe wavuka uZimi. She looked around first and looked at me. Me: "hey baby..." she smiled. Lakhe was on the sideline pha kude cheering and yelling like I've never seen him do before. The game finally ended ndaya kubo. Me: "Lulo, that was a great game boy. You're really amazing!" Lakhe: "I took a video of his victory. Did you see that last try baby? He's a super star baby. Andithi boy?" Lulo: "yeah." he blushed. Me: "hun, Kwathini kengoku ungahoyi kubuliswa? I introduced you to Onetta and you didn't say a thing." Lakhe: "I don't like her. She's forward. She looks like the type ethanda indaba zabantu and compares a lot ngee lifestyle. I can see the way she talks and it irritates me."

Me: "andik'understand yazi." Lakhe: "she's too much babe. The husband looks like he's being pulled around yena kqala akazazi noba uphi. I can't mna." Me: "okay. I just thought we'd make more friends. Thought it'd be nice." Lakhe: "we will baby. Just n-" Onetta: "Hi again!! We'll be having a braai at our house this afternoon would you like to come?" Lakhe looked at me. I just couldn't tell his facial expression noba ibisithi 'I told you' or 'what did you expect' Me: "we'd love to Onetta but we have family plans. Next time perhaps?" Onetta: "no problem love." I put zimi in her chair and buckled her in ndakhwela kwi passenger seat. Lulonke and Lakhe got in the car. I saw Onetta walking back to us kwakhona. Me: "Drive." I looked down at my phone so that ndingamboni. Lakhe drove off as haste as possible. Lakhe: "uthen ngoku awuyfun itshomakho?" Me: "she was holding her phone ezothatha number yam. I could tell." Lakhe: "thought you wanted more friends." Me: "maybe you're right. I'm still going to find friends though." he shrugged. We got home around 1pm. I took the kids out to the pond. We played with the ducks and went to the back of the house badlala khona with a ball. As I walked to the house ndiyo sela amanzi I step in and hear a voice in the kitchen. Khaya: "I just came to check on my son-in-law. Bendisithi ndiyeza iveki Le Yonke but I've been busy with work. How's everything going?" Lakhe: "uhm.....I.....its great." I could tell he was shit nervous. Khaya: "Why u-nervous? Is there someone here with you?" Oh my God....

I instantly panicked. I didn't know what to do, so I quickly turned around ndabuyela kwabantwana. Me: "guys. We're playing hide and seek. Uncle is counting and he's going to come find us. Let's hide!" sabaleka nyani and slipped in through the sliding floor that leads to our bedroom. Kanti naye uzongena apha eroomin. The kids were hiding in the closet. Me: "please tell me you got rid of him." Lakhe: "absolutely no way I can do that. I offered to take him out for a drink and thank God he has agreed. So I have to go baby." Me: "not a problem. You want a jacket?" Lakhe: "Ikhona emotweni." Me: "how did he get in?" Lakhe: "I didn't close the gate ngoku besingena thina. I'll see you later vha. I love you. Kiss the kids for me." Me: "I love you too." he walked out the room and I waited until they left. Me: "Zimi." they came out the closet. Me: "Bhubhu cant find us so uyokhangela utata to help him. Come lets go Eat." i cannot believe they actually bought that because they laughed and chased me to the kitchen. Lakhe had almost finished cooking, I just started where he left off. In a few minutes ndaphakela abantwana and they ate. Phofu it was Lulo that ate, Zimi was just watching TV playing with food in her mouth. I cleaned up in the kitchen still a bit nervous about my father and Lakhe spending time together alone. What did they talk about? Where are they going? When would they be back? All of these questions lingered in my mind for at least 2 hours before I heard the gate ring. I went to check who it was. The only man that didn't know how to enter this estate. The one that suggested its purchase. I opened for Lakhe's dad wazongena. I'd known it was him because he was driving the car I'd liked from first sight. He entered the door wancuma. Rob: "you're back?!" he came for a hug. I hugged him. Me: "molo tata." Rob: "hello my angel. How are you? You look well!" Me: "I am. Enkosi tata. Unjani wena?" Rob: "I'm fine mntanam." Me: "can I make you tea?" Rob: "please." Me: "that is Lulonke and Zimi. My friends kids. She asked me to babysit for her for the weekend." Rob: "lovely. Uphi uMpinga?" Me: "him and my dad went out for a while." its been a very long while now. I put on the kettle. Rob: "okay." Me: "is everything okay tata?" Rob: "yes. Everything is perfect. Iyandonwabisa lento yoba ubuyile. Yaziz, uMasilakhe uyak'thanda. He really does. I would love that you two put a date on it already." Me: "tata..." I blushed and made the tea. Just talking about this wedding was giving me jitters. I was going to get married!! Rob: "now I just hope Sandile finds someone too. I always thought he would be first. Lakhe was never that interested in commitment unless it was a business contract." I laughed. We had our tea in the dining room viewing the lounge for the kids supervision. Lulo: "sisi, can I go play playstation?" Me: "for an hour baby vha?"

Then come back for a break." Lulo: "okay! Thank you." he ran to the play room. Zimi could not be bothered because she was watching her Mickey Mouse Clubhouse. Rob: "have you thought of having kids?" Me: "Lakhe doesn't want kids yet." Rob: "nonsense. Does he think he's getting younger? Kutheni ephambene nje." I figured Lakhe never told his parents about my accident or the miscarriage. Me: "its still a bit early tata...maybe next year. Zimi, eat your food hun." she looked at me then back at her food. Waphakama waza nako kum. Me: "alright..." I fed her emane ngobaleka aye tv'in while she chewed and swallowed. Rob: "you're natural for this. Masilakhe would be ecstatic if he knew he'd be a dad. He always tells me he'd do a better job than me." we chuckled. Me: "he thinks everything is a competition right?" Rob: "don't tell him that." we laughed. Lakhe: "what's so funny?" he walked in taking off his jacket. Rob: "heeeey!!" Lakhe: "stop trying to distract me tata. Nihleka ntoni?" Me: "your food is in the microwave." Lakhe: "thanks my love, yuh. I'm starving." Rob: "good one." Me: "beniyephi?"

Lakhe: "just drove around plus he took me to his work. Met some of his colleagues. He said I was his son in law." he beamed. Lakhe: "oh and we looked through x rays and says that the next time I come I can watch from the gallery." Me: "oh." Yes, I was very disappointed that they had a perfect son-father day. I never even met his colleagues! I was never invited to sit at the gallery and watch him work! Wait.....was it because I was a woman? Did dad think about having a prince also? I was the only princess allowed! Rob: "so I'm being replaced now..." Lakhe: "by a surgeon. Yes. Haha get it? Because surgeons replace orga-" Rob: "I got it." he sipped his tea. So, ayindim ndodwa that feels side lined. Lakhe: "okay, I'm feeling a vibe. Not sure if its bad or ugly." Zimi came running back ezokhamisa, I gave her a spoon full waphinda wemnka. Lakhe: "Spho? Tata? Kwenzeka ntoni ngoku?" Rob: "what ever do you mean?" Lakhe: "its like anifuni ndibelapha. Ever since I walked in, ndingene kwi bhotolo ye tension." Rob: "no such thing." Lakhe: "Spho." Me: "yes?" Lakhe: "did I do anything wrong?" Me: "nope." it wasn't him, it was dad. He was the one that sidelined me. Or did I side line myself? I'm not sure about before, but ever since he was back, I hadn't been to his workplace. He never offered. I never asked because I thought it was too early. Lakhe: "I feel like I did. Please talk to me." Me: "you did nothing wrong." Zimi was back again, wakhamisa and left again. Rob: "I have the letter here with me Mpinga, uzoyithumela?" Lakhe: "ewe tata. I can't wait to finish." Me: "finish?" he kissed my cheek. Lakhe: "you look so beautiful." Me: "Lakhe." Lakhe: "I'm not allowed to say." Rob: "she already knows anyway." Lakhe: "no she doesn't tata. Its a surprise." I asked no further because bendisazi andiphinde ndiyixelelwe.

Later that evening, Lakhe and his father had a braai. It was only us three plus the two kids. Rob: "your brother has mysteriously disappeared again. Lord knows uyow'buya xasendilibe." Lakhe: "disappeared when?" Rob: "oko kwango lwesithathu." Lakhe: "njani tata ungatsho?" Rob: "I thought he was here with you. Uyamazi mos Sandile he comes and goes." Me: "did you call him?" Rob looked at the floor. Me: "what's wrong." Lakhe: "again tata???" Rob: "I didn't know he'd disappear again!" Me: "again? What's going on?" Lakhe was trying to call Sandile. Lakhe: "damn it Sandile!!" I didn't know what was going on. Lakhe: "he's gone....." Me: "wait....maybe Uhleli noZingi." Lakhe: "then call her and ask." I dialed her number and she picked up. Zingi: "hi hun..." Me: "hello. Zingi, is Sandile with you?" Zingi: "no babe. Bendithe ndiya ekhaya kaloku mna nje. Why would he be here with me? What's going on?" Me: "oh nothing tshomi. Bendim'khangela qha." Zingi: "okay." I hung up. Me: "he's not with her." Rob was visibly upset and remorseful. I rubbed his shoulder. Me: "I'm sure he'll turn up somewhere." I hope and pray he was okay. Especially that he has an illegal hobby and very strange habits, also unfamiliar anger problems. Lakhe: "did he say anything to you?" he was staring straight at me. Me: "uhm, no. We haven't spoken since East London." Lakhe: "did he say anything." Me: "no....he didn't." Lakhe: "Spho. Is there anything you know about Sandile that the rest of us don't?" Me: "no...." he's YOUR brother. Damn. Lakhe: "you look like you know something. You're too calm." he turned and walked back inside the house. I didn't even know where Sandile might have disappeared to. I went after him. Me: "Lakhe, I know nothing about Sandile. Why aren't you telling me what's wrong-" Lakhe: "he disappears when something is wrong or doesn't go his way. We can never trace him. He doesn't own a single bank card, he never uses the same name and has absolutely nothing in his names. He is a literal float! If he disappears, asiphinde simbone because There's no trace of him! The last time this happened he was gone for over a year. I didn't know if he was alive or dead. I can't afford to lose him again." his voice was shaky.

Lakhe: "not now." Me: "the day you came home and found him here was the day I bailed him out of jail. Some robbery of a bank or something, I don't remember clearly. He called the house efuna wena, I answered and he told me he needed to get out. I went to get him, but he asked me to keep quiet because he didn't want to upset you." Lakhe: "and you never told me this!!!" Me: "he made me promise!" Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi!!!! Uze ngabani kulendlu? Me or him? Where should your loyalties lie?" Me: "maybe I shouldn't have said anything. I'm clearly no help." I turned around to walk out. He grabbed my arm. Lakhe: "everything that happens, I expect you to tell me. I don't care if God Himself came down in a balloon and asked you to keep a secret, if that balloon lands on my property, I have a right to know. It might not be fair, but it applies to you too, if kwenzeka something, as my wife I have to tell you."

Me: "I'm sorry. I didn't want to cause problems between the two of you."

Lakhe: "its fine." he let go of me. Me: "I'll get the kids for their bath." Lakhe: "no baby I'll do it. I promised Lulo we'll shave his beard tonight. Take Zimi, I'll take him." Me: "he doesn't have a beard." Lakhe: "imagination baby. Stop being a buzz kill." Me: "oh wow." I went to go get the boy. Bayovasa. I bathed Zimi and today she just fell asleep right after. Rob decided to go lie down. I still had to call my parents but I didn't want to talk. The house was locked and everything in place I went to bed ndafika Lakhe engena naye in bed. It had been a long day. I'd looked forward to getting into bed and falling asleep. I got under the blankets. Me: "my back hurts....andiyazi bendisenzani that could've near damn broken it." I was also expecting a massage. Dololo sana.

Me: "baby?" Lakhe: "sorry babe. What's up." was he awake dreaming? Me: "back hurts." Lakhe: "oh, uzoba right vha." Me: "you serious???" Lakhe: "I'm kidding!" he laughed. Lakhe: "come here." I was on my stomach and he rubbed my back. Me: "was the day honestly perfect with my dad?" Lakhe: "no....because you weren't there. I missed you so much. I had to hold my breath in the whole time because I was afraid I'd slip up. I tried my best to be perfect." Me: "you already are perfect baby. You don't need to hold your breath in." Lakhe: "your dad is cool mntuwam. Kodwa he made himself clear that I shouldn't mess up." Me: "you think too much." Lakhe: "I don't want to mess this up.....this, is my dream." he kissed my back. Me: "must be nice huh." his hands moved slower. Lakhe: "the nice part about not having a baby yet, is that we keep trying...." he whispered in my ear. Me: "we agreed to not yet." Lakhe: "yes baby..buuuut.." Me: "but what? You are the most confused individual I know." Lakhe: "please?" Me: "please what?" Lakhe: "let's try." Me: "no baby...." Lakhe: "yes baby..." he kissed my neck. It tickled softly ndaske ndayihleka. Lakhe: "baby manii..." Me: "its ticklish." Lakhe: "uyathanda udlala wena yazi." Me: "I love you too." I looked at him, laying on my back. We kissed slowly at first. He finally let himself go. I could actually feel him calming..... then he suddenly stopped. Me: "what?" Lakhe: "oh my God.... That's why he's gone." Me: "don't tell me you're thi-" Lakhe: "he probably missed his court date! Or even worse, he's in prison." Me: "baby.." he was already on his feet. Lakhe: "which police station did you take him from?" Me: "Humewood. Wait for me-" Lakhe: "no baby. Abantwana kaloku. I'll be back as soon as possible." he was dressed and out the door in a wink. Lakhe drove to Humewood police station quietly by himself. When he arrived the station was quiet with only one constable behind the desk filling out papers. Lakhe: "excuse me, Mr Fani. I'm looking for my brother." the officer looked up at him. Fani: "what is his name?" Lakhe: "Sandile Sobukwe, he was arrested for robbery a few weeks ago." the officer paged through a book. Fani: "date?" Lakhe: "I'm not exactly sure but I think beginning of August." Fani went through the computer. Fani: "he was never here." Lakhe:

"yes he was, my fiance fetched him from here. On the day of his bail." Fani: "Nope. We have no one by the name of Sandile Sobukwe on our system. At all."

Chapter 34

Lakhe was back home in a short space of time which made me wonder what could have gone wrong now? Me: "baby? Kuthwani?" Lakhe: "they don't know him. They say he was never there." Me: "that's impossible. I went to bail him myself." he just sank into a chair staring at the floor. I sat on the opposite chair trying to think about conversations with Sandile. He's never for once mentioned angahamba. If anything, ngoyena mntu uhlala endlini. There was a slight rattling noise in the room. I looked at Lakhe, his hands were shaking, and his Rolex was rattling on the wood. He held on to the chair but he was still shaking. I wasn't sure noba ibingu msindo or what. He looked really pissed off though. Maybe some television would help ease his mind. Ndithe ndisaya kwi remote. Lakhe: "don't." I sat down immediately. Now what? Me: "baby.....maybe you should get some rest, we'll think of something tomorrow." Lakhe: "My brother is missing. What rest am I supposed to have apho?" Me: "Sandile was not kidnapped. Uphume ngokwakhe endlini wahamba. He is a grown man that can take care of himself!" he stared at me as if I was the devil himself. Lakhe: "Uthi kutheni?" Me: "undivile mos Masilakhe. Sandile is fine where he is. He's left before, wabuya. Uzobuya this time as well." Lakhe: "mxim. Problem yakho is that you don't think." waphakama umntu wemnka. And by that I mean, out the house, drive the car type of left. I sat alone in the dark and it felt like a light bulb just switched on in my head. I got up and switched the lights on ndisiya to the forbidden passage. I opened the door and clicked the light switch on for the hallway, ndawela uyongena kulamnyango wosbini. I felt the wall for the light switch and pressed it. Cwaka. The room was cold and dark. Me: "Sandile." I heard my echo. Me: "Sandile." something in me felt so strongly that he was actually here. I don't know how. Or why. Me: "Sandile please say something. I know you're in here." I stepped inside slowly. I couldn't see anything, I actually felt blind. Maybe he wasn't here. I was just hoping he would be. For Lakhe's sake. I sighed and turned away to walk to the door and I heard a small creek. I stopped. My heart raced at the possible threat that was somehow around me. I was beginning to sweat in a cold room. Me: "hello?" silence. I quickly walked to the door and ran out to my room. My heart was in my throat. I knew that tonight I wouldn't sleep a wink on my own. With Lakhe gone and the cold still shivering in my bones, plus having to protect the kids in the next room. I had to keep my door open. Who was I fooling? I got up and went to the kitchen to make myself tea ndayohlala on the living room couch switching on the television.

Naturally without so much as a blink, I stayed up till morning. I was watching Keeping up with the Kardashians and realizing how stupid and time wasting this show was but surprisingly entertaining. "Spho?" I looked up. It was Rob. I checked the time seyingu 6:45am. Me: "hello tata." Rob: "uleli apha?" Me: "hayi tata. I just got here." he didn't look like he believed me. Me: "I'll check on the kids." Rob: "Uphi uLakhe?" Me: "he left. Uyokhangela uSandile." I think. Rob walked to the kitchen. I went to the room occupied by the children. Zimi was awake and playing in her bed with teddy bears. Me: "come angel. Its morning." Zimi: "hello." I picked her up ndimsa kwi bath yakhe. We bathed and got dressed within an hour. Lulonke wavuka wayovasa naye. I fed Zimi her breakfast then started feeling woozy. The fatigue was coming back. I needed my rest. I tried calling Lakhe, the phone was on voicemail. I even left two messages for him to come back. Around 10am. I was starting to drink water and walk around to exercise. Someone rang at the gate ndayovula. I'd seen that it was Dumi. Probably concerned ngabantwana. As soon as he entered the house I could see the anger on his face. Me: "hello." Dumi: "hi Spho. Uphi uZingi?" she told me not to tell. Me: "I don't know. I'm just taking care of the kids." Dumi: "she's left me Spho. She left me!!!" Me: "okay. Calm down. She'll be back eventually." Dumi: "no she won't!! Uthathe izinto zakhe and left me. What am I going to do without her?" he cried. What an interesting turn of events. Me: "what happened?" Dumi: "she caught me.....I didn't know what to do.....I just froze and panicked. Ndaphuma endlini to get some fresh air and think. I can't lose my wife Spho. What the hell was I thinking!" Me: "what were you thinking kakade?" Dumi: "I don't know. Andizazi ndizokwenza njani without uZingi. She took care of me. Loved me. All I did was hurt her." Me: "okay. Dumi. You're going to have to calm down and give Zingi space to calm down too. When she is back, uzothetha naye and fix this right? I hope you're no longer with that girl. Dumi, you could lose your whole world trying to impress the streets. Those streets won't be there for you when you struggle. Kunini wakunyamezela uZingi. She was your one and only friend and number one supporter. You can't mess that up for umntu ongamaziyo Uzothini next. Do you think that girl loves you or your money? Would she stick by you? Where is she now?" Dumini: "she's....with her friends. Going to some party in Jeffreys bay." Me: "wena that time ulahlekelwa ngumfazi. She's having fun." Dumini: "I made a mistake." Me: "fix your mistake Dumini." I sat down. Dumini: "I'm going to take the kids with me vha. Thank you so much Spho. I really miss them and I can't stay in that house alone." Me: "I'll let Zingi know." he's their dad after all she did say he had access to them xa ebafuni. Dumini: "thank you Spho." now I was barely focusing. I just wanted to sleep. Rob: "molweni." he came from the bedroom. Me: "hi tata, this is Dumini, my friend, Zingi's husband and the father to the kids. Dumini, ngutata ka Lakhe lo. Mr Rob Sobukwe." Dumini: "Noo!!" Me: "huh?" Dumini: "thee Rob Sobukwe!" Rob: "in the flesh." Dumini: "my uncle and dad were such huge fans of you!" I was now confused. Rob: "why thank you.." Dumini: "Rob Sobukwe was the leading champion in boxing apha Eastern Cape. Also went on to win the heavy weight championship against the Beast. Back in the day, he was a super star!" he explained to me. WHAT. Me: "how come I was never told!" Rob: "oh hun....its so long ago." Dumini: "I'm so happy that I've met you. This has officially made my day. No, make that my year! This is so amazing! Lakhe never said a thing about this!" Rob: "he was never really happy about having a champion dad." Dumini: "but why? Its the coolest thing!" Rob: "Lakhe is not a boxing person. He's more rugby, soccer type of person. He hates boxing." Dumini: "he doesn't know art. Boxing is the best." Rob: "do you spar?" Dumini: "I used to with utatam. Its been a while now." Rob: "you should bring your gloves some time. The only other person better than me, who can knock out a street pole ngu Sandile. Now that is who you should be afraid of." Dumini: "haha...akasethule uSandile though." Me: "please don't test him." I yawned. Rob: "Spho, did you get some rest last night?" Me: "only a little bit tata." Rob: "then you should lie down. Ndikhona, I'll take care of the house and the kids with Dumini." Dumini: "yeah definitely! Its not like I have anywhere to go." Me: "okay. I'm just going to take 2 hours okay?" Rob: "alright mntanam." I went to my bedroom and crawled into bed. Oko bendisuke last night I didn't come back to bed. Something was making me uncomfortable here. I turned and looked another direction. Still. So I sat up and looked around the bed. Nothing was wrong here until the curtain blew wind lightly into the room. I got up ndaya kula curtain, closing the slightly opened sliding door. I went back to bed. Me: "what the hell is it!!" ingaba kutheni na. I took my phone again and called Lakhe. Still on voicemail. Yazi naye une drama e-unnecessary. Ngoku ebehamba ebesithi uyaphi? I forced my eyes closed and tried to get in some sleep which took almost an hour till I started drifting off.

I stared at the sun setting, behind the beach I kept saying. The ocean was calm and the water cascaded small little waves at the shore. I was waiting anxiously, he said he'd be here by now and it was getting dark. I watched the skies turn from orange to peach, then purple blue. The sky was a moisture of colors that symbolized the end of yet another beautiful day. Just as that last perfect purple color went down, he appeared from underwater walking toward me. "why do you insist on waiting here for me? You should be at home." his body was dripping wet. Me: "why do you insist on disappearing?" he smiled and walked up to my side. His hand rubbed my cheek. Sandile: "don't come here...when its time, I'll come home." Me: "what is it that you're doing?" Sandile: "taking care of our family. Go back home." Me: "Sandile..." he was fading away back to the ocean. Me: "Sandile!!" and he disappeared into the water. I jolted awake. My heart was pounding in my chest. I looked around the room. That stupid curtain was blown by wind again. The sliding door was open. I sat up straight. Who keeps opening that door? I never once opened it and it keeps opening, emveni koba nditixa. Lakhe walked out his closet ephethe outfit. He stared at me, I stared back. Lakhe: "nenzana ntoni emaphupheni noSandile. Ndlela okhala ngayo." he was being sarcastic as he put his clothes on the bed kakuhle. Me: "uvulwe nguwe lomnyango?" Lakhe: "omphi umnyango." Me: "the sliding door." Lakhe: "that door is closed." Me: "No, but...the curtain moved. Just when I woke up." Lakhe: "uhm....its closed." he revealed the door wabe evaliwe nyani. Me: "but..." my mind raced. Me: "someone was inside the room." Lakhe: "what?" Me: "someone, Masilakhe, keeps coming in here!! I didn't sleep here last night, I was in the lounge. Xandizongena to take a nap, that door is open! I closed it. Ndazolala. Now that I wake up, that curtain moved as if utyhalwa ngumoya." Lakhe: "maybe you're-" Me: "if you dare say I'm crazy!!!" Lakhe: "no baby. You're just tired and stressed." Me: "someone was here Lakhe. I could feel it." Lakhe: "baby. I know I left ndinomsindo izolo and a bit upset, I'm sorry, also There's no one here." he thought I was imagining things. Me: "I dreamt of him. Your brother." suddenly he kept quiet. Me: "wherever he is, usecamkwa manzi. And he doesn't want to be found. He says he'll be back on his own." Lakhe: "what?" he looked confused and I saw from the look on his face that kwamna kqala andiziva ndithini. Lakhe: "you dreamt that usecamkwa manzi and doesn't want to be found." Me: "yes. I know it doesn't make much sense-" Lakhe: "no it does actually. It makes perfect sense." ndiyabhidwa kengoku. Me: "Lakhe." Lakhe: "what??" Me: "yinton ngoku ingxaki?" Lakhe: "akhongxaki Siphosenkosi. Why do you think Kukho ingxaki?" there was definitely a problem. Bendisozela still but couldn't really sleep. Masilakhe went to shower. If he can be mad then I can be mad. Xakukho argument qho funeke aphume yena endlini ingathi utshiswa sisihlangu? Ha.a kaloku. I lay my head on my pillow pushing my hand under it. My hand caught onto something.....

I pulled out a small paper and unfolded it. There was just a small white flower inside it. The paper had only one word on it. "STOP." that was it. I stared at it for a good 10 minutes because Lakhe came out the shower. He was curious but ezixelele akazothetha uzondilinda. Nam ke andizothetha engekabuzi. I got out of bed ndayibeka on the dresser next to me. Lakhe: "Uyaphi?" Me: "home." Lakhe: "home? Why?" I could see the panic in his eyes. Me: "the only that kept me here longer were the kids. Bazohamba notatabo. Nam I should get going." Lakhe: "just?" Me: "just what?" Lakhe: "you're just gonna leave?" Me: "ubucimba ndizohlala kude kuthini? Ndithini kwabazali bam?" Lakhe: "utata is here for the negotiations nje. My uncle is also coming down." Me: "which means I should be home." Lakhe: "baby." he sulked. Me: "hayi Lakhe tshin." I made the bed. When I stood up straight from bending down, I turned around and he was standing right behind me. He wasn't pleased. Me: "yinton ngok-" Lakhe: "yinton Le?" he held the paper and flower." Me: "I found it under my pillow." Lakhe: "Kwathini ungatsho?" Me: "its nothing-" Lakhe: "yeah but what does it mean? Stop what?" Me: "I don't know Lakhe!!" I screamed. He stared at me calmly. Lakhe: "kengoku ungxolela bani?" Me: "you're frustrating me." Lakhe: "I'm frustrating you?" he stepped closer to me as if there was anymore space. Lakhe: "I frustrate you now?" he said in a very low sarcastic voice. I brushed my hands down his chest, ndimjonge emehlweni. Me: "what is your issue?" Lakhe: "nguwe umntu with frustrations." Me: "you're always meddling. And probing. Sometimes its a little too much." Lakhe: "I'd promised your dad I'd take care of you." Me: "hmm..." Lakhe: "uyayazi lento uyenzayo....." Me: "ndizothini ungayazi...." he held my waist and picked me up. I wrapped my legs around his waist he climbed on the bed tucking me underneath him, kissing my lips and skin. He dragged off my leggings and underwear, holding my thighs apart. Me: "Lakhe.....baby?" his mouth was already devouring between my legs. I held his head trying to close my open mouth. I moaned his name as he sucked and licked on the clitoris. Me: "baby!!" he came up to my face and kissed me again, I held his dick in my hand massaging it. He groaned holding on to the sheets. Lakhe: "faka mntuwam." I pushed him over and climbed on top of him. I held it, pushing it inside me. It slid up into position. Lakhe: "ohhh.....myyy..." I lifted myself up and pushed it back in. Lakhe: "baaabbyy..." I upped my pace, bouncing my ass on him. Lakhe: "yiima yimaa....wait baby." he held me down and breathed. Lakhe: "izondicithisa lento uyenzayo." Me: "yiyeke baby....please?" I breathed. In one split second move he flipped me over and I landed under him. He drilled in and out of me hungrily holding my body down. Me: "ooooh!!! Lakhe!!!!" my nails dug deep in his skin. Lakhe: "ooh. Baby wam.....I'm gonna cum...." I could feel the excitement inside me, the juices bubbling in me. He banged harder holding my body close. Me: "yeeesss!!!!" Lakhe: "fuuuck!" I wrapped my legs around him tighter and he came to a shuddering stop. Lakhe: "Spho.....sentliz....iyo.....yam." Releasing his everything in me. For a few minutes, we stayed in that position of intimacy. After some time he got up and pulled out slowly, esiyolanda i-towel. He wiped me and himself then planted a kiss on my pussy. Lakhe: "I love you." Me: "mna or yona?" he revealed a naughty smile. Me: "you're nasty." I got up to take a shower. Under the lukewarm water I was thinking and just day dreaming. Uqgiba kwam ndaphuma ndabuyela eroomini. Lakhe was on the bed, naked watching TV. Lakhe: "khawuzapha..." Me: "I have to get dressed and go..." Lakhe: "yima kaloku baby." Me: "ndimile nje. Ezi negotiations nizozenza phi? At the hotel conference centre?" Lakhe: "that isn't a bad idea actually." Me: "hayi kengoku Lakhe!" Lakhe: "yinton baby...I'll always be exclusive, therefore negotiations zam, will be in a conference room of my hotel. I'll talk to your dad." Me: "ningandiphambaneli ke mna uyeva?" he laughed. Lakhe: "you love the idea don't you?" Me: "what can I possibly like about it? Xandizoboniswa funeke ndize nge lift?" Lakhe: "precisely. Gqitywa kwayo Yonke lonto, we can have dinner at Tabu. I'll ask them to make a traditional meal fo-" Me: "that's not going to happen!! We're not doing my negotiations at a hotel. We're doing them at home!" Lakhe: "which home baby? Endlin ka tanci wakho?" Me: "argg. Don't." Lakhe: "babe. This is the modern times. Get with the program." Me: "my dad will never allow it." Lakhe: "we'll see about that." Me: "senizi friends ngoku?" Lakhe: "we're cool." I got dressed. Me: "I'll call you later. Please stay away from my dad." I yawned. Lakhe: "usozela?" Me: "I barely slept." Lakhe: "why?" Me: "hehake Masilakhe. You left here uqumbile, andiyazi noba ke ibiyi lullaby yakho for mna leyo." Lakhe: "lonto you're quite sarcastic these days." Me: "andiphinde ndithethe." Lakhe: "please stay one more night?" Me: "no Lakhe. Ambondicela ekhaya." Lakhe: "awungcole." Me: "ndigqibovasa?" Lakhe: "mxim." Me: "I'll call you when I'm there." Lakhe: "ndihamba nawe tshin." waphakama naye wanxiba. Me: "utatakho umshiya nabani? Your friend yena?" Lakhe: "akhomntu pha. They both left." Me: "oh." I took my bags to the car and he drove me to the hotel. Ufika kwethu ezam iibag ndazisa kwi room yam, then went up to my parents' room. I found them sitting on the patio drinking tea. Me: "molweni." Mama: "hey. Look who's back." Khaya: "hello my angel." I hugged them both. They seemed so happy. Did I disturb something? Khaya: "guess what princess?" Me: "what's up tata. I'm bad at guessing." Khaya: "phof ke..... We finally got a house. Its beautiful and just enough." Me: "okay. Where?" Khaya: "its in Newton Park." Me: "when do we move in?" Khaya: "we have to finalize the sale first. I'm sure in a month. Bekunjani kwi trip yakho mntanam?" Me: "it was fine tata. Just a bit tired kodwa andikwazi ulala. Ndiphupha nakakubi." Khaya: "Iza...I'll help." he kissed mom's forehead. Ndiyayazi ebefuna uthetha privately. In my room, I lay on my tummy phezkwe bhedi. Tata rubbed my back and shoulders. Me: "is everything okay?" Khaya: "yes.....everything is fine. I'm just worried about you and your mother. Kutheni ingathi anisathethi nje?" Me: "akhonto irongo tata." Khaya: "u-sure?" Me: "yes dad.." Khaya: "I hope so. Maybe I'm just imagining things." Me: "ubuyile for i-check up for the heart palpitations?" Khaya: "hayi wethu....I don't feel them anymore." Me: "can you at least have it checked out ke tata?" Khaya: "I'll do it tomorrow. Get some rest okay?" Me: "okay. Enkosi tata." he left my room.

3 weeks later. Moving day. The house was a 4 bedroom with 2 bathrooms and one lounge. Ibintle and quite spacious. The furniture from our old house was transported to the new one early in the day. Umama notata had gone back to the old house in King to sort out the sale of yona. I on the other hand was the Tryphina of this one having to clean and tidy up. I was sooo tired by afternoon, I closed the entire house, locked it and climbed on the couch to take a nap. It felt like in no time at all, there was a knock on the door. I dragged myself up and to the door ndavula. Lakhe: "hey baby." he came inside the house wayohlala phantsi. I locked again ndabuyela kwi couch yam. Lakhe: "uhm....Spho?" Me: "I just want to sleep please?" Lakhe: "but I brought you red velvet cupcakes." he took one out and started eating. Me: "put in the fridge." I closed my eyes to prepare for my nap. Lakhe: "heh baby." Me: "a.a man Lakhe!" I snapped. Lakhe: "nditheni ngoku?" Me: "I'm trying to fucking sleep damn it!!!" Lakhe: "well damn then." he finally kept quiet. Ndakwazi ulala. I woke up some odd hours later ndinukiselwa kukutya kwe cephe. I was hungry but too lazy to get up. I finally gave in ndaye toilet kqala. After washing my hands I went to the kitchen. Lakhe:

"Spho." iyawa yintoni ngoku?! He just crawls under my skin everytime esithi 'Spho' when did he become so dependent? Me: "Lakhe." Lakhe: "I made you supper. I hope you're hungry." Me: "I'm not now." Lakhe: "ndikwenze ntoni? Oko kwa last week ndixhaywa. Noba ndenza ntoni na its never good enough for you! Now I've been patient for too long, you need to tell me ngoku if you don't want to be with me ndikuyeke! Andinomelana nokwenziwa i-mhumhu kaloku." Me: "I'm just tired Lakhe. And you're justsometimes.....you're too much." Lakhe: "so now I must be less? Months ago, you were pleading with me to be more open, namhlanje I'm too much?" I hugged him. Me: "khathule." Lakhe: "now I'm confused." Me: "just be quiet." Lakhe: "cela sitye ke...I'm starving." Me: "ok." we sat at the dining room table to eat our supper. The house was quiet, just the way I wanted it. My parents were scheduled to be back tomorrow, I'd called today to check if kuhamba kakuhle na and a few more things needed their attention. After our supper, I washed the dishes and he cleaned the kitchen. The lobola negotiations were to start in a few days, I was eavesdropping ngoku bethetha nomama utata. I was a bit nervous, that the two families were going to meet for the first time. I don't know if they would vibe. It took my dad and Lakhe a rocky start. I know his dad was great, but what about his uncle? Yeyi. Zange ndabhidwa. Anyway, bingafuni mna. Lakhe: "love. Can we set a date please?" Me: "a date? For what?" Lakhe: "our wedding." Me: "now?" Lakhe: "ewe...I want a sunny atmosphere, enendawo epholileyo. Kind of like between summer and autumn." Me: "I see." Lakhe: "maybe we could have an intimate wedding at the Maldives. Then spend the rest of our honeymoon there." Me: "we have a lot of family and friends nje. Bazofika njani pha." Lakhe: "we don't have that many friends baby. My family will find their way there. We'll take care of yours, and our friends. Just 30 people tops." Me: "30???" Can't we do this in Durban bab-" Lakhe: "no. We're having an island wedding." Me: "I'm beginning to think this is more of Your wedding than OURS. First it was the venue ye-Lobola negotiations, now its the venue of our wedding." Lakhe: "you're not even interested in this wedding. Maybe if you had an input, it would be OURS." Me: "I just said Durban-" Lakhe: "I lived in Durban and LEFT. Why would I go and get married there?" Me: "Lakhe, an island wedding is an unnecessary expense." Lakhe: "answer me this, uyafuna utshata kwi island? White sand....crystal blue water running at your feet, short white lace summer dress....the sun kissing your skin." Me: "okay, okay! It sounds nice. But what about the traditional wedding?" Lakhe: "sinoske siqale ngayo ke. Right after the negotiations." Me: "woah....wait." Lakhe: "why wait?" Me: "why are you such in a hurry?" Lakhe: "awufuni unditshata Sphosenkosi?" Me: "I do...." Lakhe: "then? What's the problem? After the negotiations, we plan our traditional wedding, which will probably take one month." Me: "but if we start with the traditional wedding, I'll have to be a makoti and stay that way for a few months." Lakhe: "you'll be taking it off in a month, we need to have our white ceremony and honeymoon the next month." Me: "how about we consult our parents first. Masive kubo bathini." Lakhe: "plus we could do a bit of island hopping. After Maldives maybe go to Bali and probably Fiji, or even Bora Bora." Me: "or home. Island hopping won't be such a great idea. Bali is in Indonesia, Laucala Island in Fiji and Bora Bora in French Polynesia. This is flying across the globe to 3 destinations spending more time in the air than on land." Lakhe: "I'm more concerned about how you know all these places." Me: "that's not the point. Choose one island, and one country very close to it for a chilled baecation." Lakhe: "okay baby. Its fine. Where is this Laucala island situated then?" Me: "Fiji is in the South pacific. Laucala island is the resort where you can book exclusively private accommodation." Lakhe: "nice. And Bora Bora?" Me: "in the Pacific ocean." Lakhe:

"accommodation wise?" Me: "the four seasons resort. It offers different types of accommodation. There's the overwater bungalow suite, the beach front villas estates with private pools, the pool cabanas and only one private island.." Lakhe: "baby, siye Bora Bora." he concluded. Me: "are you sure?" Lakhe: "we'll do more research. So tell me.....how do you know all this?" Me: "you think I would let you pick a honeymoon destination by yourself? Usile." Lakhe: "so wena une interest kwi honeymoon more than the wedding?" Me: "I just don't want a big wedding baby. Nothing too extravagant and over the top." Lakhe: "masiyotshata e-court ke and leave for our honeymoon. Whatever makes my wifey happy." Me: "uphambene kengoku." Lakhe: "then start planning ke sisi." Me: "fine."

The first day of my lobola negotiations was a bit tough on me mntu ungazi niks. Everytime I tried asking a question, I'd be shut down by umama. Anyway, we were up at 6 and I started cooking while she cleaned the house plus the yard. Zingi came to help me along with another "friend" of mine uZintle. Bendiqala shame umbona I'm not sure how close we were prior my accident. Anyway, she showed me pictures of us together on holiday in Durban and some few more snippets of our times here in PE. She had relocated for two years in Dubai so that's why ebengekho apha. After we were done cooking we went to the bedroom to get me dressed. I didn't see the whole fuss at all. Zingi saw the fuss, she saw it in the comrades marathon reaching for the finish line. She saw it in the car that chased the orange light at robots and still passed just before it turns red. She was the time keeper in the race and the traffic cop on the road. Zintle on the other hand was like me, she didn't understand the whole fuss. Zintle: "babe, just wear what you're comfortable in. Add a little style." Zingi: "oh? Because you're married?" Zintle: "oh please Zingi. We all know how bitter and miserable you are in that marriage. Quit fronting." Zingi: "how da-" Me: "OKAY! Can we just relax for a minute?" Mama:

"kwenzeka ntoni apha? Why aren't you dressed?" Me: "I'm about to mama." ndakhupha my olive green bandage dress. Mama: "Spho, awuzonxiba ilokhwe ezokufinca apha." Me: "ayindifinci nje mama Lena." Mama: "iphi Le i-navy? Unxibe ne jersey kunye neqhiya. Ungaphumi kule room." what if I need to pee? Mama: "uyandiva Spho?" Me: "ewe mama." I got dressed. She went to the kitchen. Ugqiba kwam unxiba, Zingi helped me with iqhiya yam. Ndikwazelaphi uthwala mna? Uwoah. I saw myself as Lakhe's wife, yes. But Le process Yonke scared me to death. Especially the traditional wedding. Yima, yinton Le ndizay'tyiswa? Why? Zingi: "bhabha....are you nervous?" Me: "not really. Ndine worry yomtshato." Zintle: "everything will be fine love! Just know that you're forfeiting your freedom. All is well." Zingi: "Zintle, yazi uyi influence emdaka?" Zintle: "please don't get me started Zingi." my phone rang and I answered it ndabashiya bexoxa. I stood by the window. Me: "my love." Lakhe: "hey baby wam. Unjani?" Me: "I'm good. Unjani wena?" Lakhe: "nervous. I hope zizogqitywa namhlanje yazi." Me: "apparently you're not allowed in." Lakhe: "I know...I wish Sandile was here with me." Me: "its gonna be okay sthandwasam. He'll show up soon." Lakhe: "I hope I withdrew enough cash." Me: "I don't even want to know what enough is." Lakhe: "yoh baby. Awuna idea how quick I want this to end. I want you as my wife qha. Thank Goodness ootata bavumile siqale nge white wedding." Me: "but that means short honeymoon." Lakhe: "we have the rest of our lives to honeymoon. As long as ungowam qha. I love you so much." Me: "I don't." Lakhe: "ndiyayazi kaloku ukuba uyandi pretender wena. You're just with me because of my penis." I laughed. Me: "uyadika vha?" Lakhe: "admit it." Me: "I'm not admitting anything." Lakhe: "sisi, Thetha inyani. Its the penis." Me: "its not! You're such an idiot." I giggled. Lakhe: "I know it is. Awundifuni tu. You've been fighting me these past weeks. Iphele nemini ungandihoyi tu. Uzivezile shame awunalo uthando lwam." Me: "kamandi ke akhange ndikufihlele. Uphi utatakho and uncle?" Lakhe: "nabaya beme ngase motweni balindele mna." Me: "Uyaphi ke wena?" Lakhe: "kanti kuyiwaphi?" Me: "how many times must you be told, you're not allowed?" Lakhe: "ayikho lonto. If abafuni ndihambe nabo bazothi chuu ngenyawo ke. Aziyi ndawo ezimoto without my driving. Ndihleli phezkwe ztixo." Me: "can you stop being stubborn please?" Lakhe: "it doesn't make sense-" Me: "your father has been through this, he knows what's best." Lakhe: "shame." he really missed his brother. The only person that spoke sense to him. Me: "Masilakhe." Lakhe: "sthandwa sentliziyo yam. Abacingi bandishiye ndodwa kulendlu." Me: "ubuthe ufuna zikhaw'leziswe ke ezingxoxo. Kodwa zibanjwe nguwe." 'Mpinga! Masambe kwedin! Yeey uyahlupha man! Yeses!' I heard in the background. Lakhe: "see? It worked.

See you in a bit honey. Love you." I smiled. Me: "I love you too baby." I hung up the phone. I couldn't describe the butterflies in my stomach. My heart felt such warmth. Was I dreaming? This was really my future husband? Zintle: "hmm.....someone is in love." Zingi: "what a smile..." Me: "hayi suka nitheni na nina?" Zintle: "hayi sisi akhange uzibone oko uncume uyi cake kula window. I so wish to see this Mr Lakhe. Or should I say Lucky? Because my friend is a catch kaloku, she's beautiful, she is caring, very smart, did I mention gorgeous? Angak'linge ke andenze ndiyokhupha i-bazooka yam lomfana. Ndisene bullet zika Simphiwe." Zingi: "he's not worth your energy tshomi. Ela twetwe lendoda alinazo nentloni. Lisahlala kulandlu yayithengwe ngu bhabha. Imagine?" Zintle: "tshini!! Ungamkhuphi nje peto? Yoh! Ulunge gqithi wena. Ngendamgxothe kaloku mna mntaka Somnci andinalo nexeshalakhe." bendibava bethetha and all but ingqondo yam, ibiku Lakhe. I really missed him. Bendimgqibele ngalamini ebezile then he went to Cape Town for a meeting wabuya waya eDurban for his property ebeqala ubuya izolo late. Again I won't be seeing him today and I don't know until when kodwa into endiyaziyo was that ndiyamkhumbula qha. Most importantly the penis. Lol. Zintle: "hayi ndincamile mna. Umntu uhlale naye angabikho ngoku ekhona. Mandibhidwe." Zingi: "bekunjani eDubai? Did you meet anyone?" Zintle: "I did. Its nothing serious though." Zingi: "ngubani igamalakhe?" Zintle: "Ahmed. He's some senior engineer pha. Ungandibuzi nam andiyazi ndabona nje nge Lamborghini emnyama. Kaloku abekho oojikeleza pha. And awuzomiselwa yi Conquest. Send'tshuba i-levels." I giggled. Zingi: "okay. So awukatshintshi. Usathanda imali nangoku." Zintle: "ewe tshin tshomi. Love won't pay my bills, ndiyoy'thini into yo'hugger iManager yakwa Edgars for ubhatala account yam?" Zingi: "kuthen une account yakwa Edgars wena kodwa uhlala eDubai?" Zintle: "for oo-sister bam kaloku. Ngabo abantu abasebenzisa la account. That is beside the point. You can't pay accounts with kisses." Me: "kodwa uyaphangela njena." she stared at me. Zintle: "says the woman who's about to marry one of the richest men in the country. Thula sisi. Thula. Yes, Zingi told me he's wealthy, akanaye utanci? I like my men well brewed and mature." Me: "okay, this conversation is taking a turn for the nasty and I am not going to be part of it." I heard a car door closing outside. Me: "Shhh....they're here." my mom came into the room. The only people in the lounge were my dad and uncle. That's all we had, same as Lakhe. I'm not sure if uzongena yena or what? The way angeva ngayo lomfana bethuna. Mama: "don't be nervous mntanam. Everything is going to be okay. Your father and uncle are sure of what they're doing." Me: "nyani mama?? Have they done this before?" Mama: "okay Miss Sarcasm. Sit." I sat down. Then heard yelling from the gate. Baphola sana abasekhaya abantu.

Akunyakazanga nomnye because I could hear my dad and uncle talking and laughing in the lounge. I was panicking. When umama wasn't looking I quickly peeped out the window, it was only his uncle and father. Where was my he? Inoba after an hour, kwaqalwa uphendulwa. The negotiations were starting, I hope to a good note....

Finally!!!!!! My negotiations were done! It really took a day? I thought it would take forever but luckily the families actually vibed. We had a celebratory lunch where my dad invited Lakhe in finally because ubrothers ebequmbile that he wasn't allowed in. The two were growing really close and sometimes it scared me a bit. I went to make refreshments for the family after dinner, utata wandithuma to Greenacres to fetch a cake with Lakhe. We left together ingathi sizi teenagers that were given permission by their parents. Lakhe: "umfazi wam." he kissed my hand as he drove to the mall. Me: "haha....not yet bhuti." Lakhe: "awulambanga?" Me: "we just ate baby. Ulambile wena?" he nodded. Lakhe: "bendi excited kakhulu, I couldn't eat." Me: "I'll make you something at home. Sithunyiwe ngoku." Lakhe: "didn't they order my cupcakes? Sizothenga Milk tart ne?" Me: "ugqibele nin uye gym'in?" Lakhe: "heee. Uzama ukuthi andikho healthy kengoku?" Me: "I just asked a simple question." Lakhe: "I know what you're implying. You think I'm getting fat." Me: "there is no such thing." we arrived at the mall and walked to the bakery sayolanda cake. We left again for home. He was on the phone with one of his partners for the hotel. I hadn't been hearing much since ngoku besiphuma emall now that we were in the car, he connected it and I could hear the entire conversation. Lakhe: "No sir, that will not be possible at all. I'm getting married and will not be able to purchase more shares than I already have." Partner: "but Sobz, you can afford this." Lakhe: "money is not the problem here Michael. Time is. The only thing I can do is find you someone to buy your shares." Michael: "I don't trust anyone else but you." Lakhe: "Mike, let me call you back some time later today okay?" Michael: "okay." he hung up. Lakhe sighed. Me: "problem?" Lakhe: "Michael wants to sell, he's moving his family to Germany. Akamfuni omnye umntu. He just wants me to buy. I can't buy because it will mean another load of responsibility that I don't need. I would....." he looked at me. Lakhe: "yeah. This could work." Me: "why are you looking at me like I'm the last piece of fried chicken?" Lakhe: "I could buy from him, and sign them over to you." Me: "no." Lakhe: "yes." Me: "you already gave me half your big company! Now your shares kwenye business yakho?" Lakhe: "baby...you won't have to work a day in your life, just make sure the hotel is in good shape, check in on the books, do the service things. Yeah?" Me: "that's sounds like working everyday to me." Lakhe: "babes, one day I'm not gonn be here. Ndimdala. We both know this, you're gonna need financial independence. This will be so much better for you if you have things already in your name. Either your MD position, or the hotel. Choose." Me: "why don't you sign Michael's hotel shares to Sandile?" Lakhe: "Sandile? Pssss. He wants nothing to do with that hotel. Or anything else in that matter that binds his name in a contract. This you know." Me: "just try him." Lakhe: "fine. If he comes back-" Me: "when he comes back." Lakhe: "When he comes back. I'll ask him. After a good ass whooping." Me: "okay Tiger. Calm down." he parked the car in our yard. Me: "why ungazange undixelele ukuba utatakho was a boxing champ?" Lakhe: "uwoah. He told you that? Never misses the opportunity to be a star." Me: "you're jealous of your dad?" Lakhe: "I'm not jealous. I think its quite ridiculous to be truly honest. A grown man, running around in boxers, punching another. Its insanity." Me: "its a beautiful sport." Lakhe: "which I don't like." Me: "but he was good at it. A heavyweight champion baby." Lakhe: "yeah...he was the best." Me: "and wena? Which sports did you partake in?" Lakhe: "chess." Me: "that is not a sport." Lakhe: "oh? Because boxing is?" I giggled. Me: "you are so impossible." Lakhe: "I played rugby, never liked soccer, but I don't mind watching it. I also played tennis-" Me: "you played Tennis?" Lakhe: "Yes. I played tennis." Me: "and you skipped ballet?" he frowned. I laughed uncontrollably. He got out the car with the cake. Me: "baby! I'm joking." I followed him to the house. Me: "Lakhe. I'm sorry." Mama: "umenzeni omnye umntana?" Me: "I was just joking mama. Lakhe?" he ignored me wayohlala koo-tata. I helped uZingi with the dishes. The Sobukwe's were leaving soon. It was nice having them over. Even better that my father loved them. Tanci was cool with everyone bendingenayo worry yakhe. Just that it was a bit weird for me ekhona endlini katata after what they've done nomama. If tata had caught them before why was he so forgiving? I would've cut someone's throat and left no witnesses. Rob and utanci ka Lakhe said their goodbyes. Lakhe was walking with my dad bencokola. He gave me the look that signaled war. Lakhe that is. Was he trying to turn me against my dad? Haha, good luck soldier. After they were done Lakhe walked out the house. Mama: "khapha omnye Spho. Yuh awuse krwada." Me: "hayi wethu mama uhamba notatakhe mos akazolahleka." enyinto u-childish man, kuyadlalwa mos. Plus I said sorry ebefuna ndithini? Mxim. My friends also left ndashiyeka nabazali bam. Which quickly got awkward for me because tanci was still here and by the looks of heavy things akahambi. Me: "I have a bit of a headache. I'm going to lie down." take note of the second last word of the sentence. Mama: "okay mntanam, awuy'funi i-Adcodol?" didn't get it? Wow. Me: "ha.a mama. I'll be fine." I went to my room, closing the door behind me ndakhwela phezkwe bhedi. I opened my Macbook, checked my emails and browsed the internet for wedding dresses. Since we were getting married on an island, I couldn't wear something really long. So instead, I'd have to wear a short dress. I can already see it in my mind. I loved it!! I took my phone and dialed Lakhe's number. Me: "baby!" Lakhe: "what." Me: "look, I'm sorry about earlier, it was a joke. Also, I don't have time to dwell on that, I think I have the perfect dress in mind! It would be great for a beach wedding. Imagine, you and I under our white linen bridal arch. The water running up to our feet. You're dressed in white shorts and a white shirt. I'd be in a short white dress." Lakhe: "and the pastor should also be wearing shorts otherwise his pants would get wet." Me: "haha. I don't know about that. I'm looking through short wedding dresses now." Lakhe: "hm....nam I must look for white shorts now. We leave for Maldives in a month. I'm calling the wedding planner that side to start the planning." Me: "wait....we're sticking to Maldives? I thought Bora Bora. Or Seychelles." Lakhe: "yoh...bendithe Bora Bora kanene. We'll do our second honeymoon kwezinye man baby." Me: "a month is too short baby." Lakhe: "no its not. Its 30 days actually. Very long time. You book the tickets. Sort out your list of guests and email it to me before ulale. Only 15 people." Me: "I don't think I know 15 people but okay." Lakhe: "people who will be available ke Spho. Andifuni upanic'kelwa ngumntu all way across the globe esithi funeka aye emsebenzin." Me: "okay. I hear you." Lakhe: "can you come over tonight?" Me: "how?" Lakhe: "oh you know.....out the back door xabelele. You'll be back in the morning before sunrise." Me: "fine but only xabelele." Lakhe: "okay ke baby." I hung up. My heart was racing. Heeee! I was going to sneak out? Ndimdala ndimngaka. It was late evening and I knew ukuba bazoyolala soon aba. Especially umama kuba kaloku Kukho utanci, then utata since ezophangela Ksasa. I waited. I don't know ulala nini ke u-uncle. I don't remember his schedules. In a while, I heard umama eyolala. Then soon after utata followed. Uncle stayed in the lounge. I waited for about 30 minutes. Lomntu uzixelele akayi ndawo. I got dressed in skinny jeans, a vest and a sweater. Ndachwechwa ukuya e-kitchen. He didn't see or hear me. The only thing on was the TV anyway. I went to the main switch and plucked it down ndabuyela eroomin yam nge speed sika sathana. Lucky for me, he didn't go to the kitchen I just heard his bedroom door open. And another door opened. My ears were on high alert now. So I coughed and yawned. Both doors closed simultaneously. I waited again. In the next 30 minutes. Lakhe texted he was outside. Ndatsho uphuma as quietly as possible. I ran to the car ndakhwela a little out of breath. The adrenaline rush! I told Lakhe about my escape and he laughed. Lakhe: "ustout yazi. Ude ucime switch." Me: "I don't know why utanci engagodukanga bonanje. Its really unsettling." Lakhe: "your dad isn't stupid." Me: "did he say something to you?" Lakhe: "no. Awulambanga? I don't think There's food in the house." Me: "I'm fine."

We arrived in Kragga Kamma and went straight to bed. All of a sudden, ndaphelelwa ngumdla. Not owakhe, just everything else. I wanted to be with him but Andifuni. Ingaske ndibe ndodwa. This was so damn confusing not to mention frustrating. I undressed and got into bed. Lakhe: "ndenzeni ngoku?" Me: "what?" Lakhe: "you look pissed off and I'm not sure what it is I did wrong." Me: "do you always have to do something wrong Dan? Can't I just be ugly in peace." Lakhe: "I should've been quiet." Me: "I'm hungry." Lakhe: "ufuna utya ntoni?" Me: "I don't know..." Lakhe: "take aways or home made?" Me: "take aways." Lakhe: "Steers? McDonald's? KFC?" Me: "the wings at kfc, a Big Mac and McFlurry." Lakhe: "okay. I'll go buy. Ndiyeza." Me: "please hurry." Lakhe: "okay baby." he took his keys and left the house. I was really hungry now. Yangathi akasabuyi. I don't know how long it was but I eventually fell asleep. He woke me up when he took off his jacket and his phone fell. Me: "where have you been?" Lakhe: "Humewood. Naku kutya. Still hungry?" Me: "No." I immediately regretted it. Me: "I am hungry, just too lazy to get up." he brought the food to me. Me: "I'm sorry I'm such a nag." Lakhe: "you're my nag. You know I'll do anything for you no matter what time of day or night it is. As long as you're happy." Me: "I don't know if I'm happy. I'm always grumpy and annoyed." Lakhe: "you're happy....just a little crazy." he kissed my forehead. Lakhe: "itya mntuwam. I fell asleep on two drive thru's for this food. You better finish it." I ate my burger and chips ndagqibezela nge wings. By the time I was done, he was long snoring next to me. I got under blankets and cuddled him. Me: "ndiyabulela sthandwa Sam. I love you." I kissed him. Lakhe: "ndiyaniithanda nam baby." Me: "ngubani kanti omnye." he was already snoring again. Me: "Masilakhe!" voicemail. Uwoah. Mxim.

The next morning I was brought breakfast in bed. I went to brush my teeth ndazoty. Lakhe had his fruit salad next to me while watching me destroy this plate full of kilo's. Lakhe: "your dad is at work now. Kushiyeke umamakho endlin uzothi uvelaphi ? I tried waking you up and you threatened to bury me in the garden so ndakuyeka." Me: "hayi wethu. Ndizobona xandipha ba ndithini." Lakhe: "you still have some of your clothes here from joburg. We could go to work, ubuyele kokwenu in the afternoon." Me: "oh so ndithi ndihambe before everyone woke up. You so sneaky." Lakhe: "ndifuze wena." after breakfast, we watched a bit of TV ndahamba ndayo vasa. I came back to him still watching TV, kwafuneka ndiyicime before aphakame ayovasa. I made the bed and tidied the room ndaphuma ndaya kitchen still wearing my gown. I loaded the dishes into their machine, switched it on, loaded the soap and let it do the work. I cleaned the kitchen also, swept and mopped the floor. He didn't have a regular mop anyway, it was the one that soaks up water. Newer version of floorwizpro. The kitchen was clean. I had to get into the dining room. Cleaning was a way for me to let loose and think. I enjoyed it because it was quiet time. Same as cooking. Sometimes ndiyonqena yes, but most of the time, I'm game. I wiped the glass table, the chairs. I swept the floor, going to get that super mop again. I walked back to the lounge, a little tired now and dizzy. I fondled my way to the lounge, it was quite a simple straight way, I went around the couch that had its back facing me and I flopped into and sighed. After a good minute of trying to regulate my breathing, I realized I wasn't the one breathing. Actually, I could feel another presence somewhere around me. Their eyes piercing at me. It suddenly became cold. Ndagodola ngaphakathi. Please Lord let it be Lakhe. He is being awkward again. I promise not to be mad. Slowly, I began to open my eyes which were looking straight across the room where Lakhe should appear since esuka kwi bathroom. This presence was seated right next to me. Dark and cold as death. From the corner of my eye, I could see the form of someone's body covered in black. How did I not see this before? Oh wait, I was acting blind, walking into the lounge with my eyes closed. I turned my head around to look at it.....

I screamed my lungs out! Me: "LAKHE!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!" I cried jumping off the couch. I stumbled on the table, scraping my knee. I could not stop screaming. My own noise was tearing my ears. Lakhe picked me up from the floor trying to calm me down. I could feel that he was numb and shocked by what was sitting on our couch. Lakhe: "Iza Sphosenkosi. Come baby....I...." he took me to the bedroom. I was shaking out of my skin. Who would do such a thing? Lakhe got on the phone. Lakhe: "Tololo, khazapha bra yam. Uze ne skeem." he hung up and hugged me close to him. Lakhe: "I'm so sorry baby.." I could barely say a word. How could I? Lakhe: "I don't know who that is and how he got there olahlobo.....uxolo mntuwam." everytime I closed my eyes, I saw the dead body sitting next to me. His body covered in black plastic, his face peeling off, his mouth open and eyes half shut. I got up and ran to the bathroom, throwing up in the toilet. I stayed in the bathroom for a while feeling nauseas. Lakhe: "izonxiba baby. Its cold here." he picked me up and flushed the toilet ndayonxiba. I washed my mouth then stuck by his side. His phone rang. Lakhe: "hlala apha. I'll be back just now." Me: "no..." Lakhe: "baby, funekile ndisuse lanto pha before it starts to rot." Me: "its him..." Lakhe: "who?" Me: "the man that raised me." Lakhe: "what!?! Spho....I'm confused here. Isn't Khaya your dad?" I tried to wrap my head around it and I couldn't. Lakhe: "baby Thetha nam.....what happened out there?" Me: "I was cleaning the kitchen. Then the dining room. I felt dizzy and went to sit down with my eyes closed. Did you call the police?" Lakhe: "we're not calling the police. Uthi this man raised you, how?" Me: "Khaya and Zama adopted me after I was....." I breathed. He waited patiently. Me: "after I was abused, I ran away from home." Lakhe: "this man abused you?" Me: "yes...." we stayed quiet for a very long time. Then he kissed my cheek. Lakhe: "let me fix this. Okay? I won't be long." he walked out the room. Lakhe: "Tololo!!" Tol: "Sho boss." Lakhe: "please remove this. Uphi lamjita wase gravini?" Tol: "ukhona boss. Use span." Lakhe: "call him, tell him to dig up u-number 12 sibenogqumelela lento." Tol: "Sho boss. Ngenani majita." I stood in the passageway. The men came inside the house. How? They carried the stiff cold body out of the house. A part of me cringed at the brutality of his death but a large part of me was relieved. The person that destroyed my childhood was dead. Who couldve killed him? How did they get in the house? But most importantly, WHY. Lakhe: "baby, ndithe stay in the room. You don't need to see this." Me: "why aren't we calling the police?" Lakhe: "we have a dead body in our house Sphosenkosi. Do you really want the police involved? Nobody will believe you or me." Me: "how do your dodgy friends come in the locked gate?" Lakhe: "Tololo has a remote for the gate. He takes care of things xandingekho." Me: "then how did this body end up here?" Lakhe: "I don't know Spho. I wish I did but I don't." oh shit..... I stepped away from him. Lakhe: "what is it..." Me: "Oh My God....." Lakhe: "Spho!" Me: "what have I done." Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi!!!" he grabbed me quickly. Afraid I was going to escape. I couldn't breath properly. What the hell have I done!! Lakhe: "kwenzeka ntoni ngoku?" Me: "I killed him...." Lakhe: "W H A T T T!!!!!!!" he shook my body. Lakhe: "Spho!!!! What did you say?" Me: "its I killed him..." I cried. He let go of me and stepped away endijamele. Lakhe: "you killed a..... man?" Me: "I didn't mean to tell him.....I'm so sorry." I broke down to the floor. Tololo: "boss? Huzet nou?" Lakhe: "Hamba Tololo. Call me once you're done, I'll sort you out." Tol: "sure boss." he left the house. Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi. I need you to make sense. You killed him? How? When?" Me: "its all my fault!!" Lakhe: "so you didn't kill him directly but paid someone to? Please make sense!!" I tried getting up from the cold tiles. I was shaking.

Lakhe: "baby, I would never judge you. This will die down soo.....I mean, it will passuhm. Be over soon. I've sorted it out and....." Me: "Sandile." Lakhe looked around. Lakhe: "where is he? What about him?" Me: "I told Sandile." Lakhe: "what did you tell him?" Me: "I told Sandile about him....the man that abused me. He said he'd never let anyone hurt me ever again." Lakhe: "are you fucking serious!!! Out of all people in the world you choose to tell Sandile! A lunatic??? Wow!" I wiped my tears with my sleeves, sobbing. Lakhe: "I'm sorry baby....I apologize." he sighed and hugged me. Lakhe: "its not your fault. You didn't kill this man. Just that.....well.....Sandile reacts very differently to ordinary human beings. He's not 100%sane. Which explains, the physical proof of death." somebody should've told me that Sandile was crazy. Mentally unstable actually. Why bring a dead body as evidence? Lakhe: "let me make you some chamomile tea." he held my hand to the kitchen. Lakhe: "my kitchen smells so nice and clean. Its so refreshing." he kissed my forehead. I was still a bit shaken, every few seconds I had to look over my shoulder and around me. Lakhe: "baby. Its over now. You're safe." Me: "why are you so calm to see a dead body in your house!" Lakhe: "I'm nothing near calm Spho but one of us needs to comfort you! You're not okay, I'm doing the best I can to make sure you're better! I can handle my emotions and will deal with them accordingly. Me: "Please tell him to stop....please baby, I don't want to see any more." Lakhe: "if only we could find him sthandwasam. If only..."

During the weekend I was home with my family. I had been home since that Wednesday. Lakhe had slept at his hotel. We just met at work and worked because things were going to start falling apart soon if we carried on relaxing. I didn't tell my parents anything. I knew they would freak out, which would prove my dad right in his initial theory that Lakhe is a criminal. Which he wasn't. Saturday late afternoon, Zingi and Zintle invited me for movies which I wasn't in the mood for. Khaya: "my princess." I looked at him. Khaya: "kwenzeka ntoni ngawe? You've barely said a full sentence since the day after your negotiations. Did something happen? Nilwile noLakhe?" I shook my head. Me: "just busy with work tata." Khaya: "no Spho. Something is wrong.... I can see it in your eyes. Its almost as though you see a ghost everyday." I swallowed. Mama: "honey, are you having second thoughts in marrying Lakhe." Me: "I don't know ma." Khaya: "is it something he did?" I shook my head. Mama: "mntanam, akukho lula emtshatweni. You can't run everytime There's a problem. You have to face matters with your husband nithethe." Khaya: "I'm always here for you my angel." Me: "enkosi tata." they looked at each other. Khaya: "when I spoke to uLakhe izolo, he was like this naye. Almost as though kunento efihlwayo. Sphosenkosi, are you pregnant?" Mama: "awww my baby!!" Me: "I'm not pregnant." Khaya: "There's no need to be afraid love. Why ningasixelelanga?" Me: "bec-" Mama: "I'm going to be a grandma!" Me: "mama!" Khaya: "it would be nice having a baby in the house." Me: "dad. I'm not pregnant." Mama: "did you take a test?" Me: "I don't have to mama. We're not there yet. I'm not having a baby yet. I just some-" a knock on the door disturbed me. I hope ibingengo tanci bonanje. Seriously I don't understand where he purchases the liver to show face apha after what he'd done. I went to open the door. Mama: "okay ke mntanam." I could hear her whispering with utata. I opened the door. Zingi: "heyyy!" they came inside. Zintle: "molweni mama. Ninjani?" Mama: "siphilile girls ninjani nina?" Zingi: "siright mama. Sizoboleka lentombazana for the weekend. Kudala sizama umkhupha as girls but she just doesn't want." Khaya: "that is a lovely idea. Kodwa I hope aniyosela." Zintle: "no tata. Just dinner and a movie then sibuyele endlinam." Khaya: "okay. Spfo needs some fresh air." Mama: "ambonxiba sisi." I went to my bedroom and texted my fiance. "Help me." he responded quickly: "what's happening? Uphi?" Me: "double Z is here for a girls night out. I'm tired. Please kidnap me." Lakhe: "have a meeting at 7 till around 9. Will kidnap you when I'm done vha." Me: "ok ke." Lakhe: "try and enjoy yourself." I took out jeans and a loose white shirt ndanxiba. Tucking the shirt in. The faded blue jeans were a tight fit. I wore the black studded Louboutins. Took my bag, wallet, phone and charger. Zintle: "what's this?" Me: "what?" Zintle: "hayi ntombazana. Kushushu phandle uzozitixela nge jean? Ha.a sisi. Uphi u-short? A dress?" Me: "Zintle, my parents are out there." Zintle: "and they don't seem to mind me. Or Zingi. Why uzenza umakhulu? You're still single my love, the minute umfundisi esithi 'I now pronounce you Husband and Wife,' is the minute you'll start going out in jeans. Okwangoku, marital status? Single mntase." she looked through my wardrobe. She found a white two piece. High waist shorts and a tight crop vest. Zintle: "this is so perfect!" Me: "no it isn't." Zintle: "urrrggg! You are such a granny! Ubuzithengela bani kanti? And this?" the black short jumpsuit I wore when Lakhe proposed to me. Me: "I can't wear that again. Caba qho xandiphuma ndaziwa ngalo look." Zintle: "fine. This?" short red dress. Me: "I don't feel like wearing a dress." Zintle: "you are impossible. With a beautiful body. Sufficient curves, flat stomach and still...you are impossible!!" Zingi:

"what's the issue?" Me: "ufuna ndiveze ithanga." Zingi: "and the problem is? Be quick, Fez is waiting for us outside." Me: "kuthen engangeni?" Zintle: "she's afraid of your parents." Me: "why?" Zintle: "you'll know soon enough." Zingi: "nantsi Le jumpsuit. Nxiba yona. Just don't change your shoes." Me: "no. Not again." I found a navy blue one similar to the black jumpsuit but this one.....it had the Rihanna shoulders. It had puffs but the cool sharp type. I changed my black studs to red stilleto. I went to do my make up. The girls fixed my room and we were good to go. Me: "let's go. Xasiphuma, Sibe quick, very quick singabaniki xesha lobuza." Zintle: "sure." we strutted out the room. Me: "ndiphumile guys." Khaya: "please be safe!" he yelled from the lounge. Khaya: "Spho!" Me: "yes tata. We'll be safe." Khaya: "undisendele message." Me: "I will tata." we left the house sayokhwela kwi Audi A1 ka Fez.

Fez: "nantso i-gurrrll eruyyt! Ibashaya ngesichathulo siku Guisey'sey. Iya'banyisah!" okay, someone forgot to tell me Fez was gay? Nice. So much for 'she' Me: "haha. Khayeke wethu. Unjani Fez?" Fez: "ndiyaphila ntombi UThixo undigcinile nakwezi bulalayo senditshuba ndim lo ndisay'qhuba i-happiness akhonto. Wena? U-good?" Me: "I'm good. Kuyiwaphi?" he started or should I say she? Anyway, he drove the car. Fez: "side sathini girls? Is it Cubana or what?" Zintle: "let's just go to Zest for dinner then have drinks at Balizza then turn up in Cubana." Me: "how about not dinner at Zest? Let's just do Finnezz for dinner and pre drinks." Zingi: "why?" Me: "Lakhe is having his monthly meet, greet and eat there. I don't want to be like I'm spying on him since last month bendiyawa khona with my whole family." Fez: "okay, Finnezz it is." he drove to Humerail, parked at Finnezz sayongena phakathi. It was still relaxed and chilled wethu, we got a table outside then ordered. Fez: "SO. Masiqale ngosisi womtshato. Ithini into? Details mfazi? The venue? The date! Oh my goodness the theme? Funeke ndiyothungisa soon kaloku. Yoh akasemhle lamfana ujonge apha. Thetha sisi, ungayihoyi Le ize caleni.. Look at his jaws." I laughed. Me: "we haven't decided on the date, still fighting about the venue. The theme is all white beach wear though." Fez: "perfect! Ndizofaka i-bikini yam and sip on a cocktail xa umfundisi ethetha." Zintle: "do they make your size?" we laughed. Fez: "uyi pipi yomntu yazi. Ipipi ewileyo encinci yogqiba ya-shrinka yali sende. Sies." Zintle was laughing too hard to even care. Our drinks came first. Zingi: "I wonder ngubani lomntu bawo." Fez sipped on his raw vodka and ice. Fez: "ayingo Craig tshomi? Thiza undiza kwelicala lidumbisa indlebe la tata! I mean really now." Zingi: "ebe right nje tshomi uCraig kwaske Kwathini?" Fez: "heeeee!" he clapped. Fez: "ningahleki." he took one more sip. I laughed before he even started. Fez: "sudika." he smacked his lips apart. Fez: "andithi mos sidityaniswe yi mutual friend. No problem. Siqalise ke uSkype'a since mos ebese Spain. Ndacela ke imali yentloko wazulisa, so ndamxelela aze abuye xa e-serious. Yaphela two weeks ke tshomi wacela bank details zam. Ndaqondba yeke. Ubawela indutsu Le ndandimbonise yona ku Skype wakhutywa. Fine. Yangena ke imali ye weave, ndayofakela ndamhle ndayi gurl. Sho. Wathi ke yena uyeza eSouth Africa andiphathele ntoni? Uyayazi uthetha naban? Ndabuza yimalin i-budget yam? Wathi yena its 10k. Ndabuza in Dollars or Rands because i-questions of relevance zi-important kwi life chronicles. Wathi yena nge Dollars, thizaaaa! Ndathi buya nayo mfana. Iza nayo ngobunjalo bayo. Yifake kwi gift box uze nayo!!!" we laughed again. Phof oko ndiphelile yintsini. Fez: "hayi ke mntase ndayongena ku Googling ndakhangela exchange rate ye dollar to the Rand. Oh sweetie. Zange indi disappoint'e tu. Yabe ibime ku R14,74. I calculated very much quick apha eHead kuba kaloku ndiyi top student kwi mathematics yaphuma isithi I'll be R147 400 richer! Yiyhhoooo! Ndayogida mntase. Kwamanzi phantsi. Mind you, Khange afake confirmation ubhutiza ndim lowo ndiyi millionaire esela idumpie ye-fourth street kwa Gqalane ndiphole ikhwapha. Wafaka uSkype utata wabantu andam'phendula kwacac'ba ndimthukile. Khange kuphinde konwatywe. Long story short, wafika umntu last week. Sadibana in Durbz. Sayovisana kamnandi, yeeyi, ibiyi admin work ke naleyo." Zintle breathed from her laughing. Zintle: "meaning?" Fez: "tshomi ayiphakami. Ndiyenze u- CPR ndayincama. Ndalala ke mna kuba ndizothini ulinda i-train e-airport? Cingi sweetie. Ndithe ndisathi sebesebe ubuthongo ndava ngo giligidi gilidi! yeeyi! yavulwa indutsu yam wangena umntu gwabha gwabha ingathi utya ingqina lenkomo. Oh bawo." he held his forehead. My stomach hurt so much from laughing. We almost fell off our chairs. Fez: "zeniy'hleke. Heeee. Akasakhali utata womnye umntana, andiyazi ingathi ndikhwele ujikeleza ogqajukelwe Li tayere sana. Dyubhubhu dyubhubhu dyubhubhu. Lilo ke elo endleleni.." Zintle crawled away from the table, engakwazi uphefumla. I couldn't breath neither! Everyone else was staring at our table ingathi we escaped a looney bin. Fez: "but ke ndanyamezela wethu ntombi kuba ndizaw'hini. Nokok'nyamezela phofu kuphele kwangoku ngoba kaloku umntu wabantu waminyitheka ingathi utyiwa zintakumba wade wagqiba. Uwoaah. But shame utatabantu une swekile so ke une excuse evakalayo. Anyway, bekunjani eDubai?" Zintle: "not as interesting as Craig." she wiped her laughing tears. Fez: "hayi sudika. Busenza nton pha? Bungasebenzi? Kuthen hleli nje ingqondo igcwele indoda. Kunjani emsebenzin?" Zintle: "heee uthen na wena." Fez: "su-jumpisa. Lamfana ujonge apha kuthi kunye ne friends zakhe ezi hot. Masithethe izinto ezi serious ngoku. Babalekiswa ngezintsini zenu ingathi ningokrebe abadlala undize." Zintle: "uwoah...hayi wethu. Things were good kodwa ndigrand nobushushu bayo landawo." Me: "what about Ahmed?" Zintle: "Ahmed utshatile tshomi une family yakhe." Zingi: "hayi Zintle nawe..." Zintle: "hayi sisi ungazenzi ngcwele please. Sisese high school? Ubudyola nabani?" Zingi: "mxim." Fez: "wethu.....umntu udlala i-role yakhe. There's only a few men in the world, too many women. Worse ngoku Kukho nathi ke as ii-gurlz 2.0. Kodwa zekhe net ndibhage ikritsi ecamkwe ndodam mna. Anganya ii-blade ze-planga sana. Rhaaaa. Ndine picture yakhe ingqumfuzo. Tshintsha topic Zintle nanku uboy esiza." Zintle: "the climate change can absolutely affect our economy kodwa guys. Don't you think that with less rain and so forth, the farmers suffer droughts having a scarcity in certain products and they increase pricing? Businesses as well..." Me: "I agree with uZintle, take for example the price of ingxowa yetapile now." Zingi: "ndothukile wena ungena kwam kwa checkers!" a Tall light skin man with the cleanest fade I've seen all day was standing by our table. He was dressed in a black t shirt, denim shorts and all black leather All stars. He had a tattoo peeking out his t shirt running down his arm. Also up his neck. "molweni." Fez: "Hi love. Uright? Do you need a chair?" Him: "uhm...not really...I'm good. Me and my friends say hi, and would like for you to join us. Sizoya Cubana later on tonight. But for now sizongena sihlale pha e-lounge." Zintle: "I'm sorry you are?" Him: "Oh where are my manners. Apologies. My name is Max." Zintle: "by birth?" Max: "my full name is Xola Avela McGriff." Fez: "skew'zin me. What is thart?" I giggled. Max: "Xola Avela. McGriff." Zingi: "did you just make that up or....." Max: "no....my dad is McGriff. He's from Switzerland." Fez: "oh so you're colored." Max: "ndingumxhosa mna sisi." Fez: "yuh. Uxolo." Max: "not a problem. So will you guys be joining us?" he looked at me. I was the only one who hadn't said a word to him. It was a bit awkward. Zintle: "Spho?" Me: "what?" Zingi: "you're mother hen. Can we join them?" everyone stared at me as if their lives depended on it. Me: "why am I mother hen all of a sudden?" Zintle: "sisi, are we joining or not? We want to have fun. You on the other hand, are you comfortable?" Me: "I'm fine mna." Zingi: "perfect." Max: "so its a yes?" Fez: "its a yes Xam." Max looked at him with a sadistic smile. Bendizohleka but ndathula. Max: "its Max." Fez: "did you work in the navy? Yaziz, you look so familiar, bendiyi chef pha a few years back and there was this man-" Max: "its not me. I've never worked in the navy. I'm McGriff & Co. I do computers and software." Fez: "nyani? I'm a nurse!" Imfao! And being a chef? Zintle: "I'm a graphic designer." Zingi: "beauty shop owner. Magic Hair." Max: "my mom loves your salon. She's there every two weeks." Zingi: "that's so sweet." Max looked at me. What now? Everyone else looked at me. Oh my occupation?

Me: "I'm MD at GoldenCell Telecom." Max: "you're the Managing Director of that whole company?" Me: "yes." Max: "Wow. That's a big company." Fez: "yes, she's engaged to the CEO." all of us stared at Fez. Now was the time?
Fez: "kanti???" Max: "I didn't think they had a CEO." Me: "we do." Max: "cute. we'll be at that table for about an hour, then off to Cubana." Zintle: "how about we meet at Cubana?" Max: "not a problem. Lomzuzu mna let me go get us a table pha then and you'll order when you get there. Who can I call to confirm you coming?" he took out his phone. Fez: "ME." He pouted and stared at his nails. I laughed first. Max gave me the phone. I gave it to Zingi ecamkwam who gave it to Zintle who gave it back to Fez. Before a single digit was dialed, Max took his phone and put it back in front of me. They all giggled. Me: "how about, I take yours and call you when we done." Max: "fine by me. 071" I saved the number. Max: "see you guys later." Fez: "bye Xam." Zintle: "bye." Max left our table and our food arrived shortly after satya dinner yethu saxoxa indaba, yasikwa i-fillet. We had two more rounds of drinks when we asked for the bill. Zintle: "this one is on me guys." Zingi: "uyathanda ke wena ubheja xa unxilile." Zintle: "sekhe ndayicela i-refund kuwe ngengomso? Thula sisi." Fez: "heeh sana!" he sat upright. Zintle paid the bill. Me: "what is it?" Fez: "Zingi. Ayondodakho leya?" he took off his earrings and tied up his weave. I looked by the parking lot and nyani nankuya uDumi hand in hand nalentombi yakhe. Zingi looked utterly disappointed and when I tried to comfort her waphakama waphuma. Fez followed her. I took ii-bags zabo neyam. Zintle really was drunk, she didn't even know what was going on. I had to wait for her ayo chama kqala and then Saphuma. Fez was standing on the side esonge iizandla. Zingi was confronting Dumi. I didn't want to be part and parcel of any of this. Ndava nge mpama. Thwaxa!! On someone's cheek so hard even mine jiggled. Zingi was attacking the girl! Me: "Zingi!!!" I tried pulling her off.

Fez: "myeke Spho! Makayazi lonokritsi ayityiwa indoda yomntu estratweni! Unesbindi rhaaa!! Khaba lo rubbish peto." Dumi: "baby please stop this! Usijongisa ngabantu." yangena yaphelela Kuye impama, you could probably feel that sting 2 weeks later xa usiva amanzi ovasa before ungene kwi shower yakho. Dumi: "Zingi man!" I managed to pull her off. Kwangena uZintle. Hehake Bawo really? She sat on top of her, slapping her emnyola esbunzi. I pulled her nge top ke yena kuba eyokoyoko kakade. Me: "Fez!!! Do something?" Fez: "uzayeka uqhela lomntana. Ndiyamoyikisela gqithi elibhityo nje. Wena, nguwe eyona ntangam!" he pointed at Dumi esiya Kuye. I couldn't anymore. I had no more hands. A police van hit their sirens and stopped..... Oh my God....

Chapter 38

The police officer walked to us. Fez: "ndiyay'betha kaloku mna sana indoda. Ndiyay'khaba inye nyiii phezkwe stoep sase Bhisho. Mna ke sana." Me: "Fez, nali polisa." Fez grabbed the girl getting up. Fez: "uzuyithethe net uyowndibhaqa." Police: "what's happening here?" Fez: "Officeeer. The man with the big tummy is hitting his lady. We try and sort the mess." Police: "Dumi? Is that you?" Dumi: "misunderstanding Lorenzo." Police: "is everything okay?" Dumi: "yeah. We're sorting things out. Thanks." Police: "okay." he looked at us and walked back to his van. Fez: "uthe kanti uyakhonza." he said to Dumi. Fez: "peto. Mayeke amadoda abantu. Mayeke peto. Because into ozoyifumana uzokhatywa qho qha ndiyak'bona usemncinci umnandelwe yimali." he reached his boob wakhupha money bag. He gave her R20. Fez: "goduka apha. Hamba. Unguban gama lakho?" Girl: "Yamkela." Fez: "hamba Yaya peto. Uyekane namadoda abantu." Yaya ran to catch a taxi. Fez: "wena! Tshongobudala!! Njani uthathe advantage yomntana ulixhego unje? If bendingcolile ke mna ngendam'hlaba wanya lamntana ebusweni. She would be in hospital fighting for her life, then wake up to live a life with a scar on her face. Qha i-problem ndisindiwe, omnye umntu akazomelana nobobubhanxa. Yinton ngxaki yakho Dumbellz??" Dumi: "Zingi, baby can we please talk." Zingi: "akhonto ndinoy'thetha nawe mna." Me: "Zingi, ngumtshato wakho lo. You will Have to talk to your husband." Zintle: "and asikatshati peto thina so asinokwazi uku adviser ngendlela yomfazi kodwa one thing I know is for sure xa une problem nomnyeni wakho, uthetha naye ngayo. All we can do is support you." Zingi: "ndiyaniva guys ne. But Andifuni uthetha noDumi mna ngoku. Ndizothetha naye xandisiva entliziyiweni." Me: "okay guys. Let's go to my place, and chill there for the night. I'm sure Lakhe won't mind." I needed something to make that house feel normal to me again plus Lakhe doesn't even live there anymore. Zingi: "uhm no....we're going to Cubana sana. Siyojaiva thina." Zintle: "yeah. We're just going to fix ourselves up." Fez: "ndihamba nabahambayo mna mntaka somnci." we went to the car sashiya uDumi kweyakhe imoto. Fez drove to Cubana. I called Max. Max: "hello?" Me: "hi. Its me. Spho. We met at Finnezz." Max: "I recognize the voice. Where are you now?" Me: "we on our way." Max: "perfect. I'll wait at the door." Me: "sure." I hung up. We found parking and we walked to the entrance. Fez: "ndizokhe ndizithande ke namhlanje." he strutted in front. Fez: "heeyy Maxie." Max: "hi again." he looked at me. Why was he looking at me.

Zingi: "hi. Nihleli phi?" Max: "VIP. What are you guys drinking?" Zintle: "Grey Goose." Fez: "yoooh safa sana ngu Zintle." Max: "okay. Is two bottles okay?" Zingi: "one for now." Max: "okay, let me introduce you to the fellas." we went to his friends. Max: "only now I realize I didn't catch your names." Fez: "not an issue. I'm Fez. Short for Feziwe. Family woman." Max: "hm.....and this is Spho." Zintle: "I'm Zintle and this is Zingi." Max: "perfect, this is Xylo. Mzi. And Mhlahli." the guys greeted us and made space for ba sihlale phantsi. Max: "cela undikhaphe, ndiyothenga." uhm.... Okay. So we went to the bar, he ordered the bottle and another one ye-Hennessy. Wathenga dash some ice and glasses also sabuyela kwi tafile yethu. We could've waited for a waiter but nope. Fez opened our bottle wasenzela raw double shots first. Me: "kodwa yintlonti lena." Fez: "sela wethu peto uphole ingqayi. Ina." I down the double shot feeling the burn in my chest. After the shots, he mixed the vodka with juice sasela. Max wayosilandela straws. Then sat next to me. I was leaning back on the couch feeling the alcohol swirling around my head. Max: "you okay?" Me: "you do know that I'm engaged right?" Max: "so I've heard." Me: "ndibona i-fondness Le yakho towards the girl." Max: "I acknowledge that the girl is out of bounds because of her commitment, which I respect.

Kodwa if the girl is attractive, and smart andizongajongi mna." Me: "haha. You funny." Max: "am I?" Me: "yeah. Flattery will get you nowhere." Max: "luck had to be tried." Me: "thank you..." Max: "for?" Me: "the compliment, attractive and smart." Max: "no issue. The man is quite lucky. I hope he knows that." Me: "I'm sure he does." Max: "kodwa ndikhubekile but its fine. We can still be friends. You'll have to find me a girlfriend though." Me: "nantsiya i-girlfriend. She looks pretty." Max: "the white dress? Well.....yeah....but." Me: "but what?" Max: "I'm not sure. There's just a but." Me: "okay, and that one." Max: "okay, see that's the one. She looks lovely. I'll go say hi." Me: "good luck." he got up waya kuye. Fez was chatting to Xylo ehleka bhuti wabantu iziqhazolo. I was jealous nam bendibawela uhleka. Zingi was talking to Mhlahli whereby uZintle encokola noMzi. Here I was by myself. Wabuya Max. Me: "and then?" Max: "not feeling it." he downed a raw shot of Hennessy. Max: "maybe I should just stick to my friends for the night." he was staring into my soul with his lazy eyes. I looked away. Max laid back on the couch too. Max: "so everyone seems sorted. Organizer Nguye ongafumenanga nto." Me: "sorry wethu. Organizer naye must do his research prior." Max: "ezinye izinto zibamnandi xazine tyiwa." I wasn't catching that at all. Max: "that is a beautiful ring." Me: "thanks you. Don't you have a special person in your life?" Max: "used to." Me: "what happened?" Max: "it wasn't working out. We had different goals. I'm more family orientated. I love my family, I'd also like to have kids in the near future. Noba unothi umntu ngoku soze ndithi hayi. She on the other hand, wanted a steady career. I did everything to support her but she couldn't give me what I wanted. Told me that akafuni, not even in the near future. So, we broke up." Me: "you broke up because she didn't want to have a baby." Max: "she broke up with me because I asked for one. Apparently it was too much, plus a whole lot of other things." Me: "did you cheat?" Max: "I did. Once." Me: "really? Once?" Max: "how did you meet your fiance? Tell me all about him?" Me: "I'm not sure really. First time I remember seeing him was when I just woke up from a coma in hospital. I'd been in an accident and he was the first person there for me. He stayed with me till I got out and accommodated me after. So we'd been dating for about 3 weeks before my accident and yeah." Max: "that's hectic. By the obvious looks of things you still don't know how you met him?" Me: "yeah...its crazy. People keep popping up in my life and I don't know who they are." Max: "no wonder you don't recognize me. I thought I'd lost you forever. I've been trying to get hold of you and I couldn't." I laughed. Me: "mxim. Yazi uyagula." Max: "it was worth a try. Uhlala phi?" Me: "in Newton Park with my parents. Now that I say it, it sounds weird." Max: "it doesn't actually. I lived with my mom till I was 27. If I had a choice ngendise pha still but she chuck me out saying I'm too old. Really, I think I was a cock blocker so that's why ndigxothiwe ne?" I laughed again. Me: "yeah. Imagine indoda endala inside the house kungena enye. Uhlalaphi ngoku?" Max: "Summerstrand. But deep down." Me: "uhlala wedwa?" Max: "yes of course. Occasionally I have the boys over for a chill and swim. Now that we have female versions of us maybe singane pool party." Me: "without me. I'm usually always home with the Mr." Max: "uzaw'shiyeka kalok sisi. Icacile njena. Khange siku lobole thina therefore akhonto sinoyenza." Me: "oh?" Max: "but you should bring him though." Me: "he's not much of athis type. He's a stay at home nigga." Max: "the streets have nothing better for him because he has it best at home. I think I'd stay at home too if I was married to you. Kungaphela ukuqava oku. I'm sorry to say this Spho. But you're really beautiful, nonke netshomi zakho nibahle. Except Fez because andiy'ncomi enye indoda. Unless he's into women." I laughed. Me: "argg Max.." Max: "yeah....and I'm actually quite cool with being a friend. Maybe ndizofumana world class advice apha. It would also help my house decor. And my fashion sense." Me: "your fashion sense is fine I'm sure your house is fine too. As for advice, you can't blame me if you ruin your life because I'm not even licensed as a psychologist." he laughed. Something was starting to register in my mind. Then it hit me. Lakhe! It was way past 9 and where the hell was my phone. When I took it out I only saw 2 missed calls. It was a little after 10pm. Maybe he decided to let me chill with my friends, he did tell me to enjoy though but I called him just in case he was mad. I stood outside the balcony. The phone rang to voicemail ndaphinda ndafowna. Now I was panicking. Luckily waphendula. Lakhe: "hm." Me: "baby?" Lakhe: "hm?" Me: "ulele?" Lakhe: "yes....." Me: "oh. Ndise Cubana ngoku." Lakhe: "ok..." Me: "you gonna come?" Lakhe: "no." what? Me: "why?" Lakhe: "nd'lele. Tired. Called you awaphendula ngo 9. Sleeping mna ngoku." Me: "hayi njani kengoku Lakhe? Khange ndiyive mos phone ikhala." Lakhe: "ndiphakame ezingubeni kengoku ndizok'landa eCubana mna?" now he was awake. Lakhe: "Mna. Ndiyeye obam ubuthongo? Kuba wena use stratweni?" Me: "I thought we had agreed-" Lakhe: "no, I said I'll call you when I'm done, I did. Awandiphendula caba kumnandi. Next thing undifownela just before 11pm usithi ndizok'landa? Ha.a Sphosenkosi. Khasele amanzi uzive ba uthin. Andizoyenza lonto leyo mna. If funa ukuza apha endlini where I am, you'll get Uber or something. I'm not about that life." wacima phone. The sliding door behind me opened. Max: "is everything okay?" Me: "yeah." Max: "you wanna go home?" I nodded. Max: "uya eNewton park or....." Me: "the other place." Max: "you don't seem okay." Me: "I'm fine Max. Its just time for me to go now." Max: "okay, let me contact an Uber." Me: "thanks but I'll manage." I started clicking my phone looking for the app kanti its on 1% and right then it switched off. Me: "great. Just great." Max: "so should I contact an Uber?" Me: "ewe Max. You can contact an Uber." he went on his phone Wenza ke. Max: "thina ke we'll be going to my place for a morning bang. Do some swimming and breakfast." Me: "good for you." Max: "that's if you wanna join us....." Me: "I have to be home." Max: "understandable. Your Uber will be here in two minutes." I went to go and say goodbye to my friends who were a bit upset to see me go. Max walked me out to the cab outside. Max: "the app will notify me ufika kwakho kule address. Please text me to tell me you're safe ufika kwakho. Ungafiki utixelwe pha." I giggled. Me: "ndizothin ke xandinofika kutixiwe ndingenaso nestixo." Max: "if I don't hear from you in 10 minutes after arrival. We're coming to fetch you. So if ungene kakuhle, charge phone, text and I'll know uright." Me: "okay. Bye Max." Max: "bye." I got in the cab yahamba ukuya eKragga Kamma. Upon arrival I rang the gate. Multiple times akuvulwa. The Uber had left. I stood by the gate. What if someone would attack and kill me ndisame apha. At least I knew if I passed the 10 minute mark bazoza abaya then I won't have to spend the night here. Within 3 minutes yavuleka gate. I went in and jogged up to the door, it was unlocked. Ndangena. I took off my heels, locked and sprinted to the bedroom when I closed the door behind me ndabe ndisiva intliziyo yam ingombha isifuba. I switched on the light nanku Lakhe in bed fast asleep. Snoring actually. Me: "baby?" he got a fright and looked at me. Lakhe: "Spho?!" Me: "hello to you too." I unzipped myself ndayofaka kwi washing basket. All he did was stare at me. Me: "Masilakhe. Why ungafuni uyondilanda xabendikucele kakuhle?" he kept very quiet. The look on his face was still blank. Instead he looked around him for a stupid minute. Something was wrong. Me: "baby? Were you having a bad dream?" I stepped closer to him. He sat up as if to move further away. Me: "Lakhe? Kwenzeka ntoni?" I was panicking now. Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi.." Me: "yes." Lakhe: "howdid you get inside the house?" Me: "hehake. Undivulele duh. I rang the bell, waiting outside and in a few minutes wavula. Then opened the door." Lakhe: "I've been in bed since half past 9." I swallowed hard. Me: "what do you meanYou've been in bed since half past 9." Lakhe: "I mean, I didn't open that gate. I didn't open that door. If I had....I'd be waiting by the door for you to get inside." Me: "if.....you didn't open..for me. Then Who did?"

Chapter 39

I looked at him. He looked back at me. I locked our bedroom door. He got out of bed senomsindo. Me: "you're not going out there!" Lakhe: "andizohlalanto endingayaziyo endlinam mna!" Me: "Lakhe. NO. We'll do this in the morning." Lakhe: "it has to be done now! Yindlu kaban kanti Lena?" Me: "jongapha ungak'linge undiqale. We're doing this. In the morning. Siyavana?" he breathed and went back to bed. I got into bed too. Lakhe: "this can't be Sandile. He's never been so odd before." Me: "just don't give it too much thought. Masilale." Lakhe: "easy for you to say." I was actually sleepy. The bed was warm and I was a little tipsy. Lakhe: "so you had fun I presume." Me: "almost got locked up. Dumi clearly isn't sorry for what he did. He went to Finnezz nala cherry yakhe. Zingi went crazy and attacked her. Ncediswa ngu Zintle. I stopped them kwafika amapolisa but luckily zitshomi zika Dumi." Lakhe: "Dumi is also suspecting Zingi. Uyayazi phof lonto? She's too cool about everything that happens. He is starting to have doubts. He was insecure kwakqala now he's damn paranoid and annoying me." Me: "Uthini Dan kuwe." Lakhe: "hayi ke undenza umntu onolwimi ngoku." Me: "I tell you stuff. So tell me." Lakhe: "he was struggling.....a bit." Me: "with what?" Lakhe: "bedroom wise." Me: "I'm not following. They have two kids." Lakhe: "yes but he feels he's not satisfactory towards his wife." Me: "that is stupid." Lakhe: "its not. sometimes nam I feel unappreciated and used after sex. Akuncoywa niks. Caba I'm just being average." Me: "don't be sensitive now, this isn't about you. Uyayazi nje uyi top dog wena. But honestly I don't see why he is insecure about that, I'm sure they fucked before they got married and she still agreed." Lakhe: "because he's rich." Me: "stop trying to turn this about you. Don't fish." Lakhe: "mxim. Anyway, lento ayiyo uDumi, its part of i-doings zika Zingi of making him feel inadequate. Creating a gap for him to go seek validation from another woman." Me: "aka-dom. If akayifumani apha endlin Uthi uzoyifumana phandle? Oh please. That's the most pathetic thing I've ever heard." Lakhe: "oh wow." Me: " can you just try and not defend your friend.." Lakhe: "I would if Zingi wasn't fucking around too. But she getting what he's getting. And I Know. But did I tell? Nope. I'm a nice guy." Me: "you think you are. But no. Had you been, I would've gotten a foot rub and be asleep by now." Lakhe: "uthunywe ngubani eCubana? Maybe if you came home on time you would've gotten some seven star treatment. I would've cooked a nice meal for you, ran you a bath, given a full body massage and some penis that you like ulale. But no, kumnandi eCubana." Me: "ngeske ndahlala pha ne?" Lakhe: "ndik'fake impama ethangeni kwezoz'thuba." Me: "khayeke ke ndilale baby." Lakhe: "ibilapha la tshomi yakho. He's beginning to look like a psycho now. Who jogs at 9pm?" Me: "you sure bengazanga kuwe. Obviously you wouldn't have seen because you pick the most perfect occasions to de-friend people you don't even know." Lakhe: "firstly, de-friend is not even a word. Secondly, I am very friendly and modern and quiet. I have the ability to make a lot of friends." Me: "riggghhtt. Name 5." Lakhe: "this isn't a competition sisi. If anyone, you the one that needs LESS friends. Always have somewhere to go." Me: "oh I'm supposed to wait for you at home like Brittany while you hop to your meetings." Lakhe: "who's Brittany?" Me: "a housewife." Lakhe: "only You can make hop sound like a criminal activity." Me: "you're always finding an attack in simple English. What other language do you understand better?" Lakhe: "oh I have a Masters Degree in sarcasm. Try me." I just smiled. Me: "ubundikhumbula ne?" Lakhe: "not at all. I was hoping you'd come back Ksasa." Me: "why would I do that?" Lakhe: "so that nam ndibene sleep over with Dumi at some hotel." Me: "why would you want to spend a night with Dumi or he's tutoring you on how to cheat on your wife and getting caught multiple times in the act. How much does he charge for a lesson?" Lakhe: "says she who spends hours at night with the same woman married to this man and still finds time in her schedule to pool party my brother's bed. You don't have a standing argument." Me: "oh mock all you like." Lakhe: "I'm not mocking. I'm putting facts. Or ndiyaxoka?" Me: "goodnight." Lakhe: "no...don't leave me please?" Me: "I'm right next to you. Play with my boob ulale." Lakhe: "okay but talk to me a bit." he put his hand on my breast and fumbled with it. Me: "how was your meeting?" Lakhe: "my meeting was boring. I didn't enjoy it at all. I never do but at least the last time your dad occupied me. Speaking of your dad. He called a few days ago. Ebuza if ndiright na if we had a fight or what. Why would he think that?" Me: "I wasn't going to go home and pretend everything was roses and custard after that body incident." Lakhe: "oh....you didn't tell him?" Me: "he would freak out and keep me away from you." Lakhe: "true...did you notice I changed the furniture?" Me: "why?" Lakhe: "andicing kalok ndihlale mna kwi couch bihleli intsula yotata endingamazi noba ebevuzwa fluids or not. I just can't take that risk." Me: "ok I'm gonna pretend what you just said is not that funny and cruel as much as I want to laugh." Lakhe: "ifuna wena naleyo. So I changed my couches and donated the old ones." Me: "so that other people can sit on fluids." Lakhe: "I should've put that as a caption on OLX." I laughed. Me: "at least they were donated wethu. Chill." Lakhe: "yeah. But now I also need to changed the curtains." Me: "why don't you just buy a new house while you're at it?" Lakhe: "I actually like this house a lot. I'm not letting it go. I'm just changing the curtains." Me: "maybe.....also give life to the other section of the house....." I was testing the waters here. Lakhe: "that's not gonna happen. Sandile would not be happy about that. He likes it olahlobo." Me: "its weird." Lakhe: "not weird. Just different." Me: "unusual." Lakhe: "if you're gonna start throwing useless synonyms....at least use something catchy." Me: "abnormal, eminent, its conspicuous, queer, strange, uncommon, inconceivable, atypical-" Lakhe: "OKAY. We heard you clearly at eminent." Me: "ndilindele la Masters yakho." Lakhe: "keep your head above water my love because it isn't coming. Okay?" Me: "if I was a guy that sentence would be so gay." Lakhe: "akhonto uyicingayo kanene. Iyawa ngu Penis." I laughed. Me: "sekutheni igamalakhe likhumshe kangaka?" Lakhe: "ufuna abengubani ke baby? Khamthiye isXhosa." Me: "andizothiya niks mna." Lakhe: "hayke uzoba ngu Penis the postman." I giggled so hard into the pillow. Me: "just let me sleep." Lakhe: "lala ke.."

Sunday morning I woke up early. I was scared of leaving our room now. I charged my phone ecamkwam and received tons of texts. I didn't feel like reading them now so I decided to take another nap. I couldn't sleep still, although the weather was raining outside. Lakhe woke up a little while later. Me: "hey big head...." Lakhe: "hello button nose. Uleli njani?" Me: "surprisingly well. Wena?" Lakhe: "I slept great....ndaphupha kamandi also. Would you like some breakfast?" Me: "no baby, let me make it today." Lakhe: "no love..you did it the last time." Me: "no, you did. Brush your teeth sihambe siyokwenza breakfast." Lakhe: "something hot and unhealthy. I'll light the fire place up in the lounge. Sihlale pha in our pajamas all day." we got up and brushed our teeth then went to the kitchen. I started on breakfast and he did what he was supposed to gqiba kwakhe waza e-kitchen. Me: "I don't know hey...." Lakhe: "what?" Me: "I think Sandile is here." I whispered. Lakhe: "here where? Kuthen umbona wedwa?" Me: "not like that man.....he's possibly around the house somewhere. Just that, Sands uyak'thanda ukutya, how is he going without food if he's here?" Lakhe: "that's impossible. As if I wouldn't know if ukhona umntu endihlala naye apha. Why would he hide himself?" Me: "maybe he's upset."

Lakhe: "nah... I'll go check the place out, to prove akhonto." Me: "please don't leave me alone." I pulled him. Lakhe: "but baby, kufuneka siqonde kwenzeka ntoni?" Me: "call someone else to check." the gate rang. We walked to the door together and looked at the small screen of cctv footage. Lakhe: "so your friends." Me: "not today.." I looked at my phone and saw a message again above the many I already have. It was from Zingi. "Weather a bit loomy but still hot. We came to say hi, khanivule. Can we use your inside pool?" I showed Lakhe. Lakhe: "akaqalisanga tu. That is my personal swimming pool. Tell her I said No." I sent her a text: "we flew out at 6am babe sizobuya ngomso Ksasa. In Joburg again. Sorry love." Lakhe: "uwoah..." I carried on with breakfast ndade ndayigqiba. Serving it to my fiance with his tea. I took my own ndazisonga ecamkwakhe after eating. Lakhe: "soo...." Me: "so?" Lakhe: "couch...." Me: "oh they look beautiful baby but....they're white." Lakhe: "classic right?" Me: "nightmare to maintai." Lakhe: "for lazy people. I hired a lady to clean my house on a weekly basis." Me: "concluding you're lazy." Lakhe: "I run an empire plus a string of business. I am allowed a little lazy." he kissed my breast. Lakhe: "I love you. And I bet you R200 you don't feel me." Me: "cela undiphe R200 yam ke bhuti." Lakhe: "I was really throwing you a rope there." Me: "ndiyakwazi kaloku Rev Sarcasm." he smiled. Lakhe: "khathule vha. The movie is starting. Bekela sisi." Me: "andiyi nowhere." he increased the volume. Lakhe: "I sent for guards, so if you see people roaming the yard, chill. Wena ingathi you'd cause a panic the size of a bomb catastrophe at Mall of Africa." Me: "I am very chilled. I'm so chilled I'm on ice." Lakhe: "Shhh...movie." we watched our movie.

During the movie we watched I'd fallen asleep twice. On my second wake. Lakhe: "baby, yakhala phone yakho." he came from the bedroom eyiphethe wandnika. Me: "just a message." I unlocked it and checked. Ibisuka kumama.

It read: "Mntanam. Ndifownelwe nguZingisa. Uthi kum wena umke kwayizolo kubo wemnka noLakhe. Ngoku caba nise Joburg. Buthini ubunyani balonto?" I just stared at my phone ndingayazi noba ndithini. Lakhe: "what is it?" he was eating a packet of Lays. Me: "funda." I gave him the phone. He read the text. Lakhe: "ibiyintoni need?" Me: "I don't know ke." I responded to my mother's text nangona ndicaphukile to be truly honest. If she wanted to get me into trouble, ibizobalula gqithi nakum leyo. Me: "Mama. Ndigodukile emveni koba kubethe u10 ebsuku kuhleliwe kuselwa, Kukho namadoda endingawaziyo. I took a cab to Lakhe's house and ndisahleli apha nangoku. Undifownele eme apha phambi kwe gate sesithi ufuna ungena azosebenzisa i-pool. Ndathi mna asikho sise joburg olohlobo. Andiyanga kwandawo." I sent the text. She texted me again. Me: "where did she learn to text so fast." I read her message: "Ndiyakuva ke mntanam. Suzikhathaza bendingena worry xa Uhleli nomnyeni wakho kaloku qha bendikuchazela ulumke." Now I was confused. Me: "what does she mean ndilumke? Ndilumke ukuhlala nomnyeni wam?" Lakhe: "no idiot. Uthi she isn't worried xa Uhleli nomnyeni wakho. The reason why she's telling you all this is that ulumke. Lumkela itshomi leyakho iyothetha indaba zakho kokwenu." Oh. Wow. I was speechless really. Did she really just contact my parents because ndimnkile izolo and now I'm not around to let her my fiancé's house? Lakhe: "uright?" Me: "why would she do that?" Lakhe: "maybe une nerves zoba Uhleli nomntu wakho owakhe eyi mess. Come here baby." I hugged him. Me: "ndilambile ngoku." Lakhe: "after that big breakfast." Me: "kutheni u'judgy nje? Look at you carrying a big packet of chips." Lakhe: "I'm snacking." I went to fetch the big packet of Diddle Daddle ndahlala phantsi nayo. He was focused on something else engathi ucinga kude. Lakhe: "Spho." Me: "hm." Lakhe: "can you hear that?" Me: "no. What is it?" I listened carefully. I couldn't hear anything even with the TV on mute. He stood up. Me: "Lakhe. No." Lakhe: "why do you try and stop me everytime I try to find out kwenzeka ntoni endlinam." Me: "because..." Lakhe: "because what?" Me: "the letter." Lakhe: "what letter." Me: "can you let me finish talking instead of interrupting me?" Lakhe: "nawe kaloku Thetha uyeke ubane drama." Me: "yaz'bona ke." Lakhe: "baby.." Me: "the note that I got that other day ndileli apha. The one that says stop. Its because I was snooping." Lakhe: "snooping where?" Me: "the other side." Lakhe: "so you went to the other side and saw what?" Me: "nothing. Bekumnyama with no lights. It was cold and I thought I heard something but I was probably just hallucinating." Lakhe: "then conveniently you wake up to a warning. Or is that also part of your hallucinations?" Me: "unjalo ke wena. Whatever is happening there, is not for our eyes." Lakhe: "this is my house. I'm going to knock it down and find whatever it is that thinks it has found a nest. Either you come with me or you sit there." he walked into the second passage. I followed him because I was afraid of being alone. We went into the hall crossed over to the door that led to the other side. He opened it, walayita nge phone yakhe. I also used mine. It was empty here. Just the way it was when I first peeped weeks back. Me: "see there's nothing. Masambe." Lakhe: "not quite yet." I was so scared being in here. Me: "There's no sign of anyone being here. Worse kuyabanda. No human can stay here for long. Its been almost a month." he was quiet and looking thoroughly in the room. Lakhe: "okay. Fine. So not here." Me: "I told you there's nothing here." Lakhe: "its like I'm missing something. I can't put my finger on it." I pulled his arm saphuma. We went back to our room ndayovasa mna. He joined me in my bath. Putting on the pulsating jets to make some bubbles. He also brought a bottle of wine with two glasses wagalela handing me mine. Lakhe: "maybe you're right." Me: "about?" Lakhe: "giving some life to the other side of the house. Its untidy, dirty, cold and awkward. A complete opposite of me." Me: "as if you're not cold and awkward. But I get your point baby." Lakhe: "unjalo ke ngondiphoxa. Tomorrow we have a lot of work to do emsebenzini. When we're done funeke siyothenga paint and some tiles." Me: "uzoyenza ntoni ke landawo. Since you already have so much on this side?" Lakhe: "I don't know. I'm just going to make it look nice. Also, I think we're going to need a live-in cleaner. You cannot clean this house and cook alone. Awucingi." Me: "uzobe Uphi wena." Lakhe: "working. I have a job you know." Me: "nyani? Kind of thought you sold drugs." I laughed. Lakhe: "I'm not sure if that's supposed to be funny or....." Me: "haibo baby bendidlala njena." he smiled and chuckled. Lakhe: "the look on your face.." Me: "one of these days....yazi wena.....heh." Lakhe: "nditheni mna?" I drank my wine. Me: "one of these days." he drank the wine then stared at the glass. Me: "I think I have about only two outfits left here." Lakhe: "ubuye nala suitcase yakho ke sisi next time. Le yayizolandwa ngutatakho wandifaka impamakazi." Me: "ncoooh...You've come a long way hey. Worse xasenifownelana ngoku. Nikude shame." Lakhe: "oh please." Me: "don't try and act cool about it." I took another sip. Me: "he even took you to his job." Lakhe: "which was nice." he gloated. Mxim. Me: "awusembi nje." Lakhe: "I know when you say that, you want to lick my face." Me: "okay. So you're getting drunk. I'm going to bed." I got out the tub and walked to the room. He followed me out. I'm sure he had a glass or two before we got into that bath because he was acting really crazy. I took my lotion. Lakhe: "sapha baby. Let me do it." his eyes were drowsy and his handling was a bit weak. He was definitely tipsy. Me: "how much did you drink?" Lakhe: "I took 4 shots before the bath." Me: "okay, why?" Lakhe: "I think ibizi nerves. I might have a ghost in my house." he put some lotion on his hands, rubbed them together and applied it on my leg. Me: "there is no ghost here." Lakhe: "don't try make me feel better bhabha. I know what's up. I'm not in control." I pulled him by his neck and kissed him. Me: "you are in control. You're my super hero who would go through lengths to protect me. I know that. Okay?" Lakhe: "are there any perks to being....you know....super hero." Me: "please put focus back on your task now." Lakhe: "abuse ke kodwa Le." Me: "you offered." Lakhe: "abuse qha." I was on my back waiting for him to finish undithambisa before I sat up, I could feel his breathing on me. He kissed me in between my thighs with his full lips and my thighs started shaking. His tongue parting my opening, digging in it. Me: "Lakhe-" I whispered. Lakhe: "shhh..." he licked it all the way up to my clitoris and swirled his tongue around it. I pulled on the sheets keeping quiet. That was the one thing that killed me the most. I could feel every sense of my body breathing. Every muscle was throbbing in excitement. I felt a rush that made me breath with an open mouth. He stretched my legs apart and started at the opening again, sticking his tongue in and out. He then flicked his tongue back and forth and in a circular motion. Me: "whoooo." I breathed. My body was vibrating. I could feel the bolts bouncing about inside me trying to find an exit. My heart was in a tumble of clouds. His tongue slithered up again to the clitoris and I felt like screaming my lungs out, banging on the headboard and calling his name. He sucked on it slowly and I began shivering. I needed to let go. Lakhe: "cum in my face baby. Citha mntuwam." I looked down at him, his sexy eyes staring back at me while he sucked gently. Then moved on to flicking with his tongue. Me: "Masilakhheee.." I squirmed. He didn't stop. My legs shook. I was climbing too high. My eyes felt weak while my toes curled into knots. Me: "yes..." I moaned softly. Me: "babyyy...." Lakhe: "hmm..." he went faster. My whole body stiffened listening while the electricity exploded in liquid out of me squirting all over his mouth and chin. I couldn't help the pleasure I felt. Like I'd climbed all the way to the moon and slid back on a giant slide. Me: "I want you." he got up and kissed my lips. Lakhe: "you have no idea how much I want you too my sweet.." he kissed me again and I could feel his erect struggle slide through me. He was grabbing on to the pillow, breathing harder. Me: "baby." it was like a weight buried inside me. He slid out and pushed back in. Lakhe: "sthandwasam." he kissed my lips and lay his head on my shoulder. He pulled in and out in a slow pace. Lakhe: "oooh....baby?" Me: "yeeesss." Lakhe: "you.....damn...." Me: "faster..." I moaned. He moved faster. Me: "yes! Lakhe...!" Lakhe: "ahhhh....Spho...." he held himself up on his fists and groveled in. My legs a little wobbly. Lakhe: "Spho wam!!!" I looked up at him. He stared back at me. Our eyes locked and he carried on fucking. Making love. He moved closer to my face not losing my gaze. Me: "baby.." I whispered. Lakhe: " I can't mntu wam....I...." he breathed. Lakhe: "baby?" Me: "YES..." my pussy was throbbing in his rhythm. Lakhe: "Spoho!! Aahhhh!!!" he smashed into me for the last time and stiffened. Lakhe: "Oooh.....fuck." I held on to him like an oxygen mask and climaxed again. I was sucking him in, my legs wrapped all around him breathing heavily. Lakhe: "that.....was amazing. Yuuh. Kunin ndivinjwa." Me: "you're so dramatic." Lakhe: "awufuni undibona ndi-happy kaloku wena." he pulled himself out and rested his head between my breasts. Me: "nako u-happy ngoku." Lakhe: "awunayo ne idea wena. Ingaske ndijaive ngoku phez'kwe tafile." Me: "Uhambe ke apha uye kwa Ngqoko uyokwenza lo mash potato." he giggled. Lakhe: "kuphi kwa Ngqoko." Me: "oh my goodness." I covered my face. Me: "you know what? Ba awumazi ngoku, let go. Sele umyeka. You'll just get more confused xa sow'pha." Lakhe: "I love you mntuwam vha." Me: "what's happening now." Lakhe: "ndiyozela." ndiyiqondile. Me: "lala kaloku." Lakhe: "yuh awundithandi nyani shame kunzima nondibhanxa Uthi me too. Umfumene uPenis ngoku awufun kwanto inam mandilale ndiyeke ukuk'dika." Me: "precisely." Lakhe: "ba andivukanga uyazi ba ndikhutyekiswe nguwe." Me: "ungqengqe apha ecaleni ke bhuti. Andifun usindwa mna yile tomb stone yentloko yakho." he picked his head up and looked at me. Lakhe: "you are so mean!" Me: "suka qha ok'salayo." he got up and went to the bathroom wabuya ne towel. Lakhe: "pretend'wa apha. Noske ndiye ku Dumi azondisa kwa Ngqoko qha." Me: "uzayintampula nge nyawo ke mfana." Lakhe: "ndizohamba ngala A7 ka Dumi sisi. Phola." I took the towel and wiped myself. Me: "nguwe ke ozolala kwelicala limanzi. Lenziwe nguwe, walicela even beforehand." Lakhe: "totally worth it." he brought a clean towel to place on the bed. Finally, after a lot of fiddling and walking around he came to bed. Lakhe: "cela hug before ndilale ndixole because akaphumi lo 'me too.' So...." Me: "Iza baby wam nale ntlokwana yakho inkulu. Oh bethuna mhinxi ka mama." I hugged and kissed his head. Me: "I love you too sthandwasam. Sleep tight." yuuh. Akancuma... Lakhe: "enkosi."

I woke up on Monday morning. Again before Lakhe. But this time ndivuswa nguye. He was struggling in his sleep. It looked like he was having a nightmare and he was crying. A lot. Me: "baby...vuka. Wake up my angel." he woke up immediately and breathed. Me: "you okay?" he nodded. Lakhe: "I'm fine." he turned his back on me wajonga kwelinye icala. So....it was really a bad dream. What I didn't understand was why I was being pushed away. Me: "its almost time to wake up love. What do you want for breakfast?" Lakhe: "I'm not hungry." Me: "okay, Lakhe, I understand you were having a bad dream, I was only trying to help. You seemed as though you were crying and unhappy." he didn't respond.

Instead I heard a snuffle. So he was crying again. I wasn't sure how to feel about it. I moved closer to him and hugged him from behind. Lakhe: "I miss her so much.....I don't know if she knows how much I love her..." wait what...? ndaxhaleka intliziweni. But he was holding my hand tight not wanting to let go. Lakhe: "I want her to be here so bad, so that she can see my accomplishments, so that she can see my wife and just be there for us." I was still confused. Lakhe: "my mother meant the world to me. When she died, I lost that whole world. I shut down and became the cold bastard I'm known to be. Why did she leave me?" aaanndd.....Stella? Me: "its okay baby...I'm sure she is at peace and she is more than proud of her son. Kakhulu. She loves you, she's always with you in spirit baby." Lakhe: "in my dream I was with her sihleli in the lounge. She kept saying that she had to go but I didn't let her leave. I couldn't. I wanted her to spend more time nam because I miss her and haven't seen her in my dreams for months. She kept explaining that there is someone that takes care of me. That this someone was special and I should make more room in my heart. I had to watch her leave me again. It hurts so much Spho." Me: "its going to be okay baby." my heart was really aching for him. I hated seeing him so upset. It broke my heart. Me: "come here big head. Let me give you a hug." he sighed and turned around. I hugged him tight for a while and then let go to look at him. He stared at me blankly. Then smiled. Me: "what?" Lakhe: "nothing baby....thank you. I feel a little better now." Me: "so what do you want for breakfast?" Lakhe: "just buttered toast with jam and tea." Me: "only?" Lakhe: "yeah...I don't feel like eating much. I just want to stay in bed with my lovely wife...is that normal?" Me: "what is?" Lakhe: "umntu afune ubase bhedini all day everyday. Nguwe lo undenza ivila yazi." Me: "ndiyak'shiya mna bhuti." Lakhe: "noooo...." Me: "Iza....phakama." I pulled him out of bed pushing him to the bathroom. Me: "Teeth. Toilet. Shower. I'll make your toast." I brushed my teeth ndagqiba ndimshiya ese toilet. I made his toast and let the water boil for tea. I made my cereal and ate ndibukele iindaba. Once I was done I went to shower. Lakhe was in his closet finding something to wear. I finished showering in 10 minutes. Ndayokhangela into yonxiba. Actually picking from the two outfits. There was the long sleeve soft pink dress that was body fitting, just above the knee. It had a gold zip that ran down my body. I took my nude strap heels and wore them. Also the taking the beige coat. Lakhe was on the bed again only wearing underwear and eating. Me: "baby nxiba kaloku. We're going to be late." Lakhe: "almost done." I went to comb my short hair not sure if I was liking the no make up look today. Oh well, since I have some time to spare. I applied my make up ndade ndagqiba uLakhe esanxiba. Me: "Masilakhe!!" Lakhe: "I'm not sure which shirt? The one that looks like your dress or the white?" Me: "take the white one. Wear your soft pink tie instead. If you really want to look like me." Lakhe: "jealousy." he wore his navy pants and white shirt. Putting on a soft pink tie. Me: "nope...doesn't look nice. Wear the red tie." Lakhe: "had you not hidden my beige pants, this tie would be amazing kule outfit. Qha unomona." Me: "okay super star. We're going to work not the New York Fashion Week for Vogue. Be quick." Lakhe: "khawuve." I took off the sheets on the bed ndayokhupha ezinye ndazifaka. Made the bed and took the dirty sheets to the washing. Finally Lakhe was done. Oh wait.....shoes. Lakhe: "so....which one is nice today-" Me: "I'm leaving you behind. You're too much today. I don't know what's wrong with you." I took my laptop bag and hand bag walking to the lounge, searching my bag for my laptop charger. Me: "where could it be na Nkosi yam?" I placed the bags on the couch, ndava nje ngoxhaka entliziweni. It was happening again. Tears stung my eyes blurring a shadow by the couch. It was a human shadow. Me: "Lakheeeee!!!!!" I screamed. Lakhe: "I'm comi-" he froze beside me.

My heart almost jumped out of my chest. I clutched it from feeling anymore pain and breathed properly. Lakhe: "Sandile." he looked really pissed off. Sands: "I thought you'd be happy to see me this time-" Lakhe: "this time???" After scaring us to death with your stupid psychotic tactics! What the fuck were you thinking!!" he marched to him. I didn't have the energy to stop him but I had to. Me: "Lakhe, please stop." too late. He was strangling his brother. Me: "Lakhe!!" Sands: "listen to your wife." he said calmly ingathi akenziwa niks. Lakhe: "I want you out of this house with your little games and corpses by the time I get home from work. I don't want to see you here again. Uyandiva?" Me: "Lakhe, wait.." Lakhe: "no Spho! Andimfuni apha uSandile!" he let go and walked out to the garage. Me: "kodwa nawe." I took my bags. Me: "don't go....just wait until he calms down.." Sands: "okay." I knew Lakhe was more glad than angry that he was back. As much as he hid it. The drive to work was an extremely quiet and quick one because of the speed. Bendimane ngobambelela ndimincile. He parked the car and got out. Me: "baby-" Lakhe: "now is not the time." I got out with my bags. Me: "but love-" Lakhe: "No Sphosenkosi. Stop defending uSandile. Uyahamba kulandlu, I don't want to see him there." Me: "you didn't even ask or let him explain himself. Don't you want to know why?" Lakhe: "its because uyashota entloko! That's why!" he went into the building. I followed him in having to sign in and went to my office. I sat down, setting up my laptop trying to understand why Sandile enjeya? I had so many questions. Why did he scare us like that? Why did he kill that man? Why dump the body in our living space? Does that mean he killed him inside the house? "Miss Ngudla?" I looked up. There was a teenager in my office. Why was there a teenager in my office? Me: "hi. Can I help you?" she looked at me with her big eyes. She was nervous. "igama lam ndingu Sive, I applied for an assistant position and was called in for an interview." assistant? Who needed an assistant? Me: "who called you Sive?" Sive: "Bianca." Me: "Oh!! Yes. Sit here. You're supposed to be at Human Resources love. Bianca is our receptionist." Lakhe walked in wamjamela. Lakhe: "hello." Sive: "good morning bhuti." Lakhe: "love, have you received the email from Palate? We're supposed to start with them on Wednesday?" Me: "No. I'll contact them in a minute." Lakhe: "okay, you have a meeting with Michael, 12pm at the Radisson." Me: "I'm not doing that." Lakhe: "why? Your lessons are done mos." Me: "I don't want i-business ka Michael. I told you this." Lakhe: "when you're done here please come to my office." he walked out. I called human resources to come fetch Sive from my office. In the mean time I was still looking for my charger ndayifumana phantsi under my desk. So smart of me. "Spho?" Me: "hi Macy, this is Sive. Bianca's position?" Macy: "oh nice. Come this way Sive." Sive: "enkosi kakhulu Sisi." Me: "okay hun." she walked out my office. She seemed so sweet. I went to Lakhe's office real quick. Me: "I'm here." Lakhe: "babes, I thought we spoke about this?" Me: "we never agreed." Lakhe: "what am I supposed to do now? I can't take anymore work or anymore business on my hands. Baby, I ask this of you please." Me: "I told you to give it to Sandile. I am not interested either!" Lakhe: "I don't want Sandile anywhere near me-" Me: "he's your brother! He is alive and he is safe!! For once in you life be grateful!! Not everyone has the siblings you take for granted!" I stormed out the office. In my own little space, I closed the door and began my work also reading the news. I had four reports to go over. Two documents needed my signature and one person has decided today that I would be the receptionist. Halfway through the day I heard another irritating knock on my door, I wish I could scream. Me: "Yes.." the door opened. Khaya: "heeeey princess!" he came inside the room with take aways from kfc. I was sooo hungry, how did he know! Me: "hi tata. How did you get here?" I took the packet from him ndikhangela wings. Me: "thank you." Khaya: "well, Lakhe invited me. He said it was time I saw his working space and here I am.... I must say.....its quite impressive." Me: "hm." I ate quietly. Khaya: "he also says you're ignoring him." Me: "not." Khaya: "but you're mad at him." Me: "neither." Khaya: "so you didn't yell at him in his office and then storm out?" Me: "I didn't even yell." Khaya: "so basically he's lying?" Me: "he's your friend...suddenly." Khaya: "what happened between you?" Me: "we just had a disagreement. He wants me to take over Michael's shares of the hotel. I don't. I said I choose to be MD here and not working overtime running a hotel. Now today, he books me some meeting saying funeke ndidibane noMichael. Ayihambi njalo kaloku." I took a bite of my double crunch burger. Making sure not to mess on myself. Me: "I tell him to give these shares to his brother and he says no. Then I told him that he should be thankful that he has siblings yet he takes them for granted." he looked at me. Khaya: "you want siblings?" Me: "if you even think about having another child I'll adopt myself tata." he chuckled. Khaya: "this brother. Ebephi ixesha elilonke?" Me: "we don't know. Lakhe doesn't even ask or wait for an explanation. Uyamgxotha qha." I took another bite. Khaya: "well maybe there's stuff. A lot of families have stuff." Me: "then this the time to solve it." I finished my burger. Khaya: "really hungry huh." Me: "I didn't have breakfast tata. Please don't judge me. I'm starting gym tomorrow." Khaya: "I didn't say anything love. I'm just glad to see you doing well and eating." Me: "I'll be back home tonight. I have some errands to run after work." Khaya: "that's okay princess." Me: "Unjani wena nomama?" Khaya: "perfect." he smiled. Khaya: "the time alone in a new beautiful house is just amazing. I didn't know how much I missed her." Me: "oh....so is that a way of kicking me out?" Khaya: "never. Not my baby.....so have you set a date?" it was definitely a way of kicking me out. Me: "no....not yet. He wants an island wedding. Something at the beach." Khaya: "at Robben Island? Hahahaha! Uzay'fumanaphi island apha?" I laughed. Me: "no dad. We're doing it overseas. On an actual island." Khaya: "What? Why?" Me: "I love the idea. We'll fly out with our families and get married pha also spending our honeymoon pha. You'll love it." Khaya: "Wow. Nindixelele ke in advance. How do these beach weddings go? In the water or..." Me: "no tata, just by the shore." Khaya: "so andinonxiba izihlangu? I must roll up my pants?" Me: "yes daddy." I was eating chips and drinking the cooldrink. Khaya: "princess ka tata...." Me: "hm?" Khaya: "this is difficult for me. To ask." Me: "what?" Khaya: "are you sure there isn't a little prince in there?" Me: "where?" he pointed to my stomach. Me: "dad!!" I was so embarrassed. Khaya: "I know mntanam. I'm just making sure." Me: "there isn't tata. There's nothing." Khaya: "okay. Good. Now I have to go back to work okay? I'll see you later. Love you." Me: "goodbye tata. Love you too." he walked out the office. In a few minutes wangena uLakhe. Lakhe: "hey baby." Me: "I'm not going to Michael." Lakhe: "I know. And I respect that." I took off my shoes and threw my take away packets in the bin. I opened the windows. Lakhe: "bhabha wam." Me: "yes Lakhe. I have a lot of work to do." Lakhe: "I know. I gave it to you. Listen....I made a decision. But you're gonna need to implement it so that it sounds better." I sighed. Lakhe: "I can't stand him right now. Please?" Me: "what is your decision?" Lakhe: "if he takes over those shares. He can stay. If he disappears again or starts acting crazy, I'll kick him out myself." Me: "and if he says no?" Lakhe: "then he can't stay. Or talk to me. Matter of fact I won't forgive him. I still haven't. Probably won't for a while.." Me: "fine." he hugged me. Me: "can you stop please? Yoh." I wiggled out his arms and sat down. Lakhe: "are we back to the hate again?" Me: "I've got a lot of work to do. Please." Lakhe: "mxim." he walked out. I continued with my job. In just 2 hours I was done, it was 14:40pm. Suppose kakade siphuma ngo 3. I wore my shoes and packed my belongings. I made the walk to Lakhe's office, to my surprise. It was empty. I tried to call him, it went straight to voice mail. Nobody knew where he was kodwa they all say they saw him leave with his brief case. I went outside to check the car and it was gone. So he'd left me behind. I got myself an Uber, ufika kwayo I went straight to Newton Park and switched my phone off.

Ma: "hi baby." I hugged her. Me: "hello mama. Unjani?" Ma: "just great mntanam. Ndipheka umngqusho. Uyay'bona Le weather ndlela embi ngayo?" Me: "ewe mama. I'm going to bath and change vha." Ma: "okay sweetie." I went to run a bath ndavasa ndanxiba pajamas zam. I took my phone to the living room plus a fleece blanket. Me: "so I hear I'm being kicked out." Ma: "by who!!" Me: "haha, I'm kidding mama. Tata is just so happy that I'm not home. Apparently he's having a great time. I hope you're not going to replace me." Ma: "hahahaha! Uwoah. Awusenamona." I switched on my phone and played a game. No phone calls came in. No texts. Nothing. He just left me there ba mandizibone. Ma: "sweetie...how are the plans going for the wedding?" Me: "we haven't started ma..." I was trying to focus. Ma: "how come." Me: "we haven't really had time. A lot of things pop up." Ma: "don't tell me you have doubts." Me: "then I'm not going to tell you mama." Ma: "love, why do you keep fighting him as if awumthandi?" Me: "what?" Ma: "apparently, you had a little disagreement earlier." Me: "and where did you hear that?" Ma: "it doesn't matter. Stop fighting this man. He loves you. There's nothing you can do about it!" Me: "I know." I sent him a text: "I'm sorry about earlier. Was a bit moody and cranky. I think my period is gonna finally pick up." there was no response. I waited kwade kwafika utatam. Which was around 7 in the evening. I ate umngqusho wam omnandi and kept silent. Mom and dad were on their couch chatting and giggling. I facetimed Lakhe. No reply still. Me: "so I might have offended him again." they both looked at me. Khaya: "he says you chased him out your office." Me: "hewethu tata, ukuxelela kwanto uLakhe?" Khaya: "well no...he was just looking for advice. He doesn't know what he did wrong. You just keep attacking him." he might as well just marry my dad then. I went to wash the dishes leaving the two love birds on the couch. I was tired now, I could feel all of today on my shoulders, thank goodness I was done with the dishes. Me: "I'm going to bed. I'm really drained and ndihluthi kamandi ngoku. Thank you mama." Ma: "its a pleasure mntanam." Khaya: "goodnight angel." I went to my room. My phone rang. Fez was facetimeing me. I answered. Me: "hey boo." I could see his face half masked with something. Fez: "tshooooomi yaaaam. Uright?" he was still applying face mask. Eqhiye nge towel ke phof. Me: "ndiright my friend. Uphi and what are you doing?" Fez: "ndilapha kwam peto. Sanaaaa." he smacked his lips. Fez: "ndine fillet yakho." Me: "eyam? Ithini?" Fez: "I'm sure mos uyay'qonda ba uMr Maximum Muscles uyak'funa. Awukho dom kaloku wena my friend send'tshuba izicacele." Me: "really? Did he say that?" Fez: "not in so many words. Mos, siye sahamba eCubana around 3. Saya endlin ka Max. Ayisentle my f. Anyway, kwahanjwa kwayolalwa. Andizok'xelela ke umntu ungene kwi bhedi nabani ifuna abanikazi bayo leyo mna ndigodole ndodwa ndacinga wena my friend. But akhonto. Anyway, kwavukwa senzela breakfast ngu Muscle Man safumana ndawo yovasa oku kwama khwapha. Fine. Now, andithi ii-plans bezisithi sizo swimmer? But ke kwabe kunetha. Uyithanda njani uScoobyDoo athi masiye kwakho. Ndibuze ke mna njani? Wathi yena kuba Kukho indoor swimming pool and its heated plus you won't mind mos kuba sizi friends sonke siqhelene. Ndaqondba.....sweeeettttiiiiee. Hayi ke sathatha izinto zethu, kanti uPowerpuff girl u-invite'e idolophu esi besihleli nalo. That being uMuscle Man ne-squad. Yeeeyi. Zange ndambona umnyeni wakho guuurll. But, ndinendawana ebane dyudyu xakuthethwa ngaye. Uyoyikeka." Me: "wait, so she invited, ooMax to Lakhe's house. To swim. Without asking me first." Fez: "ewe kaloku tshomi. So mna ke, my advice to you is, bhinqa sisi indodakho kuwe esinqeni. Susa laa Maxico kwa kwi contacts zakho uhoye umzi wakho engeka diliki ngoba uSatana uza eyiyo ne pudding. Uzutye ke wena sdenge." Me: "thanks for telling me tshomi." Fez: "ungalili apho. Faka night cream yakho uphole enqayini sthandwasam. Umhle, uright, uhappy. Akho need yo-entertainer ezinye izinto. Ndiyamthanda uMushroom yi-friend yam but andiyithandanga into ayenzileyo. Plus futhi ndamxelela ukuba she was wrong and ndizok'xelela nawe uyazi. Waske wa a.aza ke kuba ebenxilile and so forth. Akhonto ibitheni wethu. Uphi u-husband. Uzundiphuzele kuye wethu aphe sdleleni uyeva?" Me: "okay Fez babe. Enkosi." Fez: "Sho, ke girlfriend.

Nanko ephuma kwi shower lomfana. Bye peto sophinda sithete." Me: "bye love." I hung up. I received another Facetime almost immediately. From Lakhe's phone but it wasn't him. It was Sandile. I'm not sure he was aware because he was holding the phone on his lap ejonge kwi TV. The other hand had a spoon. Me: "Sandile." he looked around. Heee. Me: "Sandile!" he looked behind him. Sands: "ungubani!" Me: "on your lap!" idiot. He looked down and got a fright. Sands: "heyyyy. How did this happen?" Me: "its you. You dialed me." Sands: "huh. But I'm watching soccer." Me: "where's your brother? Khamnike phone." Sands: "oh he left about 2 hours ago. Something about investment." Me: "what?" Sands: "he's not talking to me. He left his phone by mistake here, ebethetha efownin." Me: "to?" Sands: "not that I was snooping but a Michael Oslo and then Keyan Rodigrue. Before those it was Hendricks Plower and George Tigers. Just before lunch time Johan and Harold, Bruce Langton, Steven Nesser, Andile Simolo, Bulelani Hani and some Neyanda." Me: "you.....memorized his call log?" Sands: "No, I just have a photographic memory. I can't help it." Me: "okay. No wonder he isn't responding." Sands: "So you're good?" he was still staring at the TV. Me: "I'm fine. Sandile?" Sands: "yes?" Me: "ubuphi." Sands: "what is your real question." Me: "why did you kill him?" Sands: "kill who?" Me: "my real father. Why?" Sands: "I didn't kill him. He died himself." Me: "why!" Sands: "he hurt you." all this time he wasn't even looking at the phone. Oko ejonge kula TV ingaske ndiyigib'sele ngento icime. Me: "Sandile. You shouldn't have done that!" Sands: "but I did....I taught him a lesson and like the weak pathetic man he was, he succumbed to his injuries and died. I didn't intend to kill him. It was his decision to die." Me: "and then bringing him to our house? Was that his last request?" Sands: "I'm sorry. I didn't mean to scare you." Me: "Sandile...." Sands: "yes, he died inside the house." now he looked down at me. Sands: "I'm sorry." Me: "I don't want you to ever do something like this ever again. Do you understand me?" Sands: "yes ma'am." Me: "I'm serious Sandile!" Sands: "I know. My apologies." Me: "so this whole time I was right, you were in the house?" Sands: "Not quite. But most of the time." Me: "we thought there was some kind of ghost. How could you do that!!" Sands: "I was just trying to keep you safe." he looked upset now. Me: "talk to your brother. Try not being aggressive this time." Sands: "okay." Me: "he loves you, as much as he doesn't tell you or show you. He was terrified when you disappeared. Completely lost it. Went out to look for you all night. Try and understand where he's coming from Ube patient. Okay?" Sands: "okay Spho. I think I just heard his car in the drive way." Me: "okay don't hang up. Just put me down somewhere." he placed the phone on the other couch. I could hear footsteps. Then taking of the phone wahamba. I couldn't see much then until it was tossed on the bed I presumed. Me: "Baby? Please pick me up? Love?" no answer. Me: "Love I'm

big head." he hid his smile but I could see he wanted to melt so badly by the curve on his mouth. Lakhe: "what is it?" Me: "I'm sorry Papi. I was kinda stressed today....I shouldn't have taken it out on you." Lakhe: "ubuthetha nabani Le 14 minutes 23 seconds?" Me: "Sands..." he rolled his eyes. Lakhe: "neither of you can keep your hands off my phone. Funny enough ndinithengele nobabini the exact same thing." Me: "yours is much more fun. I miss you." Lakhe: "yand'khumbula ngoku? After you told me to fuck off." Me: "xolo kaloku mntuwam njena." Lakhe: "so your little friend made me dinner." Me: "who's my little friend." Lakhe: "lo ugqibo ncokola naye. Andiyazi noba ucimba ukutya kuzondenza ndilibale obubudenge abenzileyo. He has much more explaining to do than cooking." Me: "at least that's step one. Have your dinner. Uthethe naye." Lakhe: "I'm not saying a damn thing to him. He must leave me alone futhi. Ubuya nini?" Me: "probably soon. My parents don't want me anymore. Both of them tried to kick me out. This is the same day." Lakhe: "shame. Iza kwakho kaloku apho ungazo gxothwa khona. But then ndim lo uzomane egxothwa." Me: "never. Not owam.." Lakhe: "I'm gonn have my supper now ndithethe nalentwana. Will call you when I sleep vha?" Me: "okay baby. Mwah." I hung up.

The next morning I was up early and decided to use my gym membership kwa Virgin Active. I washed my face and brushed my teeth, I'd shower when I'm done with my exercise. I took out my Adidas track pants. They held on tight to my skin and absorbed sweat. I put on my waist trainer and Adidas sports bra. Ndanxiba takkie yam and jogged to the gym. It was quite a distance to my house but ke, I had to keep fit. I got in and got myself busy on the stationary bicycle. After the bicycle, I did some sit ups. "Hey stranger." I looked up and saw Max standing above me. Max: "you might want to keep your feet still during that." Me: "hi." Max: "you disappeared on me. I thought something had happened." Me: "as you can see Max. I'm fine." Max: "I'm glad... Need help?" Me: "nope. I'm good." Max: "can I join you?" Me: "Max, you're a nice gent but I'm engaged to be married. Its inappropriate for us to just kick start a friendship. If anything suppose you're my fiancé's friend. Not mine. Sorry..." Max: "no need to apologize. You're right. I'm being inappropriate. I'll stop bugging you. If you never need anything, don't ever hesitate to call okay?" Me: "Bye Max." he went to be busy on others and actually, he helped with exercises kumntu okhoyo. Now I felt quite dumb. But didn't he say he was a computer guy? Anyway, after 45 minutes of a workout, I left for home ndafika ndavasa. I was tired already. Ndanxiba and waited for utata so that he could drop me off. I was doing well with my driving again. Just didn't own a car and I didn't want eyaka Lakhe. So, I'd make an appointment with the bank and get myself my own. Daddy dropped me off. I got to my office and instantly checked out for nice cars. The new VW beetle was quite sexy but also a Scirocco. I had a crush on big cars also but I wouldn't be able to keep up with its necessities. Payments, petrol, maintenance. I also needed money to spoil myself and save some. I know everyone's next question would be: 'but don't you have a rich husband?' I do, and I can't lie, I do love his money kodwa I don't abuse it. If he wanted to get me a car, he'd buy it for me. Instead, he wants me to be independent, that's why I'm buying it myself. It doesn't make much sense but whatever. I enjoyed car shopping, I suddenly got carried away ndayobuka kwa Jeep and also hopped to Range Rover. This was addictive. Before I knew it, the time was 9am. Lakhe: "knock knock. I didn't get my breakfast hug." I got up and hugged him. Me: "morning my love." Lakhe: "what are you up to?" Me: "car shopping. I need my own. Tata and Uber cannot drive me around forever." Lakhe: "oh...so how's that going?" Me: "good...." Lakhe: "found anything you like?" Me: "yes. The Scirocco is nice." Lakhe: "VW? Anything else?" Me: "I'm fine with it. I like it. Nice and small." Lakhe: "you don't like nice and small baby. I see how you are when we take the ML. you get so excited and comfortable. Take a bigger car." Me: "jeep?" Lakhe: "if you can afford it. Why not? Just don't make it pink please." Me: "how did you guess!!" he laughed. Lakhe: "Sarcasm does not suit you. You look gorgeous by the way. And smell so damn good..." he kissed my neck. Me: "so we're in the office." Lakhe: "and you're my wife..." Me: "uthethile noSandile?" Lakhe: "not so much. He said he'd think about it and tell me today." I kissed him. Me: "he loves you. He would do anything to make you happy." Lakhe: "hm..." there was a knock on my door. Me: "come in." she entered. Sive: "Morning Miss Ngudla. Mr Sobukwe sir, excuse me. There's a gentleman at reception with your name. He doesn't have an appointment, he says he has blood instead. I don't think he's lying." she looked so scared. Me: "Sandile is such a mess. He can't even help himself." Lakhe: "vha? Let me fix this. We'll talk later." he kissed my forehead and walked out the office. Lakhe: "So? What's your deci-" he stared at him. Lakhe: "you're wearing a suit?" Sands: "I borrowed it from your closet. Its not so bad." Lakhe: "so you're..." Sands: "I'm saying Yes. I'll take the shares and run the hotel. In that specific term." Lakhe: "Sandile..." Sandile: "not run away with it obviously. Its a building, not a stone. I'm buying the shares, and doing this. I'm going to be a legitimate businessman now." he smiled. Lakhe: "please stop smiling. It looks a little awkward. People get worried." Sands: "fine. So what's my first task as hotel manager? Getting rid of the garbage? Taking the linen to the laundry?" Lakhe: "kind of just looking through the books, getting to know the team, lay out their shifts, attend meetings and so forth. I hope you stick to this." Sands: "I'm not glue. We'll talk later. Say hi to my sis for me." as he walked out. Sands: "Goodbye Sive." he winked....

That afternoon, I was feeling a bit cranky again but this time instead of wanting him out my sight, I wanted him in front of me. So I packed my laptop and everything I needed and went to his office. He looked up from his computer. Lakhe: "are we moving now?" Me: "there we go. It has to be your voice." Lakhe: "I'm confused." Me: "Shhh...I miss you. But you talk a lot." Lakhe: "I'm not sure if I'm happy or upset about that statement." Me: "my lunch hug please." Lakhe: "won't I be too loud?" he got up and hugged me. Me: "thank you baby." Lakhe: "so what's wrong now? Did they officially kick you out?" Me: "not yet. They still scheming about it. Asking me about dates." Lakhe: "cela uze namhlanje? I'll cook you dinner, massage you, love you all night..." Me: "I feel like a traditional meal." Lakhe: "then Sandile will cook for us. Ufuna ntoni baby?" he got on his phone. Me: "you're really abusing him this time aren't you?" Lakhe: "he'll be fine. Hello? Uphi?" Sands: "literally or figuratively? Because technically I'm in a queue at the bank, I'm not sure if the manager is waving or telling me to get off my phone. Anyway, what's up?" Lakhe: "thought you're at home. Wanted you to start up dinner ndizoy'gqibezela ufika kwam." there was a lady talking in the background. Sands: "so now I must get off my phone but you're taking your African time to help your customers. You don't even have wifi. Why should I get off my phone?" the lady explained again. Sands: "how is that my problem if you have trust issues? Don't you have systems in place. I'm not gonna not touch my phone because of you until someone helps me. I've been standing here for too damn long and not even one person has the decency to offer me water. Uthini bhuti?" Lakhe: "Get off your phone. I'll text you." Sands: "they'll have to pay me first. Ufuna ndipheke ntoni?" Me: "hi Sandile, any chance of ulusu?" Sands: "hi cutie pie. I'll have to go to the Butchery first then. But funeke uxovule for dumplings ke because I can't do that." Me: "will do. Thank you Sands." Lakhe: "bye." Sands: "bye." he hung up. Lakhe: "akaxutywanga shame uSandile." Me: "ndifuna uyazi mna where he is figuratively since he's physically at the bank." I laughed sitting on the couch opposite his desk. Lakhe: "I don't even want to know. You can expect absolutely anything Kuye. But he has changed a little. I hope." Me: "within a day?" Lakhe: "no man. Like, from months ago...this isn't the same him. Phof the anger issues are the same but he's different." Me: "you're really glad he's back ne.." Lakhe: "it still doesn't excuse what he's done." Me: "stop putting this big wall! You have a soft spot for him. Admit it, you're happy he's back." Lakhe: "I might be. Maybe a little. I need to make this phone call." I stayed quiet and lay on the couch on my tummy. It was cramping and uncomfortable. Lakhe: "Yes, the order has been placed. I'll check how far it is.....yes.....its my pleasure Mr Plowers, please contact me should you need anything else. Enjoy the rest of your day." he hung up. Lakhe: "should I fuss or let you be?" Me: "so There's a button you can push for the fussing to go on and off. Nice to know." Lakhe: "ndoyika uxhaywa kaloku. I'll panic from a distance." Me: "my tummy hurts." Lakhe: "have you eaten?" Me: "yes. Twice today." Lakhe: "maybe you should go home baby." Me: "but I want to see you." Lakhe: "if I go home with you I'll have to take all this work. You okay with that?" Me: "hm..." Lakhe: "is that a yes or grunt for disapproval?" Me: "yes." Lakhe: "okay, let's go." I sat up. Me: "baby..." Lakhe: "yes?" Me: "I think I'm having a period." Lakhe: "what?" Me: "I feel funny. Ima go check." Lakhe: "ndik'khaph-" Me: "NO!" Lakhe: "oh there she is." I went to the toilet with my bag and pee'd. There truly were a few drops of blood on my liner. All this over reaction, food habits and moods. I was so relieved. But why these cramps tho. I finished up and went to the office. Lakhe: "so? Is it?" Me: "Yes. I was over reacting. I'm going back to my office

vha?" Lakhe: "wait...hold on. What do you mean? Besigoduka nje?" Me: "we can't go home just because of some little period pains. Come on now." Lakhe: "you were on my couch groaning like a pregnant whale giving birth. We're going home." Me: "a pregnant whale? Not even a cat ke?" Lakhe: "it was a funny sound baby. I had to quickly end that call. Come masambe. Give me your things." he took his bags and my bags. Me: "you know the blood isn't coming out of my arms so I can carry-" Lakhe: "sisi, march." I shouldn't have told him. He probably thinks I'm gonna collapse and die. I was beginning to think the thought of me around blood scared him a little. It can't be so.....right? I mean this is natural. He drove to Pick n Pay. Lakhe: "so what do we need?" Me: "uhm, I'll buy it. Thanks." I got out the car ndayongena ngaphakathi. He was following behind me. With a trolley ke phofu. Me: "uyisaphi Masilakhe?" Lakhe: "I thought that maybe.....we might need it." I just laughed. Me: "baby, I'm okay. Stop panicking. Okay?" Lakhe: "I can't help it." I kissed him. Me: "you're so adorable. Relax." I picked my products and put them in the trolley. I also picked up a few other stuff and snacks.....plus desserts. We needed to stock up on the snacks though since Sandile was back full time. Lakhe: "sowuy'fumene offer from the bank?" Me: "I'll check my emails ufika kwam endlini. I made the offer for the Jeep." Lakhe: "color?" Me: "I want it black." Lakhe: "good." we paid for our stuff saphuma. Me: "love?" Lakhe: "hm?" Me: "can I drive us home?" Lakhe: "let me check if my.....insurance policy is up to date. There's an app here-" Me: "Okay Smarty pants. I'm not that bad of a driver." Lakhe: "okay, you can drive." I got in the driver's seat after he packed the plastics and returned the trolley wangena kwi passenger. Lakhe: "now, this is an automatic-" Me: "I know exactly how it works." it was quite weird actually. I was so familiar. Me: "did you teach me on this car before?" Lakhe: "no....why?" Me: "something comfortable about being in this seat. This view." Lakhe: "then drive Mrs Sobz." I started the car and drove out the parking onto the road. Lakhe: "nice....now....my love.....holder of my heart, if you could just tone down a little on your speed." Me: "what? Why? You fall asleep while Sandile drives ngo 240 km per hour. I'm still on 120 and you're shaking?" Lakhe: "this isn't a freeway angel. Plus I see a traffic cop. Yep. There's a cop." I knew he was lying. He was afraid I'd crash again, I understood though. When we arrived at home, Sandile was there ebilisa ulusu. Actually he was on the couch as usual, ibila imbiza ekitchen. Me: "iphi flour guys? Mandixovule ngoku ibenoba right by the time we need it in the pot." Sands: "no need for that, I bought dough." Me: "I still need to kneed it. Iphi?" Sands: "its already done did. Calm down." Lakhe: "I ran you a bath baby. Go soak yourself. I'll bring you a glass of wine vha." Me: "what's happening in that kitchen? Why am I being bribed?" Sands: "what do you mean?" Lakhe: "nothing babe." Me: "you're trying to keep me out of there." Sands: "we're not trying to keep you OUT!" he said loudly. Me: "Sandile Robbie Sobukwe. Masilakhe Sobukwe. What is happening in that kitchen?" Sands: "why didn't you call his second name?" Lakhe: "she doesn't know my second nam-" Sands: "Alright Kilian." I went to the bathroom and left them arguing in the lounge. I would've gone to the kitchen but honestly? Wasn't in the mood. The bath my love had suggested was the only thing lingering in my mind. Uqqiba kwam uvasa ndafaka izinto zakhona and got dressed in pajamas. Lakhe: "sow'gqibile baby?" Me: "yes. Awunazo pain killers?" Lakhe: "I'll check in the cabinet. The food is almost ready vha." Me: "it cannot possibly be ready." Lakhe: "you're probably right. U-aunty is helping us actually." Me: "what!" Lakhe: "see? I knew you'd over react because you love being in control of the household and cooking and cleaning. You don't want anyone else to do it so we had to lie." Me: "so my food is being prepared by someone I haven't even greeted? I don't even know? What is wrong with you two!!" I got up from bed. Lakhe: "are you angry baby?" Me: "all this time nenzantoni? Watching soccer?" Lakhe: "no actually I'm working, Sandile is the one watching soccer. So you not mad?" Me: "why would I be? All you had to do is tell me the truth. Ndibenokuya e-kitchen ndibulise. She must think I'm some rude spoiled brat of a madam diva." Lakhe: "really? All in one?" I walked to the kitchen. Sands: "heyyy....where -" Me: "Save it Sandile." Sands: "I don't have enough memor...." I looked at him. He sunk back into his couch. Me: "hi sisi." the lady smiled. "hello sisi. Ndingu Luleka igama." she was old. Not too old, just around 50 or so... I thought. Me: "ndingu Spho mna. Khangе ndixelelwe ukuba ukhona. Sorry ngongazi earlier." Lulu: "akhongxaki sisi." my mother would hang me on a washing line to dry while its raining if she ever heard I let a grown woman call me sisi. Me: "please sisi, cela undibize Spho." Lulu: "okay Spho." I went back to my room.

It was around 6pm that evening when Lakhe received a call on his phone. We were watching TV together. Lakhe and me cuddled in one couch. Sandile on his couch as usual. He was like a tree with that space. Same position every time sometimes all day. Lakhe: "yeah ndikhona.....okay." he hung up. Me: "friend?" Lakhe: "he wishes on a shooting star." Sands: "definite friend. He always denies people for some reason. For at least 3 years he once told people I was a Gardner ekhaya mind you." I giggled. Lakhe: "I never said that. They assumed it because you're always topless and in the garden like a rattle snake waiting to snap!" Sands: "it was never their first guess. And how convenient that the garden is adjacent to the pool so who was the bad photographer? You should be filming talking colors." Lakhe: "so you're on mute for a week." Sands: "you can still hear me though." Lakhe: "baby tell Sandile I'll tape his mouth shut along with his hands if I have to." Me: "he can hear you." Lakhe: "so you're also on mute." Me: "can still hear you." Lulu: "Spho, ndingaphaka sisi?" Me: "ewe ma. Please. Let me help you." anything to get away from dumb and dumber. I went to help her in the kitchen. In a short while I heard voices. Apart from my dumb little family. We had visitors? I went out to check. And the Jolobe's were here. Yay. Can you tell I'm excited? Zingi: "hey boo." Me: "hi..." Dumisani: "Spho..." Me: "Dumisani." Sands: "okay, so this is fun. Spho mntase. Do you need help? I've got an extra pair of hands and they're itchy for something to handle." Me: "Iza mkhuluwa." we went to the kitchen. Sands: "bazothini aba apha." Me: "your girlfriend?" Sands: "she was never my girlfriend, we were just fucking. Bazothini apha?" I covered his foul mouth. Me: "I don't know." Sands: "abazophakelwa ndim ke. In fact, mabakhutshelwe skhaffini bayibethe. This is a family din-din." Zingi came into the kitchen. I was really irritated now. More irritated than I usually am with Lakhe. Actually, with him it feels a lot more like love now. Zingi: "you guys need help-" Sands: "Nope. You can wait in the lounge like the other guest."

Me: "Sandile." Zingi: "Sands....what's the problem now? I thought we were chilled." Sands: "you can be chilled in the lounge or somewhere near the drive way. Like a Guest." Zingi: "oookay, why are you acting so immature now?" Sands: "immature?" he smiled. Sands: "girl....don't test me." Zingi: "hayi childish lento uyenzayo shame." Sandile kept quiet. I feared for her. The minute that chatterbox is quiet, something sinister is happening in his head. Zingi: "Spho...you okay?" Me: "yep." Zingi: "oh...for a second there I thought you were avoiding me." Me: "I was." Zingi: "but why..." Me: "that's a very good question you should be asking yourself. Yintoni endikwenze yona? Ndikukhubekisile? Did I ever turn you down when you needed help? Was I bad friend in the past? Tell me." Zingi: "uthetha ngantoni Sphosenkosi? None of that has ever happened, you're a good friend." Me: "so reporting to my mother that ndihambile ndanishiya ndaya kuLakhe.....what was that about?" Zingi: "I thought she needed to know since ubuzolandwa sithi kokwenu. Ibizoba funny xa ungabuyi." Me: "firstly, Lakhe ngumnyeni wam. Secondly funny how? Since besesixelile asibuyi?" Zingi: "I was just trying to make sure everything is okay ngawe. What if something had happened?" Me: "okay Zingi. Then what made you come to my house unannounced? Bringing friends and people we don't know?" Zingi: "heeee hayi Spho. What is this? Why are you attacking me ingathi ndenze into erongo?" Me: "Zingisa, you know wenze into erongo. I never come to your house unannounced and demand you to open for me. Not once. If it was an emergency, it would've been understandable but just for nje? Still you bring people we barely even know? Without clearing it with the owner of the house?" Zingi: "hayi uxolo ke Spho ngokwenza kanjalo. I see that wena noFez have been planning behind my back. Its fine though. Nangona I've been there for you since day one and helped you through all this. Namhlanje uthetha oluhlobo nam. Its okay...I'll leave. Ndiyabona ukuba andisafuneki." Sands: "ungabisa buya." Me: "Zingi, I'm not ambushing you. Kodwa what you did was wrong. Xa ndingay'thandi andizoyinyamezela ndiyiginye kodwa andiva kamandi. Nawe if you were in the same shoes you'd feel the same. Ndabuzwa ke mna ngowakho umama kwenzeka ntoni ngawe zange tu ndithethe izinto zakho kuye because I respected you as my friend. Suyijika uyenze ingathi we were in the wrong." Zingi: "its fine Sphosenkosi." she walked out the kitchen. I went out to the lounge nam. I'd have to set the table since they looked like they were staying for dinner. Kodwa uLakhe naye. It would be an uncomfortable one. Me: "baby oko bendikucele pain killers yazi." Lakhe: "and I gave you one. Its not working?" I hugged him. Me: "another one." Lakhe: "no love. Not another one.

Let's sit." we went to the table. Sandile: "and the next time you call me immature, I'll fuck you with your husband on the couch watching, so he can see clearly who you call daddy all night. Ewe ndithetha nawe Zingisa." I held my breath.....

My brother in law indeed has no filter. Akaxutywanga. Akuvuthwanga. He is just raw and salty qha. Andiyazi noba he was dropped a few times as a baby okanye his head was deliberately banged on the wall. Something was done though. Akanoze aveske abenje. Never. Lakhe had mysteriously disappeared. I was scared to sit down. Sandile had sat down and waited for us to. Dum: "what is that supposed to mean?" wabuza omnye umntana. Well, I kinda felt a bit sorry for him now. Its stupid I know. But lomntu has insecurities kakade, now udibana noK wakhe. A younger, hotter and clearly dangerous version of what he never was. Ngendikhala shame mna. Instead I wanted to crawl under the table. Zingi: "Dum-" Dum: "Sandile, what do you mean by that." Sands: "if I were you I'd keep my ducks in a row. Buza kumfazi lo wakho wenzeni. Utshate naye not nam." where was Lakhe! Dum: "are you sleeping with him?" Oh yhini bawo. Ndingaze ndiyive lo sentence. Zingi: "bab-" Dum: "Answer me!!!" he snapped. Sands: "oh-oh." he was leaning back on the chair with his arms folded. Dum: "Sphosenkosi." Me: "I know nothing." I couldn't even look at him. Dum: "so all this time, lying and pretending to be upset. You knew you were getting Fucked!! By the brother of the same man, you had a crush on?" Me: "excuse me?" Zingi: "Dum-" Dum: "you are disgusting. Blaming me for my absence, saying I have no time for you, uzoya ku Spho kanti uyazazi ba uzotywa apha. Nangoku usandenza isbhanxa, mna mandize apha ndijongane nomntu olala naye!!" Sandile: "so can we eat now?" Me: "eat!" I needed to find Lakhe to fix this. I started at the kitchen, not there. I went back to the lounge to walk to the bedroom. Dum: "I'm done Zingisa." Zingi: "Dum, no! You starte-" Dum: "No, no, no my angel. Mna? Uthetha ukunya kengoku. You think I don't know what you do in my house xandingekho? You think just because I'm quiet, I don't know right? I stayed for the sake of the kids. Namhlanje undenzela enye, ude uzolala ne-brother ye-friend yam?" Sands: "so You've escalated to friends now." Me: "guys, maybe if you took some Tim-" Dum: "and I trusted you Spho. You of all I trusted because ndiyakwazi awuyifuni into ephuma ecaleni." Me: "like I said, I know nothing in regards to You or Your wife. Sukundifaka emtshatweni wakho." Zingi was just quiet. And crying. Dum: "I can't do this anymore. I won't be keeping face." Zingi: "Dum wait..." Dum: "for what? You to tell me that umithi?"

With who's baby?" Sands: "wait.....what!!!" he stopped eating. Oh shit. Zingi: "its yours bab-" Dumi: "don't lie to me!!" Zingi: "I swear Dumisani, ngowakho lomntana." I could see Dumi's face soften. He was no longer angry anymore. Dumi: "uqiniseke kangakanani?" Zingi: "we can do the test if you want.... This is you." he looked at the ground. I thought he didn't want another baby! kodwa he seems like the only one who wants it to survive at this point. I could feel Sandile's burning from across the room. He wanted to scratch something's face across a gravel road. Dumi: "I have to go.." he walked out sadly. Zingi ran after him. Sands: "is it mine?" he looked at me. For the first time in my life, I was scared of him. He didn't look happy at all. Me: "no...its already far along." he breathed and smiled. Sands: "thank God. I thought I'd have to perform another exorcism again." WHAT DID HE JUST SAY!!! Me: "Lakhe!" I ran to the bedroom. Sands: "not on you!" he laughed. Lakhe was in his office, a separate room. Me: "baby!" Lakhe: "yes love." Me: "why did you disappear?" Lakhe: "you did not see Sandile ephuma pha ekitchen? You really ought to differentiate his facial expressions as your friendship gets stronger. I knew he was up to something. I'm never around when that happens." Me: "he destroyed that marriage." Lakhe: "it was already destroyed." Me: "he says, oh my God, I can't believe I'm saying this." Lakhe: "what did he say?" Me: "Zingi is pregnant right? He says if it was his baby, he'd have to perform Another exorcism." Lakhe: "o-Kay. And that is....." Me: "ANOTHER. EXORCISM. These are the two words that should be popping out to any sane person!" Lakhe: "I'm still not catching this." Me: "God, Lakhe, go on Google and research Exorcism." Lakhe: "I know what an exorcism is- Oh...now I....oh damn. What does he mean another? Does that mean tha-Sandile!!!!!!!" he went to him. Lakhe: "explain! You casting out demons in my house?" Sands: "nooo...." Lakhe: "then?" Sands: "then nothing. It was a joke. I thought we'd be laughing about it." Lakhe: "you're sick." Sands: "supper is ready. There's some extra insides in the pot. If you want." he smiled. Sands: "you did a remarkable job sisi. Come sit." Sis Luleka asked to take her plate home since seku late. So I quickly dished up for her and Sandile took her home. The dinner was amazing. After we finished, Lakhe helped me pack the dishwasher. Lakhe: "so.....we have the whole house to ourselves for a while." Me: "babe....red carpet remember." Lakhe: "uurgg. For how long does it last?" Me: "about a week." he rolled his eyes. Me: "Sandile should be back any minute now." Lakhe: "with that driving? He should've been back 30 minutes ago. Maybe uyobona umntu. So can I at least get a neck rub?" Me: "sure my love." ndafaka tablet yalo machine, and switched it on. Me: "after I finish cleaning this kitc-" Lakhe: "NO! Sis Luleka cleaned this kitchen. You need to relax and trust her." he pulled me to the lounge. Lakhe: "and then?" Me: "you're not going to sit between my legs." Lakhe: "ngoba?" Me: "hehake Lakhe. As if ndizovula amathanga kusetyenzwa pha." Lakhe: "Whatev's." he sat next to me, I put a pillow on my lap and he placed his head on it. Me: "There's my baby." Lakhe: "hmm...." Me: "bahambe kakuhle utatakho and your uncle?" Lakhe: "yeah. He called. Days ago." Me: "you never told me that your uncle was Zulu." Lakhe: "that didn't come up? Well then.." Me: "and how is your dad xhosa.....and you and Sandile.....but the uncle ngumzulu?" Lakhe: "my dad uyasthanda isixhosa, had to learn it for me and Sands and Nosi." Me: "that's all?" Lakhe: "yes." Me: "that's not all. What else?" Lakhe: "why would you think There's anything else?" Me: "he's never spoken a word of Zulu not even nge mistake. Something he grew up with, his culture, and he changed it in a heartbeat? Why didn't he just teach ya'll isiZulu instead?" Lakhe: "you think something happened?" Me: "hey, I'm not saying that. I'm just saying its rather suspicious." Lakhe: "it is....I always thought it was just a sacrifice for us. He's not really in touch with his family or any other family except me.....and Sandile.....plus our sister." he seemed to be deep in thought. Lakhe: "we've never gone to ezilalini zakokwabo. I've never seen his dad and I know he's alive. This Uncle is the only one we know from my dad's family." Me: "and your mom?" Lakhe: "my mom only has her mom, who lives in London." Me: "so...baby, you're adopted?" Lakhe: "Yes." Me: "Sandile?" Lakhe: "yep. Except Nosi." Me: "she's Stella's child?" Lakhe: "ya. Look, I don't know about before I arrived. But utata was the one to fetch me. He'd been doing his charity rounds and came to the foster care I was in, there were seven of us boys there. He kicked the ball with them all day engadinwa. I was never part of the kicking, the other boys didn't really want me around them so I stayed away and watched from a distance. I wanted to play too. Only God knows how badly I wanted to run around with a ball and laugh like them. So I stopped going outside and hid in the room instead. Our foster mom came to look for me wandifumana and gave me the hiding of my life esithi ndinoo hili." he chuckled. I had a lump in my throat and I was trying my hardest not to cry. Lakhe: "the next time famous Rob came, I was in my usual corner next to the stoep. Aunty Alsie made sure to wash us clean every morning and night. Ksasa ke xasidlala sinxibe nje but when Rob came we had to look nice. I had these pair of old faded jeans, a red golf shirt and blue knitted jersey. I had takkies on my feet. My hair was combed and such. I remember him walking to me. I thought ebezongena ngaphakathi for a glass of water or something but he stopped and said: 'why Uhleli wedwa?' His xhosa accent was a bit whack then. I didn't know what to say so I shrugged thinking he'd disappear back to his playing. He just had to sit down instead. The whole playground was staring at me. I knew bendingasoze ndilale obuhlayo namhlanje because I'd be poked and punched for keeping them away from him. He asked me what my name was, I wouldn't answer him. He asked almost every possible question and I just sat there quietly. Then he left wayoncokola noAunty Alsie. I don't know what he said to her but after that day I was an egg to her. Her new favorite. She got me nice clothes, of course nabanye bethengelwa but she made it feel extra special for me. She let me choose a day where I could ask for any meal I wanted. I was scared, I didn't know why she did this. Also, the other boys got worse ngondithuka. Then one day, I was called to the office. Aunty Alsie dressed me in my new brown corduroy pants. A white polo neck and brown boots. She put a beanie over my head wathi masambe siye kwa gqirha. The doctor tried all he could to get me to speak. I think it took me about 8 months of therapy for me to open my mouth. The doctor never rushed me, he just gave me paper and coloring pencils. When I started talking to the doctor, Rob was back again. Once a week but not to play with the boys. He was always in the lounge, handling papers and stuff. Then one day in December. I was told that I had to go. I can still feel the depth which my heart sank. I remember thinking if ndiyahamba apha, ndizoyaphi? What did it mean? Then Rob appeared. He had a small teddy bear in his hand and a smile on his face. Then said: 'My son, we're going home...' Man..." I'm such a wimp. I was wiping the tears from my cheeks already. Lakhe: "he took me home with him that day. I met Stella. She became my new mom. I had a fami-" he suddenly stopped. Lakhe: "a week later I met my uncle." Me: "that's a sweet story baby." Lakhe: "No its not..." he sat up. Lakhe: "my father never told my uncle I'm adopted." Me: "yes he did. For sure he did, but you know why your uncle or dad never mentioned it to you? Its because you are part of them. You are their family, they was no need to dwell on how you came about." Lakhe: "you're right.." he put his head back on the pillow. Lakhe: "about a year later. Rob- My dad came to my room, he asked if I wanted a little brother. I didn't have any friends at school, or anywhere. All I did was play with him. He said now he wouldn't be playing much anymore because he had to go to work for me but he wanted me to have someone to play with. I agreed instantly on condition that my brother doesn't come from my previous foster care. 5 months later, Sandile came home. He was 5 years old. At first bendicimba this would be a disaster, kodwa ufika kwakhe....." he smiled. Lakhe: "I'm getting a little emotional now." Me: "its okay love. Its hard not to be, kunin ndisula iinyembezi." I kissed his head. Me: "ufika kwakhe kwanjani." Lakhe: "it was the best day of my life. I remember he followed me everywhere I went. Xasiphuma phandle he would hold my hand." Me: "okay stop...." Lakhe: "don't be weak." I tried to regulate myself. Stop crying! Damn. Lakhe: "he had this tiny voice when he called my name, it sounded like a puppy slipping on butter." I laughed. Lakhe: "ebendibiza Laki. Till today he still forgets andibize Laki. Most people think he means Lucky. I know what it means. Its that same little potato head that relied on his big brother to tie up his shoelaces." potato head was standing at the door. Lakhe: "this is why I get overly upset when he gets lost or disappears. I lose my Laki charm. That boy is half my life baby, and you of course. I just don't think I'd be able to handle it if I were to lose him." I swallowed the emotional lump in my throat. I think Sandile was scared to come in because he was emotional too. Oko emile pha and then the door closed. Sands: "evening fam. What movie are we watching? My back is killing me." he sat on the couch. Really? You will pretend you didn't hear anything? Lakhe: "whatever you want. I'm taking a nap. Baby? Khenze kaloku lento buyenza on my head. Its nice." I gently drew patterns on his head with my finger tips. Sandile found a suitable movie and settled the remote down. I gave him the look. You're really going to pretend you didn't hear anything? You're really a potato head shame. Lakhe was asleep within minutes. Sands: "I remember ndise pre school, ndiphuma early kunaye. I used to wait for him to come out and eat my lunch. Mama packed food as if we were going camping everyday. Now there was this bully that harassed me qho. One time ubhuti came out early and saw me ndityhalwa ngulomjita. He dropped his bag and fought him on the spot. The other boy landed in hospital for days. Bhuti got suspended. Wabuya though after everything was told. It was the first person he'd ever fought in his life, all those years he never protected himself, but when it came to me.....stones would bleed. I still depend on him, as old as I am. I'm still the little boy who follows everywhere he goes..." Me: "awww Sands....that is so sweet." Lakhe: "you're a faggot." Sands: "arg fuck it! I thought you were sleeping." Me: "you guys....." Lakhe: "you can stop crying baby....the story is over now." Me: "you will have to repeat this story for our kids." Lakhe: "Sandile doesn't want kids. I'm not sure if it would be safe to have any around him. Since he's a big baby himself." Me: "okay, don't be mean. Sandile loves kids." Sands: "no I don't." Me: "everyone loves kids." Sands: "how can I love something I don't have? Or want?" Me: "they're cute." Sands: "so are puppies....but you know the nice thing about dogs? They don't scream all night. I'd rather a dog than a baby." Lakhe: "YAASS!!" Me: "excuse me?" Lakhe: "I mean no! How dare you? You know what? I'm so offended I'm going to bed." Sands: "Deuces." Lakhe went to the bedroom. Me: "goodnight Sandile." Sands: "nifane naqumba shame. Bye." Me: "who does not like kids!!" Sands: "ME. How can I like something if I've never had." Me: "I get you. So if i-" Sands: "No. I'm not doing it. I don't like kids. I might like my nephew and niece but that's as far as it goes. No babies for me." Me: "Might?" Sands: "its an obvious give. I will like your kids. I just don't want my own. Why is it such a shock? As if I'm the best father figure on the planet?" Me: "you're not." Sands: "Exactly. Suppose you're celebrating." Me: "goodnight!" I went to the bedroom. Lakhe was smiling at his Macbook. Me: "what are you doing?" Lakhe: "Sandile's birthday coming up, I didn't know what to get him....but now." Me: "get him a nice watch." Lakhe: "he doesn't like watches. Dictated time. Schedules. Alarms. Dates." Me: "of course not. A suit? Since he's starting work." Lakhe: "unfortunately no...he can do that himself." Me: "a new car?" Lakhe: "I already gave him my brand new I8." Me: "what does he like?" Lakhe: "watching TV and eating." Me: "he doesn't like stuff?" Lakhe: "have you seen Sandile TRY and do anything else?" Me: "get him a Smart TV. Sort of like a Smart ph-" Lakhe: "its already in his bedroom. Which he does not touch. Ufuna leya ise lounge." Me: "okay I'm out of ideas." Lakhe: "I'll get him a puppy." Me: "a puppy? For Sandile? Cela sibuye umva kancinci. The unstable, fueled by gas angry psychopath of a brother." Lakhe: "you heard him! He said he'd rather have a dog than a baby. If he can take care of the ducks, he can take care of his puppy. How about this one?" it was so adorable, this couldn't be the puppy that would belong to Sands. I was so afraid he would do something kuyo. Lakhe: "just relax.... Nobody hurts puppies." Me: "please don't make me think about it. Cela umthengele something else." Lakhe: "would a snake be a better fit? A thick brown python?" Me: "no!! I meant something not animal. Just throw him a party." Lakhe: "NO." Me: "why?" Lakhe: "because I said No. We don't do parties. I'm gonn call Dumi to make sure he's fine." he dialed his phone and walked to the dresser. I stayed on the bed ndabuka pictures of more puppies. Puppies that had grey fur and white patches also. Then the brown pitbull. Yes! This one is the one. He's so handsome. he had eyes that could make you melt. If I Sandile didn't like the puppy, I'll gladly take it. He was a cutie and deserved to be loved and pampered. Lakhe: "baby." he just got off the phone. He had a troubled look on his face. Me: "what's wrong?" Lakhe: "a paramedic answered his phone....." I sat up waiting for him to tell me this was a joke. Lakhe: "they were in an accident."

He looked at me. Lakhe: "did you hear what I said?" Me: "yes. I did." I looked through other pictures on his laptop. Lakhe: "Spho. Your friend is in an accident!" Me: "which friend? The one that likes you or the one that Wants you? Unclear." Lakhe: "what!" Me: "she wants you. Dumi said it. He knows and I don't." Lakhe: "you're being crazy. A lot of people want you but zange ndingabancedi just because of that. She never acted on it. Can you just get up and get dressed. When you were in an accident she spent her days helping me sort out your life back together. don't be like this." I got dressed. Lakhe: "why are you even worried? You of all people should know me. Ndimkhathelele nganton lamntana mna? Hayi nawe Spho. Tshini." Me: "mxim." Lakhe: "unomona because someone thinks I'm cute? You never even tell me I'm handsome now unomona-" Me: "okay, so I realize I've built a little ego. You're not that cute. In fact, I think Sandile is cuter." he laughed. Lakhe: "then why aren't you marrying him?" I breathed. Lakhe: "I know you think I'm sexy. Don't try and burst the bubble." Me: "whatever. I'm driving." I could feel his breath hitch for a second. Lakhe: "no baby, its fine-" Me: "what.....you scared?" he walked out to the lounge. Lakhe: "help me." Sands: "no thanks. I'm fine." Lakhe: "You're a piece of shit, you know that? Spho, wants to drive, I can't let her drive." Sands: "but she can drive." Lakhe: "like a maniac." Sands: "There's nothing wrong with that." Lakhe: "Sandile. Talk to her." I walked into the lounge. Me: "talk to who?" Sands: "so siyaphi?" he got up. Lakhe: "we're going to the hospital. Dumi was in an accident." Sands: "let me drive you. I could do with the exercise." Me: "all this trouble because awufuni ndiqhube Lakhe?" Lakhe: "not at all baby. You're a great driver." Me: "then why can't I drive us now?" Lakhe: "because Sandile is offering. It would be rude to let him down. Come." Sandile had already started the car, sangena and he drove us to Greenacres hospital. Sands: "so, what happened?" Lakhe: "we don't know. I called his phone and was told he's in an accident." Sands: "is he alive?" Lakhe: "we don't know." Sands: "Maybe if he stayed and ate insides with us, his insides would stay inside his body." Lakhe: "too soon Sandile." Sands: "maybe next week? I have to write it down for the next time I see him." Lakhe: "you're not doing that. This is serious, asiyazi noba kwenzekke ntoni." Sands: "you mean if he's dead?" Lakhe: "shut up. He's not dead." we arrived at the hospital sayongena. Lakhe asked for them and was told they're awaiting surgery. Lakhe: "what are you waiting for? They're not minors." Nurse: "you are a relative?" Lakhe: "no they're my friends. I'm not sure about their family." Nurse: "the surgery will be very complicated sir, there could be-" Lakhe: "do whatever you can. Okay?" she nodded. Nurse: "this is our doctor. Dr Ruossouw. He's general surgeon and will be assisting Dr St Andrews, the hospital chief of surgery." Lakhe: "nice to meet you." they shook hands. StAndrew: "I'll send for updates every hour. We'll be using two different operating rooms for the both of them. This might take all night. Do you wish to wait?" Lakhe looked at me. I nodded. This was serious. If the nurse was this nervous this couldn't be child's play. It just reminded me of my own accident and I was slowly going into panic mode. Lakhe: "Yes. We'll wait." the doctors rushed off. Lakhe was given papers by the nurse and we all sat down. Sands: "so how about ndibuyele endlini to go fetch a blanket. Its cold here." Lakhe: "this is no time for your jokes Sandile." Sands: "Spho, awugodoli?" we did go out in a rush, and it was a bit chilly but I could see the look in his eyes wasn't of honesty. He looked at me as if I was holding his leash and he needed to catch a ball. He wanted to do something. It wasn't good. Lakhe: "just go Sandile. We'll call you when we need you." Me: "wait..." they both looked at me. Lakhe with the question of 'you really don't care about your friend' on his face. And Sandile with a 'you cannot be fucking serious' on his. Me: "I can do with some fresh air, I'll walk you out." Sandile: "no its okay. Stay her-" Me: "I'm walking you out." he sucked on his teeth and walked. I followed him. We walked in silence. Sands: "why are you staying. You don't wanna be here." Me: "I was in the same situation a few months ago. I could've died." Sands: "but you survived." Me: "why are you angry?" Sands: "I'm not angry." Me: "you're irritated. Why." Sands: "you're seeing things." Me: "I know I'm not. Tell me truth." Sands: "the truth is, hospitals depress me. I just wanna go home." Me: "you don't look depressed." he gave me a side look. Me: "you look pissed off. Angry. Frustrated. You know why?" he stood by the car and stared at me. Me: "because you didn't accomplish the goal you were aiming for. They're not dead. They have a chance of surviving, when you heard that, you looked for a gap.....to finish them off." Sands: "you are my gap Spho. You know you want her gone. This is your one chance to finish her off. I have a friend here with access to a nurses uniform and all sorts. Also, a lethal injection, all you do is inject it in her drip and she fades away slowly in her sleep. It doesn't work for hours but once it hits the heart, it freezes it." Me: "you're fucking crazy! Who hurt you!! Why unje Sandile!?" Sands: "you're the one that came up with crazy theories. I thought we were playing a game like CSI or some shit." Me: "Sandile, this is life. Real life. Its not a game. Did you cause this accident?" Sands: "I was at the bar with my friend Brian. Halfway across town. How could I have been in two places at once?" Me: "then why are you so eager to get out of here?" Sands: "Sweet stuff, If I wanted to kill Dumisani and Zingisa. I'd have visited him just after he leaves his office on a Tuesday evening, just before he goes to Salt with his friend Kaige. He'd be dead and cold lying in a mortuary by now because of a hijacking gone wrong. I'd also have visited Zingisa a week after the burial and a fake will is read where it would seem she had fabricated it since she's deep within the borders of Dumi's lawyer friends. I'd wait until she takes her children to school, goes to the gym and comes home to change. Her gardener Lesley would leave the sliding door open while he goes out to buy supplies and come back to find her wrists slit in her bath. But then again He wouldn't go into the bathroom though....which means it gives me at least 9 hours for someone to find her dead body. Now tell me why would I go and create a lousy car accident?" Me: "because you don't kill people. They succumb to their injuries and die." Sands: "you....." he smiled. Sands: "Lord Father God, have mercy. You really do know me, don't you." Me: "what. are. you." Sands: "How have you not figured it out by now." Me: "how..." I swallowed. Me: "how did you know all...this information..." was I safe around him? How much did he know about me? Sands: "they have revised routines. Unchanged and unbothered." Me: "but how do YOU know." Sands: "I get bored. I need something to entertain myself.....I'm like you, we're the same mna nawe. Always curious to know more, searching, looking..." I wasn't like that. This is crazy and psychotic. Me: "Sandile." Sands: "Siphosenkosi." he looked deadly serious now. Not dead serious, but DEADLY. No further questions Your Honor. Lakhe: "interesting conversation I was never invited to?" he was walking to us. Sands: "I was just catching up with my best friend." Lakhe: "best friend? Since?" Sands: "are you jealous?" Lakhe: "no actually I'm concerned. Baby, uright? Did he say anything?" Sands: "she thinks I killed your friends." Lakhe: "but they're not de-.....Sandile, wenzeni?" Sands: "what! Nawe? Come on. You of all people." Lakhe: "well you do have a point. Accidents are poor. You just enjoy draining blood from bodies, drying them up like biltong and burning them to ashes. So.." I could feel the urine rippling in my bladder. Yeeeyi. Sands: "thank you!" I should've known phof, this was the man that brought evidence into my lounge...wait.....did he drain his blood? Son of Mary and Joseph, I needed to throw up. Lakhe: "we're just playing baby. Don't be alarmed. Look, its sad what happened to Dumi and Zingi. And they're not dead-" Sands: "Yet." Lakhe: "vala umlomo wena. They're going to be fine love. Sum.'mamela uSandile. He's a loose bullet nje. A dangerous weapon to use but really just not harmful when he's not loaded on a gun. Don't let him scare you." Me: "I'm not scared. Of him or his award winning acts. Sandile is what he is. I was just making sure he wasn't responsible for this." Sands: "ok. That's a bit spicy." Lakhe: "yoh." Me: "I'm going back inside." I was scared actually. Of our conversation before Lakhe. That was a mad man. And he was loose as fuck. As bullet as he is. He was still dangerous. I went inside the hospital. The following morning, the doctor came to us with news. Doc: "your friends are recovering. Dumisani Jolobe is still in a coma as of now. He suffered a lot of internal injuries and fractured bones. Zingisa Jolobe is just out of intensive care and is recovering as well." Me: "can we see them?" Doc: "unfortunately, you can only see her. Dumisani's section is out of bounds for any visitors at the moment except his direct family." Me: "okay." Lakhe: "you go in baby. I'll find abantu bakokwabo." Me: "sure." I went in to see Zingi. She was still plugged in on machines and sleeping. Me: "hey....." I didn't know what to say to her, but I felt really sorry that she was in this position. Me: "I'm sorry you're in this position hun....but I'm glad you survived it. I hope you can hear me. Soon you'll get better and come out of here. You're doing well." Zingi: "is he....." she was trying to talk. Me: "you need a nurse?" I got up. Zingi: "no..." I looked at her. Me: "you're awake! Welcome back tshomi..." Zingi: "is.... he.... dead...." Me: "who? Dumi? No he's fine too." Zingi: "No.....dead." Me: "Zingi, listen, Dumi is okay. Don't freak out. I promise he's fine." Zingi: "No.....want....." the machines were going crazy, beeping loudly like I stepped on her oxygen or something. The nurse ran inside and one pushed me out. Zingi: "dead.." she whispered....

A few days later, it was a Friday and I was at the office. I'd been at the hospital earlier, Zingi's mom and Dumi's mom were there. Dumi finally out of his coma. Zingi doing better. She had her memory, Thank Goodness. all up to the last minute of the accident. Then kucime izibane. Apparently. I don't know why I feel like that is a bit of a lie. I was called to the office and left olohlobo. Lakhe wanted me ndimkhaphe siyobuka puppy ka Sandile. The birthday was tomorrow and umntu wayo could not be bothered. So was his brother. Me: "I still don't think a puppy would be a good thing to buy him." Lakhe: "if you can do better. Be my guest." Me: "really?" Lakhe: "ewe. I don't know why you're so against the puppy. I get him my gift. You get him yours." Me: "perfect!" Lakhe: "you don't even know what he likes." Me: "that's what you think." we went home after the puppy hunt and Lakhe was set on this one cute brown fella. Ebefuna uhamba nayo namhlanje. This wouldn't just be Sandile's pet I'm afraid. I hope bazokwazi ke uqoqosha emveni kwayo. Me: "Sands." I went to the lounge after changing. Sands: "hm?" Me: "what are you watch- oh my goodness!" Sands: "that." he was watching some snake show on Animal planet. Me: "what are you doing tomorrow?" Sands: "I'll be sitting here from 8am till 5. Then I'm going to have drinks with Brian." Me: "who's this Brian I've never met." he looked at me. Sands: "my friend." Me: "secret friend?" Sands: "kind of." Me: "why?" he shrugged. Sands: "just. You done?" there was no Brian. He didn't exist. Brian was an excuse for Sandile to get away from the world he knew. I went to the kitchen. Lakhe: "told you. All he needs is a puppy." Me: "I'm taking him to the Snake park for the 45 minute show. Then you set up here, call his friends, I'll braai the meat and make salads." Lakhe: "we're not throwing Sandile a party Spho." Me: "this isn't a party. Anyway, do you know where I can get a dart board in the form of a face. Then the little darts could be shaped as knives? I'll make a few calls." I looked at my phone. Me: "also, I have to get him to do something outside if I want to bake him cupcakes, with red icing, make it look like its dripping blood. Or better yet, a cake." all Lakhe did was stare at me. Me: "maybe the cake could be in the form of an open chest, sliced open with a knife still on it. Organs popping out. Maybe There's a bakery that can do it." Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi!!" he hissed. Me: "yes?" Lakhe: "You are as sick as he is....." I smiled. Lakhe: "what is wrong with you? And dead things?" Me: "a haunted house? While we're at the snake park. You need to decorate it." Lakhe: "I'm doing no such thing." Me: "not to mention Blood plastics." Lakhe: "what the fuck is that?" Me: "pouring red wine into see through plastics and serve them as beverage. It would look like blood. Let's recreate a vampire scene!" Lakhe: "baby. This is a bad idea." Me: "do you have anything better?" Lakhe: "he's not afraid of anything....he does not possess a fear or panic mode. Do this.....if you succeed, I'll get you something nice and pretty." Sands: "I also want something nice and pretty. What are we doing?" he opened the fridge. Lakhe: "planning our errands for tomorrow. I need to meet up with George for a meeting." Me: "and I'm the errand girl for the day. Nice to know." Lakhe: "please do this for me baby." Sands: "I'll help if you want." Me: "that would be great Sands. Thank you." I winked at Lakhe. He looked at his brother. Lakhe: "isn't it your birthday tomorrow?" Sands: "already? It can't be. What date is it?" he looked at his phone. Sands: "oh well. What time do you need me Spho? I've got a drinks date at 5." Me: "at 10:15am." Sands: "perfect. See you then." he walked out. Lakhe: "so you're really taking him to this Snake Park thing?" Me: "he likes reptiles. I saw him watching maybe a young visit to the park would do him good." Lakhe: "and you? You also like snakes?" Me: "no...shit! I can't go visit snakes!" Lakhe: "relax. The minute he enters the place you'll be invisible so you can sneak out." Me: "let me go make the plans for the darts and cake." Lakhe: "baby?" Me: "hm?" Lakhe: "thank you." Me: "for what?" Lakhe: "your effort. I mean this is a little too much but, you put your comfort zone aside to make us smile." Me: "you liked my ideas?" Lakhe: "eyonanto ibindothusa yeyoba uze nazo on your own. That on its own is scary. Also.....can we share the present?" Me: "unonjana?" Lakhe: "No. We both know Sandile akazoyihoya lonja the minute he sees all this." Me: "awww baby." I hugged him. Me: "I loved the puppy idea. It will be his last gift after a rollercoaster of a birthday filled with gory and murder. He'll love it baby."

Lakhe: "that dart board idea is flippen insane. Can I get that on my birthday too?" Me: "and this..." I kissed him. Lakhe: "a lot of this..." he kissed me back. Me: "I love you so much with your stubbornness." Lakhe: "it goes well with your persistence." his phone rang. I let go of him and left the kitchen. I had a calls to make. I needed more ideas. The open chest cake is a do, the face dartboard a yes, the trip to his favorite animals a definite. Lakhe just needed to get his friends here so we could do a little braai. Me: "Sandile..." Sands: "ndenzentoni this time?" Me: "There's something that's been on and off on my mind. Lakhe akazobona nto ke yena." Sands: "Mr Goody ballons, the Mayor of Vanilla Town? Please. What's up?" Me: "at the hospital-" Sands: "this again? I'm getting offended now." Me: "khawuphole tu." I sat down. Me: "ndingenile kwi room ka Zingi mos and was having a chat. Actually, to myself because ebengathethi. She asked me a question." he moved closer. Sands: "uk'buze ntoni?" Me: "if he was dead." I whispered. Sands: "you be her. I be you. So I'm chatting, heee hayi peto. Its such a tragedy, I shouldve asked you to stay and have supper ke yazi, qha mos ubuyi ndutsu so....anyway uxolo wethu girl Ube right vha." Me: "eyona ndutsu nguwe vha." I chuckled. Sands: "don't be a chicken. What happened next." Me: "she asked if her husband was dead. I said no, I didn't mention that he's in a coma though." Sands: "he got out the coma yesterday." Me: "ndiyayaz lonto Sandile. Then, when she asked, I thought ebesoyika.....but then she said something I might've misinterpreted." Sands: "tell me." Me: "after I'd comforted her telling her he's going to be okay, she said, 'No.....want...' then the nurses came in. I was being led out when I heard her finish esithi 'Dead'." he gasped. Me: "what do you think?" Sands: "its obvious Spho hun." he relaxed back into his couch with the remote. Sands: "she was trying to kill him." ndomelwa ngumqala.....

After the talk with Sandile I felt very uneasy. I don't know but bendisoyika. Ndoyikisela uDumisani umntanabantu ongazi niks. Maybe we're mistaken man. There's no such thing. Maybe I heard wrong or misinterpreted it. I just carried on with the arrangements of the party. A guy called Ronnie said he would attempt the face dartboard but it could only be ready tomorrow evening. I had a lot of persuading to do and Lakhe's black card izokhapha apho kulo persuading. Lakhe: "baby wam? Is everything okay?" Me: "I don't know. I have a headache. Will you be able to fetch Sandile's cake Ksasa when we go to the park?" Lakhe: "yeah.." he held my arms. Lakhe: "you look troubled. Talk to me." Me: "just stuff...." Lakhe: "what stuff?" he sat down and pulled me to sit on top of him. I started telling him about the incident in Zingi's hospital room. Lakhe: "so you think she did this on purpose?" I nodded. Lakhe: "its not far fetched baby...but why would she wanna kill her own husband? Utata wabantwana bakhe? Before you decide to do anything. Talk to her, find out how she is and how she feels. If you still feel something doesn't add up, we'll figure something out." I hugged him. Me: "I thought you'd think I'm crazy." Lakhe: "akholonto baby.. You just have a very wild imagination at times and sometimes it runs off with you ndishiyeke mna ndimile. Its cute. What else needs to be prepared for ngomso kanene?" Me: "braai. You have to buy meat, and invite his friends." Lakhe: "I'll fly them in ksasa. So my task is, flights, the cake, should we still do the haunted house theme?" Me: "nah...I was throwing ideas around." Lakhe: "everything is going to be okay love. Don't worry." Me: "I know. Thanks to you.. You're amazing." Lakhe: "and?" Me: "and handsome." Lakhe: "yavela inyani." Me: "let me take a nap baby ne." Lakhe: "okay. I'll cook you dinner so long." he kissed me full on the lips then pecked my nose. Me: "enkosi sthandwasam." I got into bed. He covered me with a blanket and I started dozing off but it felt like I was dreaming ndothuka. I relaxed again closing my eyes and there it was. I was in a different house to the one I lived in. Smaller also. A quick rush of emotions flooded me, it was familiar and felt like a home. A man I've met recently walked in the door, looked at me and smiled. Me: "Simphiwe." I now sat up from my bed. Slowly my memory was coming back. There was so much heaviness in my heart for the smile I saw. And that was it. I saw nothing after. It felt I was thwarted by my own brain. I slid back into bed and closed my eyes.

Evening came. Lakhe was next to me when I woke up doing something on his iPad. Lakhe: "hey." Me: "hi." Lakhe: "restless sleep?" Me: "yes...I couldn't properly sleep." Lakhe: "why?" Me: "I regained another piece of my past." Lakhe: "wanna talk about it?" Me: "actually I want to ask about it." Lakhe: "shoot away Mrs." Me: "I remember Simphiwe." he looked at me blankly. I couldn't read his expression. Lakhe: "what about him?" Me: "just him. Being in a house with him. I'll need something more to support this memory. Or unlock it somehow." Lakhe: "but what will it help? Its in the past." Me: "I need to get over it. I need to move on, my heart was heavy when I thought about it. Like something unfinished." Lakhe: "okay...uhm... So ufuna umbona?" Me: "No. I want You to tell me." Lakhe: "why me?" Me: "don't you know him? Or have I never mentioned him when we met?" he sighed. Lakhe: "ndizok'xelela inyani." I sat up and looked at him. Lakhe: "I met you uyi girlfriend ka Simphiwe. He was a friend of mine, actually not really. Me and him met in East London once and kept in contact over the years as iitshomi. Weren't really close but cool enough to hang, kuncokolwe njee. I sometimes gave him business advice and so forth. All this time, I never knew about you. At all. A couple of months back, I move to PE for my CEO appointing and he offers me accommodation. This was the first day I met you." he smiled.

Lakhe: "I lost my mind when I saw you, I promise. Bendingaziva ncam noba ndithini. I remember ukungena kwam, use kitchen cooking. Simphiwe introduced us and our eyes locked. You got shaky and wandered off pretending to do something. Ndayohlala phantsi noSimphiwe. I barely remember nalo conversation yakhe because I kept staring at you. The funny thing is, ewe ubumhle, but I wanted to know more about you. Yoh...wandigqiba lomjita xa esithi masambe siyosela. Jesus I wanted to die! I stopped myself ndisezombuza umshiya njani umntu onje to go drink? What the hell is wrong with you! Qha ndazibamba because it would seem weird. We came back that night or early morning enxile ke yena, bendingaselanga kangako mna. How stupid would that be sinxile sobabini kodwa funeke kuqhutyiwe. Safika endlini, you opened for us unxibe gown e-cute and short. You'd just woken. Heeee, I felt like God was gonna punish me that night vha?" I laughed. Lakhe: "ndizibuza umhlabathi uSimphiwe ulele ingqondo okanye uthakathiwe? Yuuh Spho. But you thought I was a freak. Undoyika..long story short, uyandazi mna ndingayitsala kubeksasa. Phof I love telling this story about how I met you. Its funny and sweet. So, basically, you caught him cheating on you nomama womntanakhe, lonto wasilahla sonke. You literally disappeared off the face of the earth. Kungekho namntu ukwaziyo ba uphi. I got a hold of you and asked you to help me decorate my new house. Which is this one by the way." Me: "so you two aren't friends anymore?" Lakhe: "we haven't spoken to each other since the day I left his house. Apart from the encounter yakwa Woolworths." Me: "I see." I smiled. Lakhe: "was that helpful?" Me: "a little. I can imagine it happening...its slowly coming to me." he nodded. Me: "thank you sthandwasam." Lakhe: "let me get your food." Me: "mandisele ndiphakama wethu." he put his iPad down. Me: "love?" Lakhe: "yes baby?" Me: "didn't I have one of those?" Lakhe: "I'm not sure ke sthandwasam. But you probably did." Me: "andithi I had a flat right?" Lakhe: "yes, you'd just moved in kuyo about 2 weeks before the accident." Me: "can we go there?" Lakhe: "now?" Me: "yes. Bungekayithengisi right?" Lakhe: "I haven't even gone there recently. I forgot ngoku ubuthe mandiy'thengise. So I guess singaya." I got dressed and we went to have dinner. Me: "Uphi uSandile?" Lakhe: "probably hibernating. Andimazi." I ate the dinner my fiance had prepared for me and we left. Ufika kwethu he unlocked the flat and we walked in. It was dusty and the furniture was still unpacked. Me: "you didn't come here after the accident?" Lakhe: "I did, to collect some of your stuff qha zange ndigqibe..." I tried switching on the lights but it wasn't working. He checked the electricity box. Lakhe: "waphelayo umbane. Probably the geyser. Its still on." I switched on my phone torch and went to the bedroom, I sat on the bed closing my eyes. Something was coming. Familiarity of being here. Lakhe in the kitchen. What had he been doing there. Lakhe: "baby?" he peeped in the room. Me: "I remember this place. Also still unclear. This is so frustrating!" Lakhe: "don't worry my love. Its coming...it just might take more time. Ayisoze kaloku iveske ibuye yonke ngexesha elinye." Me: "I know." I looked through my drawers. Me: "here it is." Lakhe: "what?" Me: "my iPad." I smiled uncontrollably. Me: "I found it!" I was near tears actually. Finding something that was a mere idea about an hour ago." Lakhe: "that's great love...masisele sikhangelana ezinye izinto." we collected some of my belongings. Lakhe: "sizoyithini Le furniture?" Me: "when we decorate the other side of our house sinoyifaka pha." Lakhe: "okay. Masambe ke." we left for home.

Saturday morning I was up early. Around 7 actually. Lakhe had his meeting at 9 so ebehleli naye about get ready soon. I took my iPad off the charger and switched it on. Me: "shit." Lakhe: "what?" Me: "password." Lakhe: "try your birth year." I tried it, and it bounced.

Lakhe: "name?" wrong. Lakhe: "think of something that could've been important to you." I gave it a little thought. Little? Something little. Kid. Buhle. When was his birth year? I tried 2010. It bounced. He looked as old as Lulonke. So maybe 2009. Me: "I'm in!" Lakhe: "it was your name?" Me: "no, birth year ka Buhle." Lakhe: "hm." he looked back at his own. Me: "I have over 1000 pictures here." I was jubilant and equally excited. Lakhe: "you okay?" he wasn't even looking at me but he could hear the squeaks of excitement. Me: "Yes. I'm fine." Lakhe: "Sandile is still not home." Me: "what!!" so that's why you're moody. Me: "but the surprise birthday?" Lakhe: "that's Sandile for you." he locked his iPad and went to the bathroom. Unjani bethuna uSandile! Why can't he just sit still? I went through such effort to make him happy yet he doesn't even pitch? Mxim! I put down my iPad ndathatha phone ka Lakhe. He had really nice games on his phone which I was addicted to at times. Why don't I install the games on my own phone, because Andifuni. 30 minutes into playing Lakhe came out the bathroom egqibo vasa. He got dressed casually. Tight Dark blue jeans and a plain black shirt. He had red Louboutin sneakers on and a black cap. I got up to make the bed. Lakhe:

"ndiyahamba kengoku vha." he put on his watch and cologne. Me: "okay baby. Ina." I gave him back his phone. He looked so damn fiiiiine! Lakhe: "maybe we could take a drive to St Francis when I'm back. Siyohlala pha for the rest of the weekend." Me: "what if he comes back baby? Maybe he was out drinking with his friends." Lakhe: "the only friends he has are those that are coming namhlanje from Durban. I don't know who he keeps disappearing to here. I'll give you a call when I'm done with my meeting." he kissed me and walked out. I went to brush my teeth, running the shower. After rinsing my mouth I went to wash ndaphuma in 10 minutes. I took out ripped skinny jeans and wore them. I stood in front of the mirror ndazibuka. The skinny jeans I mean. I remembered wearing them in the room. In a hurry. I was looking for keys. Lakhe came in the door wama khona. And that was it. Blocked again. I had an olive green loose vest, first wore my black bra ndanxiba vest yam. I looked through for shoes, I had two options of sneakers that didn't win. Instead I found my Balmain stilleto ndanxiba zona. I just wanted walk around the house feeling fine as hell. The short hair I originally had thanks to that accident had grown. If Sandile was not here by 1:30pm I would go do my hair. I went to the kitchen to prepare something to eat. Ungena kwam kwelo khitshi I almost choked on my own breath. Why didn't I expect this? Me: "one of these days I'm going to have a heart attack because of you. Where have you been?" he was eating. As usual. Sands: "out. With Brian." Me: "when are we meeting this Brian." Sands: "why do you wanna meet Brian?" Me: "well, its rather odd that we don't know all your friends. Why not invite him over today for drinks. I'll make you your favorite cupcake." he smiled. Sands: "No." Me: "why not?" Sands: "because andifuni Spho. Uzoxelela uLakhe wena. You two are always whispering about me." Me: "I swear asoze ndimxelele." Sands: "we can fetch Brian xasiyokwenza errands zakho. Where are we starting?" Me: "at the bank. Then we have to pay a few bills. Collect some stuff from Westbourne road." Sands: "cool. I'll get dressed." Me: "ubuvasile phof." he chuckled. Sands: "at Brian's house." he walked away. Who is this Brian! I shook my head ndazenzela sandwich and poured Mango juice ndasela. Sandile came back dressed when I finished eating. I texted Lakhe. Me: "we still on. He's here. Spent the night with this Brian again. He responded: "who is this Brian? Kunin ehlala naye? I'm worried baby. Is Sandile gay?" I laughed. Sands: "I'm ready." and again, he was dressed in all black. Me: "you are a special case yazi." Sands: "I am?" he looked at himself. Me: "come. We're going to be late." we went to the car. Sands: "Lakhe says you drive like a maniac. Let's see. We're taking the i8." ndiphathwa lidyudyu. Me: "that is suicidal machine." Sands: "then I guess we're getting on the highway to heaven. I hope God can see our headlights." he unlocked the car wangena kwi passenger seat. I said a short silent prayer ndangena kwi driver's. Sands: "oh wait. We can't take this car." I breathed a sigh of relief. I serve a living God! Sands: "we're fetching Brian so we gotta take the other car." i8 was only two seats luckily for me. Lakhe had taken his RS7. There was the ML left. Sayongena kuyo. I drove the car calmly because ndiyiqhelile and ibindenza happy gqithi. He directed me to Brian's place which was in Lovemore heights thank God ngoba the snake park was around there nayo. As we parked at this lovely house, he got out the car wayobetha bell. What a special friend Brian was ade ayolandwa at the door. After a few seconds the door opened but my phone beeped and I read the message. Ibisuka ku Lakhe. It read: "I'm going to fetch the cake now. Baby, is he gay?" I laughed again. Me: "ugqibile meeting yakho phof?" Lakhe: "yes I'm done. You talk to him right? He tells you his secrets. So....? Is he?" Me: "it doesn't matter if he's gay baby. As long as he's happy. I think we should be happy for him." Lakhe: "Oh My God." Me: "you're so dramatic bro. Calm down." Lakhe: "so Brian is his boyfriend? That's why he doesn't want kids mos. It explains a lot. Will the puppy be too much? Reveal the secret? That I discovered?" Me: "no. It won't be. Calm down, okay? I gotta go." I put down my phone and saw Sandile coming from the corner of my eye. He opened the gate for Brian....

shocked Brian was a woman. My heart was overwhelmed with warmth and joy. I couldn't hide the smile on my face. She was gorgeous! And black, with light smooth skin. Her natural hair was tied up in a bun engafakanga make up. She was just beautiful! Sandile opened the front seat. Sands: "ngena kaloku." She: "hayi Sandile. Usister wakho." Sands: "she doesn't bite." he helped her climb in. Me: "hello." I smiled. She: "hi." she was shy. Wavala icango Sandile wayongena in the backseat. She put on her seatbelt. Me: "I'm Spho. Sandile's sister in law." She: "ndingu Khanya mna." Me: "Unjani Khanya?" Khanya: "I'm good thanks Unjani wena?" Me: "I'm fine babe. Just relax." I looked at the rear view mirror and saw Sandile taking a picture encumeeeee ke phof. He had a girlfriend! :) I drove to my destination. Bobabini didn't know where I was going nam ndathula ke, phof chatting to Khanya a little. Sandile ebejonge in his phone unbothered as to where we're going or sifika nini. I finally arrived and parked the car. Me: "let's go guys." I got out the car. Both of them got out. Ndayitixa. Sands: "Spho..." Me: "yes." Sands: "is this what I think it is?" Me: "if you can read, probably." he smiled and covered his mouth. Me: "Happy Birthday!!" Sands: "My Gosh Spho!!" we hugged. Sands: "this is amazing!! A snake park in real life? Let's go in!" Me: "have fun." Khanya and I stuck our heels with glue on the ground. Sandile was bouncing about like a little toddler. Sands: "what do you mean?" he stopped. Me: "I mean we'll fetch you when you're done." Sands: "anicingi. Anisoze nindenze lonto mna."

he pulled our hands in. Me: "Sands, I'm afraid of snakes!" Khanya: "me too! Baby. This your hobby." Sands: "don't worry. They're the sweetest creatures ever. They won't hurt you." Khanya and I clung onto him kodwa asikangeni kwakule ndawo zikuyo. Sands: "this is the best present ever. Can we touch them." Me: "no!!" I swear bendizozichamela right that second when the tour started. He held both our hands waphola inqayi umfana. Sands: "maybe I should get one as a pet." Me: "in your own house. That I will never visit." Khanya: "xasesohlukene." we giggled. Sands: "reptiles are emotional creatures. You're hurting their feelings." Khanya: "they don't have feelings!" Sands: "ni-negative yazi. Ooohh, look at that one." Me: "Sandile!!" Khanya: "its like watching Generations The Legacy all over again, only this time uMamlambo uze ne relatives zakhe." I chuckled. Me: "nguban uMamlambo?" Khanya: "some witchcraft snake. They use it to get rich." Me: "that's just disgusting." Khanya: "worse kubekho nomntana kulendlu Kukho lento isnaaks. That keeps disappearing ke phof and reappearing whenever it liked." I fell a ringing sound in both my ears ingathi ndibhethwe ngento entloko. Sandile keeps disappearing. He loves snakes to death. He is close to Lakhe. Everytime he disappears Lakhe becomes frustrated. Oh my goodness what am I thinking? Could Sandile Sands: "you okay?" I nodded. After the tour, I could not wait a second longer to get the fuck outa theeerrr! Now I'm stuck with this image forever. Sands: "Thank you so much Spho. I loved the surprise. I really didn't expect this from you." Me: "its a pleasure." we got in the car and I texted Lakhe. Me: "done with the snakes. Regretting it. Got the cake?" Lakhe: "got it. On the way home. The friends are on their way too. Take your time to come." I started the car and drove. Sands: "can I get some McDonald's for home?" Me: "most definitely. Khanya, we're having drinks at home just now, would you like to come?" Khanya: "I'd love to Spho. Its just that my parents just got home from Germany, they were still sleeping ndifuna bavuke ndikhona." Me: "okay that's fine love. Next time." I was disappointed actually because I didn't want to be the only girl at the braai. I'd have to call Zintle noFez for company. Zingi would be discharged on Monday. I would be fetching her with umamakhe and taking her home. I did want a few minutes alone naye to understand what she meant about what she said. Sands: "let's get Spur take aways instead Spho. So we could get a take away for uKhanya and her parents xabevuka." awww that is so sweet. Khanya: "no its okay guys, I'll cook." Me: "no way. We're getting Spur. That way You'll have more time with the 'rents." Khanya: "okay." we went to get Spur take aways sazilinda. Thank goodness they were taking time. I needed to get word from Lakhe that we can come through. After a long while, Sandile paid sahamba. I drove to Khanya's home ndamisa in front of her house. Khanya: "thank you so much guys for today. I had fun although bendimincile the whole time kulandawo." I laughed. Me: "you and I both." Khanya: "at least big boy enjoyed himself. Happy birthday baby." he smiled. Sands: "for the 7th time today? Really?" Khanya: "kanene uyapholelwa wena. Bye ke." Sands: "yima." he leaned forward and gave her a kiss. Sands: "call me when you're free." Khanya: "I will." she got out the car. Khanya: "it was lovely meeting you Spho." Me: "same here angel. Take care." Khanya: "bye." I drove off. On our way home Sandile was staring dead at the rear view mirror leaning on the seat. Everytime I looked at the traffic behind me nditshiswa ngamehlo akhe. Me: "what?" Sands: "so?" Me: "so ntoni?" Sands: "heeee." Me: "oh you mean Khanya? Why did you call her Brian? She's so pretty and sweet. Heee. Awusatsho ba unomntu." Sands: "because you're going to make a big deal out of it." Me: "it is a big deal. I like her." Sands: "good for you." he went back to his phone. Sands: "hope you'll keep your promise." he mumbled. Was that a threat? I didn't respond. We got home and I parked the car outside. No cars in the driveway. After a 50 minute stalling process? Baphi abantu. We got out the car. Sandile looked around and down on the ground. Me: "what is it?" Sands: "There's someone here." Me: "doesn't look-" Sands: "Shh." he pulled me behind him. Sands: "I smell a switched off engine." you cannot be fucking serious? He smells engine smoke? Hamba sathana. I followed him to the house wavula umnyango. "Happy Birthday!" the dudes cheered. Lakhe stood by the door. Sands: "the fuck is this?" he snapped. kwecwaka. Oh-oh. Even I didn't know what now. Lakhe: "your friends. Cake. Some braai. What it look like? Its your birthday fondin." Only his brother could sort him out. Sands: "you planned this?" a slow smile crept on his face. Lakhe: "she did." Sandile looked at me and chuckled. Sands: "bhuti wam. Khade utshate lomntu bra.... Look at my cake!!!!!!!!!!" he literally lost his mind. Sibulele: "that's a sick cake." Hunter: "flippen rad bra!" I sighed relief. Its like walking on egg shells when you try and figure out Sandile. He's a real life rollercoaster. He switches up emotions in split seconds ushiyeke ujinga ecingweni ke wena. Lakhe: "sisi, ulindwe yi braai." he kissed my forehead. Me: "I know hey. I'm gonna call my friends first." Lakhe: "ambobalanda. Me and the guys will sort this out. You did great sthandwasam. Look at him, he's so happy. Just because of a cake." Me: "and venomous snakes." Lakhe: "he's special shame." Me: "nditshilo ke kuye ksasa. I'll fetch his present on my way back." Lakhe: "the face dartboard? He's gonna lose his mind. Just watch." he chuckled. Lakhe: "I made the blood sacks they're with the ice." Me: "I think ezo zizoselwa zii-girls.

The guys want their beers and Hennessy." Lakhe: "abayiseli i-beer ababantu. You'll have to bring at least another 8 bottles xa ubuya." Me: "so this is becoming a party." Lakhe: "by the looks of things....you were right babes. Even if he is gay, I'll be happy that wonwabile yena qha. I'm just glad he's smiling for once." Me: "he's not gay." I kissed his cheek and walked out. On my way to the car just before I got in. Sands: "Spho?" I looked at him. Sands: "instead of 8 can we make that 15? Its about to be turnt." Me: "sure thing." Sands: "ndiyabulela mntasekhaya." I got in the car. He went back into the house. Lakhe was standing by the door smiling. Lakhe: "I love you." I blushed. Me: "I love you too." I blew him a kiss. He caught it and placed it on his mouth. I started the car ndiphuma kwi gate ngemoto. My phone beeped so I stopped and read the text. Lakhe: "Sandile says, go to Brian's house. Andiyazi ke for ntoni, he says you'll know. Now I'm supposed to meet his boyfriend? Hayi baby ningandenzi lonto namhlanje please." did you not hear me ? Me: "kodwa ungu tamkhulu yazi." I drove out and away. I had feeling....tonight was gonna be turnt AF. Ndine worry ka tamkhulu lo ungaseliyo ba uzokwenza njani. I called Fez first. Me: "peto." I put it on loud speaker. Fez: "hi tshom. Uright?" Me: "ndiyaphila mtshana. Ndine get together aphe ndlini. Ndizok'landa? Its Lakhe's brother's birthday." Fez: "iyuuh yuh yuhh! Tshomi. Ndiyanxiba kungoku! Andimazi ulllovo lo Uhlel k'la room uzaw'thin. Phof makazibone. The mirrors are here. Is it like up class my f? Ndifake i-heel?" I tried to stop laughing. Me: "firstly ngubani ulllovo?" Fez: "ngu Craig kalok tshom. Uyawa kho nala swekile yakhe. Nankuya eyi braai pack kula bed. Ndizothi ndisayotheng isonka." I wiped my tears. Me: "peto. Just be sexy wena qha. Sana, xa uyothenga isonka ubuye nin?" Fez: "uyatipa xa egqibo kutya. Ndiyamphakela ngoku. Subanaxhala wena tshomi. I'll text you my address. Sharp." Me: "Sho peto." I called Zintle. Me: "brother." Zintle: "Sho malum." Me: "Uphi?" Zintle: "ndilapha kum. Ngoba?" Me: "ndine get together phe ndlin. Brother ka Lakhe uyazalwa today. So ndizok'landa nxiba." Zintle: "oh sweetie. Ingathi undiva emphefumleni oko ndinesyali. Mandinxibe mtshana. Akhonto bithen mos. Yimpolo?" Me: "yiba sexy qha wena tshomi. Uphole ikhwapha. Ndisindleleni ezayo, text me your address." Zintle: "Sho skeem." I hung up. I missed Zingi to be truly honest. Ewe besixabene iyilo sourness between us but I did miss her company. She hasn't shown me visibly to my face colors of jealousy, probably indirectly kodwa still. I stopped at the robots ndajonga phone yam. It lit up. Message from Lakhe: "DRIVE!" huh? I replied: "I am driving." before I sent it kwangena enye: "Siphosenkosi, DRIVE!!!" but the robots are red. I looked around starting to panic. There was a big car racing toward me from behind with absolutely no intentions of slowing down. All I saw was RED. I crushed that accelerator instantly.

The car flew into the road ndibambelele kwi steering. I didn't even know where I was going kodwa bendisiya phambili qha. I took a quick turn to the right ndabona Cape Road soon enough. But the robots turned red, the other traffic started moving. I would never make it, I hit the brakes and stopped. Kanti the big car was already here next to my right side. They rolled down their window and looked at me. I was going to piss my pants I swear, but he looked confused. I stared at him, he stared back at me. Then started his car and drove off without doing anything. My phone started going off. The robots had turned green again. I drove and checked my phone, all this time Kukho SMS's now it was ringing. I answered: "Yes?" Lakhe: "Spho! Baby? Are you okay? Uphi?" Me: "calm down. I'm okay." Lakhe: "what happened?" Me: "I should be asking you that. Sizoyithetha ufika kwam endlini." I hung up and continued driving ndimincile ndinjalo. I started at Fez's place then went to fetch Zintle. In the car oko bencokola and I was just quiet, blank and a little distracted. Why was I being followed and why did they not do anything? I probably wasn't who they were looking for. My phone rang again. It was Sands. I picked up. Me: "yes?" Sands: "ndicela umise kulo Spar ulandelayo. Ndilapha." Me: "ok." I was going to anyway, I needed uTops. I drove into the parking lot and I saw the i8 waiting. Me: "cela nindilinde ndiyeza." I got out the car, Sandile got out the car too. Me: "what was that about?" Sands: "uzakuchazela uLakhe. Okwangoku I wanted to check if you're okay." Me: "I'm fine." Sands: "you lost the car?" Me: "no! It caught up with me kwi robots and then he just looked at me then left." Sands: "what did he look like? Colored with a mohawk beard or clean shaven ?" Me: "clean shaven." Sands: "uhamba yedwa?" Me: "yes." Sands: "what else can you tell me about them?" Me: "that's kind of it. Khange athethe nothing. Usuke wemnka qha." Sands: "okay." Me: "Sandile...if my life is in danger, I need you to tell me now." Sands: "if your life was in danger you'd be dead already. Get going. Ulindiwe endlin." he got in the can and it sped off out of sight. I went back to my car ndiyolanda i-wallet. Fez: "peto.....ngumnyeni wakho lowa?" Me: "no." Fez: "Nguye man tshomi lo. Kuthen umfihla omnye? Kuthen u-funny?" Me: "hehe. Fez ndizabhidwa ngumntuwam ngoku? This is his brother. bezodlulisa nje umyalezo. Masingeneni kwa Tops." we went inside Tops and took bottles kunye nee carrypack zabo. I went to the till and paid. Zintle: "peto zide zibeyi 15 ii-botile? Bangaphi Dan abantu pha?" Me: "well ngu Sands and his 3 friends. Then Lakhe, me, you and Fez qha." Fez: "yoh! Safa sana. Lonto tshomi, u-sexy la brother vha. Yohh." Zintle: "jonga wena Fez, umbonile hlobo ame ngalo? Yuuh. Mhle umntu wabantu." Me: "and unomntu ke shame. Ndiya kuye ngoku before I fetch his present." besendimlibele shame. Zintle: "uright kaloku tshomi abenomntu. Andingeni ndawo mna kuleyo." Fez: "hayi Zintle subasisfebe." Zintle: "oh? Ndisisfebe xakutheni?" Me: "guys asinobiza elinye gama instead of elo lijongisayo?" Fez: "suba ngu February tshomi." I laughed. Zintle: "uyoy'gqiba kdala eyaka Hullets." Fez: "ungandikhumbuzi ngalowo. uzawndikhubekisa isibeleko Sam. Ndiyakucela mntase." I carried some of the stock out ndibashiya pha begezela. I was still panicky and looking around me. It couldn't be explained why this person was adamant to knock my car over but when he stopped next to me wasuka wandiyeka? Hayi sana. Ayiyo. We drove to Khanya's home since ndingenayo number yakhe, I'd have to go and knock. I went to her front door and rang the bell. Wavula utata walapha. I smiled and greeted. Me: "molo tata." he smiled too. Tata: "hello." Me: "uyaphila tata?" Tata: "ewe ndikhona Unjani wena?" Me: "ndiphilile Ta. Ndicela uKhanya?" Tata: "ungubani wena?" all this time encume eyi cake yakwa Pick n Pay. Me: "ndingu Sphosenkosi tata." Tata: "uSphosenkosi waphi?" Are you fucking serious?

Me: "ndihlala eKragga Kamma tata, kodwa ekhaya kuse Newton park." Tata: "is it? Nazelana phi noKhanya?" utheth'ba I'm in an interview? Me: "sidibene evenkileni tata." I had no other lie in me because I was not a student or even looked like one. Plus I was driving the huge car parked in front of his gate. Tata: "oh....so wena ufunda eNMMU okanye?" I'll be damned. Me: "ewe tata ndise NMMU." Tata: "so ufunda nt-" Khanya: "Dad!" Tata: "Khanya." he looked at her innocently. Khanya: "why ungatsho kukho umntu emnyango?" Tata: "siyancokola. Niyaphi?" Khanya: "I'm going to Spho's place tata. I'll be back later." Tata: "oh...ufuna ndizok'landa?" Khanya: "NO. I'll be fine tata." Tata: "okay. Its was nice to meet you Spho." Me: "you too tata." I walked with Khanya to the car. Khanya: "sorry about that. My dad is just inquisitive and uyathanda uncokola nabantu angabaziyo just for entertainment. I don't know why he does that." Me: "its okay." I drove to Ronnie and went in to look at the masterpiece. Me: "Ronnie. This is perfect!!" Ronnie: "I'm glad you love it. It was my first time attempting this. Its quite cool." Me: "where do I pay?" Ronnie: "here." he wrote me a receipt and I paid my balance taking the custom made dart board to the car. It was in a box and unable to be seen ukuba yintoni. I finally drove home. I was already tired and ndisaya kwii ngxoxo kulandlu. Fez: "tshomi? I feel like There's something bothering you." Zintle: "I know what it is. She's worried about Zingi." thank goodness Zintle. Me: "yeah. She's being discharged on Monday." Fez: "yoh. Mk." Me: "what?" Fez: "hayi akhonto tshomi." he filed his nails. Zintle: "khathethe wethu." Fez: "hayi peto." Me: "Feziwe. Theta." Fez: "I just find it funny wethu tshomi mna umntu aveske arole nemoto aphole ikhwapha angabinayo ne tontsi le worry yomntu wakhe.." Zintle: "she's in shock Fez. She almost died." Fez: "butsho tshomi. Awuna chappies peto?" he looked at Khanya. She dug in her bag and found gum for him. Fez: "enkosi tshom." Zintle: "what is your problem? You think she deliberately tried to kill them both?" Fez: "andiyazi mntase mna. Wena Spho what do you think?" Me: "I think we should support Zingi in this difficult time. As her friend she needs us, not this gossiping." Fez: "uxolo ngoba concerned friend, andiphinde ndibuze." Me: "I'm not saying that. I just don't know what happened. Zingi is the only person that can explain." Zintle: "well did she?" Me: "mxim." I stopped in front of the gate. It opened and I drove in. Fez: "YOH! Sonini nanini! This is a bloody castle. Yazi from the gate ayicaci ncam ukuba ingaka, yoh tshomi kukwa ndofaya apha." Me: "don't be dramatic. Its not that big." I got out the car and took the present. Fez: "heeee uphambene lo Zintle. Uyamva ba ukhwazwa eDonkin? Wow." Zintle laughed. They carried the alcohol inside. Lakhe ebendilinde ngase mnyango as usual but this time he looked a bit nervous. Me: "ina." I gave him the box. Lakhe: "baby." I walked out to the braai area ndafika ii-boys zilungisa umlilo. Me: "guys, I bought more bottles zise kitchen. Is there anything you need?" Sibu: "no. Siright Spho. Enkosi." I looked at him. So familiar still. Me: "how are you?" Sibu: "I'm okay. Wena Unjani?" Me: "I'm okay too..." he looked at the floor. I know Lakhe was now staring at him. Me: "Sibu, I hope I'm not the only one that feels this vibe." he swallowed. Sibu: "I don't want to get into trouble with ubhuti." Me: "talk to me...you won't get into trouble." he was breathing in short breaths esoyika nyani. Sibu: "I feel it. I thought it was.....a little crush, but it isn't....its like.....ndiyoyika man Spho. I'm so sorry." Me: "so you feel this vibe. I'm not just being crazy." he nodded. Sibu: "I trust you. I feel comfortable here. Not with ubhuti looking at me like that though." Me: "okay. This is weird man Sibu." Sibu: "I know right." Me: "ungowase Durban?" Sibu: "well no, I'm from apha ebhayi. I moved to Durban ndisemncinci." Me: "oh..." Lakhe: "Spho?" he was standing with us now. Me: "Lakhe." Lakhe: "ndicela uthetha nawe mntuwam?" he was testing the waters. Me: "okay love, I just want to finish this conversation with Sibu. Do you mind waiting?" I know what game you're playing. Lakhe: "okay." he stood still and waited. Sibu: "I never came back after I moved. Nawe you're from here?" Me: "yeah. Last time you were here ebesithi uSandile you're allergic to icing?" Sibu: "yes I am. Kodwa don't be worried ngam, I'll have meat." Me: "oh, okay. That's fine then. Naziya iitshomi zam, feel free to introduce yourselves vha." Sibu: "enkosi sisi." I turned to Lakhe. Me: "ndim lo." Lakhe: "can we go to a private place?" I led the way to our bedroom. Lakhe: "nizi friends ngoku noSibulele." Me: "are you jealous." Lakhe: "he's the last thing on earth I'm worried about." Me: "worse ba ubize umntana womntu a thing." Lakhe: "baby." Me: "Lakhe what happened out there? Did you know it was going to happen? Ngubani lowa and why were they trying to run me down?" Lakhe: "love." Me: "Lakhe, I'm gonna need the truth from you right now." Lakhe: "that....was Loco's brother." Me: "what does Loco's brother want? Loco yena uyintoni kuwe." Lakhe: "baby...please forgive me." Me: "Masilakhe. You are going to start making me very angry. I'm trying to be calm all I need is the truth." Lakhe: "you're going to leave me!! I can't risk that!" Me: "eyonanto izondenza ndifune ukushiya is the lies and secrets!" Lakhe: "baby please don't. Ndiyakucenga Spho...just give me some time." Me: "Lakhe, I've been in this house. All this time kusenzeka izinto ezi strange apha. You never not even once explained anything to me. There's that crazy dark space on the other side of the house that I'm not allowed to go to. Kukho ooLoco pointing guns at you. Shooting each other. Huh? There's a whole lot more. Now I'm being chased, what if I was killed out there? Again, I don't deserve to know?" he held his head turning to look at the window. Lakhe: "please don't leave me Spho. I beg you." Me: "tell me kwenzeka ntoni?" Lakhe: "you have to promise me you won't go. Promise me you'll stay by my side." Me: "I promise I won't go...tell me Lakhe. What is happening here." Lakhe: "Good God..." he whispered. Lakhe: "I needed help... After studying and graduating I needed a steady income. I never wanted to work for utatam. He's into Finance I'm into Architectural things and technology. Sandile robbed banks and so forth, always wanted something thrilling and exciting. I traveled to Mexico for a holiday once ndadibana noLoco. We started talking and had drinks later. I had a little too much and lost a bet to him. He said I'd have to do something for him. He wanted me to sell his stuff." Me: "what stuff?" Lakhe: "drugs. I came back here and set up a garage. Ndaxelela uSandile, he organized some boys to sell and I started the business. Once I made the first million, I couldn't stop. I started my own on this side and ran them both. Kwangena uFernando esithi mandim'hoyele his firearms because uvile that I was trustworthy and reliable. Now I had to start storing money in warehouses and couldn't really do anything because bizojumpisa. I decided to start a legitimate business. My laundromat. Washit Clean. I started operating and had to start something else. No laundromat can make over 500k in two weeks. I asked my dad to help. I invested in his company and started buying shares kengoku kwezi hotels zam. Its been years I've been trying to get out of that life. I couldn't. This is why I had to move and couldn't really be on the media about my position. I quit on Loco and Fernando. Only Fernando understood, he said he was fine with it kuba naye semdala ngoku and needed to take care of his family. Loco came to South Africa to try and talk me into reconsidering when that plan failed he sent people to kill me. Sandile, got them first. When he realized this, he came himself and I killed him.....well thanks to you. We buried him and destroyed all evidence. Unfortunately, Loco's brother knew about Loco's plans, and once he couldn't find his brother anywhere he knew what it meant. He wants me. The only problem is.....akafumaneki. He just disappears and reappears ungamcingelanga." I was so shocked. This whole time I was staring at him. Lakhe: "baby, I've left tha-" Me: "don't lie to me. You haven't. Have you?" Lakhe: "Spho..." Me: "that laundromat is still active. The garage operations. Everything. You're just covering your ass being CEO....." Lakhe: "baby..." Me: "you're.....a liar. A murderer. Sies Masilakhe. You made Sandile look like the crazy one but uyafana naye! I don't know what's worse." Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi, I know you're seeing me in a different light now. I'm not a bad person-" Me: "you're a killer that pretends to do good for the community. I reprimanded my dad for calling you a criminal.....kanti he was right. All this time!!" Lakhe: "I am sorry Sphosenkosi." Me: "no you're not!" Lakhe: "I never thought it would come to this mos nam!! I was short sighted and all I had in mind was making money without help! I became addicted to that life! The drugs, guns, the missions. Transporting over borders. I couldn't stop! I never thought it would come to a day that I'd meet someone who made me a better version of myself. I hate what I've done to all those lives. Those families. I hate it. I left ndizame all I could, to make things right. Damn, baby I can't be anymore sorry. Oko ndidibene nawe, I wished and prayed you'd never hear or find this out about me. I am nowhere near perfect, kodwa I'm willing to do anything, ndicela qha ungandishiyi Spho." he kneeled down before me. Lakhe: "you make me better my love. I'm not the monster I used to be. I swear, andiphinde ndibuyele kobabomi." Me: "stop making promises you can't keep Lakhe. If you wanted to stop, you'd have shut everything down by now. Instead usayiyekile iqhube. And what for? Your addiction? Kids are dying out there, besebenzisa iziyobisi zakho and wena you're sitting there in your CEO office relaxed and calm. You expect me to be okay with that? You expect me to accept the fact that you sent boys out there oonyana babanye oomama to go sell your drugs, ubhanjwa kwabo bayobola etrongweni. I must just be okay with all that?" Lakhe: "no.." Me: "if you want me to stay. You're going to have to shut that shit down. YONKE. I'm not getting married to a criminal and drug lord. Busy ruining other people's lives sihlale thina sonwabe apha kwindlu enkulu? No Masilakhe." Lakhe: "I understand baby." Me: "don't just understand. Do." Lakhe: "Spho ndiyakthanda." Me: "but...." he just stared at me searching my eyes. Me: "My God. You can't do it?" Lakhe: "I will do it." there was a knock on the door.

Lakhe: "ngena." he stood up. Sandile walked in. Lakhe: "no?" Sands shook his head. Me: "I need to get back to the kitchen." I got out and closed the door behind me walking to the kitchen.

Lakhe: "you need to find and kill him." he was pacing up and down the room. Sands: "he's in the base right now. You gonna take care of it?" Lakhe: "Good. Ewe. I will." Sands: "you told her?" Lakhe: "how dumb do you think I am? Queen can never find out about our shit." Sands: "kodwa G I warned you. Kwakudala. I told you this girl is gonna dig!" Lakhe: "if you'd let me kill this bastard kwangokuya this never would have happened. And we need to stop bringing these bodies home. Spho is stupid mad." Sands: "utheni kuye?" Lakhe: "I told her the cover story." Sands: "good." Lakhe: "now I just need to take care of this boy before he spills our shit. He didn't do anything to her embona, he could be up to something." Sands: "gqabuza inyongo. Undibiza xa ubasayo. I need to get back to the others kudala ndimnkile." Lakhe: "just keep everyone away from our station. Especially uSpho. Make sure you keep a rigid eye on her. If uyandibuza ndiphi, Uthi ndimnkile ndiyabuya." Sands: "but all the cars are here." Lakhe: "just do as I say I'll take care of everything else." Sands: "okay." Lakhe took off his sneakers, wearing black Timbalands instead. Sands: "I can't believe I'm missing this." Lakhe: "unfortunately one of us has to go twerk for the guests. And the other has a chopping spree." Sandile laughed. Lakhe: "ubabeke phi oo-pipe?" Sands: "bottom left corner." Lakhe: "mak'vele kunyiwe." Sands: "Sho Gazi."

Chapter 47

Everyone was outside near the braai area and swimming pool kuncokolwa. Hunter was the one doing the meat. I helped Fez with the salads because he is a great cook. Fez: "tshomi. Ingathi ndino 200 likes pha ku Paul." Me: "what do you mean?" Fez: "peto, he'sandiyazi man. Khamjonge. He's sweet and actually he was the one to welcome me. Usually xa kune gay amadoda akhoyo start acting funny. Abanye bageze. He's been so accommodating. Although ke engekho Picasso painting cute but I think I have a crush on him." Me: "heee. Hayi Fez." Fez: "yes. Cela undithethele naye." Me: "you are the one person who is able to start a conversation nje. Talk to him." Fez: "I can't peto, ndinamaphela esuswini." I laughed. Me: "you mean butterflies." Fez: "lonto iyiyo peto. Please?" Me: "I don't even know Hunter that well." Fez: "Paul tshomi!" Me: "oh yes. Paul." Where the hell was Lakhe? Its been hours since Sandile said he left. Kanti uyephi? Me: "nanko. Thetha sisi. Here's your chance." I took the salad bowl and left the kitchen. Paul walked in eyofuna amanzi. Outside the house, I set the patio table. I was getting worried now.

Zintle was with Sibuy bencokola by the pool. Sands with Khanya. Hunter by the braai. Fez with Paul in the kitchen. I was trying to find an escape that wouldn't look suspicious but ndaske ndadibana namehlo ka Sandile. Sands: "izapha." I walked to him. Me: "Sandile." Sands: "baby, can you give us a moment please?" Khanya: "sure thing love." she left. Sands: "what's the problem?" Me: "There's loop holes in the story Lakhe has given me. Now he's gone and nobody knows uyephi." Sands: "you need to stop panicking love. Lakhe is fine. He'll be back soon. He said something about 'nice and pretty' so maybe....." Me: "you're trying to distract me." Sands: "why would I do that? You're free to run around and drive yourself crazy, mna I'm just reassuring you qha. Have some fun, uyeke ubayi buzz kill. Everyone is having fun except for you. Kodwa you organized this whole thing for us." Me: "I know. I'm just a bit paranoid." Sands: "it'll wear down soon enough. Have a shot of cognac and relax." Me: "that's what I'm not doing." Sands: "like hell you aren't. Ina. Down it quick." Me: "isn't this for men?" he opened my mouth and poured a shot in. I swallowed and felt the burn down my throat and chest. Sands: "there we go. And another one for the road." Me: "I'm not going anywhere." Sands: "I want you to get loose and dance. Khamisa." I drank another one and cringed. Sands: "there we go. Now sizok'dash'ela. Uphole. Ungatipi qha." Me: "argg Sandile." he mixed the cognac with redbull. Me: "no...uzama ukundibulala ngoku?" Sands: "its nice...sela. The next one izobane Appletiser. Say ahh." Me: "why are trying so hard to get me drunk Sandile Robbie Sobukwe?" Sands: "why don't you trust me Mrs Siphosenkosi Sobukwe? I want you to relax and forget." Me: "I'm not going to forget. I remelar. Yoh...I mean...rumem....no. Sandile undenzi." he smiled. Sands: "perfect. Now you can go dance. Nantsi drink yakho." I got up holding my glass ndamshiya. I went to Zintle and Sibuy. Zintle: "you okay?" Me: "yeah. I'm oki." I giggled. Zintle: "huh?" Sibuy: "she's tipsy." Zintle: "usele nini?" Me: "Sandile gave me shots. Uthi.....he say, they for the reroad." Sibuy: "hehake uSandile. Why would he do that?" Sands: "she'll be fine! She needs the tickles. Kunini equmbile." I giggled. Me: "khandiqumbe mna." Sibuy: "I'll get you some water." he went to the kitchen. Me: "so..." Zintle: "you sneaky bitch. You faked it to get him away?" Me: "undithatha njani? What did you find out about him?" Zintle: "well so far. He's an accountant. Lives alone. Usandophuma kwi relationship-" Me: "I don't care about all that, his parents zisahlala eDurban?" Zintle: "is there something I'm missing here?" Me: "I feel strongly ngakuye." Zintle: "you're inlove with him?" Me: "no! Its like I'm missing a piece man. Something doesn't feel right." Zintle: "ask your parents." Me: "I'll try." Zintle: "here he comes. Do the slur...its too damn funny." Me: "heeeeyy." Sibuy: "hey yourself. Sela nanga amanzi. It will drain the alcohol out your body quick." Me: "hihi...lorrll." Zintle laughed out loud. Sibuy chuckled. Sibuy: "mxim. Sela amanzi wethu." from the corner of my eye I saw Lakhe standing by the sliding door. I looked his direction endijonge ntsho. I just melted. In fact, I dissolved into bubbling liquid. He looked so sexy without even trying. Ndabalekisa amehlo trying to avoid him. Within a minute wabe semile ecamkwam. Lakhe: "nkosikazi. Ndicela ukubona.....I have a surprise for you." I stood up and followed him to the house. We entered one of the spare rooms. Lakhe: "Boogy?" he whistled. I heard purring and a little bark. Then a brown little puppy appeared from under the bed. Me: "ooohh you're so cute!" I sat down and he jumped on my lap licking my hands. Me: "hey pumpkin. How are you?" I just wanted to hug and snuggle pumpkin. He bit my thumb rubbing his teeth on it. Me: "he's like a baby! He's teething." Lakhe: "do you think Sandile uzomthanda?" Me: "huh?" Lakhe: "Sandile baby. Do you think he's gonna like him?" Me: "uhm....yeah." I thought this one was for me. Well I knew Sandile was getting a puppy but I kind of thought that maybe he changed his mind. Fine though. Lakhe: "what's wrong?" Me: "what if he runs him over? Or forgets to feed him? What if he gets sick?" Lakhe: "that's not going to happen. We're here. We'll make sure to keep him in the back yard." Me: "he's gonna drown in the swimming pool!" Lakhe: "baby relax! He's going to be fine. I'll show him the puppy later. We must start with the dartboard." Me: "we're leaving him alone here?" Lakhe: "he's not alone. I got him a teddy and a mini biscuit. I'll feed him alale nantsiya bhedi yakhe." Me: "okay." Lakhe: "my love?" Me: "yes." Lakhe: "I'm sorry baby...for everything. For the secrets. The lies. I just wanted to protect you." Me: "okay Lakhe." Lakhe: "baby ndicela ungabinje torho." Me: "I'm not just gonna be jolly because you apologized Masilakhe. I need time." Lakhe: "I understand babe. Its just that I'm worried." Me: "about what?" Lakhe: "about everything. Andifuni undishiye Sphosenkosi." Me: "let me check on the others. Ndicela usele usiza ne present ka Sandile." I was starting to get drunk now because I could feel my heart warming. I left the room ndisiya out to the braai area. Sands: "Spho. Why is your glass empty?" Lakhe: "Sandile." he warned. Me: "we have something for you." Sands: "aww you guys. You didn't have to. This party is enough." Lakhe: "just open it." he gave him the box. Sands: "is it a gun?" he opened it excitedly. Lakhe: "no.." Sands: "then....what is it." he finally got it open. Sands: "a dartboard. Who's this?" Lakhe took the board and covered his face with it holding it up. I took one of the knife shaped darts and threw it straight, it landed safely on an eye. Sands: "I love it!!!" he screamed. Sands: "this is so cool guys. Yoh. Ndizoyixhoma ngoku. Thank you Spho." he hugged me. Me: "its a pleasure Sandile. Also thank Lakhe. He did the paying." Sands: "enkosi bhuti. You're not getting a hug though." Lakhe: "never wanted one." Sands: "oh please." he walked to his room with his present. Lakhe: "so that's that...thank you Mrs Sobz. For a day well organized. Everyone is happy.." Me: "yeah...everyone is happy. I need to take a nap vha...I'm feeling a bit light headed." Lakhe: "you okay?" I nodded. Me: "too many shots to the head." Lakhe: "ndizom'faki mpama uSandile bonanje." Me: "let him be." I went to Zintle and Sibu. Me: "guys, I'm gonna take a quick nap. Nizobaright?" Zintle: "ewe peto. Don't worry about us. Bond with umnyeni wakho." it felt like she wanted me to go away. Code for 'you're disturbing us'. Me: "okay, umxelele noFez. If you guys need me I'll be-" Zintle: "relax... Go rest." Sibu: "she's right. You've been running around all day." Me: "Uphi uKhanya?" Zintle: "she's with Sands. Ebemncedisa with the thing you bought him." Me: "okay. Hunter are you doing fine there?" Hunter: "perfectly fine." so they don't need me? All of them? Me: "love, did you feed the new baby?" Lakhe: "ewe love. He's sleeping." Me: "can I have him with me for a few minutes?" Lakhe: "okay. Ndizoyomlanda. Got get yourself comfortable." I went to the bedroom, took off my heels and jean Ndangena under the blanket. Lakhe brought the dog emombathise nge towel. Lakhe: "here he is. Boogie say hi...hello mama." Me: "boogie? That's the best you could come up with?" Lakhe: "I can't name dogs. He responded to Boogie." Me: "he's getting used to voices he would respond even if you called him Fork." I took him in my arms. He was still sleepy. I brushed his tummy with the tips of my fingers engasayobi. Lol. He looked so adorable. Lakhe: "uyagodola?" me: "not really.." Lakhe: "good because....." he took out my foot and massaged it. Lakhe: "I haven't done this in a while. You worked really hard today." Me: "I'm still not impressed Lakhe. Andonwabanga tu yilento yakho. So we need it fixed sibenokwazi uqhubekeka." Lakhe: "I agree baby." I looked down at Boogie. His little feet, little belly, little mouth and teeth. Me: "you can't give him to Sandile." Lakhe: "why not?" Me: "because he's mine." Lakhe: "baby...we spoke about this." Me: "look at him." Lakhe: "lonto akasehluthi. No wonder he's fast asleep. Love, its best simnike uSandile. We work all the time and ixesha esilifumanayo thina lelethu sobabini." Me: "but I like him." Lakhe: "you don't want my baby but you want a dog? Ndibhlungu shame." Me: "babies are a process. Then There's these new developments kengoku." Lakhe: "that are being shut down." Me: "you're the one that didn't want a kid Lakhe, usithi ufuna sitshate kuqala. And enjoy life." Lakhe: "I wanted you to get better....you're better now." Me: "you're trying to trap me." Lakhe: "well, maybe I'm a bit jealous ujonge uBoogie olohlobo. You're cuddling him like a real baby." Me: "he is a baby. Plus he's sleeping and wena uyangxola. Shhh." Lakhe: "I'm not keeping quiet in my bedroom. Boogie makalale pha phantsi futhi. He has his own pillow." Me: "khayeke umntana Lakhe. Please." the foot rub was really nice. Ibindozelisa even more. Lakhe: "niyandozelisa kengoku nam." Me: "tell me something, is Paul gay?" Lakhe: "andizoyazi ke baby. He's just friendly and uzinyabele wethu. Why?" Me: "Fez likes him. I'm just worried ingathi kanti Paul isn't in the feels." Lakhe: "babe. Badala ababantu. Bow'bona ba mabathini.." Me: "do you have friends?" Lakhe: "yes. Nguwe noSandile." Me: "I mean other people." Lakhe: "is that a trick question?" Me: "no." Lakhe: "I have plenty of friends." Me: "I've never seen even one." Lakhe: "ba-busy." Me: "when we get married. Who will be your groomsmen?" Lakhe: "uhm...Sandile obviously." Me: "and?" Lakhe: "I haven't thought that far." Me: "what about uDumi?" Lakhe: "Dumi akayiyo tshomi yam." Me: "right." Lakhe: "I do have friends." Me: "good." Lakhe: "awundi believe?" Me: "I do." Lakhe: "no you don't. You're making the face." Me: "what face?" Lakhe: "you have the face on. The 'I don't believe you' face." Me: "There's no such thing. If you say you have plenty of friends then you probably do." Lakhe: "awulambanga khona?" Me: "no I'm fine. Let me nap." Lakhe: "lala sthandwasam."

Sunday morning I was woken up by my phone ringing. Last night was a heavy night. Oko kuselwa kuhlekwa kumnandi. We'd chilled outside till nightfall sangena endlini afterwards. Now I was faced with this ringing head and phone. I checked my caller I.D. Ngu mama. Me: "mom." Mama: "hi my love. Unjani?" Me: "I'm fine thank you mama. Unjani wena?" Mama: "I'm perfect. I hope you're joining us for church." Me: "not today mama. Ndidiniwe. Izolo ibiyi birthday ka Sandile so we organized something for him." Mama: "ngubani uSandile mntanam?" for the 17th time. Me: "ngu brother ka Lakhe mama." Mama: "oh ndiyakuva ke sweetie. We'll talk later." Me: "okay mama." I hung up and returned to my sleep. Lakhe: "baby..." Me: "no baby....don't yell." Lakhe: "I'm barely audible." so the both of us besiphethwe yibhabhalaza. I'd never seen Lakhe get so drunk. The more alcohol in his system, the colder he became. Wathula umfo akahleka nehlekisayo. He wasn't mad. He had to keep explaining that. Lakhe: "my head." he moaned. Me: "mine too." my eyes were hardly open, bekutshisa qha. So I covered myself ngengubo. Lakhe: "funeke siyothenga into yokutya babes. I don't think kukhona ukutya kwelakitshi the way wena noSandile have a competition." Me: "uhamba wedwa for lonto." Lakhe: "not even my guests. So I could not be bothered noba bayalamba okanye bayahlutha." Me: "mxim." he looked at me under the blankets. Me: "ambovasa." Lakhe: "wish I could bring la shower apha ebhedini." I giggled. Me: "go.." Lakhe: "last night was amazing....yoh." I swallowed in embarrassment. Lakhe: "I should get you drunk more often mos....yeeyi, there was a time you were deep throating, and I almost fainted and my heart stopped beating. Your mouth feels like a vacuum with cotton candy at the end. Imnandi into ondenza yona." he moved closer to me. Lakhe: "I was thinking that maybe..." his hand was on my thigh. Me: "I need to shower quick." I got out of bed. Lakhe: "can I join you baby?" Me: "please feed Boogie. Uqale umkhuphe phandle to do his business though." Lakhe: "uBoogie ukutatake and I'm sure he will do that." Sandile liked the puppy, my problem was that, he is too occupied for a puppy. I got in the shower ndavasa. I needed to be quick. Sooner or later Lakhe uzongena apha and think we cool. Kanti we're not. Just because I indulged in him a little izolo doesn't mean I'm cool. I'm nowhere near being cool. When I was almost done ndava kuvuleka umnyango. Me: "ufike late ke sendiphuma mna." Lakhe: "why do I have a feeling that uyandibaleka?" Me: "ndingade ndibaleke wena." Lakhe: "then why undi avoid'er?" Me: "I'm not." Lakhe: "can I at least get a kiss?" Me: "I need to brush my tee-" he pulled me in and kissed my lips. Lakhe: "sekhe ndafuna uyovasa amazinyo xandizok'phuza?" Me: "no..." Lakhe: "what's going on?" Me: "I'm not over yesterday." Lakhe: "what's yesterday?" Me: "the story you told me. I can't relax. Just the thought of it makes me cringe. I'm not comfortable Lakhe. Sorry." he just stared at me. Lakhe: "ok. So what must I do to make things right?" Me: "you know exactly what to do." Lakhe: "kuzofuneka ndiye Durban to shut things down." Me: "then iya kaloku." Lakhe: "its not that easy Spho. I'll have to organize a meeting first, and it will take a while." Me: "I suppose ndinguwe ngendiqalise kwangoku." Lakhe: "I hear you." he continued showering. I got out the shower ndayokhangela into yonxiba. Everytime I looked through my clothes bendidibana ne vest. I think I have more vests than I do clothes, all shapes and sizes and colors. I took my soft pink high waist leggings and the matching short turtle neck long sleeve crop top. I took out my beige strap heels ndazibeka ecaleni then made the bed. After making the bed nicely I took the heels back to the closet realizing I'm always in heels maybe if I tried sneakers. I fitted on the white all stars and decided on them. Lakhe came into the closet ezokhangela into yonxiba naye. He was always naked in the bedroom, uphuma net kwakhe kwi shower, he'll never bother himself nge towel. He air dried all the time. He took out his denim shorts. A white plain t shirt also. If I thought I had a lot of vests, it can never amount to Lakhe's plain t shirts. Zonke t shirt zakhe ezi casual were blank. Either black or white. He wore his black Tubular sneaker and then the watch. Wafaka cologne yakhe. No underwear. I promise. Lakhe: "ndiready." he said, as he walked out. So he was upset I suppose. I took my phone and bag ndaphuma. It seemed as though everyone was still sleeping. He took the Audi out and drove to the gate.

Wamisa searching himself. He reversed back and got out the car eyongena endlin. Hewethu was I wrong? Nini? Phi? He came back into the car and drove to the gate again wayivula saphuma. There was a big truck parked in the street next door that was blocking our view. A guy appeared phambi kwethu esi directer ukuba singaphuma the road was clear. Who was he? He waved wamisa uLakhe. Lakhe: "hi." Guy: "molweni." Lakhe: "what's happening here? Is Mrs Jordan okay?" Guy: "yes she's fine. She just sold the house to me and my wife a month ago. We're moving in today." Me: "oh nice. Welcome to the neighborhood." Guy: "thank you. By the way ndingu Babalo. My wife, Hlumi, is inside the house." Lakhe: "nice to meet you Babalo. Is that a Hublot Classic Fusion Zirconium." Babalo: "indeed it is. Good eye." Lakhe: "I collect Hublot watches. Think I have at least 6 in my collection now." Babalo: "no shit. That's a Classic Pink gold and diamonds range." Lakhe: "The one and only." Babalo: "do you play golf? We should go for a game some time. If you're keen then drinks afterwards." Lakhe: "that'd be cool. Take my number." Babalo dialed the number on his phone. Babalo: "I'll text you. Izofumana eyam. Alright then. It is a pleasure meeting you guys." Lakhe: "Sho." he drove off. I was proud. He made a new friend! I was really excited for him. Ndimane ngom'ba. He kept checking his 'Hublot' watch ke phof. Still mad at me, I assume. Lakhe: "why do I feel funny about Babalo." Me: "oh, so we're back to talking." Lakhe: "we never didn't talk. All you ever do is use me for sex then you expect me to smile about it kodwa uyazazi undiqumbele kwakqala. Now I have to keep guessing what I did wrong xanditshintshelwe. Its not fair." Me: "I was wrong. Uxolo." as if you didn't enjoy it. Me: "the next time I'm mad at you, I'm staying away from Postman as well." Lakhe: "uzobe uxabene naye Dan?" Me: "you just said I use you." Lakhe: "I didn't say it was an issue, my problem is ukutshintshelwa." I rolled my eyes. Lakhe: "nantsoke. More attitude. I just don't know undifunani. Mxim." Me: "hayi, hayi, hayi. Ungak'linge u-acte apha. Ngenxa une friend entsha ngoku uzogeza." Lakhe: "he's not even my friend. I was being nice. Even that is a problem?" Me: "it was nice of you. Very nice." Lakhe: "Sandile won't be too happy." Me: "Sandile ungenaphi ke yena? He has his own friends." Lakhe: "his friends aren't a problem." Me: "so you can't have friends but he can?" Lakhe: "kanene uzova le ikunyumbaza idolo. Le ndiyithethayo ndiyayisuza caba." Me: "andizoyazi uthetha ngantoni mna." Lakhe: "just wait and see...I'm not sure I like how I feel about him..." I wonder wenzentoni umntana bantu...

When we got back from the shops I started on breakfast. Bhut bae ate an apple eme pha e-kitchen watching me. Me: "new friend hasn't texted?" Lakhe: "has." Me: "then why ujonga phone yakho every two minutes?" Lakhe: "emails keep flooding in. Andiyazi bandifuna ntoni on a Sunday." Me: "right." a big bowl of scrambled egg was ready, pork sausages in their own big bowl. I was busy with the patties and bacon. Then I'd finish with mushrooms umntu azenzele itoast buyathanda there were also ham burger rolls. Me: "please bring Boogie inside babe. Oko ephandle since we came in. Check on him." Lakhe: "khayeke umntana adlale wethu." Me: "just check please." Lakhe: "I'm gonna teach him how to swim." Me: "Lakhe, check on him." Lakhe: "fine." he went out the sliding door in the dining area. Lakhe: "nanku." Boogie paddled inside the house epholile. Me: "hey baby boo." I bent down. He ran to me almost tripping on his little feet but still lost his balance and slid on the tile. Me: "ncoooh, baby mani." Lakhe: "heee." Me: "did he eat?" Lakhe: "yoh. For the umpteenth time, he ate. Don't pick him up usenza ukutya kwethu please." Me: "he needs his kiss. Umbonile ngoku ebesiwa." Lakhe: "hayi hey!!" Me: "make sure he's okay." he picked the puppy up. Me: "he loves tummy rubs." Lakhe: "ndicela ungayitshisi patty yam torhwana." Me: "how many you want?" Lakhe: "I want 1." Me: "how come ungayityi eyakwa McDonald's kodwa le uzoyitya." Lakhe: "yenzwe ngumntu wam kaloku le." he kissed my cheek. I cut open the roll, spreading a bit of butter on it. Lakhe: "and can I please have fried egg? I don't really like scrambled. Its messy." Me: "of course." I should've known. I fried his eggs ndacima stove. Lakhe: "its first the burger then the eggs." Me: "Masilakhe Killian Sobukwe, do you want to make your own food?" Lakhe: "No ma'am." I continued with making his burger ndayivala. Me: "anything else?" Lakhe: "my Italian salad please." bendingazothetha bonanje. A burger and a salad? Lol. Me: "Mango or orange juice." Lakhe: "water with a slice of lemon please." Oh? Would you like some caviar with that sir? :v I giggled. Lakhe: "what?" Me: "nothing my love. You're so cute with Boogie." Lakhe: "I am forced. Otherwise he'll be out here kissing my wife, funeke ndim'qokelele ke." Me: "umona kodwa. Here's your breakfast. Ambovasa izandla." our guests woke up. Sandile walked out his room with only boxers on wayongena in the swimming pool. Lakhe: "so someone is upset this morning. Your call sisi." Me: "andicingi. I spent the whole of yesterday making him happy, its your turn today. Tell him to teach Boogie how to swim. Don't drown my baby please?" Lakhe: "I'm not gonna drown baby-" Me: "the puppy. Don't drown the puppy." Lakhe: "ouch." he held his chest. Lakhe: "ayizo pains seyizi ulcer shame." he walked out. Fez and Zintle came out together from the bedroom. Fez: "tshesa gurrll! Ungumfazi nyani sana. Ude uvuke ngentseni ne bhabhalaza for uzopheka. Ndiyak'vuma mna shame." Zintle: "yambona sana. Lonto u-fresh. What's so jolly about this morning?" me: "nothing. Ni-suspicious gqithi. So tell me Fez...how did it go..." Fez: "uthetha ngantoni ke upower puff girl? Andisayithandi outfit yakho toto." Me: "Paul sbhanxa." Zintle: "heee tshomi bengese cozy!!" Me: "ndibabonile." Fez: "guys ndiyi girl ene morals mna, I don't do first nights." Zintle: "awulo menemene." Fez: "Inoba impundu uzivule zathi ntaaa. Benjani uSibu." I laughed. Zintle: "mxim." Me: "you fucked Sibu?" Zintle: "I wish. Andiyazi kutheni endiqhoshela labhuti bethuna. He literally tucked me in. Worse kengoku, his cologne made my insides cry. Ndingasam'baweli." Me: "uzoyeka uhula nawe." Zintle: "mxim. Ndiright wethu. Makayigcine ncanca yakhe. Ndine prospects." Fez: "eziphi tshomi? Ezase Dubai?" Zintle: "ungam'libali uBraai pack lo umshiye eyefuzela yedwa kulandlu yakho." Fez: "tshomi suba low. Thula." Me: "here's breakfast guys phakani." the guys came in the kitchen. Phof

Paul and Sibu. Hunter ebezithulele yena ethanda uhlala yedwa aphole, Lakhe ke ebevana naye. Bathule bodwa pha. Paul: "good morning ladies." Me: "hi Paul. Breakfast?" Paul: "please Mrs Sobz." I gave him a plate. Lakhe's food was ready for him ndikubeke ecaleni. Sibu: "molweni ma'lady...hey babe." he hugged Zintle. Uthini na apha kum. Mr Tuck-in. Zintle: "hey." Sibu: "cela undiphakele vha." Bekufuneka ndiphakele uSandile also worse ngoku equmbile. Speaking of Sandile, Uphi uKhanya? After making Sandile's burgers I went outside to check on him. Me: "guys." Lakhe was laying on one of the chairs. Me: "Uphi uKhanya?" Lakhe: "don't know. He's not talking." Me: "Sands..." I put my hand in the water. He came out wandijamela. Okaaay, so he was really pissed off. Me: "good morning nakuwe." Sands: "the fuck's so good about it?" ouch. Me: "what happened." Sands: "can I have a moment alone please?" Me: "No, your food is ready, funeke utye. Uphi uKhanya? Is she still sleeping?" Sands: "she's gone." and he disappeared back into the water. Lakhe: "good for you. At least you got a whole dialogue. I barely got a peep." Me: "maybe they had a fight?" Lakhe: "well, let's let Aqua-man do his thing. I'm starving mna." he got up wazongena endlini with Boogie. We washed our hands and ate with our friends. Lakhe: "baby." he checked his phone after eating." Me: "yes?" Lakhe: "Babalo says he's watching the game at his club later on. Can I go?" he looked semi excited. Me: "Babalo? Oh your new friend?" Lakhe: "well.....not yet. I mean, we're into the same things. So." Me: "And he has a club." Lakhe: "hm.hm." Me: "its a strip club." Lakhe: "you're being crazy kengoku. Who watches soccer at a strip club?" Me: "You. Clearly. Baby, you don't even like soccer. The look you had on your face ujonge kwi phone yakho. Was not an invite to soccer." Lakhe: "do you keep these scenarios in your head okanye you just go with it when time allows? Babe, I don't like soccer, I don't like beer. Maybe that's why, I don't have social friends. All friends I make are business reports and financials." Me: "I thought you had plenty of friends. Did they suddenly die of heart attacks because you claimed them as friends." I took a fork full of egg and burger in my mouth. Lakhe: "baby. Ndiyak'thanda ne. As much as ungandithandi wena, always teasing me. Kusezolunga nangenye imini. So can I go?" Me: "do you, boo boo." Lakhe: "unjalo ke wena. Maybe I should book you into a spa. Wenziwe massage and stuff." Me: "uyandi briber ngoku?" Lakhe: "no baby. Not at all....it would be nice though....a thank you...." Me: "this is definitely a bribe." Lakhe: "ungcolile yazi." Me: "khazondincedisa upakisha izitya wethu. Babalo can bond with his wife nawe ubonde nowakho umfazi. Doesn't he know I'm your best friend. Mxelele ke sana so he doesn't get the roles twisted." I collected the plates wandilandela to the kitchen. Lakhe: "but baby. You're my bestest friend njena." Me: "let him know." I packed the dish washer. Lakhe: "I will." Me: "you can go only because ndifuna uyokwenza intloko yam." Lakhe: "uzokwenza nton kulentloko intle?" Me: "a long straight Peruvian weave." Lakhe: "yoooh. Hayi ke bawo. Ndizophandlwa ngoku xandilala? Hayi Khawuyeke Spho please." Me: "awubawel ucheba inqayi?" Lakhe: "why would I do that?" Me: "I love that question. Ude wamxelela uSandile?" Lakhe: "ndizothetha naye njani enjeya? Uske andibhide mna ndimyeke ke." I inserted the tablet and closed the machine switching it on. Me: "cela ungabuyi late Kakhulu ke vha." I kissed his cheek. Lakhe: "okay. Am I fine like this?" Me: "weather iyatshintsha. Maybe wear pants and take your jacket with you for in case." Lakhe: "okay mama." he kissed me back. Me: "sizoyithini household yeguests zethu?" Lakhe: "Hunter bayahamba namhlanje. Quite soon actually. Noba bazohamba gqiba kwabo ukutya. Andiyazi ke nge friends zakho." Me: "sizoshiya Sandile yedwa apha? With Boogie?" Lakhe: "Sandile will never hurt Boogie. Myeke." Me: "fine. Go change." our friends started leaving. Phof mine. Fez ebeleqa uCraig and Zintle wanted to be out of sight ka Sibu for whatever reason. Me: "let me drop you guys off kaloku. Wait for me." I went to fetch my coat and bag. Me: "have a safe flight guys." Hunter: "thank you Spho." Sibu: "I'll be staying a few more days." Me: "oh? Business?" Sibu: "no...some personal things need sorting out." Me: "okay. Its a good thing ukhona. Please look out for Boogie vha." Sibu: "will do." I got in the car ndahamba with the girls.

Monday morning I was up and ready for action. Okay, not really because bendigodola. Anyway, I showered ndayonxiba. Lakhe woke up. He came back around 11pm last night edinwe edikwe. I had to fetch Zingi from hospital today so yilento ndihamba kuqala. Lakhe: "baby...uyaphi?" Me: "ku Zingi. You know this. Morning my heart." I kissed him. Lakhe: "I'm still tired yazi." Me: "hayi kaloku bezikhipha for wena kule weekend." Lakhe: "awusemhle mntuwam with your new hair. You look like Beyonce." I laughed. Me: "thank you Jay Z." Lakhe: "yuuuh. Ingathi ndiyazibona." he went to shower and I made the bed. Ndaphuma ndayomenzela ukutya. Sandile ebengekathethi namntu oko kwayizolo and akhange sim'hoye nathi ke. Sibu on the other hand was in the room most of the time. Actually the whole time. I think he was avoiding me. Sandile was in the kitchen making breakfast already. Me: "hello." Sands: "hi." he said coldly. Ndayibamba apho sana. Andicingi ndiziphoxise ngalo. I took yogurt and fruit salad ndatya. It was time for me to go, ndathatha okwam, went to say goodbye to my love ndayoba imoto yakhe. The big one. I drove to the hospital, parked the car ndayongena phakathi. In her room Zingi had just finished breakfast evasa. I helped her dress. Me: "so, have you heard anything about Dumi? Is he well?" Zingi: "he's okay. Tshomi can you please sign these papers and get me out of here. This place depresses me." Me: "ok. I'll look for your doctor." I went out to look for the doc ndadlula kwi room ka Dumi. He was also awake. I was tempted to go in and say hi. I wonder if he got lonely here. Oh what the hell. Me: "hey.." I knocked on the door. He just stared at me waphinda wajonga phantsi. Me: "how are you feeling?" I walked in. He didn't respond. Me: "look, Dumi, I know its not nice to be in a hospital and having people take care of yo-" Dumi: "I can't walk." yangathi Kukho umntu ondihlabe ngento entliziyweni. Waking up without a recollection of your life sucks, but waking up with everything you know present but ungakwazi uhamba? I couldn't even imagine the pain. Me: "I'm sorry Dumi." Dumi: "I don't know if I'm sorry. She should've just killed me Spho. What life am I to have xandinje?? How the fuck am I suppose to work!!!! Why couldn't they just let me die!" Me: "Dumisani you have kids. They need you to be alive and as your friends we don't want you dead. Suthetha olohlobo because thina we were worried when we heard about this accident." Dumi: "I don't know what to do with myself. Where do I begin? Am I being punished for cheating on my wife? Did I deserve this? So many questions and all I hear is a devilish laugh in my head. Flashbacks of that night. I really wish they'd let me die. I can't live like this." Me: "Dumi you're stronger than this. That's why you made it. You can't let it pull you down. You survived for a reason." Dumi: "nah Spho." Me: "please stay strong. Ndiyak'cela Dumz. For Zimi and Lulonke's sake. Those kids love you. Don't do this to them." Dumi: "I just need to be alone." Me: "okay. Will you need anything? That we can bring later?" Dumi: "please contact my firm and tell William to come see me. Andiphathele my office iPad." Me: "okay. I'll do so. Goodbye Dumi." Dumi: "bye Spho." I walked out of the door. After discharging Zingi, I took her home sending Lakhe Dumi's message for William. Zingi's mother had cleaned and made the house more welcoming. Ungena kwethu, I let her sit ndayokwenza i-tea. We all sat in the lounge ndancokola nomama ka Zingi. Just general stuff wethu like work and TV shows qha. Her mom left us alone for a while. Me: "peto..." Zingi: "yeah?" Me: "I know you just got out of hospital but you look like hell. You okay?" she shook her head. Me: "what's wrong?" Zingi: "I regret it so much Spho...everything I've done to hurt him." Me: "Dumi? I'm sure he's also sorry for the things he's done." Zingi: "he doesn't even want to see me." she cried. Zingi: "Spho ndiyazicapkela so much. I wish I could turn back the hands of time. I love Dumi. I don't know what I was thinking." I wonder if the baby in her belly made it. I didn't want to ask now because she was already emotional ndizoyika umkhubekisa. I hugged her wiping her tears. Me: "its all going to work out soon enough friend. Just give him some time." what else was I to say? I knew this whole cheat on cheat shit would backfire but I was never prepared for this. Nobody was. Zingi: "please talk to him Spho...ndiyak'cela my friend..." uhh....no. Do you even know the shit he's faced with at the moment? Me: "Zingi..." Zingi: "yeah?" Me: "was your intention to kill Dumi? By causing an accident?"

She looked at me then looked at her hands. Me: "its okay...you can tell me." Zingi: "we were in the car...fighting physically. Then I took the steering wheel from him swaying the car. That's when it happened." Sowhat does that mean? Me: "so you wanted to just end the both your lives? Zingi what about the kids?" Zingi: "It was stupid of me. I know. Now I made everything more than worse. He wants nothing to do with me." Me: "just give him time peto. He almost lost his life." we sat and chatted for about another hour then I had to go to my meeting. I drove to the workplace ndayongena in my office to prepare for my meeting. Lakhe came in immediately. Me: "hey babe." Lakhe: "hey. You look tired." Me: "I am. Was at the hospital ndabona uDumi. Its so painful." Lakhe: "what's so painful?" Me: "umntanabantu can't walk Masilakhe." Lakhe: "njani fondin? As in disabled?" Me: "ndiqale nini uba ngu fondin ke mhlawmbi?" Lakhe: "argg just something I picked up on kuBabalo. Sorry baby. But are you serious? Its that bad?" Me: "yeah. Its that bad. So wena while you're on a happy tip with your new friend, lo beyitshomakho is in hospital. With no one by his side and cannot walk." Lakhe: "so, I feel as though I'm being attacked." Me: "whatever Lakhe. I need to get to my meeting." Lakhe: "babe." Me: "uyenzile lento bendikucele uyenze?" Lakhe: "uhm...what did you ask babe?" Me: "I sent you a text asking you to call Dumi's off- mxim. You know what? Yeka. I'll do that myself." I took my phone and google number yale firm ka Dumi, got William and gave him the message. Just in that 2 minute walk from the office to the car. Lakhe: "hun." he followed after me. Lakhe: "I'm sorry...I was distracted. Ndizoya ku Dumi right now and see what I can do for him-" Me: "WITH. He doesn't need pity. He needs a friend. You know Dumi likes and respects you, if you're there he might stop thinking of suicide." Lakhe: "okay, I seriously feel like this an attack kum ngoku. What's wrong baby?" he held my arm. Lakhe: "ugqibile mos umensa. What's the problem?" Me: "she tried to kill him Lakhe." I breathed. Me: "she tried to kill her own husband and downplays it like it was an accident and she's sorry. Lakhe, I personally don't think Dumi is safe." Lakhe: "what could she possibly do to him now?" Me: "hello!!!!!!" Lakhe: "babes. Just get to your meeting. I'll sort everything out." Me: "why are you being nice? Ufuna ntoni?" Lakhe: "nothing baby." Me: "don't lie to me please." Lakhe: "I know you're gonna say no." Me: "Thetha Lakhe." Lakhe: "Babalalo and his friends are going on a fishing tri-" Me: "No. Babalalo can Wait. Dumi needs you. And we're not having this conversation again Masilakhe. This Babalalo is sliding in very easily ebomini bakho. Stay woke!" I got in the car. Lakhe: "stay woke? Don't you mean awake? Anyway, I understand babe. Its fine." Me: "I'll see you at home." he kissed me when I opened my window. Lakhe: "I love you my heart." Me: "I love you too baby wam." I drove away ndaya kwi meeting yam.

I got home late and quite tired from this day. Mentally I was drained. I took off my clothes eroomin ndanxiba tracksuit and went to the kitchen to start on supper. Sandile was there. In the kitchen epehaka. Not surprised at all. Me: "need help?" he shook his head. You cannot be fucking serious. Usaqumbile? Yoooooh. Me: "Sandile. What's wrong-" Sands: "your husband! He's what's wrong!" okay? Me: "wenzenton?" Sands: "yiyeke wethu Sphosenkosi." heeee. Ndamyeka ke wachuba veg yakhe dramatically. I went to do the laundry, ndizivalele kula laundry room. Up until I put the clothes in the dryer ndaphuma ke ndisiyokhangela into yokwenza. Lakhe's car was driving in. Sandile was almost done cooking ecima phof i-stove and putting plates on the counter. Sands: "akandimameli mna uLakhe. I'm the one that has to stand on my head but noooo, akandiva mna." Me: "akakuva xa utheni?" Sands: "ndiyeke man Spho." Me: "ungak'linge ke mna undigezele. Andizonyamezelana nawe apha sibe sikucenga ingathi ungumntana omncinci. If you have a problem, you open your mouth and talk! If not, yeka uphoxana nabantu abangakwenzanga nto. Tshin thiza. Caba funeke simane sichwechwa around you. Suk'sa Sandile." ndatsho ndiphuma ndiyokhangela uBoogie phandle. He was basking in the sun epholile umntanam sana. Engese hluthi isusu sithe pop out ingathi unxibe crop top. Lakhe: "hun?" Me: "yes ?" Lakhe: "please come help me." I went inside the house Kukho umfazi olikula standing in my lounge. A bit older though, enxibe uniform. Me: "what's wrong." Lakhe: "so....this is Rebecca." Me: "hi Rebecca. I'm Spho." Lakhe: "yes, this is my fiance. My brother, Sandile is in the kitchen. Our puppy is outside tanning, his name is Boogie. This is our house." Me: "kwenzeka nton Lakhe." Lakhe: "oh. Wait here." he ran out excitedly. Me: "so...what do you do Rebecca?" Becca: "I'm a private nurse ma'am." Me: "please call me Spho." Lakhe was faced me with his back pulling something in. It looked like a wheelchair. It was a wheelchair! He turned around with it. Lakhe: "and we're home!" Dumi. He brought Dumi to our house from the hospital. Hebethuna? I'm pretty sure my boyfriend is on cocaine now. Umzisa njani umnyeni wesdala sika Sandile apha! Without even talking to me! Me: "hey Dumi. Uright?" Dumi: "I'm okay Spho. Enkosi." Me: "my love? A word?" I pulled him to the kitchen. Lakhe: "before you say anything-" Me: "you didn't speak to me about this! We didn't discuss this!" Lakhe: "I'm sorry baby. It was a split second decision. When I saw him there looking hopeless, I just couldn't leave him there alone." Me: "when did you become soft?" Lakhe: "when did you become so mean?" Sands: "when did you think you were gonna tell me to move out?" Lakhe: "awuyi ndawo Sandile. Dumi isn't here for you and I swear if you even try-" Sands: "then he must stay the fuck out my way." Lakhe: "this isn't permanent guys. Just until he gains enough confidence." Me: "You like him. Don't you?" Lakhe: "I'm just being nice." Me: "no...you care! Its so sweet of you. But uzolala phi, ahoywe njani?" Lakhe: "that is Rebecca's job, uzolala in one of our other rooms." Me: "we should've spoken about this kodwa Masilakhe. I don't have a problem with him being here at all though." Sands: "I hope I don't have to be friendly. Or share my TV." Me: "your TV is in your bedroom njena. Cela ukhuphe enye plate ndiphake." Lakhe: "enkosi mntuwam." he kissed my forehead. Me: "Uphi uSibu?" Sands: "I don't know. Oko emnkile esithi he's going to find something out- oh there he is. Hi Sibz...uright?" yoh uyi rollercoaster uSandile bethunana. Sibu: "I'm fine. Just need water." he took a glass and poured water wasela wagqiba. Sibu: "cela ningandiphakeli mna. I'm not hungry." Me: "everyone under this roof is going to sit at that table and eat. I don't care if we do that through crying and screaming." Sibu: "just dealing with some personal shit right now. I can't be around people. I'm sorry Spho." he went to his room. Me: "and then?" Sands: "maybe he didn't like what he found. He left here so excitedly ksasa.. I wonder utheni. Oh well. Where's the boy. Its time for his bath." he whistled for the dog. Me: "again?" Sands: "yes. He needs to bath like the rest of us." I was a bit jealous kuba I wasn't the one washing him. Even nayizolo. So maybe I'm a little attached to Boogie, was that so bad? Kodwa Sandile ebenomona ngaye shame. I took the plates to the table. Lakhe was showing Dumi and Rebecca around. I didn't mind that he brought him home, but I was a bit worried. Lakhe being nice? What was that Babalo feeding him? Ohh wait! Lakhe was not being nice at all. Ufuna uhamba nala Babalo! That is why ezenza uSuperman apha. Mxim. Lakhe: "so that's the rest of the house." Dumi: "its very nice. And wheelchair friendly at that. Thank you so much Lakhe. You didn't have to do this." Lakhe: "uyitshomam fondin. What else was I supposed to do?" that word again. Me: "supper is served guys." I removed one chair from the table and rolled Dumi's wheelchair in its place. Rebecca sat down and Lakhe. Sandile ebeyovasa uBoogie. I took Sibuh's food to the bedroom kuye. I know he said akafuni ukutya but if the food was near him he'd eventually eat it without going out the room amane ngobuzwa ngabantu ba utheni. I knocked on the door. Sibuh: "come in." I walked in and he sat up. Sibuh: "Spho, you didn't have to." Me: "I'll just put it here in case you get hungry during the night. Are you okay?" Sibuh: "I will be." Me: "you want to talk about it?" Sibuh: "my mom had kidney failure a couple of months ago. So I offered to donate one of mine to her. She didn't want me to. Saying she doesn't want to hurt me. Oko ndizama ukumcela. It hurt to see her go through all that pain. Ndacela ugqirha ecaleni if I could test without her knowing and I did. Kanti I was not a match. So much so that even our blood types were no where near mother and son. The doctor said it happened sometimes, umntu abeneyakhe blood type and only extract from one or the other parent. I didn't believe that, so I told umama. She couldn't explain it to me either. After I searched and searched I finally found out that I'm adopted." Me: "woah....that is intense." Sibuh: "it is." Me: "so is that why you decided to stay? Ungabuyelanga eDurban?" Sibuh: "yes. My biological parents are here in PE." Me: "did you find them?" Sibuh: "yes. My father has disappeared off the face of the earth phof akhomntu umaziyo uyephi. My mom on the other hand is just..... I don't know hey. I just don't know." Me: "I'm sorry Sibuh." Sibuh: "its cool..." Me: "did you talk to her?" Sibuh: "I tried. She just kept asking me Uphi uNodoli. I don't know who that is. Mxim." Me: "are you going to go back again?" Sibuh: "to her? I don't know what I should do. I want to know her, find out if I maybe have siblings somewhere. Find my dad also. I just don't know. Maybe if I stayed with her for a few days, get her to sober up?" Me: "that would be a good idea. I'm sure she'd appreciate your presence and get to know you better." Sibuh: "thanks Spho. Ndizoya kuye ngomso." I heard a bit of arguing from a distance. I then heard yelling. I stood up then rushing out the room. Then a loud bang. Lakhe:

"SANDILE!!!!!"

We stood in the lounge. Lakhe. Me. Sibu. Rebecca. Dumi in his chair. Sandile had stormed out. Me: "kwenzeka ntoni? Can someone say something?" Lakhe: "just a minor misunderstanding." Me: "I heard screaming. And a bang." Lakhe: "its nothing Spho." Me: "Dumi? You okay?" he nodded. Me: "where's Boogie?" Lakhe: "I think eroomin yakhe. Napping. Uhm, you guys can carry on with dinner. I'll prepare us dessert so long." he went to the kitchen. I followed him. Me: "Lakhe. What was that?" Lakhe: "Sandile is being melodramatic as usual." Me: "about what?" Lakhe: "our things Spho. He doesn't like the idea of inviting other people in our life. He throws temper tantrums all the time. You know this." he looked upset but wasn't showing any interest. Lakhe: "please enjoy dinner with our guests. Bonke abazani phaya and akekho nomnye umntu walapha endlini at the table." Me: "okay." I went to the dining table. Everyone was sitting at their place. Sibu was sitting too. Dumi: "Spho?" Me: "yes?" Dumi: "can I have a glass of wine?" Me: "aren't you still on meds?" Dumi: "well yeah..." Becca: "as long as its not too much." Me: "just one glass. Okay? I don't want you to slow down your progress." Dumi: "thank you." I poured him a glass. Becca: "and we'll have to work it off with exercises and healthy eating." Dumi: "I don't want to exercise." Becca: "its for your well being Dumisani." Dumi: "you heard the doctor. He said the possibility for me to ever walk again are very slim. What good is exercising going to do other than make me look ridiculously delusional?" Becca: "Dumisani, you're not going to look ridiculous. What the doctor says can be proven wrong. It has been, multiple times. By people who don't want to give up. Slim is just what it looks like now.....a few months from now, you could be looking at 50%. If you don't start, how will you know?" Dumi rolled his eyes. Dumi: "fine. I'll do it." he picked at his food. Me: "have you seen the kids yet?" Dumi: "they visited at the hospital. Lulonke was worried thinking he was going to lose me. He has a game this Saturday and all those times I never went because of work, now I'm sitting like this." Me: "we're all going to the game. You included. We can come back here afterwards and have a little braai, so you can spend time with them." Becca: "that's a great idea Spho." Dumi: "she's going to be there. I don't wanna see her." Me: "you can't avoid her forever." Dumi: "I know so I'm trying my best to, for my remaining couple of years. At least that I still have." I sighed. Me: "she's gonna have to know uhlala apha. Dumi, we're all friends. I can't just take sides. I care about the both of you." not. Okay I was being a bitch now. Of course I cared. Although I did not approve of what Zingi did, I still cared about them both. Naye uDumi uzenzile ii-faults. They weren't perfect. Dumi: "Still." he took his ipad and clicked on it. Lakhe finally came with the dessert. He sat down and we ate quietly. Something was definitely up with him and frankly, I was not in the mood for it tu. Andizokwazi ucenga umntu omngakaya. Next I know ndizophoxwa ndikhubeke apha. Yuuh. Me: "so tomorrow I'm going back home. My parents must miss me." Lakhe: "why?" Me: "why what?" Lakhe: "Spho, we live together." Me: "we discussed this." he stared at me. Lakhe: "can I have a word with you?" he walked to our room. Me: "excuse me." I followed him. Lakhe: "kutheni Spho, uzondijongisa ngabantu? Was it really necessary for you to mention that at the table." Me: "was it a secret?" Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi. We live together. I paid iLobola njena. Your parents don't mind you being here with me. Plus, I have extra guests in OUR house. I can't do all that alone. We're in it together." Me: "no we aint brother. YOU on your own decided to bring Dumi here. With a private nurse." Lakhe: "oh? And Sibuh? Was that me too?" Me: "Sibuh is going to his mom's tomorrow. Uzohlala pha until he goes home." Lakhe: "so you want to run away from the responsibility of taking care of your friend? Just because I made a decision that I thought was best and you would like. I always listen to you. I do as you say. You wanted me to be more helping and accommodating of others ebomini bam but today ndirongo. How could I have left Dumi there Spho? Umbonile nawe ebenjani, he wasn't in the right state of mind. Its fine though. Goduka. If you want to go, then go." he opened the door and walked back out to the dining area. Me: "Lakhe." he ignored me completely. Now I felt bad. Not entirely. Kodwa I was being mean again and being selfish. I went to the dining table ndahlala phantsi. They had their conversation and giggles alone ndisitya dessert yam quietly. I took the dishes to the kitchen ndazifaka ku machine wazo. I was wrong. That I knew very well and I had to tell him. He walked in the kitchen with his bowl wayibeka on the counter. Me: "I'm sorry. I was wrong. I should be supporting you and actually thanking you for being a wonderful person. I don't know who I'm becoming. I'm losing pieces of myself everyday. Ndicela uxolo Masilakhe. I want to help you. I want to be here for you and with you. Ndiyakuthanda babe." he just stared at me. Lakhe: "k cool." he turned and walked away. I felt my heart break in half ingathi yi Marie biscuit. After getting into my feels like that? Lakhe: "you know what the problem is?" he stood by the door. Lakhe: "you're not sorry. I know this because I can see the look in your eyes. How I recognize the look? Because I once had it nam. You've changed into what I used to be. Iqale kancinci with sarcasm and mood swings now You've turned full on beastly. And cold. Towards me too. I had to change that personality instantly when I met you because I loved you.

I wanted to be with you normally and not make you uncomfortable. Now I just don't know what's going on kuwe. You want control over everything, and I freely give it to you. Ndiyakuva ucela uxolo Sphosenkosi, but you don't mean it. Do you?" Me: "I do." Lakhe:

"Sphosenkosi. I'm not stupid. I know this behavior. Not wanting to be around other people, shutting others out, getting easily angered ngezinto ezincinci. And so much more. The only remaining problem is that I'm not willing to marry that version of you. I'm not going to marry my previous self nangeyiphi na imini.. So if you don't change this attitude, or deal with it. I don't know if we can go ahead."

A few days after 'the talk'. Friday to be precise. I came home from work ndafika Kukho Dumi and Rebecca exercising. Sibu was with his mom oko wayemke Tuesday. Sandile was in and out as quietly as possible endlini. Lakhe was still not talking to me regardless of what I did. I just got head nods and 'okays'. It was worse at work, because he acted as though everything was fine. Me: "molweni fam. How is it going?" Becca: "great. He's improving." Dumi: "not that much." Me: "let's see." I sat down. Dumi: "now?" Me: "ewe." Becca helped him up from the chair and held him to the bars. Dumi: "but I can't even feel my legs. I'm gonna fall." Sands: "just try and imagine being a hungry beast chasing you. He'll rip your limbs apart one by one." Me: "Sandile!" Sands: "sorry." Me: "relax Dumi. There's no hungry beast." Dumi: "nah...let him talk. I'm gonna walk over there and beat him qha." Sands: "come. I have a few years of not giving a shit." Me: "sum'hoya Dumi, you're doing great." Dumi: "okay...tired now." Becca: "okay. Let's sit." she brought the wheel chair closer to him and sat him down. Me: "let me make you guys some dinner. Is there something you want?" Dumi: "lasagna." Sands: "spaghetti bolognese." Me: "Sandile." he smiled. I went to the bedroom to change. Ndanxiba a baby blue boob tube maxi dress. It held my breasts only and was free from there down. I tied up my weave ndayovasa izandla. Slipped on sandals kwangena uLakhe. He threw his bag on the bed and undressed very quickly. Me: "hey baby." Lakhe: "hello." he went into the closet. Me: "so, tonight we're having lasagna. I was thinking maybe you could invite Babalo and Hlumi to come over for dinner, we could have game night." Lakhe: "I can't. Babalo and I are going out for drinks. His friend Carlo has a yacht and he's waiting for us at the Harbour." when was he going to tell me that? If I hadn't spoken? He wore his jeans and t shirt and sneakers. Me: "its cold at the Harbour. You should take your warm jacket." Lakhe: "thank you." he took it off the hanger. Me: "uzobuya namhlanje?" Lakhe: "I'm not really sure." Me: "Masilakhe. Can we talk?" he looked at me. Me: "I'm really sorry for Monday. I've been trying this whole week to show you that. Why are you ignoring me?" Lakhe: "I'm not ignoring you Spho. I'm always here andithi?" Me: "I know you're punishing me. I don't know till when kodwa Lakhe this isn't healthy." he kissed my lips. Lakhe: "I'll see you when I'm back. I'm not punishing you at all. I have to go vha." I stepped out of his way and he dashed out. I went to the kitchen ndaqalisa upheka. Kuyo yonke lonto I held back tears ndingafuni tu uba weak. Dumi: "hey." Me: "hi." Dumi: "you okay?" Me: "yeah...onions." Dumi: "oh yeah. Awufuni ndikuncedise?" Me: "no its okay Dumi. I got this. Go watch some TV." Dumi: "Sandile keeps changing the channels athi ngu Boogie that's stepping on the Remote." Me: "I'll speak to Sandile. He's a big baby yena." Dumi: "okay." he wheeled out the kitchen then back in again. Dumi: "Spho. I've known you for years." Me: "I know." Dumi: "if you need to talk I'm here." Me: "okay." I was ready to explode at this point. I went to the sink and washed my hands. Dumi left me alone, ndapheka ndincediswa ngu Rebecca. She chatted to me about her hometown and made me forget my own problems for a second. While we waited for the lasagna to be ready. Zintle facetimed ndancokola naye kancinci then Fez joined our conference call. Fez: "akasemhle umakoti. Khawuze ndibone ilokhwe mfazi." Me: "hayi man Fez..." Zintle: "une glow sana. Inoba umithi. Have you chosen a date yet?" Me: "we're still discussing that." in my imagination. Zintle: "alright my hun." Dumi: "Spho. Uyambona ke uSandile???" I put my phone on the counter. Me: "Sandile wenzeni!!" Sands: "nothing!!" he yelled from the couch. Dumi: "he's trying to jack my wheels. Undincamathisela nge super glue on the tiles!" Me: "Sandile, Khawuyeke torho!" Sands: "I did nothing." Me: "iza uzoyohlala phe camkwakhe on the couch." Dumi: "he will kill me." Me: "akacingi." I took him back to the living room helping him sit on the couch. Me: "Sandile if I hear your name one more time." Sands: "sorry." I folded the wheelchair ndayibeka ecaleni. Going back to the kitchen. Fez: "peto. Was that Dumi?" Me: "yes. Lakhe brought him home on Monday." and has left him as my sole responsibility for the weekend as well. Zintle: "ncooh. Uthini uZingi?" Me: "she doesn't know yet.. Guys I have to go..before those two hurt each other. They're like 5 year olds, oko ndinqanda iveki yonke." Fez: "okay love. Good bye." I hung up. I closed the sink ndagalela amanzi and a bit of dishwasher. I started washing the dishes and bowls I used to prepare the lasagna. Not too many and I felt like doing something with my hands. Sands: "wenzantoni?" Me: "washing dishes. You scared me. Ungene nini?" he leaned on the sink. Sands: "you also see what's happening." Me: "what is?" Sands: "Spho....come on..." Me: "Uphi uKhanya?" Sands: "Uphi uLakhe." Me: "he's at the Harbour with his friends." Sands: "she's at home with her parents. The only problem is that she's not ignoring me." Me: "neither is he. So where you getting at?" hands started shaking. Sands: "its the friend. He's a bad influence on him....Babalalo isn't what he seems to be." Me: "well...try telling that to his beloved friend." Sands: "he won't listen. Spho, Babalo uyayibona hold onayo ku Lakhe. He doesn't want that, he wants to destroy it. He wants Lakhe to be like him. Problem ka Lakhe is that he's never had friends, he's never been accepted by anyone....what Babalo is giving him is a life he has never experienced." Me: "Sandile, uyixelela umntu orongo lento." Sands: "ilula yonke lento Spho. If you want me to help....just say the word....I know how to make things vanish." Me: "No, I don't want you to kill Babalo. I don't want you to kill anyone. Ever!" Sands: "who said anything about killing?" Me: "don't hurt him neither!" Sands: "who said anything about violence?" Me: "just...no. I know you." Sands: "I'm here Spho. If you need me....use me. I can make all your problems go away mntase." he walked out the kitchen. He is so psychotic. My heart was bleeding also. I wanted Lakhe back in this house like he used to be. So how could that be done? Andinthembi uSandile ingathi uzoyenza kabhlungu yonke lento. Maybe I should just let Lakhe enjoy this friendship. He hasn't had friends like this before, he deserves someone to let him loose. When dinner was ready I took it to the dining table. Me: "dinner is ready." Sands: "so are my plans." he whispered as he passed me. Becca and I helped Dumi onto his chair sayohlala at the table. Dumi: "can I say grace?" Sands: "yoh. In this house? U-sure?" Me: "ignore him. Yes Dumi. Go ahead." Dumi: "can we close our eyes please?" we closed our eyes. Dumi: "Lord, we thank you for the wonderful food we have on our plates, we ask that You bless the hands that prepare it as well as the mouths that feed on it. Please guide us carefully and shower us further with more blessings at each waking day. Amen." Me: "amen." Becca: "amen.." we looked at Sandile. His eyes were still closed. Sands: "amen." watshintsha kengoku. There we go again. We ate our dinner. Dumi: "the game starts at 10 tomorrow Spho. I called the school earlier." Me: "perfect. Sizoyomlanda ku makhulu wakhe and drive him there. Sandile, will you be able to come?" Sands: "unfortunately not. I have stuff I need to do. Plus a meeting with Michael for the hotel." Me: "okay." after dinner, I put the dishes into the machine. My mind was at home. Kumama notata wam. I missed them so much. I wanted to go to them but andinoshiya Dumi noSandile apha. Becca would never be able to handle them. Not that she's incapable but Sandile akeva. Plus tomorrow I had to do this for Dumi and his kids. He was doing much better elapha engasayihoyi ncam indaba ye-wheel chair. He was happier. I closed the machine and stood next to it. "hey." I looked up. Sibú. Me: "hey you. Awusenqabe." Sibú: "ndikhona.... And you? Why do you look so down?" Me: "I'm not...I'm just thinking about work. Unjani umamakho?" Sibú: "she's okay. Ndimfake kwi rehab centre." Me: "still can't find your dad?" he shook his head. Sibú: "nobody knows where he went to. The last time he was seen ebesuka kwi tshomi yakhe. Tshomi leyo yakhe doesn't even know where he is because ebethe kuyo ugoduka straight. So I don't know.....I think he might be dead." Me: "hayi Sibú! Suthetha njalo." Sibú: "I've called all the hospitals in the bay. He's not there. The next thing now is to call the mortuaries." Me: "I'm so sorry Sibú..." Sibú: "its okay. I'd be happy just to find his body and put him to rest qha. Peacefully." Me: "can I dish up for you?" Dumí: "Spho!" Me: "God Sandile wenzeni ngoku!!" Sands: "I'm right here!" he stood by the door. Me: "what's up Dumí?" Dumí: "maybe we could play some games." Sands: "you're not using my darts." Me: "okay, we'll find something." I dished up for Sibú. Sandile and Dumí had disappeared by the time I finished and I started panicking. I looked for them everywhere ndayobafumana at the game room. I breathed in relief. They'd discovered Fifa. Me: "Sandile." Sands: "Ma." Me: "try not to hurt omnye umntana. Are you comfortable Dumz?" Dumí: "yes." he was focusing on the screen. At least they found some common ground. Sibú joined them. Becca was in her room. I decided to take this time to relax and go through my work.

Saturday morning. I'd driven Dumí and Becca to fetch the kids and go to the game. Sandile ebeshiyeke noSibú. When we arrived at the field, Becca was pushing Dumí's wheelchair ndihamba ecamkwabo carrying Zimi. Lulonke ran to his team. I couldn't see Onetta. Thank goodness because I was not in the mood for her. We got to sit down. Zimi went to sit on her daddy's lap. Me: "I'll get us some hotdogs. Ufuna tomato sauce Dumí?" Dumí: "yes. And mustard." Becca: "only tomato on mine please." I walked to the stall, quite a distance down. The game had started most people were sitting and watching. I bought three hot dogs. Ndazibeka on the table to put on sauces. "hey there.." I looked to the direction of the voice. What was his name again? The light tall guy. Onetta's husband. Forgot his name. Me: "hey. Ninjani? Where's your wife?" he made a face. Confused face. Me: "Onetta?" Him: "oh...Onetta is my girlfriend. Ex actually." Me: "Oh.." Him: "but we have a kid so... My name is Nangamso." Gummy!! Yes. Me: "Spho." we shook hands. I spread the sauces on the hotdogs. "what's the hold up man?" a second voice. That sounded familiar. Gummy: "just chatting. You want some sauce?" "Spho?" I looked at him. Me: "Max." Gummy: "you guys know each other?" Max: "yeah...we've met. Its nice to see you." Me: "you too Max. I have to go guys." I took the hot dogs ndaya kwindawo yam yohlala. Dumi: "and then?" Me: "what?" he smiled. I gave Becca her hotdog. Dumi: "ndiyibonile la moment ye-dudes." he laughed. Me: "just eat." he laughed again. I ate my hotdog and watched the game. Half way into it Becca got us some drinks. Me: "nilele nini izolo." Dumi: "around midnight. Sandile left me there to fend for myself. That bastard. Ndincedwe ngu Sibu." I chuckled. Me: "he likes you man. Trust me. Sandile wouldn't even put energy in affecting you if bengakufuni pha." Dumi: " He enjoys inflicting pain on my heart." Me: "unentlonti wethu. He's just like that." Dumi: "Lakhe akhange abuye?" Me: "no. He went on a yacht with his new friends." Dumi: "oh." then he kept quiet. Dumi: "he'll never do anything to hurt you. He loves you." Me: "I know..." Dumi: "just be patient. Let him run around for a while, uzodikwa soon enough and be back in your arms. We're like that thina. We know where home is." I smiled. Me: "thank you Dumi." After the game we took the kids home. To my surprise, Sandile had already started the braai sefaka inyama. Sibu was playing some music ephethe dumpie yakhe. Me: "and Michael?" Sands: "ndisuka kuye. How was the game?" Me: "come." I hugged him. Me: "I know you're trying to keep me happy." Sands: "uyandaz nje ndingu stand up comedian.

Please make those nice salads for us. I also bought snacks for the kids for the mean time." Me: "okay." I went to the kitchen and started with the salads, Becca came to help me. The guys were outside with the puppy and the kids playing with it. The intercom rang ndayovula gate. I waited at the door yangena imoto ka bhuti Khaya. I squealed in excitement. My family was here! I ran to the car. Khaya: "ndikugile ke mna." I laughed. They got out the car and I hugged them. Me: "I missed you so much." Khaya: "we miss you too mntanam. Kwenzeka ntoni apha. You having a party?" Me: "no. Sisuka kwi rugby game ka Lulo. Dumi's son. They're here for a braai." I brought them up to speed quick with Dumi and Becca and Sibu they already knew Sandile. We went in the house. Me: "mama, this is Becca. Dumi's private nurse." Becca: "good afternoon." Mama: "hello." we went outside. Me: "There's Sandile. Dumi and Sibu. The kids are somewhere around the yard." Khaya: "molweni." Sands: "molo tata." Dumi: "molo tata." Sibu: "Molo Tata." really? One by one? Uwoah. Khaya: "need help there?" he went to Sandile rolling up his sleeves. Khaya: "might wanna sprinkle some beer like this to make it tender." Sands: "nyani?" I left them to do their thing ndayokwenzela umama i-tea. I left her in the lounge ancokole with Becca ndabuyela e-kitchen to continue with the salad. Sandile came in to fetch water. Sands: "your dad is so cool." Me: "I know. He has me as a daughter. Ayisecece." he laughed. Lakhe walked into the kitchen. Sands: "zond'fumana phandle mntase." he walked out without even looking at him. Me: "hey...how was your trip." Lakhe: "it was fun.....I just missed you so much mntu wam. Damn." he hugged me. Me: "I missed you too baby." see? It wasn't so bad that he went to have fun with his friends. I had to instill trust. Lakhe: "jonga." he took out his phone and showed me pictures. Me: "this does look fun." Lakhe: "but cold...undincedile with the jacket. I would've frozen to death." Me: "utata and Sandile are braaing meat. Awulambanga?" Lakhe: "I'll wait for it. Come say hi with me." to who? I held my hand and walked me out the kitchen to the back yard. Lakhe: "Tata." Khaya: "heyy! There he is. I was wondering Uphi." Lakhe: "I'd like you to meet my new friend, uyamazi uDumi right? Well, this Babalo. He lives next door." I stared coldly at this big blob of nothing. Sandile looked at me with a raised eyebrow. I was gonna be calm. Lakhe: "Balo, remember my wife." Balo: "oh yeah....sup, Miss." sup is gonna kick your ass inside out with a fucken pitch fork. Me: "make yourself comfortable. I'll bring you a beer." I smiled.

The braai was going great. Everyone was happy. What I didn't understand was where Babalo's wife is. Kuthen yena engazanga? Me: "hun..." Lakhe: "yes babe?" Me: "isn't your friend married?" Lakhe: "yeah." Me: "well...where is his wife?" Lakhe: "I don't think she's around. Anyway, I'm going to fetch Skhumbuzo from the Engen garage. He's getting lost." Me: "who is Skhumbuzo?" Lakhe: "Balo's brother. I'll be back just now." he left the house. Everyone was outside, I was tidying up the kitchen ndizobuyela kubo in a minute. After taking The dishes out the machine ndazifaka kwi cupboard zazo. Plus the pots and everything. I could feel something standing behind me. Probably Sandile. Me: "how's everything outside. Usalambile? Ndiyakwazi kaloku wena ngokutya. You just never get enough." "at all..." that wasn't Sandile. I turned around and saw Babalo. He was leaning on the door frame with one hand in his pocket, the other holding a glass that contained a shot of whiskey. Ebecuthe amehlo encumile. Me: "what do you want...?" I tried my best to keep my composure. Balo: "you." he smiled. Balo: "kutheni Uhleli wedwa apha kulendu....night after night. Jesus, I would never leave if bendihlala apha....would fucking tear that ass up." his face turned serious. Balo: "every night." he sneered. Me: "Babalalo, get the hell out of my kitchen and house." Balo: "I'll be in the back yard if you need me." he turned around and left. I felt sick to my stomach. This bitch!! He doesn't even qualify to be a bastard! Uyi bitch ngoku. I called Lakhe but it went straight to voicemail. I paced up and down the kitchen. I wanted to stab him for making me feel uncomfortable in my own house. He needed to be stabbed. Khaya: "bunny? wenzantoni?" Me: "I hate that man!!" Khaya: "yuh. Hate is a strong word-" Me: "I feel it strongly tata. Ndiyamcapkela qha! Do you know what he said when he came in here?" Lakhe walked in. Lakhe: "baby nanku Skhura." Me: "Molo Skhura. Lakhe can I talk to you?" Skhura lowo looked like wothusiwe yena self. Lakhe: "babe, ndicela uqal-" Me: "Lakhe I need you Now." Lakhe: "Skhura, ngena kwesa sliding door mfethu. Ndiyeza." Skhura left the kitchen. Lakhe: "what's happening?" Khaya: "what did he say?" Me: "I asked him ufuna ntoni apha. He said that he wants Me. And that why ndihlala ndodwa kulendlu night after night. If he lived here..." I didn't want my father to hear this part. Khaya: "if he lived here what?" Lakhe: "who are we talking about?" Me: "I just don't like him. He's weird! UBabalo your stupid friend." waske wahleka uLakhe. I don't know what made me more angry. Lakhe: "baby, Babalo IS stupid. He jokes about you all the time. He says you're attractive ewe, that's it. He's no harm." I just stared at him perplexed. Me: "are you fucking kidding me?" Khaya: "Language Spho." Me: "tata, uxolo. But awuyiboni lento yenzekayo?" Khaya: "hun...so what if he finds you attractive? A lot of men do. I'm sure noSandile and Sibu even Dumi would but bona bane filter abazokuxelela lonto." Me: "Sandile doesn't have a filter!!" Sands: "and when did I become a topic." he came to rinse his glass. Khaya: "don't you think Spho is attractive?" Sands: "is it a trick question?" Me: "just answer Sandile man!" I had my hands on my hips ndivutha ngumsindo. Sands: "I don't find you attractive because you're my brother's wife but you're fucking sexy ke qha.....gorgeous, smart, you're....attractive. To other people...excuse the language." he dashed out as quickly as possible. Me: "he would be the only person that would believe me if I told him. Nina tata, nizoyibona seku late lento. And I swear Lakhe, I swear to Satan because I fear and respect my God, if that boy being Babalo comes near me or so much as utters a breath around my presence, I will stab him to death. Do you understand me? I mean this with every might in me. So help me God." I stormed out the kitchen.

Later that evening, bendihleli ndiqumbile alone in the bedroom. My mom came in. Mama: "awww my baby girl." I gave her a big bear hug. Me: "why doesn't he listen to me?" Mama: "your father told me what happened with Babalo. But he's a sweet boy baby, he even apologized, esithi he didn't know you'd be uncomfortable because Lakhe said the same thing ku Hlumi. She didn't mind. Uyanconywa umntu omhle sisi, don't feel offended." Lakhe? Lakhe didn't say this shit to another woman. Me: "okay." they already drew up their own conclusion that I was the one over reacting. Babalo unexhwele bethuna elistrongo. He somehow has taken over everyone and akhomntu umbonayo that he's an ass. Except Sandile. Mama: "come mntanam. Masiyohlala at the lounge and have a glass of wine." Me: "hayi mama andiseli mna." Mama: "oh please Sphosenkosi. Iza." I giggled silently. We went to the lounge. From inside andithi the whole of the back yard was visible because biyohlulwa yi glass and a sliding door. I could see everything happening outside. Eyona nto indenze ndabuyela kumsindo was seeing my only hope playing rugby with this cockroach. Goodness Sandile. Really? Me: "can I have cognac instead?" she stared at me. Mama: "I said wine, child." I sulked. Mama: "only one shot and your father can never know." I smiled ndayozicutha nge shot. I downed it at once ndabuyela kwi seat yam. Sandile pushed Babalo into the pool and watched him struggled to breath, obviously dying instantly. Lakhe: "SANDILE!!!!" Sands: "what? He had to fetch the ball." Lakhe: "he can't swim!!!" Sands: "well.....I guess he's gonna die soon." Babalo emerged from the water gasping for air. Balo: "what the hell!!!" Sands: "oh you're alive. Welcome back." Balo: "what was that for!!!!" Sands: "a reminder of how short life can be just for a little mistake. I didn't see you there. Awuy'bawel shot?" he took a sip of his drink. Lakhe: "come. I'll help you change." he helped his friend out the water. I laughed out loud as soon as they entered the house. When I started I couldn't stop, I swear guys. Bade bayongena eroomin. Sandile was a class act manyani. Ithemba lam lokugqibela bethuna. Mama: "I'm glad I didn't have a son. Akeva la Sandile. Yoooh!" Me: "unentlonti gqithi uSandile." Mama: "he's an imbecile." Lakhe: "Spho. I need your help." I followed him to the bathroom. Lakhe: "I need these dry please, undiphathele the grey shorts and a white t shirt from my closet." Me: "he lives right next door." Lakhe: "ahambe ngempahla emanzi Spho?" I'm Spho now? Nigga my name is BABY!!! Sekutheni ndizobangu Spho? Heeee wow. Me: "okay.. And shoes?" Balo: "just sandals please." bendingathethi nawe wena. Me: "underwear also...?" I muttered as I walked to the closet. I took out the shorts, sandals and t shirt ndayonika uLakhe. Taking the wet clothes to the dryer. Unfortunately phone yakhe was in the pants icimile. After ndifake impahla in the dryer, I went to the kitchen ndayifaka kwi rice. Lakhe and his friend came out the house again. Sands: "nantsi shot. It will help with the shock." Balo: "you tried to kill me!" Sands: "oh please, if I wanted you dead, we'd be having after tears right now with a bunch of strippers. Stop being gay. Cheer up.. Sela nantsi shot." Lakhe: "leave him alone Sandile!" Sands: "wena awuyifun shot?" he said walking away. Dumi was with his children by the garden and Becca. Sibuhleli noSkhura. Khaya: "my love." he came to sit with us at the lounge. Mama: "hey." Khaya: "umbonile uSandile wenze ntoni?" he was in stitches. Mama: "ustout la Sandile." Khaya: "on another note...I need us to talk a little. Hun can you give us some space?" Me: "alright." I went outside ndama nje ndizama ukumamela bathini ngam. I pretended to be talking and laughing. By myself phof. Khaya: "do you remember when we adopted uSpho?" Mama: "yes..." Khaya: "and you remember umamakhe ekhala esithi singathathi owok'gqibela." Mama: "yes..." Khaya: "what do you think she meant?" Mama: "I don't know baby. Why uyicinga ngoku yonke lento...? A decade later." Khaya: "I don't know....ndiyamthanda umntanam man..." Mama: "everyone knows that." Khaya: "I think she might-" while ndimamele I'd even stopped distracting myself and just listened until Lakhe disturbed me. Lakhe: "my heart." Me: "yes babe?" Lakhe: "Kuthen ume wedwa nje apha." Me: "shhhh...I'm listening bathini." Lakhe: "you're eavesdro-" Me: "Shhh." they had stopped. Bebehleka ngoku. Me: "great. I missed it." Lakhe: "uyazithanda indaba...khawuze ndiphuze." Me: "ungayophuza friend yakho njena." Lakhe: "already did." Me: "then get away from me with your herpes." he laughed. Lakhe: "I'm kidding. Why do you hate him so much." Me: "because you spend so much time with him lately and I feel sidelined and I don't like the comments he makes about me." Lakhe: "okay, ndiyakuva baby. I'll schedule him." Me: "and?" Lakhe: "and tell him to stop with the comments." Me: "I want him to not talk to me Period!" Lakhe: "but I talk to your friends-" Me: "not Fez. You don't conversate with him at all." Lakhe: "we don't have anything to talk about." Me: "well, ifana nam noBabalo. We have nothing to talk about." he dug into his pocket wakhupha phone yakhe. He stared at it and searched for Sandile with his eyes. Me: "what is it." Lakhe: "I have to go. Ndiyeza ngoku vha." Me: "I'm confused." Lakhe: "I'll be back Spho." I stared at him. Lakhe: "baby, not now please." Me: "fine." he walked into the house. Sandile followed him.

Lakhe: "back to business." he undressed and changed into something else. Sands: "what's up." Lakhe: "Code 4." Sands: "I hope no one else knows bout this. Funeke sibengu in and out before anyone notices we're missing." Lakhe: "I just told Spho, I had to go." Sandile shook his head changing his clothes. Sands: "I don't like that guy." Lakhe: "I know you don't. Can we do that later?" Sibu came into the room. Lakhe: "code 4. Change. Uzosifumana phambili." Sibu: "sure boss." he got dressed. Sands: "make sure. Nobody knows where we are." Sibu: "count on it." They left the house, driving the ML out the garage. Sandile drove the car to their Code 4, racing through the traffic. Lakhe clicked on his phone to verify attendance. Lakhe: "Bull Cloak isn't in town." Sands: "ndim'checke?" Lakhe: "no myeke. He's the only one. Family emergency." Sands: "otherwise si-set?" Lakhe: "why do I have a feeling this won't be a fruitful meeting?" Sands: "Sukoyika. Ndizophaka." he pulled his pistol out from under the seat. Lakhe: "bani lo usemven kwam?" Sands: "ngu Sibu. We're dropping this one here. Sinyuke ngale yakhe." he parked the car and got out. They went into the rented white Polo Vivo. Sandile took the driver seat. Sibu passenger and Lakhe at the back. Lakhe: "Sibu, ushiyeke apha emotweni. I don't want you in there." Sibu: "ok bhuti." Sands: "still feeling?" Lakhe: "yes. We're getting closer. Take your right." Sandile swerved and turned right. Lakhe: "without drawing attention please." Sands: "you know me. I like to play and have the fun in the streets." he said in a Mexican accent. Lakhe: "you have exactly 4.3 seconds." the car slowed down. Lakhe: "stop." Sandile stopped. Sands: "play time." he jumped out the car tucking in his gun behind his back. He walked before his brother. Lakhe walked a little far left behind him. They entered the building and were escorted to a private room downstairs. Sands: "Sergio!" Serge: "my Sandcastles. Been long enough. G." he nodded. Lakhe: "where's the rest?" Serge looked at his tablet. Serge: "Kolo is a minute away. Frank, 2 minutes. Leon at the door. And you saw the notice of Bull Cloak not attending. You also have a new member." Leon: "boys... G." Lakhe: "who's the new member? From?" Serge: "I don't know. He's not on the data base yet. With Loco gone, we needed someone to take his place. His brother also went missing so..." Leon: "do we really need another member here. We're sufficient." Serge: "different operations for different cities. Your call, G." Lakhe: "we'll see when he gets here." he looked at Sandile. Sandile nodded once and looked at his shoes. Sands: "so we still don't budget snacks or...." Serge:

"No." the rest of the board arrived. Lakhe: "now we're waiting for mystery man? Let's start so long. We have no time to waste. Leon." Leon: "340." Lakhe: "Kolo." Kolo: "329." Lakhe: "less than last month. What happened?" Kolo: "had to smoke out one of the men, they steal my product." Lakhe: "pick it up. I need you to make the target. Frank." Frank: "332." Lakhe: "reason?" Frank: "smoked out one." Lakhe: "so we have a meter and a grand." Serge: "are you still not putting in?" Lakhe: "still checking for spots and stripes. Our next shipment is tomorrow 12 midnight. The 24 express." Serge: "I'm in." Lakhe: "Serge, you're my eyes." Serge: "I can handle it." Lakhe: "okay. 500 is going in for the express team. Kolo, Leon and Frank, you're leaving with your 167k. Are we happy?" Leon: "sure thing." Lakhe: "Sands, Serge. Sort please." Frank: "wait." he looked at the door. Lakhe: "who you." "I'm the Black Stallion. Your new member. Must say, you run a very....smooth enterprise." Lakhe: "who referred you?" BS: "Sepua. From Mexico." Lakhe: "unfortunately, you can only put in next month-" BS: "I have 500k in that bag. I need your ship to transport my drugs to Sepua. You're the only man that can help me." everyone kept quiet. BS: "700." as though they were holding in their breaths. BS: "I'm stopping at 800k. Its that or nothing." Lakhe: "how much.." BS: "600kg." Lakhe: "I'll need a bar for that." BS: "a million?" Lakhe: "I don't transport drugs. I transport merchandise only. Jewelry. Cars. I'll need a bar for your service." BS: "fine. I'll raise the rest in two days." Lakhe: "Black Stallion is it?" BS: "yes." Lakhe: "There's a ritual.....that we perform for new members. To see if you're viable for our business." Black Stallion stared at him wide eyed. BS: "what kind of voodoo shit is that?" Lakhe: "Sandile. Serge. Take him through the channels." Sandile grabbed him. BS: "noo.....wait!!!!" Lakhe: "what for?" BS: "I wasn't told about rituals! What ritual? What the fuck is that?" Lakhe: "you want to be my associate? We need to test you first. Serge, undress him. Sands, ndizok'fumana endlin. Meeting adjourned."

Lakhe came home when it just started getting dark. Me: "Uphi uSibu ?" Lakhe: "he said he'd be back soon. Ikhona into ayoyilanda. How's everything?" he kissed me. Me: "everything is fine. Uvelaphi?" Lakhe: "just to check on something. Did Balo annoy you again?" Me: "no, he stayed away. Or else we'd be at the police station now." he laughed. Lakhe: "mabahambe ngoku ababantu. I want my wife alone.." Me: "bagxothe kaloku.." Lakhe: "yuuh." I went to the bedroom, honestly I needed some quiet time. Away from the laughing and music. Lakhe went to his friends ndakhwela ebhedini yam mna. In a few minutes he came in. With the face. Me: "No." Lakhe: "I didn't say anything." Me: "I did. I said No." Lakhe: "but why?" Me: "because you have the asking look on your face." Lakhe: "I'm not asking for anything. Ubuyile Sibuyile wakho." Me: "oh..." Lakhe: "you like being in control. So much so, I can't even be relaxed." Me: "are you relaxed now?" Lakhe: "ewe." Me: "I believe you." Lakhe: "babe?" Me: "yeah.." he hopped into bed next to me. Lakhe: "I know I haven't been around lately, emotionally and physically. I've been absorbed kumsebenzi kunye nee-friends. I'm sorry about that. Thank you for being strong and waiting for me." Me: "am I gonna have to do it again?" Lakhe: "no baby, iitshomi funeke zibene limited time ngoku." Me: "okay." Lakhe: "Balo ucela uxolo, for making you uncomfortable." Me: "betshilo umama." I rolled my eyes. Lakhe: "I know you don't like him. He's harmless baby, I promise." Me: "he's coming between us Masilakhe." Lakhe: "ndiyakuba love. Its done now. If you can go out with your friends, I also have the right to go out with mine-" Me: "but you must come back home. I come Home every time. And I don't like what he said to me." Lakhe: "baby it was a compliment." Me: "he said he would tear my ass up! How is that a compliment?" Lakhe: "what?" Me: "I couldn't say this in front of my dad because I didn't want drama. He said he'd never leave if he lived here." he kept quiet. Me: "and now?" he got up and walked out. I followed him bendingazomnqanda qha bendibawela umbona xa egxothwa. I saw Lakhe talking to him kancinci then showed him the door. Babalo walked out the house walandelwa ngu Skhura wakhe. Sandile spoke to Lakhe for a few minutes, joined by Sibuy. A little caucus meeting. Khaya: "mntanam." Me: "yes tata." Khaya: "siyanishiya ke thina ngoku. Bekumnandi uhlala nani." Me: "I enjoyed it too tata." Mama: "I hope uzondi joiner ecaweni ngomso." Me: "ewe mama." Khaya: "khome ndisaya kuLakhe." he went to Lakhe and left me with mom. Ma: "my love. Ithini into ye- date." Me: "we are still discussing it mama." Me: "Lakhe wanted to do it overseas. Then have our honeymoon there with the family." Ma: "its a nice idea. It could work, but mna I think you should start nge traditional wedding. Then a few months down the line, xa ukhululile niyenze the white one." I kept getting re-confused by which wedding first. Me: "okay mama." Khaya: "we're on our way." Me: "bye tata." I walked them to the car. Khaya: "Ubuya nini?" There's the question I've been waiting for. Me: "aphe vekini tata." Khaya: "good. Stay well my princess." Me: "nihambe kakuhle tata. Love you." Ma: "we love you too mntanam." they got in their car and left. I went back to the house. Lakhe was sitting in the lounge with Sibuy and Sands. Sands: "I can feel my heart beat in my eyes." Lakhe: "uphambene wena. Xa ubungalindi ngoba?" Sibuy: "he didn't hear anything." Me: "who didn't hear anything?" they all looked at me. Sands: "Balo. He didn't want to listen when I told him he wasn't welcome here. Until Lakhe said it...what did you say anyway." Lakhe: "I told him to leave. Help me clean up. Uphu uDumi?" Dumi: "right here. Thanks for forgetting me outside.....Again." Sandile chuckled. Lakhe: "sorry bra." he helped him in. The kids followed with Rebecca. Dumi: "Spho, uzoba godusa ubase kumamabo?" Me: "uhm...I could." Dumi: "thank you." Me: "you're not coming?" Dumi: "No." he fixed his son's shirt. Dumi: "be a good boy uyeva? Take care of your little sister. I love you okay?" Lulo: "I love you too dad." Zimi: "love you toooo." she pouted her lips. Dumi picked her up and sat her on his lap. Dumi: "I love you my baby. Mwaah." Lakhe: "baby, cela uhambe nge Audi." Me: "oookay." I took Zimi's baby seat ndayofaka in the car. When they were done with their goodbyes I took them home. Ufika kwam kwa Zingi, there was a white C220 Benz parked outside. I took Zimi out her seat Lulo took her bag and we went to knock on the door. The door opened. A tall blue eyed man stood in front of me. He melted into a sweet smile. Me: "uhm..hi."

was in the right house? Man: "hey. How are you?" Me: "I'm looking for Zingi." she appeared behind him. Zingi: "hey peto....usamkhumbula uPeter?" what? Who was this? Me: "uh-uh." Zingi: "oh kanene. Peter, Spho, was in an accident a couple of months ago. She lost her memory." Peter: "oh? How come Dumi never told me?" Zingi: "I'm not sure." Me: "were you crying?" I walked into the house. Peter: "should I come back another time?" Zingi: "no Pete, its okay." who was Peter guys? I'm sure Zingi saw my confusion. Peter was in the kitchen ingathi uya-frysha sana. Me: "tshomi. Kwenzeka ntoni?" the kids ran to the bedroom beyodlala. Me: "who is this peter?" Zingi: "one of the lawyers at the firm." Me: "oh?" Zingi: "Dumi is asking for divorce." Me: "what!" Zingi: "yeah." Me: "he didn't mention this." Zingi: "You've seen him?" oh shit... Me: "uhm yeah...Lakhe kind of....brought him to the house." Zingi: "brought him to the house how? Like he's living with you?" Me: "for a temporary while." Zingi: "oh..." Me: "I thought you knew." Zingi: "how could I know Sphosenkosi?" hayi ke iworse. Me: "then what is Peter doing here?" I whispered. Zingi: "Peter is going to represent me in court." Me: "yima, so Peter who is Dumi's practice is representing you in court? Going against his employer? Do you think that's wise for his career? Okanye There's something happening between you?" Zingi: "There's nothing happening between us Spho. Peter is a good friend. He's what I can afford." Me: "I don't think its a good idea mna Zingi. This isn't going to help your case at all." Peter: "its what I've been telling her." he brought the tray with tea. raises eyebrow Peter: "I love you my friend. But....its difficult hey. Maybe I can find you someone good that can do this for you and charge you my account." Zingi: "I don't know anymore Pete. I just don't....I'm so numb." Peter: "it can't be easy at all. Have you tried talking to him?" Zingi: "no, he lives with Spho now." excuse me? Ingathi ndimxuthile bethuna. Peter: "maybe Spho can talk to him then." Me: "I did. He refuses to talk about it. He's having a really difficult time too." Peter: "well then..." he leaned back on the couch. Peter: "drink your chamomile tea ladies. I have to go home now. I'll call you when I'm home angel okay?" Zingi: "alright. Thanks Pete." Peter: "bye Spho. It was lovely seeing you again honey." Me: "bye Peter. And thank you." he walked out the car and I heard his car roar and speed off. Me: "tshomi." Zingi: "yeah?" she took her tea. Me: "please tell me the truth. What was Pete doing here?" Zingi: "he just came to offer his support and like I said, I'd asked him to represent me." Me: "are you guys an item?" Zingi: "Spho....Peter is gay." Me: "Oh." relief and embarrassment. Rembarasment. Me: "I'm sorry....I didn't imply that you're-" Zingi: "a whore? Spho, you're supposed to trust me. I'm your friend. I'd never lie to you. I couldve easily twisted the truth ngento yonke bendikhe ndak'xelela yona but I didn't. Because I know you're the one person that won't judge me, no matter what...." Me: "you're right. I'm sorry. I guess it explains the tea." Zingi:

"yeah...his boyfriend is a contemporary dancer. Into arts and stuff." Me: "nice..." Zingi: "I feel like my life is spiraling down a drain. I guess I deserve it." Me: "you don't... Both you and Dumi are guilty and suppose niyahlala phantsi nithethe. The thing is, we can't force that on him. Or you. And we can't do it for the both of you, we can only offer support." Zingi: "I understand tshomi shame. I wouldn't put you in an awkward position." Me: "is the baby okay..." Zingi: "yep... The little warrior survived." Me: "does that mean you're keeping him?" Zingi: "yeah... If I wasn't supposed to have him, God could've just taken him back but he didn't." Me: "I'm happy for you babe. Uhm....I should get going, Lakhe is going to start panicking, I'm not really used to driving in the dark. We'll have the tea another day vha?" Zingi: "that's okay babe. Unyansile, you just got back on the road.." I hugged her goodbye and went to my car. I drove back home. I was a bit upset that I lost my baby..someone I would've done everything in my power to protect. He just slipped from me and Zingi is having another chance. A fourth one actually. I was a little jealous but also glad that my friend came to her senses. At least now she'd take good care of the baby and herself. I was proud of that.

I arrived at hom ndafika as usual kunga light'wanga. I walked in the house kungekho mntu. Me: "Lakhe!" I put down the keys. Lakhe: "bedroom." he yelled back. I went to the room. He was lying on the bed with his laptop open. Me: "I'm going to take a quick shower yeva." I went to the bathroom. Lakhe: "babe?" Me: "yeah." I undressed in our bathroom. Lakhe: "uright?" Me: "I'm fine. Where's everyone." Lakhe: "playing that stupid game." I switched on the shower then tied up my hair ndaxiba shower cap yam. Lakhe: "hun?" he walked in the bathroom. Lakhe: "what's up? Unjan uZingi?" Me: "Dumi wants to divorce her." Lakhe: "damn...he never said anything to me." Me: "how could he Lakhe? Ubuphi iveki yonke?" Lakhe: "seriously? I'm being attacked again?" Me: "I just need the shower." Lakhe: "why not take a bubble bath, I'll put on the pulsating jets to massage your body while you're in the water." Me: "I just want to shower." he switched off the shower. Lakhe: "kwenzeka ntoni baby? Talk to me please?" Me: "its nothing." Lakhe: "I'm getting snapped at. Its definitely something. Ndibagxothile nje ooBabalo." Me: "its not that.... Zingi is pregnant." Lakhe: "oh?" Me: "yeah..." Lakhe: "I'm sorry my love." Me: "why are you sorry? You didn't make her pregnant did you?" Lakhe: "I know how you're feeling. You don't have to hide it from me." Me: "its just selfish of me." Lakhe: "you're human. Sometimes, you must let human feelings be. Don't feel unnecessarily guilty ngento ongena control yayo. It'll pass soon. Its better to deal with it now than later." Me: "okay." Lakhe: "let me run you your bath." he kissed my forehead and ran my bath for me. When he was done, I got in. Lakhe: "I'll get you your glass of wine my lady. Any preference?" Me: "sweet white please." Lakhe: "noted." he left the bedroom, walked through the lounge and took a bottle of wine. Lakhe: "Sandile!!!" Sands: "I'm right here. Yinton ingathi ndise Egypt. Geez." Lakhe: "thought you were still playing." Sands: "came to fetch some juice. What's up?" Lakhe: "I'm gonna need you to head up tomorrow midnight's express. I can't leave Spho's side for a while. She's not in the best shape emotionally." Sands: "of course.. No problem." Lakhe: "I'll update the others as soon as possible. I'll fill you in, in a minute. Just taking this to her." he poured a glass of wine. Sands: "uzondifumana apha." Lakhe walked to the bedroom and into the en suite bathroom. Lakhe: "my heart." Me: "thank you love." I took the glass. Lakhe: "if you need anything please shout." Me: "I will." he left the bathroom...

Sunday evening I was preparing dinner. I'd finally been able to convince Lakhe to go to church with me. After church, we'd gone for lunch with my parents and went to the mall for a bit of shopping. Ubuya kwethu wahlala kula couch asahleli kuyo nangoku. He was busy with his ipad. Dumi ebehleli apha endlini with Rebecca, Sibuy and Sands. Phof Sandile had left, as usual no one knew where he was. He came back just after we did. Lakhe: "baby." he hugged my back. Me: "uyafeketha ke wena." Lakhe: "ndiright wethu. Uggqiba nini? Let me help you." Me: "no baby, I got this. Go sit." Lakhe: "I'm bored." Me: "iya ku

Dumi kaloku." Lakhe: "he's exercising." Me: "Uphi uSandile?" Lakhe: "he's being nasty. I can't sit with him." Me: "I'm not even sure what that means. Awulambanga?" he shook his head. Me: "you didn't eat lunch. You just had juice." Lakhe: "you know me and outside food." Me: "now that you're here. We can discuss our date." Lakhe: "next week." Me: "what's happening next week?" Lakhe: "let's do it next Saturday." Me: "do what ngoku Masilakhe?" Lakhe: "let's get married Saturday." Me: "why unje? Do you know or understand what planning needs to be done for a wedding? Besides, umama says let's start with the traditional and then in a few months senze white wedding." Lakhe: "andithi uNext week can be our traditional?" Me: "no, its too soon." Lakhe: "the following Saturday then. Love, I really don't want a big thing ne? Just my family and yours. Senze sigqibe iphele into bithethwa." Me: "you make as though this is not a big deal." Lakhe: "baby, our life together is a big deal. You being my wife is a big deal. A little celebration of one day to please other people isn't." Me: "I don't have the same thoughts." Lakhe: "I understand that sthandwasam." Me: "I just thought this day would mean something to you." Lakhe: "why do you think I want it sooner? I can't wait to make you my wife Sphe. As much as I'm not into the whole celebration, I just want you to be happy and be mine. Qha. Hey? Why are you so upset with me?" he kissed my cheek. Me: "stop.." Lakhe: "stop what?" I giggled. Me: "khandiyeke man." Lakhe: "Andifuni tshi." Me: "Lakhe, uzonditshisa ngembiza." Lakhe: "uzobalilahla lam ok'salayo." Me: "you mad." I laughed. He stayed with me in the kitchen until I finished cooking. We covered the plates because Sibule and Dumi were still busy with that game kwakhona. Sandile wasn't hungry ehleli noBoogie wakhe. Lakhe took his plate to the bedroom ke yena. I poured myself juice ndagquma nokwam going to the bedroom after him. He ate his supper eyawa busy nale ipad. Me: "awusoze uhluthi ujongene nalonto." Lakhe: "sendihluthi nje baby. This was amazing." Me: "awukagqibi." he put the plate aside and kissed me. Me: "baby?" I put down the glass. Me: "and now?" Lakhe: "I missed you." he was now on top of me looking into my eyes. Me: "I missed you too I guess.... Ufunda undenza ntoni?" he smiled. Lakhe: "nothing...just want to kiss you qha uyathanda uthetha." I grabbed his face and kissed his lips. Me: "I love you. When I yell at you its because awuva and I want you to do right, not because I don't like you. You're my love. Andifuni tu ucinge andik'hoyi or andikuthandi." Lakhe: "awww...umntuwam bethuna...you really mean that baby?" he kissed my cheek and ear. Me: "yes I do baby. Wenzanton?" Lakhe: "ndikvisa kamandi." Me: "I'm perfectly fine when you're sitting next to me baby." he looked at me pleadingly. Me: "come, let's watch TV." if he thinks he's getting it after this entire week of pushing me to the side, he hasn't seen Satan yet. Lakhe: "sungcola baby." Me: "iza love, kuzodlala uDate my family." Lakhe: "baby..." Me: "come sthandwa sentliziyo yam." Lakhe: "you are so mean." he grumbled ezohlala ecamkwam. He took the remote. Lakhe: "akadlali date my family namhlanje." he changed the channel to Ignition. Really? Why you being petty? Lol. I fit in everywhere mna nakwezi moto azifakileyo akhonto. I leaned on his chest ndabukela TV. I received a facetime call ingu Fez. Lakhe: "usuke ke kum sisi." Me: "khayeke uchuku." Lakhe: "liqalwa Nguwe uchuku. Nako undivimba ice cream yam. Mxim." Me: "uqumbile?" Lakhe: "andiqumbanga wethu." I sent a message that I was busy. Me: "babe?" Lakhe: "hm?" Me: "uyamazi uPeter from Dumi's firm?" Lakhe: "yes. I met him once I think." Me: "is he gay?" Lakhe: "I don't know." Me: "ndifike epha endlin ka Zingi. She wants him to represent her in court." Lakhe: "I thought she didn't want the divorce." Me: "she doesn't. I think she's genuinely sorry." Lakhe: "you have such a soft heart. Undenza i-worry." Me: "ndizoyeka ukubalisela fillet yam ke mna." Lakhe: "oh please, Uthi yi fillet Eli phiko lomileyo undibalisela lona?" Me: "and I'm the mean one." Lakhe: "did you know ngubani utata womntana ka Bianca?" Me: "the receptionist Bianca?" Lakhe: "ewe." Me: "ngubani?" Lakhe: "take a guess." Me: "tell me!" Lakhe: "guess!" Me: "hayi man Lakhe. I don't know." Lakhe: "dude its Harold." Me: "you're lying." Lakhe: "sharp ke." Me: "Kuthen une lies?" Lakhe: "why would I lie? What reason would I have to lie?" Me: "isn't Harold married?" Lakhe: "yep." Me: "oh my goodness! Uyivephi wena?" Lakhe: "the horse's mouth obviously.... He came to my office some time this week esithi usengxakini and needs help." Lakhe: "I thought he meant financially so naturally ndibuze how much he needs-" Me: "naturally huh?" Lakhe: "let me be. So he says he doesn't need cash, he needs advice. I put on my Dr Phil swag ndibuze what's up. Wathi he regrets what he has done to his family and akayazi uzobaxelela njani, xandibuza intoni, waza nale bomb." Me: "Yoh!! And then what?" Lakhe: "hayi ndiske ndabhidwa nam. What was I to say? I asked him yena ufuna Uthini wathi he doesn't want to lose his wife, nothing else matters to him." Me: "what about Bianca?" Lakhe: "why do you think he's relocating to Australia?" I gasped. Lakhe: "exactly." Sands: "anihlebi hehha." he walked in. The door was already half open. Lakhe: "uqale nini ubaliphela Sandile? Wangena ungabizwanga? What you want?" Sands: "I would swear awundifun apha yazi. Ndizothi enkosi ku Spho nge supper. I wouldve helped qha bendiyolungisa izinto zomzi wam." Me: "unomzi na?" Sands: "uyayazi nje." he winked. I laughed. Lakhe: "I don't get it." Sands: "bhuti, ndizok'xelela ba ndiphumile ne?" Lakhe: "express?" Sands: "ja." Lakhe: "update me. Keep your phone on." Sands: "sure thing. Goodbye mntase. Ndizobuya late." Me: "bye Sands." he walked out. Me: "what's express?" Lakhe: "zezindawo zakhe azithandayo." Me: "ndisamamele Harold. Uzothini ngo Bianca? She's heavily pregnant." Lakhe: "Uthi kaloku wamnika Mali for abortion, instead yena wayokwenza baby shower." I laughed hysterically. Lakhe: "heee. Awazi nto wena. He doesn't want to be involved at all. Akafuni nova niks. Qha usengxakini because she's threatening to come out ngalento yonke. And you know what that means." Me: "shame man...." Lakhe: "I just hope she doesn't take it further, this all happened ndingekho, Harold is only part time with us, matter of fact uyahamba month end. Ingaske ahambe ngomso lo usayo for Le piece. I don't need a sexual harassment scandal for my company." Me: "poor Bianca." Lakhe: "what poor Bianca? She was happy to sleep with him, she was never forced." Me: "she can't be alone kule pregnancy though. Why didn't he use protection kodwa he's married?" Lakhe: "why didn't she ask for it kodwa she knows he's married and akahlabi? Its a two way thing this. No blaming of anyone but both parties." Me: "so you think its right that he leaves her like this?" Lakhe: "he gave her an option out this situation. She decided to throw a party. Athini kengoku yena Harold? He made it clear akafun mntana." Me: "so you support abortion?" Lakhe: "how did this jump from Harold to me ? Ndenzeni mna?" Me: "its a question?" Lakhe: "it depends babe. Yi-choice yomntu I suppose. Mna, personally I wouldn't force umntu ondim'mithisileyo to have an abortion, neither would I stand in her way if ufuna ukuyenza. Choice yakhe. Except you though, you don't have a choice, izogcwala lendlu ngabantwana bam." Me: "and Harold's actions? Umithisa etshatile?" Lakhe: "that I don't support. Uyayazi nawe lonto." Me: "is there any positive marriages around us?" Lakhe: "yeah. Your parents." Me: "really?" Lakhe: "they're amazing babe. Leave your mother's mistakes aside." Me: "and your parents?" Lakhe: "that is an icy marriage. I don't even wanna get into it." Me: "let me check on Dumi noSibu." Lakhe: "Sibu umke noSandile." I went to the game room. Me: "you okay there?" Dumi: "yeah, I just call Beks, she's taking me to bed soon." Me: "Dumi..." Dumi: "I don't want to hear what she said." he already knew what I wanted to say. Me: "can we talk ngomso? Please?" Dumi: "fine." Me: "goodnight vha?" Rebecca came in. Dumi: "goodnight Spho." I went back to my room. Lakhe and I spent hours watching movies. He kept checking his phone and then his ipad. Me: "everything okay?" Lakhe: "yeah." I could see he was panicking qha I didn't want to irritate him. Finally his phone rang, I had dozed off a bit ndothuka and checked the time. It was a little after midnight. Lakhe: "what the hell is going on there! Kutheni icinyiwe phone ka Sandile when I specifically told him to keep it on? Where is he?" he sat up. Lakhe: "Sibulele... Where is he?" I was fully awake now. Lakhe: "what?" his voice almost a whisper ingathi utyhafile. He hung up his phone. Me: "is there a problem love?" he covered his face with both hands. Me: "baby?" I sat up and crawled to his side. Lakhe: "Sandile..." Me: "Utheni uSandile?" Lakhe: "he got shot Sphosenkosi."

Lakhe dressed quick and paced up and down the passage. I also got dressed and went to him. Me: "where are they now?" he looked at the gate while it opened. Lakhe: "here." Me: "Masilakhe, we must call an ambulance." Lakhe: "no. No ambulance." he opened the door and rushed to the car. I waited inside the house. Panicking. Rebecca came out her room kanye xa uLakhe engena endlini with Sandile and Sibu. They were filled with blood. Sandile looked weak but he was still singing esiwa enjalo. Becca: "what happened?" Sands: "No hosp....ital" Me: "Sandile you need to go to the hospital." Lakhe: "can you fix him Beks?" Becca: "let's see. Spho can I have a blanket quick?" I ran to the spare room and grabbed a blanket yabekwa phantsi. They put Sandile on it and Becca tore his clothes to expose the wound. Becca: "my first aid kit." Lakhe brought it to her. Becca: "I need warm water. I went to the kitchen, Sibu brought towels. Sands: "Spho..." Lakhe: "Spho!!" I was in the kitchen pouring the jug with warm water from the tap. Me: "I'm almost done. Ndiyeza." I went back with the jug full of water. Sands: "Spho.." Me: "hey...." Sands: "ulapha mntase." Me: "I'm here.." Sands: "I can't hold..." Me: "No! Sandile. You need to be stronger than that! Stay awake." Sands: "callhim..." Me: "Sandile.." Sands: "Philani." he closed his eyes. Becca: "we need to take him to the hospital, he needs surgery." Lakhe: "Beks there must be a way. Please." Me: "wait..." they all looked at me. Sibu: "what is it?" Me: "we were in hospital, when Dumi had an accident." Lakhe: "yes and?" Me: "iphi phone ka Sandile!" Sibu: "nantsi." he gave it to me. Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi?" I took Sandile's finger and unlocked the phone. Me: "In hospital he said he had a contact, if I needed any help, he would call someone to organize me something inside the hospital to get a job done. This has to be Philani." I found the contact and dialed the number. It rang to voicemail. Lakhe: "are you sure about this?" I dialed it again. Me: "I hope so." the call was answered. Phila: "Saida?" Me: "hi, Philani? This is Sandile's sister in law. Ndicela ubuza if you're at the hospital?" Phila: "uhm..yeah, I'm doing night shift. Why?" Me: "we need your help. Sandile got shot." Phila: "and you need a private way inside an operation room?" Me: "Yes! Please help-" Phila: "okay. Look. Bring him to the ungerground parking lot, I'll direct you to which space and will take it from there. Be here in under 15 minutes. That's the only free time I can spare." Me: "done." I hung up. Lakhe: "let's go." they carried him to the car. Me: "ngubani ozoshiyeka noDumi?" Sibu: "I will. You guys can go." Lakhe: "Spho, drive." Becca helped Lakhe with Sandile and I drove us to the hospital. Lakhe: "is he going to make it?" Becca: "he has a very light pulse. Let's just pray that we arrive on time." I pressed a little harder on the accelerator. Lakhe: "Sands? Come on brother, vuka fondini. Please don't do this to me awti yam..." I was shaking and praying that he makes it. For Lakhe's sake. I finally made it into the underground parking, Lakhe reading the instructions from the text Philani sent ndamisa. Philani was already waiting for us, he threw away his cigarette, blew the smoke out his nose and mouth walking to our car. Me: "hi Phila. Here he is." Phila whistled once only and two other guys appeared with a stretcher. They put Sandile on it and covered him with a white sheet. Lakhe: "what the hell is happening!!!" Phila: "its the only way I can pull him inside. Wait in the caf. I'll update you soon after the op." Becca: "I'm coming with you." they left together. Lakhe leaned on the car.

Me: "baby..." I hugged him. Me: "he's going to be okay." Lakhe: "thank you Spho... You're the only person that knew him well enough to save his life. I don't even know lo Philani. I could've just lost my brother because andithethi naye and I don't understand him like you do." Me: "suzi stresser ngalonto Lakhe, right now he needs you to be strong. You have another chance to speak to him about anything and everything. You know Sandile loves you." Lakhe: "I know." Me: "masambe babe....let's get you something to hold you up." we went to the caf and waited as told.

It was only before 6am when Philani came to us. This dude really didn't have emotion at all. Just a blank expression and a calm walk. Lakhe: "where is he?" he stood up. I was on my feet. Philani: "recovering from surgery. He's going to be fine. Can only keep him here for today and night. Tomorrow you'll have to take him home." Me: "can we see him please?" Philani: "yeah sure. Two minutes." Me: "by the way, I'm Spho, sorry I didn't get to introduce myself." Philani: "I know who you are. And Lakhe? Nice. Come this way." Lakhe: "how do you know?" Philani: "he told me. Some weeks ago." he popped chewing gum in his mouth sayongena kwi room where he kept Sandile. Lakhe: "and the machines?" Phila: "he'll be out of them in a few hours. Just so long as he's relaxed. I'll be back in a couple of minutes when I knock off." Lakhe: "xa uzohamba uzojongwa ngubani kengoku?" Philani: "a friend of mine. He knows him. He'll be in good hands." waphuma. Lakhe: "no wonder evana noSandile lo. Bayafana. Akaboni nto i-serious at all. He's not even shocked that itshomakhe is shot." Me: "uyambona nawe? I wonder why he's kept a secret though." Lakhe sat down. Lakhe: "undothusile mfo. I thought I'd lost you." I went out the room to give him space. Philani was in a distance, talking to another guy and Becca. She looked up at me and walked toward me. Becca: "hey.." Me: "hi..." Becca: "Sandile is strong, he's going to be alright." Me: "I know." I looked at her. Me: "I thought you only specialized in physiotherapy." Becca: "no, not only that." Me: "and you just happened to be awake last night." she kept quiet. Lakhe came out the room. Lakhe: "masambe baby. Sizobuya late." Becca: "I'll stay here until he wakes up." Me: "and what about Dumi?" Becca: "Sibu's got him. He knows what to do." I walked to the car. Something was up ngalo sisi. I don't know what it is but it was something. I got in the car's passenger seat. Lakhe got in to drive and we went home. Lakhe: "Spho..." Me: "what happened?" Lakhe: "I don't know. I was with you the whole time njena." Me: "the way you were panicking all night makes it seem like you knew something was happening. As if you knew where he was." Lakhe: "Spho, I don't know what happened. I just.....felt something was wrong when he didn't respond." Me: "and Becca? She was just awake waiting for someone to collapse?" Lakhe: "Becca is a light sleeper kuba eyi nurse. Ibizoba funny mos, yena angavuki kodwa she has a responsibility 24/7." Me: "why didn't you want to go to the hospital?" Lakhe: "the last thing I need right now is to be asked a whole bunch of questions as if ndim lo udubule uSandile. I'm going to fix this myself. Hospitals draw attention and unnecessary chaos. I don't need that right now." Me: "your brother could've died!!" Lakhe: "but he didn't. Umvile mos uthe akasifun isbhedlele." Me: "but why! Is he doing something illegal dan?" Lakhe: "when Sandile is awake, do best and bomb him with these questions. I don't have time for this." the rest of the drive home was in complete silence. He stopped in front of our gate and opened it, driving in. He parked the car in the drive way ndahluka ndayongena endlini. Sibu had made Dumi his porridge behleli in the lounge watching TV. Dumi: "how is he?" Me: "fine." ndayongena eroomin to our bathroom Ndangena kwi shower. After my shower, ndisiyothambisa. Lakhe was sitting on the bed. Lakhe: "baby." Me: "Masilakhe." Lakhe: "please look at me." I looked at him. Me: "so you have time now?" Lakhe: "Spho kodwa you can't expect me to be 100% when I almost just lost my little brother. All I needed was a little support from you, the questions later. Instead, ndisazama ulungisa intliziyo back in its place and you're attacking me." Me: "you're right...I'm sorry." Lakhe: "I'm going to find out what happened... Alright? Just that right now, our main focus should be his recovery." Me: "I'll go fix his room for when he comes back tomorrow." Lakhe: "yiyeke baby. He's going to freak out if anyone touches anything pha." Me: "ndimfownele uKhanya?" Lakhe: "rather not. The less stressed people, the better. Uya emsebenzini?" Me: "yes." Lakhe: "okay, ndizocela undingenele meeting zam, I'm gonna be home all day." Me: "okay. I'll get dressed." I went to the closet to look for something to wear. I took out my maroon tight-fitting bandage dress. It had long sleeves, a V neck and puffed shoulders. The material being suede. I wore it with the black Christian Louboutin pump. Lakhe: "asizokuwisa esis'hlangu?" Me: "since when?" I looked for my black bag. Me: "what times are your meetings?" Lakhe: "I emailed you my schedule just now. Kuzofuneka usebenzele kwi office yam." Me: "sure thing." I went to do my hair and make up. Lakhe: "thank you baby." I could feel him staring. Trying to read my emotion. Ugqiba kwam ndathatha my work bag and hand bag. Me: "I'll see you later vha." Lakhe: "okay." I kissed his cheek staining it with red lipstick. Me: "bye." I walked out.

Lakhe sat in the closet after his shower. He picked out his black G Star jeans and a plain black t shirt with all black Maison Margiela sneakers, getting dressed. Sibú knocked on the bedroom door. Lakhe: "ngena." Sibú stepped in. Lakhe: "I'm waiting." Sibú stared at him. Lakhe: "Sibulele." Sibú: "bhuti, they came out of nowhere." Lakhe: "who!" Sibú: "the niggas that attacked us! We were waiting at our spot for midnight, our shipment arrived and we started moving the weight off. They got there exactly at that moment and jacked us." Lakhe: "Sibulele. We've never been robbed before. Why kuzoqalwa ngoku?" Sibú: "bhuti...I don't know." Lakhe: "get ready, we're leaving in 10 minutes. Sihamba nge hired yakho." Sibú: "There's still Sandile's blood in it." Lakhe: "then find me a car Sibulele." Sibú: "uDumi bhu-" Lakhe: "uzom'laysha phe motweni Sibulele man!!" Sibú hurried out the room. After 30 minutes, they met outside, a hired car was brought to the house by Tololo. Dumi in the passenger seat, Lakhe at the back and Sibú driving. Dumi: "so where we off to. Boys day out?" Lakhe: "you better keep your mouth shut." he unlocked his ipad. Dumi: "but siyaphi though?" Sibú: "not now Dumi." he drove the car out the yard. Sibú: "bhuti." Lakhe: "same spot." Sibú: "sure." he kept quiet and continued on the road. Sibú: "bhuti...do you think maybe its this new guy?" Lakhe kept quiet. Sibú understood not to question after silence. Dumi: "what's happening?" he whispered. Sibú looked at him and shook his head quickly. He parked the car where it was the previous time. Lakhe: "phumani." Dumi: "I think I'll stay in the car." Lakhe: "then you better pray to God you're invisible." Dumi swallowed. Lakhe walked to the building, followed by Sibú. The same escort took them to a different private room downstairs. Sergio, Frank, Kolo and Bull cloak had arrived earlier. Serge: "G." he nodded. Lakhe: "where is he." he hissed. Serge: "on his way boss." he trembled. The room was dead silent for a full 10 minutes waiting on the last remaining member. Black Stallion arrived. BS: "members." he greeted, a little out of breath. Everyone stared back at him. BS: "I'm sorry I'm late. I just came from Uitenhage. Guys you can't just say you want to meet someone in 10 minutes not regarding where they actually are. Seriously. What did I miss?" Lakhe: "Sergio." Serge went to Black and grabbed him, pulling both his arms behind his back. BS: "what's happening?" Lakhe: "what the hell did you do." BS: "nothing!!!" Lakhe: "Black Stallion. I don't repeat myself." BS: "bro-" Lakhe: "I'm not your fucking bro." BS: "I swear I didn't do anything." Lakhe: "for the first time ever since I started my business, I've never been robbed. In three continents. Who the fuck do you think you are?" BS: "Lucky, I swear to God, I know nothing about what happened!!!" Lakhe: "do you know what I do to snitches Black?" BS: "I don't want to....please....." Lakhe: "this is your last chance." he took a container full of paraffin and a lighter. BS: "Lucky, I just arrived here, why would I mess it up like this? I promise to God, I will find out whoever did this and bring them to you!!" Lakhe: "you have 24 hours. And if you fucking dare pull a runner on me. I will look for you. I will find you and feed your flesh to the soil. Do you understand me?" BS: "y-yes sir." Lakhe: "Sergio. Go with him. I want whoever did this by this time tomorrow and I'm not fucking playing with neither of you." Serge: "sure G." he dragged Black out. Lakhe: "how much did we lose." Kolo: "everything." Frank: "how is Sands doing." Lakhe: "Kolo, get hold of Sepua and inform him of the bust. We have to scrape from the bottom like peasants now. Nxx!" Kolo: "yes boss." Lakhe: "meeting adjourned. Sibuh, let's go." he walked to the car. Lakhe: "ugoduka nini Sibulele." Sibuh: "I was thinking of moving here bhuti. Still unsure." Lakhe: "and your job back in Durban?" Sibuh: "maybe Accounting isn't for me." Lakhe: "you know you have to keep a job to be part of the group. We can't draw unnecessary attention by being unemployed and wealthy." he got in the car. Lakhe: "make a decision if you're moving here or not. Whichever choice you make must be beneficial for you." Sibuh started the car. Sibuh: "ndiyakuva bhuti. Home?" Lakhe: "no...I want you to follow Frank." Sibuh: "now-" Lakhe: "undive ndithintitha Sibulele?" Sibuh: "No sir." he lowered down Dumih's seat and his own. Slowly tailing Frank's car.....

I arrived home in the evening around 6pm from work. When people say Mondays are difficult, I absolutely agree. Today just showed me extreme flames. Its as though I had to crawl out the building barely alive. I took my shoes off when I entered the front door. Sibuh was helping Dumih exercise bebukelwe ngu Boogie. Shame the poor thing was laying on his tummy, looking upset. Me: "molweni." I picked him up, brushing his fur. He rubbed his face against my suede dress. Sibuh: "hey." Dumih: "hi Spho. How was work?" Me: "I don't wanna go back there." he laughed. Sibuh: "can't be that bad." Me: "it is. My head is spinning. I think I might just collapse. Uphih uLakhe?" Sibuh: "making supper." I went to the kitchen. Me: "my house husband." Lakhe: "my hard working wife." he kissed my head. Lakhe: "so I heard great reviews on how well you managed today." Me: "I was struggling throughout the whole day." Lakhe: "you did well baby." Me: "I tried calling you." Lakhe: "I don't even know where my phone is." Me: "has Boogie been fed? He looks hungry." Lakhe: "hayih inoba ufuna uncanca ibele kengoku. Kunih esitya? Yuh." Me: "I need to take a bath. Sizoya nih kuh Sandile?" Lakhe: "you don't have to go baby xa udiniwe. I'm just going to check on him. He'll be back ksasa. You've been on your feet since Saturday, its time for you to relax." Me: "okay. Mandiyovasa ke." I went to the bathroom to take a bath. While I was in the tub, the puppy was on the fluffy mat scratching his back. He started sniffing and rolling around. Then followed his nose to the bin under the sink. He couldn't reach up to the open because he was lacking height. Dogs just like rubbish and being messy. But then he started making a noise. Me: "Boogie, yinton ngoku." he looked at me pleadingly. Me: "what's in there? Its just paper baby. Uzomoshwa wena." he turned back trying to knock it over. Can't even have a peaceful bath in this house. I got up ndathatha lomgqomo and put it as it is on top of the sink. Me: "its either uzongena apha emanzini sivase okanye ulale apho." he wagged his little tail. After my bath, I got out ndayonxiba a short pajama and a long gown after moisturizing my body. Me: "let's go." he followed after me to the kitchen. Sibuy and Dumiy were watching TV quietly. I passed on to the kitchen. Lakhe: "baby...suppose you're resting your feet bonanje. Why are you here ungenxibanga zihlangu?" Me: "the tiles are heated Lakhe. Why are you trying to get rid of me so hard?" Lakhe: "hayi not mna. Supper is almost ready." he kissed me full on the lips and turned back to the stove. Me: "what were you doing today?" Lakhe: "nothing much. Just watching TV." Me: "what did you watch all day?" Lakhe: "you know my channels babes. Wanted to exhaust them before Sandile is back." Me: "okay." I went to the lounge. Me: "so what have you guys been up to all day?" perks of having a gigantic house was, if you're in the lounge, you don't hear a thing from the kitchen. Sibuy: "erh....we uhm, went out. To the mall." Dumiy: "yeah." nervous and unsure. Me: "really? Nihamba noyi two qha?" Sibuy: "we..." he looked at the kitchen entrance. Sibuy: "no.....yes." then back at me. I looked behind me. Nothing. Something was going on here. Me: "Dumiy?" he looked at me as if he was about to explode. Me: "did you have fun today. At the mall?" he nodded. Me: "nyani?" Dumiy: "yeah." Me: "remember, we were going to talk? Last night?" he nodded. I sat next to him. Me: "Zingi says you want a divorce....you never told me this." Dumiy: "we're not working out Spho. There's too many issues that have built up over the years and I can't change them." Me: "Dumiy uZingi ngumama wabantwana bakho. You love her." Dumiy: "yes, but...things have changed. We're not compatible any more. Not the way we used to be and its never going back to that." Me: "can you at least please talk to her? She's suffering pha, all by herself. The least you could do is talk." Dumiy: "I'm not gonna talk to her." Me: "which mall did you go to?" Dumiy:

"Baywes-" Sibuy: "Greenacres." and there we have it. A LIE! I got up and went to the bedroom.

Masilakhe walked out the kitchen to the lounge after Spho went to the bedroom. He checked the passage before he spoke. Lakhe: "what is wrong with you two! You better man the fuck up. Man up mani! Why you squibbling like little boys?" Dummi: "I can't lie!" Lakhe: "You're a lawyer fuck damn it! You're used to this! Wena? What's your problem?" Sibuh: "I'm scared of her." Dummi: "Lakhe this is crazy. Why are you doing this!" Lakhe: "ask me one more time and remember who cooks your dinner." Dummi held on to his wheelchair. Lakhe: "is that car clean Sibuh?" Sibuh: "No sir-" Lakhe: "ilinde bani perhaps?" Sibuh got up and went to the car outside. Lakhe looked at Dummi. Lakhe: "you better learn how to handle yourself unless you want to dangle upside down on an electricity pole." he walked to the bedroom. Lakhe: "my heart." I looked at him from the bed. He smiled sweetly. Lakhe: "supper is ready. Ndikuphathele or uzotyela lounge?" Me: "ndiyenza baby. Ukhamba nini ukuya kuSandile?" Lakhe: "after dinner. I'm taking these two with me." Me: "why?" Lakhe: "Sibuh to drive and Dummi needs assistance ixesha elininzi. I don't want him to bother you." Me: "I don't mind. He's my friend." Lakhe: "he's a man, and often needs to go to the toilet to relieve himself. I don't think his self esteem can handle you doing it for him. He's my responsibility anyway, it's fine." Me: "if I didn't know any better I'd say you 3 were avoiding me." he tried to hide a smile. Lakhe: "that's not true." Me: "kwenzeka ntoni Lakhe?" Lakhe: "nothing baby. Why u-curious kangaka? It's like you don't trust me at all." Me: "it's just that Dummi and Sibuh are acting weird. Bathi they were at the mall and they're talking about two different malls." Lakhe: "maybe they went to both." Me: "but then Sibuh wasn't sure if bebehamba together or with anyone else." Lakhe: "who knows what's going on with those two? They often spend an entire day bedlala la play station. They don't even remember what day it is." he went to the bathroom. Lakhe: "why is the bin in the sink?" Me: "Boogie was trying to sniff it and knock it down so ndayisusa phambi kwakhe." Lakhe: "oh." I got up and we went to the dining area for dinner. It was quiet during the meal, Dummi wasn't eating. He just picked at his food. Me: "Dummi? Is there anything wrong?" he shook his head looking at Lakhe then back at his food. Me: "awulambanga?" he shook his head. Me: "would you like a sandwich instead?" he nodded. Lakhe: "I'll make it for-" Dummi: "No." Me: "it's okay. I'll do it." I went to the kitchen ndamenzela a grilled cheese sandwich. When I went back to the dining area I could sense heavy tension. Lakhe: "too spicy Damian?" Dummi: "yeah..." Lakhe: "I'm sorry. Sibuh wena uright?" Sibuh: "I'm okay." Me: "ina Dummi." he smiled and happily ate his sandwich. Dummi: "thank you Spho." after dinner I packed the dishes into their machine. The dudes got ready to leave for the hospital. Ndanxibisa Dummi his jacket because it was late and hospitals were cold. Sibuh pushed Dummi's wheelchair out the house wayomfaka emotweni. Lakhe: "sizobuya kwangoku babes." Me:

"wait...umphakele uSandile?" Lakhe: "no. We don't even know if he's awake yet." Me: "take him some food, just in case." ndaphaka kwi plastic container and gave it to him. Lakhe: "thanks my love." he kissed me and walked out.

On the way to the hospital, everyone was quiet in the car. Dumi tried to regulate his breathing in quick intervals and held it in everytime the car stopped at an intersection. Lakhe: "what is it." he broke the silence. Not one of them dared to answer. Lakhe: "ndinyile? Kuthen ndingaphenduleki?" Sibu: "no bhuti akhonto." Lakhe: "Dumisani. Out with it." Dumi: "its nothing." Lakhe: "you want to ask me. Ask now or forever hold your peace. But if you ask, there's no turning back for you. So what's it gonna be?" Dumi looked at Sibul.

Sibulele stared ahead at the road without flinching a muscle. He'd been in this situation before. With Sandile in the driving seat and him on the passenger after fetching Lakhe from work. He knew the best decision was to keep quiet but he'd also wanted to know what exactly was going on. What was this secret code they used to communicate? Why were they so rich? Dumi had one of two choices, either way, whichever choice it was, his life would never be the same again. Lakhe: "Dumisani." Dumi: "I don't want to know anything. Its okay." Good decision, thought Sibul. Lakhe continued clicking on his iPad. Lakhe: "well, you don't really have a choice now that you live with us. Sooner or later, you'll have to grow some horns." Sibulele arrived at the hospital. Lakhe: "342. Nizondifumana phambili." he got out the car, walking inside the building. Dumi: "Sibu. What's going on? Why is Lakhe like this?" Sibul: "don't worry about Lakhe being like this. He is stressed because his brother got shot. Wena, pray and hope that Sandile wakes the hell up because he's the only person that can get you out of this trap with Lakhe. If you thought Sandile was a demon, you clearly haven't seen his brother who is the actual Satan. Pray Sandile is awake. That's all I'm saying." Dumi: "Sandile doesn't like me!" Sibul: "Sandile doesn't like anyone. The better thing about him is that he doesn't need to like you, in order to help you." Dumi: "I feel like that's a trap." Sibul: "of course it is! Where the fuck do you think you are? Ucimba ungu Alice in Wonderland? Obviously, you're gonna owe him big time. And until you pay your debt, he will own you." Dumi: "Sibu, I don't want to be part of any of this mna!" Sibul: "do you think I wanted to be? There's very little I can do for you now. Thandaza qha wena uSandile avuke." Dumi: "I thought he was coming home tomorrow." Sibul: "that's if he makes it off the machines." Dumi: "maybe I should just move out the country." Sibul: "that's literally the worst thing you can do for yourself at this point." Dumi: "but kwenzeka ntoni though?" Sibul: "I can't tell you Dumisani." Dumi: "so now my fate rests on Sandile's consciousness." Sibu: "precisely." he got out the car, taking out the wheelchair and helping Dumi on it. They locked the car and went up to room 342. Dumi: "what if he doesn't wake?" Sibu: "he will. I'm sure he will." Dumi: "what did I do wrong?" Sibu: "Dumi, calm down okay? Its not like you're gonna die.....Yet." Dumi: "why do you say things like that!" Sibu: "relax." he wheeled him to 342. Standing by the door, Dumi took a deep breath and opened. They entered. Lakhe was sitting next to the bed on a lone chair, he looked up at them then leered his eyes back to the floor. The machine still beeped. Dumi looked at Sibu. His heart skipped a beat. Sandile's eyes were shut closed. Judging from Lakhe's expression Lakhe: "He hasn't woken up."

I was in bed waiting for Lakhe to come back from the hospital and when I least expected him, he walked in. I looked at him and put down my iPad. He closed the door behind him slowly and closed his eyes. His bottom lip quivering and he slid down the door. I jumped up immediately and ran to him. He sat on the floor shaking. I hugged him, brushing his head. I didn't want to even think about this. Was Sandile gone? He can't be. Me: "its okay baby...Shhh...." ebengathi unesngqala and struggled breathing. He held on to my gown then broke down. My entire heart broke into pieces. I held back my own tears and kissed his head. Me: "uxolo sthandwasam..." was all I could mutter. Lakhe: "he can't leave me!!!" he cried. I was honestly getting weaker by the second but still held him tight. My heart wasn't coping at all. Lakhe: "he just.....my baby brother Spho." I wiped his tears, rocking him back and forth. We sat against the door, listening to his silent sobs, his body shaking. Me: "Nkosi ongaMandla onke.... Nanku unyanakho, mnike ithemba umnike amadla. As You took our pain and bore our sufferings, you can sure do in this moment as we seek your guidance. Siyakwazi Bawo wethu awohlulwa nto kulomhlaba siphila kuwo Thixo. Sithembele kuwe utshize ngegazi lakho Nkosi enofefe. Thethelela abantwana bakho Somandla. Egameni lika Yesu, uNyana kunye nawo uMoya Oyingcwele. Amen." he stayed quietly on my lap. At least he'd stopped crying. I felt a little stronger than before. Lakhe: "why is he not responding." Me: "baby, sometimes it takes a little longer." Lakhe: "Sandile isn't responding. He isn't waking. They don't think he's gonna wake." Me: "miracles do happen. We just have to stick to prayer and trust in the Lord." Lakhe: "how can I trust someone I've never seen." Me: "because if your brain was just a random collection of chemicals formed by chance, how can you trust your own reasoning processes and thoughts that you think? The God that I worship, isn't limited by space or matter. He's an infinite God. How else would we be able to have such emotions as love, anger, hatred, envy? If you can reason all that without any kind of spiritual being within us.....I don't think we would be the way we are. Otherwise dogs would talk and be CEO's as well. Cows would be driving our transportation and cats teaching our children at schools. Masilakhe. Believe in God and what He can do. He created all of what we are, have and have the potential to be. I can't put my feelings into immediate sentenced words, all I can is, Only God has the power to show you, who's God." he kept quiet. Lakhe: "can I ask God to wake my brother from that coma?" Me: "you can ask God anything my love." he sat up. I went to the bathroom to fetch a damp cloth to clear his face. Me: "come to bed baby." I helped him up and he went to bed. Just as he was. I had to start by taking off the shoes, his pants, the jacket ndamshiya with only underwear, t shirt and socks. He got into bed I went in next to him and cuddled him. Me: "do you need something to sleep?" Lakhe: "no...I'm okay. Don't want to get used to drugs again." Me: "I was talking about sleeping pills. What drugs are you talking about?" Lakhe: "pills are drugs. Which is why you're given a dosage for them. If you take more than that then they have the potential of harming your wellbeing. Sleeping pills, to me, qualify as drugs." Me: "okay baby. Not even warm milk?" Lakhe: "hm.hm..." he declined and held onto me.

Tuesday morning. I was woken up by a phone ringing. It actually startled me because I'm not sure when I'd fallen asleep. I sat up and looked around me. It was Sandile's phone. I'd charged it last night when Lakhe had gone to the hospital ndayilibala kwi charger. I picked it up and put the ringer off. It was just a random number. Lakhe was still fast asleep thank goodness. The time 5:38am. My wake up time being 6am. I could just get up now. The moment I began moving off the bed, he woke. Lakhe: "baby..uyaphi?" Me: "its almost 6." Lakhe: "please stay. I don't think I can face the world today." this was difficult. That company will crash and burn bonanje when both leadership is absent. Then There's Harold and his scandal. Me: "only if I can work from here my love." Lakhe: "okay." I got back into bed and sent an email that I won't be in the office, only working from home. Lakhe curled up, his arm around my waist ebuyela ebuthongweni bakhe. Sandile's incident really cut him deep. He was so afraid of losing his baby brother. What I appreciated was him opening up to me and not shutting me out. Taking care of him made me feel needed. I felt like a pillar, holding up a huge castle. I put down the ipad and slid down to him. He opened his semi swollen eyes staring at me. Lakhe: "I love you." he whispered. I don't know what looked more beautiful. His eyes? The way they yearned to see me, peeking out of pain. Was it the shape his mouth took when he whispered those words? Or was it simply the voice that meant it all? Nothing I could've said from poetry would've sounded any better. He kissed my lips. Then pulled me closer. He held himself up with his left elbow and tucked me underneath him, not for once taking his lips off mine. He stopped then looked at me biting his lower lip. He closed his eyes and lay his head on top of my shoulder. Lakhe: "I don't even know where to begin. It just hurts. Ndizothini kutata?" I held my arms around his body. Lakhe: "I can't release my pain into you right now....because I'm gonna turn my back on you and sleep. I just want you to hold me till I'm okay." Me: "I understand baby but you may want to shift to my side because" Lakhe: "I'm suffocating you? Sorry babe." he shifted and rested on his side, one leg still on top of mine. Lakhe: "you know what you said about God?" Me: "yes..." Lakhe: "do you think he does bad things to us if we hurt others? To teach us a lesson?" that is the one question I was never prepared for. Me: "I don't think so. Bad things also happen to good people and they certainly don't deserve it." Lakhe: "then why does it happen?" Me: "well.....maybe its to test their faith. To make them spiritually stronger. You know? Challenge them for the better. To be able to conquer and defeat their own fears." Lakhe: "and the bad people?" Me: "maybe a chance for them to change their ways. To ask God to forgive them for what they have done bad." Lakhe: "and does He forgive?" Me: "Yes. If you truly repent and give yourself to the Lord. He will show you great favor." Lakhe: "I've got so many questions but its for another day. I wanna go back to sleep." Me: "should I call Philani and ask him about today?" Lakhe: "no...he said he'll take care of it. We can't move Sandile until he wakes. Or doesn't....then.....the machine must be switched off." his voice kept breaking off. Me: "okay. Let's sleep my love."

During the afternoon, I went to the kitchen to make lunch. There was no sign of Dumi or Sibú in the lounge or the game room. But all cars were here. After putting my spaghetti to the boil, I went to the rooms to knock. Me: "Dumz." cwaka. I knocked again. No response. I went to knock at Sibú's room. Me: "Sibú." no reply. That was odd. I went back to my kitchen ndaqhubekeka with my mince. I finished up in no time ndaphakela uLakhe who miraculously walked into the kitchen. By miraculous, I meant he was bathed and dressed. I left him in bed. He was probably going to the hospital. Me: "yima ndikuphakele ke bhuti. Before you step out that door." Lakhe: "but andilambanga." Me: "you're not leaving this house ungaryanga. You didn't want breakfast. You're gonna eat this. Sit." he sighed. Lakhe: "where are the two buffoons?" Me: "I don't know. Not in the rooms, game room, can't find them." he sat down and took out his phone. Wayicofa wayibeka endlebeni.

Lakhe: "Uphi." he waited. Lakhe: "okay. Izanoty lunch. We're leaving in 30." he hung up. I dished up for the 4 of us. Bafika aba babini kanti bebethathe a stroll down the street. Me: "molweni." Dumisani: "hello Spho." Sibuyi: "hi sisi." Me: "here's your food guys." Sibuyi: "siyabulela sisi." I left them at the table ndayolungisa room. After about 10 minutes, Lakhe came in. Lakhe: "sizohamba ngoku baby." Me: "okay my baby." I hugged and kissed him. Lakhe: "I won't be long. I'm not good company today. I think you're the only person that understands that. Thank you so much. For literally being here for me the entire time." Me: "its my pleasure mntuwam. You know I'd do anything for you." Lakhe: "anything?" Me: "Anything." Lakhe: "I'll hold you to that promise." he smiled and kissed me again. I let go of him. Feeling a bit cocktailish now. I was relieved to have some free time, I was also stressed about Sandile. Then worried about Lakhe. I hope There's at least some good news today. Just a little. He walked out the bedroom to the dining area. Lakhe: "Time." he said as he strode out the house to the car carrying a large bag to the boot. Sibuyi: "you can't stay. Do not put me in a crazy position please. Uyambona uLakhe is not himself. Do not make this difficult Dumisani please." Dumisani: "Sibuyi... What the hell is in that bag?" Sibuyi: "I don't know. I've never seen it before." Dumisani: "ndiyakucenga bra? Tell him I'm exh-" Sibuyi: "Dumisani. Dumisani. No. Right now isn't the time for this shit!! We're leaving!" Lakhe walked back in and stood in front of them. Sibuyi pushed the wheelchair out nervously. Lakhe followed them to the car, getting into the backseat. Sibuyi wafaka uDumisani in his place and also got in. The drive was as usual, quiet and icy. Lakhe tapped on his knee impatiently. They arrived at their destination. Lakhe: "best you both stay in the car for this one." he got out and opened the boot. Taking his bag out, walking to the building. Inside, the rest of the members were there. Serge and Black too. There were two captives tied up on the cement floor, their mouths taped shut. Lakhe: "I'm listening." Black: "we-" Lakhe: "you don't talk to me unless I ask you a question. Serge. Speak." Serge: "boss. After we left yesterday, we searched out and listened for any new merchandise then found out that one of the distributors in the northern area had received. When we got there, I got these two." Lakhe: "how is that helping my case? Did they bring my shit with them?" Serge: "they say it was taken by a guy called Rico." Lakhe: "so basically, they didn't bring it? Meaning I'm still on square one. My hands are still itching and someone is going to die. Is that what you're saying?" Serge removed the tape from their mouths. Serge: "where do we find Rico?" the guy breathed. "I don't know!" Serge: "okay, accused number 2." Guy2: "he lives in blue water bay. I can get you directions to his house." Guy1: "what the fuck are you doing!!" he whispered. Guy2: "Weet jy wie dit is?" Guy1: "Rico will kill you!" Guy2: "Sal somer sterf." Lakhe: "can you shut up? The both of you? Just Keep." he sat down. Lakhe: "what's your name." looking at the snitch who ratted out on his boss. Guy2: "Leeroy." Lakhe: "Leeroy. I want you to tell me what happened on Sunday. On my midnight express. In return for your survival." Guy1: "Leeroy!!" Lakhe: "this one is starting to irritate me very slowly. Its like an itch under my armpits." he opened the bag taking out a long rope. Leeroy: "a man phoned Rico and asked if he could do him a favor. Which meant bringing out the best men on the job, to take and to kill a elite gang leader." Frank: "just kill these bastards G!!" Lakhe: "so let me get this straight. Someone made a call to your boss, to take certain merchandise off my express and kill.....Me." Leeroy: "Precisely." Lakhe: "instead I wasn't there, and you shot my brother." Leeroy: "I didn't shoot sir. I was just loading off the merchandise." Lakhe: "who shot him then?" Leeroy looked at his friend. Guy1: "Leeroy, Don't do this..." Leeroy: "vertel hom die waarheid." Lakhe: "sometime this week please." Leeroy: "Jamal and Kyle were the ones with guns." Lakhe: "I'm guessing you're Jamal?" the other one stared at him quietly. Lakhe: "okay." he stood up, taking the rope. Lakhe: "so Leeroy, I have one more question for you and you're free to go." Leeroy: "yes sir." Lakhe: "do you know who called your boss and ordered this hit on us?" Lakhe threw the rope to the open ceiling it clung onto a pipe and the other side of the rope came back down. Leeroy: "Yes." Lakhe held on to both ends of the rope and pulled himself up to check its strength. Lakhe: "perfect. Black, khaze noJamal." Black: "boss?" Lakhe: "did I fucking stutter?" Black took Jamal to Lakhe. Lakhe: "Serge. Tie this to his feet." they tied the rope on a screaming Jamal's legs. Pulling the rope down, which dragged his body higher into mid air. Lakhe securely tied both legs with both rope endings, leaving Jamal hanging upside down and took out a knife. Lakhe: "so, Leeroy." Jamal: "Lee asseblief my bru." he cried. Lakhe: "who is the person who called your boss." he held Jamal's head still and slit his neck open with the knife. The blood oozed out like a running tap as the victim struggled to breath, seconds later.....stopped. Like a slaughtered animal in a butchery, his lifeless body swayed and dripped of blood. Leeroy trembled in his corner watching his friend die. Lakhe: "Leeroy." he wiped his face with a cloth. Leeroy: "Its.....its the guy... behind you. It was Frank."

Lakhe: "Las ratas se va a ratas , serpientes van a silbar." (rats are gonna rat, and snakes are gonna hiss.) he looked behind him. Frank stared at him wide eyed. Frank: "he's lying G!! I would never do that to you and Sands!" Leeroy: "he also came to the house after you had your last meeting." Frank: "shut the fuck up!! You're lying!" Leeroy: "I saw you Frank. It was late afternoon Saturday." Lakhe: "Frank?" Frank: "G, this is a set up. Why would I do this to you? We've been clicking for months." Lakhe: "then why would you steal from me?" Frank: "I didn't!" Lakhe: "but you want me dead." Frank: "No!!!" Lakhe: "Serge..." Sergio stepped forward. Lakhe: "please bring me my table." Frank: "G!!! NO. G, don't do this!!!" Lakhe: "Black, please contain Frank for I." Frank: "don't fucking touch me!!! Lucky, I didn't do this. I swear!!!" Lakhe: "then who did." Frank: "I don't know!" Sergio pushed the table into the room. Frank: "Lucky, I swear on my mother's grave!! I would never do such a thing to you." Lakhe: "Leeroy. Come here." Lee got up and walked to him. Lakhe: "please lay on the table on your back." Leeroy hesitated. Lakhe: "you don't trust me?" Leeroy: "I do." he got onto the table and lay on his back. Lakhe went back to his bag, pulling out a chain saw. Lakhe: "you shouldn't." he switched it on and it roared to life. Leeroy: "NOO!!!!!!!!!" he screamed. Lakhe: "hold his head." the boy was held down Leeroy: "God please help me!!!!!" he cried. Lakhe switched off the machine and smiled. Lakhe: "do you know what I do to people that hurt my people Frank?" Frank: "you cut their heads off and post it to their homes." Lakhe: "do you know what I want to do to you Frank?" Frank shook his head. Lakhe: "I want to hurt you. I want to hurt you so bad that you're unable to control your bowels every time I walk into a room. Every time you see me.....I want you to get loose. Killing you is easy. Watching you count your days is even better.....but waiting for you to fuck up one more time, would be an absolute pleasure. You should know, all that have tried before, have burnt to ashes. Others who's bodies will never be found. Frank, I want you to try and kill me. Try it one more time." he switched on the chainsaw again pressing the spinning sharp blades on Leeroy's bare neck. Pieces of flesh flying about, he sawed the head off watching it drop to the floor. Black Stallion threw up repeatedly. Lakhe: "Try Me." he dropped the saw. Lakhe: "Serge, show Black the drill. The rest of you clean that shit up." he took off his sweater and walked out folding it and wiping himself. He got into the car. Dumi: "Sibu. I need a toilet." Sibu: "uzochama endlini." Dumi: "Sibu.....now." Sibu: "just go. Soyilungisa endlini." he started the car drove away. Lakhe: "start at the hospital." Sibu drove to the hospital first. On arrival Lakhe got out the car and walked inside the building. Sibu: "what is wrong with you?" Dumi: "Sibulele I want to go home. I can't do this anymore. Did you see him come out of there dripping blood? I can't mna Sibu. He is an animal!" he cried. Sibu: "at least you didn't get to see whatever happened." he sighed. Dumi: "You've seen something before?" Sibú: "Dumisani. You need to start preparing yourself ngoku. By the looks of things...Sandile might not come back. You'll have to grow a thick skin and get used to this life. You're lucky that you're in a wheelchair. You won't have to drag bodies and bury them. Nyamezela qha ngoku." he got out the car. Sibú: "are you gonna stay here ?" Dumí: "I need the toilet." Sibú took out the wheelchair and helped him onto it. He locked the car and wheeled him inside the hospital. In the hospital room, Lakhe stood with Philani on the side. Lakhe: "do you think it might work?" Phila: "we'll have to try at least. Right now its the one procedure that could possibly revive him." Lakhe: "then do it." Phila: "I've set it up for tomorrow morning. It could take a while, I don't want you to be hopeful at the first attempt. Plus I'm not supposed to be doing this, so let's just keep it under wraps. Also repetitive daily cognitive stimulation, despite apparent lack of response, may contribute to coaxing the brain to recover. So talk to him, share with him your memories and his favorite things." Lakhe: "no problem. You'll call me when you need me." Phila: "sure." he left the room. Lakhe sat down in the chair. Lakhe: "bro, ingathi ngowuvuka before I lose my damn mind. I just found out Frank is the one that ordered the hit on us. I put a tag on him. He's waiting for you. Ndiyadikwa nazezi moemish ndihlala nazo. They are so damn weak. Yeses. At least try and wake up ngomso. Phila is gonna try some procedure to help you wake up. khazame...for us. Just try and wake up mminawa. You know I can never do this without you." Sibú walked in with Dumí. Sibú: "bhuti.." Lakhe: "what." Sibú: "Becca, ufuna uthetha nawe. She's right outside." Lakhe: "ithi makangene." Sibú called her in. Becca: "Mr Sobz." Lakhe: "yes Becca." Becca: "I know I've been absent from service for the past few days. I'd like to apologize for that." Lakhe: "who do you think is taking care of my friend while you're busy galivanting all over this hospital? I pay you to take care of Dumí. What I don't understand is what you doing here." Becca: "I'm sorry Mr Sobz. Can I come back to work?" Lakhe: "No." he looked back at his brother. Dumí: "Lakhe, please give her another chance. I'm already used to her Andifuni uqala umntu omtsha mna and ndiyam'sokolisa uSibú." Lakhe looked at him. Lakhe: "u-sure?" Dumí: "yeah." Lakhe: "fine." he got up and walked out. Lakhe: "Masambeni."

It was almost dark when Lakhe and the others came home. Mama wam was here while I worked she cooked dinner. Ufike esithi Uhleli yedwa kulandlu and unesthukthezi. I was overjoyed that she chose to come visit me instead of you know what. So in the lounge ndihleli kamandi, the TV was on the News channel. Lakhe walked in the house. Me: "hey..." Lakhe: "hey baby. I need a shower. Ndiyeza." ookay. He went to the bedroom. Dumi and Sibubangena noBecca. Me: "hey guys." they greeted back. Was nobody going to give me feedback on Sandile? Me: "Sibulele?" Sibub: "yeah?" Me: "Unjani uSandile?" Sibub: "he's still the same." Me: "are they going to at least try something? Or they just gonna let him lie there by himself?!" Dumi: "they're trying the best they can-" Me: "what are they trying kaloku?" Becca: "I know you're frustrated Spho. These things take time. It all depends on him now." mxim. I packed away my work ndayobeka eroomin ndabuyela elounge. Everyone had gone to their rooms. Lakhe came out to the lounge wearing black board shorts and white socks qha. Me: "sibephi iskipha? You know we have a guest right?" Lakhe: "who's our guest?" Me: "my mom." he sat down next to me. Lakhe: "don't lie. Uhleli wedwa apha. And you missed me." Me: "heee." Lakhe: "you missed me and you missed Postman Penis." I giggled. Me: "why is he a postman?" Lakhe: "ufuna abeyi President. Ungu President Penis ke." I laughed. Me: "I'm serious. My mom is here. Use kitcheni uyapheka." Lakhe: "lies." he kissed me laying me down on the couch. Me: "Lakhe!" Lakhe: "awundifuni? Here I come trying to look sexy for you in my white socks, wena awundifuni?" Me: "you look very sexy in your white socks baby." Dumi: "guys...come on." he wheeled in the lounge. Lakhe: "come on what?" Sibub: "sicela ubukel i-TV?" Lakhe: "both your bedrooms have TV's." Me: "ambovula emnyango you have a visitor." he got up wakroba. Lakhe: "nawe awundifuni." Dumi: "what the hell...." we both looked at him, he was staring at the news. Reporter: "just a little over an hour ago, the Sanders family received a devastating, gruesome shock that would rattle their entire lives. The beheaded body of their 19 year old son, Leeroy Sanders was dropped off at their home by an unknown vehicle. Nobody knows where his head is, or what happened to him. Police are still investigating what might have happened and who could have brutally taken the life of this boy. The family is too shaken to be able to comment on the matter, a neighbor has agreed to speak on their behalf. Mrs Jantjies, did you see anything prior this incident that might have hinted this terrible nightmare?" MrsJ: "absolutely not! These boys have all kinds of friends and we don't pay attention anymore. All I know is that Leeroy's mother is half to death in pain because it was her only son. Which she loved so much. The other burden would be how they're going to pay for this funeral. Another one.....so soon after the father passed." Me: "oh my God..." I sat up. Ma: "yinton Le niyibukeleyo!! Sphosenkosi tshintsha lonto!!" she screamed. Bendikhonyuluka actually, I just ran to the bathroom and threw up. Lakhe came in the bathroom. Me: "what the hell! They say there might be a psychotic murderer apha ebhayi." Lakhe: "that's not true." Me: "were you listening! That boy came home without his head! What kind of lunatic does that!!" he pulled me up. Me: "that poor family...." he hugged me. Lakhe: "You've got such a soft heart." Me: "Lakhe, kodwa ngumntu onjani lo uzokwenza into enjeya? Where did he leave the boy's head? Uzoyithini? Why did he cut it off in the first place?" I pulled away and rinsed my mouth. Me: "baby, we should help these people." Lakhe: "we don't even know them." Me: "we don't have to know! Imagine uyazisokolela kufike this bomb in your house. Now you have to deal with your emotions and this financial burden. No." Lakhe: "yoh. Hayi undixakile." he walked out. I went back to the lounge. The boys were watching something else behleka kumnandi. Lakhe: "apparently this kid was a thief and he sold drugs. Jonga." he showed me his iPad. Me: "he didn't deserve to die like that." Lakhe: "even after raping younger girls in his neighborhood. Jonga, these is a live stream of what's happening in that street right now. They're literally celebrating. Watch." How could people be so cruel? Lakhe: "someone did them a favor. Guess he messed with the wrong one this time." he went to the kitchen eyoncokola nomama. Dumi: "you have a good heart Spho. Its just that sometimes, you shouldn't give it to everyone. This was a case of bad karma. He did something and paid badly for it. It wasn't an accident at all." Sibu: "yeah, I think I'd kill someone that hurt my daughter or sister too. Ndingambulala afe fi. Rhaaaa." Dumi: "he'd probably lose the penis too." they laughed. I put down the ipad and went to my bedroom. A lot of emotions were circling my head and rushing up and down my body. It wasn't even about this kid anymore. It was about myself. How I'd wished all those years ago when I was abused almost every night somebody had come and killed for me. When they eventually did, over a decade later, I just didn't know what to feel. This just brought back the emotions of the day I found the corpse sitting on that couch. All my time of suffering had been brutally carved onto him. I hope he suffered. Long and hard. Lakhe: "baby?" I covered myself under the blanket. Lakhe: "mntuwam you have to eat something. Don't pay attention to lento yenzekayo on TV." Me: "I don't want to eat. I'm ok." Lakhe: "hun...please talk to me." he got into bed, looking for me under the covers. Lakhe: "I missed you." Me: "miss you too." Lakhe: "talk to me baby. You want to help that family? We could pay for the funeral if you want." Me: "No." Lakhe: "but you said-" Me: "I know what I said." Lakhe: "is it because of the live streaming you saw?" Me: "he hurt other people." Lakhe: "well....yeah. But you're right, he didn't deserve to die like that." Me: "maybe he did." I turned my back on him. Lakhe: "you don't mean that.....do you?" Me: "he ruined young girls' lives." Lakhe: "oohh...so that's where we are now." he moved closer to me. Lakhe: "baby wam...." Me: "I just want to be alone." Lakhe: "I can't let you be alone. Ungumntuwam ngoku, its my job to make you feel protected and safe. I'm going to be here for you, the way you are always here for me. Even though andikwazi ke mna uthandaza nje ngawe, I'm just gonn sit here and sing." Me: "please don't sing. Just be quiet." Lakhe: "u-sure? I was in the choir." Me: "don't lie." Lakhe: "so awufuni ndicule?" Me:

"no thank you." Lakhe: "at least look at me ke." I turned to look at him. Lakhe: "my beautiful queen." Me: "my ugly king." Lakhe: "suxoka sisi. I know I don't only turn heads, I break necks. So ke, umona awuzokusa ndawo." I giggled. Lakhe: "we should go to the hospital tomorrow together. Bazozama a procedure to wake Sandile from his coma. I know he'd want to have you there for him." Me: "I'd love to come." just then his phone rang. He ignored it, kissing my nose. Me: "yand'cheatela ngoku?" Lakhe: "heheeee!!! Yoh!" he took off the blanket. Lakhe: "ndizonga ignore i-calls ngoku?" Me: "yiphendule tshi." he laughed taking the phone. Lakhe: "Phila?" Phila: "hi bhuti. Can you please make it to the hospital?"

We were at the hospital in record time after the call we received. All the time to the hospital I was panicking not knowing what was the problem. I had hope though. Andithi uyaxelelwa over the phone if someone has passed bakunike the time of death and tell you to see the body? Right? Or was I simply just hoping and praying it would be like that? As we waited for Phila, I saw my dad walking past us efunda i-file. He didn't see us. Lakhe: "Tata?" Khaya looked up and smiled. Khaya: "What a surprise! Molweni." Me: "hi dad." he came to us. Khaya: "nizothini apha? Is everything okay?" Lakhe: "Sandile was a bit sick. So siyobona yena." Khaya: "oh? I didn't know he was even here. Utheni?" Lakhe: "we're not sure yet. But I'm sure he's okay." Khaya: "okay, keep me posted, let me know if you need any help." Lakhe: "okay Ta." Khaya: "bye princess." he walked off to do his job. Me: "why did you lie?" Lakhe: "he would ask a lot of questions babes. I'm not ready for that right now." Phila came to us. Before we could even say a word: Phila: "He's awake. He wants to see you. Follow me please." we walked behind him very quickly. I half jogged because I had short legs bona bayakwazi kuba they're tall. Once we arrived at the private room. Sandile had his eyes open looking around. Sands: "so ndichama phi?" his voice was burnt out and very low. Lakhe: "zichamele mpa. You fucking scared me!" he smacked his shoulder. Sands: "ndiphakame net kule bhedi bra. Ndiyolishova inqindi you won't believe. Khazapha mntase, show me some love." Me: "hey you." I hugged him. Sands: "khandigoduse please." Phila: "uzohamba ngomso. Still have to run some tests on you to make sure you don't relapse." Sands: "nim'fumene phi lo?" Phila: "if Lo bengafunyenwanga. You would've died. You lucky to have a sister like this one." Sands: "ndimthembile kaloku." he coughed. Sands: "I feel like I'm breathing fire." Phila: "uzokomelela." Sands: "ungu msoon kanene." I sat next to him. Me: "come, let's sit you up. Uzosela amanzi." I helped him up, he flinched in pain and screamed. Me: "almost done." I quickly fixed his pillows and put him back. Me: "nanga amanzi akho." I poured water into a glass and gave him a straw. He drank the water slowly. Sands: "enkosi mntase. Ndik'khumbulile yazi." Me: "undikhumbula njani ulele?" Sands: "bendiphupha ngawe kaloku." Lakhe: "heee." Sands: "unomona lo. Ngam'hoyi." Me: "kuddala ndim'hoyile wethu, he'll be fine. As long as we're getting you out of here. We miss you endlini. Lakhe ukutyile ukutya bendik'phekele kona." Sands: "uzokugabha myeke wena." Lakhe: "worse nindi-discusse ndikhona." Sands: "kamandi asik'hlebi. Phila khenze fondini ez'wey zentlungu." Phila: "Andifuni. Uzonyamezela kude kubek'sasa. I have other patients to get to." he walked out. Me: "wow, and then?" Sands: "ndamtyela ku fasti wakhe. Ngoku asivani ncam. But he's still my boy." Lakhe: "I would've let you die." Sands: "kaloku uyilento uyiyo wena, ingenalo negama. Nyosanja igama lakho." Lakhe: "what does that even mean?" Sands: "nyoka idibene nosatana ne nja. All in one." Lakhe: "Okay Sandile. Masimshiye mntuwam. Athethe yedwa apha." Sands: "hamba wedwa. Spho is not like you." Lakhe: "uyalibala ukuba Spho is my wife not your mom." Sands: "so you're on mute for a year. Spho, catch me up, what's been going on? How long was I out?" Me: "only 2 or 3 days. Nothing much has happened wethu, heee and There's a serial killer on the loose." Sands: "what! Where?" Lakhe: "There's no serial killer Spho. It was just one incident." Me: "before many others occur." Lakhe: "its not gonna happen." Sands: "what is happening guys?" he coughed again. Sands: "my throat is in flames. I keep losing my breath." Me: "sit still nawe. You can't start talking like us." Sands: "nindenze excited mos. What is this Serial killer thing? Wenzenton?" Lakhe: "Spho is over-imaginative." Me: "this guy cut off someone's head. Some 19 year old boy wethu and then dropped his body off kokwabo. Without the head." Sandile looked at Lakhe. Sands: "now why would he do something like that?" Lakhe: "he deserved it." Me: "yeah apparently he harassed girls and sold drugs." Sands: "hm. So are police searching for the suspect." Me: "probably." I took out my phone. Me: "its all over the news. Look There's another update." Sands: "ithini." Me: "still no trace of Sanders killer. No evidence. No witness. Its like the car that dropped off the body vanished in thin air." Sands: "go figure." Me: "but who would cut off someone's head like that?" Sands: "boggles my mind. Why exactly." Lakhe: "I'm kind of hungry now." Sands: "me too. Lonto ndibawela something juicy. Like inyama." Me: "let me go to Woolworths ndinithengele full chicken guys. I'll be back." Lakhe: "thank you my love." Sands: "ungayilibali juice." Me: "I won't." I kissed Lakhe's cheek, took the keys and my bag ndaphuma, ndisiya kwa Woolworths.

Sandile stared at Lakhe. Sands: "are you out of your fucking mind?" he breathed. Lakhe: "before you jud-" Sands: "Don't. No. Do not make excuses. Do not compare me to you. What did I ask of you when we came here? One simple thing, control your self! You can't go around cutting peoples heads! You've got the whole province fucking scared and probably the entire country too!" Lakhe: "Sandile, this boy was gonna bring us trouble." Sands: "why not shoot him th-" he stopped and tried to breath. Sands: "please tell me this is the last. Just, stop. This isn't Durban." Lakhe: "I was avenging your life. This is how you thank me?" Sands: "I'm not fighting with you. I have your best interests at heart. I don't want these murders to follow you around." Lakhe looked away. Sands: "what did you find out." Lakhe: "frank was the one who ordered the hit on us. He wants me dead." Sands: "why wasn't his head cut off?" Lakhe: "still wanna dangle him. They think you're dead. So he's probably still shaking. You know Frank is a wuss. He'll never finish a job." Sands: "I hear. So what's next?" Lakhe: "we have to chill a bit. At least a few weeks." Sands: "have you ordered the next?" Lakhe: "not yet. I'm mourning remember?" Sands: "don't be so hard on Black. He's in way too deep but he's trying. He's the one that pulled me away when I got shot. Literally stopped and came back for me. I would've died there alone." Lakhe: "kanti ebephi uSibu?" Sands: "I told him to wait by the car to stock in the merchandise." Lakhe: "oh." Sands: "uzundicengele kuPhila andinike pilis yentlungu. I'm really battling here." Lakhe: "I'll ask tata ka Lihle akuphe something. You had food poisoning. Nothing else." Sands: "Hide that board then." Lakhe: "it already says food poisoning. Nobody is allowed in here." Sands: "lonto ninamaqhinga noPhilani. Thanks." Lakhe: "just come back home, get better." Sands: "sowundikhumbula ngoku? Haha." Lakhe: "no, I don't. But Spho does, she panics a lot xa ungekho...so yeah." Sands: "oh...ndizobuyela yena ke. Since you don't need me." he looked at his brother. Sands: "is everything okay?" Lakhe: "Ya. Ndigrand." Sands: "I know you. Yinton ingxaki?" Lakhe: "its nothing man. I'm fine." Sands: "dude I'm not dead, you can stop moping now." Lakhe: "mxim." Sands: "and I know you love me." Lakhe: "Stop it." Sands: "and I love you too-" Lakhe: "fine!! I want a son. Okay? There." Sands: "awww. That's so sweet. Ungatsho nje, isbeleko sam si-ready." Lakhe: "firstly not with you. Secondly, usicholaphi isibeleko Sandile?" Sands: "thetha kaloku nomntu wakho mfo, umchazele ufuna umntana. You're about to marry. So it can't be that hard." Lakhe: "it is that hard. What if she's not ready? After what happened the last time. Andisayazi." Sands: "better to ask and talk about it." Lakhe: "its hard to even....you know...." Sands: "uhm....I don't know. And I don't want to. Look, you have a beautiful fiance. She's also understanding and cares about you. Thetha naye ungenzi ubudom. Trying to solve your problems ngosela utywala and running around with friends won't help your case. Umdala ngoku, you chose this. Stick with it. Because if you break Sphe's heart, I will find her a man that will marry her ndibeyi bestman and hang photos of their wedding in your house. You better act right." Lakhe: "wakufumana phi utatakho? You're a special case wena. They should've brought you with a finger tag." Sands: "Uphi khona utata? You didn't call him did you." Lakhe: "ndithini kengoku kuye? Perhaps as an explanation to why I let you get shot?" Sands: "tell Sibule to bring me my phone. Ndifun fownel utatam. He probably thinks I've replaced him." Lakhe: "for the second time? I don't think that's possible." he called Sibule. Lakhe: "ntwana. Khaze ne-phone ka Sands. Its in my bedroom...Sho." he hung up. Sands: "my head hurts. Awukwazi ucima esisbane?" Lakhe: "I suppose we can dim it down. You okay?" Sands: "tired..." Lakhe: "you got excited too quickly there. Time for you to rest." he took away the pillows and put him down on his back. Sands: "don't....go.." Lakhe: "I'm not going anywhere, ndizoty nyama yakho apha ecamkwakho." Sands: "mxim." Lakhe: "lala." Sands: "my body is in pain. How the hell am I supposed to sleep?" Lakhe: "sit still. Ndiyeza." Sands: "don't go." Lakhe: "I'll be back. Andithi ufuna pilis for intlungu?" Sands: "ok." Lakhe went out to look for Khaya in search of pain killers. Phila: "what are you looking for." Lakhe: "my father in law." Phila: "just missed him. He's in the O.R. Can I help you?" Lakhe: "look, I know you don't like Sandile-" Phila: "but I saved his life, what are you saying?" Lakhe: "you have a vendetta. You want to see him in pain. To tell you the honest truth, if he can manage to fuck your girl that means that girl wasn't yours in the first place. Women know how to treat themselves with respect. They know how to say no. He actually did you a favor, what would you do for the rest of your life living with someone who's willing to stab you in the back? I'm not saying forgive him, but cut him some slack." Phila rolled his eyes. Phila: "fine. He better not talk to me. I'll be there in a minute."

3 weeks later. I came home from work. Masilakhe had his usual monthly meeting at 7. I took off my shoes the minute I entered the door. Sandile was sitting on the couch with Boogie and Sibulele. I was told to give them "the talk" when I got home. Lakhe was tired of coming home to noise and couch bums. He wanted ME to tell them to get jobs. Sandile already had the hotel responsibility which he sucked at because Lakhe had to do all the work. Sibulele ebephole inqayi. Dumi was the only one allowed to be lazy but instead he was working all day everyday, wheeling up and down the living room ethetha kwi phone. Becca was in the kitchen fixing dinner. Me: "hey guys." Sands: "hey." Sibulele: "hi sisi." Me: "I want to talk to you guys about something." Sands: "what's up." Me: "how's the hotel going?" he shrugged. Me: "that's the thing hun, you have to know. It's yours. Your responsibility. If you don't take care of it, it will die. Just like Boogie." he stared at me. Sands: "but ndizoyithini? I don't know what to do." Me: "firstly Attend the meetings. Secondly pay attention to your emails, to your staff, thirdly make sure akhonto ishotayo phaya, just conversate with the manager. He will guide you." I looked at Sibulele. He pretended not to see me. Me: "Sibulele." Sibulele: "yes Ma'am." he looked at me innocently. Me: "you need to get a job sweetie pie. You can't sit here and do nothing all day." he nodded. Me: "tomorrow ndicela ibekhona ke into eniza nayo that's solid in terms of moving forward. I don't want to have this conversation with you guys again." Sands: "yes ma'am." I rolled my eyes ndisiya eroomin. I changed into grey leggings and a grey tight sweater. I wore my slippers and walked to the garden outside. At least they fed the ducks and they looked healthy. I saw someone standing by the gate. Male. Tall. Babalo. Ufuna ntoni? Nxx. I went back to the house. Everyone was still watching TV, I answered the phone. Me: "yes?" Balo: "hi, can you please let me in?" Me: "your friend is not here." Balo: "uhm...okay. Well cela uzumxelele ndikhona. Just came home from Italy. I got you guys something. Also, my wife wanted to meet you." Me: "I'll tell you when he's home." Balo: "oh.." Me: "just come in." I opened the stupid gate. I felt guilty that I was rejecting his wife because of her vile husband. They walked in carrying gift bags. Sands: "who is it?" Me: "Mr Wet Pants." he laughed. Balo walked in. Balo: "molweni guys. This is my wife Hlumi." Me: "Hello Hlumi, how are you?" Hlumi: "I'm great thanks. You're Spho?" Me: "yes." Hlumi: "lovely to finally meet you. You look beautiful." Me: "oh thank you. You also look amazing." and now what.... Balo: "oh, I bought these for you." I took the bag. Me: "thank you Balo. This was kind of you." Balo: "aren't you gonna open it?" Now? I looked into the bag. It was a white and gold Louis Vuitton hand bag. Small and cute. Me: "this is lovely. Thank you." Balo: "Lena yeyaka Lakhe." Me: "he's in a meeting right now. He'll be back later." Sands: "is there anything for me?" Babalo stared at him. Balo: "No." Sands: "Oh. Must be nice." Hlumi: "we have to get going.

We're meeting my parents for dinner. It was lovely meeting you Spho." Me: "Likewise. We should hook up sometime when we're both free. Maybe nge weekend." Hlumi: "that would be great. Bye guys." they said their goodbyes. Except Sandile. Balo: "bye Spho." I walked them out the gate. Ubuya kwam I heard a hoot from the gate, when I was about to almost reach the front door. I turned around thinking nguLakhe being Lakhe. But nope. It was a big SUV. One that I've seen before. It hooted three more times ndiyijongile. This was one of the cars zak'lo Lakhe. Sandile walked out. Sands: "what's she doing here?" Me: "ambonxiba izihlangu Sandile. I'll open the gate." we both went inside the house ndavula gate yangena imoto. Stella walked in a few minutes later erhuqa suitcase. And something else. Something that made my blood boil. Stella: "evening. Where are my sons?" wathula uSandile staring at the TV. Me: "Lakhe is in a business meeting. He won't be back till late." she laughed. Stella: "business meeting? At this time? You poor thing." Dez was with her enxibe coat ebomvu ende and black stilettos. If I was a bitch, I would tell them to wait outside qha my parents didn't raise me that way. Me: "can I offer you anything to drink Stella?" Stella: "a glass of wine." Dez: "I'll just have juice thank you." Becca came to us. Becca: "ma'am. Can I help?" she was looking at me. I'd specifically told her never to call me ma'am. I don't know why she was doing this. Me: "one glass of wine and one juice please Beks." she walked back to the kitchen. Me: "Sandile." I hissed. He looked at me. Stella: "aren't you going to say hello to your mom?" Sands: "Molo mama." Stella: "who are they?" ebengathi unaar. Sands: "These are my friends. They live here. Dumi, Sibu, this is my mom." they greeted. She just replied with "hmm." I texted Lakhe: "Your mom just arrived with your ex." I waited and there was no response within the minute. I would have to handle this. Problem yam yeyoba we have nothing to talk about. They're mean and cruel, I'm the complete opposite. I can't treat people like dirt. Well, except Babalo. He is dirt. He doesn't count. Becca brought the beverages. I offered them a seat. Me: "can I book you into a hotel so long?" Stella: "hotel? I'm staying in my son's house." Me: "well, she isn't." ndajonga kuDez wasekunyeni. She unbuttoned her coat, revealing her small round belly. Dez: "I'm not going anywhere."

Have you ever wished you could fly? Not just fly around the place. Like fly to disappear forever? I've always felt that way for most of my life and even with the means and resources I've realized that you can't fly away from your problems. What did she mean she wasn't going anywhere? Why was her belly round? Well stupid me, of course she's pregnant. Did Lakhe do this? How could he do that to me? Me: "This is my house. And you're not staying here."

Stella: "correction sweetheart, this is my son's house. This is also my son's baby. You are the one that won't be staying here." Me: "I think you're heavily mistaken there Mrs Sobukwe." Sands: "uyenza njani intwenje?" Stella: "don't talk to me like that! I am your mother-" Sands: "no mother of mine acts like a bitch. Is this what you're gonna do when I want to get married? What kind of woman are you? You don't even want to see your own child happy, no wonder all of us left that house the minute we could, its because of your vindictive ways and evil thoughts. And Spoho is not leaving this house, I swear to God if you say one more word to her, I'll drag the both of you out myself kicking that bastard child out of that tummy. Say one more thing." the house went dead quiet. Sandile looked back at his TV show, wavala umlomo wakhe. Dumi excused himself and went to his room. In a few minutes Wangena utata wekhaya. Stella: "oh!! My son." she ran to him. He stopped her immediately. Lakhe: "what the fuck is this?" Stella: "Masilakhe!" Lakhe: "hayi mama. Uzothin lo apha kwam?" Stella: "we have something to tell you." Lakhe: "are you trying to piss me off?" his hands were shaking. Sands: "bafuna ukhatywa banye boyi two." Me: "Sandile Hayi!" Dez: "babe...I thought this was what you wanted. For us to have a family." she stood up facing him. He stared at her. Lakhe: "I want the both of you.....to get out of my house. Before I do something that I will Not regret." Stella: "are you kicking the mother of your child out?" Lakhe: "that is not my child!!" Stella: "what do you think happens when you sleep with women Lakhe!! They get pregnant!" Lakhe: "mama, I'm not gonna explain myself to you. Just get the hell out of my house. Now." he took the suitcase and threw it outside. Me: "Lakhe." Lakhe: "mabaphume Sphosenkosi!! Mabafokofe apha!" Me: "Masilakhe ngumama wakho lo. You are not going to throw her out like a dog, just calm down uthethe kakuhle. Please?" Lakhe: "she can't just get here, drop this bomb, and then expect blue skies. She must get the fuck out. Njebe nje wena usamcingela, akakucingeli yena. She brought this person here, to hurt you. They're leaving. And they're leaving NOW." Stella was on the phone crying. Stella: "I don't know Rob, you need to come here, she's turned them against me! They're swearing me now. Calling me names and throwing me out. You need to come here now!!!" she sobbed. Lakhe: "you're still leaving this house. I don't care if you're sleeping outside. Just get out." Stella: "Lakhe how could you do this to your own mother!!!" Lakhe: "how could you do this to your son! You know how much Spoho means to me, yet you find ways to hurt her. I don't want you in my life if you don't want her in mine. Take your little friend and leave.." he showed them the door. Stella: "Masilakhe!" she cried. Lakhe: "I'm going to count to three. What happens after that would be your own fault. 1. 2." they hurried out the house, bayongena emotweni. The car drove out the yard. Masilakhe was fuming with anger. Bendimoyika gqithi xa enje. It was very rare but when it happened, it was as though he wasn't even in his right mind. I knew to leave him alone. Sandile ebebukele TV ingathi akwenzeki niks. Sibule looked rattled but ethule ejonge kwi phone yakhe. Lakhe went to take a shower. Ndisamathe ndinjalo, I wanted him to explain what this was about and the elephant in the room needed direction. Did he sleep with Dez? My phone was ringing in my hand, ndayijonga. It was

Zingi. Right now, I was really in no mood for anything. I was frustrated yilento igqibo kwenzeka. Sands: "Spho." I looked at him. Sands: "uright?" Me: "yeah. I'm good." I went to the bedroom ndahlala ndalinda uLakhe. He came out the shower eyonxiba. Would I be nagging if I asked what was going on? I sat there and waited for him to come out. I knew uzophuma ngalamnyango to probably finish his meeting and come back late just to avoid my questions. It actually stung that I was not allowed to ask too many questions. I needed a bath and my bed now. As I got up to go to the bathroom. Lakhe: "baby?" Me: "I know you have to go back to your meeting." Lakhe: "no I don't." I looked at him. He was dressed in pajamas. Me: "okay, I'll be in the bath then." I went into the bathroom ndavulela amanzi kwi bath ndangena. I soaked myself for a while, ndavasa. Ugqiba kwam, when I was well and ready got out the bath. Back in the bedroom. Lakhe was sitting on the edge of the bed nervously. Lakhe: "I got your lotion right here." he had the bottle of Lux lotion in his hand. Lakhe: "can I?" I climbed on the bed and let him moisturize my legs. I was very quiet. Actually waiting for him to start the topic, because kaloku I'm Mrs 21 questions. Namhlanje ke ndizovala owam. He massaged my feet, then up my thighs. I turned around wandithambisa umqolo. Also giving me a massage. Lakhe: "mntuwam." Me: "Masilakhe." Lakhe: "I'm sorry." Me: "what are you sorry for exactly?" Lakhe: "I'm sorry for putting you through this. I never intended for this to happen." Me: "okay." Lakhe: "baby please don't do this." Me: "don't do what? What am I doing?" Lakhe: "yell at me, scream, hit me. Just please don't ignore me." Me: "what's that going to help Masilakhe? Is it going to bring back my faithful fiance?" Lakhe: "Spho. That is not my baby, I swear." Me: "but you did sleep with her. Right?" he swallowed. I got under the covers. Lakhe: "it only happened once. I used protection, I made sure of it. She doesn't know that because ebenxilile and I was sober. Bekumnyama, kodwa ndiyinxibile mna condom. I know what I did was wrong, I regretted it immediately. It was the worst feeling I've ever felt. Till today, I still hate myself for it. I made a mistake Spho. If I was being dishonest, I wouldve slept with many girls till now. I went on a trip with friends kugcwele amantombi, I was not interested. I'd never do you like this ever again." Me: "so you slept with her." Lakhe: "yes." Me: "then I guess we're even. Goodnight." I could feel his shock all the way from where he was sitting. Lakhe: "wha...what do you mean...by that?" his voice was shaky. Me: "I mean we're even. You fucked your ex when I wasn't there. I fucked Max when you weren't here. We're even." he inhaled and exhaled. Out of nowhere jumped up and stormed out the bedroom. Maybe I was too extreme. Was it so bad that I wanted to hurt him the way I was hurting? I had a lump in my throat. I didn't know what else to do. If he says he used a condom, should I trust him? After what he did? What if he's just trying to protect me? What if now he's going to live a double life and go see Dez and the baby behind my back? Am I going to be part of that now? Maybe I pushed too far by lying about Max. He's probably calling off the wedding and leaving me. The door opened again then closed. Footsteps to the bed. He got under the covers and pulled me to him. I was scared. Scared of pushing him away. Scared of losing him. Scared of being a stepmom. I was at the verge of tears. Lakhe: "I'm so sorry my baby. I didn't mean to hurt you." Me: "I don't know if I can trust you Lakhe. I'm not going to be able to be Snoopy. I'm already comfortable and I don't want to be Snoopy." Lakhe: "okay, ngubani uSnoopy." Me: "a woman who keeps tabs on her husbands and everything he does to make sure he's not cheating." Lakhe: "you don't have to babe. I'm going to do everything in my power to prove to you that's not my baby. Even the condom I used, I flushed down the toilet. There is absolutely no way, its my kid." Me: "I want to believe you." Lakhe: "you wouldn't be here if you didn't. Spho, ndiyayazi uyandithanda, I wouldn't play with your heart. Cela undithembe. I fucked up by sleeping with her. I really did." Me: "you flushed it down the toilet ?" Lakhe: "Ewe." he looked me in the eye. Me: "the problem is, if I were the one who cheate-" Lakhe: "he'd be dead already. And we would be cuddling, kungekho ne-topic yakhe." Me: "I'm serious." Lakhe: "so am I." Me: "Max is still alive....is he?" Lakhe: "I don't know Max, Sandile says he's harmless and you would never go there." Me: "you thought I did?" Lakhe: "you were so calm when you said it, it scared me. Sundiphathisa ngentliziyo Spho. You know I'm old." I turned around ndajonga kwelinye icala. Lakhe: "would it be pushing it if I asked to kiss you?" Me: "yes." Lakhe: "let's have our dinner ke my love. I'll bring the food vha." he got up and went to the kitchen. His phone buzzed a notification. From TrueCaller. Missed call. The number was blocked. Saved as umamakhe. I didn't want Lakhe to be on bad terms with his mother. I really hated uhlobo things turned out. Why can't she just be reasonable? Khona ndimenze ntoni mna? Lakhe came back with the tray that had both our plates. Lakhe: "dinner in bed." he placed the tray on the bed wahlala naye. Lakhe: "cimela." I closed my eyes.

Lakhe: "May God bless our food, and my family. May the Almighty be here, to protect our matrimony and guide us into a better spiritual future. Amen." Me: "Amen." I looked at him. Lakhe: "that was my second prayer. In my whole life." Me: "when was the first?" Lakhe: "when my mom died." he tasted the food. Lakhe: "ayisemandi Le mash." he dug his spoon into mine and ate. Me: "its the same." Lakhe: "hmm....much better from your side." Me: "so nditye phi mna." Lakhe: "xolo baby." we ate our dinner. Uggqiba kwam ndabeka plate ecaleni. So did he. Me: "hun.." Lakhe: "hm...." Me: "why don't you sit down with your moth-" Lakhe: "I'm not doing that. Ndimxelele enough times, Nguwe umntu endizomtshata. Ndimxelele enough times, ndithanda wena. Ndimxelele enough times, ayeke uzisa uDez kwindawo endikuyo. She refuses to listen, that means I have to cut her off." Me: "you can't cut your mother off Lakhe. Not because of mna." Lakhe: "its not because of you, its because of me. You're MY happiness. If she doesn't want me to be happy kutheni funeke acengwe ndim? Uzozibona ba makathini nala Dez wakhe." he looked through the drawer. Lakhe: "funny how we never use this TV, now I can't find remote yayo." Me: "hayi babe. Ndiyilala mna." Lakhe: "sundishiya kaloku." he came back to cuddle me. Lakhe: "goodnight my heart." Me: "goodnight."

The next morning, I opened my eyes and found him staring at me. Me: "wenzani?" Lakhe: "ndibuka umntu wam." I stretched and yawned. Lakhe: "I made you breakfast." Me: "what time is it?" Lakhe: "something past 6." Me: "I need to get to work." Lakhe: "babe?" I stopped and looked at him. Lakhe: "I should've told you this before. I was just.....not sure how. After the whole incident izolo, and a lot of thinking, I've gained the confidence to ask." Me: "ask what?" Lakhe: "since about a month ago...I've wanted to have a son... I know I said before that ndifuna sitshate kqala. But I really want one." Me: "umgxothile nje uDez." he laughed. Lakhe: "u-funny yazi? Usibonile esasusu? Even if I didn't use i-condom, I saw her like 3 months ago, and that looks at least 4 to 5 months. Kodwa ndiserious baby." I looked at him. Lakhe: "please?" Me: "so you want us to start now?" Lakhe: "yes." he looked excited. Me: "that's not gonna happen. I'll go to the doctor and check my ovulation dates. Then we can try." Lakhe: "nyani Spho? You'd do this for me?" Me: "don't make me change my mind." he hugged me and kissed my cheek. Lakhe: "I love you so much." Me: "on the other hand. Sizoyithini lento kamamakho noDez." Lakhe: "sizoya kwa gqirha, to check the baby's month. Then ndimnike calendar. They'll never see it coming." Me: "mandiyovasa." Lakhe: "ubuye uzotyaka ke." I went to take a long shower. God, I love Lakhe so much. I can't even believe izinto zase stratweni. He is just so much in my heart. Me: "I pray that God reveals this truth and sets my husband free from this mess." after my shower, I went to get dressed. Lakhe wasn't in the bedroom, but my breakfast was waiting for me on the bed. I first sat in bed ndatya ndasela juice, checking my emails and I stopped eating. Ndaske ndahluthi. I had a lot of work to do today. I went to the closet ndiyokhangela outfit for the day ndakhe ndahlala phantsi to catch my breath. Lakhe: "babe?" Me: "I'm in here." he came in. Lakhe: "you barely ate." Me: "yeah, I've got work. A lot of it. I can't even find something decent to wear." Lakhe: "its a bit cold phandle." Me: "this navy suit makes me look like I work in the airport." Lakhe: "but its cute. Nxiba ke pajama yakho, ungene ezinguben." Me: "nope. I have a big meeting today. With the Telkom directors." I took out a black dress and my grey knee long coat. Lakhe: "baby..." Me: "hm." Lakhe: "when are you going to book the doctor's appointment?" Me: "when I get to work my love." Lakhe: "utata ufikile. He's so mad. Umama switched off her phone." Me: "why would she do that?" Lakhe: "trying to teach him a lesson probably. Ndimazelaphi umama nemikhwa yakhe." Me: "maybe you guys should check if she's okay." Lakhe: "Nah. I'm good." I was done getting dressed ndathatha izihlangu zam. Me: "I keep running out of breath." Lakhe: "udiniwe Sphosenkosi. You never rest." Me: "just this one meeting. I'll rest after." I wore my shoes. I took my work bag and cell phone. Lakhe: "wait for me. We'll take one car, try eating some more." I went to sit on the bed and waited for him wayongena kwi shower. Let me just lay my head to get rid of this dizziness. I yawned and lay on my side closing my eyes for a second. A second turned into at least an hour when I woke up I looked around. My shoes were off. Me: "Lakhe!!!" how could he let me sleep like this!! Me: "Masilakhe!!!" I jumped up and looked for my shoes. My bag was nowhere to be found. I went out to the lounge. Me: "Masilakhe!" Sands: "hi mntase. He left. Told me to keep you inside the house." Me: "he wants to hijack my meeting. Oh my Goodness. I should've seen this coming!! Molo Tata, Unjani?" I was actually panicking inside. Rob: "I'm fine my angel. What meeting?" Me: "I had a meeting with Telkom today, and he.....he hijacked it! Sandile, please borrow me your car." Sands: "you're not even wearing shoes." Sibu: "andd....your hair sisi." Me: "just get the car ready." I ran to the bedroom and fixed myself. Ndathatha izihlangu. Rob: "masambe mntanam. Bayeke aba." we got into the car and he drove. I directed him to the office. Rob: "so wena no Lakhe niright? I hope you are. UStella noDez just try to by all means to make you upset." Me: "si-right tata. Lakhe explained what happened. He says its not his baby." Rob: "even if it is, don't leave uLakhe. You're his strength. Engekathi kuwe suka ecamkwakhe, don't ever leave his side. He loves you. And will do right by you. No matter what it takes. A good wife does not leave her husband's side. Ndiyayazi lento ndiyithethayo." Me: "ewe tata." that piece of "even if it is." bothered me a little. Kodwa ke Lakhe was sure and I trusted him. Me: "nimfumene umamu Stella ukuba Uphi." Rob: "uzoziveza ngexesha lakhe lothanda. I don't have the time to run around chasing her." I kept quiet. As for a good wife never leaving her husband's side. We arrived at the office. I walked inside the building straight to the boardroom. There he was. Standing in my place. Presenting. MY proposal. Ooohhh he's gonna get it. He looked at me and smiled sweetly then sat down. Rob: "what's wrong?" Me: "he stole my work. He literally stole my entire work." Rob chuckled. Rob: "nizi goals yazi nina nobabini." Lakhe: "and I owe the credit to my beautiful wife. The woman who created this entire project. Sphosenkosi, please enter my love." I'm still going to yell at you. I walked into the room, where the board of directors clapped their hands. After the meeting I went to Lakhe's office and waited for him. He came in. Lakhe: "I can explain-" Me: "No You Can't!! You took my work!!" Lakhe: "baby. You were tired. You fell asleep before I started showering." Me: "I wasn't sleepy. I was dizzy. Lakhe, did you drug me?" Lakhe: "that is just ridiculous! Ndizoyenziswa yinton lonto? The proposal is in your name. The credit was given to you. Mna bendisi speaker sakho. Love, ubungaphilanga, what was I supposed to do?" Me: "you have a smirk on your face." Lakhe: "I'm just glad to see you." Me: "thetha inyani Lakhe. What did you do." Rob: "he doesn't want you in the big projects because he wants you to get pregnant and work on less stressful things." he walked in. Lakhe: "Dad!" Rob: "Khange kuthiwe mandingayithethi." Me: "why didn't you just say so then!" Lakhe: "because u-stubborn. You're gonna try and prove to me that you can handle it and overload yourself with too much work. Spho, I want what's best for you. I don't want us to lose another baby. Can you please just do this for me?" Me: "I'm not even pregnant yet. You can't just make these decisions for me Lakhe!" Lakhe: "uxolo sthandwasam. I thought I was doing it for us. I want you to know ndizohlala ndikhona to be your support system. Like today, I'll always have your back." Me: "so what did they say? Did they like it?" Lakhe: "like? They loved it!" Sacrifices. Sacrifices. Good wife. Sacrifices. Me: "okay. You can take the project." Lakhe: "or.....we could assign a team to work with you." Good husband. Me: "and the pregnancy?" Lakhe: "you're right baby, you're not pregnant yet. I shouldn't be making decisions for you. I just panicked. I'm nervous." Me: "why u-nervous? There's nothing to worry about. If it gets too much, I'm handing it back to you." Rob's phone rang. Rob: "yes? Nguwe kaloku umntu ebevale i-phone. Inguwe ke phof othe kum mandize apha. I don't see what the fuss was about. Ufike Wenza izinto eziphantsi endlini ka Lakhe beku suppose Utheni kuwe?Ayik'funi naleyo. Awuyi ndlini ka Masilakhe Nokwakha, You've caused enough problems, lento nizama ukuyenza kunye nalontombi is not going to work. Stay away from that house. Undivile?" he looked at his phone. She Probably hung up on him. Rob: "son, I want to talk to you about something." Me: "I have to check on my emails. I'm waiting for someone." Rob: "I'm going to ask Stella for a divorce." now I couldn't leave. Lakhe: "uhm....well tata, I can't ask why because we all know umama Unjani. Kodwa what made you decide this after all these years?" Rob: "Masilakhe, I'm not happy. I want to be happy. I turned 65 months ago, and I haven't been happy since you and your siblings left that house. My retirement fund paid out. I transferred the billion to Sandile. He's keeping it in a foreign account for me until the whole thing is finalized. I just need one of you to give my company to. She can't get all my hardwork when all she did was hurt me. Ndiyanicela bantwana bam. The last years that I have, I'm going to travel the world. I'm going to find someone out there even though akandithandi uzotyia imali as long as endivisa kamandi qha. I really don't care." my heart ached for him. These are the years you spend with your loved one and travel with them around the world. My God, a billion for retirement? What was this man earning? Gold bars? Phof STILL earning kuba une investment company that is still generating millions. Bethuna bayadlala abanye oosisi. Ndine worry ye-tax. I hope it doesn't chop hey. But siyamazi ke owethu umongameli xa edibene noSars. Lakhe: "you can sign the shares over to me tata. I'll put them aside for you until ugqibe le divorce. Uzomshiyela indlu at least? And a car?" Rob: "yes of course, both estates are in her name. Our holiday house in Italy also. The SUV is hers. And our savings together will be split." Me: "but tata won't the court want to know why ungena retirement or your company in your name?" Rob: "I'll tell them I want to start over. I want nothing that is going to bind me to her." Lakhe: "uzohlala Phi? During the process?" Rob: "I don't know yet." Dude you have a billion Rands. I would buy an island shame. Lakhe: "I have plenty of space. I want you to be safe, ndiyamthanda umama even though she drives me crazy at times, kodwa There's no telling what one can do next in these situations." Me: "yeah. I agree." do you know how many people would kill just for R100 000 imagine a billion kengoku. Like 9 zeros. Number ye ex yakho fondini as your bank balance kuthiwe ambom'bulala. Lol. This is madness. Rob: "okay, let me get going. I'll see you guys at home." Me: "bye tata. And thank you." Rob: "its a pleasure my daughter." waphuma. Lakhe closed the door. Me: "a billion? What does your father do? I want his career." Lakhe: "its just a retirement fund babe. He started it when he was just 18. Saved at least R10 a month. He worked part time. Wafunda also. Started his first company when he was 22. From R10 a month to R20. Each year increased it with R10 until he was 30. Waqalisa ubhatala kengoku some heavy money. You must remember kwa R10 kdala was a lot. He managed to triple his savings, opened company number 2. Invested in company number 3. Which is owned by one of his best friends. Inintsi wethu lanto ka tata. He loves telling that story, uzumbuze." Me: "plus he was a boxer." Lakhe: "that was his part time job kaloku." Me: "why don't you like mentioning that he was a professional boxer?" Lakhe: "urrgg..." Me: "you're jealous?" Lakhe: "I'm not jealous." Me: "can you even box?" Lakhe: "no. I can't. That's Sandile's talent." Me: "I would buy an island if I had a billion Rand." Lakhe: "I'd invest it and make it x 10. Probably buy a country." I laughed. Me: "You'd need like a trillion for that. 12 zeros." he laughed. Lakhe: "so close... Come here." he held my hands. Lakhe: "its about time we set a date. My dad is leaving soon as his divorce is final. I want us to be married before that. So that he can be happy and enjoy his life after." Me: "getting married while your parents are divorcing? Hayi Lakhe." Lakhe: "utatam won't mind ndik'xelele." Me: "your mom already hates me." Lakhe: "which means akazi emtshatweni wethu. Sorted.....we're not having a big wedding. Just something small and intimate qha. We've been postponing it for months now." Me: "you're right but I'd like for us to discuss it with your dad first." Lakhe: "great. Now my heart, its time for you to rest. I've got a surprise lined up for you." Me: "but I'm not done with work." Lakhe: "I'm the boss and I say you're done. Iza." he held my hand out the office building to the car. Me: "where are you taking me?" Lakhe: "ndiyokuthengisa. Khandik'xelele ba ndidikiwe nguwe?" I looked at him. Lakhe: "I'm kidding. Its a surprise baby." Me: "hun..." Lakhe: "what up." Me: "what if we adopted a baby first before we have our own?" he kept quiet. Me: "both me and you, plus your siblings, we know what its like to grow up kabuhlungu. We all got better lives. I want another child to experience it too. The better life that is." he was still quietly focusing on the road. Then turned into a driveway. Shambala Wellness Spa. Lakhe: "surprise." he drove in and parked the car. Me: "are you going to answer me?" Lakhe: "answer what?" Me: "what I just said to you. I suggested we adopt a child. Its like you zoned out that whole time." Lakhe: "I didn't zone out." Me: "so you heard what I said." Lakhe: "I.....did." Me: "what did I say?" Lakhe: "that we must adopt a baby." Me: "why?" he looked at me and smiled. Lakhe: "you look so beautiful. I think its a great idea." Me: "you didn't hear me at all, did you?" Lakhe: "I heard what you said baby. Masingene." we went in for our Couple connection massage.

Later that evening once we were finally home. I was in the kitchen preparing supper. Sands: "mntase." he walked into the kitchen. Me: "hey." Sands: "Unjani? You seem more relaxed." Me: "I am. Ndiphilile Sands, what are you looking for?" Sands: "my parents are here. They came with Desiree. They're going to discuss lento ye-pregnancy. I don't want you to feel awkward or left out because nam bendingayazi even Lakhe. Ndifunde i-situation quick bengekangeni emnyango. So I want you to be okay." I nodded. Me: "I prepared enough supper for everyone so-" I heard yelling from the lounge. Lakhe's voice. Sands: "I think I should get back to put out the fire before the Dragon burns this house down." he dashed out the kitchen. I took out the special plates, ndazisula and carried them to the dining table. Putting one plate in front of each chair. I was actually eavesdropping, so I was moving very slowly but undetected. Lakhe: "kengoku mna ufuna ndithini ?" Stella: "son, you have to take responsibility for your actions-" Lakhe: "mama do you want to see my actions? U-sure?" Stella: "Rob, speak to your son." Rob: "and say what? If he denies this then what am I to do? Ndandiphi? Hayi wethu Nokwakha." Stella: "what the hell is going on here! Is it that skank of yours? She must be using muti on you to turn your back on your own family." now she was pissing me off. Rob: "uyithetha njani into enjalo Nokwakha!" Stella: "Masilakhe has never been like this! She's changed him! Esebenzisa umuthi! Uyathakatha!" ndava ngempama eshushu ingena emntwini. Lakhe: "get the fuck out of my house." Stella screamed. Stella: "Robert!!!!!!" Rob: "U N D I Y E K E mfazi ndini. I'm done!!! I am fucking done with you!" Stella: "WHAT!!! You can't be done Robert! You of all people!!? I have been struggling by myself to hold this marriage together while you were out on endless business trips with your whores!! I was the one who kept that house standing. Wena Masilakhe? You of all people!! I've been through hell and back raising you and taking you to doctors! This is how you thank me!!" Lakhe left the lounge esiya eroomini. Robert followed him. Sands: "mama." Stella: "ndiyeke Sandile!" she sobbed. Sands: "kodwa nawe mama u-unfair. How did you expect him to react uthetha lento uyithethayo? You didn't even give his fiance a chance, all you ever did was push her out of the way and make room for your agenda. Where do you get off calling other women names? Uyalibala mama. Lento uyenzayo is not fair and now You've taken it too far. All by yourself." he walked out. Now I was left alone with these two women. To be truly honest I felt sorry for Stella, why? Because I would never do this to my own mother. Sikhuliswe differently, and mna personally, this I did not approve of noba undiphethe kakubi kanjani lomama. Only God has the power to take, give and punish. Me: "ndingakwenzela i-tea mama?" she had covered her face with her hands ekhala. Dez: "I'll make it." I led her to the kitchen and showed her the cups, sugar and tea bags. Ndaphuma ndamshiya apho to make the tea. I went to the bedroom where Lakhe was with his dad. Rob: "Masilakhe, I don't care if I have to drag you back there, you're going there and apologizing to your mother qha. Andikhathali mna uziva njani. Ngunyoko lowa and andizok'vumela uphakamise isandla kumntu obhinqileyo. Ungayiqala kumamakho kucacile uzokwazi mos ubetha uSphosenkosi." Lakhe: "tata, uSphosenkosi will never disrespect me like this! You know she has my best interests at heart." Rob: "Ewe ndiyakuva nyana. Kodwa ke, funekile uhloniphe unyoko." Lakhe: "uxolo tata." Rob: "andinamabele ke mna." Me: "your father is right Lakhe, what you did there not only hurt your mother but it hurt me. I can't let you disrespect umamakho naphi na. I would never do that to my mother. Nobody said agree with her, kodwa There's a respectful way of doing things. Your anger isn't cute Lakhe, izoqalisa ukuba yi-problem and andizomelana nalonto ke mna." Rob: "we're on your side here my boy" Lakhe: "andiyo boy mna tata." Rob: "ncoooh. My little baby boy." he hugged him. Rob: "uyathand ucengwa man. I wonder ufuze bani." Lakhe: "cela undiyeke torho tata." Rob: "hamba ke. Iya kumama." Lakhe breathed. Lakhe: "if I do this, you gonn tell them to leave." Rob: "deal." they marched together to the lounge. I followed shortly after them, not even half way through the passage I could already hear screaming.....

I literally turned around and went back to the bedroom. Nobody has got the time for this. I had work to do. I took my iPad and went through my emails, I started looking through the changes that the director had made. My first task was to implement them onto my proposal and begin working on it. I took my laptop and started. An hour later, Lakhe came into the bedroom. Me: "how did it go?" Lakhe: "I said my piece. It was dad who got the beating." he sat next to me. Lakhe: "wenzantoni?" Me: "work." Lakhe: "you're already starting on this project? Baby, we agreed to appoint a team though." Me: "and we will, but I had a few ideas along with the ones that were emailed to me. I'm just going to rough draft it up quick qha." he sighed and looked the other way. Me: "don't be like that. This isn't even stressful. I'm calm." Lakhe: "you're working Spho. On our leisure time, wena you're working. While we have family problems, you're working. Ufuna ndithini?" Me: "babe, andiyithandi la fight yakho nomamakho. It bothers me. I cannot be around that." Lakhe: "I'm sorry Spho. It was rude of me. I shouldn't have done that, I just got so pissed off. How dare she call umfazi wam a witch? Phambikwam? Hayi naye she was begging for it suka. Its like cutting yourself and diving into the ocean, of course a shark is gonna fucking bite you." Me: "still. It was uncalled for. It was unacceptable and ayizophinda yenzeke lonto leyo. Uyandiva Masilakhe?" Lakhe: "yes ma'am." I saved my work on my computer and shut it off. Me: "sebemnkile?" Lakhe: "yes." Me: "senityile?" Lakhe: "no." Me: "why?" Lakhe: "Khangе usiphakele." he sulked. Me: "oh wow. In the middle of being insulted mna ndiyaphaka? If that's not witch behavior, I don't know what is." I laughed very hard at my own joke. Lakhe: "you think this is funny?" I shut my trap. Lakhe: "wena iyahlekisa kuwe. Yidyubhadyubha, its nice." Me: "but babes, we all know I'm not a witch, therefore andiboni reason yoqumba ndirhuqe umlomo." Lakhe: "mnxim." Me: "really? You're mad at me now?" Lakhe: "I don't know why unje!" Me: "ndinjani?" Lakhe: "how do you let people treat you badly and still feel sorry for them! Its sick. Uyagula wena." Me: "I'm not even going to explain myself to you right now. Balambile abanye abantwana." I walked to the kitchen ndafika Sandile engaphakathi embizeni. Me: "Wenzanton?" he looked at me. Sands: "I was re-heating for you." Me: "really? With gravy on your chin?" Sands: "cela undiyeke wethu Spho. I'm stressed." he walked out of the kitchen. Me: "ni-special nina." ndiye ndakhuphela ukutya onto large bowls and took them to the dining room. Everyone came to sit. Everyone being Sandile, Rob, Dumi and Sibub. They had reappeared after the drama. I went to call Lakhe in the bedroom. Sabuya sazotya. Lakhe kept staring at his phone. Rob: "this is delicious ntombi yam." Me: "enkosi tata." Rob: "don't you think, son?" Lakhe: "hm? Yes, very. Enkosi baby." Sands: "can I get another plate please." Me: "sowugqibile?" Sands: "bendilambile." I dished up for him. Me: "Sibub, Dumi? Still okay?" Dumi: "yeah...I just have a tummy ache." Me: "Uphi uRebecca?" Dumi: "she went to fetch some of my supplies." Me: "ndikuphe iyeza lesusu?" he shook his head. Me: "why?" Dumi: "Spho, in case you haven't noticed, I'm in a wheelchair. It is a complete James Bond movie for me to go to the toilet, now ufuna ndihambise and make poopoo on myself? No. And I'm not wearing no diaper neither." Sandile was in stitches of laughter uSibub eziba ecaleni yena kusehla inyembezi. Dumi: "I'm glad some of us find it funny." Me: "Sandile! Stop it!" Sands: "I can't" he crawled out his chair and sat on the floor ephelile yintsini. Rob: "mnxim. Sandile. You're being an idiot." Sandile wasn't even trying to stop laughing, tears were streaming down his face. Sands: "I. Can't. Fucking. Breath." he cried. Dumi: "Fucking die." Sibub gave up and laughed out loud joining Sandile on the floor. Rob: "ni-childish bonanje." Lakhe: "what happened? What's the joke?" Me: "what joke?" Lakhe: "heee, everyone is dead laughing. What did I miss?" Me: "maybe your iPhone recorded it, why don't you check it babe." Lakhe: "really?" Rob: "khaniphakame nina nobabini!" Dumi: "Spho, can you please prepare all my meals from now on, I don't trust those two, apparently I'm their live broadcast of Comedy Central. Only God knows what they'd do to me just for a laugh." Me: "Sandile khayeke lento uyenzayo man." Sandile breathed with his eyes closed uthe wovula amehlo and looked at Dumi waqala ekqaleni. This time he got up waye roomin yakhe. Me: "don't worry about them abasoze bakwenze nto. Sibub, did you do what I asked of you izolo?" he stopped laughing. Sibub: "no ma'am." Me: "why?" Sibub: "bendinceda uDumi. Since Beks wasn't home." Lakhe: "Sibulelele, you need to start taking responsibility now! Sort yourself out. Make a decision ufuna ubaphi kakhle kakhle." Sibub: "I want to be here bhuti. I feel at home apha, like a real family. If I go back to Durban I'm going to be miserable. I love being here." Lakhe: "then go get the rest of your things from Durban, and start clean apha. Stop lingering in between. Uxelele la tshomi yakho to attend his meeting tomorrow at 8am. Wena I'm booking you a plane back to Durban to sort out your affairs. Akhomntu uzohlala aphole inqiniba endlinam. My wife is the only one allowed to do that." Sibú: "yes sir." I collected the plates from the table ndazisa kwi dish washer. Me: "can I get you a drink tata?" Rob: "please mntanam. Double shot of whiskey, no ice." Me: "okay, Lakhe?" Lakhe: "Cognac. Same." Me: "Dumz?" Dumí: "just water please." Me: "Sibú?" Sibú: "I'll have a beer sisi." Me: "alright." I went to fetch their beverages, putting them on a tray ndazisa kubo. I went to my bedroom after ndakhulula ndayongena kwi shower. I wanted cold water to touch my skin. I stood under the shower head and it sprayed me with cold water from head to feet. I washed my body, rinsed and washed again. Ndaphuma ndingcangcazela taking the towel from the rack ndasula. I dried my hair with the towel ndakhupha hair dryer. I blow dried it thoroughly. Ugqiba kwam ndaya ezingubeni. Ndazithambisa ndangena under my blankets. The electric blanket was on and lightly heating my sleeping space so ubuthongo sebusiza. I heard the door opening. "Spho." I opened my eyes. Me: "hm?" he closed the door and walked to bed. Lakhe: "ulele baby?" Me: "trying to." Lakhe: "benihleka ntoni noSandile?" Me: "I wasn't laughing." Lakhe: "yeah but behleka ntoni?" Me: "I have no idea what was so funny kuye." Lakhe: "but nam ndifun uhleka." he got in next to me. Me: "I honestly don't think anything was funny. Dumí uthe kum uphethwe sisusu, so I asked if he wants me to give him something for isusu, then he said, that he's in a wheelchair and its already a James Bond movie for him to get to the toilet and now if uyahambisa he's going to make a poopoo on himself plus he doesn't want to wear diapers." Lakhe giggled. Me: "don't start." Lakhe: "poopoo." he laughed. Me: "you guys are childish." Lakhe: "I love this family. I just love all of you here. With Sibú, Dumí and my dad even. Then kubekho uMother Hen who makes sure everyone is fed and happy. You're amazing." Me: "thank you." Lakhe: "I think we should go for the adoption. I want my boy to grow up in a happy place like this." Me: "boy? No, ndifuna intombi mna." Lakhe: "hayi ke sisi, intombazana yile izophuma apha kuwe." I smiled. Me: "masilale." Lakhe: "no..." Me: "what do you mean no?" Lakhe: "ndigqibele kdala Uhlala nomntu wam ndimvise kamandi and just be happy." Me: "is that so?" Lakhe: "yes..." he kissed my neck tracing my shoulder with his lips. He came up and kissed my lips, him tasting like the Hennessy he was drinking and hint of cigar. He got on top of me, looking me in the eye. Lakhe: "I love you." Me: "nyani? I thought we agreed not to get attached." Lakhe: "ungandiqheli sisi please." I kissed his lips again. He slid down slowly to kiss my breast, sucking slowly on the nipple.

His tongue twirled around the nipple and his hand reaching in between my thighs. He fiddled his fingers on my pussy lips and finally found a way in, slowly pushing his middle finger inside. My eyes flustered closed letting him take me to a world of clouds and candy. He traced his kisses down my stomach and kissed my inner thigh. He pulled out his finger and licked it then placed his lips on me. His tongue danced on my clitoris electrifying me awake. I gasped for air to breath. His entered a finger again while sucking on me. Me: "baby...." I muttered. Me: "please take me" he stopped and kneeled on the bed. Stared at me in the half darkness. He came to kiss me on the lips and without me being ready penetrated his erection deep inside me. I squirmed under him like I was under a spell. He moved in and out holding my left leg up. After a few gentle strokes, he put my leg over so I lay on my side. Me: "Masilakhe...." I moaned. He drilled inside me with his eyes closed. Lakhe: " baby wam...." he breathed. I held onto the pillow and listened to his steady rhythmic strokes as he picked up pace. Me: "babbyyy...." I could feel my climax reaching. Lakhe: "Shhh...." Me: "slow down baby.....I'm.....gonn.....oooohhh." he held my thigh and stopped. Lakhe: "baby.....you gonna make me come wena...." Me: "baby don't stop kaloku." I flipped onto my stomach, lifting my ass north. Lakhe: "OOOOHH. Shhhhhhit!" he continued as slowly as possible. Me: "faster daddy." he went faster. Me: "right there.....yesss....yeesss!" Lakhe: "Spho.." Me: "baby!!!" Lakhe: "Oh fuck....." Me: "baby! Baby! Ohhhhh!!!!" Lakhe: "Spho..." he went harder. Me: "keep going daddy..." deeper. Faster.... My body was shaking uncontrollably. Me: "Lakhe!!" Lakhe: "yim.....bab....." I finally climaxed, cascading into an internal waterfall. He lay on top of me and held me tight, releasing everything. He sighed in relief. Lakhe: "my.....goodness." I was feeling more lighter even with him on my back. Me: "thank you baby." Lakhe: "thank me? Damn.....I almost died. Yuuuh. Andikwazi nophakama, I promise you." Me: "so you want to suffocate me?" Lakhe: "not my queen." he pulled himself out massaging my back with kisses and caresses. Lakhe: "I love this ass. I think its gonna send me to my grave." Me: "hahaaa!" Lakhe: "I was about to say something insensitive. Ndiyicinge just before iphume emlonyeni wam." Me: "thetha..." Lakhe: "no. Its not nice." Me: "at least you acknowledge its not a nice thing to say but now You've got me interested." Lakhe: "you have a big ass babe." Me: "that's not insensitive." Lakhe: "it isn't. I was going to compare it to a certain mountain." Me: "Ohhhh. Ndiyakuva kengoku. Unyansile. Get up, ima get you some water." Lakhe: "khaze nala bofile ye Hennessy man baby. Not the regular, I want The Paradis one please. Its curvy-" Me: "I know what Paradis looks like babe. Uzoyi'dash'a nganton?" he looked at me as if I was crazy. Lakhe: "what is that?" Me: "mix. What will you mix it with?" Lakhe: "hayi akhonto ndizoyifak imix mna. I want to taste my alcohol as raw as my woman. Iza ne glass mntu wam nala ice bucket." I went to the bathroom to clean myself up ndathatha gown and slippers walking to the bar. There was nobody around the living area. Abanoba sebelele at this time? Its not even 9pm. I took the bottle, ice bucket and glasses then went to the room. Me: "baphi abanye?" Lakhe: "abekho elounge?" I shook my head. Lakhe: "they probably went out. Its Friday anyway." Me: "why doesn't it feel like a Friday to me." Lakhe: "because uzenza umakhulu. Take this." he gave me a double shot. Lakhe: "bottoms up bhabha." I drank the contents feeling the burn in my throat. Lakhe: "there we go. My turn." he drank his double shot. Lakhe: "do you want to go out?" Me: "with you? No." I laughed. Lakhe: "why?" Me: "uyathanda uqumba xa unxilile wena. You're not friendly at all." Lakhe: "I'm very friendly." Me: "no you're not." Lakhe: "hm." Me: "ufuna uphuma wena?" Lakhe: "not with you. No." Me: "why not?" Lakhe: "have you seen yourself? Kuzofuneka ndicimane nemililo ngenxa yakho. I'm not in the mood to fight." Me: "There's one place I know we can have an endless party." Lakhe: "oh? Where? Don't tell me

Cubana." I switched on the music system in our bedroom. He lay on the bed and watched me do my dance endihleka. Lakhe: "awukwazi tu shame bab-" the song started and I became serious. Lakhe: "wow...okay." he sat up. I did DJ Bongz' Gwaragwara dance nditshintshe ebusweni ke phof. Lakhe: "tshesa baby. Woza!" ndaske ndatyhafa and laughed. Me: "what are you doing?" Lakhe: "ndiyi cheer leader yakho nje. Khazapha. I want you to do this on top of me." Me: "you are nasty yazi." Lakhe: "khonwabise umntu wakho wethu. Akhose Cubana apha." I got on top of him facing the other direction. Me: "like this ?" I twerked on him. Lakhe: "Yes.... lthi kancinci..." he placed his erection up. Lakhe: "Betha ke baby." Me: "awusengcole." I laughed. Lakhe: "hayi baby kudala undivimba tshi. I have to come up with tricks. Bounce my love." I slipped in deep. Lakhe: "oh....babbby." I looked back at him. He had his glass of Hennessy in his hand. I picked my ass up a little and pushed it back down then started a rhythmic pace. Lakhe: "ahhhh....my love...." he swallowed. I bounced faster on him, he held my waist. Lakhe: "baby.....woah...ima kaloku..." I stopped. Then started to grind on him in circles. Lakhe: "babyyy kaloku...." his voice sounding so merciful warming my insides. I could feel him getting more restless inside. I started bouncing up and down again. Lakhe: "Spho!" I went faster. Lakhe: "Sphose....nk...." I just needed to orgasm again, I could feel it coming ...so much better when I was quiet and just listened to my body. Lakhe: "Sphosenk....osi.." his hands digging into the sheets. Me: "oooohh!!!!" my body stiffened into a long happy climax.

Me: "damn..." I finally stopped and opened my eyes. I got up. Lakhe: "don't step on the floor. I broke my glass." I flopped onto the bed. Me: "that was so amazing." he kept quiet and just looked at me. Me: "what?" Lakhe: "you just fucked me like I was a little bitch." Me: "but you enjoyed every second." Lakhe: "my ego is bruised." Me: "you deserve to be spoiled and pampered like a little bitch. Being fucked and loved. Stop complaining." Lakhe: "cela undiphinde ke maybe ndizoyiqhela." I laughed. Me: "you're so sneaky." he kissed me. Lakhe: "I'm not going to stop until I see the sun bonanje. Uzolala ksasa shame. We should have more of these date nights." Me: "a date night is actually going outside. Awufun undisa eCubana wena." Lakhe: "nantsi Cubana nje ukuyo. Here's your Henny, nantsiya dance floor, ndim lo ndine vibe, There's music." Me: "une vibe ne baby?" Lakhe: "ewe ndine vibe. Ndi-vibey." Me: "hamba Bhut wase Cubana one-vibe." I went to fetch the towel. And so the night went on. Playing and dancing together like little kids...

I woke up the next morning. My head slightly throbbing nothing too much. Lakhe was snoring ecamkwam ude watipa shame. I got out of bed and walked to the bathroom to brush my teeth and wash my face. Ugqiba kwam I went back to bed, I really needed another nap. I didn't have any plans kakade for today. I cuddled my fiance and closed my eyes. Lakhe: "hm.hm...vuka sisi. We need to go to Bay West." he mumbled. Me: "its too early." Lakhe: "2 hours ke.." Me: "fine." I fell back asleep. Waking up over 3 hours later. Lakhe was on his iPad. Me: "morning baby." Lakhe: "you mean afternoon?" Me: "serious?" Lakhe: "its 12. Awulambanga? Come here." he kissed my forehead. Me: "I am.....or not. My tummy is feeling funny." Lakhe: "you're hungover. I'm gonn make you something. Iza." Me: "let me shower." Lakhe: "okay you'll find me in the swimming pool, unxibe costume." I went to shower ndabuya segqibile ukondlula ibhedi. I wore my bikini, took my towel ndaphuma phandle. Me: "Where's everyone else?" he shrugged. Lakhe: "made you breakfast. First sela this for bhabhalaza." Me: "it smells disgusting." I got into the warm pool. Lakhe: "just drink it. I'm fetching your food." I drank the nauseating beverage ndayigqiba. It made my tummy even worse. Lakhe: "ina ke baby." he placed the tray on the table. Lakhe: "come eat." Me: "I feel like ndizohambisa. This drink is horrid." Lakhe: "okay, you're being dramatic. Its not that bad." I got out the pool. Me: "I'm feeling worse than before. I just need bed. I'm tired." Lakhe: "okay. Ndizoza ne tray. I'm right behind you." I dried my feet and walked into the lounge. Sandile had finally reappeared. Me: "hey Sands." Sands: "hey. Why you looking at the ceiling uhamba?" Lakhe: "she's sick. Une bhabhalaza from last night." Sands: "please do not remind me of last night." Me: "what happened last night." Lakhe: "nothing baby. He was drunk. Keep it moving." I walked to my bed, dried myself ndakhulula bikini ndakhwela phezkwayo ibhedi yam. Lakhe: "try a little nibble ubenokwazi ulala with something in your tummy. Okay?" I nodded. I nibbled on my food kancinci and finally had enough. Lakhe: "awufun amanzi?" I shook my head. He put the tray on the dresser and came to bed pulling me into his arms. Lakhe: "you're never like this nje baby xa ubusela ngezolo." Me: "its been a while." Lakhe: "that's true. Uxolo sthandwasam. I should've never made you drink like that." Me: "its okay baby. Just need nap now." he kissed my head. I fell back asleep in minutes waking up feeling a little better but it was late afternoon. Almost 5pm. Lakhe wasn't in bed. Instead there was a note on it stating he was at the mall and he would be back soon. I sat in bed for a little while. Why do people drink xa bezovuka and waste an entire day being sick? What's so fun about it? Oh wait...the fun is the drinking part, laughing and dancing.....feeling free. That was definitely fun. Lakhe: "my queen." he walked in. Me: "hey you." Lakhe: "feeling better?" Me: "yeah.." Lakhe: "perfect. I'm gonn make us a quick supper. Utata ufuna simse airport, he has a flight to East London uyolanda some of his things." I got dressed in my soft pink leggings and top. Me: "okay." he held my hand and walked me to the lounge. Dumi: " you okay?" Lakhe: "usele wagqiba Paradis wam by herself." Sands: "and she's still alive?" Lakhe: "MY wife. Not you." Sibu: "what's Paradis?" Sands: "Hennessy. Awuyibawel qadidi mntase? You'll feel much better." I shook my head. Lakhe: "yeka umntuwam Sandile. Uphi utata?" Sands: "he's on the phone outside." Me: "Rebecca?" Sands: "she's giving Boogie a bath. He was playing with the ducklings today, it was so cute, I have to take him for swimming lessons." Lakhe: "oh? Dogs get swimming lessons and my friends get pushed into the pool?" Sands: "YOUR friends. Not mine." Lakhe: "mnxim." he went to prepare supper. I sat on the couch ndibukele TV. Rob came inside and sat next to me. Rob: "I've cancelled my trip, I'm leaving on Monday." Sands: "great, so we can go to our thing ngomso?" Rob: "okay nyana. We'll go to the thing. Nontombi, uright? I didn't see you today." Me: "I'm okay tata. Just tired." Rob: "oh." he took out his S6 Edge. Rob: "I want you to do something for me." he whispered. Me: "sure tata. What is it?" Rob: "its between you and me." Me: "of course." Rob: "good, because ndifuna undenzele lanto ine pictures like uSandile." Sands: "I heard my name." Me: "eyiphi into tata ene pictures?" Rob: "like an account where I put my pictures on. He said it wasuhm...inst...something with a kilogram at the end." Me: "oh instagram?" Rob: "uyichanile mntanam. Khandifakele." I wanted to laugh but I didn't want it to seem as though There's something wrong. He actually skipped Facebook wafuna straight ulnsta. Number 1 tata. Lol. He gave me his phone and I downloaded it then set up an account for him. Me: "there. Now you ready to roll. Take a picture, put a filter if you like, write your caption, and post it. You can follow me here." Rob: "nice. Uphi yena uLakhe?" Me: "he doesn't have any social network." Rob: "wow." Me: "nanku noSandile. Follow him." he clicked on follow. Me: "ungabuka ne pictures zakhe." Rob: "ndiyambona nanku. Hehehee." Sands: "tata." Rob looked at him. Sands: "did you just follow me on instagram?" Rob: "ewe tshi." Dumi: "he has instagram?" Sands: "Ewe! Nanku engu Robbie. Dad stop this." Rob: "hehee!" Sands: "I'm blocking you mna. Next thing you gonn learn how to commen- Really dad?" Rob: "khome wethu, uyabora ngoku. Sibuy what's your account name?" Sands: "its called a handle." Sibuy: "I don't have instagram tata." Sands: "I'm deactivating mine now." Rob: "mnoxim. I'm gonn find myself friends." I showed him how to upload pictures again. Lakhe: "nenzantoni?" Me: "instagram pictures." Lakhe: "andibizwa ngoba?" Rob: "Uphi owakho instagram ulindele ubizwa?" Lakhe: "owam ngulo ka Spho kaloku. We share our stuff." Rob: "but azikho pictures zakho." Lakhe: "I don't have pictures." Rob: "then you don't have instagram." Lakhe: "I'm not going to argue with you further about an app." Rob: "Awunayo kaloku." Lakhe: "babe, cela uzondinceda torho." Me: "alright." I walked after him to the kitchen. Lakhe: "dad's lawyer is drafting the divorce settlement. Meaning this thing could be done in about 3 weeks. If not a month." Me: "so quick though?" Lakhe: "my dad has connections everywhere. If he could be divorced by ngomso, he would be. But ke that's impossible, this the best his lawyer can do." Me: "okay ke." Lakhe: "I want us to get married Spho. Please." Me: "I already said yes baby." Lakhe: "next Saturday." I stared at him. Lakhe: "you can have the week off to plan what you need. We're doing small and simple remember? Maximum of 30 people." Me: "are we still doing it overseas?" Lakhe: "no babe. We don't have time. Inoske ibeyi honeymoon leyo. For now we can focus on our intimate wedding." Me: "and the traditional?" Lakhe: "No." Me: "we're not having a traditional wedding?" Lakhe: "hehake Sphosenkosi. I barely know anyone beyond my brother, sister and father. Kunye nomama. My uncle is an exception. I don't want a traditional wedding yet." Me: "but I do." Lakhe: "okay. Babes, we will do the traditional wedding later. Is that okay?" Me: "no Lakhe. Its not okay. If we're getting married. Sizotshata sigqibe qha. That's it." Lakhe: "okay fine. I don't know how you're going to manage to plan two weddings in one week. Your choice though." Me: "you're going to plan the first one." Lakhe: "Me? I just said-" Me: "You're marrying me. You're going to help me." he sighed. Lakhe: "can't we hire someone? I have work to do." Me: "uh huh. Of course. I can also hire you a wife if you like. Two for the price of one." Lakhe: "Wow. Ndikwazelaphi ukwenza umtshato mna?" Me: "I know you're smart you'll figure it out. I have to call ma. Please tell your dad so that he can tell your family." I went to my bedroom to call my mother. After a lengthy conversation about our plans, Lakhe walked in. Me: "okay mama I have to go. We'll meet in the morning. Okay. Love you too." I hung up. Me: "hey babe." Lakhe: "uhm...I have good news and bad news." Me: "bad news first." Lakhe: "my father isn't on good terms with the rest of his family. Except utanci obviously. So bad that, he doesn't even want to talk about them." Me: "and the good news?" Lakhe: "he's going to try and talk to his sister. Everything is up to her now. If she agrees, then we can go ahead siyotshata ekhaya." Me: "okay. At least. So for now I'm going with mom siyokhangela a dress. Then, get a venue." Lakhe: "alright. Sibulele will fix the entertainment and Sandile will sort out the invitations." Me: "we're only having 30 people." Lakhe: "that's why its Sandile's job." Me: "catering." Lakhe: "I'll look through my list. I have a few companies that cater for my events. On Tuesday, get the decorations in order. Uhm....beverages as well." Me: "the priest. I'll ask my mom to sort that out, but you know what that means." Lakhe: "uhm....no." Me: "we have to sit with him for counseling for a few days." Lakhe: "I'm not doing that. I don't need counseling. Marrying you is not that traumatic." Me: "we're doing this the right way. We're inviting God into our family." Lakhe: "can we go eat?" Me: "baby? Please? Can we just do this the right way?" Lakhe: "I don't need counseling. I don't need to be fixed." Me: "fine Masilakhe." I walked out the room to go eat.

2 days later, Tuesday afternoon. I was with my mom and Zintle shopping for the wedding. Its been 2 days since Lakhe and I had a proper conversation. His dad went to East London on Monday, which was yesterday and was due back today. I wasn't really in the mood for anything. I don't know if I even wanted to get married. Mama: "honey. Are you okay?" Me: "no.." Mama: "what's wrong?" Me: "I don't know if this is the right thing to do." Mama: "what?" Me: "Lakhe doesn't want to talk to umfundisi. He says he doesn't need counseling yena he doesn't need to be fixed." Mama: "love, its normal to disagree kwezinye izinto but its your job to make your husband feel comfortable. Assure him its not being spoken down to or being advised. Tell him its just spiritual guidance to help you both on your journey." Me: "Lakhe is stubborn mama. I can't." Mama: "you're stubborn. You're getting married in 4 days. Talk to him. This isn't healthy." Me: "ubungadikwa ngutata wena before you got married?" Mama: "definitely not. We couldn't keep our hands off each other. Spoke on the phone if we were apart for more than 20 minutes."

Me: "okay mama." Mama: "these dresses are gorgeous." Me: "pink mama? I'm not having pink at our wedding. Might as well just wear black and pretend someone's fashion sense just...." she stared at me. Mama: "you're pregnant." Me: "no. I'm just tired." Mama: "you're glowing. You're moody. You've been eating Lays all day." Me: "that's because you didn't let me have breakfast mama. I'm hungry. Plus I use the egg mixture you gave me for my face. I'm not pregnant." Mama: "is that why you moved the wedding sooner?" Me: "mama, utata ka Lakhe is getting divorced. It will be finalized in a few weeks and immediately after that he's jetting off to travel the world. Lakhe wants his father to be happy, but also wants him there on his wedding day. That's the only reason." Mama: "but why is he divorcing?" Me: "Andiyazi mama torho. My back is starting to hurt now. Can we go home?" Mama: "only after we choose dresses for your bridesmaid." Me: "just take the pink. We can go." she looked to the cashier. Mama: "we'll take the lilac dresses please. Two medium sizes." as she took out her wallet. I sat on the couch. Oko ndivuke izolo at 6, ran around till 8 ebsuku. Woke up again today, I've been on my feet all day. I was allowed to be tired. We finally left the store and caught up with Zintle ehamba noZingi. Me: "hey babe." Zingi: "hi sweetie uright?" Me: "I'm.....fine. Are you going tonevermind." I don't know how it slipped my mind that Zingi was pregnant and now her 5 month old tummy was poking out. HOW. HOW. How will she be my bridesmaid? Zingi: "I understand tshomi. Why don't you ask Lakhe's sister?" Me: "oh yes... Uyamazi?" Zingi: "yeah. Sandile told me about her." planning a wedding was stressful. I should've hired someone like Lakhe suggested but instead I was being stubborn. Proving to everyone that I could do it when in actual fact, I couldn't. Mama: "love, why don't you go home and relax ndigqibezele mna?" Me: "no mama, I want to help you." my phone rang. It was the groom. Me: "Hi." Lakhe: "Spho." Me: "yes?" Lakhe: "can you please fetch my dad. He's at the airport and andimva ncam ba Uthini." Me: "right now?" Lakhe: "yes. He just landed." Me: "ok." Lakhe: "thank you." I hung up. Me: "I have to go to the airport to fetch daddy in law." Mama: "you girls go, I'll finish up. Uyophekela utata mfazi. Go." Me: "okay mama. I'll call you later." Mama: "alright my angel." I went to the car and drove with the girls to the airport. The whole time bencokola kuhlekwa. It was funny how I was now missing my groom. I wanted his hug, I wanted to smell him. At the airport I found Rob waiting for me with a small suitcase. I was disappointed because I thought ukuya kwakhe eMonti uyolanda izinto zakhe. He came to the car wakhwela. Rob: "molweni." he smiles. Zintle: "molo tata." Zingi: "hello tata." Rob: "thank you my angel for picking me up. They're bring in my cars next week." Me: "its okay tata, I don't mind. How was East London?" Rob: "well...the same way I left it. Except this time my house is a ghost town. I had to let Vicky go." Me:

"oh no tata. Umntana wakhe is supposed to go to varsity in 4 months." Rob: "I've already said I'd take care of the schooling and supporting them. Vicky is taking a business course, I'm helping her start her own supermarket." Me: "oh? That's lovely tata." Rob: "yeah." he couldn't have just given her a lump sum? Either Mr Sobz senior was too generous or was guilty of something. We arrived at our house to my surprise uMasilakhe K. Sobukwe was home. Rob: "my sons." he went to the boys. Zintle: "tshomi. Khangе utsho uSibu ukhona!" Me: "I didn't? Why is he here khona?" Zintle: "don't act stupid!" Me: "no seriously, he was Durban. Maybe usandobuya." then there was Sandile and Dumi. Now thaaat was awkward. Well, for Zingi. Funny enough, the two guys were talking and laughing over some video on Dumi's ipad totally oblivious to us. Me: "anyone hungry?" Sands: "ubhuti made us food." ubhuti? I'm as confused, do not ask me. He finally looked up. Sands: "but I'm hungry again. Only your food makes me full mntase." Me: "I'm sure ubhuti has some left." Sands: "it wasn't even that nice-" Lakhe: "you licked the plate." Sands: "first of all, I don't lick plates. My tongue is strictly for pussy, food and talking. Secon-" Rob: "Thank You Sandile. We get the point." I went back to my friends. Me: "Zingi, you okay?" Zingi: "not really tshomi." Zintle: "yep me too. Sibu likes me, I do not want a relationship with him and I don't wanna be rude. I'll call us an Uber, is that okay?" Me: "I don't mind driving you guys home." Zingi: "babe. You're tired you're stressed. We understand. Just relax, drink some wine." Zintle: "yeah, we'll go check Fez at work and update him. Don't worry." Me: "okay." she contacted an Uber vehicle. I poured some juice in the mean time basela until the cab arrived. Me: "thank you guys for today." Zingi: "pleasure love. I'll see you tomorrow for the fitting of your dress. Then siyobona venue." Me: "okay. Don't forget teaching uZimi her steps please." Zingi: "definitely." Me: "Zintle uyaphangela?" Zintle: "yes babe. We'll meet each other Thursday for hair and nails.. Also the make up rehearsal." I hugged them goodbye and they left. I went straight to my room and flopped on my bed. I just needed a few minutes to myself and I spoke too soon because the door opened and closed. Lakhe: "you okay?" Me: "no. I'm tired. Back is aching." I was sleeping on my tummy. He sat next to me and massaged my back. Lakhe: "should probably take it slow." Me: "hm..." we kept quiet.....as usual. Things got like this ke. Just silent. Mnxim. Lakhe: "I'm sorry I acted like a jerk. I know how much this wedding means to you and you want it to be perfect. Its not going to be perfect, not in the slightest. Kodwa I'm going to do right by you, stand by you, support you and respect you. So the priest can counsel me on how to do all that." I blushed. Lakhe: "please don't tell me You've fallen asleep again. This is what you did when I tried talking to you last night." Me: "I'm awake. Come here papi." I hugged him. Me: "thank you my love." Lakhe: "Te amo con todo mi corazón." Me: "what is that." Lakhe: "I love you with all my heart." he kissed my head. Lakhe: "have you eaten?" Me: "no, mama made me eat Lays all day and said I was pregnant." Lakhe: "hahaha!" me: "hleka." Lakhe: "xolo baby, So usister ka tata has confirmed. She and her daughters will be attending the wedding. There's only one issue." Me: "what?" Lakhe: "the traditional wedding is in East London." Me: "at your parents' house." Lakhe: "ya." Me: "I need more of that massage." he started massaging my back again. Lakhe: "dad will sort everything out. Everyone is driving to East London Saturday afternoon after our intimate wedding in the morning. Then Sunday senze ke the traditional." Me: "can't I fly? I don't think I can handle driving for hours." Lakhe: "me neither, I'll book us a flight." he lay his head on my pillow. Lakhe: "let's practice again making a baby." Me: "no. We'll practice when we're married." Lakhe: "hayi ke ngoku. Ndiyavinjwa again?" Me: "awuvinjwa niks." he stared at me. Lakhe: "awusengcole." Me: "have you heard from your mom?" Lakhe: "why would I hear from her?"

Yinton endidibanisa naye?" Me: "Masilakhe." Lakhe: "uxolo baby." Me: "she's going to be at her house obviously and how will that work for us? What if she refuses to let us marry pha?" Lakhe: "firstly that is my dad's house and he will sort it out. Besides, I doubt umama uzobakhona pha. Akavani nosister ka tata." his phone rang. Lakhe: "I wonder ngubani kengoku lo." he stared at the number. Me: "maybe its one of your other girlfriends." Lakhe: "ewe nhe? Maybe ushota nge tuition fees." Me: "phendula omnye umntana." Lakhe: "ndihleli nomfazi wam njena." Me: "who's about to strangle the shit out of you if you don't answer that call." he laughed. Me: "phendula." he answered the call. Lakhe: "Masilakhe Sobukwe speaking." he listened to the caller. Lakhe: "who am I talking to?" another pause. Lakhe: "what!!" I looked at him. Lakhe: "who told you this?!" Me: "what is it?" he hung up the phone and closed his eyes. Me: "what's wrong?" Lakhe: "I am going to kill her!!!" he roared. Me: "who? Why? Uthetha ngabani? What happened?" Lakhe: "some fucking newspaper is asking why I'm abusing the mother of my child! This bitch went to the fucking papers endazi ukuba I hate publicity!! I hate igama lam emaphepheni! She's going to bloody pay for this with her life so help me God!" Me: "bab-" Lakhe: "Don't." he got up and stormed out.

I ran after him down the passage only catching up at the lounge. Me: "Lakhe, calm down." Sands: "what's happening?" he stood up and pulled his brother. Me: "someone from the newspapers called asking about Dez's pregnancy." Rob: "what?" Lakhe: "khandiyeke man Sandile. Just let go of me." Me: "Lakhe, this is what she wants from you. A reaction. This Reaction is the one that will get the press talking. You need to think!" Lakhe: "are you saying I'm stupid Spho?" Me: "I said no such thing." Lakhe: "khandiyeke Sandile." Sands: "I can't. You going to have to go back to your bedroom and listen to your wife. This behavior isn't going to get you anywhere." he let go of him. Lakhe: "how could she do this?" Dumisani: "you could use it to your advantage though. Nobody knows you, therefore if you go out there you need to be the opposite of what she interprets you to be." Rob: "that's exactly true. So calm down. The next call to come through your phone yiphendule. Uthethe kakuhle." Lakhe: "I hate attention tata." Rob: "I know you do nyana. Kodwa you're going to have to be strong now. Its time for the world to understand how soft and considerate of a man you are." Sands: "soft?" Dumisani: "considerate?" Lakhe: "I'm none of that." Rob: "not with these two, but with Spho. Can we just admit that with her in your life You've opened up a bit?" Sands: "Yes. I agree." Me: "come...we'll deal with this in the morning. Right now you need to relax. If you're all over the place shoving your anger towards the media, you'll be giving her the win. Masibaphoxe for once babes." Lakhe: "I'll be in my room." he went to the bedroom. Me: "thank you." Rob: "just make sure he doesn't do anything stupid. Lakhe xa enomsindo is like a bull. Right now he needs to be tamed. The last thing we need is a scandal." I nodded and went to the bedroom. Lakhe was in the shower and it was on full blast, no doubt cold water because I couldn't see a trace of steam. I waited for about 10 minutes which is when he got out the shower. He dripped of water walking in the bedroom. Me: "my love." Lakhe: "you don't need to babysit me. I'm not a baboon." Me: "I wasn't babysitting. I just want my man back next to me. Besincokola kamandi apha. Why does Dez and her tricks have to come between me and you?" Lakhe: "I just don't like what she did. I'm allowed to be pissed off." Me: "yes...and I'm allowed to make you feel better. Come here." he sat on the bed. Me: "can I sing to President penis?" he smiled. Lakhe: "stop trying to seduce me. Andikagqibi nohlamba." Me: "you just got out the shower." Lakhe: "andikathambisi. So andikagqibi." Me: "I'll get your lotion and massage you nhe." Lakhe: "no I got it." Me: "can you please let me take care of you?" Lakhe: "No. You know I appreciate you with everything you do for me. I just don't feel like being taken care of. I want a little bit of me only, with you next to me." Me: "you're confusing me." Lakhe: "let me carry on doing me. Don't fuss. I'll be fine." he went into the closet eyothambisa wanxiba pajama yakhe and came to bed. I needed to go eat something before I fainted. Me: "do you want anything? Sandwich? Juice?" Lakhe: "no baby. I'm fine." I went to the kitchen. Rebecca was cooking supper. I made myself a sandwich. Frying an egg first ndabeka pha esonkeni. With a leaf of lettuce, tomato, avocado, fried a patty. Becca: "I'll be done soon." I completely ignored her. Bendilambile and she was lying to me. I closed my sandwich ndazigalelela ijuice. I took my food to the bedroom ndahlala on top of the bed. He stared at me. Me: "what?" I chewed. Lakhe: "nothing baby." Me: "why undijonge olohlobo." Lakhe: "you're beautiful. Ndiyakubuka qha. How are you feeling?" Me: "much better now." Lakhe: "khandiphe. This looks appetizing." Me: "bite." he bit my sandwich. Lakhe: "why ungandenzeli mna?" Me: "I asked you specifically. You said no." Lakhe: "Khangе utsho ukuba uzokwenza into emnandi. You weren't specific." Me: "sandwich is being specific."

Lakhe: "the ingredients weren't mentioned. The taste. Bendicimba mna uyokwenza peanut butter and jam sandwich." Me: "Wow." he ate my food ndashiyeka ndingenanto mna. Lakhe: "uxolo mntu wam. Ndizokwenzela enye." Me: "andiyifuni enye." I sulked. Lakhe: "ungade ukhale. Ufuna ntoni baby? Ice cream? Yogurt? A car?" Me: "khandiyеke wethu. Uthe uRebecca uzondiphakela." Lakhe: "bekunini ngoko ephaka. Let me check on her, hlala apha." he took the plate and went out to the kitchen. His phone rang ndayikroba. It was Babalo. I let it ring till it stopped ndayifaka ku silent. I put the phone in the drawer ndayivalela. The reason why I did that is because I know uBabalo. He wanted to go somewhere and drag uLakhe. I didn't want Lakhe to go anywhere. He needed to be inside this house to keep sane. He came in the room with the full plate. Lakhe: "nantsi ke baby." Me: "enkosi." I started eating. Sands: "bhuti!" he yelled from the passage. Lakhe: "what does he want now?" Sands: "bhuti. Your ugly friend is here." Are you fucking kidding me? Sometimes I forget he lives just next door. Lakhe: "I wonder ufunani ke yena." I kept quiet. He walked out the room. Again I took the phone and put it back on ringer ndayibeka on the dresser. Babalo can be so stupid. Lakhe came back in. Lakhe: "ufuna ndimkhaphe uya eJeffreys Bay." Me: "hm." he sat down. Me: "uhleleli ntoni kengoku." Lakhe: "I'm not going to Jeffreys bay. I'm tired kakade and not in the mood for them." my heart jumped in joy. Yena wonke athi hayi kwi friends? Its a brand new day shame. Me: "alright." Lakhe: "didn't you hear my phone ring?" Me: "I did." Lakhe: "kwathin ungaphenduli baby?" Me: "I have two answers for you. The first one is because asiphendulelani phone. We never agreed on that. Secondly, even if we did, I would never answer Babalo's call." Lakhe: "he bought you a cute bag though." Me: "his wife did that." Lakhe: "kodwa bab-" Me: "no Lakhe. I don't like him and I never will. Just like you don't like Fez." Lakhe: "I never said I didn't like him. We just don't vibe." Me: "hm-kay." he took a bite off my chicken. Me: "are you having a bachelor party?" Lakhe: "as if I have a choice. Sandile won't hear none of it, inguye noDumi." Me: "they're lonely kaloku." Lakhe: "behlala kangaka kunye? Bathanda nje umosha abaya. Khona Uphu uKhanya?" Me: "I have no idea. Have you asked him?" Lakhe: "he almost chopped my head off when I did. I don't know why I even bother. He's not one for commitment. His relationships last a month tops." Me: "why is that?" Lakhe: "I shouldn't be telling you this, matter of fact I'm not telling you anything." Me: "khawuthethe wethu. Ndihleli ndikuphathela i-fillet." Lakhe: "hayi baby. Ugqibele kdala mos." Me: "undivalela kulendlu kaloku. Khathethe man." Lakhe: "fine. He has commitment issues because his girlfriend cheated on him." Me: "That's it?" Lakhe: "it was painful. They'd been together since high school. He was even thinking of marrying her." Me: "then what happened?" Lakhe: "the worst. Her parents arranged for her to be married to some guy. Sandile offered to marry her as well. Her family didn't accept him. Zange bamthande even before the whole thing. This girl ended up marrying the dude and unfortunately she was pregnant." Me: "with who's baby?" Lakhe: "the dude." Me: "so that's why she was getting married in the first place?" Lakhe: "ya." Me: "damn...that is hectic." Lakhe: "he couldn't sleep for months, got admitted to hospital twice for depression. He was beyond broken. I doubt he'll ever go back to that Sandile. He just doesn't have the heart anymore." Me: "but that doesn't mean all girls do that." Lakhe: "of course not. Kodwa ke." Me: "shame man." Lakhe: "but karma has a way of presenting itself. Akonwaba kungoku lamntana in her marriage. I see that dude most of the time and uyasithanda istrato namacherrie amancinci." Me: "well obviously, watshatiswa engekagqibi estratweni." Lakhe: "yeah well." he took his phone. Lakhe: "I've got a meeting tomo- I mean we...we have a meeting with a Telkom representative." Me: "so you can show him the progress I've made? Underline I'VE."

Lakhe: "subanjalo. You're obviously invited-" Me: "to my own meeting? Presenting my own work? I'm invited? Really? Thanks love. Remind me to RSVP." Lakhe: "okay. The only thing that should go with your sarcasm is a shot of cognac. Would you like some?" Me: "only if it has my hard work sweat in it. On the rocks." Lakhe: "I'll take that as a no." Me: "admit that you want to steal my contract." he looked me dead in the eye. Lakhe: "I want to steal your contract." now what? I didn't expect him to really admit it. I thought we'd argue a bit! Why does he always change my dialogue! Me: "why!!" Lakhe: "because I want something challenging and fighting with you is challenging."

Hence contract theft. Its a huge deal." Me: "but its MINE." Lakhe: "Ours." Me: "you're trying to get me mad. I see what you're doing. I got you. I saw you looking at your phone receiving a text! You received a text! You want me to be angry so that I can argue with you, sixabane and you can walk out and go have fun with your stupid friends! You planned this. I know you." Lakhe: "are you done?" Me: "just go! I see that I'm depressing you. Hamba netshomi yakho! I don't care." Lakhe: "are you done?" Me: "I'm done!! Go." Lakhe: "first of all, uyandichaza because you don't even know why you're mad. You're just putting things together in your head and convince yourself you got it. My love, you don't. Firstly, you own part of my company, I keep telling you to sign those papers, awufuni, not my problem. Secondly, if OUR company signs a contract, it belongs to the both of us and our team. Not just one individual. Thirdly, we are getting married in three days. You need to believe in sharing your things, you need to stop being selfish and throwing your toys out when you want to make a point. Fourthly, if that's even a word, I didn't receive a text. I received an email. And last, but definitely not least, its from the jewelry company that is carving our rings yesterday I got a sample of your finger print to be carved on mine, and mine on yours. They will be ready by Thursday. Is there any comment you have reserved?" Me: "I'm sorry." Lakhe: "pardon me? I didn't get that." Me: "I said I'm Sorry Lakhe. I was wrong. I don't know what's wrong with me today. I just get so frustrated. I yelled at mom, I wanted to sleep. I can't sleep but I'm tired. You make me so mad and I hate your friend and everyone is getting on my nerves!" I cried. Lakhe: "I'm sorry baby, I didn't mean to make you cry. Please don't cry. Shhh." he hugged me. Me: "I don't want to cry! Its the tears that keep coming out." I wailed. Lakhe: "love, I'm serious. Please stop crying. Uyamazi utata uzongena apha and think something is wrong. You know him. Thula baby." Me: "okay." I wiped my tears. Lakhe: "I'm sorry mntuwam. I didn't mean to make you cry." Me: "its not you. You're right. I'm selfish. I don't know why all of a sudden. I've always shared my things." Lakhe: "well I don't blame you. The last time you shared your things, someone betrayed you. I understand that." Me: "I think I want to sleep now." Lakhe: "masilale." he put the plate on the table and we got into bed..

Thursday morning, I had lots to do. My hair, my nails plus our spa treatment. The dresses were ready. The venue was booked. Pastor was briefed, yesterday we had gone to the church after Lakhe's big meeting. The catering company was coming to our house later on to show us and let us taste the dishes we asked for. Mama fetched the decorations. Me: "mama. Awunayo grandpa? My head is spinning." Mama: "sela amanzi. Andinayo grandpa." Me: "you always have grandpa mama." Mama: "utatakho told me to stop using it." Me: "any headache pills?" Mama: "nope." Zintle: "I think I hav-"

Mama: "the water will be just fine. Sela." I took the water and drank. We were at the salon kwaqalwa ngomama since she had to go do final arrangements. She only did her nails intloko ezoyiyenza ngomso. Zintle did her hair so long. Nosi already had hers done in Cape Town. I didn't want to change mine, just washed and dried it. Zingi was at Lulo's school for a meeting. I did my nails noZintle and we finally headed out for the spa. My mother went her own way for the arrangements. At the spa, Zintle ordered herself champagne I had water because even nangoku I was still dizzy. We had our massages. Zintle: "did I do something wrong tshomi? Umamakho wandixhaya sana hehaa!" Me: "you did nothing wrong babe." Zingi arrived. Zingi: "girls..." Me: "hey hun. Unjani?" I tickled her tummy. Zingi: "hungry and tired." she sat on the chair wakhupha pie watya. Zintle: "kodwa tshomi ndiphoxelweni?" Me: "to cut a long story short, she thinks I'm pregnant." Zintle: "well, are you?" Me: "no." Zingi: "why no? Awulali noLakhe Dan?" Me: "I do." Zintle: "you use a condom?" Me: "no." Zingi: "are you on contraceptives?" Me: "no." Zintle: "then how can you Not be pregnant?" Me: "I just know." Zintle: "have you ever been pregnant before?" Me: "that's not even the point." Zingi: "you should take a test." Zintle: "yeah. Your boobs look bigger." Me: "you're a perv. I'm going to take a test and prove to you both that I know my body. I am just exhausted." Zingi: "as long as you take the test. I'm cool." Me: "can anyone give me a headache pill?" Zingi: "not until You've tested." Me: "mxim." after our massage. We had foot rubs and pedicures. Zingi: "so sizokwenza ntoni ngomso guys?" Me: "nothing too wild please." Zintle: "nothing too wild? Do you realize that your husband will be covered in strippers wena you're talking about nothing too wild?" Me: "actually I overheard uSandile and Sibuy talking. They're just having a braai at the house. Lakhe said he didn't want anything out of order." Zintle: "Lakhe is too strict. He should've been a priest." Zingi: "so that means we can't have strippers?" Me: "why would we want strippers?" Zintle: "You've never been to a strip club before?" Me: "to do what? That place is for lonely men." Zintle: "lonely rich men. We're going to a strip club." Me: "what?" Zingi: "yaayii!!!" Me: "erh....hold on." Zintle: "love, accept it. Unless you want us to kidnap you." Me: "I wasn't raised like this." Zingi: "none of us were. We're just born this way. You'll love it hun. Promise." heee ndizothi ndiyaphi kumama bendikhe ndamva ethetha izinto ze kitchen party nje? After our treatments, I went to drop the girls off. Then drove home. There was a white Polo Vivo parked in the driveway. Endaweni yemoto yam. This, this very this, made me extremely agitated. I can't. I just can't. I switched off the engine ndayongena endlini. Rob: "oh there she is." "umakoti ngowethu. Siyavumaaa!!!" this lady sang and sang and saaang until my ears vibrated. I just stood there with half a smile and half a frown. Could she just move her car please? That's the only thing I'm asking for. Lakhe: "love. Are you alright?" I looked at him. He could tell there was something wrong. He touched my forehead. Lakhe: "haibo Spho. You're burning." Me: "I'm fine. Molo ma." this lady came to hug me and a younger version of her came too. Rob: "this is my sister, Nomfundo and her daughter, Vuyiseka." Nomfundo: "hello sisi. Awusemhle sanqa. You are so much beautiful." exactly the way it sounds in your head is how she said it. With a twang. Me: "enkosi mama. Mna ndingu Sphosenkosi." Nomfundo: "ndivile sanaz." Vuyiseka: "ngeyipi le bonding." she touched my hair. I moved away from her. Me: "its a Peruvian weave. Mandiyopheka ma-" Nomfundo: "sephekile uVuyiseka my love. Come in the sit with me. Ndifuna ukwazi." I looked at Lakhe, he held in giggles. I went to sit with my aunt in law wandincokolela ke telling me about herself. Vuyiseka was oddly quiet behind me. Okay, firstly what was she doing behind me? I turned around ndabambeka ngenwele. Oh my God. She was playing with my hair! Me: "what are you doing?" Vuyiseka: "zintle ezinwele." that was not the question. Nomfundo: "hayi man Vuyiseka yeka inwele zomnye umntana!" Me: "no its fine mama. Awufuni uyokwenza eyakho intloko?" she beamed at me. She was really beautiful with big brown eyes and white straight teeth. I checked my time, it was still early. Me: "okay masambeni mama." Nomfundo: "ithi Dubs wethu mfazi. Uske Ube formality wena." I chuckled. We got in the car and drove to the salon. So they weren't so bad. My irritation had gone away and I'd reserved my selfishness for people who deserved it. These two ladies definitely didn't. Me: "unangaphi mavuyi?" Vuyi: "ndina 18 sisi." Me: "18..... Wenza ntoni kulonyaka?" Vuyi: "ndisahleli sisi." Dubs: "ugqibe ufunda kulonyaka upheleleyo. Wafumana ke ezo piece job apha naphaya. Besando apply'a for i-intention for January." Intention? To do what? I was a little confused. Me: "intention?" Vuyi: "ewe. Ndizoba yi intern." Oh she meant an internship? Me: "Ohhh! That's lovely. For eyiphi company?" Vuyi: "Jason & Kyle Inc." Me: "iphi lo company?" Vuyi: "ise monti." I had a question... Me: "dubs. If I'm not mistaken, i-family ka tata ka Lakhe is in Durban?" Dubs: "ewe mntanam." Me: "ngabezulu." Dubs: "Defs." Me: "but, wena notata nithetha isixhosa." Dubs: "ndemnka ekhaya emveni koba ubhuti emnkile. Ndazohlala apha ebhayi for few years, then ndaya eKapa, ndaya eMonti after 6 years. Oko ke ndihlala khona. Family yethu is very too much complications. Ngelinye ixesha kubetter uziqalele eyakho into. Ukhubone?" there was too many secrets with the Sobukwe household. Me: "I see." I stopped the car at the salon entrance. Me: "at least basavulile." we went inside. Me: "so nizokwenza ntoni entloko." Dubs: "ndifuna ibob ene highlighting engathi iblond. Not exactly blond. Something like gold but not too gold." she had a light complexion. So, I was convinced it would suit her. Me: "Sharly, can she get a highlighted bob? With frontal closure." Sharly: "sure." Me: "Vuyi wena uzofakela ntoni?" she shrugged. I know she was being shy because uyaqala undibona but she wanted my hair. Me: "16 inch Peruvian lace. Straight." Sharly: "same grade?" Me: "yeah." they did their hair while I waited on the couch. Bendinayo nendawo eyozelayo. So I took a young nap. Sharly woke me up when they were done. Young nap huh? I paid and got up. Me: "thank you so much Sharly. Anisebahle. Do you like your hair Vuyi?" she nodded. Me: "awusemhle dubs. Ingathi uzovela kwi TV." Dubs: "enkosi mntanam wethu ngosi spoiler kangaka." Me: "its a pleasure dubs. I'm just glad that ukhona. With all the drama that's been happening, at least There's someone from family ka Lakhe that I can talk to." Dubs: "idrama? Yantoni ngoku?" Me: "umama ka Lakhe. She hates me badly." Dubs: "ooooh. Ungandixeleli ngoNyela mna. Elagqwirha libhabha ngomtshayelo emini. Us'hlangu. Matshayela, istokhwe socitha. Sies. Undenza naar lantombazana tshongo mlomo ingathi lisele. Yeses. Ndatsho ndakhonyuluka." Me: "Wenza izimanga man. Ubizana noDez i-ex ka Lakhe endlin xandikhoyo. Now uze naye apha ebhayi last week caba unontombi umithi kuthiwa kumntana ka Lakhe." Dubs: "limenemene lamfazi. Unezigigaba after zigagarbs yena." I giggled. Dubs: "khajikele apha kwa Spar love. Ndifuna uthengela uVuyi i-pads." I stopped at Spar sayongena sonke. I took a glimpse of the pregnancy test. Then took it ndakhawleza Uyibhatala and shoved it in a plastic bag. I waited by the door innocently. I just didn't want anyone's hopes up. This was to prove a point. Nobody had to know endlini. Dubs: "done." When we arrived at home, everyone was in the lounge kuncokolwa. My parents were here too. I ran to my daddy and hugged him. I'd missed him so much. Khaya: "hello my baby." Me: "hi tata. I missed you. Umsebenzi wakho uyandishiya ngoku." Khaya: "Never. Ndishiywe nguwe. You got yourself a new dad." Me: "still miss you." I took a long whiff of his scent. Rob: "daddy's little girl." Khaya: "forever and always." he smiled. Rob: "abam abantwana literally can't wait to be out of my sight. Ndithi ndifika ndibuzwe ndihamba nini." Khaya: "you should've just had one. Azokwazi ubane sthukthezi akukhumbule." they laughed. Lakhe: "Spho..." Khaya: "ahh..There's my second one." Lakhe: "molo tata." Khaya: "what's wrong?" Lakhe: "we forgot to do the step." Me: "its Thursday." Khaya: "kuzofuneka niqale tonight and do the whole of tomorrow. Practicing. Its a small ceremony. With a small venue. Its not much of a big deal. Ningazihluphi kakhulu." Me: "I'll call Fez to come over asincede." Lakhe: "really? Why him?" Me: "he's a good dancer. And he's free." Lakhe: "I don't mind paying." Me: "I meant free tonight and tomorrow. Of course you'll be paying." Lakhe: "Oh." I looked at the door. Wow. Look what the donkey dragged in. Stella. On another note, Nosi had arrived. Me: "hi Nosi!" she came to me and we hugged. I don't understand why Stella keeps popping up like toast. Rob: "what do you want?" Stella: "I came to drop off my daughter. I see the little family has finally reunited. Was this what you wanted Robert?" Rob: "Stella, can we talk outside please?" Stella: "outside?? Hell no! Since we're all a family. We should all be talking inside! Right?" Lakhe: "what's happening?" Rob: "Stella please..." Lakhe: "tata? Kwenzeka ntoni?" Stella: "you forgot to tell your son? Or chose not to?" Rob: "Nokwakha ndiyakucela. This is not the time." Stella: "when is the time? Give me a date or email me. So I can clear up my diary." Rob was clearly nervous and Stella knew this. She was playing into it. Tormenting him every way possible. Why was Dubs quiet? Letting her brother be emotionally abused like this? Rob: "I just want us to talk....please?" Stella: "Robert. I've kept so much of your secrets. And yazi, right now, I've actually come to realize, you're a dirty old man. You've been dirty. Your money. Your estates. Your companies. D I R T Y. Just like you. No matter what you do, no matter how many expensive clothes you buy, colognes you put on, shampoo you use. You can be Versace all day long and Givenchy yourself at night, but you're still gonna stay dirty." he moved closer to her. Stella: "don't you dare touch me." Lakhe: "mama, ndicela uphume endlini yam. Please. You're making everyone uncomfortable apha because Uhleli uvisa wonke umntu kabhlungu. Please leave." Stella: "will you tell him or should I?" Rob: "Nokwakha...ufuna ntoni? Name it." Stella: "cancel that divorce." Rob: "can we please talk outside?" Stella: "no." Lakhe: "TATA!!" Rob: "What!!" the look on his face was scary...anger.... Or frustration? Did Stella find out about the billion? About the company? How? Lakhe: "what is she talking about?" Rob: "nothing!" he walked to Stella and grabbed her arm. She pushed him away. My father held Rob. Khaya: "its not worth it." Rob: "Nokwakha please listen to me-" Stella: "when I met your dad. Masilakhe Sobukwe." she chuckled. Stella: "quite funny actually. Do you know the story he told you about his family is a lie?" Rob: "Nokwakha! Khayeke lento uyenzayo!!" Stella: "he didn't have a misunderstanding with them. He betrayed them." Rob: "Stella please." Stella: "Robert left home, 19 years ago." everyone in the house was dead quiet. Stella: "nobody gets it? No? Wow. With plus minus 15 degrees and diplomas in one room." Lakhe: "mama. What relevance is dad leaving home got to do with us? Sithini thina?" Stella: "my sweet beautiful boy. Your father was kicked out by his family because he slept with his younger sister. Nomfundo. Your beloved aunt. I'm sure this one wasn't expected." she stared at Vuyiseka. I felt light headed. Something was weighing me down. Khaya: "princess?" I could slowly feel my body dissolving to the floor then closed my eyes.

I woke up and looked around me. Lakhe was next to me and uDubs. I suddenly remembered what had just happened. Except why I landed in bed. Me: "I collapsed again didn't I?" Lakhe just stared at me. Dubs: "ewe sisi." Lakhe: "is there something I should know?" Me: "like what?" Lakhe: "I don't know. You tell me." he knew something and was waiting for me to lie. Luckily Rob and Khaya came inside the room. Rob: "Unjani nontombi?" Me: "I'm fine tata. Wena uright?" Rob: "I'm fine." Lakhe: "tata, what is umama talking about? Is this true?" Rob: "yes. Ndicela siyeni elounge sonke so I can explain myself." Lakhe: "yes. Please. Because I'm very confused now." we all went to the lounge. Sandile, my mother, Sibuyi, Dumi, Vuyiseka, and Nosi were sitting there quietly. Rebecca was in the kitchen. Sahlala phantsi. Mama: "uright Spho?" Me: "I'm okay mama. Just the headache again. Uphi uStella?" Khaya: "she's gone." Sands: "tata kum andicacelwanga yilento ugqibo kwenzeka. Ndicela for 20 marks undi explain'ele." Lakhe: "tata, you said to me you left home at an early age. How come ngoku early age is 46 years? How?" Sands: "and tata uyenza njani lento? Endlini kokwenu? I mean your sister? Really tata?" Rob: "I left home young like I said. I had my boxing career, ndigqibo funda also. I went to live eMonti with ubrother ka tata to focus more on the boxing. I'd never met uNomfundo before, she was my father's daughter and ebehlala klo mamakhe. All this time I thought it was only me and ubrother wam kutata. Qho xandisiya endlini sometimes ndifike utata engekho or ezohamba. Engafuni ubuzwa uyaphi. Anyway. Yahamba iminyaka, I had my companies. I was focused. I had uLakhe and uSandile. Often out on business trips and I met uNomfundo. We got involved for a few weeks then she disappeared on me." he kept quiet. Sonke phof we were quiet. Rob: "I'd fallen in love with her." he whispered. Rob: "I was ready to lose everything I had. I just couldn't find her." Sands: "awkwaaard..." he muttered. Rob: "I went back ekhaya a couple of months later ndiyoxelela utata. I needed his advice. I told him everything at first utata wasn't surprised that I wanted to leave my wife. Kodwa he didn't know for who. Or didn't realize ndithetha ngalomntu amaziyo. After spending a few days ekhaya utata andixelele that he's expecting a child. So mna ndicinge ukuba umama is pregnant. Which was a little impossible but nonetheless I congratulate him, thinking maybe he's taking a second wife. The next day, the child arrived ephethe izinto zakhe. It was her. I can't begin to explain the pain that I felt. Utata put two and two together waqala uyiqonda and threw me out. He disowned me because of his faults. Had I known I had a sister, I would probably have looked for her. That was 19 years ago and I'm not allowed ekhaya." Sands: "so do you still have feelings for uDubs?" Rob: "not in that way. No." Lakhe: "so then how does umama know all this?" Rob: "when I went back to my house obviously I couldn't pretend anymore. Bendinomsindo and didn't want anything." Lakhe: "I remember that time. I was in grade 9. You never attended any of my sporting events. Always claimed you were busy or sick." Rob: "ndiyaxolisa nyana...your mother called ekhaya and they told her that I'm a disgrace to the family and betrayed them and so forth. She was beyond angry." Lakhe: "why didn't she leave?" Rob shrugged his shoulders. Rob: "who knows what happens in Stella's head?" Sands: "so Dubs you never knew about utata?" Dubs: "bendiyazi ukuba owam utata unabo abanye abantwana. Wathi ndizobabona xa ixesha livumile. He never call Rob ngeligama silaziyo. After ndibone uRobert kokwabo wagxothwa bendiyazi nam ndizolandela kuba ndisandoziqonda ukuba ndimithi umntana wakhe. Ndingafunanga uxabanisa usapho lwabo and ndabe sendixelelwe kuba utshatile, ndathatha okwam ndayoziqalela ubomi obutsha." Me: "you never told him you were pregnant?" she shook her head. Dubs: "bendi 4 months pregnant and bendingafuni umkhupha umntanam. Ndahlala ke ndodwa ndisenza piece job until ndabeleka. Kukho omnye usisi obendincisedisa ngomntana ndihlala naye. Wa-mover waya ejoburg mna ndathi Andifuni ndaya ekapa, izinto azandihambela kakuhle ndabuyela eMonti wafunda pha umntanam wagqiba." Sands: "so kengoku tata uziva njani unomntana? Your own blood." Rob: "all of you are my blood Sandile. I'm also happy that I finally got to meet her even though bendingazi ukuba ukho. Why didn't you tell me?" Dubs: "hayi kengoku. Bingeyo good idea lonto. Fact remained that siyazalana. Wena buzofuna ubayi family and bingasoze isebenze lonto." Rob: "at least I would've been happy." he got up and walked out. Khaya: "we all make mistakes in life akhomntu uzalwa perfect. There's nothing wrong. Sonke siseyi family and none of this should make us feel any different." Me: "I'm not feeling well." I got up and went outside to Rob. He was standing in the garden alone. I could tell that he was really ashamed of what he had done. Me: "its okay tata. We all understand. You don't have to be feel bad about it. It was 19 years ago." Rob: "it feels like it was yesterday Sphosenkosi. I despise myself. Ingathi ndibulele. How could I do this to my own blood? Its as though I forced her. I can't forgive myself." I hugged his arm. Me: "its okay. People have done worse things in life. The only way they could cope was if they faced it head on instead of hiding away from the world. You're a strong, brave man tata. It took guts to sit there and tell the truth when you don't have to explain yourself to anyone. You're honest. You're apologetic and that makes it forgivable in my eyes. Anyone who judges you is nothing short of a devil themselves." he chuckled. Rob: "you're a great daughter. I wish I'd just had one of you and stopped. My life would've been 10 times better." Me: "thank you tata. You're also a great dad. Abantwana bakho appreciate you and love you just the way you are. There's nothing to be afraid of, the whole family has your back here." he wiped his eye. Me: "don't cry." Rob: "I'm not crying. Just an eyelash stuck in my eye." Me: "tata. You barely have eyelash hair. Come. Stop fibbing. Let's have our lovely dinner and plan your son's wedding." Rob: "speaking of wedding. Any chance you guys could speed up grand daddy time?" Me: "you're still young tata. You've got enough time. Come." I pulled him back into the house. Everyone was busy with the setting up and carrying on as normal. Me: "see? All forgotten. You have a new daughter you need to get to know." Rob: "thank you my princess." I smiled. Princess has two daddies. :D

Lakhe stood behind drinking his cognac. He was in a bad mood. I could Feel it. Me: "hey baby." Lakhe: "what did you say to him?" Me: "he just needed some support. Nothing much." Lakhe: "oh? Support? I need a little support understanding whether I call this girl my cousin or my sister. Dad said he couldn't have kids. Now all of a sudden he has his own blood child." he emptied his glass down his throat and stared at them viciously. Me: "baby....I understand why you're mad but your father loves you very much. You're his first son an-" Lakhe: "your little pep talk might work on him. I'm not stupid, he is over the moon that he had a child with the love of his life." Me: "but they can never be together. He knows this-" Lakhe: "but they have a child. Its not just a child. Its a love child. His blood." Me: "so you're jealous?" Lakhe: "I'm not fucking jealous." I scanned the room for Sandile and I found him walking over to us also with a glass in his hand. He stood next to his brother looking equally unhappy. Sands: "so what now? We're just garbage." Nosi: "look at her squirming and giggling at his jokes." Lakhe: "he's not even funny." Sands: "sometimes." Nosi: "so I'm not his little girl anymore." Lakhe: "we're nothing of his." Sands: "replaced like dish washing liquid." Me: "guys-" Sands: "don't give that 'He loves you very much' speech. We're not him." Me: "you know what? Fuck all of you. If you have a problem with your father, TELL HIM!!!!!!" I screamed. Everyone in the house stared at me. Lakhe: "it looks like you're the one with the problem. Why are you yelling?" Rob: "what's wrong?" Sands: "nothing dad. Sikuphazamisile? Leisure time?" Rob: "what are talking about?" Lakhe: "we didn't mean to interrupt you and your love child." Rob: "my What?"

Nosi: "yeah dad. We apologize." Rob: "okay, I see we have a problem now."
Sands: "a problem? Where?" Lakhe: "Spho the one with a problem. Maybe, you know, MAYBE you could huddle up in a corner and whisper about it and hug and advise each other to shut the rest of us out of your lives.

Our perfect Daddy Daughter couple." Rob: "Masilakhe, are you drunk?"
Lakhe: "andinxilanga tata mna." Me: "so I have a theory this anger is 70% directed to me." Lakhe: "You couldn't have been more wrong. Why would I be mad at you? Huh? You're perfect. Daddy's little girl along with love child. Rhymes like Drake's verses on a hit single." he took his keys and walked out.
Sands: "70% of that is you." Rob: "Sandile. Get your brother back in the house."
Sands: "why? So you could try and butter us like bread? No thanks dad. You can spend as much time as you like with your baby girl. I'm out." he walked out too.
Nosi: "don't even try me. I'm not here for you." she took out her iPhone and started clicking on it. Me: "ignore them. Sooner or later they'll come crawling back to you. Go to Vuyi. She hasn't had a dad for all her life, your focus should be on her. These 3 are my babies for the night, I'll fix them."
Rob: "enkosi mntanam." I went to the kitchen for a snack. Rebecca was taking the food to the lounge. After eating our dinner, the two men weren't back home. Both phones were off and I was starting to worry. Rob: "they're not in the same place." he wasn't just worried he looked scared. Khaya: "but they left together." Rob: "in different cars. One likes to drink his sorrows away, the other one smashes things. You can't really do that in the same place."
Khaya: "so who's the drinker? If we find him we might find the smasher." Rob: "Sandile obviously. Well.....finding Sandile is a bit.... How do I put this in regular words?" Me: "its hard dad. Its difficult finding Sandile because he is invisible."
Mama: "doesn't his car have a tracker?" Me: "he's driving the BMW. Which was given to him by ubhuti wakhe, so if I can find the tracking company."
Rob: "we all use the same one. Nantsi number yabo." I made the call. Me: "Hi? This is Spho speaking. I'm Masilakhe Sobukwe's wife. Listen, my husband has been missing for a few days, do you mind checking where his car might be because his phone is off and I'm worried now. He never does this." she shuffled about telling me about policy and and and... Me: "okay, Stacy, you said? Listen my dear and carefully. Should I find my husband was hijacked and killed, I Will personally send the police to you so they can take you to jail instead of the suspect." she went on and on. Me: "Its a great thing that I'm being recorded so that your boss can have a reference for when you lose your job. Bye Stacy." I hung up. Nosi: "why did you do that!!" Me: "wait for it."
Khaya: "I don't understand. Spho, you were supposed-" Me: "anytime now."
Rob: "I'm not sure about this." my phone rang. Me: "Spho speaking, hello."

Caller: "Hi. Am I speaking to Mrs Sobukwe?" Me: "yes you are." Caller: "great. You're talking to Greg. I'm sorry ma'am for earlier. Which car would you like for us to track?" Me: "the BMW i8...." he jotted it down with all our other information. Caller: "should we find the car ma'am do you want us to alert the police first-" Me: "No Greg. You can call me on this number. The detective is with me here at home. I'll wait on your progress." I hung up. Rob: "impressive!!" Khaya: "that cannot be taught. It is a gift." a cheating ex boyfriend will do that to you. Turn you into an FBI agent without the qualification. In a few minutes the phone rang. So quick? I put it on speaker. Me: "hello?" Caller: "Mrs Sobukwe....I'm afraid...I don't have good news." Me: "what's wrong?" Caller: "the car is off the grid." Me: "what do you mean?" Caller: "it seems as though...the tracker installed in the car was either removed or somehow damaged which I doubt. So I can't find the car. Is there anything else I can do to help?" Me: "Greg, can you trace the Audi then?" Caller: "let me try.." I heard clicking. A lot of clicking. Then a pause. And a whisper. Caller: "what the hell is going on here." Me: "what's wrong?" Caller: "ma'am. Both the cars can't be found." Me: "is it possible that the trackers are damaged?" Caller: "he renewed them a few months ago. Its impossible." Me: "can you see where my car is? Its the Mercedes." Caller: "just a sec." clicking..... Caller: "yep, here it is. I believe in your yard. This is your address right.." I confirmed. So both their cars, didn't have trackers. Me: "thanks Greg. Bye." I hung up. Rob: "they can be a pain xabethanda abantwana babini!!!" Sibuhle: "maybe I should go look for them." Me: "you know what guys, they're grown men. They did this on purpose. Sibuhle, you're staying here. Thina we should focus on the important reason why we're here. We're practicing. Welcome Fez noZintle. Would you like a glass of wine." Fez: "please hun. With the day I've had I would consider drinking iparaffin." Zintle: "yes please." I went to the kitchen and poured them their wine. Zintle: "is everyone okay?" Me: "yes. Just that the two important men have decided its a great time to disappear of the face of the earth." they took a sip. Zintle: "aren't you having?" Me: "maybe later." Zintle: "did you do it?" Me: "no. I didn't have time. Ndithe ndifika kwenzeka idrama, ithe yophela leyo noLakhe waza neyakhe idrama. Its a mess." Zintle: "you know this deep in your heart that's why ungafun usela ngoku." Me: "my parents are in the dining room." Zintle: "your parents let you have a glass of wine." Fez: "kwenzeka nton?" Zintle: "she's pregnant." Fez: "that's fantastic!!! Uzobangu mama?" Me: "NO!!!! Keep it down!!! And get out there and help those ladies practice!" Fez: "well damn girl." we walked to the dining room. My dad and Rob moved away the furniture so we could have space. The intercom rang. I went to answer. Balo: "hi Spho. Its me Babalo."

Me: "I can see you. I have a camera outside." Balo: "lovely. Can you open?"
Me: "your friend isn't here." Balo: "do we have to go through this again? I'm here for the wedding rehearsal." Me: "what wedding rehearsal?" Balo: "uhm....I'm one of the groom's men. Remember?" Me: "I don't remember because I don't -" want you here. Is what I wanted to say. Instead, I don't remember because I don't plan my own wedding. This piece flew over my head. Lakhe did not tell me. On purpose. How am I suppose to see Balo's ugly face on my favorite day? Balo: "so are you gonna open?" I opened the damn gate. He came in with his wife whom I was embarrassed that I didn't invite. I'd forgotten. Honest mistake. Or was it? Me: "hi Hlumi." Hlumi: "hey..I heard you were getting married." Me: "I am. Yep. Saturday. If I find my groom." Balo: "where is he?" Me: "if I knew..." slow down Spho. Me: "I don't know. He left." Balo: "hm.. Hi Dumz." Dumz: "we're not friends." Balo: "alright then." Siby: "want a beer?" Balo: "are we friends?" Siby: "Nope." Balo: "I'll have a beer." we started practicing our entrance. Actually abakhaphi. My part hadn't arrived yet. And its been two hours. Fez: "okay, okay. Take it from the top ladies. And a one, and a two... Naomi Campbell!!" the ladies strutted three dramatic steps forwarded. They were in a single file and their left hand on their hip. The right hand freely roamed about. Fez: "okay, I need to see a little bit of beyonce here. Flex your hips Nosi. I want a bit of attitude Zee. Again. From the top, one and a two. Beyonce!! Naomi!! Stop!" he placed his hands on his forehead. Fez: "I can't do this. I can't." he was in tears all of a sudden. I couldn't help but giggle. Fez was such a perfectionist, when he saw failure he literally cried. Everytime. Real tears. Mama: "awww sorry dear. Let's try again. Come girls. Again." Fez: "how could it be so hard? To mix a Naomi Campbell walk and Beyonce strut face? How? Tell me how??" he sobbed. Dabawo was a little confused. Fez: "one more time. From the top. Remember ladies, you're single. Spho is allowed to flop because her man will be marrying her. You on the hand, better Naomi walk and Beyonce look your grooms. From the top. And a one, and a two! Beyonce!! Naomi! Yes!!! Aaaaand stop. Look dramatically behind you in a slow motion. Perfect. Groomsmen. Take your places. Walk in... Trey Songz, hey, look at me. This isn't a bank queue. You're not at the ATM." I almost dropped my phone laughing. I was trying to make a video. Balo: "I'm Trey Songz?" Fez: "sweetie pie. Start over. and a one and a two. Walk, walk. What the hell are you doing?" Balo: "I'm walking." Fez: "No you're not. You're like a penguin paddling back to sea." I couldn't stop laughing. In fact, everyone inside the house was in tears. Balo: "should I Naomi Campbell too?" Fez: "Michael Ealy your lazy self inside. Again!!" they started over. Fez: "better. Now, as for your face. Try looking more dreamy. Right now you look like-" Balo: "I get it!!" Rob: "please let him finish." he clutched his stomach laughing. Khaya: "sungcola." he chuckled. Fez: "from the top boys!" Nosi: "my neck is getting stiff." Fez looked at her. Fez: "awww. And a one and a two! Walk, Michael. Walk. There we go! Ladies, here are your men! Men, kneel...hand over the flowers." the guys knelt and handed over. Fez: "2 seconds and stand, swirl your woman around and step, step. One and two. That's it! From the top!" Zintle: "we've been at the top for 2 hours!" Fez: "we'll be at the top till midnight cupcake. Brace yourself." Sibuyi: "I need water." Fez: "5 minute break guys! My elbows are sweating." he fanned himself to the chair. Rob: "I wish I had rehearsals everyday." Khaya: "he's quite a character." Rob: "from the top!" they laughed. 3 minutes later. Fez: "Break's over. Girls! Take position. Men. We're starting from the top." I could hear groaning all the way from the kitchen.

Later that evening, when I'd made sure everyone got to bed properly and were full. Fez had taken a cab home with Zintle. Babalo and his wife had left just before midnight. Dubs went to bed with Vuyi. My dad and Rob went to Newton park, dad's house. My mom went to the spare room here and the rest of my residents were in their holes. I showered and went to bed, my iPhone and iPad were synced so I watched the videos I'd made on my iPad. I started laughing all over again. Especially when it came to my part. (Fez: "Sphe, you're being Queen Elizabeth all over again, stop being stiff. Do you want a whiskey?" Khaya: "No!" Fez: "oh sweet pony Jesus. Why do I even bother. Again! Put some music on Sbu! Let me hear you say Heeeey Mrs Sobzi!" Sbu put on Beyonce's Partition. Fez: "gimme some!! Strut! Strut! There we go!" Me: "shouldn't we do a more simple one? I'm literally walking down the isle not into a club." Fez: "Do I look simple to you? Does my work look simple? Are you tryna say I'm a simple man?" Balo: "you're a man!!???" Fez: "I saw you staring at my dadoink dadoink." he dipped his bum to the floor. Balo: "that is disgusting. I didn't do that." Fez: "my butt distracts you Trey Songz. Admit it." Balo: "your butt isn't distracting." Fez: "so you were staring?" Balo: "I'm not gay." Fez: "then why were you staring-" Balo: "I wasn't." Me: "can we get back to my problem now. Please." Fez: "if you want to walk down the isle like you're doing grocery shopping then so be it. I am not part of it." he sat down and patted his eyes with tissue.) I paused the video and laughed out loud again. Fez can be so dramatic at times. I pressed play ndisahleka. My bedroom door opened. Lakhe walked in. He closed the door taking off his t shirt. His hands had blood and his t shirt. I was worried but wasn't going to move an inch. Tatakhe betshilo that he liked smashing things when he was mad. He went to the bathroom ndava nge shower. When he was done, went to the closet then came back to the bed wrapping bandages around his hands. He got in bed and under blankets. I was still laughing at my crazy family. Ndiyamazi mos mna ukhawuleza abene FOMO (fear of missing out) yena akakwazi uphoswa at all. Lakhe: "kumnandi caba when the outsiders leave." he mumbled. Me: "you know you're being a big baby right? Squabbling for attention like a toddler." Lakhe: "when will I be graduating to teenager-" Me: "the minute you stormed out the door and switched off your phone wanting us to worry. You're being childish Masilakhe. You're in your mid 30's. Your father raised and loved you with all his might. He waited until you were a grown MAN and had found yourself someone you love, and loves you back equally! He wasn't selfish, he never left you to fend for yourself! He was there and sucked up his pain just for you! Even today utatakho still puts you first! Because when you walked out that door, he wanted you back in this house! Umdala umngaka Masilakhe? Are you fucking serious? Vuyiseka has Never had a father figure in her life, she's not trying to take away yours! Why are you so selfish? You shared him most your life. Vuyiseka is your sister just like uNosiphiwo is. And you're going to love her! And you're going to accept her and swallow your stupid jealousy! There is no love child. You're all his favorites. So stop this nonsense!" I looked back at my iPad. The room was quiet for a while. Only the video played. It wasn't even funny anymore I was pissed off. All this anger had been put on hold when I was out there with the family. Lakhe: "I'm sorry." Me: "you should be apologizing to your father. And your sister. Not mna. Ndikwenze ntoni khona? What was that daddy daughter couple all about? You never had a problem with me chatting to your dad, why now?" Lakhe: "that's not why I'm mad." Me: "you're still mad? For what!!" he opened the bottom drawer and took out a spar plastic. Lakhe: "for this." he threw it on the bed. Shit. It was the pregnancy test. Me: "why does this make you mad again?" Lakhe: "because you were hiding it." Me: "I was not." Lakhe: "you tell me every single detail about your life. Why not this?" Me: "because it was a bet with the girls. Since mom thinks-" Lakhe: "WHY. NOT. THIS." Me: "I don't think I like your tone." Lakhe: "I don't think I like your dishonesty Sphosenkosi. When were you going to tell me? When the child turns 18?" Me: "I'm not even pregnant!" Lakhe: "did you take the test?" Me: "No! Because I'm not pregnant. I took a test, 6 months ago when we were in joburg or had come back. I don't remember kodwa it was negative." Lakhe: "between then and now. We have beeeen fucking. Unless you're on the pill. Are you?" Me: "no." Lakhe: "I don't even know if that's not a lie." Me: "why are we fighting about this? Its stupid." Lakhe: "because you lied to me." Me: "I did not lie Masilakhe." Lakhe: "you kept it away from me. You didn't tell me. You were going to do it and throw it away. And never tell me.

Lord knows what You'd do to my baby ndlela le ungandifuni ngayo." my eyes were welling up with tears. I couldn't cry in front of him again. I grabbed the plastic and went to the bathroom. Taking out the pregnancy stick from its box. I followed the instruction and pee'd on the piece I had to pee on. I was expecting him to come stand in the bathroom but he didn't move a bit from the bed. I finished my process and stared at the stick for the required minutes to see my result.....

I stared at the stick. I can't lie. There was a little hint of disappointment. All I did was stare at it. I think for too long also because Lakhe came in the bathroom. Lakhe: "how long does this thing take? You've been here for 10 minutes." I gave it to him. Lakhe: "what does this mean?" Me: "I'm not pregnant." he threw it in the bin. Lakhe: "its okay baby. We're going to keep trying. Its no big deal. Its just been a few months mos." Me: "I didn't want a baby, but when I sat down I was waiting for a positive result. How stupid is that?" Lakhe: "its not stupid my love. You do want a baby. Both of us do, but izokwenzeka when the time is right. We're not rushing anywhere. We should enjoy this time together alone for now. Come here." he pulled up my panty and walked me to bed. Lakhe: "you know I love you." we got into bed. Me: "love you too." I covered myself. Lakhe: "don't worry yourself too much about babies right now." Me: "what if there is a problem?" Lakhe: "we can go to the doctor and check ngomso." Me: "you have a suit fitting ngomso and me a dress fitting. Also rehearsals with Fez are a nightmare. I don't think you'll make your bachelor party." Lakhe: "I really don't care about that bachelor thing. We can move the fittings to 11 and get to the doctor at 8." Me: "do you really want to be there?" Lakhe: "Yes. You're my wife. Besides, you went alone the last time." Me: "okay." Lakhe: "awufuni ndibekhona?" Me: "I didn't say that. Don't want to disappoint you." Lakhe: "you don't disappoint me baby. I'm not worried at all because I love spending time with you alone. If kukho umntana uzothatha attention yakho yonke and I'm not sure I'm going to like it. I'm a big baby remember?" Me: "yeah you are." Lakhe: "come. Give me a hug and a kiss." I hugged him. Me: "thank you my love." Lakhe: "anything for my queen. I'll always be by your side no matter what." Me: "I've got stomach cramps. I think my period is coming." Lakhe: "when last did you have a period?" Me: "I can't remember. Its on and off." Lakhe: "oh...you were spotting last month. I bought you the tampons. Remember we were in my office, you said you weren't well. We took the day off." Me: "oh yes. Lasted two days only." Lakhe: "hm..." Me: "masilale. Long day ahead..." Lakhe: "still want my kiss." I kissed his nose. Me: "sleep." ...

The next morning I woke up just before 8. I looked next to me. Lakhe was still dead asleep. Me: "Masilakhe!" I sat up. Lakhe: "babe?" Me: "its ten to 8." Lakhe: "xoka baby. Ngu 6." Me: "Masilakhe. Get up." I went to brush my teeth and shower. He came into the bathroom to brush his teeth. He walked into the shower and washed himself. Me: "sizomfumana phi ugqirha without an appointment?" Lakhe: "I'll call in a favor. Mbonxiba my sweet." I went to the closet to look for something comfortable to wear. I looked for my plain jeans and a white umbrella top with thin straps. I wore a gold watch and my black Adidas sneakers. Which means I have to find another top because this one was too fancy. I found my white baggy vest and wore it. Lakhe: "done?" I brushed my hair straight and back then fitted a plain black cap. Me: "yep." he quickly slipped on his tight fitting jeans and all black Adidas Yeezy 950's. The boot. I already knew he'd wear a plain black t shirt since he didn't own any other casual t shirt that had any type of writing. Everything plain. Lakhe: "done. Let's go." he'd taken the white plain and was now carrying a black cap. Me: "uh-uh. No. You have to change. Wear the black t shirt. We look like toddler twins in church. No." Lakhe: "I'm not going to change. I had this in my mind before I even woke up. This is my Friday look. You change." Me: "I got dressed first." Lakhe: "then let's go." Me: "this looks very childish Lakhe." Lakhe: "we look cute. Masambe." I did the bed and we walked out. Only my mom and Dubs were at the table having breakfast. Mama: "awww anisebahle my loves." Lakhe: "see? Enkosi mama. Spheo thinks its childish." Dubs: "nonsense. Nibahle. Ni-cute." Lakhe: "exactly my point. Siyabuya kune ndawo esileqa kuyo quick." Dubs: "ibrakfesi yona?" Lakhe: "later Dubs. Sizoba late. Enjoy." Me: "bye bye." we went to the car and he drove off making the call. After he hung up, he looked at me. Lakhe: "what's wrong?" Me: "I'm hungry." Lakhe: "nam yazi. Maybe we could have breakfast first. Anyway our appointment is at 10. That was the doctor. Mugg n Bean uright?" Me: "yes." we stopped at the robot and I saw a young man holding a cardboard written his qualifications and phone number. Me: "babe." Lakhe: "hm?" Me: "jonga. He does marketing." Lakhe: "he doesn't do marketing. He has a degree in marketing." Me: "you're not gonna help him?" Lakhe: "you believe in saving the whole world, don't you?" Me: "no...but jonga ixesha? How long is he gonna stand there? he's dedicated." I wrote down the number. Lakhe: "okay. Fine! I'll call him later. Uyifumene number?" Me: "yes. Has he had breakfast?" Lakhe stared at me. Lakhe: "why unje Spheo? Why can't you mind your own business?" Mna? I can't mind my own business? Watch. I pressed down the window. Me: "Hi... Hello.... Unjani?" Lakhe: "the robots are going to turn green in a second." Guy: "ndiphilile sisi Unjani?" Me: "would you like to have coffee with us?" Lakhe: "what!" the guy hesitated. Me: "don't worry. We have a CEO in the car. Come." I leaned over Lakhe and unlocked the door. Guy came in the backseat with his cardboard. Guy: "molweni bhuti." I could hear Lakhe mumble under his breath driving away. Me: "hi. I'm Spho." Guy: "Molo sisi. Ndingu Luyolo." Me: "this is Mr Sobukwe. Have you tried applying at G-Cell?" Luyolo: "yes ma'am. Twice. I just have no experience." Lakhe: "so what are you going to do about that?" he parked the car then looked at the rear view mirror. Luyolo: "I'm willing to work for a few months, helping out and learning more about my industry in the company even without a salary. Whether it be stapling papers or getting coffee." Lakhe: "the first rule in business, never sell yourself short. You have a degree, which is one step ahead of many other people. Your job isn't getting coffee for anyone but yourself. Uhlalaphi?" Luyolo: "ndihlala eNew Brighton bhuti." Lakhe: "how long have you been standing at those robots?" Luyolo: "its been two weeks. Ndfika ngo 8 ndigoduke ngo 4." Lakhe: "why did you start doing that?" Luyolo: "because I'm tir-" Lakhe: "you don't start a sentence with because." Luyolo: "I'm tired of living in poverty. I don't want to follow my friends into crime. I want to build myself up and raise my daughter with clean resources." Lakhe: "how old is your daughter?" Luyolo: "she's 5 sir." Lakhe: "I want you in my office with your CV on Monday morning 9am." Luyolo: "Yes sir. Thank you so much." Lakhe: "stop crying." Luyolo: "okay." he wiped his tears. Me: "let's have breakfast. I'm starving." we got out the car sayongena kwa Mugg n Bean. Masilakhe didn't stop interviewing Luyolo. Me: "baby, stop. He's eating. Nawe itya." Lakhe: "I'm full." Me: "then sip your coffee." after our breakfast we dropped him off at Terminus. We rushed to our appointment. Me: "yazi I'm really proud of you." Lakhe: "you forced me into this." Me: "no I didn't. I saw you looking at his board ngoku besimisa. You just didn't have the courage to say something. You wanted to help him kakade, its just that you like being macho for some odd reason. God will reward you and shower you with blessings. You're a great person babe." Lakhe: "its just that, uyambona he's dedicated? Actually out there and hustling himself a job not lying at home waiting for something to miraculously happen. He has a daughter and ucingela umntanakhe. He's a smart guy this one. I want to groom him." Me: "Why unje Spho? Why can't you mind your own business?" I imitated him. Lakhe: "hlelisa." I laughed. Lakhe: "we're here. Come." we walked in the building and he went to the reception desk. Lakhe: "come babe." just before I sat down. We went inside the doctor's office. Doc: "Mr Sobz." Lakhe: "what's up Paul. This is my wife, Spho." Why was he friends with a doctor whom he's never mentioned to me at all? Doc: "hello Mrs. How can I help you today?" I looked at Lakhe. His phone rang. Lakhe: "Telkom. I have to take this. Qhubekeka baby. I'll be back." he walked out. Me: "I'm just not feeling well." Paul: "describe your systems." Me: "nausea. Being tired all the time. Sleeping. Fainting, that was yesterday. Unhealthy eating. Snapping at people. Everyone just seems to get on my nerves." Paul: "when last did you have your period?" Me: "last month I think." Paul: "let's check then." Me: "I took a pregnancy test last night. It was negative." Paul: "well....some tests aren't sensitive to accuracy. Especially at night or if its still early in a pregnancy. You want us to do an ultrasound first? Then if you're really not pregnant we can do tests to determine the problem." Me: "okay." he helped me up on top of the bed revealing my stomach. He tucked in a white cloth in my pants around my waist. He took a gel like cube. Paul: "this might be a little cold." he applied it on my abdomen then started the process. After a few moments of silence I started getting worried. Where was Lakhe? He said he'd be by my side. He always tries to anno- Paul: "Mrs Sobz." Me: "what is it? Is that my heart?" Paul: "nope. That's your baby." Me: "but I don't have a baby." I was about to cry again. Me: "how is tha..." Paul: "there it is." he pointed to the screen. Paul: "Perhaps your hcg levels were low. We'll take a few tests to check if everything is okay." Me: "is it bad?" Paul: "no. You have nothing to worry about hcg levels do not have effect to your developing baby. Unless they're dropping then you might miscarry. I'll check you and make sure everything is fine. Its a normal thing, don't worry. I'll give you some vitamins-" the door opened. Lakhe: "what's happening?" he looked at the screen. Lakhe: "Paul? What is that?" Paul: "that is your baby." Lakhe stared at the screen. Lakhe: "but....you said you weren't pregnant. The test was negative." Me: "how many months am I?" Paul: "you're 13 weeks." Me: "that's 3 months but I had a period. How is it possible?" Paul: "its normal. Most women have periods every month until they give birth." Lakhe: "heh man, I'm confused here. How did this happen? The test said she wasn't pregnant. Come, come, today she is. HOW." Paul: "like I've just mentioned to the Mrs, Hcg levels are usually responsible for negative test results. Its a good thing you both came to have tests done otherwise you'd never know you were expecting." Lakhe: "but is my baby okay Paul? Is she fine?" Paul: "the baby is perfectly fine." Lakhe: "is that her heartbeat?" Paul: "yes. Congratulations. You seem very adamant that its a girl, Do you want to confirm the sex of the baby?" Lakhe: "not really. I'mI'm okay." Me: "baby? What's wrong?" Lakhe: "nothing. I'm...just surprised." Me: "I thought you wanted a baby." the doctor wiped my stomach. Lakhe: "I did." Me: "did? Are you fucking serious?" Lakhe: "I mean I do...its just...its real." Me: "Masilakhe. You're scaring me." Lakhe: "I'm sorry baby." he fixed my top. Paul: "do you want a copy?" Me: "yes." Paul:

"sure." he went about his business. Me: "baby talk to me. What's wrong?" Lakhe: "nothing is wrong. I'm just" Me: "just what?!" Lakhe: "can we please just go?" after getting my medication and ultrasound I went to the car where Lakhe was waiting. This day literally turned upside down. Nothing we had expected at all. I was surprised. He was shocked. I was now scared maybe he didn't want a baby anymore. His phone rang again. He let it ring on and on and on. It was beginning to get on my nerves before I opened my mouth he switched it off. I don't know where we were off to but it was a freeway that was not going home or to the city. Within the hour, which felt like 7 hours. We drove into a small city. I was half sleepy. He stopped the car. Lakhe: "I'm scared." Me: "why are you scared?" Lakhe: "I kind of thought we had a few more months to be ready. I didn't expect this so soon. I have feelings of what happened all those months back when we lost our first. I didn't know it would hurt like this. I'm scared that we've been irresponsible lately and putting our child in danger." Me: "at least I'm in my second trimester and we know so we'll be more careful." Lakhe: "can we not tell anyone? For now...until you start showing. I don't want to harm my baby." Me: "definitely." he took off his seatbelt. Lakhe: "isn't she kicking already?" he touched my tummy. Me: "no. Its still early." Lakhe: "uzondixelela when she kicks? Please tell me." Me: "she? I thought you wanted a boy." Lakhe: "all embryos start as females then develop into their gender." I laughed. Me: "firstly this is no longer an embryo, and where did you hear that?" Lakhe: "mens health released an article." Me: "I don't think that is true." Lakhe: "I'll show you the article." he tickled my tummy. Lakhe: "hello my little peanut." Me: "pee? And nut? Really?" Lakhe: "you have a nasty mind. My baby is a peanut because umncinci not because of your mind." Me: "anyway, sizothini apha?" Lakhe: "I just wanted some time alone with umama ka peanut." Me: "what about our fittings Lakhe?" Lakhe: "they can wait. I just need a break." Me: "you do know Fez is going to kill us right?" Lakhe: "Fez is a little too much for me. I just want the three of us to spend time together." Me: "I think I'm hungry. Peanut ate my breakfast ksasa." Lakhe: "uright my baby. Itya mntanam ungak'linge utale. Ufuna ukutya ntoni sisi?" Me: "anything. Nankuya noSpar." Lakhe: "uzohlala Phi kwa Spar?" Me: "we're going to sit by the beach and have a picnic." Lakhe: "okay." we went to Spar. I took the small trolley and put in my two baskets. He walked to the dairy isle. I went after him. Nam bendiyibawela i-yogurt. I took the chocolate chip and he took the vanilla. We went to look for cooked food. Lakhe: "I think I want the macaroni and cheese." Me: "you eat take aways now?" Lakhe: "this is Spar. Not McDonald's. Uzoty ntoni?" I didn't want to be a copy cat so I took chicken pieces instead. We went to get buns, some juice and snacks. A lot of snacks. Lakhe: "sigqibile ne? Masambe ke. Peanut yena akafuni nto?" liyandihlekisa eligama lika peanut bonanje. Me: "no, peanut chose the yogurt he's fine." Lakhe: "she." we paid for the items and went to our car, Spending some time at the beach, eating and laughing. Me: "our family is going to murder us." Lakhe: "because we disappeared? Hayi wethu." Me: "everything must happen today." Lakhe: "they'll cope without us man baby. Maybe we should show up in the morning." Me: "I'm not ready to die." Lakhe: "its our wedding anyway. I told you masiye court sitshate sithule. But noooo Miss Thang had to bring the entire squad. Uyadika bonanje." Me: "oh? As if you didn't bring the squad BFF aka Babalo. Fez roasted him clean izolo." Lakhe: "that's why I don't like this dude of yours. He thinks everything is funny. Angak'linge andiqale ke mna. Uyow'fokofa pha kude ngaphaya kwe gate." Me: "he's just playful." Lakhe: "I don't even see a need for dance mna. I wait for you at the alter, you walk to me. We get married, we walk out. We go to our reception. Our appointed speakers talk for a few minutes. We have lunch and catch our flights to East London. Others drive. This is so simple. Why do we need an entire choreography baby?" Me: "its supposed to look special." Lakhe: "for whom? All the people we invited were also at rehearsals right?" Me: "so we should cancel the dance?" Lakhe: "no baby. I just can't dance mna and you know I don't want to make a fool of myself phambi kwabantu." Me: "My love, making mistakes and not being good at everything is part of life. That's what makes you human. At our wedding, you'll be dancing for fun, not for competition. Its something that you're supposed to enjoy doing, for your spouse and peanut." Lakhe: "I'll be dancing for peanut then. Wena uzondihleka." Me: "dance for your peanut ke baby. Andicingi ndihleke." Lakhe: "the doctor said you were 13 weeks? Uzokhaba nini kanti umntanam?" Me: "cela umlinda torho. Maybe when my tummy gets bigger. Umama uzothi its the reason for the wedding." Lakhe: "I don't care what they think. As long as my family is healthy and strong." Me: "she already said this. I don't know how she knew I was pregnant." Lakhe: "awuziboni wena?" Me: "No. I look the same." Lakhe: "I thought I was imagining things when I was holding your boob wandisusa isandla ebsuku." Me: "so? I was trying to sleep mos." Lakhe: "you made a disapproving sound. Plus you eat like an elephant." Me: "I eat exactly what you eat." Lakhe: "times two." Me: "mxim. You're walking back to Port Elizabeth." I got up and walked to the car. Lakhe: "I'm kidding! Heeee. Baby, it was a joke." he ran after me. Me: "its a good thing you have a sense of humor, it'll keep you entertained kulendlela uzoyihamba." I got in the car and locked my doors. Lakhe: "babe. Don't be like this." Me: "bye." I started the car. Lakhe: "haibo!! Spho!! Don't you dare leave me here. Sphosenkosi my phone is in there!!" Me: "Good." Lakhe: "Baby uxolo. I'm sorry okay? I didn't mean it. I swear I didn't." Me: "then why did you say it?" Lakhe: "because I have a runny mouth. Cela uvule umnyango babes. Please." I unlocked the door. He climbed into the passenger seat wafaka seat belt staring at me. Lakhe: "you were really going to leave me behind because of a silly comment?" Me: "its silly? I'm being silly now? I will throw you out of this car. Call me silly one more time!" Lakhe: "baby, the comment. What I said, that is silly. Not wena! We were fine a minute ago, what went wrong?" Me: "you called me an elephant Masilakhe." Lakhe: "I didn't say that." Me: "are you saying I'm lying kengoku?" Lakhe: "No. You're just over reacting." I hit the brakes. The car halted to a stop. Lakhe: "baby, you know I love you ne. Kodwa I didn't say you were an elephant, I said you ate like one, which was a joke but I am sorry it rubbed you the wrong way." Me: "do you realize how big an elephant is? Do you understand you're comparing me to a big animal?" I drove again. Lakhe: "baby, please don't cry. Iza ndiqhube. Please." Me: "I need to keep my mind busy." Lakhe: "you can play with my phone to keep busy. Please let me drive." Me: "fine." I stopped at the side of the road, we exchanged seats and he drove. Lakhe: "awufuni udlala a game?" Me: "No. I want to take a nap." Lakhe: "lala mntu wam." I lowered my seat and closed my eyes trying to sleep.

An hour later, we were in Port Elizabeth. Lakhe: "we're home." I checked the time, it was 1pm and boy were we in shit. The minute he parked the car in the driveway. His father walked out the house followed by mine and my mom and uDubs. Rob: "what the hell happened to you two!" Lakhe: "tata nditshilo kodwa siyabuya." Rob: "we were worried! Unable to find you both anywhere!" Lakhe: "uxolo tata." I got out the car. Mama: "iza ke mfazi, the dress is ready. Ukuba ayikulingani uyow'zibona." Me: "I'm sure its fine mama. Its not like I gained 10 kilos. Its just been two days." Mama: "nivelaphi?" Me: "just running some errands." Mama: "with phones off?" Me: "uxolo mama. We needed some time out qha. What's next now?" Mama: "silinde uFez. Okwangoku your make up artist ifikile to practice your look." Me: "why does she need to practice it mama?" Mama: "asiyazi what would suit you or what you like! Come." Me: "Uphi uVuyi?" Dubs: "bakwi practice noNosi noZintle." Me: "uNosi uyenzile ntloko?" Mama: "ewe. Ngoku ksasa." I sat down in my spare bedroom because nobody was allowed in me and Lakhe's room. It was rule that everyone obeyed silently. Kendra was setting up her equipment. Me: "Mama. Ndicela i-snack?" Mama: "okay my baby." she went to the kitchen. Dubs: "Inoba unovuyo, ndiyak'vuyela mntanam. Umhle, unembeko, uphinde ubene ntliziyo elungileyo. Uhlale unje ke sisi." Me: "enkosi Dabawo." my mother came back with the platter of finger food. Mama: "bezize for the sampling." Me: "is my cake ready?" Mama: "izoba ready ksasa kaloku yona." I ate my food actually making Kendra's job a little more difficult. Me: "we met a man today, he was holding a board by the robots. Kubhalwe qualifications zakhe. Lakhe offered him a job. It felt so good helping umntu." Mama: "that's lovely mntanam, kodwa Ube careful ngonceda abantu gqithi. Kuba abanye bazoku destroyer from inside." Dubs: "unyansile umamakho. Ngelinye ixesha ubokhe ubuye umva kancinci, kodwa ilungile into oyenzileyo sisi." Me: "yeah...maybe I have a problem. Maybe, if I started something that helps the youth find employment. Using G.com as our head company. We invest in youth business and offer help with business plans-" Mama: "okay! Stop!! You're getting married ngomso! Stop worrying about umsebenzi. That is for next week. Thula ngoku." I shut my mouth but I couldn't shut my heart. I texted Lakhe. Me: "idea brewing." Him: "meet me at duck palace in 20 minutes." I smiled. My fiance always found the time to listen to me noba ndithanda ukhala. It was almost 15 minutes when I noticed Kendra u-slow, she valued her work, she was passionate kodwa upholile sana. Me: "hun, I really am running out of time. Please try to hurry." I was excited. Kendra: "okay." waqhubekela. This was too much make up for me. I wanted something simple and elegant. Not to look like my wedding cake. Me: "okay. Hold it right there. I'll be back." I rushed out before anyone could say a thing sneaking to the Ducklings palace. Lakhe was waiting for me there. Me: "hey." he stared at my face. Me: "I don't like it either. Listen, you remember Luyolo the guy we helped?" Lakhe: "yes." Me: "how about we start a campaign that helps the youth start their own businesses." Lakhe: "go on." Me: "well, we provide them with help starting from a business plan, we provide funding and a project that can get them started. Also, we could mentor them and teach them more about their business." Lakhe: "we can't just pick any Tom, Dick and Harry to start a business Spho." Me: "that's the thing, maybe we should first hold a starter pack program, this would be a month training on how to be an employer, business ethics, customer service, the laws about having your own then at the end of the program we test the learners, those that are competent, go on to the next level, njalo njalo. Up until we choose perhaps 4 candidates that will work together to start their company." Lakhe: "how do we benefit kuyo yonke lento ke? The government won't be involved, you know that." Me: "we own the small company. A certain percentage of shares belong to us, the rest is theirs. At the end of the day, it's our investment. Once they are able to, maybe a few years down the line, they could buy us out and carry on independently." Lakhe: "fucking amazing. I love it. I remember there was a company in East London that did something similar. So when do we start?" Me: "as soon as the wedding is done. Everyone in that house thinks we're not interested kuyo." Lakhe: "are we..." he chuckled. Lakhe: "mna baby I like this idea. I'm gonn start with research and see which companies would be willing to join me. Nawe kwelakho icala, start putting this on paper. I want to have a proper proposal by Wednesday on my desk." Me: "Yes boss." Sands: "Again? Come on guys!!" he was standing by the corner. Sands: "why do you keep disappearing and having these private meetings? No man. Sinilindle kulandlu. Its as though we want to get married more than you two. Come!" we followed him inside the house. Khaya: "is there something you two want to tell us?" we looked at each other. Me: "hayi tata." Khaya: "then why do you keep running off together? Are you planning to elope after the wedding?" Me: "hayi tata." Rob: "then what could be the explanation?" Lakhe: "we were just discussing work." Mama: "Work? The day before your wedding?" Rob: "banjena ke. I am not surprised. Its like the hunger games when it comes to these two." Me: "uxolweni bazali. It won't happen again." Khaya: "damn right it won't. Say your goodbyes, you'll be next seeing each other tomorrow morning at that alter." Me: "hayi tata-" Khaya: "I mean it! Finish with your make up and pack your things nizohamba nomamakho niye kwi hotel yenu for the night. I'm not playing this hide and seek game with you." I hugged Lakhe goodbye. Me: "goodbye baby." Lakhe: "sukhala my intended. I'll facetime you for the rest of the day." Me: "okay. I love you." Lakhe: "I love you too." I let go of him and went to finish my make up. When we were about to leave, I heard a little commotion from the lounge. I finished packing all my things ndaphuma ne suitcase yam meeting everyone else in the lounge. Me: "what's happening?" Fez: "Apparently, I can't leave." Me: "why?" Sands: "all the girls know their stepping. We don't. Why must we be the ones looking like idiots?" Fez: "khandithi lahleka mna izolo. Had you been here like everyone else, you wouldn't have to look like an idiot, Idiot." Me: "okay, Fez, stay. Help them uzoza late." Fez: "njani sana ndishiyeke ndodwa apha noobhuti?" Lakhe: "kanti uyinton wena?" Fez: "hayi bhuti, ndingu sisikazi mna." Me: "Fez, calm down hun. It'll just be a few hours. Umxelele uBalo to stop staring at your bum." Fez: "yandifuna kaloku. Bye my sweet." he kissed my cheek. Fez: "okay ladies, from the top!" Sands: "andibon lady kemna apha. Uyay'funa impama yazi." I got into the car with the girls and my mom drove us to the Radisson. Me: "uhm...mama... So me and the girls were thinking of getting massages later." Ma: "that's lovely sthandwasam." Me: "so will you and uDubs be joining us?" Ma: "of course." now for the harder part. Me: "and they will throw me a little party afterwards." Ma: "okay. And you want us out of the way by then."

and she happens to be smarter than me. Again. As always. Me: "its not that mama." Ma: "just don't go to sleep too late. We have a long day tomorrow." Me: "okay mama." we went into our hotel and settled in. I finally fitted on my dress, it looked absolutely beautiful.....but tight. I couldn't exactly breath freely. Me: "maaama." Ma: "what is it?" Me: "is there a chance of making it looser? I can't breath." Ma: "benditshilo ke mna. Qha awuva!" she helped me out the dress. Ma: "I'll call the designer to loosen it up." I sat on the bed and waited for my next instruction. My phone rang. Facetime from the groom. I answered. Me: "hey baby." Lakhe: "hmmm...why are you naked xandingekhoyo..." he complained. Me: "was fitting on my dress. Wenzani?" Lakhe: "khahlise phone. I wanna see." Me: "nooo." Lakhe: "please? Just for a second?" ndahlisa i-phone. Lakhe: "down..." Me: "hayi mpa. Nanku mama. Bye." I hung up. She walked in. Ma: "uthetha nabani?" Me: "no one. I'm just singing." Ma: "okay she'll be here later. Baphi abanye?" Me: "in their rooms. Its almost time for our massages mama. Masambe." I got dressed. All my women went down to the spa and had our full bodies done. Afterwards had dinner. I was just anxious for my bachelorette party. Akhandive niks ibithethwa ngumama or uDubs. After dinner, I went to get dressed. Zintle and Zingi came to fetch me. Nosi and Vuyi were waiting in the car. While we walked down to the car... Zingi: "so...did you do it?" Me: "yep." Zintle: "and?" Me: "its negative. Like I said. Ndiyile though kwagqirha wathi I have ulcers. I can't do any acid or spirits. Anything can set it off kubenzima nophefumla." I lied my pants off. Lakhe had asked me not to say anything, and I respected that because both of us were scared to lose this one too. Hence, the secrecy. Zintle: "okay babe. Don't worry, you can just have water. Akho need usele. NoZingi akaseli. Its just gonna be me and the youngin's." Me: "banganxili please. They can't have ibhabhalaza tomorrow." Zintle: "don't worry. I have this got." Me: "okay, now you're starting to sound like Fez and I don't trust you." Zingi: "when is he coming?" Zintle: "he's not. Sandile said he'll keep him there until he turns straight." Zingi: "you do know that uSandile isn't kidding right?" Me: "we have to fetch Fez. He will die under Sandile's watch." Zintle: "you sure? Cuz when I called, he sounded like he was having fun." Me: "Sandile? Or Fez?" Zintle: "well..." Me: "drive!" she drove to the house. When we arrived, I ran inside and found Fez laying on the floor. Me: "SANDILE!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!" I screamed. Sands: "Damn! Spho I'm right here dude! What the hell!" Fez: "iyhoooo! Hayi mfazi." Sands: "haaa! You lose! Get up!" Fez: "she was screaming!" Sands: "you were suppose to be frozen." Fez: "andiyo mixed veg Sandile." Sands: "just get up." Me: "what is happening?" Sands: "we're playing a game. Sapha 100 Rand yam Fezile. What are you doing here? You supposed to be at the hotel." Me: "I came to fetch Fez. We're going somewhere." Sands: "oh a party? He said he's staying with us. We're playing a game." Me: "what kind of stupid game is this?" Sands: "you choose a position where you will be able sit still. If anyone talks, they pay 100 Rand. If they move, its 500 Rand." Me: "that's beyond stupid. Who keeps track of movement?" Sands: "me obviously." Me: "I'm gonna keep track, move. Let's start over. We gonn put on music, everyone will start dancing. When I press pause, you freeze in the stance you're in." Sibu: "that's more tricky." Me: "its not supposed to be easy." Sands: "I got moneyyyyyy. I'm in." Dummi: "so nobody stops to think about me?" Sands: "you can roll around on the floor." Dummi: "mxim. I'll be in control of the music. All of you in the dance floor." he went to the music player and switched it on. Me: "Uphi uLakhe?" Sands: "he went to have a hair cut with his dads." Dummi connected his phone and played Work by Rihanna. Fez: "whoooooo!" he started dancing. Sands: "are you serious?" Dummi: "twerk Sandile." Sands: "ndizok'fumana." the girls came in. Zintle: "what's happening?" everyone was dancing then Dummi hit pause. We stopped. Zingi: "I am so confused." Dummi: "walk in between them and stare into their eyes while they're frozen." he laughed. Sands: "this is fucking crazy. My game was better." Dummi: "lose. My 500 please." Sands: "do you take African American express?" Dummi: "as long as ikhupha 500 yam." he pressed play. Robert came into the house wama emnyango. Followed by Khaya and Lakhe. Dummi paused the music. Dummi: "it was Spho's idea." Me: "Sandile." Sands: "ngubani uSandile?" Khaya: "ndincamile mna." Lakhe: "what are you guys doing here?" Me: "we came to fetch Fez but they were playing a game so we played...too." Zingi: "Fez sikushiye?" Fez: "ewe. Bye girls!" Lakhe held my arm. Lakhe: "niyaphi? You're all dressed up." Me: "just having a little party then go back to the hotel." Lakhe: "okay. Ungabuyeli late ke. I'll call you when I sleep." Me: "okay babe." I kissed him and left with the girls. Lakhe: "Sandile." Sands walked to him. Sands: "what's wrong?" Lakhe: "Black is bringing in another shipment. He didn't tell anyone because of what happened the last time and he's trying to make up for it. Sepua just contacted me and says its from him. So its legit." Sands: "when is it landing?" Lakhe: "in an hour. We have to leave now." Sands: "let me handle this. You know these things take all night. Funeke u-focus on your wedding." Lakhe: "after what happened the last time I let you go alone? No. I'm coming with you. I'll be back in time for the wedding." Sands: "Lakhe this is risky. What if something goes wrong?" Lakhe: "like what? How can anything go wrong ingaziwa ngumntu. Biza uSibulele. I'll be in the car." Sands: "and the others?" Lakhe: "don't tell a single soul. This one is for the four of us. We have to pay back Fernandez by the end of this month to clear our shit from him." Sands: "what are we gonna do about Frank?" Lakhe: "we'll give him a visit later tonight. His day has come. Uzondifumana emotweni." he walked out to the car.

I was woken up by what felt like the middle of the night. I'd come home earlier than everyone because I was feeling really sick. When I opened my eyes, I saw my mother standing by the bed. Me: "mama?" Ma: "phakama sisi." Me: "its the middle of the night mama." Ma: "no its not. Ngu 6 and you need to get ready for your wedding day." I dragged myself up and went to take a shower. Mama: "Spho. Baphi abanye?" Me: "Inoba basalele. I came back early mna. Bendingaziva right." Ma: "uright ngoku?" Not really but. Me: "ewe mama. I'm fine." she walked out the room. I sat on the chair in my gown. I tied my hair in a very low pony tail, Kendra came in to start with my make up. Me: "Ken, can you please just tone it down a bit, I want a very simple look with as little attention as possible." Kendra: "sure thing." my mom came in. Ma: "Spho, they're not answering their door. Is it possible Khange babuye?" Me: "no mama. I'm sure they're just sleeping." I wasn't in the mood. I just wanted to be in bed. My mother was on the phone half the time. I wonder what time she woke up. She really put in all her effort for my big day. I was so grateful to her. After this whole madness I'm gonna have to make her something nice. Ma: "No, no, no!! What!!" uDubs came in. She was already dressed. Dubs: "uright mntanam? Ingathi awuphilanga." Me: "I'm just tired. Ndileli early kodwa ndisadiniwe." Dubs: "ibinde leveki sthandwa. Uzoba right wena, ima ndikuphathele amanzi." she went to fetch me water. Me: "mama? What's wrong?" Ma: "the venue was double booked." I gasped. Me: "what does that mean?" Ma: "the other couple's wedding is an hour before yours, so bayithathile and bebe bookishe kqala." Just great! Me: "we can't get a venue in a few hours!" Dubs: "maybe we can." Me: "Phi Dubs?" Dubs: "ninendlu enkulu ene yard ingathi kuse Eden. Kutheni ningasebenzisi yona? Kamandi mos yi-family yodwa ezayo." Ma: "that's perfect. Kuzofuneka ndihambe ke mna and move the decorations, chairs, tables to the house." Dubs: "ndizokuncedisa." Me: "yima mama, ndizoshiyeka nabani apha?" Ma: "abakhaphi bakho love. Find them." they both left. I tried calling Zintle, her phone was off. I tried Zingi, she answered. Zingi: "hey babe. Ndisendleleni ezayo." Me: "please tell me ooZintle bakunye nawe." Zingi: "no, I left after you." Me: "okay. Please hurry." Zingi: "alright." I hung up. Now I was beginning to panic. My phone rang again. Lakhe. Me: "hi." I answered. Lakhe: "good morning my intended." Me: "that sounds a bit creepy. Baby, did you hear about the venue?" Lakhe: "itheni venue?" Me: "it was double booked, mama uyolungisa lonto ngoku." Lakhe: " well...baby... Don't worry. I'm sure our parents will handle it." Me: "but its our wedd-" Lakhe: "can you just relax? Don't stress yourself. I love you. Whatever happens today, will soon be over." Me: "that just gives me more time to panic." Lakhe: "don't panic sthandwasam. It will go well. I'll keep you in touch with what's happening this side, get some juice and relax." Me: "okay." I hung up. In a few minutes, I was done with my make up and Zingi arrived. Zingi: "Zintle hasn't shown up?" Me: "No. I'm trying very hard not to be angry. Its like everything is going to go wrong today, already we don't have a venue, now we have to move the ceremony to our front yard!" Zingi: "but you have a beautiful front yard. Plus its a sunny day, the weather is absolutely perfect. It will be amazing." Me: "I have to go find these 3." I wore a tracksuit and walked down to reception to ask for a second key to their room. Since I booked it, they gave it to me. I went to open it and yes, it was empty. Just like my heart. I went back to my room. Me: "they're not there. Its going to be a disaster." Zingi: "don't cry, you'll ruin your make up and it looks absolutely stunning." Me: "I can't not cry!!" Zingi: "bhabha...you don't have to be this emotional. Its going to be okay." I nodded and controlled my tears. My phone rang. Mom. Me: "hello mama?" Ma: "hun, do you have an idea of maybe where your groom is?" Me: "he's right there in the house." Ma: "no. I've checked the entire house, he's not here. Nobody knows where he is." Me: "mama, I spoke to him on the phone less than 30 minutes ago. What do you mean he's not in the house?" Ma: "the last time anyone saw him was yesterday, when he left with uSandile kunye noSibulele." Me: "No..." Ma: "aziphumeli phone zabo. Try calling him again." she hung up. Me: "Lakhe is missing. With two of his groomsmen." Zingi: "what?! Maybe they'll be back soon, andithi ubuthetha naye efownin?" Me: "but he was distant a bit and told me not to worry and that he loved me. What if that is his way of telling me he can't do this?" Zingi: "okay, you're thinking too much. Stop. Lakhe loves you! He will never let you go through an entire week of exhaustion and pay so much money then leave you. He's not that petty! He's going to reappear soon. Stop over reacting." Me: "I should've woken up later. Can't I take a nap?" Zingi: "No. You're going to put on your big girl panties and cope." I ordered some juice. Zingi attended to the knock on the door. Kwangena uZintle, Nosi and Vuyi. Me: "I thought something bad happened to you three!! Why ningalelanga apha? And where do you come from?" Zintle: "chill granny. We were at my place. Ikude gqithi lendawo." Me: "can you guys please shower and get ready? Before I lose my mind." Nosi: "what's wrong Spho?" Me: "nothing. Its just a little jitters." I tried Lakhe's phone. It hit voicemail. Me: "I have this bad feeling." Zintle: "its just nerves Spho. Calm down." Me: "please get ready." I tried Sandile and Sibu. Also off. Great. Just great. I guess I'll be marrying myself today. My mom called again. Ma: "Spho, awukabafumani?" Me: "No. The phones are off." Ma: "okay, don't worry yourself angel." she hung up. Me: "something is wrong and they're hiding it. First the venue, now Lakhe is missing. You need to go there Zingi. Find out what's going on." Zingi: "No. I trust your mom. She has everything under control. Stop it!" I sat for an agonizing two hours. All of us were ready. I just didn't want to get into my dress. I was so upset, I didn't even have a groom. Zintle: "Spho, you need to put on your dress babe." my phone rang. Me: "its him!" I answered. Me: "where are you!" Lakhe: "I'm at home. Why is my lawn filled with chairs?" Me: "Masilakhe kudala ufunwa endlini. Where did you go!" Lakhe: "just some business I needed to take care of. What is happening in my yard?" Me: "the venue was booked. Remember?" Lakhe: "Oh. Ufika nini?" Me: "about an hour and a half to go." Lakhe: "perfect. I can't wait to see you. Yoh nanku utata esiza. I'm gonn get yelled at. I'll call you back." he hung up. Me: "so he's alive and still loves me." Nosi: "awww." Zintle: "you're crazy. Iza. Nxiba." I wore my wedding dress ndalinda with the girls while chatting and taking selfies. We had a laugh and prayed together. Finally. My mom called. It was time for us to go. Zingi: "so...you're getting married." I took a deep breath. Me: "it was a tricky morning. So yes. I'm finally getting married." we went to the car that was parked in the basement.

Zintle drove to the house as slow as possible. Zingi drove her car with the bridesmaid. The hooter was making my ears hurt and frustrating me even more. Almost 45 minutes later, we arrived at our house. The noise must've alerted everyone inside because they were standing up looking at the gate. My bridesmaid were the first to get off. I watched them from the car doing their step with the groomsmen to the altar. This was it. My dad came to the car. Khaya: "what's the problem princess?" Me: "nothing." Khaya: "look hun, I know this wasn't your dream wedding. Today's events made it a bit difficult and its not your fault. Today is about you getting married to the man you love. You're in your most comfortable space and most importantly with all your closest friends and family. This is better than anything. Right now, focus on the reason for this day. Not the obstacles.

Okay?" I nodded. Me: "thank you dad." Khaya: "come, let's go. Before he panics." he helped me out the car walking to the beginning of the most beautiful ceremony I've ever seen. There was a red carpet leading all the way to the altar. The chairs were decorated with white cloth. On the carpet were white petals sprinkled by Zimi and at the end of that carpet, stood my future husband in front of a white wedding arch. My intended. He smiled nervously looking at me. I wanted to cry but I couldn't take another lecture of ruining making. A soft melody played in the background while my father walked me down the aisle, my arm in his. We reached the end and he handed me to Lakhe with a firm handshake. I stood beside my fiancée. Priest: "We have come together at the invitation of Siphosenkosi Ngudla and Masilakh'khaya Sobukwe. to celebrate the uniting in Christian love, their hearts and lives. This is possible because of the love God has created in them, through Jesus Christ." he turned to his Bible. Priest: "Jesus said, "I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly." This abundant life, for many people, is an impossible dream, yet God wants us all to have this abundant life and proved His love for us by giving His Son. Another way that God provides for this "full" life is creating those who will love us. Masilakhe has found such a one in Sphosenkosi, hearts and spirits were drawn together before today by the Lord of all creation. Two lives are not united by ceremony, but only in the power, love, and grace of God. Siphosenkosi and Masilakhe will publicly declare their love, because of the love, Jesus Christ our Lord has shown us, they too, can truly love one another. The same way God demonstrated to us the love He has for us by giving His only son. These two will demonstrate this God given love by giving themselves to one another and for each other. Neither of them have reached this place alone. Each has been given life by their parents. These, that gave them life and love, are and always will be vital in their continued lives together." after the entire speech, I could feel my knees weakening. Lakhe held my hand. Then looked at me. The priest stopped talking. Me: "it's too hot." I whispered. Priest: "we're half way through." I nodded. Priest: "No other human ties are more tender, no other vows are more sacred than these you are about to assume. You are entering into that holy estate which is the deepest mystery of experience, and which is the very sacrament of divine love." he faced Lakhe. Priest: "Masilakhe, do you take Sphosenkosi as your lawfully wedded wife. To live as one after God's ordinance the holy estate of matrimony. To have and to hold, through sickness and through health, for better and for worse. Will you love her, comfort her, honor and keep her, forsaking all others, keeping yourself only for her as long as you both shall live?" Lakhe: "I Will." Priest: "Sphosenkosi, will you take Masilakhe as your lawfully wedded husband. To live as one after God's ordinance the holy estate of matrimony. To have and to hold, through sickness and through health, for better and for worse. Will you love him, comfort him, honor and keep him, forsaking all others, keeping yourself only for him as long as you both shall live?" Me: "I Will." Priest: "Masilakhe, do you have additional vows or would you like to repeat?" Lakhe turned to look at me. Lakhe: "Spho... Not only will I have and hold you but will forever protect you. I vow to always love you like I have since the first day I met you. I will comfort you the way you do to me when I'm at my worst. I will honor you, in your presence and when you're not near me. Forsaking all others isn't difficult at all, you're all the woman I need. I want to publicly declare that not only have you entered my life but also opened my eyes to things I've been blind to. Through you, I learnt about God. You taught me prayer. You give me strength on a daily basis and you're my motivation. I love you sthandwasam. I keep saying this, If it were possible, I'd actually cut open my chest to show you that this heart only beats for one woman. And that's you." I let tears roll down. I couldn't hold it in anymore. I didn't even know what to say. Priest: "Sphosenkosi, do you have additional vows or would you like to repeat?" Me: "Masilakhe. As you know, I'm already used to yelling and bullying you." he laughed. Me: "you're an amazing man. After God and dad, you came into my life and didn't take control but helped me steer my ship. You've always been here for me as you always promise. You never complain about my attitude, you aren't afraid to communicate to me, well anymore... You have a respectful way of addressing me and that may sound ordinary to some but to me its great. This is why I fell for you, you made it so easy for me to love again. You let me into your life and carried my pain for me until it was no longer there. You're not just an ordinary guy, you're my superhero. My husband, the father of my kids and my life partner. I will always cherish you and love you. I will respect you and listen to you with an open heart. I will honor you in and out of your presence till the very end of my days. I promise to keep and obey to these vows. I love you." I was not ready for none of that, it may have sucked but I got a sparkle out his eye. That was enough for me. The rings were brought forward. Priest: "Please remember, a ring is more than a symbol of your marriage. It is a seal of the vow you have made to one another. The circle of the ring is, as far as human eye can see, a perfect circle, with no beginning or end, so God too, has perfect love for you and wants you to love one another in His grace, never, never ending. This ring is made of precious metal. You also are precious in God's sight and now in the life of Masilakhe. When you are absent one from another, the presence of the ring reminds you to be faithful and to fulfill your vows to Masilakhe. You may now place the ring in your spouse's finger Masilakhe." Lakhe put the ring on my finger. Priest: "Masilakhe, this ring is a seal of Sphosenkosi's vow to you. She presents this to you as a token of her submission to you in Jesus Christ. This is a symbol of leadership. God has placed you as head of the family, You must lead in worship, works and fellowship. As the weaker vessel she depends upon you for strength. Spho, you may place the ring on your groom's finger." I slid the ring into Lakhe's finger. Priest: "for as much as Masilakhe and Sphosenkosi, have consented in holy wedlock, and have thereto confirmed the same by giving and receiving each one a ring; by the authority committed unto me as a minister of the Church of Jesus Christ, I now declare you husband and wife. You may now, kiss your bride." Finally. He pulled me to him and kissed me. Our families and friends cheered and sang around us. Lakhe: "Mrs Sobz. Thank you for accepting to be my wife." Me: "it is a pleasure."

We sat at our table as newly weds. Since the ceremony was small and intimate, we decided to have both ceremony and reception here in the garden. It was a wonderful day but I felt really hot and sweaty. Me: "baby, sihamba nini. I can't wait ukukhulula lelokhwe." Lakhe: "I can't wait to take it off you either baby." Me: "can you stop being nasty? Kushushu. For real though, when is our flight?" Lakhe: "its at four." Me: "good, ngu one ngoku. Did you tell the family we're flying?" Lakhe: "no. Otherwise I'd have to book an entire plane and I'm not going to do that. I only booked for Dumi, Sands, your mom, Vuyi and Dubs. Dumi can't be on the road for a long time. Sandile found out and forced me to book his too, Vuyi noDubs have never been on a plane before, I'd like to treat them. Plus umamakho won't have anyone to chat with because my dad and yours want to drive down together." Me: "I feel bad that everyone else is driving." Lakhe: "they'll be fine. Sela nanga amanzi. How's my peanut doing in there?" Me: "he's fine. He makes me thirsty a lot though." Lakhe: "sela sisi. Unganxaniswa umntanam." I drank the bottle of water. Me: "thank you for making me feel like your baby making machine." he chuckled. Lakhe: "nam mos ndiyi verbal punching bag yakho. So we're even." Me: "Shhh...they're starting the speech." Lakhe: "did we agree on Sandile being the speaker? My goodness." Sands: "Hi everyone." he waved. Everyone: "Hi Sandile." Sands: "so...my dad asked me to come up and say a few words because he was emotional." Rob: "that was not what I said." Sands: "it sounded like it. Anyway..... I want to congratulate my big brother for the long difficult hurdle he has overcome today. Most of our lives, we've tried to figure him out. He never showed emotion. Its always been difficult for him to love or be happy, the day I met Spho, his wife, I saw it in him that something had changed forever. He has become more open, more considerate but throughout his tough and hardness he has always been the best brother I could've ever asked for. Spho, you finally took my place. I never thought anyone could. I accept it though because you're my sister too, so you're lucky. I wish you two the best life has to offer. Plenty of happiness. A lot of kids. At least one of them being Sands Jr. I love you both, and I'm happy that I'm part of this extraordinary family. To the bride and groom." we lifted our glasses. I had apple juice. Lakhe: "so that went well." Me: "it was sweet of him." Zingi was up next. Zingi: "Good afternoon to everyone who has joined us here today. My friend, you're a true pearl and precious gift. You are an amazing person inside and out. Masilakhe is a very lucky man to have a strong woman like you by his side. Many have tried to break you, but you stood firm and kept marching on. Spho, You're my light. I know that whatever I go through, I can always count on you. I wish you well in the journey you have entered with your husband and true happiness throughout it. All in God's name. I love you my friend." everyone clapped. I blew her a kiss. Sibuh helped her to her seat. Lakhe: "I hope she's okay. Kutheni engathi uzowa nje?" Me: "I told you it was hot here." the rest of the speeches were quite short because of the tight schedule we had. Lakhe and I had to go pack for tomorrow and Monday. Plus our flight was soon. Lakhe: "we're supposed to leave in the next hour." Me: "same flight as Sands?" Lakhe: "unfortunately. I was hoping to take a nap." Me: "Me too. And I want to take off this make up now. I'm sweaty. The photographer is done for the day." Lakhe: "please eat something love." Me: "not in front of everyone. I'll eat when I'm packing. You already say I eat like an elephant. Imagine what anyone else would think. A whale? Please." Lakhe: "uxolo mntu wam." we finally finished up and went to our bedroom. I washed my face thoroughly. Lakhe wore his casual clothes and helped unzip my dress. I took off the dress ndanxiba a white maxi dress that I got specifically for this instance. I packed our bags and we went to our car. Our dads were already leaving. The flight people were also ready. The others were driving down later on after the house was clean and secure. Lakhe drove me, my mom and Dubs. Sandile took the other car, not his two seater. To load Dumi, his wheelchair and Vuyi. We all drove to the airport arriving just a few minutes before boarding time. Lakhe walked phambili. Me: "baby, uyaphi? That is where you check in." Lakhe: "well....not us. Come." Me: "I'm so confused." we went through a private gate where a lady spoke briefly to Lakhe and he signed something. I was still a bit confused. Don't we need to take out our tickets or something? She scanned our bags and our bodies, hopping over to another side. Then we walked down a short private passage which led outside. A younger version of what I expected was in front of me. Me: "Lakhe, what's this?" Lakhe: "uhm.....surprise?" Me: "this is a private jet." Lakhe: "it is." Me: "where does it come from?" I walked closer to it. I've never seen one in real life. I wanted to hug it. Lakhe: "I rented it from a friend of mine." Me: "Why?" it looked so pretty. And dangerous. Lakhe: "you're my first and only wife, you won't just be looking baby, you'll be flying in a private jet. Its time to board our flight."

We arrived in East London and two cars were waiting on the runway. We were driven to our hotel. Lakhe and I had decided to disappear together because sobabini besizozela and that meant couple napping. There was no way I was going to keep face with everyone tonight, I had to sleep. My mom went shopping for the presents I had asked for to present to family ka Sobukwe and dubs went home with Vuyi. Sandile and Dumi were somewhere together. Don't know. Don't care. I undressed and got into bed, so did Lakhe. Me: "you know we're not supposed to be doing this." Lakhe: "bazobona ba mabathini. I'm tired. I haven't slept." Me: "do you have any idea what's going to happen tomorrow?" Lakhe: "utata said its not going to be a big thing, I'm supposed to meet your family halfway our house, ndizokufaka endlini, introduce you to our small little family, then the pastor will bless us, bless our marriage and formally welcome you into the Sobukwe clan. Our families will then join us and afterwards have some dinner." Me: "this is so different. Not like a traditional wedding I had in mind. I thought I was gonna see umqombhothi, ndiseliswe amasi and whatever, ndinxityiswe the new attire from your fam." Lakhe: "ayikho necessary yonke lento babe. My father thinks its best oluhlobo. He never liked rituals anyway, the best way to secure uthando lwethu for him was through prayer, and I agree. He doesn't want to involve people that have disowned him and he doesn't know to mess up our union. If they can't accept him, what makes us think they'll accept our marriage." Me: "what happened to your uncle? Why didn't he come?" Lakhe: "he said he was busy. Our wedding was last minute." Me: "you don't seem as though you believe that." Lakhe: "I don't even care. Xa engafunanga ukuza andingeni ndawo mna. I'm happily married now. That's all I wanted." Me: "its only been a few hours bhuti." Lakhe: "feels like forever and ndiyayithanda le feeling." my phone rang. Me: "Oh gosh. Ngumama." Lakhe: "phendula tshi, tell her ulele and you don't know where I am." I answered. Me: "mama." Ma: "hello pumpkin. Unjani? You were tired when you got off the plane." Me: "I'm taking a young nap mama. Kodwa I'm okay." Ma: "baby?" Me: "yes mama?" Ma: "where is your husband?" Me: "I don't know ma. He said he'd be back a little later, he's sorting some things out." Ma: "okay, good. I want to talk to you alone." I looked at Lakhe, he looked back at me. Me: "about what mama?" Ma: "about you. Ikhona into ofuna undixelela yona my love?" Me: "no mama." Ma: "you do know that tomorrow is going to be a long day right?"

Me: "Yes..." Ma: "and you're going to have to work right through it unyamezele because uzobe usemzini." Me: "I understand mama." Ma: "okay ke mntanam. As long as you can manage. Use roomini yakho?" Me: "ewe ma. Wena you are still shopping?" Ma: "yes, later on uvuka kwakho ke funeke uzokwenza fitting for the last time. Ndizok'xelela xa sisiza." Me: "okay. Enkosi mama. Ndizova ngawe." Ma: "okay my angel." I hung up. Lakhe: "you think she suspects?" Me: "I've been acting funny. Oko ndingekho right. So maybe." Lakhe: "at least sifike naku 20 weeks baby before we say something." Me: "I'll be big as a whale by then." Lakhe: "you'll be a gorgeous whale." Me: "we'll have to be in hiding for a few weeks then. If I tell umama, uzoxelela utata, yena axelele owakho, who in return will tell uDubs, ozoxelela uVuyi, Vuyi axelele uNosi, its already all over town. We'll host a dinner and debut our pregnancy next month." Lakhe: "Wow. Debut? Ingathi yi album? Shame upeanut wam bethuna." he held my tummy. Lakhe: "awuzoba yi album ka mandoza my princess. You're daddy's precious milk." Me: "please don't say that. Please." Lakhe: "but-" Me: "No." Lakhe: "Xolo ke. Ndiyalala mna, I don't know about you. I'm really tired." Me: "my feet are aching." Lakhe: "There's a spa babe." Me: "but baaabby." Lakhe: "what?" Me: "can't you do it?" Lakhe: "uyi bully kodwa wena. I'm only doing this because I got you pregnant not because I love you so much." Me: "love you too babe." he got up on his knees and massaged my feet. Lakhe: "awukatyi." Me: "I did. I had a snack on the plane." Lakhe: "that doesn't count as eating. Paul emailed me a few diets that you can try out suitable for pregnant ladies and their babies. Jonga." I pushed away his phone. Me: "I know how to eat properly. I'm not stupid." Lakhe: "itya kaloku." Me: "I will." Lakhe: "Spho." Me: "okay. I'll eat." Lakhe: "order something ngoku please. We can start the diet tomorrow." I took the phone and called reception, I waited to be transferred then ordered my food at a restaurant. I hung up the phone. Lakhe: "kutheni ungafuni ukutya?" Me: "so that you can tell me I'm an elephant?" Lakhe: "baby you know I'm playing xandisitsho nje. I love that you're eating more because there's two of you now. I don't mind." Me: "maybe I'm scared too." Lakhe: "I'll be here babe. All the time. I'll help you with anything. If only you could stop yelling at me all the time." Me: "I never yell." Lakhe: "lately..... Inoba ndinqandelwa ngumntanam." I rolled my eyes. Me: "ndicela at least one more month where I can be the centre of your attention? Just one more." Lakhe: "you are. Along with peanut." Me: "there. That's the issue right there. Everything from now on is involving the baby, I just feel like, awundiboni all of a sudden. Nothing gets past me without mentioning peanut." he stopped and stared at me. Me: "I'm sorry...I sound ungrateful." he still kept quiet. Now I'd pushed too far. I loved that he was excited about the baby, but every single second? For the rest of our lives, our child will be our focus and attention, I'm just asking for one last month. Just one. Lakhe: "you know a year ago, if someone had said to me I'd marry a woman that I truly love and admire and she'd carry my baby. I would simply have stared at them just like this." I didn't know what this meant. Lakhe: "you'll always be the centre of my attention. Kuqala wena before anything in my life. Why don't you believe me when I tell you this? I am so excited and happy to be your husband. Our baby means the world to me, and reason ndisithi you'll still be centre of my attention is because we're going to be doing this together. I know the hormones are playing with your emotions and making you crazy, yilento ndiske ndikuyeke ke ngoku because awuzenzi shame. Don't worry about anything, I got you. Uyeva?" Me: "I'm gonna cry again." Lakhe: "please don't. Uyayazi nam uzondikhalisa. Just stop. Come here." we cuddled together. Lakhe: "let me sleep baby ne. Just 3 hours qha." Me: "vasa izandla kqala." he went to the bathroom to wash his hands and came back. Lakhe: "awuzokwazi ulala kaloku sisi, you have to wait for your food." Me: "but I'm sleepy." Lakhe: "all I'm saying is when I wake up, that food better be in this room and half eaten. You'll eat the rest xandihleli." Me: "fine." he got into bed and started snoring. Me: "you cannot be serious. Lakhe!" cwaka umntu.

It was just after 7pm when I woke up. My phone was ringing, I looked at it. Me: "mama." I answered. Ma: "usalele mntanam?" Me: "yes ma." Ma: "love, we need to make sure izinto zakho ziyakulingana kakuhle. I'll be 10 minutes. I promise." Me: "okay mama. I'll be there just now." Ma: "thank you mntanam." I hung up. Lakhe: "hey...you barely ate. Baby, you're starting to worry me now." Me: "I'm just not hungry. This food looks disgusting and andifuni ughabha." Lakhe: "Spho, you ordered this food. How can it be disgusting? Uzolamba kude kuthini?" Me: "andilambanga." Lakhe: "don't lie to me. You are still bothered by that stupid comment I made as a joke now you're making my child suffer ngenxa yalonto!!" Me: "not everything is about umntanakho Masilakhe! I do not want to eat!!" Lakhe: "give me one reason why!" Me: "I don't have to explain myself to you!" Lakhe: "why do you always hurt me like this Spho? Why? Would it kill you to give a single fuck about the wellbeing of our baby?" I got dressed. Me: "I do care!!" Lakhe: "then act like it!" Me: "what?!" Lakhe: "undivile Sphosenkosi. I don't want to lose another baby again. I will not go through that because of your selfish reasons again!" I gasped. Me: "what did you just say!!!!" I screamed. Lakhe: "Spho-" I grabbed my shoes.

Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi!!" I walked out the room to my mom's. He followed me.
Lakhe: "I didn't mean that..." Me: "yet you said it." Lakhe: "why do you always have to run away from problems!" I stopped and looked back at him. Me: "this isn't a problem Lakhe! This is an argument that I have had enough of because apparently, I'm selfish!" Lakhe: "how are you not understanding this!" Me: "I understand very well, husband." I started walking again. Lakhe: "Spho." Me: "leave me alone Masilakhe." Lakhe: "Spho. This isn't the way to solve things. We're getting married again tomorrow." Me: "are we? U-sure?" I got to my mom's room and knocked. Lakhe: "what the hell does that mean!" the door opened. Lakhe: "Spho what does that mean!" Me: "it means leave me alone." Ma: "kwenzeka ntoni ngoku?" I tried walking into the room and my mother blocked me. Lakhe: "Spho.." I looked at him. He had tears in his eyes. Me: "why are you acting?" Lakhe: "please Spho." Me: "cela udlula mama." Mama: "awuyi ndawo until you sort whatever this is out because tomorrow usiwa emzini wakho. This, must end now!" Me: "we can't sort it out mama. Lakhe has blamed me for losing our child, saying I was selfish." Lakhe: "I don't blame you!" Me: "you just said it!!" Lakhe: "Spho, its not what I mean-" Me: "then what do you mean? That I shouldn't have run away? I shouldn't have driven the car and gotten into an accident? Now I'm killing your second baby again right?" Ma: "second baby?" Lakhe: "you don't want to eat! What am I supposed to do? I'm worried about my baby!!" Ma: "Both of you!!! Shut up!!" Lakhe hid his face and looked away. I crossed my arms. Ma: "you're pregnant?" Me: "ewe mama." I looked to the floor. Ma: "what is this argument about Lakhe?" Lakhe: "I can't mama..." Ma: "thetha nam kaloku nyana." Me: "mam-" Ma: "No Spho, all I've been hearing is accusations from your side. Masilakhe, open your mouth and talk." he breathed quietly. Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi akafuni ukutya. I made a stupid comment the day before umtshato wethu that left her feeling insecure. Now she's starving herself." Me: "I'm not starving myself." Ma: "kanti uyatya?" Me: "I'm just not hungry!" Lakhe: "she hasn't eaten since last night." Ma: "Spho, you need to eat. This isn't for you, you need to stop being selfish now and think of your baby. You're feeling overwhelmed and maybe you're not ready to give up your freedom, well Tough! That's what being a mother is. You will have to sacrifice whatever it takes to make sure your child is happy and safe!" Me: "I can't mama." Mama: "you're gonna have to! You are gonna have to be strong. Masilakhe cares about you yilento efuna utye nje! Look at him! What man would run after you like this? Hayi man Sphosenkosi khula!" she shut her door. I walked back to my room. He walked in right behind me. Lakhe: "I'm sorry about what I said." I went to the bathroom and put on the shower. Lakhe: "Spho I don't blame you for anything." Me: "well you should." Lakhe: "No." Me: "Yeah. It was my fault. I don't know anything but to run from my problems. That's all I've ever done ever since I ran away from home. The day I lost the child, I was running as usual. So I don't blame you for resenting that part of me." Lakhe: "I do not resent you." I undressed and got into the shower. Lakhe: "Spho...please my love." Me: "can I just have some time alone Masilakhe? Please." Lakhe: "I'm so sorry my heart. Ndicela undixolele." I let the water run from the top of my head down my body. Lakhe: "I'm not leaving this room, I'm not leaving you here alone. Umvile la mfundisi Spho, we're one now. I refuse to let you be oluhlobo wedwa. It was my mistake and unchosen words. Ndicela uxolo mntuwam." Me: "its okay." Lakhe: "please forgive me." Me: "I can't forgive you just now and pretend like we're best friends again." Lakhe: "I understand and....." he faded away. Me: "and what?" silence. Me: "baby?" I opened the shower door. Me: "Masilakhe where did you go?" I was starting to panic now. Me: "baabe!!!" Lakhe: "ndim lo. You don't have to scream." Me: "I wasn't screaming. Uvelaphi? You just disappeared. I thought someone came in and kidnapped you while we were talking." Lakhe: "I was taking off my clothes in the room. Uyandithanda kanti, best friend." he got in the shower. Me: "we still not talking." Lakhe: "I know." I let him massage my shoulders. Me: "I'll eat three meals a day and have regular fruit snacks in between." Lakhe: "and drink lots of water." Me: "fine and lots of water." Lakhe: "and exercise." Me: "why is the list getting longer?" Lakhe: "its the last item on the list." Me: "okay. And exercise." Lakhe: "and a lot of sex." Me: "so now you're pushing it." Lakhe: "it had to be tested." he chuckled. Me: "I can do this only, if I get a massage before I sleep daily." Lakhe: "done." Me: "I get to yell at you at least once-" Lakhe: "a week. Fine." Me: "that's all I have for now." Lakhe: "no...sex fantasies? Don't want me to dress up as a fireman?" Me: "firstly before we even continue, firemen are not my fantasy, never have been, doubt they ever will be. Why would that be your first guess?" Lakhe: "because you're smoking hot." Me: "ndik'libele kanene awuphilanga." Lakhe: "Yinton fantasy yakho ke baby?" Me: "a doctor..." Lakhe: "like itshomiyakho yase kapa. Hmm." Me: "not that doctor.... The down there doctor. You know?" he smiled slowly. Lakhe: "Mrs Sobz, What can I help you with today?" he said with a sexy Spanish accent. Me: "oh Doctor.... I'm having this itching in between my legs." I giggled. Me: "this is crazy." Lakhe: "just go with it." he pulled me closer. Lakhe: "itching? Does it hurt?" Me: "no doctor, it doesn't hurt at all." Lakhe: "mind if I take a look? Just sit on my desk and open up for me. Let's see." Me: "as you wish Doc..." he kneeled on the tile and opened my legs. Lakhe: "I see where the problem is, ma'am... I'm going to examine you further to figure out the source of your itch." Me: "please doctor....is it going to hurt?" Lakhe: "not if you sit still my lady." he inserted a finger. Lakhe: "I think here is our problem." Me:

"yes...." he slowly pulled his finger out and pushed it back in. Rubbing in and out slowly. Lakhe: "how is it feeling now Mrs Sobz?" Me: "Oh doctor....its getting better...." I moaned. Lakhe: "and can you feel it here?" he circled his finger inside me. Me: "Doctor!!" Lakhe: "look at me." I stared down at him. Lakhe: "how does it feel?" I couldn't speak. His eyes pierced at me, it felt like they generated the steam around us. Lakhe: "tell me..." he hissed. Me: "it feels. Sooo....good...my love." Lakhe: "your husband isn't here Mrs Sobz, its just you and me." Me: "please go faster..." Lakhe: "I think I'm hearing a car in the driveway." Me: "don't stoppp..." Lakhe: "Mrs Sobz...." Me: "no doctor....please." Lakhe: "are you gonna cum for me?" Me: "Yesss!!!" Lakhe: "open for daddy." Me: "I'm almost there." Lakhe: "There's someone at the door Mrs Sobz..." Me: "don't....." my voice faded away as I listened to a soft thump in my clit that was reaching high for the climax. It gripped the shelve and I came.....tumbling down like an earthquake erupted inside me. Lakhe: "oohh....damn." my body was shaking and finally froze into stone. Me: "Oh My God, Masilakhe." I finally caught my breath. Lakhe: "so doctors really turn you on!? WOW." I didn't have time for his comments right now, that was the greatest orgasm yet. What the hell just happened? Me: "why you surprised? I told you this. You acted on it." Lakhe: "you cheated on me in your mind with a doctor." Me: "where did that accent come from anyway? Geez I have to visit this doctor more often." Lakhe: "I'm still shocked." Me: "that was amazing." he came up to my lips and kissed me. Lakhe: "I want you laying on your chest." he pulled me out the shower. Me: "your phone is ringing." Lakhe: "ignore it." I lay on my chest on top of the bed. He put a pillow vertically under me. Me: "what are you going to do?" Lakhe: "your fantasy is doctors. Mine is..... A bit...weird." Me: "tell me."

Lakhe: "don't judge me." Me: "have I ever?" Lakhe: "submissive maids." Me: "Where's your tie?" Lakhe: "in my bag, why?" Me: "Master, I beg of you to do as you please as long as you spare my life sir..." Lakhe: "be still Monalisa. I had a very long day, with demanding patients, those of which, I do not have for you. Poke your buttocks up. Shut your mouth and sit still." Me: "yes Maste-" Lakhe: "I said be still!!!" I squirmed under him, following his instructions. He caressed the back of my thighs and made his way up my buttocks. Lakhe: "you, Monalisa....you are obedient, you are respectful." he kissed each cheek and breathed in between them. My eyes flustered. Lakhe: "you are a good maid, iron my clothes and clean my house as well you do, you deserve a treat." he planted a kiss on it. Lakhe: "but I saw you talking to John outside. What was so funny?" Me: "permission to speak Master." Lakhe: "granted." Me: "John had asked me....." he was licking. Me: "he asked how would it be...."

then sucked. Me: "if I had dinner in his hutwith him.. I'm sorry Maste-" a hot slap came into contact with my right butt cheek and left it jiggling for mercy. Lakhe: "are you having relations without my permission Monalisa?" Me: "No master. I apologize." Lakhe: "am I going to have to punish you again Monalisa?" Me: "No sir." he continued to lick. I held onto the pillow. It was taking all of my strength not to let loose. I had to scream and let it all out. In a split second, he bulldozed right into me and paused. Lakhe: "ohh this feels so good." boy was he right. I began backing it up and he held my waist. Lakhe: "I'm gonna cum in a second if you do that again." I squeezed the walls around it. Lakhe: "staaap...." Me: "but fuck me kaloku. Uthen na ngoku uMaster." Lakhe: "humbled by..." he whispered. Lakhe: "Shhh...." he pulled out and in then worked a slow rhythm. Lakhe: "Spho....." Me: "yes daddy?" I moaned. Lakhe: "shit...." he went faster. Lakhe: "oh baby..." Me: "master...." Lakhe: "baby don't do that.." Me: "I want it harder master....punish me...." I moaned harder. Lakhe: "Baby....Stop!!!" Me: "I want it Master. Please don't stop my excellency." he thrust deep and held me tight. Lakhe: "shiiiiitt!!!!" he finally stopped and breathed in gasps. Lakhe: "nooooo..." he complained. Lakhe: "why did you do that? Whyyyy." Me: "submissive maids huh?" Lakhe: "Don't. Judge. Me." Me: "I'm sorry my excellency." his body shook. Lakhe: "that still has not kicked in." I giggled. Lakhe: "this was so much fun." Me: "you cheated on me in your head with a maid." Lakhe: "I did shame baby. And I think I'm leaving you for her." I laughed. Me: "Try." Lakhe: "Monalisa is so obedient and sweet and considerate. All she wants is for me to do as I please. Goodness, I think I'm getting turned on all over again." Me: "haha. Uphambene. Monalisa is dead now. Get up." Lakhe: "urrgg...I miss her." he got up and lay beside me under the covers, I put my gown on since I was feeling a tad bit chilly. Lakhe: "I wouldn't mind arguing everyday if I got that afterwards. Shit, you could yell all you want at me." Me: "good, because I need to see my gynae regularly." Lakhe: "and Monalisa needs to be rehired." Me: "as you wish my excellency." Lakhe: "hmmm." he kissed my lips. Lakhe: "I need you to know that I love you. Even with the role playing, you're my Monalisa." Me: "I'll be whatever you need baby. I have 16 personalities. You just need to pick and choose who you want that night." Lakhe: "and that is why I married you my bipolar maid." I giggled. We were interrupted by a knock on the door. Sands: "I know you're in there. So open the door, or I'm breaking it." Lakhe: "we're naked." Sands: "so am I. Its hammertime. Open!" Lakhe: "Sandile its my wedding night. Can I have some time with my wife please?" Sands: "tomorrow, will be your time. Utata wants you at home. Ndizolanda wena apha. We have to prepare for early tomorrow morning." Lakhe: "just 1 more hour." Sands: "I'm not waiting that long." Lakhe: "Spho isn't feeling well Sandile, she hasn't eaten all day and she's been throwing up. I can't just leave, can I at least make sure she's asleep before I leave?" Sands:

"Why didn't you just say so? Spho, is everything okay mntase? You need anything?" Lakhe: "she's in the toilet as we speak. I'm sure akakuva." Sands: "oh...I'm sorry about that. Look, take your time. Make sure she's okay. If akabi right, call me. I can even pick you up ekseni ngomso. Just keep me updated." Lakhe: "I will. Thanks bro." Sands: "take care of her. Cheers." we waited a few minutes. Me: "do you think he bought that?" Sands: "of course I didn't!!!! GET OUT!! I'm kidding. Guys I'm bored. When are we going home?" Lakhe: "Sandile. I'm getting married tomorrow. We're leaving on Monday. Ziphi friends zakho?" Sands: "well, Dumi is sleeping. Sibuhleli neza girls. I'm bored. Open." Lakhe: "no." Sands: "Please? Please. Please. Please. Please. Please. Please." Me: "open for him. Entertain him. I can't listen to that all night." Lakhe: "uyamazi baby uSandile unjani. I want to sleep mna!" Sands: "so you're not gonna let me in?" Me: "oh hayi Lakhe omnye umntana." Lakhe got up and sighed. He wore his gown and opened the door. Sands: "Yaay!" he walked in. Lakhe: "were you smoking?" Sands: "just a little bit." Lakhe: "Sandile I hope you didn't forget uDumi somewhere nhe!!" he got dressed. Sands: "I didn't. He's asleep. Ndivela kwi room yakhe." Lakhe: "have you eaten?" Sands: "no." Lakhe: "phakama ke masambe." Sands: "isn't Spho coming?" Me: "oh no honey. I gots to sleep. Long day ahead for me." Sands: "not really. My dad said we're not going full on traditional. He's still a bit touchy about his family issue, and additionally to that, we're adopted so the ceremony won't be as usual weddings. I've already accepted you into our family. We're doing this officially tomorrow and we're gonn chill." Lakhe: "and my wife won't be wearing those clothes for more than a day. Khange ndifune makoti mna. My beautiful wife gots to flaunt her weave. Siphi dan." Sands: "oh wow, hey you." Me: "cela nihambeni guys. None of you are allowed in the bride's room. I don't know what you're still doing here. You can't be telling me these things either." Sands: "hayi ke andiyokhabhati mna. Masambe mkhuluwng wam.." Lakhe: "don't ever say that again. It sounds disgusting." sands: "heard it as soon as I said it." Lakhe: "I love you baby." he kissed me. Me: "be safe. Stay alert. I love you too." Lakhe: "alert? That's new." Sands: "bye Spho. Happy dreams." they walked out the door. Lakhe: "so...any updates?" Sands: "everything still going according to plan. You need to set up a meeting with Fernandez. So that we can hand over what we owe." Lakhe: "will do."

Sunday morning I was woken up by singing and chanting. It actually really pissed me off but I kept quiet ndayovula umnyango. The women came in, my friends, mom, the whole shebang, I rushed to the bathroom and kneeled in front of the toilet throwing up. Ma: "you okay there hun?" Me: "I'm fine ma, can you please turn it down a notch. I'm already feeling dizzy." she shushed the ladies. Me: "Uphi uZingi?" Mama: "akhange aze, she wasn't feeling well." Me: "yeah she did look unwell izolo naye." I got up ndayongena kwi shower. After showering I went to the bedroom where I was to get dressed. I didn't like having people in my room xandinxiba. It was a bit of an issue for me. Me: "mama, what's gonna happen today?" Mama: "its going to be a beautiful celebration mntanam. Don't be scared." Me: "just that I would love to know beforehand." Mama: "ayizoba intense wethu. La mzi doesn't do the ancestor ritual thing. Utshilo uDubs ukuba, this is more of an introduction lunch, early dinner." Me: "but then the ancestors won't know me." Mama: "my love, why are you worried about ancestors now? Uthembela ku Thixo nje wena mntanam, why uzobane stress se-ancestor. Not even our family has taught you that." Me: "I just thought that introduction to ancestors was the most important part of this ceremony." Mama: "luckily olusapho lufana nolwethu. Awulahlekanga mntanam. Don't you worry. This day is to bind the two families together through prayer and blessings." now my heart was at ease. Me: "Enkosi mama. I feel much better now." she kissed my cheek. Mama: "my baby girl has grown so much." Me: "barely. I feel so clueless." Mama: "you'll be fine as the day goes honey." after I got dressed, I let them brush back my hair ndanxityiswa some head scarf and they made up my face. I put on white superstar sneakers under iskhakha sam. Mama: "you look gorgeous." Me: "pity I'll have to take it off in a minute." I checked my phone and found messages from my groom. "My wife, I'm looking forward to seeing you today. I hope you woke up with a happy smile on your face because last night was the last night you're spending on your own. I love you. Can't wait for you to be by my side." I smiled. Mama: "siyahamba kengoku my love." I was wearing a long white Cinderella dress, (in Xhosa attire) it had black beads in a beautiful pattern all over. I had a short umbrella cape made from the same material and beads. My mother gave me a colorful necklace and fitted it on my neck. My head scarf matching my outfit and of course the white and black sneaker. We made our way to the Sobukwe mansion, which I remember not spending more than an hour in. Or was it two hours? I wonder where Stella was. When we reached the gate, my ladies started singing again. My ears were ringing and I could feel my head pounding. Why now? I was led toward the gate ndingaboni the way because ndijonge phantsi. I really needed a glass of water or a headache pill. My eyes were starting to fluster again. The singing was now fading with praising voices and calling of clan names. Me: "mamaa." I whispered. She couldn't hear me. Me: "mom." no response. She wasn't even beside me anymore. I became so utterly confused then the hyperventilating started. "babe?" I could see his legs. Looking up felt like my head was going to be too heavy. Me: "I don't know what is happening." Lakhe: "how? You feeling sick?" I nodded. Me: "why are you here?" Lakhe: "I'm your husband, remember?" we walked together inside the house. Of course I didn't expect any less from the Sobz. The house was fully decorated in yellow and white and his family was sitting at the table, which my family also joined. A table that had small brown grass place-mats and silver cutlery. Our friends had a separate table opposite. Lakhe: "ndizokunikezela kwi family yam. You're part of me, my life and our family now. You left your home, to join mine. My parents have become yours and so have yours become mine. Ndicela uzohlala phantsi." he led to a big place mat that had a red pillow and sat me down. He sat next to me. Me: "this so exciting. I don't even know what's going to happen next." I whispered. Lakhe: "bendikubalisele nje baby izolo. My dad's pastor is coming to bless us, our marriage and welcoming you into our family. Also, nabantu basekhaya will join us here, nabakokwenu. We will have a prayer session, my aunt wanted to keep at least one part of tradition, so uzok'nxibisa after this then come back for advice and so forth sigqibe." the pastor kneeled in front of us. He started his first verse which went way over my head. Again, I wasn't feeling well. Something smelt really off here and I seemed to be the only one smelling it. Maybe because I was pregnant? I did feel sick kwaksasa so... Pastor: "Love bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things. Love never ends." smell getting stronger. It wasn't making me nauseas at all, just weighing me down through the headache. I endured throughout the entire blessing in pain. Lakhe looked at me, I could feel him staring ngoku ndijonge phantsi. My heart was breaking because I was missing out on my own wedding because of this baby! I couldn't focus, I couldn't hear, most of all the pain was becoming unbearable. I didn't know what was happening around me. I kept taking silent deep breaths. The families came to sit around us. Dabawo started to pray. Through her prayer I felt my eyes become watery. This woman knew how to pull at heart strings. After the blessing, I was taken by uDubs, to go change my clothing. By this time, I was completely unseeing. I had a hazy vision. Me:

"mama.....mama....." I stopped walking. Dubs: "Yinton my love? Uright?" my knees were shaking and I was ready to fall flat on my face. Me: "I can't walk." she stared at me confused. Dubs: "njani kengoku?" Me: "I'm smelling.....something....I can't." I held on to her. Dubs: "Masilakhe!!!!!" was the last I heard.....

I woke up in a very bright room. There was nobody in it except me. Lying flat on the bed. What happened? Why does this keep happening? Me: "Lakhe." I cried. Lakhe: "I'm right here." I looked to my right and there he was. He looked exhausted. Me: "am I dreaming?" Lakhe: "unfortunately not." Me: "sizothini apha." the doctor walked in. Doc: "Mrs Sobukwe." Me: "why am I here?" Doc: "well, There's a lot of reasons that cause you dizziness and fainting, unfortunately, you have most of those reasons. Not eating enough, low iron, being dehydrated, not getting enough sleep. This is very dangerous for your baby ma'am." Me: "is he okay?" Doc: "the baby is fine.....for now. You need to slow things down and focus on you now. You need to take care of yourself. Are you taking your vitamins?" Me: "uhm....." Doc: "Sphosenkosi, this is not healthy. If you want this baby to survive, you need to by all means take proper care of you. You're his incubator. He literally has no one else in this world but YOU. He's depending on YOU. He needs you Spho. Those tiny little hands and feet have to grow properly from now onwards. This is scary I know but you have a lot of support from your family. Okay? I'm keeping you here for the night for observation." I nodded. She walked out. Me: "I'm sorry." Lakhe looked at me. He wasn't exhausted. He had been crying. He got up from his chair and walked out. I stayed alone in that cold room, staring down at my tummy. It was my own fault that I was here. I had been begged and pleaded with ngu Lakhe nomama but I didn't listen. Now I was all alone in this place. A nurse walked in. Me: "can you please call my husband for me? He just walked out." Nurse: "alright, your mother is just outside. Can I let her in?" I knew I was getting a lecture. Better now than later. Me: "yes." she went out to call my mom. When she walked in, I saw how worried she looked. Ma: "oh..my angel." she came to hug me. Me: "molo mama." Ma: "uziva njani?" Me: "I'm fine mama. Uphi utata?" Ma: "uhm....he left.." Me: "why?" Ma: "don't worry about that now." Me: "why not mama?" Ma: "utatakho ayimvuyisi into yoba uxokile. Trying to hide your pregnancy by getting married. Are you even sure ukuba uyamthanda uLakhe? You only met him a few months ago." Me: "mama I found out I was pregnant the day before our wedding. The day we left together sabuya emini. Ndiyamthanda uLakhe. I wouldn't have agreed to marry him if I didn't. The only reason, we didn't tell you ngalamini was because of this exactly, thinking our marriage is because of the baby." Ma: "but I asked mntanam." Me: "you asked me on Tuesday. I took the test on Thursday night. It came out negative and Lakhe decided siye kwa gqirha to make sure nothing is wrong. The doctor said that my hcg level might have been low. The scan showed that the baby was 13 weeks." Ma: "I understand mntanam. Ndizothetha naye utatakho, you know he doesn't get mad long." Me: "kuyabanda apha." Ma: "they have the heater on kodwa. I'll bring you into yokombatha." Me: "uLakhe umnkile?" Ma: "I think so. Just give him some time love. He's goin-" Sandile appeared on the doorway. Ma: "mandiyokulanda ingubo yakho love. Ndizobuya." Me: "thanks mama." she walked out. Sandile sat down. Me: "what was that about?" Sands: "what?" Me: "wena nomama. Like some weird vibe." Sands: "I didn't feel a vibe. How are you feeling?" Me: "I'm okay. Just a bit hazy." Sands: "hmm...and how's Sands jnr?" Me: "actually igamalakhe ngu Peanut." Sands: "over my dead body." I laughed. Sands: "sumhoya uLakhe. He'll come around soon enough, he's just a bit shaken." Me: "but he warned me and I ignored him. Instead, picked a fight with him izolo." Sands: "but you made up for it, ndihambe naye niright." Me: "yeah, still." Sands: "you have pretty doctor." Me: "I thought you had a girlfriend." Sands: "urgg... Don't be uLakhe please. We all know I don't do relationships." Me: "Khanya is a sweet girl, she will never break your heart."

Sands: "I know that. But I will break hers. So its for the best." Me: "how will you break her heart?" Sands: "I don't wanna get into it. Anyway, the ceremony today was beautiful." Me: "I ruined it by collapsing." Sands: "you didn't ruin anything. You were officially introduced to our family." Me: "I don't remember any of it. I don't remember any of it Sandile, its like I blacked out." Sands: "don't worry about that man Spho. Everything is going to be fine. My dad is so excited, it literally took the whole family to prevent him from coming here." Me: "wonwatyiswa Yinton?" Sands: "its his first time being a grandpa. And his first son just got married." Me: "that's sweet." sisahleli sincokola njalo, Dubs came in. Dubs: "molweni." Me: "molo dabawo." she gave Sandile a look. He looked back at her. Then came the awkward silence. Dubs: "ndicela uthetha noSpho Sandile." Sands: "oh, you don't say. Ndizok'bona ngomso Spho." Me: "bye Sands." he walked out. Dubs: "akaphilanga lamntana." I smiled. Dubs: "Sphosenkosi, ndiqondbe mandize kuwe ndizokubuza personal lento ubuyiva pha kulandlu." Me: "I can't describe it dabawo. Bekunuka ingathi kunento efileyo or ebolileyo. But then again, I was imagining things because ibimane ngophela iphinde ibuye." Dubs: "kwenzeka ntoni after unukiselwe yilento?" Me: "bendiqalwe yintloko before that, so after elavumba yaqinisa intloko, I couldn't hear what was being said. I didn't know bendisenza ntoni or ndiphi." Dubs: "then..." Me: "I got upset, ndazama ukuphefumla. Waqala wena uthandaza after some time, which made me cry. Ngoku undisa eroomin, I got even weaker and akwazi uhamba, kungcangcazela amadolo. I couldn't see, ibingathi kukho inkungu...that's it. I don't know what happened next." Dubs: "sekhe yenzeka lento before?" Me: "no dabawo. I just faint usually." Dubs: "zonke ezi zinto zange zakwehlela anywhere else?" I shook my head. She sat and looked at the bed deep in thought. Me: "the doctor says I'm dehydrated and andityi enough." she sighed. Dubs: "ayiyo leyo." Me: "njani dubs?" Dubs: "kukho umoya omdaka kulandlu. Akekho mnye futhi, mininzi." Me: "yimimoya yantoni ngoku leyo dabawo?" Dubs: "Andiyazi ncam, kodwa ndithe ndongena pha ndava ukuba something is wrong. Njebe ndithandaza ndiboniswa izithinzi zabantu zisondele kuni. Yilento ndingayekanga ukuthandaza. Ikhona into efihlwe kulandlu Sphosenkosi, and ayikufuni wena pha. Ukuba ufuna uphila mntanam, ungak'linge usondele pha kulandlu.." Me: "but Dabawo, kuk'lo mnyeni wam pha." Dubs: "ndiyaphinda ndiyatsho, ukuba ufuna ukuphila Sphosenkosi, wena nomntanakho, sukuphinda usondele kulandlu, hlala nomnyeni wakho endlini yakho." she got up and walked out. My heart was beating fast ingathi kukhala igubhu. What the hell was happening? What spirits are these? Why zifuna mna? While I was still thinking and confused, my mom was back with the blanket I'd asked for. Mama: "hey my baby." she put it on me. Me: "enkosi mama." Mama: "what's wrong?" Me: "nothing." Mama: "come on Spho, ndiyakwazi. Ungumntanam. Thetha nam." she gave me a Tupperware container with food. I opened it and for the first time I was hungry. I ate quietly and drank water. Me: "Uphi uLakhe?" Mama: "I haven't seen him." I didn't know whether to tell my mother what uDubs said to me or not. I, myself couldn't believe it. Yena uzothini? Mama: "Spho, something is bothering you." Me: "just that, Dubs thinks There's something lurking in the Sobukwe house." Mama: "uthetha nganton ngoku." Me: "like spirits. Uthi, she saw shadows walking toward mna noLakhe while she was praying." Mama: "hayi wethu Sphosenkosi. There's no such thing.....is there?" Me: "I don't know mama. Uthi she reckons kukho into efihlwe kulandlu and they don't want me there that's why it affected me alone." Mama: "wena ubenze ntoni? Hayi akholonto apha Spho. You just need to eat healthily, get enough rest and stop stressing." Me: "okay ma." we sat and chatted for a while longer. She was actually waiting on me to fall asleep. When I was finally giving in, I saw my dad walk in. Khaya: "how is she." I was too scared to face him so

I went with ubuthongo bam instead. Mama: "she's fine. She misses you. And ucela uxolo." heee umama. Khaya: "oh." ouch. Khaya: "its late. Masimnike space alale. We'll be back in the morning." I heard my mom get up. She kissed my cheek. Mama: "sweet dreams baby." she walked out. My father followed after her.

The next morning, I was up early ndisitya breakfast and my pills. Sandile walked in. Sands: "you ready? Its time for us to go." Me: "go where?" my heart did that thing again making it hard to breath for a second. Sands: " we're going home. Ndikhumbula ibhayi lam mna. Bekukdala ngoko." I sighed. Thank God. Me: "who's making noise outside." Sands: "your father in law. Inoba ucimba you gave birth yesterday. He's so excited to see you." I laughed. Me: "ndisezovasa ndilungise though. You guys are early. Uphi uLakhe?" Sands: "he didn't come home." trust Sandile to tell you the blatant truth when you don't want to hear it. Sands: "he's probably fine. Let's get you up missy." Me: "awuva ke wena. I just said ndizovasa. So wait outside. Ingathi nguwe lo u-excited." Sands: "can't wait to see my nephew grow." Me: "he or she is still developing. It will be a very long time for him or her to pop out." Sands: "I'll wait.. I'm his godfather right?" Me: "I haven't even decided that." Sands: "is he kicking? He's gonna be a rugby boy like me." Me: "Sandile. Leave." I chuckled. Sands: "mxim. Fine." he went out. I got ready in the mean time, I was probably stalling because I wanted Lakhe to appear. He didn't. My mom arrived as well. Me: "Mommy." I hugged her. Mama: "oooohh. When last did I get this." Me: "I just want to say thank you mama. For everything You've done for me until now. You've been my support, my shoulder and everything else in between. I don't know what I would be without you." Mama: "awww sthandwasam. It is a pleasure. I want you to pass this on to your baby too, its a wonderful feeling to be appreciated." Me: "I will mama. I'm done now. Nihamba nonke nooSandile?" Mama: "no honey. Ndizizele mna." Me: "sibuyela ebhayi ngoku." Mama: "apparently so. If only sinofumana uMasilakhe Sobukwe." Me: "I think I'm hearing his voice in the passage." my mom went to check, wabuya naye. Lakhe: "Molweni mama." Mama: "ewe ke." she walked out. Me: "where did you go last night? You left me here by myself." Lakhe: "Are you ready to leave?" Me: "Are you mad at me?" Lakhe: "No. I'm not." Me: "then kwenzeka ntoni? Why aren't we talking?" Lakhe: "kanti senza ntoni ngoku?" Me: "Lakhe, I said I was sorry." Lakhe: "what are you sorry for?" Me: "for not listening to you. Yesterday morning was hectic, I didn't have a chance to eat." Lakhe: "that is not your fault Spho. Andiqumbanga, I just want us to leave this place." Me: "you need to tell me why unje. You disappeared all night. Ubuya u-moody." Lakhe: "it just brings back painful memories Spho. I don't want to watch you sleep in a hospital bed. Ndicela sihambe apha!" Me: "my discharge papers-" Lakhe: "I've already signed them." I followed him out. Rob: "Hi angel!" Me: "hello tata." Rob: "so I heard the good news. Kwathini ungandixeleli?" Me: "we'd just found out tata." Lakhe: "we'll have to drive down to PE. The weather isn't good for flying." Rob: "you can take my car. Its in the garage endlini. Sinoqala pha." I swallowed hard. Me: "actually, I have to go to uDabawo. Ucele ndiyombona eMdantsane before we leave. So uzondifumana khona." Lakhe: "fine." Rob: "but uye etown namhlanje. I called her 20 minutes ago." Lakhe: "uzoyo dibana naye town kaloku." oh thank goodness. Everything went accordingly. My mother and I were dropped off at town and the boys went to the house. We caught up with uDubs and helped her with her shopping. Thank goodness she didn't touch the spirits subject, not only would it have freaked me out all over again, but I know my mom wasn't ready to agree on that whole thing. They chatted about izinto zabo and I texted my friend asking their whereabouts. Zintle: "we at the hotel girl, silinde uSibu then sihambe naye.

How are you feeling?" Me: "like shit. But I'm okay." Zintle: "you scared us izolo. It was so bizarre. The bride collapsing during her ceremony! Yoh. That was intense." Me: "don't be dramatic." Zintle: "it was SCARY. For a second I thought you were poisoned like in those black and white movies." I laughed. Me: "uphambene kanene. Nothing such man. Just dehydrated and low on iron." Zintle: "utye ke i-fish sisi." Me: "LOL. Fish yodwa ne?" Zintle: "ayisecace kengoku. Uzotshintsha nge lobsters and prawns." Me: "euuww." Zintle: "hayi ungak'linge. You used to love those." Me: "USED TO. Hows Fez?" Zintle: "une stress. He's gay again." Me: "hahaa! Ebeyeke nini?" Zintle: "Friday night. Ngoku ebeqalisa uhlala noSandile, waske wayi ndodana yase wisile. Khange umbone wena." I giggled. Me: "so u-stresswa Yinton? That he's gay again?" Zintle: "ewe kaloku, ebefuna uhlala ne boys zamgxotha." I laughed out loud. Me: "Whyyy! Wenze ntoni?" Zintle: "andimazi umoshe xabek'theni. Unikwe uN.R. obomvu ke." Me: "No Return? Hahahaha!!!" Zintle: "so he's stressed uyilonto ke. Have you spoken to Zingi?" Me: "not yet. You?" I received a text from Lakhe. Zintle: "I'll call her just now. Ndimgqibele izolo. I didn't tell her about you, I didn't want her to worry ekude for nothing." Me: "thanks babe. Sizodibana ebhayi. Got to go now." Zintle: "mwah!" I looked for my mom then read the message. Lakhe: "ndiyeza." was all it said. I couldn't find my mom in the shop and I was panicking. "can I help?" a voice behind me said. Me: "I can't find my mom." Him: "awusemdala." I looked behind me. The man smiled. Me: "do I know you?" he shook his head. "ndingu Siyanda Kusile. I'm here to meet a friend of mine but as usual, lawyers are always late." Me: "and who's always early?" Siya: "I am. What's your name?" Me: "my name is Married and not interested.

Nice to meet you Siyanda." he smiled. Siya: "all my friends call me Yaya. So what do yours call you?" Me: "you don't give up, do you." Siya: "its a thing of mine. At least tell me where you work or live." Me: "you don't have to worry yourself about that because I'm not from here." Siya: "Oh? Then where?" Me: "ndisuka ebhayi." Siya: "wow...." Me: "Yeah. You don't have to stress about your imaginary journey." Siya: "you're funny yazi... Ndihlala ebhayi by the way. In Summerstrand. My practice is in Newton Park." Me: "what do you practice? Witchcraft?" he laughed. Siya: "medicine." so witchcraft. Me: "you're a pharmacist?" he chuckled. Siya: "I practice witchcraft, remember?" my phone beeped a message. Lakhe: "Where you?" Me: "I have to go bhuti. My husband is outside." he gave me his business card. Siya: "tell him I say hi." Mama: "Spho!" I hid the card. Where the fuck was a bin when you needed it? Me: "oh there you are." Ma: "who's this?" Me: "this is my friend Siyanda." Mama: "uh huh. Okay. Its time to go." Me: "bye." he waved. Me: "Uphi uDubs?" Mama: "there she is baby, go say goodbye." where had the two of you disappeared to in the first place? I went to say my goodbyes to Dabawo and joined mama in the car with Lakhe. We drove to the hotel to drop my mom off kutata then left for PE. Me: "so I'm in the shop texting, this whole time ndilinde umama noDubs. They end up disappearing and this guy approaches me. He starts asking if he could help me. Ndimbuze ungubani Uthi ungu Siyanda. And started chatting like we were buddies or some stupid ish. He even gave me his business card." Lakhe: "hmm..." Me: "I couldn't find a nearby bin to throw it away, then mama came out of nowhere-" Lakhe: "why do you wanna throw it away?" Me: "I'm not gonna use it mos." Lakhe: "so ebekuplita?" Me: "no...actually he friendzoned me very sly." Lakhe: "is it." Me: "we're supposed to be laughing about this. I don't know what to do or say to get through to you. I already feel responsible for all that happened." Lakhe: "I didn't want my family to find out about peanut so soon. Now everyone is excited and happy." Me: "but they should be." Lakhe: "except your dad. He's angry at me. I betrayed him. His trust." Me: "hayi tshin Lakhe sibadala and we're married. What betrayal is this now? I understand disappointment but betrayal? Hayi noko." Lakhe: "I feel like I broke his trust." Me: "I know. I feel that way too, kodwa asizohlala siqumbile ngenxa yalonto. There's no turning back now." Lakhe: "ubutyile?" Me: "yes, before kufike uSandile esbhedlele. I need water though." Lakhe: "I'll get some at the next garage." Me: "Sandile says you didn't sleep at home." Lakhe: "I was at the hotel. I wanted to be alone." Me: "ubukhe wathetha nomamakho?" Lakhe: "not recently." Me: "do you know where she is?" Lakhe: "nope. All I know is that umnke phakathi evekini." Me: "how was the ceremony izolo?" Lakhe: "bingekho i-need yayo but you were insisting so much, it was lovely though." Me: "why doesn't your family do rituals? Actually, a wedding isn't even a ritual, how come kungenzwanga a normal celebration?" Lakhe: "we're just not into it. Utata prefers blessings from God." Me: "you didn't feel anything wrong or funny during the process?" Lakhe: "nope. Everything felt right. I was happy that I'd gotten to that place in my life with you. Grateful that you're my wife." Nothing at all? Why is it that ndim noDubs qha that feel that house is creepy? Lakhe: "you looked as if you were in pain toward the end..." Me: "it was the headache and the nausea." Lakhe: "is there a way of decreasing these symptoms? I don't want you to suffer like this ngenxa yam." Me: "its okay baby. Ndiyozela kengoku." Lakhe: "hayi ke iworse ndizoshiyeka ndodwa ?" Me: "just an hour baby." Lakhe: "okay ke. Lala." I lowered my seat and took a rest.

I woke up a little while later and we were in PE, just didn't know this area. Me: "hey..." Lakhe: "hey... Ubundozelisa wena. I stopped at Port Alfred to take a nap too." Me: "you should've woken me up." I took the bottle of water and drank some. Lakhe: "you looked too cute. I couldn't." Me: "siyaphi?" Lakhe: "Malabar. I just thought we'd visit my late mother's grave." my heart got stuck in my throat. I did not expect this. Me: "oh. Now?" Lakhe: "yeah, I need to show her my wife." Me: "I see." Lakhe: "why are you nervous?" Me: "you spring things up on me all the time Lakhe. I don't even get to prepare." Lakhe: "its not like you're going to meet her. I just want to be there. Can we do this for me please?" Me: "Fine." he drove into the cemetery and found a spot to park. Lakhe: "come." we walked together in the quiet graveyard. This place kind of freaked me out. Lakhe: "here." I stared at the tombstone. Nolitha Geraldine Mbumbane. He squatted next to it. Lakhe: "Hi ma... Ndim unyana wakho. Ndizokubulisa namhlanje and ndizok'xelela ukuba ndide ndamfumana umfazi. Igamalakhe ngu Sphosenkosi, and sizolakha elikhaya as you wished ngemini wandizala ngayo. Sondela baby." I took only one step. Lakhe: "don't you wanna say anything?" I shook my head. Lakhe: "okay. Maybe next time." he spent a few more minutes talking there and finally said his goodbyes. I walked straight to the car. He followed me in. Lakhe: "what happened?" Me: "graves creep me out." Lakhe: "you do know that sooner or later-" Me: "don't." Lakhe: "I didn't. I'm just saying." he drove the car. I stayed quiet the entire way home. We finally drove into our driveway. Me: "ayingo Sandile lo? How did he get here so fast?" Lakhe: "you really want an answer to that? Umazi uSandile akanangqondo." we got out the car sayongena endlini. Sands: "hey, hey! I made snacks. Dinner will be ready in 30 minutes." Me: "ufike nini?" Sands: "its been a while now." Me: "Uphi uDumi?" Sands: "he.....asked if I could drop him off at his house." Lakhe: "ku Zingi?" Sands nodded. Me: "is he staying there?"

Sands: "no, he'll be back later. Uzoyolandwa ngu Sibú at 17h15, in time for dinner." Me: "okay." I went to the bedroom, taking my laptop and switching it on. Lakhe: "what are you doing?" Me: "my boss wants a full proposal on my project on Wednesday. Did you get a hold of Luyolo?" Lakhe: "yes, I'm meeting him in an hour at the office." Me: "can I come?" Lakhe: "the doctor said rest." Me: "she didn't say Die." he stared at me. Me: "I'm sorry." Lakhe: "Awuyi ndawo. Matter of fact, give me that."

No work today please. Just get better. All this will still be waiting for you when you're better." he took my laptop and iPad.. Me: "Geez. Even the iPad? What about my Facebook and instagram?" Lakhe: "you have all that on your phone. Have some of the snacks Sandile made, he used the ingredients I got from the doctor, watch television and laugh." Me: "fine." I got up and went to the lounge. Me: "fruit snacks? I thought you meant chips and marshmallows!" Sands: "its healthy. Eat up." Me: "can I At Least have some yogurt?" Lakhe: "plain only." Me: "whaaat!!!" Lakhe: "hahaaa! Kidding. Itya mntuwam." he went back to the bathroom. Sandile gave me yogurt. Me: "Sands?" Sands: "yes my dollar." I didn't know how to approach this topic with him. Me: "why doesn't your family do traditional things?" Sands: "same reason as yours." Me: "even weddings?" Sands: "it was dad's idea. He's crazy secretive about it though. Once said no blood should be spilled on the estate grounds. Human or animal." he shrugged. Sands: "I think he's just shy to admit that he's scared of slaughtering." I smiled faintly. Me: "so you've never slaughtered on the estate?" Sands: "if by 'you', you mean me, No." Me: "I meant the whole family." Sands: "nope. Not as far as I can remember. Are you worried about ancestors not knowing you?" Me: "Not really. I just think its a bit weird, you know." Sands: "its nothing really. I don't think my ancestors even know ME. You're part of our family regardless, We will protect you from anything. Sukoyika." I nodded. Lakhe walked into the lounge and kissed my forehead. Lakhe: "Sandile when are you leaving my house?" Sandile gasped holding his chest. Sands: "I cook you dinner and you're throwing me out in the streets all by myself?" Lakhe: "it was a simple question, hoity toity. There was no need for drama." Sands: "how could you bhuti!" Lakhe: "Mxim. Ndiphumile. I'll be back soon my love." Me: "bye baby." he walked out. Sands: "he melts whenever I call him bhuti." Me: "why don't we open the other side of the house. For you, Sibú and Dumz?" Sands: "that's a good idea. I'll watch them do all the work xabefikile." I giggled. The shows on TV were quitehow do I put this lightly? Boring. They bored me. I didn't understand half of what was happening. I finally ended up seeing an episode of Dragon's Den. Finally something interesting. Hours went by. My mom had called to tell me they'd arrived at home. So did Zintle and Fez who wanted to come over since I mentioned Sandile cooked dinner, I had to do damage control for that and so Sibuy arrived at last with Dumi. We were just waiting for the man of the house. Me: "hey, how's Zingi doing? Is she okay?" Dumi: "she's fine now, ebeye kwa gqirha and apparently she has high blood pressure so I need to keep checking on her regularly. She's almost 6 months pregnant now. Things are getting tougher. I don't know why this pregnancy is so complicated." Me: "the baby is going to be fine Dumi. Zingi can and will take care of herself properly." Dumi: "and she says you should too. She'll email you the right exercise for your trimester." Me: "Oh My Goodness! Everyone is acting as though I am not capable of carrying this baby." Sands: "No...its not that. Its just that, you're a bit relaxed. Too relaxed." Me: "he's okay in there. He's part of me, he's a warrior." Sands: "now I wish I was carrying him." Me: "that's creepy-" Sands: "in my arms Spho. Your mind though. Dinner is ready. Dumi help me with the plates." Dumi: "really Sandile? Because I can reach the high cupboards?" Sands: "you always tell me to treat you like you're normal, now I'm being too normal?" Dumi: "why do you have to give me impossible tasks? WHY!" Me: "stop! You're like cat and dog, always fighting, and Sandile please let Boogie out he looks like he's about to pee. Dumi, your duty kuqoqosha izitya uzifake ku machine and switch it on. Sibuy packs the dishes when they're clean. Sandile takes care of Boogie's poops outside." Sands: "Boogie is potty trained. He doesn't shit or pee in the house." Me: "outside, I said." I called Masilakhe. He's been gone for hours and it was dinner time already. Rebecca set up the table, I went to wash my hands. When I came back, Lakhe came in. Me: "tried to call you." Lakhe: "I think my battery died. I cannot believe I put my company in Harold's hands, you know he almost lost our Telkom deal?" Me: "NO!! What! How?" Lakhe: "missed two fucking meetings. No explanation whatsoever to where he was. Now, that wasn't just it. He sent the wrong documents to Clive at headquarters, I just received a bomb call from Oliver who tells me that Jane has been trying to get a hold of me because Victor isn't understanding the entire concept so he would like a meeting this Tuesday with me and Wendy." Me: "WOW. How many PA's does this nigga have?" Lakhe: "like 12, its crazy. Anyway-" Sands: " H E Y !!!!!!!!!!" everyone looked at him. Sands: "I cooked. DINNER. Sit. Shut the fuck up. And EAT." Ohkaay. We sat down quietly. Sands: "so, this is the first dinner in a very long while we've had together as a family unit-" Lakhe: "technically-" Sands: "Silence. I'd like for us to enjoy this meal I rushed home for to specially prepare. Literally risking my life-" Dumi: "and mine." Sands: "this is not about you. And again, I want to say congratulations to our newly weds-" Lakhe: "we need our house back." Sands:

"stop interrupting me and eat your food." Lakhe: "you know its Dumi only who is authorized to live in this house." Sands: "I'll be gone by morning. To my side of the house." Lakhe: "which I still own." Sands: "which you don't use." Me: "you guys can stay here as long as you want. Lakhe don't be mean to your brothers. They love spending time with you. They cook you food, they.....uhm..." Lakhe: "keep going, I'm listening." Me: "that's all I've got." Lakhe: "I thought as much." Sands: "we gonna be having all kinds of parties next door-" Lakhe: "still in my house, and by all kinds, what exactly does that mean? Baby, we need to draw up a rental lease for these three." Me: "I wish I had siblings." Lakhe: "I wish I didn't." we ate our dinner. Me: "thank you." Lakhe: "for what?" Me: "for listening to my complaints, my grumblings, my outbursts. You're a considerate, honest and amazing husband." Lakhe: "awww. Thank you my wife. You don't complain that much anyway." he kissed my cheek. Lakhe: "ndihluthi kamandi. Thank you Sandile." Sands: "Oh? What for?" Lakhe: "thank you for dinner. I'll be looking forward to more of these." Sands: "so I'm staying?" Lakhe: "of course you're staying. You're a big baby. Peanut is gonna have to take care of you." we all laughed. Our intercom rang. Lakhe: "maybe ngu Babalo lo. Maybe came to check if we got home safe." Sands: "Quick, everyone hide!" Me: "No...." I got up to answer. It was definitely not Babalo, thank goodness. Otherwise I'd have to hide. Me: "hello?" "Hi, this is Detective Sullivan and Strauss. Can you please open for us?" What were detectives doing here? Lakhe: "vula." I opened. Me: "why are they here?" nobody responded. We all looked at the door. Waiting. It was already open. They finally appeared. Me: "hi, how are you?" Det: "good thank you ma'am. I'm looking for a Masilakhe Ikhaya Sobukwe." I looked at my husband. Me: "Why." Lakhe: "This is he." Sands: "Bhuti-" Lakhe: "yima Sandile." Det: "Sir, we'd like to take you down to the station for a few questions." Lakhe: "in connection with?" Det: "You have come up as a suspect in Desiree Morgan's murder. If you could come with us please." Lakhe: "wait....I'm being arrested?" Det: "We are just taking you to the station for questioning. That's all." Dumi: "I'm coming with you." Det: "and who are you?" Dumi: "I'm his lawyer. Let's get it moving." Det: "after you Mr Sobukwe. Its gonna be a very long night."

Lakhe sat in the interrogation room. Agitated and tired. Lakhe: "I don't know what more you want me to say. I've told you everything I know." Dumi: "what I don't know is why you're still keeping my client here when you don't have any holding evidence that links him to the murder of this young woman, may her soul rest in peace. It is time for us to go now." Det: "unfortunately not. We have reason to believe that, your client had problems and confrontations with the deceased." Dumis: "everyone has confrontations and problems does that make them murderers?" Det: "No, but its pretty convenient that after a public declaration, which could potentially ruin your client's future, the deceased ends up dead." Dumis: "that's quite a funny statement. How long did it take you to figure that out?" Det: "If your client is innocent, tell me where he was last week on Thursday night the 21st." Lakhe: "I was at home with my wife." Det: "who else can testify to this?" Lakhe: "do you really think everyone in my house sleeps in my bedroom?" Det: "so everyone in your house saw you go to bed that night?" Dumis: "I live with him, and yes. I saw him go to bed." Det: "so your wife and lawyer are the only people that saw you go to bed that night?" Lakhe: "yes." Det: "tell me about the 22nd. Friday. What happened then?" Lakhe: "what do you mean? I woke up and took a shower with my wife, we got dressed and left for our doctor's appointment." Det: "then?" Lakhe: "we went out of town for a few hours and came back to finish sorting things for our wedding." Det: "later that night?" Lakhe: "she left for the hotel with her bridesmaids and mother. I went to get a haircut with my dad and father inlaw." Det: "do I really have to keep asking?" Dumis: "do you even know when she died?" Det: "the forensics say she might have died between Thursday night and Friday morning. Carry on Masilakhe." Lakhe: "I came home after that." Det: "so you spent the whole night at home on the eve of your wedding?" the room was silent. Lakhe: "if she died on Thursday night/Friday morning, how does my Friday night plan become affected?" Det: "Here's my theory... You, must have disappeared on Thursday night while your wife slept soundly. Killed your ex fiance and hid her body to be back in time for the next morning. The problem is, you didn't kill her on the scene, she died long after you left her in the cold. You pretended the entire Friday morning and afternoon to be the perfect and present husband until you disappeared again soon after your wife left for the hotel with everyone. You went back for Desiree, to get rid of her body with a little bit of help." Lakhe: "If I wanted to kill her, I wouldn't need any kind of help and you would never have found her body because I'd hav-" Dumis: "What my client is saying is that this is a load of bull crap and clear stupidity. You're bringing useless theories because you don't know what else to do." Det: "I'm just giving him a chance to come out and tell the truth. We can make this quick, easy and light." Dumis: "or we can rethink your strategy and come back another time." Det: "I see." he looked at his phone, reading something. Dumis: "of course you do. Now if we may....." Det: "unfortunately not. I have a new lead I need to follow up. You're gonna have to stay here and wait." he got up and walked out. Dumis: "what the hell!!!! Why would you say such things?" Lakhe: "I'm tired of this shit!!! I didn't kill the bitch! Matter of fact, I doubt she's even dead! She's just faking

this to get at me!" Dumisani: "I don't think she would get this far, faking her own death. Lakhe this is a very serious accusation. Please tell me the truth. We could work it out-" Lakhe: "I didn't do it!!! I'm fucking serious! Why would I leave evidence if I killed someone? Ndidom Dan? Dumisani, you got to make sure none of this goes out to the public." Dumisani: "you need to stop saying things like this and let me do the talking. Friday night ubuphi?" Lakhe: "with Sandile and Sibule." Dumisani: "perfect. They are your alibis beniphi?" Lakhe: "I was taking care of business. Besides, I can't say I was with Sandile. This will open a whole bag of worms." Dumisani: "how?" Lakhe: "Sandile has been charged before, just that....all his dockets and witnesses seem to disappear and everything gets dropped. Maybe I should've hired his lawyer, I'd be asleep next to my wife by now." Dumisani: "really? That's the attitude you have? You seem to forget that you're a public figure. Should a docket disappear, police will do anything that's everything to bring you down through the media. We can prove that you're innocent. You were just chilling with your brothers in a bar." Lakhe: "I was nowhere near a bar." Dumisani: "Masilakhe, when you left with ooSandile that night and came back in the morning.....did you kill that woman?" Lakhe: "how many times must I tell you I don't need help killing someone?" Dumisani: "stop saying that!" Lakhe: "its funny how I'm accused of murdering someone and the actual person I did get rid of remains unfound. Fucking funny." Dumisani: "what does that even mean?!!! Who did you -" the door opened. The detective walked in. Det: "Mr Sobukwe, I give you one last chance to get your story straight." Dumisani: "if you have nothing to charge my client with. I would suggest that you let him go." Det: "I knew you would say that. I'm afraid that new evidence has come to light, maybe he will change his story when he sees the video footage of him thrashing Miss Morgan to death with a blunt object." Lakhe: "so let's see." Det: "its still loading onto my computer." Lakhe: "of course it is." Dumisani: "Shh." they waited in heavy silence. Det: "and there. Right there....please look closely at the screen. Isn't that you Mr Sobukwe? Beating into something." Dumisani: "its dark you can barely see its him. This could've been anyone." Det: "really...and I'm sure the Rolex watch he misplaced on the scene with his initials and last name also isn't his?" Lakhe: "what watch." Det: "oh come on. Masilakhe Sobukwe. You left your little expensive watch on the scene where you buried the deceased. I'm going to have to arrest you for the murder of Desiree Morgan. You have the right to remain silent-" Lakhe: "D u m i s a n i!!!" Dumisani: "I think he gets it detective. Listen Lakhe-" Lakhe: "No! Not listen! I'm not spending the night here!" Dumisani: "you'll appear in front of a judge for your bail hearing. I'll push for tomorrow latest." Lakhe: "My God." Det: "chit chat is over." he tied the handcuffs behind Lakhe's back. Lakhe: "Tell my wife I love her, she shouldn't stress. And watch her eat. Please." Dumisani: "I'll fix this. I promise." Lakhe: "uzogoduka njani?" Dumisani: "I'll call Sands. Don't worry, go." Lakhe: "as if I have a choice." Det: "let's go smarty pants." he pushed him out the room. Dumi: "God, please help."

I had been up the entire time waiting for Lakhe and Dumi suddenly rolls in with Sandile. Me: "Uphi uLakhe." Sands: "Wow, you finished the entire cake?" Me: "Sandile do not question me. Where is my husband!!" Sands: "ask him. I was just an Uber. Damn." Dumi: "they've kept him in custody. The bail hearing is on Wednesday-" Me: "so he's spending two nights in jail!!! Dumisani you were supposed to get him out!" he explained everything that happened there in detail. Dumi: "I tried. They even have a video footage, plus his Rolex watch on the scene of the deceased. I ask him to tell me the truth-" Sands: "wait....did you just say Rolex?" Dumi: "yes. La detective said that the watch was an expensive Rolex." Sands: "bhuti doesn't own or wear Rolex watches. Its the Apple watch, for his Iphone. The Hublot collection and the two AP's. No Rolex. Never has been." Sibuh: "yeah. That's true. He said it made his wrist look cheap, I threw mine away ngenxa yakhe." Me: "so why would the detective think it belongs to Lakhe." Dumi: "it has his initial and last name engraved on it." Me: "you know what this means right?" Dumi: "someone is trying to set him up." Sands: "or someone fucked up." he flopped on the couch. Me: "what are you talking about?" Dumi: "was it you!???" Sands: "oh please, don't insult me with tacky uncreative and silly murders." Me: "I don't think uncreative is a word." Sands: "can you bring back my cake?" Me: "mxim. You are uncreative." Dumi: "guys I need answers. Who might have done this?" Sibuh: "maybe it was an accident." Dumi: "she was beaten by a blunt object. Repeatedly." Me: "oh God." I sat down. Sands: "what? What is it?" Dumi: "Spho please calm down. Don't stress." Me: "that night... When utata wenu came out about uDubs and him and welcoming Vuyi. The two of you, Sandile, disappeared. Your father said, one of you drinks the other smashes. Lakhe came into the bedroom that night with his hands and t shirt covered in blood." Sands: "its probably his own blood or some animal. Lakhe is not awell he's not careless." Me: "and he'd never kill someone!" Sibuh: "he was pretty pissed off about the article." Sands: "still. He wouldn't just he's not careless." Sibuh: "what if your mom did this.....as punishment for throwing her out the family?" Sands: "my mother isn't capable of killing iphela eli lincinci. She jumps on sofa's because of a little spider and a dead rat. I don't think she can stomach killing a human. Especially by beating them like this." Dumi: "what about this watch then? Why would it have his initial and surname if it doesn't belong to him?" Sands: "M. Sobukwe." Me: "isn't it M.K?" Sands: "Masilakhekhaya is written as one word on his documents so no...its just M." he looked deep in thought. Sands: "I have to go." Dumi: "NO! Nobody leaves this house. Whatever you're thinking. Out with it!" Sands: "I can't....I.....its extreme!"

Me: "thetha man Sandile!!" Sands: "Monwabisi...." Dumi: "who the fuck is that?"
Sibu: "wait.....No!" Sands: "I mean..." Sibu: "you can't possibly think-" Sands: "I know!...." Me: "I'm gonna smack the both of you at once if you don't talk!!"
the house went quiet. Sands: "I need you to sit down." I sat down. Dumi: "I'm already down here so...." Sands: "Sibu you say it." Sibu: "uqale nini uba shy kengoku?" Sands: "Monwabisi is my dad's first name." Me: "then wouldn't it say M.R Sobukwe? Since his middle name is Robert?" Sands: "that's what I'm thinking nam....does Dad have a Rolex? I don't even know." Dumi: "guys.....this is big. Do you think your father might be capable of murder?" Sandile and Sibu looked at each other. Me: "guuuuys!" Sibu: "I didn't say a thing." Dumi: "Sandile...please." Sands: "its just that.....no." Me: "everything you say will remain here." Dumi: "Sandile, your father might have done this?" Sands: "no."
Me: "you don't sound so sure. Have you ever seen him in a violent agitated state?" he looked at the tiles. Sands: "yes." Me: "he was beating someone wasn't he." Sands: "I don't want to talk about this!" Dumi: "Sandile your brother is spending a night in jail, his wife is pregnant and they've just gotten married. What you're doing is not fair. If you think your dad might've done this-" Sands: "it was in the ring, the guy died hours later in hospital. My father quit boxing because of it. That's all. It was an accident. My father is not a murderer."
Dumi: "okay. I understand." Me: "guys I'm having a funny feeling about this..." Sands: "me too. It doesn't make sense." Dumi: "I'm gonna have to work all night on this." Me: "I'll help." Sands: "me too." Sibu: "I'll go make the coffee."
Me: "hot chocolate for me vha." Sibu: "okay." Sands: "let me lock the doors and put on the fireplace. Spho are you okay babe? I don't want you stressed here." Me: "I'm better here, finding a solution with you guys than alone in that bed. I'm okay. If it gets too much, I'll tell you." Sands: "cool." we started making lists of Lakhe's enemies, actually Sandile had more knowledge there but none of them had enough motive. Me: "who would want to kill a pregnant woman?" Sands: "and blame ubhuti." Sibu: "I still say that whoever did this is closer than we think." he set the tray down. Dumi: "why usitsho?" he took his cup of coffee. Sibu: "when you were explaining, andithi ithe le detective, they had confrontations and problems? All these confrontations and issues happened inside this house Dumi. In front of the whole family, so who else would know about them?" Dumi: "good catch Sibu! Why are you an accountant!" Sands: "WAIT. If the police know about the confrontations, someone in this family must be giving them information." Sibu: "Not me, everyone knows my conscience runs thigh deep." Sands: "andiyo cupboard. If I told someone, I'd tell you I did it. Ndinoyika nganton?" Me: "well, he's been the most amazing husband way before our wedding, I don't see another man putting up with me for this long so I have no reason to put him behind bars." Dumi: "I am dead scared of Masilakhe Sobukwe. I am not even on the list of people that might think of attempting to double-cross him." Me: "so not my parents or his either. Not Dubs, she barely knows him." everyone sipped their hot beverage and stared into the fireplace. Dumi: "its someone that keeps to themselves." Sands: "that seems to remove themselves from our family feuds." Sibuh: "and that someone knew that the police were coming here before they arrived." Me: "so they decided to take the day off. Get her here!!!!" Dumi: "wait!! Hold on... She is probably in witness protection. She knows Masilakhe is dangerous-" Me: "erhh....no he's not. He's harmless." Sands: "hun, I'm going to need you to focus and not stress yourself about some things you might hear. And please do not ask questions because andizokuphendula." I kept my mouth quiet. Sibuh: "All this time we've been living with a snake! She's working with someone! She knows what happened to Dez. How else would the police know to ask about specific days in Lakhe's week. Rebecca has been playing us all along. She needs to be found before she let's loose anything else." Sands: "don't worry. I will find her, and God forbid when I do." Dumi: "we don't know if its her yet!" Me: "then who!" Dumi: "guys if the main witness, the one being kept in protection, mysteriously dies, this is gonna raise alarms and Lakhe will not even be considered bail. Do you want your brother to spend Christmas in jail?" Sands: "No but she-" Dumi: "There's a better way of doing this. Right now, she doesn't know we've figured this out. She's probably going to come here and pretend everything is hunky dory in the morning." Sands: "I can't be here. It will take all of me not to slit her throat and burn her to ash. She doesn't know who she's fucking with." Dumi: "oh she knows....problem is underestimating." he started writing something down. Sands: "I can't do it. I can't even calm myself down now! I trusted her with my life!" Sibuh: "technically, if Spho hadn't made that call, she would've let you die so...." Sands: "please tell her not to come back. Please?" Me: "she's going to know something is wrong. Relax, you can leave in the morning. I'll speak to her, and ask if she can commute to work everyda-" Dumi: "actually, she doesn't really need to be here everyday or all day nangezomini. Right now I'm working on this case and will barely need her help. So she can only come on physio days please." Sands: "draw a schedule." I chuckled. Deep down a part of me ached. At least my love left the house fully fed, I hope he's not cold and he's comfortable where he is. Well, that's a bit crazy, nobody is ever comfortable in jail. Sibuh: "guys....I feel like I trust you to tell you this without gasps and hysterical laughs." Sands: "do not trust me. I will laugh in your face." Sibuh: "I know.... Anyway, its as though....I don't know how to put this." Me: "just say it as it sounds in your head." Sibuh: "when I was in East London, I had a painful chest pain and goosebumps. Qho xandingena endlini." Sands: "really?" Sibuh: "yeah, was it only me? And I could've sworn xandingena emnyango kukho umoya ondityhala umva." Sandile burst out laughing. Dumi: "very mature Sandile." Sands: "whaaat? So what do you think? That there's evil spirits that don't like you in there? Hahaaaa. U-funny shame." Sibú: "you were outside the entire time." Sands: "I was braai-ing meat. Ndiyinton ngaphakathi kutshatwa? Maybe that's why ubuvuthelwa, why would you wanna be inside with the ladies." Sibú: "Spho....?" I looked up at him. Me: "I'm pregnant don't ask me. I faint even here plus I didn't have breakfast that day so..." Sands: "look Sibú, sometimes I too, feel like there's something a bit cold in there but then again, it's nothing. I've lived there my whole life. I've never had any encounters with creepy things." Sibú: "what about the story you told me.....you know, about the mirror." Sands: "I was hallucinating. I had an imaginary friend. It's nothing!" Dumi: "tell us the story Sandile." Sands: "it's dark and late. Not the time." Dumi: "it's the perfect time. Thetha..." Sands: "If you insist. I was downstairs in the basement where umama stored all our old toys and dad's things. She sent me down there to put some stuff away so I went down the stairs with the box. I think I was around 12. Lakhe was at a match. I put down the box and found an old toy of mine. Potato man. I used to wind it up, set it on the floor and let it roll forward. Potato man broke and ended up in the basement without batteries, so when I saw it, I tried to pick him up." I had a lump in my throat. Me: "you picked him up right..." Sands: "he rolled away." Dumi: "he did have batteries though...right?" Sands: "his back was open and empty plus he made a turn. So I stood up, clearly shocked, waved my torch to where he could've ended up and instead I saw a mirror." Dumi: "please stop." Sands: "someone was standing behind me. He didn't have a face-" Dumi: "STOP IT!!! You're making this up!" Sands: "if that's what you think." Sibú: "let him finish." Sands: "well I screamed obviously ndilila. My mother came rushing down. She asked ndibone ntoni and I told her. My dad blamed the imaginary friend I had. He said I needed to be baptized." Dumi: "okay, enough of this Sandile. If you're trying to freak me out. You did. Can someone help me onto the couch? I need to work comfortably." Sibú: "let me..." he went to help him. I looked at Sandile. Usually when he jokes around, he laughs and drags it on longer than necessary. Now, he just remained silent and a bit embarrassed. Crazy as it sounds. I believe him. Sibú: "I'm not sleeping alone tonight. I'm going to grab my sleeping bag." he went to his room. Me: "cela undiphathele ingubo ezimbini." Dumi: "cela 1 mna." Sandile was still quiet. Me: "hey.. Lighten up." I pushed him. He turned his head slowly to look at me. His eyes not blinking. He looked as if he wasn't even breathing, I don't know what scared me more. Me: "Sandile." Sands: "what?" he blinked and looked at his hand. Sands: "Uphi uSibulele?" what the hell just happened? Dumi: "he went to fetch the blankets." Sibú: "one for you. Two for Spho." I took one and tossed the other to Sandile. Me: "thank you for spooking us. Now nobody wants to be alone."

Sands: "then I have succeeded as a family man. Let me tell you about Mpumalanga." only then he started laughing. Dumi: "No. You can keep that one to yourself. We all know what happens that side is not for the faint hearted, I, my friend, am very faint hearted. Khona uyintoni eMpumalanga?" Sands: "makazi lives there." Me: "Makazi being sister ka mamakho?" Sands: "yes. She's a lovely woman. I feel like a king everytime I'm there. I'm her favorite." Dumi: "make sure she doesn't die because she's the only one that likes you that much in the world." Sands: "jealous." Me: "ndim ndodwa olambileyo?" Sands: "you finished my cake." Me: "half of it. It was already half." Sibu: "I could eat." Sands: "McDonald's?" Me: "do they deliver at this time?" Sands: "suppose-ably." Dumi: "That is not a word. Inoba ucimba you're another kind of special. This isn't New York." Me: "just try. Dumi stop being a wet blanket." Dumi: "if you succeed, I'd like a double quarter pounder." Me: "same." I couldn't help feel guilty. Well, even if ebekhona he wouldn't dare touch McDonald's with a stick. He would want me to eat though. As much as possible. I wonder what he's doing there. Sibu: "I'll have a McFeast." Sands: "of course. A meal for Kings. Only queens eat double quarter pounders." Me: "I'm actually offended." Dumi: "I'm not, they're trying to make me change what I like to what they like. Its not gonna work. Call me whatever you want. I've been bullied all my life, I'm immune to it." Sands: "mxim. Who's gonna make the call." Sibu: " ooh. Me. Give it." he took the phone and called for our orders, while we joked and disturbed Dumi with his other cases. Me: "but he did do it though. Thabo sounds like a piece of work." Dumi: "the security footage in the bank says its him. He's denying it kudala ndimzama ndimcela to plead guilty so that he gets a lighter sentence. He's just making my life difficult." Sands: "then make it disappear." Dumi: "make what disappear?" Sands: "duuuh, the video." Dumi: "that is beneath me. I am an honest lawyer." Sands: "what's that?" Dumi: "what?" he looked at himself. Sands: "an honest lawyer. What is it? Someone that teaches how to ride unicorns or is it a rainbow hunter? Oohh wait, don't tell me, Honest Lawyers.....plant magic pumpkins right? Right?" I giggled. Dumi: "I'm surprised you got through high school." Sands: "I have a degree Dumisani." Dumi: "so you keep saying. What did you graduate in Sandile? Marble collections?" I laughed. Me: "I'm sorry. That just popped out." Sands: "at least I can collect something. Uxakwe ngoku to collect simple footage. My lawyer made things disappear a lot. Even his wife shame." Dumi: "your lawyer?" Sands: "yes. MY lawyer. Edwardo is his name." Dumi: "I never asked." Sands: "you didn't have to. Telling you was courtesy." Dumi: "okay Sandile. It was nice to meet Edwardo. Are you sure he wasn't the one standing behind that mirror when you were 12?" everyone laughed. Sands: "Cute. Funny. Now you're that you're spending so much time with me, you're actually quite interesting." Dumi: "come on. Don't be Petty..."

Come give me a hug." Sands: "awww thank you Sally." Dumi: "Hahaha. Uyi bitch shame." after a long wait, our food finally arrived and we ate like kings.

Tuesday morning, I woke up second and cleaned up. Sandile was already gone, ebengadlali tu izolo. I threw away our dirt and made breakfast. Dumi: "Sibulele." Sibulele: "what..." he woke up. Dumi: "can you get me up?" Sibulele helped him onto the wheelchair. Dumi: "enkosi." Sibulele: "where you going?" Dumi: "ndiye toilet. Then, I'm going to bath." Sibulele: "okay, masambe-" Dumi: "no I got it. Sleep." Sibulele: "I usually help you. What's the problem now?" Dumi: "I want to try and do this myself. I can't depend on you all the time. One of these days you're gonna be busy." Sibulele: "okay. I'm going to stand aside and assist. If you need any help, I'll be there in case you hurt yourself. You know you're my best friend, I'll never let you do this alone." Dumi: "I thought Sandile was your best friend." Sibulele: "both of you are." Dumi: "thanks Sibulele." Sibulele: "come, let's get you scrubbed." Dumi: "now when you say it like that I don't want-" Sibulele: "shut up..." he pushed the wheel chair letting it roll down the passage fast. Dumi: "Sibulele!!!" I dished up breakfast and set it on the table. Me: "breakfast you guys!!!" I took Boogie outside to poop and pee. Then took the duck food to them and fed them. The gate buzzed, I could see as far as I was that it was Rebecca. Me: "Calm down Spho. Be friendly and normal." I prepped myself and went to open. She walked up the driveway and into the house. Me: "hi." Rebecca: "hello Spho. How are you? How was the wedding?" Me: "I'm great thanks. It was amazing. So what did you get up to yesterday?" Rebecca: "oh nothing much. I was with my mom. Catching up. Is Dumi ready?" Me: "almost, listen, he tells me that he's doing very well and that he doesn't need much help anymore. So.....you could just come on the physio days and go back to mom at home to spend more time with her." Rebecca: "but my agreement with Mr Lakhe is that I stay here." Me: "well, I'm married to Mr Lakhe now and whoever stays in My house is my decision. Dumi says he coping. So, you will only be here for the few hours of physio, 3 days a week. I made breakfast, help yourself." I walked to the bedroom. I couldn't keep my cool. I tried though. There was a knock on my door. Me: "come in." I wasn't in the mood for this bitch really. Sibulele came in. Me: "oh its you, come in." Sibulele: "ubucimba ndingubani?" Me: "Rebecca, she's here." I whispered. Sibulele: "andinamdlawombona ke shame. Anyway, are you okay?" Me: "yes....you?" Sibulele: "I have a feeling that you lied yesterday. When I talked about East London. You tensed up. Why." Me: "did you see how Sandile laughed at you? No." Sibulele: "so you saw something?" Me: "smelt. Ndizothetha isiXhosa, noba undimamele lo angandiva ba ndithini. Ngoku bendipha kulandlu, I was overpowered by ivumba lento ebolileyo okanye efileyo. Kodwa ingathi ndim ndodwa olivayo. Landenza intloko andakwazi ubona nakakuhle, andisakhumbuli noba bekusithwani pha then ndawa. So uDubs uye wafika esbhedlele ezondibuza ndive ntoni ndamxelela. Uthi yena ngoku ebethandaza pha, ubona izithinzi zabantu zisondelela kuthi. Uthi ikhona into efihlwe kulandlu and andinokwazi ubuyela pha otherwise ndizofa. So I'm gonna need your help with that." Sibu: "of course! Inzulu mos xa injalo Spho. Uzothini kengoku ku Lakhe?" Me: "ndoyika umxelela. Andicingel ba uyakholwa zezazinto." Sibu: "kodwa uyabona ukubhanjwa kwakhe Yinto evele snaaks? Mna ndithi, la mama uklandlu uyayazi lento yenzeka pha and yeyakhe. Yilento engakufuni. Usebenzisa lo ulapha for ukuphalaza ngapha." Me: "exactly. Uvile kwela bali lika Sandile xa esithi ngoku ebelila ufike umamakhe wabuza kuye ubone ntoni. Kuthen ezobuza lonto instead of ukhalela ntoni?" Sibu: "bendicimba ndim ndodwa ozibuza lonto!! Uthini kengoku ngokufa kuka ma'am?" Me: "Andiyazi ke yona. Iyandibhida straight." Sibu: "Spho, lento ndizok'xelela yona ndicela ungaze uyichaphaze nakubani na. Especially uMasilakhe noSandile." Me: "what is it.." Sibu: "ngolwesihlanu, besihamba sonke...siyolanda something." Me: "Yinton le beniyoyilanda?" Sibu: "iziyobisi. Ibiyeyokugqibela la pasile. Lakhe uneskweleto esikhulu komnye ubhuti, so bekufuneke sithengise lento sifumane imali, siyithumele kuzocinywa igamalakhe kwizinto zalomntu."

I looked at Sibu. Me: "Lakhe akathengisi obob'ghanxa. He is a businessman. Sandile probably, but my man? No." Sibu: "I know its not what you want to hear-" Me: "its not. And its not true." Sibu: "can you just do me one favor?" Me: "what?" Sibu: "promise me you're never repeating this to anyone. Especially ubhut' Lakhe. You do not understand how dangerous he can be. Umvile nawe uDumisani utheni. Nobody can get in his way." Me: "fine." Sibu: "promise me Spho." I looked at his eyes. He really looked scared. Did he think that uLakhe would hurt him? But he's family. Me: "I promise." Sibu: "thank you Spho. I trust you with my life. I really do." Me: "okay Sibulele. I have a lot to do." Sibu: "okay. We'll talk later." I went to shower. After my shower, I got dressed and ready for the office. Sands: "Spho?" he knocked on the door. Me: "come in." I sat down to brush my hair. Sands: "so where are you going?" Me: "work. While Lakhe is out of action, I have to keep the boat afloat, you heard what he said yesterday, Harold almost destroyed us. Cost us our most important deal." Sands: "okay, but its only for today, and I want you home at 3pm. No later than that. Lakhe would never approve of me letting you go to work when you should be resting but you scare me so you can go.....and come back. In time." Me: "I will. Thank you Sands." where was he this whole time? Me: "Sandile, uvelaphi? When we woke up you went there." Sands: "yes, I went to start cleaning on the other side. I needed to think and probably calm down."

Me: "that's good. That's very good, now stay that side-" Sands: "I'm not doing that, I'm gonna be Dumi's Uber driver again." Me: "when last have you checked on your hotel?" Sands: "today at 12pm when I have a shareholders meeting. Apparently two other people own shares that I didn't know about." Me: "I thought Michael was the only other person." Sands: "he lied. As usual." Me: "you don't really like the hotel thing do you?" Sands: "tu. But if its to keep my brother happy then why not." Me: "so is Sibub looking for a job?" Sands: "he has an interview tomorrow." Me: "so what's he gonna do today?" Sands: "uzayobona umamakhe. He hasn't been there in a while." Me: "that's nice." Sands: "sowutyile?" Me: "I'm about to right now. Just finishing here. Ndilambile actually qha bendingafun uhlala nalantombi pha." Sands: "okay then. Look I'll see you later, I'm checking on Dumday. Enjoy." Me: "bye." I took my bag and went to eat breakfast. Kuyo yonke lo breakfast I was still craving chocolate chip cookies that I didn't know where I was going to find. Me: "Sibu!" he appeared from his bathroom enxibe gown. Me: "I'm leaving." Sibu: "okay." Me: "is Dumi going to see Lakhe today?" Sibu: "I think so." Me: "There's some breakfast left over, I'll pack some for him amnike." Sibu: "its okay. Don't worry about it. Iya emsebenzini." Becca: "where is Mr Lakhe?" she came from the kitchen wiping her hands. Me: "I'll be at work." Sibu: "I need to get dressed." we both dispersed as quickly as possible.

Four hours into my day, I could barely keep my head up. I was so tired and sleepy. Me: "kodwa peanut, you're being unfair. I have to work." Harold: "who are you talking to?" Me: "myself. I'm so tired." Harold: "you can totally go." Me: "after what happened last week? No." Harold: "look I'm sorry about that. My head was all over the place." Me: "oh?" Harold: "I'm not sure if Lakhe has told you..." Me: "told me what?" Harold: "about Bianca." Me: "what about Bianca?" Harold: "that...she had my baby." Me: "Whaaat!" I was acting. I knew this. As if Lakhe never told me anything. Me: "he didn't tell me this. You didn't tell me. Why? How?" Harold: "I don't know. It just happened." Me: "is that why you haven't followed your family back to Australia." Harold: "I wish I did a long time ago. Bianca is using that baby against me." Me: "do you even want a baby?" Harold: "when I saw him for the first time....something happened to me. He's so precious and beautiful. I just want to hold him-" Me: "Harold you're married." Harold: "that's the worst part. I don't know what to do. What do I tell my wife." Me: "I think you should just be honest." Harold: "and lose my other kids plus wife." Me: "then what do you want to do?" Harold: "would it be unfair if I said I wanted all of them to be mine. I want my wife, my kids and be with my baby Neil as well." Me: "his name is Neil? So sweet." Harold: "yeah." Me: "its very unfair of you Harold, if you'd been cheating you were supposed to have used a condom. Now you'll be hurting your wife whom you love very much.

Your kids also. It would be worse if they heard this from someone else." Harold: "I know. I guess I should come clean." Me: "good luck okay?" Harold: "thanks. So where's the big boss?" Me: "I am the big boss." I smiled. Harold: "of course. The other one. I want to apologize to him." Me: "he's on a business trip to Pretoria." Harold: "to fix my mess." Me: "don't worry about it." Harold: "you guys just got married, you should be spending time together instead-" Me: "its okay!" Harold: "okay. Well...I still think you can go rest for a little while. If I get stuck I will call you. I promise." Me: "okay. I'll be in his office." I took my phone and bag, walking to Lakhe's office. I locked myself inside ndakhwela kula couch and took a sweet nap. I woke after 1pm and I was hungry again. My phone rang. Me: "hey." Harold: "hey Sphe, I have a fax from Telkom here, they need it signed and sent back to them as soon as possible." couldn't he do it? Me: "is it long?" Harold: "not really. I just need your guidance. Most of these topics covered, I'm not sure of." Me: "okay, I'll be there in a minute." I hung up and brushed my hair. Then got up and walked to Harold. Me: "I'm here. Let's see." Harold: "you really took a knock out on that nap hey? You even have a map on your face." Me: "wow, thanks Harold." I took the papers and read through. Me: "is there by any chance you can get me chocolate chip cookies?" Harold: "there is a bakery just down the street..." Me: "is there by any chance you can get me chocolate chip cookies?" Harold: "There's a bakery.....or you mean me going to get them for you. Okay. I won't be long. How many?" Me: "as much as they have." Harold: "uhm..." Me: "I haven't had lunch." he walked out the office. My phone rang again. Me: "hello Dumday." Dumi: "so Sandile has taught you that also. Anyway, I have someone here to talk to you. Hold." Lakhe: "baby?" Me: "hey my love. How are you? Did you sleep well? Ubutyile?" Lakhe: "I'm fine babe. Everything is fine. Wena Unjani?" Me: "I'm great. You're being evasive. What's wrong?" Lakhe: "nothing. I just miss you that's all. Ubutyile? Are you resting?" Me: "yes I ate at breakfast. Harold is bringing me chocolate chip cookies. I just woke up from a nap a few minutes ago." Lakhe: "good. Why is Harold bringing you cookies?" he's going to find out anyway. Me: "I came to check up on a few things here at work." Lakhe: "you're working?" Me: "Yes, I know you're gonna get mad but I had to make sure Harold doesn't send us to the sewerage again. But I promised Sandile I'd be home by 3pm and I have a feeling he'll come drag me kicking and screaming if I don't-" Lakhe: "I'm not angry. I'm actually very glad you stepped in when your man isn't in action. You need to keep yourself busy and not stress about me. I'm more afraid of what Harold would do. Andiyazi uske wathini lately." Me: "I spoke to him. I think iyam'worka lento yalentombi yakhe." Lakhe: "oh well. Mamela ke my love, kuyo yonke into eyenzekayo ungameleli mntu about my whereabouts. Even our parents." Me: "I've already concocted the story that uye Pretoria." Lakhe: "okay. That will work. I love you Spho. Tell Peanut I love her. Is she kicking yet?" Me: "No, HE's not kicking. Can't wait till you're back." Lakhe: "me too. I have to go." Me: "I love you too Masilakhe." he hung up. In a few minutes Harold came back with 12 chocolate chip biscuits. Me: "thank you H." Harold: "are you gonna finish those?" Me: "not now obviously." Harold: "oh, good. Anyway, are you still good? With the docs? Do you need help?" Me: "No. I'm good. I'll be done in 30 minutes." Harold: "I'll be in my office then." he walked out. which would be almost 2pm by then and I'd have an hour left. Luyolo walked in, the new guy Lakhe is supposed to groom. Me: "hey you." Luyolo: "molo sisi. I haven't seen Mr Sobukwe today, I'm finished with the research he asked me to do." Me: "research?" Luyolo: "Yes, this is my first trial. Seeing if I can work under pressure and efficiently." Me: "when did he give you this task?" Luyolo: "yesterday." Me: "Well, at the moment Lakhe had an emergency meeting in Pretoria. He'll be back on Thursday. Did he mention anything about your next task?" Luyolo: "well no ma'am." Me: "please call me Spho." Luyolo: "okay Spho." Me: "listen, I'm going to partner you up with Brett in marketing for the rest of today. Tomorrow you'll be with Keith. I want you to shadow them and help them with what they need. Let me call them." I called the two guys to my office and they arrived in a few minutes. Me: "guys, this is Luyolo. Mr Sobz is grooming him for the next couple of months but for the next two days, he's in Pretoria. So, I would like for you two to show Luyolo around workwise that is. Let him help you and show him a few other things that you do here. Not making coffee. Not filing. Exactly what you're doing. Lakhe would be so happy to see you helping each other." Keith: "what I'd give to be groomed by him myself. Hi Luyolo, I'm Keith." Brett: "I'm Brett." Me: "Brett, you're with him the rest of the day." Brett: "can I do tomorrow whole day instead? Right now I have a dentist appointment, besides, tomorrow is our marketing field day. He'll learn a lot there." Me: "perfect. So for today Keith?" Keith: "fine with me. Come let's go." Luyolo: "Enkosi Spho." Me: "bye.... Enjoy." they walked out the office. Brett remained behind. Brett: "so...." Me: "so what Brett?" Brett: "how did he get the internship? I would die to have Mr Sobukwe teach me." Me: "what is it with you guys and Mr Sobukwe." Brett: "funny you should ask. Mrs Sobukwe. Congratulations by the way." I laughed. Me: "thank you. I'm sure if he has time, he will squeeze you guys in for mentoring. You're already great at your job though. Luyolo is still starting out." Brett: "still, I'm jealous. I'm gonn be late. Gotta go Mrs Sobz." he dashed out. I finally finished going through this thing which bored me to death, but at least the cookies kept me company. I signed it and faxed it back to the headquarters. I cleaned my office. Me: "Harold!!" I yelled down the passage. He appeared in my doorway minutes later. Harold: "are you sure you're okay?" Me: "yes. I'm going home now. I'm really tired. I just sent those contracts back just now okay. I'll see you tomorrow." Harold: "thank you so much. Bye." I took my bag and walked to my car then drove home.

That evening I was sitting in the lounge by myself eating the pasta I'd cooked earlier. Sibulele walked in first. Me: "hey.." Sibulele: "hi." Me: "so what's wrong now?" Sibulele: "ukhona lo?" Me: "no, she just left." Sibulele: "good.. Bendiyobona umamam. She's just destroying herself with alcohol and I don't know what else." Me: "why?" Sibulele: "well..... she blames herself for losing my sister. Then my dad." Me: "you had a sister? What happened to her?" Sibulele: "she doesn't know." he had tears in his eyes. Sibulele: "she doesn't even know where her own daughter is!!" Me: "well, maybe she really doesn't." Sibulele: "She thinks she's dead Spho! What kind of mother is she? Why has she never tried to look for her!" Me: "why has the daughter never tried looking for her mother yena? Its probably not entirely her fault." Sibulele: "and my dad? Why did he leave? And why does nobody know where the hell he is!!!" Me: "I'm so sorry Sibulele." I hugged him. Me: "just try and be patient when you talk to her. Understand that she's also going through pain. Why else would she drink herself like this? She loves you and her daughter. Give her some time. Kuthen ungakhe uhlale naye like you did before andithi she got more sober and you began connecting." Sibulele: "she makes me so angry that she lost her. I've always felt in my heart that ikhona into eshotayo kum. Now she just drops this bomb on me." Me: "is this sister your twin?" Sibulele: "I don't know. Why don't I have any memory of her? Ndiyashota, but Andiyazi kushota ntoni." Me: "don't worry Sibulele. Sooner or later you'll figure it out and you need to keep calm until you do. Pray about it. Let God into your heart, izovela lenyani uyikhangelayo mntase. Ndik'phathele ukutya kwakho?" Sibulele: "yes please. I'll have it in my room." he let go. I went to heat his plate and took it to his bedroom for him. I went back to the lounge. My phone rang. Me: "hi Fez." Fez: "hey boo. Uphi?" Me: "I'm at home. Why?" Fez: "I have a crisis." Me: "oohkay. What is your crisis hun." Fez: "goodness. I'll have to see you." Me: "okay. Come over. The hubby is out of town and the boys won't be in until late." Fez: "okay. I'll request an Uber, pull out some wine for me please." Me: "okay love." she hung up. I wonder what's the issue this time. I took upon this time to call Zingi. Her phone rang twice and she picked up. Me: "hey babe." Zingi: "hey Spho. Unjani?" Me: "I'm good. Wena? Uright?" Zingi: "oh I'm okay. Just having to take it really slowly now. This baby.....is really...difficult." Me: "I'm sorry about that friend. We're here for you though, if you need anything." Zingi: "thanks love and Dumi is being decent as well, so I'm grateful for that." Me: "that's a first step. It will be fine." Zingi: "I just feel so stupid, you know." she sobbed. Me: "No. You shouldn't be-" Zingi: "I am Spho!! I don't know what's wrong with me!!!" she was crying now. Me: "Zingi, please calm down. Seriously. What's happening?" Zingi: "this is gonna sound so crazy." Me: "okay." Zingi: "I still have like...tiny bitty feelings for someone." Me: "who's someone? Dumi?" Zingi: "no..." she sniffed. Me: "Sandile?" I whispered. I don't know why. It just felt appropriate to whisper. Zingi: "I know I'm being a whore. Its just that...he looked so good on Saturday. And he was his usual nice self." he has a nice self? Me: "he was dressed as he usually dresses. All black. All the time. As usual." Zingi: "you obviously wouldn't see it..." Me: "babe. Its just the hormones. Don't feel bad about it. A few guilty thoughts won't hurt. Worse kengoku you're lonely in that big house." Zingi: "so I should call him-" Me: "NO. That's a bad idea. Sandile has become really close to Dumi. Keep these thoughts to yourself my friend, Dumi is starting to come around and the last thing you want is to push him away and not have any support in your corner when things get tough." Zingi: "you're right. I just haven't had sex in a very long time Spho. I'm always horny and I don't know what to do." Why is she telling me this??? :(I don't want to know. Zingi: "maybe I should get a dildo." Me: "I don't think that's a safe idea." Zingi: "ndithini ke?!!" Me: "ask.....Dumi to help you." What a dumb idea Spho. Zingi: "even you must know that is far fetched. Even if he were to say yes. I'm pregnant. He's in a wheel chair. HOW would it work." Me: "he would lie flat on his back and You'd be on top." Zingi: "I don't think he's gonna say yes." Me: "he hasn't had sex in a long time. I don't think he has the right to say no." she giggled. Zingi: "well....trying won't hurt right?" Me: "definitely. And you won't feel guilty because he's still your husband and utata wabantwana bakho." Zingi: "thank you so much my friend." Me: "oh its fine! Just so long as you're happy hun." Zingi: "okay, I have to go. Nanku mama efika. Love you." Me: "love you too babe." I hung up. The gate buzzed ndayovula. Wangena uFez. Me: "What the Hell are you wearing!" Fez: "khandiyeke wethu tshomi. This is my depression outfit." if you were wondering. He was wearing black leather bum shorts. A see through black vest. A Black ankle boot that was a wedge. And a long black sleeveless cardigan. Me: "depression? Well....the color says it all. What is happening?" I poured him wine and juice for myself. Fez: "why ungaseli nam? I'm ugly aren't I?" Me: "No. The doctor says I must take a break on alcohol remember? I told you this. Ndik'phakele?" Fez: "no tshomi I'm on a diet." Me: "Kwenzeka nton Fez." Fez: "oh I gained a bit during the winter. I look like a cinnamon roll." Me: "not your body man, you called me urgently ufuna uthetha!" Fez: "oh yes! where do I begin? Oh wait. In this house on Friday." Me: "what happened in this house on Friday." we sat in the lounge. Fez: "Spho I met the love of my life." I held in a giggle. Me: "u-sure tshomi?" Fez: "of course I'm sure. I always am." Always? Me: "who is it?" Fez: "only the sexiast man I've ever seen with his top on." Me: "this is getting a little creepy." Fez: "Oh Spho! He is gentle. He has the devil's look in his eyes." Me: "how can one be gentle and still have that lo-" Fez: "and when he smiles, its like a flower blooming in Spring. He is gorgeous Spho." I had to wait for him to finish. Fez: "the sweet cutie little dimple. Those muscles!!!" Me: "uSandile?" Fez: "how did you know?" Me: "he's the only other person with a dimple besides my husband who you'd probably never know well enough to like a single piece of him." Fez: "yeah. That man is like a brick wall. I don't know what you see in him. Sandile is so sweet, thoughtful, and so-" Me: "so that's why they kicked you out on Sunday?" Fez: "no.....maybe. But I didn't say anything nje!" Me: "you? Not say anything?" Fez: "I was subtle. Very." Me: "then what happened?" Fez: "nothing." Me: "Fezile." Fez: "I touched his arm." Me: "and..." Fez: "I just said he had sexy muscles." Me: "why would you do that?" Fez: "ndithini ke? What's done is done. He's sexy. So?" Me: "what is so sexy about Sandile? He's like a little piglet." Fez: "Piglets don't have muscles. You have been blinded my friend by your dear husband. Thina ke sisene eye sight." he batted his eyelashes. Me: "well, what are you gonna do about your eye sight?" Fez: "I don't know!" Me: "I hate to break it to you Fez....but Sandile is very straight." Fez: "I know that my friend but ndizom'visa izinto ezimnaarndi ezi popayo tshomi doesn't he understand this?" I laughed. Me: "ezi popayo?" Fez: "Yoh tshomi." Me: "well, nankuya engena e-gate'in ke. Uzumbalisele ngento ezipopayo." Fez: "I would rather die....but kodwa tshom singayi killer-kuple. Imagine, me with my pazazz. Him with his swag. Siyiqhwabe ibeyi mess." I laughed at that possibility. Sandile and Fez? God, no. Sands: "well, you should've let me handle it-" Dumis: "you're not a lawyer Sandile. Your kind of handling would get me into trouble." Sands: "it would've been effective-" Me: "you're not even in the house for 2 seconds and you're already arguing!" Dumis: "its your brother. Can't drive like a normal human being, can't talk like one either. He doesn't even know any other color besides black." Sands: "good luck for your day tomorrow." Dumis: "it was a joke... Sands. I'm kidding." Sandile walked into the kitchen elandelwa nguDumis. Fez: "uyambona ke tshomi?" Me: "Who?oh. Yes. Oh!" the boys came into the lounge with their food. Dumis: "Hi Fez." Fez: "molweni." he crossed her legs. Sandile was eating. Mouth already full, flicking through the TV channels. I looked at Fez. Me: "do you now see?" Fez: "Shut up. still cute." Me: "you have hit a new low my friend." Dumis: "Spho, we have a family meeting in 20 minutes." Me: "Oh? Ushushu umba?" Dumis: "very." Fez: "that's my cue. I'll request for myself." he clicked on his phone yacima. Fez: "oh no!!! My battery is dead." Me: "There is no need for drama. Wonke umntu ohlala kulendlu uses an iPhone." Sands: "uyaphi?" he looked directly at him. Fez: "uhm....I..." I could see him struggling to breath. How is this not funny? Sands: "while I'm still young Fezile." Fez: "oh uhm.....ndiye Walmer Heights." he gave him his address. Sands: "your Uber will be here in 8 minutes." Fez: "thanks you a lot." the excitement in his voice was tickling me ndik'xelele. But I couldn't be laughing. The lounge was quiet for a few minutes. Sands: "Uphi uS'bulele? Is he back?" Me: "yes but he wants to be alone so don't go-" he was already up and striding down the passage. Me: "marching in." Dumis: "why? What's wrong?" Me: "just some stuff with his mom." Dumis: "hm.." he stared at his phone. Dumis: "oh." Me: "yeah." I was curious about the 'oh' text he just received. I needed a hobby you guys. Sands: "Uber outside!!" he yelled down the passage. Me: "so much for your thoughtful sweet man." I walked Fez out. Fez: "he requested the Uber without having being asked." Me: "I see." Fez: "he cares tshomi." Me: "I don't want you to get hurt Fez. Sandile is quite unpredictable. Don't gamble with your feelings when it comes to him." Fez: "I'm a big girl Spho. I know how to handle it. Bye boo. Love you lots." I opened the gate for him. Me: "love you too babe." wakhwela kwi cab yakhe. I went back to the house. Me: "hey." Dumis: "Where's your friend?" Me: "he just left. Are you okay?" Dumis: "I don't know...look...I don't know who else to talk to. Now that Lakhe is in jail.." Me: "he'll be back soon...right?" Dumis: "yeah. But right now he's not here and I can't really tell Sandile kunye noSibu." Me: "then talk to me. We've been friends way longer anyway." Dumis: "too long." Me: "you know, I remember most things about my life now. But I can't remember how I became friends with you and Zingi." Dumis: "I think that's best....a story for another day. This is more pressing." Me: "what's wrong? Ngu Lakhe?" Dumis: "no, definitely no. I received a text. From uZingi. She wants me to come over for dinner." Me: "and..." Dumis: "she says she's lonely and in need of my help." Me: "okay. So you're going? Right?" Dumis: "why would she call me?" Me: "you're still her husband." Dumis: "what help would she need kum? I can't even stand." Me: "maybe you don't need to stand." Dumis: "I'm confused now." Me: "she's lonely Dumisani. Something the kids can't fulfill. Only you." Dumis: "you mean.....she wants to..." Me: "duh." Dumis: "Wow." Me: "isn't that a good thing? She misses you." Dumis: "Me? What if I can't You know what, just leave it." Me: "don't be so hard on yourself Dumisani. Zingi contacted You for a reason. She's still your wife. Carrying your baby." Sandile and Sibu came in the lounge. Sands: "family meeting." they sat down. Me: "what's this meeting about." Dumis: "Spho tomorrow, Lakhe appears in court for a bail hearing. There is a possibility that the bail amount may be high. Lakhe uthi his bank will not allow any withdrawals beyond 10k from anyone but himself and he'll still be in custody then. So, he says, ucela uye ku sisNolitha. Uzokunika imali." Me: "ngubani uSis Nolitha kanene?" Sands: "are you being serious right now?" Me: "I've never met a sis'Nolitha in my lif....." Dumis: "what is it?" Me: "he said ndiye ku sis Nolitha? She would give me the money?" Dumis: "that's what he said." Me: "that can't be right. Are you sure you heard-" Sands: "I was there. He said uSis Nolitha. Something about you met her recently and you know where she is. He suggested we go tonight. She doesn't like visitors during the day. So let's go." Me: "I am going NO DAMN

WHERE!!!! Is he craaaazyyyyy!!! Dumisani: "Spho, calm down!" Sands: "ngubani uSis Nolitha!" Sibulele: "and where the hell is she? Kutheni ezofuna uyobonwa ngobusuku?" Me: "its his mother!" Sands: "but uStella ngu Nokwakha kaloku. I doubt he'd want anything from her." Me: "his late mother Sandile. She is Nolitha. He introduced me to her on Monday when we came back!" Sibulele: "when you say late....." Me: "I mean she's dead!" Sands: "that can't be right. Maybe There's another sis Nolitha. Because firstly, siyothini kumntu owafayo. Secondly, didn't he say her body was cremated not buried. How can she be..... OH." Me: "What." Sands: "this is awesome!" Dumisani: "I do not like the sound of this." Sands: "I have the smartest brother ever. Get your shovels people!" Sibulele: "why?" Sands: "my dear brother, created a grave and hid money in it, in case of emergencies. The last place anyone would ever look." Me: "what?" Sands: "we have to dig the money out! Siyoyifuna ku Sis Nolitha!" Me: "I am going no where." Sands: "oh but you are Lil sis. You're the only one that knows where that grave is. Wear something you don't care about. I'll wait in the car with the shovels." he smiled. I finally saw the devil's look in his eyes.....

The car stopped at the graveyard. The night was dark with a little fog that looked like steam in the air. My heart was racing in my chest. Sands: "let's go." he got out the car and opened the boot. Me: "I can't go there Sandile." Sands: "Spho, you have to." Me: "I can go to the bank and explain that I'm his wife." Sands: "seniyile kwa Home affairs? This will be quicker. I promise." Sibulele got out the car. Dumisani had to stay behind. How I envied him right now. Sands: "which way is it?" he held the shovels in both his hands. I walked quietly and carefully as to not wake the dead. If that's even a thing. I was just scared qha. There was nothing normal about this. Me: "what if the security guards come?" Sands: "I took care of that." we arrived at Nolitha's grave. Me: "what if there's a body in the coffin?" Sands: "then there's a body in the coffin. Sizothini ke? Move the stone Sibulele." Sibulele: "how?" Sands: "am I the only one willing to go through with this? I'll be sure to tell ubhuti how his family treats him." Sibulele: "I've never moved a tombstone before! How the hell am I supposed to do it?" Sands: "knock it over. Funeke ibese caleni when we dig so that it doesn't tip over when you're inside." Sibulele: "when.....when I'm inside?" Sands: "just do it." Sibulele tried to remove the stone, Sandile helping him. They put it aside and started digging. Me: "I'll be in the car so long." Sands: "Spho." Me: "I'm pregnant. Kunemimoya emdaka apha. I can't be in a cemetery!" Sands: "okay. I get you. You can go." I ran back to the car and locked it when I was inside. Dumi: "benzani aba?" Me: "they're digging. Why would Lakhe keep money in a grave? That's insane Dumisani!" Dumi: "he is insane. It was the best way to keep it from the wondering eyes." Me: "he could've kept it at the house." Dumi: "Spho, don't think too much about this. At least now ninecebo lemali ye-bail." Me: "I don't like being here." Dumi: "neither do I. But sihleli sobabini, by tomorrow we'll be laughing about this. Don't worry. Just take deep breaths in." I took a deep breath. And again. Me: "its not getting any better." Dumi: "I know. I've been trying all this time. You want to talk at least?" Me: "about what." Dumi: "I admire how strong you are Spho. You dealt with this calmly and You've been keeping a level head." Me: "yeah well...I have to honor my vows. For better and for worse." Dumi: "now you're making me feel bad." Me: "for what." Dumi: "I feel like I'm abandoning her. Is it so bad that I left her after she'd tried to kill me? I also did her wrong and I don't know what I would've done if I was the only one that did wrong. She would have forgiven me." Me: "what do you feel in your heart?" Dumi: "I still feel resentment. Anger." Me: "and how do you think she feels." Dumi: "I don't know." Me: "Dumisani. You were in a relationship with another woman. It wasn't just casual sex. You let your side chick, to be in your life. Abe yi second in command xa engekho uZingi." Dumi: "she also slept with Sandile. And other men too." Me: "what she did was wrong, nangona ifana nelakho ityala. I think the both of you should go to therapy and let out all your feelings and frustrations, not only for yourselves but to be able to continue raising your children together. All this tension and anger isn't good for the kids." Dumi: "I don't trust her though." Me: "I know. Its going to be difficult but uzothini ke? Christmas is a month away, how are you going to separate yourself from your kids and your kids from her?" Dumi: "I don't know. I haven't thought about it yet." Me: "just see a doctor together. Mna, Andiyazi shame ndingathini because I love the both of you very much. Its not nice to see you apart like this. I'm sure your kids don't enjoy it either." Dumi: "I know..." 2 and a half hours later Sandile walked to the car with a big block of plastic. Sands: "this one block is probably a million Rand if not more." it was 200 Rand notes stacked neatly. Me: "that is impossible. Probably half a million." he put it in the boot. Wayolanda ezinye ezimbini. Sands: "we're almost done guys." Me: "how big is this coffin?" Dumi: "I know right!" we waited another half and hour babuya. Sibulele didn't look very well. Sandile drove us home. When we arrived Sibulele took Dumi inside. Sandile took the plastic blocks of money. Me: "Sibu." I knocked on his door. He didn't respond. Me: "Sibulele?" Cwaka. I went to Dumi's room. Me: "Dumi?" Dumi: "ngena." I went in. Me: "Uphi uSibu? Is he okay? He didn't look fine." Dumi: "Inoba uyavasa. Uthi he's leaving tonight. He's going to his mom's house." Me: "do you think something happened there? At the graveyard." Dumi: "I'm not sure. He didn't say anything to me."

Me: "Dumi I'm worried about him." Dumi: "Sphosenkosi, stop worrying about everyone in this house and go rest." Me: "Dumisani, everyone that lives in this house is my family. I have to worry about them! I'll go wait in his room." I went to Sibulele's bedroom and sat on the chair. His room was always neat and clean. Unlike an average male. No clothes lying around. Bed always made. Dressing table spotless. He walked in the room draped in a towel and wasn't even surprised to see me. Me: "what's wrong?" Sibulele: "I just spent an hour of my life in a grave. Something about it doesn't seem natural." Me: "I'm sorry you had to go through that." Sibulele: "it's okay..." he opened his wardrobe and looked through the ironed, folded t-shirts wakhupha three. Sibulele: "the whole time I was in there bendicinga about utata. What he might've looked like, what kind of person he was, where he could've gone.....then it hit me." Me: "what hit you?" Sibulele: "what if he's dead..." Me: "but...how?" Sibulele: "what if my mother killed and hid his body? Now she can't live with herself because of it." Me: "Sibulele that can't be the reason." Sibulele: "I don't know what to think anymore Spho! Andiyazi!" Me: "okay, get dressed and ready. I'll drive you to your mom's place. At least sibenyazi uba Uphi. I have a feeling you might not want Sandile to come-" Sibulele: "I don't." Me: "I'll wait in the lounge." I walked out. Ndiyolinda elounge with a bag of chips. Sands: "you are really murdering the snack cabinet, aren't you." Me: "Sandile." Sands: "what did I do now?" Me: "nothing..." maybe Sibulele wouldn't appreciate me talking about him being uncomfortable ku Sandile. Men can be a bit cray cray too. Sands: "am I gonna have to tickle it out of yo-" Me: "I will stab you dare you try." Sands: "then tell me yintoni ngxaki." There's just so much going on in this family. Especially between the three boys. Why couldn't they sit and talk it out? Dumi can't talk about his personal problems because Sandile is part of them. Sibulele naye unengxaki and can't talk about it either. Sandile is the only one ophole inqentsu apha. Is it possible that he's a bully? Sands: "I don't like the way you're looking at me." Me: "I don't like how you forced us to go to a graveyard at night." Sands: "What?? Excuse me, but who is this helping? All of us want Lakhe aphume pha! Kodwa funeke ibendim ndodwa osebenzayo? Ayikokunya kengoku oko?" Me: "There's no need for you to be rude. You could've paid someone else to do it." Sands: "This is family secrets Sphosenkosi Sobukwe. It remains in the family. If we don't got each others back. No one else will! I did what Lakhe asked of YOU to do, if anything, Nguye o-suppose umqumbele not mna!" Sibulele: "I'm ready." he walked out the door. I followed him. Sands: "so that's it ?? You're leaving? WOW." I started the car and drove out. Sibulele: "he does have a point." Me: "I know. I just don't know why I'm mad." Sibulele: "you have two brains inside you, they're not always gonna be in sync." Me: "hehe..." Sibulele: "enkosi for having me in your house. I really felt close to you. Felt like family." Me: "you still are. You're welcome home anytime you want." Sibú: "enkosi.." Me: "Sibú, does Sandileforce you to do things?" Sibú: "things like what?" Me: "just anything." Sibú: "No." Me: "so you don't feel obliged to do things because of him." Sibú: "turn left here." Me: "Sibulele..." Sibú: "Sandile has been nothing but good to me. I don't feel obliged to him. He's my best friend." Me: "something about that makes me very uncomfortable Sibulele. If There's anything at anytime that you want to get off your chest, never hesitate to call me." Sibú: "ok." after a long while, we drove into Zwíde. He directed me. I wasn't really sure of this place but it scared me a little. It was very dark. The street lights were one for almost every street. Me: "Sibú u-sure ufuna uhlalapha?" Sibú: "yeah. You can stop at the third house." I made a U-turn and parked. Me: "okay ke. I'll text you when I'm home. Do you need anything? Cash?" Sibú: "no I'm sorted. Thanks. Drive safe. Don't stop for anyone." Me: "okay. Nawe ke ambongena endlín kqala." he got out the car with his army green bag and went to knock on the door of the small house. There was no response. He knocked again and again. A small light, probably a candle lit up inside the house. Me: "Sibú, cela uthathe umamakho siyendlíní. It'll be better for her there." Sibú: "Spho, Go Home. Go." I didn't like the idea of a candle being lit in the middle of the night by umntu onengxaki yotywala. Why couldn't Sibú let me help him!! Sibú: "Sphosenkosi." Me: "fine." I started the car. the door finally unlocked and the old woman opened. I looked at her then quickly looked away. Sibú: "I'm in!" I drove away like the wind was blowing my car. I had tears in my eyes. The woman who had raised me, who had let her husband abuse me, who'd ignored me was Sibulele's mother. My heart hurt so badly. After everything I'd forgotten, she was a vivid painful memory of my childhood and I could still feel the hatred in my heart. I parked the car outside my house. The front door opened. I got out the car. "Spho..." I opened my eyes and took in my surroundings. Me: "Oh God, no..." Simphiwe: "what happened?" he hugged me. Me: "I'm married!" Simphiwe: "WHAT!!!" he let go. Simphiwe: "Why!!!" Me: "I was inlove. Am inlove....I don't know... Simphiwe, I don't know what's happening to me." one of his friend's came out of the house. "Simprah fethu. Huzet ngok?" Simphiwe: "Svig. I'm gonna need you to leave. Khathethe ne bra's awtiyam." Svig: "Hi Spho. Uright?" Me: "I'm fine." Svig: "ok. Ndizothetha namajita, khululeka." he walked back in. Me: "Simphiwe, what happened. Ndicela uthethe inyani... I don't want lies." Simphiwe: "I cheated on you. I emotionally abused you. I embarrassed you. Took you for granted. And you left me. Even after you left, I tried by all means to break you ndingafuni wonwabe. I wanted you to come crawling back to me. And instead, almost sent you to your grave. I remember ndithetha nawe on the phone and exchanging texts. Kwecwaka afterwards. Didn't hear from you again. Until I heard ubukwi ngozi and you'd lost your memory." the guys came out the house. They said their goodbyes. Simprah:

"I'm sorry guys, can we reschedule?" Svig: "no problem mninawa. You'll call when you're ready.." bakhwela kwimoto and left. Simphiwe: "come in." I followed him inside and sat on the kitchen stool. Me: "I saw my mother." he boiled water for tea. Simphiwe: "Unjani uSis Zama? I miss her and your cooking on Sundays xa ekhona." Me: "not uSis Zama. My biological mother." Simphiwe: "what did she want." he stopped moving. Me: "she didn't see me." Simphiwe: "wena umbone phi?" Simphiwe: "There's a friend of my husband that lives with us. I offered to drive him ba makayobona umamakhe. He said she wasn't coping. When I dropped him off. I saw her open the door." Simphiwe: "so this guy is your brother. Lo brother ubungayazi wayaphi. That is hectic Spho." Me: "I drove away as fast as I could. I can't face anyone. I'm so scared Simphiwe. I don't even know how I drove all the way here! Andizazi ndifike njani apha." Simphiwe "Spho...when we met, you told me that azange wakwi serious relationship and awuyifuni. Later in our relationship, you told me your story. Wena xa sowucinga why do you think you're here?" Me: "I don't know!" Simphiwe: "this is the first place you found comfort in after you left sis Zama's warmth. This was your independent self. You bought this house ukhululekile and feeling safe from everything. Inggondo yakho is taking you back to your comfort zone dear." Me: "you never used to be this smart." Simphiwe: "ouch. Your tongue burns more than this tea." he gave me my cup. Me: "sorry man...Uphi umamekhaya." Simphiwe: "she left. Took the child too." Me: "why." Simphiwe: "it wasn't working out. Then, Svig, invited me to a Brothers Union." I giggled. Me: "what is that?" Simphiwe: "a group of guys that get together twice a week. We discuss our problems and give each other advice on how to deal with them. I've been taught how to treat women, how to take care of my living, no more alcohol. Its been difficult but I'm coping. Kamandi uyabona nawe ku-clean kodwa kugqibo phuma amadoda." Me: "I'm sorry I ruined your evening." Simphiwe: "you didn't ruin my evening. I've spoken about you, they understand." Me: "I have to go now. It sure feels good to have my heart rate back in its place. Thanks for having me." Simphiwe: "Spho..?" Me: "yeah." Simphiwe: "I never got to say I'm sorry. From the bottom of my heart I truly apologize for everything I did to you. Sphosenkosi, you're a gift, a blessing to anyone you come across. You are warm, caring, God knows you want to save the world and you have that strength about you.....that I've always loved. I lost half my mind when I lost you. Ndandi dom Spho. I should've married you when I had the chance. Lakhe saw the opportunity immediately and didn't take it for granted. Tell him I say, congratulations, the best man really did win. Wonwabe Spho emtshatweni wakho, as much as he makes you happy. Stay the respectful, caring woman you always have been." Me: "Enkosi Simphiwe. Kiss Buhle for me the next time you see him." he checked the time. Simphiwe: "I'll do so." I walked to the door. Simphiwe: "and one more thing.." Me: "what is it." Simphiwe: "please sell the house. I can't stay here anymore. It rightfully belonged to you and it was wrong of me to take it in the first place." Me: "Simphiwe, its okay. Keep the house. Your son must have a safe place to come visit you in." Simphiwe: "its not about that Sphosenkosi. I genuinely can't live here." he had tears in his eyes. Simphiwe: "I don't even sleep here. Do you see how spotless this place is? My car is parked on the lawn because after these meetings I leave!" Me: "why?" Simphiwe: "Just...please. Sell it. You still have the title deed. Lakhe only paid the balance qha." Me: "Simphiwe I'm getting confused now." Simphiwe: "I have to go, you have to go too. Just sell the house." he switched off the lights ndaphuma phandle, getting into my car. Me: "I'm not leaving until you tell me what's going on." Simphiwe: "its nothing." he locked the house. Me: "Simphiwe! What's going on? Is it because of me?" Simprah: "No. Its not you." Me: "kanti Yinton." he looked into the dark passage that led to the back yard. Simprah: "Spho..." Me: "what?" I tried looking but didn't see anything. He climbed into the passenger seat engcangcazela. Me: "Simphiwe are you okay?" it looked as if he was hyperventilating. I looked around the yard, in the far corner I saw a shadow quickly pass. Me: "what the hell was that." Simprah: "drive." I started the car and drove away from the house. Me: "kwenzeka ntoni pha Simphiwe." Simprah: "this is gonna sound crazy." Me: "tell me." Simprah: "kukho umntu ohamba in the back yard during the night. He grunts and makes noises." Me: "you can see him?" Simprah: "No. Akabonakali." Me: "how do you know its a he." Simprah: "no woman grunts like that. Ingathi ngumntu that's upset or angry. It always starts after midnight. Xandivuka ksasa when I still stayed here, bekubakho footprints on the paving. When my brother came over once, wayeyotshaya phandle Uthi he saw someone ohleli ngase thangweni. When he moved closer, he disappeared." Me: "when did this start?" Simprah: "a few months back. Bendihambe nomama ka Buhle siye ePort Alfred. We left the gardner a key for the gate azosebenza. When we came back a few days later.....ingca yase back had been removed ingumhlaba wodwa. I haven't been able to get a hold of him till today." I swallowed. Me: "where do I drop you off?" Simprah: "at my mom's. I'll fetch my car ksasa." Me: "Simphiwe....what do you think happened?" Simprah: "Andiyazi. Maybe undibekele umuthi? But why though? Ndamenza ntoni?" Me: "what if he died there...and nguye lo umvayo." Simprah: "what do you mean." Me: "what if someone killed him....." Simprah: "you think he's buried in my back yard? No, that wouldn't make sense. Wonke umntu bemthanda latata. He gardened for everyone at our street. Who would do such a malevolent thing?" Me: "I'm just grasping at straws here." I parked at his mom's house. Simprah: "so...what do you suggest I do? If ndibiza amapolisa to dig and they really find his body

there bazothi ndim. Oh my God..." Me: "Calm down. How about first ubize umntu." Simprah: "umntu otheni Spho!" Me: "umntu onyangayo. They'd know better. Tell your mom. She might know what to do." Simprah: "I'm sorry I involved you kulento. I thought I could keep it in. I just can't take it anymore." Me: "talk to your mother. She'll know best what to do." Simprah: "okay. Enkosi. Drive safely okay? Kusebsuku." Me: "I will." he got off the car and went inside the house, I drove home.

I walked into my house just before midnight. Sandile was on the couch. Sands: "Sibulele has been looking for you." he said while staring at the TV. Me: "I had errands." Sands: "I thought he was your errand." Me: "Sandile, I'm sorry for the way I spoke to you earlier. You did this for the family and I'm grateful because I couldn't stomach it. I was upset for no reason." he looked at me. Sands: "where were you." Me: "I went to see a friend." Sands: "all your friends don't know where you are. We were all worried sick. Ubungaphenduli phone. It is literally the middle of the night." Me: "I left it in the car by mistake." Sands: "so which friend is this." Me: "I can't talk about this right now Sandile." Sands: "oh so you'd rather wait until Lakhe gets here." Me: "xa usazi ndisuka phi undibuzela ntoni?" Sands: "I don't know, ndibuza kuwe." Me: "I'm tired." Sands: "we all are. Midnight just struck. Uyangena endlini. Who is this mysterious friend." Me: "I can't say." Sands: "so its a man." I crossed my arms. Sands: "I'm not as judgemental as you think I am Spho. I thought you knew that by now." I sat down. Me: "you remember I told you I ran away from home at a young age." Sands: "yes. Ubaleka utatakho." Me: "Yes. I haven't seen my biological mother since that day all those years ago.....until tonight." Sands: "are you serious? Where? What Did she say?" Me: "Khange andibone yena. I recognized her immediately, I don't know how." Sands: "umbone phi?" Me: "she's Sibulele's mom too." Sands: "Sibulele wam?" Me: "wethu. Yes. She opened the door for him and let him in." Sands: "does he know that?" I shook my head. Sands: "so you're brother and sister." I nodded. Sands: "and in your little caucus meetings, this never came up?" Me: "nope." Sands: "what did you do next?" Me: "I drove away as fast as possible. I was crying. I was hurt. My heart was burning with hatred. By the time I realized, I was parking my car in my old driveway. Simphiwe came outside and found me there. Hysterical. We spoke for a while, until he started acting weird. Almost emotional." Sands: "what else is new." Me: "Apparently. There is something that walks in his back yard at night. An unsee-able man." Sands: "unsee-able? How? If he's unsee-able umazelaphi ba yindoda." Me: "he says, 'it' grunts and makes noises. He wakes up to foot prints on the paving. He doesn't even sleep there anymore." Sands: "serves him right. Its not even his house. He'll be fine." he clicked on the remote. Me: "you don't think its weird?" Sands: "what is?" he looked absolutely impervious by this entire story. Me: "that There's a ghost in Simphiwe's house, you know what else is funny? Months ago, Simphiwe and his girl left for Port Alfred bashiya istixo se-gate ku tata we ghadi. When they came back, days later, the entire back yard didn't have grass, it had been removed. Ingumhlaba wodwa. The old man was nowhere to be found. Now this." Sands: "I'm sure the old man is fine wherever he is." Me: "what if he was buried in the yard?" Sands: "its not the gardener that was buried in that yard." Me: "but if its not him, where is-wait, what did you just say." Sands: "you heard what I said." Me: "SANDILE!" Sands: "its late. You need to get some sleep. Uyabuya umnyeni wakho ngomso. Go rest." Me: "you know something!" Sands: "I'm not going to repeat myself ke mna. Andinguye uMasilakhe." he got up and went to his room.

Wednesday morning I was still sitting in bed. I hadn't slept a wink trying to digest what Sandile had said. My head hurt so bad. 'Its not the gardener that was buried in that yard.' Then WHO! He knew!!! That's why he wasn't surprised. Dumi: "Spho." he knocked on my door. Me: "what." Dumi: "are you ready to go?" Me: "ndiyaphi?" Dumi: "uhm, to court." Me: "go without me. I'm not feeling well." Dumi: "do you need anything?" Me: "No. Just wanna be left alone." Dumi: "okay." I heard him wheel away. I honestly didn't feel like seeing Sandile. He just frustrated me. I waited until I heard the car pull out then ndaphakama. Ndayovasa, ndanxiba gown and went to find food in the fridge. Everything I had to make from scratch. Bendingayifuni nalo English breakfast. I took my cookies left from yesterday ndayongena back in my bedroom. I wonder how Sibú was doing. I haven't responded to any of his messages. A part of me envied him. He grew up away from the torment and pain. I had to endure it on my own. I had no relationship with ibele lam and he could. He had the chance. I couldn't allow that chance because it hurt. Good God, this is so complicated. My phone rang. It was him. What now.. Me: "hello." I answered. Sibú: "hey. I was worried sick about you, Spho." Me: "I'm fine. Unjani wena?" Sibú: "I'm good. Just wanted to check on you, use court?" Me: "no I'm at home. You?" Sibú: "I can't. I'm calling hospitals and visiting morgues today. I'm trying to find my father. I guess its inevitable now." Me: "inevitable?" Sibú: "Spho, nobody just disappears without a trace like this. I should start accepting it... From people I've asked, its unlike him to vanish." Bawo wethu osemazulwini. Malingcwaliswe igama lakho. He didn't!!! Sibú: "Spho?" Me: "I'm...here... Sibú, I have to go." Sibú: "okay. We'll talk later then." I hung up and went to the bathroom throwing up in the sink. I shook my head trying to get rid of the image. I washed my mouth. 'Its not the gardener that was buried in that yard.' I heard Sandile's voice again in my head. Me: "No..." 'Its not the gardener that was buried in that yard.' Me: "NOOO!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!"

In the afternoon, after I'd cleaned the whole house. I was in the kitchen ndipheka umphokoqo. I was craving it for some reason and I hadn't had it in a very long time so ndamenza wamninzi. I had my earphones on while cooking. I tasted the fluffy maize meal. It was perfect. I turned around to take out a bowl, almost having a heart attack when I saw Sandile standing by the door. I took a deep breath and took out my bowl without saying a word. Sands: "so you're just gonna ignore me now?" the song I was listening to had just ended and that's the only way I could hear him. Me: "as you can see ndifake earphones Sandile. I'm not superman." Lakhe walked in. Lakhe: "babe?" I ran to him and hugged him tight. Lakhe: "bendikhunjulwa kangaka kanti. I was worried when Dumi said you're not well. Couldn't get me out soon enough." Me: "I'm okay. Unjani?" Lakhe: "I'm fine. I just need a shower and food. Haven't slept or eaten in two full days." Me: "uzoty ntoni? Ndizenzela umphokoqo mna." Lakhe: "ndiyafuna nam. Ndiphakele babes, you'll find me in the bath." he kissed my lips and walked out. I took out the second bowl ndaphaka and put everything on a tray for the two of us. Sands: "Spho." Me: "can you please just stay away from me from now on. Please." Sands: "we live in the same house, How will that work." Me: "then I guess its time for you to leave." I took the tray to the bedroom. Lakhe was in the bath. Lakhe: "baby is that you?" Me: "yeah." Lakhe: "God, the conditions in that place are repulsive. Sies." I mixed amasi ndafaka nobisi. Lakhe: "hun?" Me: "I'm here." Lakhe: "is everything okay? You believe I didn't do it right?" Me: "I know you didn't do it Lakhe. I trust and believe in you." Lakhe: "okay. Cela uze ngapha. With my food please. I'm dying of hunger." I took his bowl to him. Lakhe: "aren't you gonna keep me company? Kutheni ingathi awukho right nje? Are you still sick?" Me: "yeah, I'll be fine wethu. I need to get sugar." Lakhe: "sugar for what?" Me: "umphokoqo wam. It tastes better with sugar." Lakhe: "I think I just threw up a little in my mouth. Sugar baby? Hayi kodwa." Me: "I crave all kinds of disgusting things, things that make you throw up in your mouth, just an hour ago, I had a peanut butter and gherkin sandwich. So the last thing I need, is for you to judge me. You made me like this..." I walked out. Dumi: "Spho? Cela undiphakele umphokoqo please." I took out a bowl and dished for him ndamnika. Me: "amasi ase roomin ka Masilakhe." Dumi: "are you okay?" Me: "I'm fine. I just need some fresh air. I'm suffocating." I walked outside the house. Sandile was standing at the far end of the yard. Next to the garden. He stared at me like a hawk. The gate buzzed. I went to answer. "khanindivulele." it was Rob. I opened the gate and went back to the bedroom to tell Lakhe his daddy was here. Me: "Lakhe.." he was already out the bath. Lakhe: "something is obviously wrong. I sense that you're probably untrusting of me and awufuni nto idibene nam because I spent a few nights in jail. Baby, I didn't kill Dez. I didn't do it, I swear." Me: "I know you didn't. You're not that kind of person." Lakhe: "then why are you mad at me?" Me: "I'm not mad at you." Lakhe: "kwenzeka ntoni ke. Why do I feel a vibe?" Me: "your dad just arrived." Lakhe: "this is not about my dad. Is this another one of those pregnancy moods?" I gasped. Me: "so ucimba its a hobby for me to switch it on and off? Good God, Masilakhe!" I opened the door and walked out. Rob: "Heyyy!! Ninjani makoti and my baby booboo?" Me: "Siphilile tata. Can I get you juice?" Rob: "no, I'm fine. How's the baby?" for the second time. Really?? Me: "the baby is doing well. So far. Unjani wena tata? How's things?" Rob: "things are fine. I finally managed to file for divorce. I'm officially single and ndine date namhlanje." Me: "so quick?" Rob: "I've been waiting all my life. I'm so excited. I want you to help me." Me: "with what tata?" Rob: "I haven't been on a date in decades. I'm not sure what's the in thing." Me:

"tata there is no in thing. You just need to be yourself." Rob: "honey, you're the only woman that finds me interesting. I need Tips! Come, sit with me." So we're really doing this. I sat down with him. Me: "first tip, always compliment her about how she looks. Whether its her hair, her dress or her face. No sexual talk on the first date, you have to be a gentleman." Rob: "okay, so I tell her she looks beautiful. Noted." Me: "Ask her how she is doing, what she has been doing all day, be interested in hearing what she has done. Find something in her day to pick a topic on. Let's practice. You walk in." he stood up and pretended to walk in. Rob: "hey there..." Me: "No." he went back again and tried. Rob: "good evening miss." Me: "Molo bhuti." Rob: "how are you?" Me: "No." Rob: "what's wrong?" Me: "Looks before feelings." Rob: "Oh!! You look beautiful, I love your hair." Me: "it sounds a little gay." Rob: "you look stunning. How are you?" Me: "thank you so much. I'm fine wena Unjani?" Rob: "Ndiphilile. So, what have you been up to all day?" Me: "oh nothing much, ndise abantwana to school and came back to iron my laundry from yesterday. Then Queenie from next door asked me to help her hang her curtains, which I did. I went to the salon to have my hair done afterwards so ndim lo." Rob: "and the hair suits you well. Umhle yazi. Really captivating." Lakhe: "excuse me? You couldn't even wait for me to die tata?" Rob: "dying is a bit strong don't you think?" Lakhe: "why tata are you hitting on my wife?" Sands: "he did what?!!!!" Rob: "as loud as these two are, they sure as hell move like cats." Lakhe: "don't change the subject!" Me: "he wasn't hitting on me." Lakhe: "I know what I heard." Rob: "its not what you think. We were rehearsing. I didn't wanna tell you, I'm going on a date and I don't want to discuss it with you." Sands: "and me? Why? I'm your favorite." Rob: "You are, son, but this time I just don't want the both of you involved, Spho knows how to make me cool." Lakhe: "I'm not sure what part of that confession hurts the most. Thanks dad." Sands: "but she's a woman." Rob: "that is the key reason why I chose her, now scooch. Go." Lakhe: "Spho hasn't eaten. So... Unfortunately I can't scooch until she does. Ina baby." Me: "what did you put in this." Lakhe: "love and forgiveness. I'm sorry I was insensitive earlier." Me: "it still doesn't have sugar." Lakhe: "Sandile, sugar." Sands: "hm?" Lakhe: "ambolanda iswekile?" Sands: "oh I thought uyandibiza." he went to the kitchen. Lakhe: "so.... he's your favorite." Rob: "you're all my favorites Masilakhe, come on. You know Sandile is unstable. Drop it." he whispered. Dumi came in. Dumi: "so this was nice. Molo tata." Rob: "hayini Uphi owam umphokoqo?" Me: "nobody has ever said in this house ufuna umphokoqo yazi tata. Ndiphekele mna nomntanam." Lakhe: "nomnyeni wam." I looked at him. Lakhe: "wakho. Sorry again." Me: "stop apologizing." Sands: "Sugar for my sugar." he gave me the sugar bowl. If he thinks I'm gonna pretend to be sweet phambi kwabantu. He has another thing coming. I started eating my food bencokola about Rob's date. I just wanted to get out of here. I received a message on my phone ndayifunda. Lakhe: "please meet me in the bedroom." I looked around, when did he go? I went to the bedroom. Lakhe: "I can't take this anymore. What is wrong Spho and please don't say nothing. If unaar ndim, I'll understand. Just please tell me. I promise I won't get mad." Me: "its not you." Lakhe: "Okay. Okay.. Then what is it? Is it Peanut? Is she making you uncomfortable?" Me: "No." Lakhe: "is it my dad?" Me: "no." Lakhe: "should I go through the whole register now?" Me: "its me." Lakhe: "why are you mad at you?" Me: "I'm not mad at me." Lakhe: "now I'm confused. What's happening mntu wam? Please let me in." Me: "I found out last night that Sibub is my brother." Lakhe: "omphi uSibu. Our Sibub?" Me: "Yeah." Lakhe: "how?" Me: "I offered to go drop him off kumamakhe last night and I did. The woman that opened the door for him is the woman who brought me into this world." Lakhe: "are you serious? Did you get to talk to her?" Me: "I have nothing to say to her. I left. I ended up kwi driveway yase bluewater bay. My old house." he kept quiet and stared at me. Me: "Simpfiwe came outside and we spoke for a while." Lakhe: "what could you possibly speak about." Me: "well, for one, my past. I told him what happened. He understood and tried to calm me down. He then apologized for how he treated me." Lakhe: "of course he did." Me: "he told me to tell you Congratulations on marrying me, the best man won." Lakhe: "indeed he did." Me: "then....something happened." he breathed slowly. Lakhe: "what is something." Me: "he started acting weird. Almost scared. Rushed me out the house into my car. Then all of a sudden wakhwela naye telling me to drive away. I did. In the car he told me that a few months ago he went away with uNoma, eshiyele utata weghadi istixo se gate. When they came back a few days later, they found all the grass in the back yard removed, ingumhlaba wodwa. The gardener can't be found anywhere. Ever since then he's been hearing things ebsuku, grunts and noises ingathi kukho umntu ohamba eyardini. Xa evuka ksasa kukho footsteps zodaka. Xa ekroba ebsuku, akaboni mntu. He decided to stop living there. Uhlala kokwabo ngoku." Lakhe: "this is a whole load of bullshit. You know that right? Yonke lento is a way of trying to get into your head and bring you closer to him. Do you Really think this is true? Its crazy!" Me: "I told Sandile this story." Lakhe: "and let me guess, he says its stupid too." Me: "actually no. He says, it serves him right." Lakhe: "and it probably does." Me: "I said maybe the gardener was killed and buried in the yard. Perhaps by mistake or someone covering it up." Lakhe sighed. Lakhe: "There's no such thing Spho." Me: "Sandile said. Its not the gardener that was buried there." Lakhe: "See??" Me: "you're not understanding this sentence Masilakhe." Lakhe: "I understand it perfectly. You're starting to sound crazy." Me: "Masilakhe. Sandile buried my father in that yard, didn't he." Lakhe: "pardon?" Me: "the dead body I found in the lounge months ago. Sandile buried it there. He knew what he was doing, getting rid of it and making it Simphiwe's problem because he hurt me." Lakhe: "is that such a bad thing?" Yoooooh! yangathi ndibasiwe ngomlilo wezulu. Me: "Masilakhe. A dead body. How is it a good thing to put a dead fuucckking body in my ex's back yard!!!!!!!!!!!!!! HOW!!!!!!!!!!" I screamed. Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi, I'm gonna need you to calm-" Me: "I'm not gonna fucking calm down!!!! How is it a good thing!!! Tell me!!!! I let go of him months ago!!! Why couldn't you just let it the fuck go!!! Instead you had to fucking torment him!!! WHY!!!!!!!!!!" Rob: "what the hell is happening!!!" he rushed in. Lakhe: "I have no idea tata. She just started screami-" Me: "You know!!!! You and your brother did this. And you know! You made me go to a cemetery at night to dig a grave for money! Who the Hell does that!!!!!! Why !!!!! You're siiicck!!!!!! I can't even look at you right now!" I almost ran out of oxygen ngumsindo. Lakhe: "Spho." Me: "Don't." Sands: "what's happening." Lakhe: "get out." Sands: "bu-" Lakhe: "Get the fuck out!!!! Both of you! GOOOO!!!!!!!!!!" I packed a bag. Lakhe: "baby, please listen-" Me: "I don't want to hear a word, Masilakhe." Lakhe: "you can't just leave me like this. Spho, I didn't know what Sandile did. I swear." Me: "because I'm the idiot in this family." Lakhe: "you're not. Uxolo mntuwam. Please don't go. Spho please." Me: "Why. Why would you put money in a grave and introduce me to it? Why me? Why couldn't you do this with your brother!" Lakhe: "because I didn't think it through. What if Sandile got in trouble with me? Then who would kn-" Me: "don't you fucking give me that! Masilakhe, something vile is hanging on you. I don't know what the fuck it is, but the minute I figure it out. I am not staying a second longer. And I swear solely on my dead father's fake grave." I zipped closed the bag. Lakhe: "baby uyaphi-" Me: "I'm not going any damn where. You Are. Ina. Get out!"

Lakhe: "you're throwing me out of my house?" Me: "is that the attitude you want to keep?" he took the suitcase and walked out. Sands: "and now? Where you off to?" Lakhe: "she kicked me out." Sands: "I'm probably next. Sendiyifumene first warning." Rob: "Hahaha... Exciting times. I've heard pregnancy makes them go coocoo. That's why I took the easier road with you two." Lakhe: "you may want to lower your voice before you join me at the hotel." Rob: "uyahamba kengoku?" Dumi: "I used to sleep in the spare room. For about 3 months before Zimi was born." Lakhe: "she said I disgust her. You heard her scream at me like a.....crazy person. I'm not going to wait for her to stab me in my sleep. Sandile can we talk outside." Rob: "if you leave, its gonna be another fight. Trust me. Just stay in the spare room, keep out of her-." Me: "didn't I tell you to leave?" I walked into the lounge. Rob: "Yeah. You should go. I can't believe what you've done." Sands: "Geez Lakhe. How could you?" Lakhe: "Sandile. A word." he walked out. Sandile followed him. Sands: "WOW. What the hell did you do!" he whispered. Lakhe: "why. Why did you have to bury that bastard in that house!" Sands: "which bastard?" Lakhe: "utaka Spho damn it!" Sands: "how did she...." Lakhe: "she is not stupid! She figured it out! What's wrong with you!" Sands: "kodwa I warned you mna bhuti, I told you way before you caught feelings ukuba Spho is going to figure you out like a Maths Lit textbook. She is going to outsmart the shit out of you and find things out-" Lakhe: "she said she would leave me. Sandile the look in her eyes when she said it. She wasn't joking. You have to fix this!" Sands: "Me? Why?" Lakhe: "because you started it!" he got into his car and drove of.

A few days later, it was a beautiful Saturday afternoon. Around 1pm. I was going to meet the girls for lunch and catching up. I looked through my wardrobe for a dress to match this beautiful summer's day. I was so happy and delighted. I don't know why. Maybe yellow? No, too bright. I could feel my bump had grown a centimeter or two but it was really unnoticeable. To everyone else. Everyone else except me. I felt like a whale. I couldn't fit into my favorite jeans and I was still hungry. I sat in my closet crying for God knows what. Sands: "Spho?" he knocked. Me: "what you want!" Sands: "I brought you someone to cheer you up." Me: "that better not be your brother." Sands: "its not my brother. No....uhm..... I'll be in the lounge." Sibü: "you don't have to push me." Sands: "arg, you're fine." the door closed. Sibü: "Spho? Uphi?" Me: "in the closet." he walked in and looked around at the mess. Sibü: "Unjani." Me: "I'm fat." Sibü: "really? I think you look gorgeous. As usual." he sat next to me. Sibü: "what's the matter." Me: "I threw Lakhe out." Sibü: "I heard." Me: "I miss him so much." Sibü: "why don't you call him?" Me: "because he's never going to take me seriously ever again." Sibü: "Oh..." Me: "he didn't even try coming back." Sibü: "I'm sure he's giving you your space. He'll be home soon, he'll ask for your forgiveness and you'll?" Me: "accept it." Sibú: "good. So why are we sitting in a closet." Me: "I can't find anything to wear. I have to go see my friends for lunch. I'm so hungry but I've been eating all day. My jeans don't fit me and I don't look like I've gained weight. My life is so-" Sibú: "okay.....shhhh....take a deep breath." I took a deep breath. Sibú: "we can only deal with one thing at a time. Firstly, kushushu phandle for a jean. You have beautiful dresses. For instance, this one. Here's another one. What do you want to eat?" Me: "we're out of gherkins." Sibú: "what is that?" Me: "small pickled cucumbers." Sibú: "you don't want eggs and chees-" Me: "I want a gherkins and peanut butter sandwich." Sibú: "I'll go get them then. Try on a few dresses so long. I'll be back." he left the room. I tried on a few dresses for almost 15 minutes. Most of them were tight fitting. I found one that was loose and comfortable. It was my navy and white boob tube dress. I loved it so much. It made me so happy it brought tears of joy. Sibú: "and what's happening now." Me: "I love this dress." Sibú: "its absolutely beautiful. Here's your sandwich." Me: "where did you get the gherkins?" Sibú: "bendiyozithenga." I ate my sandwich delightfully. Uggqiba kwam ndenza intloko. Sibú: "you're gonna be late for lunch." Me: "I have to clean up first." Sibú: "No, you don't. Nxiba i-sandals zakho. Sandile will sort this out. Come." I followed him out with my bag and keys. Rob: "Wow!! You look so stunning." Sands: "absolutely love your dress girlfriend." Me: "its not too much?" Sands: "No!! Its perfect." Me: "Thank you. Ndimnkile. Bye guys." Rob: "bye sweetheart. Have fun." I left the house and drove off. Sandile sighed. Sibú: "I could've sworn she was breeding Anaconda's the way you were so terrified on the phone asking me to come help." Dumí: "you weren't here these past few days." Sands: "yeah you don't get to judge." Rob: "I've never held my breath in for that long." Sands: "that baby is definitely a mini Lakhe. It is aggressive as hell!!! Zange ndayibona intwenje!" Rob: "my grandchild is not aggressive. He's just excited." Sands: "manyan nyan tata? Like his dad?" Rob: "yeah I can't even sell that. Dumisani, you've had kids before, You've dealt with pregnancy. How come you're still clueless." Dumí: "all I know is, I did what I could to survive." they all laughed. Sands: "God, I'm glad I'm never having children." Rob: "why not? They're a blessing." Sands: "I cannot deal with This." Sibú: "come on guys. Its simple. Give in to your woman. Its a bit uncomfortable for yena, all she needs is support. No questions asked." Sands: "I so wish Lakhe was here to hear you say that about his wife so we can prove my aggression theory." Dumí: "so what did Lakhe do wrong?" Rob: "he doesn't even know." Sands: "A bunch of topics were thrown at him. He's still confused till this day. I spoke to him in the morning." they laughed. Sibú: "when is he coming home?" Sands: "he's scared!!! The fuck you talking about coming home? I would stay in that hotel forever amen if I were him." Sibú: "I spoke to Spho, like a human being. I was calm and respectful and she said to me she missed him. This is his gap to make things right." Dummi: "and fuck up some more." Sibuh: "this is absurd. If he doesn't try, he stands the chance of ruining it even more." Rob: "unyansile nyana. Khanimfowneleni. Let's help turn this house into a romantic apology." Sands: "I'll do the cooking. I'll call him just now." Dummi: "I will try to decorate." Rob: "me too." Sibuh: "I'll sort out the closet, ndibuye ndizoncedisa." Rob: "I've never done this before in my life." Sands: "Sibuh will guide us. He's the only one that has experience in these things." Sibuh: "because I appreciate women, I don't even have to do these things." Rob: "nice time to rub that in son."

My lunch with the ladies was going well. We were at Salt, seated on the outside having healthy conversations and food. Me: "I swear guys. They drive me fucking crazy. They tip toe around me like I'm some grenade ready to explode! My goodness! Everytime I walk in, they sit up straight and stop talking. Don't they understand that treating me like I'm crazy, makes me fucking crazy!" Fez: "spoiler alert, you ARE crazy!" they laughed. Fez: "girl, why'd you throw your man out?" Me: "because he treats me like a child." Zintle: "its all in your head and your tummy. This baby is making you crazy." Zingi: "guys sometimes men actually do things on purpose to make us snap. You don't understand, you're not pregnant. Dummi used to annoy me shitloads when I was having Zimi." Fez: "what is so annoying! I don't get it." Me: "everything. I tell him a story, which I was there to confirm, and he says I made it up. Why would I tell it to him in the first place if its made up? Its not like we run out of topics." Zintle: "hayi sisi, wena you have a difficult man kakade, you brought this on yourself." Me: "oh but his brother is even worse. He would literally be on the floor laughing, xandingena acime ingathi usisbane. How offensive is that! He is laughing at me behind my back." Zintle: "hahahaha! No. He doesn't want you to feel bad xa ehleka so he keeps quiet." Me: "then why doesn't he tell me why he's laughing?" Zingi: "because men are cruel monsters." she stuff garlic bread in her mouth. Me: "I just want them to be normal again. Jonga today, they brought back uSibulele to come talk to me like I'm some zoo animal." Fez: "you are a zoo animal. You're being delusional. You have to take deep breaths, focus on youuuuuuuwho is that hotty standing over thuurr." we looked that direction. Me: "oh my God." I hid my face. Fez: "and then? Ke mang?" Me: "some guy I met in East London." Zintle: "you're not even married a month, to a guy you haven't known for a full year. WHERE and HOW do you meet these men?" Zingi: "Good Jesus, he looks like James St Patrick on Power." Zintle: "but lighter. Oooh." Me: "guys stop looking!" Fez: "he's already coming over. Is my make up fine? And a 1, 2.....beyonce hair flip. Hey You.." Zintle and Zingi burst out laughing. Me: "Why Fez. Why."

Siya: "Hey stranger.." Me: "Mr Yaya." Siya: "so, I've been waiting for your call, friend." Me: "I've been busy." Siya: "I see that." Fez: "join us." Siya: "I'd love to. Unfortunately, I'm meeting my fiance here, and there she is. My friend, please call me." he smiled and walked away. Zintle: "WOOOW, Hook. A bitch. Uuuupp!" Me: "he has a fiance. Uyambona nawe." I stared at her. Fez: "so?? This is what friends are for." Zingi: "I find it strange that he didn't introduce his friend to his fiance." Zintle: "I don't care. I just want him in bed. Lord have mercy." Fez: "he is a dream." Zintle: "a very wet sexy dream." Me: "aren't we late for our movie?" Zingi: "oh no, honey we have two hours to go. Akasandikhabi lo." Zintle: "is it a boy or girl?" Zingi: "Andiyazi. I don't mind either. You Spho?" Me: "I want a boy. Lakhe is adamant on a girl. Its funny, a month ago, uthe ufuna ikwekwe. Now all of a sudden, its she this and hers that. You see why he makes me mad?" Zingi: "you'll be fine. Whichever gender, it will make the both of you crazy happy. I swear." Me: "yeah, now I want a girl. The house is full of boys. Why can't Sandile find a stable girlfriend! So I can have someone to share this deep frustration." Fez: "ndim mos girlfriend ka Sandile, what do you have to worry about." Me: "I'm worried about this imaginary relationship." Fez: "he doesn't have to know. But we're a couple." Zintle: "doesn't couple mean together. Or something?" Fez: "yes. I go over to the house. We chill in the lounge." Me: "with me and Dumi." Fez: "he requested me an Uber." Me: "to get you Home as quick as possible." Fez: "he cares about me." Zintle: "did you have sex?" Fez: "No!" Zintle: "then he's not yours. Its in the commandments. If he doesn't put the vienna in the pan, he cannot be yours. He belongs to the world." Fez: "that is the stupidest thing I've ever heard. Firstly, Sandile's dick is nowhere near a vienna-" Me: "you have thus ruined my appetite." Zingi: "and where did you see Sandile's dick?" Me: "we're not having this conversation. Please guys." Zintle: "how big is it? Average size banana? Cucumber?" Fez: "Cucumber." Zintle gasped. Fez: "it folds before him like a kung fu belt." Zintle: "weapon of destruction!" Zingi: "again, where did you see Sandile's dick?" Fez: "he showed it to me." Me: "now why would he do that?" Fez: "okay, not on purpose. I was helping him choose an outfit on the wedding day. So he had to change his pants. His underwear is tight so..." Me: "you are sick." Zintle: "you're such a slut." Fez: "if he didn't want me looking he shouldn't have asked for help. Damn. As if I forced him." Me: "khome ndisayochama." Zintle: "uchanyiswa yi cucumber?" she laughed. Me: "oh please. I'm used to mountains not speed humps." they all gasped. Zingi: "whaaat." Me: "I'm going to pee." Zintle: "you're coming back to explain that." I went to the bathroom, I urinated, wiped, flushed and washed my hands. I checked myself in the mirror for a few seconds and then walked out. Bumping into Siya. Me: "Yaya." Siya: "my call." Me: "goodness. I don't even know what happened to your card." Siya: "Facebook name?" Me:

"why are you pushing so hard when you have a fiance." he looked behind me. Siya: "baby, come... I'd like you to meet Spho my friend, Spho, my future wife Babalwa." she smiled. Babsi: "hello Spho. Unjani." so I'm a big I idiot for thinking he had a crush on me. Not everyone is gonna want you angel. You're not that great. I scolded myself. Me: "ndiphilile Babsi, Unjani wena?" Babsi: "I'm great sweetie. Baby, I'll settle the bill so long vah. It was nice meeting you Spho." Me: "same here Babsi." she walked away. She was so sweet. Me: "sorry..." Siya: "for what? Not wanting to be my friend?" Me: "its awkward for a dude to just come and want to be friends. Genuinely." Siya: "Facebook name?" I told him. He searched and found me. Me: "bye Siya. Don't keep your girl waiting." I walked to my table. Me: "guys she is so sweet." Fez: "who?" Me: "Yaya's fiancée. I would never accept Lakhe's female friends and let them talk privately." Zintle: "because you's a crazy bitch. She knows you're married. She trusts her man. You also look trustworthy. Not a big deal." Me: "how would she know I'm married?" Fez: "its probably because your ring finger doesn't have a rock the size of my face." Me: "There's no need to be salty now." Fez: "just saying boo." Zingi: "guys our movie. Masambeni." we paid our bill. Zintle: "since we came in two cars, we'll have to separate." Me: "I'll take Zingi." Fez: "the two baby mamas. Let's go." we left for the cinema at the Boardwalk. After a great movie, we went to get ice cream. I received a call from Sibu. Me: "hello. I answered. I don't know when I'd break the news to him about our relations. I just knew it wasn't today. I was more scared of him shutting umamakhe out because of me, or even worse asking me to forgive her so we can be happy families. No, I can't. Sibu: "hey...how was lunch?" Me: "it was great. We watched a movie too, having ice cream now." Sibu: "amazing. I'm glad you having fun." Me: "ndiyagoduka kodwa ngoku. Are you still home?" Sibu: "oh no. Utata uRob took us out to dinner and then bowling afterwards. So you can have peace and tranquility when you get home just now." Me: "I would so love that." Sibu: "alright. Bye then." I hung up. The thought of silence and that bed sounded so good in my head. Worse ukuba Zintle and Fez were going out now, so we had to go home. Not really had to but it was appropriate. I was honestly tired. Zingi: "Spho will drop me off. You guys can use the car, you'll just drop it off ksasa." Zintle: "thank you my love." Me: "bye guys, have fun. Don't drink and drive." Fez: "bye grandma." we hugged and separated. I drove Zingi home and I went to my house. Nyani I could see they were gone. I parked my car and walked to the door. I walked in to a dimly lit lounge. Me: "where is my furniture?" there was a red check blanket on top of a think one on the floor near the fireplace. A short little table next to it with covered plates and juice. All around were red petals on the floor. What the hell was happening. Lakhe: "baby. Ndicela undixolele. I was wrong for ridiculing you. I was wrong for making you do things you weren't comfortable with. I also apologize for the pain I caused. I'm sorry for not taking your feelings seriously. I love you and I can't be without you. You're my family and from now on, I'm treating you with the respect you deserve. I will be honest. I will be considerate and I intend to keep this promise. I miss you so much my queen." Me: "I hear you." Lakhe: "enkosi my love." Me: "I miss you too. I'm sorry I've been acting so crazy. Its like I'm losing my mind. You make me so mad." Lakhe: "whaat? Nooo. You're not crazy baby. It was a misunderstanding. I know better now." Me: "I am crazy. This baby is making me crazy." Lakhe: "maybe ebekhumbula utatakhe. Its been a while since I've been here. Its been a tough week. I realize I haven't slept next to you in our bed at all. Saturday, I left you at the hotel, Sunday you were at the hospital. Monday I got arrested. Wednesday I came home, and you threw me out." I hugged him. Me: "thank you for coming back." Lakhe: "I'll always come back for you my queen. Always."

2 days later. Monday morning. I was in the office early. I had to start on my youth project. Luyolo: "molo Spho." Me: "hi Luyolo. What can I do for you?" Luyolo: "nothing. I just want to say thank you for the opportunity you've given me. I can't imagine what I would be if it wasn't for you. So, this is to say Thank you and congratulations on your wedding." he gave me a bunch of white lilies. Luyolo: "I picked them this morning in my garden." Me: "awww these are so beautiful. Its only a pleasure man Luyolo. And You've been working really hard ever since you got here, awuhlali ulinde for instructions, you just take charge and do whatever it is that needs to be done. So its great to have you here." Luyolo: "enkosi Spho. Let me get back to work." He walked out. I looked at the beautiful flowers. This is literally the sweetest thing. Lakhe: "hey." he was standing at the door. Me: "hello." Lakhe: "why'd you leave me behind?" Me: "you were sleeping. I didn't want to disturb you." Lakhe: "how could you possibly disturb me from waking me up for work?" Me: "you're always tired. I thought you should sleep in." Lakhe: "who's that from?" Me: "what?" Lakhe: "iblom ezi uziphethayo." Me: "oh, they're from Luyolo. He says thank you for giving him an opportunity to work with us. He has a garden." Lakhe: "I also have a garden." Me: "so you say. I'm going to get a vase." I got up and walked out to find one. Lakhe: "Spho." Me: "yes, my love." he followed me. I found a vase in the kitchen ndayigalela amanzi. Me: "what's wrong?" Lakhe: "nothing. I just miss you." Me: "we spent Saturday night, and the whole of yesterday together. Where's your family by the way." Lakhe: "they'll be back today. They went to Jeffreys bay on Saturday apparently. Uzomxelela nini uSibulele?" Me: "I'm not ready to have that conversation with him." Lakhe: "how come?" Me: "I'm just not ready. The questions. The emotions. Everything." Lakhe: "don't you think that its going to keep getting harder for you to say something? Why not get it over and done with?" Me: "and what about utatakhe? What do I tell him? That Sandile has murdered him and buried him in my ex's back yard?" Lakhe: "well....telling him that would be your choice. Although I don't think it would be a good idea to let out the details. It would rock their friendship deeply." I walked back to my office. Lakhe: "hun." I set the vase by the window sill. Me: "I think these are my favorite flowers yet." Lakhe: "baby." Me: "I don't think I can keep that big a secret from him. Don't you think it already hurts that he's my brother. He's a sweet person. He has a good heart. I don't want to hurt him like this." Lakhe: "if he knew the reason why it happened, I think he would understand." Me: "I don't want to risk it. I like having him around me." Lakhe: "it was meant to be...don't you think?" Me: "what was?" Lakhe: "Us. Our brothers were best friends way before we met. So we're actually destined to be together." Me: "okay Mr Destiny. Your work is waiting on you. Can you get me something to eat so long? Fried Chicken wings would be best right now." Lakhe: "its not even 9am. I'll get you fruit salad and yogurt." Me: "argg...." Lakhe: "uzozitya later on ii-wings. You need to be healthy." Me: "okay. Let me work." Lakhe: "fine. I get it. I'm gone." he stood by the door. Lakhe: "but I was thinking maybe we could get lunch together. Noba siye Bocadillos?" Me: "I can't. I'm having a meeting during that time." Lakhe: "what meeting?" Me: "Pete and Tim are coming to discuss their account. I want to renew their contract but they have a few other issues they need to iron out with the company including the merger." Lakhe: "I didn't know about this." Me: "they contacted me personally. We have a strong working relationship." Lakhe: "I was still not notified. As CEO of the company you work for." Me: "I don't notify you with every small thing. That's why I'm here. To divide the work." Lakhe: "Pete and Tim are one of our biggest clients Spho. They're not a 'small thing' like you're implying." I looked at him. Me: "what is making you so mad?" Lakhe: "I'm not mad. I just don't like looking incompetent. If they had a problem with the merger, I am the CEO, they should've come to me." Me: "since when do clients pitch directly to the CEO?" Lakhe: "since you married the CEO. Everything runs through me. I don't care if the tea lady runs out of milk supplies, I need to know. Where is this meeting?" I was gobsmacked. Me: "I'm about to check our boardrooms availability and get back to them." Lakhe: "let me know when You've confirmed. I will be in that meeting." Me: "you don't have to be. I can handle it." he had already walked out. What??

It was 15:20pm when I was getting ready to go home. Lakhe: "honey..." he closed the door behind him. I breathed slowly. God knows I love my husband but today. Today he was being too much. Me: "what." Lakhe: "so I was thinking about an early dinner at that wonderful restaurant. Its a nice sunny day outside. The food is great. The scenery is amazing and-" Me: "You came to my private meeting and took over. You made ME look incompetent. Like I'm some intern in need of your help. I had everything under control, but you can't stand that can you? You hate it when I win. You hate it when I can do something just as good if not better than you. You just cannot Stand the possibility of me going great without you. This is the third time you do this. I have to sit back and watch the great CEO do his thing. Why Masilakhe." Lakhe: "baby...I didn't mean to make you feel that way." Me: "yes you did. You always do." Lakhe: "I don't." Me: "now I'm stupid. Is that what you're saying." Lakhe: "I just like being in the loop. You never let me peep on what you're working with. The only way I can get through to yo-" Me: "is if you stop treating me like a baby! I can walk by myself. I can work without fucking up. Hell, I've been doing it for years, this is why I'm where I am in my career. Bungekho wena all that time!" Lakhe: "well, I'm sorry." Me: "but why!!" Lakhe: "you just know more about our clients than I do. Its difficult Spho. I have to run through fire to impress these people but all you have to do is show up and its already a yes." Me: "bekutheni uzungatsho kengoku?" Lakhe: "its embarrassing." Me: "no its not! Everyone needs help networking with existing, new and potential clients. And you just gave me a hell of an idea!!! I love you and your insecurities." Lakhe: "why? What is the idea? Uyazbona you're shutting me out again?" Me: "We never formally introduced you to our clients. The media. Our market doesn't know you." Lakhe: "No. No media!" Me: "Masilakhe-" Lakhe: "NO Sphosenkosi!!!" Me: "Why not!" Lakhe: "I don't like my business out there." Me: "you own a big company and a lot of other entities. Your business is already out there." Lakhe: "Spho. I just don't want cameras following me around. I don't need that type of attention." Me: "you won't get that type of attention. Listen, I'm thinking of a launch. Formal dinner. An event. We invite all our clients and their reps. You obviously being the main focus will have to introduce yourself and let them a little inside your business history. What you have achieved and your visions for the future. Something that assures them comfortability when working with you." Lakhe: "There's gonna be the press." Me: "probably. Just a little bit." Lakhe: "what happens if someone leaks that I'm charged with murder and awaiting trial? What then?" I didn't think of that. That could do more ruining than you could imagine. Me: "I'm sorry. I got carried away." Lakhe: "its a great idea babe but its not the right time for me. Or the company. Can we go to dinner now?" Me: "its half past 3 baby." Lakhe: "oh shit. I have a meeting with Dumisani." I packed my things. Me: "where?" Lakhe: "endlini." we went to the different cars. Me: "see you at home." I started and drove off first. He followed behind me sayofika endlini. I could hear laughter and noise from outside already. When I closed my car door, SILENCE. It did tick me off but I wasn't going to be crazy about it. Like they expect me to be. I walked in the house. Me: "molweni tata. Ninjani?" Rob: "ndiphilile ntombi yam. Ninjani nina? How's my pumpkin seed?" Me: "siphilile tata. He's doing just great." Lakhe: "She." he followed behind me. Lakhe: "so we have a family meeting at 6. Khame ndiyotshintsha." Sands: "Sibu isn't here." Lakhe: "Uphi?" Sands: "I told him. He can't leave his mom. So akazozza." Lakhe: "I'll go change." Me: "I'll start on supper. Nibawela ntoni tata?" Rob: "what I'd do for idumplings, and chicken stew." Me: "sinayo intlama?" Sands: "ewe, its in the fridge." I went to change ndabuyela e-kitchen. I started chopping the vegetables." Sands: "Spho." I got a little fright but didn't show it. Rob was right about them moving around like cats. Me: "what." Sands: "I'm sorry for what I did." Me: "are you? Or you're just saying something rehearsed so that you can keep the peace?" Sands: "I'm saying this to keep the peace. I don't regret what I did. That man hurt you and tormented you. It was not right and I would never be able to rest until he was dead. I had to protect you." Me: "has it ever occurred to you that this happened over a decade ago and my father, Khaya, protected me enough until now. The man you killed was not in my life. Not even once tried to come close to it ever again." Sands: "he couldn't get away with what he'd done." Me: "Simpfiwe yena? What did he do?" Sands: "he hurt y-" Me: "Sandile, you had no right. What if someone or anyone decided to dig kulandlu once its sold and found a dead body in the back, who do you think was going to be arrested? So just because Simphiwe cheated on me, he deserves to rot in jail for something he didn't do? Sandile you are wrong. You are wrong for jeopardizing someone's life like that. You are wrong for taking actions into your own hands because you think its fine. It doesn't work that way. You have scared Simphiwe enough, now There's someone's spirit lingering about that house. That is some deep serious shit. Sandile this isn't just someone's spirit. This is your best friend's father. Sibulele Right now is looking for his dad and can't find him. Ubuzova njani wena if he was the one that murdered Rob? Would you be able to forgive him?" Sands: "No..." I continued with my chopping quietly. Sands: "Spho." Me: "what is it Sandile." Sands: "please forgive me." these men knew how to play your emotions. They just had the method. Sands: "I can't go on if you're mad at me. I don't want you to hate me." Me: "I don't hate you." Sands: "you can barely look at me.." I stopped chopping again and looked at him. Sands: "I'm sorry..." Me: "its okay." Sands: "its not. Sibulele will never forgive me. He's the only friend I've ever had that understood me. I can't lose him." Me: "come here." I hugged him. Me: "you have a good heart. Just that its buried deep inside a lot of dirt and nobody can see unless they dig deep enough." Sands: "so I must exhume the body." Me: "that is not what I said." Sands: "that's what I wanna do. I have to dig it out and confess." Me: "Sandile. You will lose him for good." he looked at me. Sands: "you don't want me to tell him. Why?" Me: "I didn't say that." Sands: "why don't you want him to know?" Me: "I don't want him to know because I don't want him to find out what kind of man his father was. That shouldn't be what defines him. The less he knows, the better." Sands: "Okay. I'll find a way to take it to the morgue. Keep it there for a few weeks and then they'll notify him." Me: "I do not want to know the details." Sands: "so me and you are cool?" Me: "we're fine." I went back to my cooking. He went to the lounge. In a few hours after I'd finished with my cooking, I dished up for everyone and took the plates to the lounge. Rob: "oh my....ndayigqibela nini le meal. I could just die." Me: "please don't." Dumi: "this smells wonderful Spho." Me: "thank you Dumi." Lakhe was half way through his plate. Sands: "and I'm the pig? WOW." Lakhe: "I've been starving myself all day because I wanted to take my wife out to a great restaurant but she refused. So ndiyeke." Me: "sorry my love. Eat up." I wiped his mouth. We had our dinner sagqiba and Dumi took the plates to the dish washer. Sandile took Boogie out for his night pee. I was left at the table with Lakhe and his father. I could feel the topic brewing and just before I could escape. Lakhe: "so, I got arrested." he blurted out. Rob: "What! Why?" Lakhe: "Dez is dead. They said I did it." Rob: "that is fucking ridiculous Masilakhe!! You are no murderer!! When did this happen! Why was I never told!" Lakhe: "its no big deal. Dumi has it handled-" Rob: "No. Masilakhe. Dumi is a great attorney. But this is some serious shit." Lakhe: "dad, I don't want drama." Rob: "You- you don't want what? I'm calling Ryan right now. He will bring his team first thing tomorrow." he got up and walked out. Sands: "and now?" he sat down. Lakhe: "he's calling Ryan." Sands: "urggg... smelly Ryan?" Lakhe chuckled. Sands: "I'm so not gonna be here for that." Lakhe: "why not?" Sands: "Why Not?? He smells like belly button juice and toe nail clippings. I can't go through that." I laughed out loud. Dumi wheeled in. Dumi: "what's the joke?" Lakhe: "my dad's lawyer. Sandile says he like belly button juice." Dumi: "what does that even smell like?" he laughed. Sands: "you'll be there to witness." Lakhe: "I told my dad about the case, he's already going wild. He's calling his team of lawyers, I hope you don't mind." Dumi: "mind? I am glad he did, not only will they help break this case, but I'll have the opportunity to work with the best attorneys in the country. I can't miss this for the world." Lakhe: "perfect. So that's what this family meeting is about?" Sands: "precisely. Dumi thought we should start to come up with a strategy. Build up on that, polishing your character and so forth." Lakhe: "for a slight second, I could've sworn you were the lawyer." Sands: "mpa." Dumi: "I guess now, its not necessary because I'll be working with your father's lawyers. I do though, need to plan so I'll be in my bedroom office if you need me." my phone rang. It was Sibú. Me: "hello." I answered. Sibú: "Hi Spho. Unjani?" Me: "I'm great Sibú and you?" Sibú: "I'm good. Uhm. So I've decided to put umama into a rehabilitation centre. I just don't know where to start. Where I find correct ones, how I know they will be suitable to her because what I know is that, her surroundings are what's pulling her back. She goes behind my back hiding ngecawa and society meetings to go drink abuye enxilile. I can't be on hand anymore. I need professionals to look after her. Especially ngoku, I've got a follow up interview on Thursday. I can't deal with this stress. Can you help?" are you serious right now? Its like I could hear my own voice mocking me. 'if you need anything Sibú, don't hesitate to call me'. Nobody ever means that. Right? I'm not the only one. Please hesitate! Me: "I can look into some places for you. I'll give you a call or send you their contact details." Sibú: "okay. Thank you so much. Enjoy your evening." Me: "you too." I hung up and sighed. Lakhe: "what?" Me: "I agreed to help Sibú find a rehab home for umamakhe." Lakhe: "so?" Me: "I don't want to find her help. I just want her to suffer slowly." Lakhe: "you're not helping her. You're helping your brother. He wants her to be okay. As much as that would hurt you. It doesn't mean forgive her." Sands: "I have some stuff to go do-" Me: "Sit." Sands: "I really did have stuff." Me: "you're going to sit." he sat down. Lakhe: "Tell him... He already has a connection with you, just let him in. Let him know ungumntana wakokwabo." Me: "now is not the time." the gate buzzed. I went to open it. Nosi walked in the drive way erhuqa suitcase zakhe. Lakhe: "who is it?" Me: "your sister." Sands: "which one?" Me: "Nosi." Sands: "lovely! I missed her so much." he jumped up and went to the door. Lakhe: "please Spho..." he held my hand. Me: "I can already feel this is going to hurt him." Lakhe: "for a little while. Sibú is a positive guy, sooner or later he'll have forgotten and be interested in started new with you." Nosi: "hello family!!" Me: "hey sweetheart." Lakhe: "why are you here?" Nosi: "holidays bhuti. I'm passing anyway. I'll be in Miami and Los Angeles for the whole of December." Rob: "excuse me?" he walked in. Nosi: "hi daddy!" Rob: "Uthi uyaphi?" Nosi: "my friends and I planned a trip to the U.S. These are the two cities I'll be in for more than 3 days. Others I'm just going to hop in." Lakhe: "is this something I'm paying for? Again." Nosi: "because I have the best big brothers ever!" Rob: "nobody is going anywhere. We're having our first Christmas here together as a family-" Lakhe: "actually dad, Spho and I are having our honeymoon in Italy.....on Christmas." Rob: "Nobody is going anywhere! Do you understand me?" Lakhe: "Yes sir." Rob stormed off to his room. I've never seen him so pissed. Me: "so Italy?" Lakhe: "it was supposed to be a surprise." Me: "its not even happening. We're summoned to stay." Nosi: "well that sucks. I've already booked tickets." Lakhe:

"you have way too much allowance, young lady. Cancel those tickets. Dad is on to something, you do not want to make him mad." Me: "come, let's take your bags to your room. Get you settled in." I took one of her suitcases and helped her to her room. Me: "so, how's things?" Nosi: "well...they're okay." Me: "and your project? How is it going?" Nosi: "difficult. The artists aren't doing so well. No gallery is taking their work. Saying Apparently, I'm inexperienced and unqualified to be doing this." Me: "well, yes... So what are you going to do about that?" Nosi: "I don't know sisi. I'm not sure whether to study art, business or both." Me: "I don't know anything about art, except that if its pretty and I like it, I will buy it. What I do know about business is if you crack the secret of your industry, you're good to go. Whether or not you have the experience or qualification. Its a sure thing that you need the education to learn more about your industry, also most of the time, cracking the secret is in learning much more about your industry. So if you haven't gotten it by now, its time to consider being back at university and studying toward your dream." Nosi: "my dad and brother don't understand this. They don't think its a real career having a passion about art." Me: "your dad and brother are a bit old. They have the need to protect the rest of this family. They generate the revenue and that's the only thing they're passionate about. You're young. They have worked hard so that you can have the freedom to be what you want." Nosi: "my brother refuses to support another 'passion career' he thinks its a waste of time." Me: "Nosi. You need to look deep down inside and figure out what you truly want. Do you want to please your family and live the rest of your life hating your job. Or do you want to be content?" Nosi: "I want to be content." Me: "talk to your elders. Show them what you love about art. And remember art isn't only about paintings. Don't forget about poetry, story telling, plays, a whole lot of different types of art." Nosi: "I've been talking to them." Me: "how about.....talking to them with their level of talking." Nosi: "what does that even mean?" Me: "if they're not taking you seriously. Create a proposal. Pitch to them why they should support you. Make it a professional presentation and point out everything you love in a professional way." Nosi: "that could work.....but I've never done this before." Me: "I can help." Nosi: "this is gonna be so much fun!" she squealed. This should be a lot of fun and easy. Me: "so what else is new?" Nosi: "ahh...nothing much I guess." Me: "no boyfriend? Or potential?" Nosi: "well...." Me: "yes?" Nosi: "there is a guy." Me: "is it the one we bumped into in joburg-" Nosi: "God, no. Euw. This one is different. A good guy." Me: "oh? A good guy?" Nosi: "Yeah. He's kind. Very considerate. He's sweet. He's also shy. I have a massive crush on him." Me: "have you tried to talk to him?" Nosi: "well... A little. Its just, he's not really getting the point." Me: "well, invite him for coffee or milkshake. Get to know him and his favorite things. That won't hurt. At least you have his number right?" Nosi: "No, I have him on Facebook. You know him." Me: "I do? Who?" Nosi: "ngu Sibulele." Oh No. Me: "which Sibulele? Your brothers' friend Sibulele?" Would it have killed you to acknowledge him as your own brother Spho? Geez. Nosi: "Yes." Me: "he's old...er. Than you." Nosi: "I know... Do you have any advice?" Me: "I've never dated an older person, and I don't think its a good idea." Nosi: "you're married to an older person." Me: "Lakhe is not that old. Besides, Sibulele won't be able to date you because you're his best friend's little sister." Nosi: "I like him so much." Me: "I'm sorry sweet pea." Nosi: "I'm going to take a bath." Me: "okay. Kukhona ukutya in the kitchen if you're hungry." Nosi: "thanks." I went to my bedroom. Lakhe: "finally. Yinton ishushu kangaka incoko." Me: "haven't seen her in a while." Lakhe: "what's the problem now? Little artsy projects again?" Me: "yazi Lakhe if you could stop insulting and just hear out other people's passions before you throw them down the drain! Just because you don't like it." I went to run the bath. Lakhe: "I hit a nerve. What did she tell you?" Me: "can you pass me the lavender salts." Lakhe: "you're trying to distract me. What is it?" Me: "nothing. Salts please." Lakhe: "this must be juicy..." Me: "she has a crush on Sibulele." he gasped. Me: "before you freak out-" Lakhe: "she's just a little girl!!!" Me: "Masilakhe!" Lakhe: "Sibulele is a grown man!" Me: "this is why I don't tell you things." Lakhe: "what is she doing chasing after grown men?!! Why can't she just focus on school-" Me: "or find a boy her age-" Lakhe: "NO BOYS!! School and nothing else!!" Me: "my love. Its nothing you can control. The only way you can try and control it is if you're open to it. The more you push, the further she goes into the wrong direction." Lakhe: "Spho, Nosi is a child-" Me: "whom you caught in your house with an older man. You need to understand that things will happen whether you like them or not. Confronting Sibulele won't help anything because akayazi yena kqala, confronting Nosi, will push her into his arms or any other man's arms for that matter. Children rebel at this age, just to get a reaction out of you." Lakhe: "so you want me to keep quiet?" Me: "I want you to be the cool older brother." he frowned. Me: "now you look like the dad..." I relaxed in my bath. Lakhe: "I am the dad." he knelt next to the tub. Lakhe: "Nosi is like my little baby. I cannot sit back and let her go down this route. The same way, I'll never let my own daughter." he brushed my tummy under the water. Lakhe: "my girls aren't toys for boys to play with. Especially grown men." Me: "not all boys play." I kissed his nose. Lakhe: "what if Sibulele likes her too? Then what? They gonna date in my house?" Me: "I have faith that Sibulele is not that stupid. He knows his boundaries and has self control." Lakhe: "I think she just kicked." Me: "who?" Lakhe: "the baby!" Me: "I would've felt it. Its still early. Relax." Lakhe: "I'm excited. I wish she could stay in this belly forever. The world is a cruel place." Me: "she has a father that will always protect her. And a mom who will always be there for her." Lakhe: "not if she encourages relationships and boyfriends. No daughter of mine is going to have some man. I can't let that happen. Her life must be full of teddy bears and tea cups and dolls. Plus a lot of glitter, I want my room to be filled with glitter everywhere. Messy hair and a lot of swirling around..like a ballerina. She's gonna have ribbons of every color on earth just for her hair. Daddy daughter charm bracelets on her wrist. With real diamonds. Pretty chubby toes with pink nail polish that daddy has to apply every Sunday while we let our air tea cool off. Then we'd plant flowers in our garden, watering them everyday after school when we done ruining our appetites with Ice Cream. Well ice cream will only be on Wednesdays. Friday we'll have hotdogs." my eyes were burning with tears, they got me at air tea. I just couldn't. This is probably how my dad feels. That's why he's so upset and not talking to me. I do miss him and our talks. Hearing him ramble on about his work and helping people. Hearing him call me 'Princess'. I miss him now. Me: "Stop it. You're making me cry. We're going to keep her locked in our castle forever." he chuckled. Me: "I have to call my dad. Her princess left the castle." I got out the bath and walked to find my phone. Lakhe: "I want ice cream. I think Woolworths is still open. Ndiyabuya baby. You want anything?" Me: "what you're having." he walked out. I got into bed and called Papa bear. He answered the phone almost immediately. Me: "hello tata." Khaya: "Hi." Me: "how are you?" Khaya: "I'm fine." Me: "Tata, I just wanted to tell you I'm sorry for not telling you when I found out. I wasn't hiding it from you. You were the first person I wanted to tell. I don't know of anyone else who could've been more happy. I'm still your little girl." Khaya: "you're not my little girl. You're my princess." Me: "ndiyakthanda tata. Uxolo ngokuphoxa." Khaya: "awundiphoxanga mntanam. I love you too. With my whole heart." Me: "I miss you." Khaya: "I miss you too baby girl. Is everything going well emzini wakho?" Me: "ewe tata. Utat uRob is here also." Khaya: "I'll call him tomorrow." Me: "is everything okay tata?" Khaya: "yes my angel. Nothing for you to worry about. Undibulisele ku lkhaya uyeva? I love you." Me: "I love you too tata." zange ndaliva eli lika 'lkhaya' igama. Although it was part of Lakhe's name, I don't know why my dad would call him that. Lakhe: "baby. I hope you don't mind hey." Me: "I thought uya kwa Woolworths." Lakhe: "happened to have this in the fridge. 90% chance it belongs to Sandile kodwa I bought the fridge so its mine too." Me: "khayeke uba possessive. Learn to share." Lakhe: "what's wrong?" Me: "dad says hi. He calls you lkhaya." Lakhe: "hahaa! Awesome. Its starting to sound now. Izolo bendingaliva ncam." Me: "izolo?" Lakhe: "we talk. On a regular basis." Me: "how regular?" he gave the sippy cat look. Me: "I'm asking." Lakhe: "everyday.." Me: "you talked to my dad?? Whilst mna ndicimba ndiqunjelwe!" Lakhe: "well....he was mad, then ndacela uxolo kuye. We spoke and yeah." Me: "what do you talk about?" Lakhe: "everything. Like Sandile does with utata. I used to think it was weird, now...its like he's my -"

Me: "No. Not yours." Lakhe: "what was the saying again? Oh wait, 'Khayeke uba possessive, learn to share.'" I took the ice cream. Me: "Mine." Lakhe: "anyway, I think its crazy we even have the same name. It was really meant to-" Me: "if you say it one more time. I won't mean to be violent, I swear." he laughed. I took my iPad and researched rehabilitation centers and also caring homes for older women. We needed the options available. I saved the details of everything I found and made a list for Sibu ranging from the best to the average. Me: "he has a follow up interview on Thursday. So his interview last week went well. I wonder why engatshongo." Lakhe: "a lot was happening. He wasn't going to chime in like a chorus just because." Me: "yeah." Lakhe: "Dumi's side? Is he fine?" Me: "a bit. He's just struggling to talk about Zingi. I told him to see someone instead. Because of Sandile and doesn't want to bring out awkwardness-" Lakhe: "if anything, Sandile is the least awkward person I know. He doesn't even get embarrassed. Andimazi uphila kweliphi lizwe yena." Me: "well, if anything. He wants to fix his mess. My problem is cleansing that house off that spirit. Removing the body won't be enough." Lakhe: "I'm sure he knows that. So our household is still stable. Another day of great house management Mrs Sobz. I couldn't have chosen a better companion. Its time for your massage." Me: "also tell me more about our princess. What else you'll be doing with her.." Lakhe: "you mean when I teach her the ballet routine?" Me: "you don't have a ballet routine." Lakhe: "I do now." I smiled imagining him on his tippy toes swirling around and listened sleepily while he massaged me. Lakhe: "goodnight my love." Me: "don't stop..." I murmured. Lakhe: "I wouldn't dare sthandwasam. Shh..."

Lakhe was up before 5am Tuesday morning. He walked to the kitchen and searched the cupboards. Sands: "what the hell is your problem. Do you have to wake everyone up at this time!" Lakhe: "I need water." Sands: "we have a tap and a fridge...wait, are you sleep walking?" Lakhe: "I'm...up." he poured cold water into a glass and gulped. Sands: "oookay. What's happening. Did she kick you out again." Lakhe: "no. Everything is great...better than great. I'm just tired." Sands: "then you should be sleeping." Lakhe: "I was woken up at 2. I don't mind. I'm just so tired....but I can't say no." Sands: "no? To what?" Lakhe: "its the best sex I've ever had. I'm not complaining but-" Sands: "I was not asking for details. My God! Don't even continue. Just Stop!" Lakhe: "I need to sleep." Sands: "go back in there lover boy." Lakhe: "hm..." Sands: "don't fall asleep on the counter. We eat here. Go have fun. You'll take a nap in the afternoon. I used to do that with Zingi. She would make me stay up all night. I don't know where she channels that energy from, all I know is that I miss it."

Lakhe: "uphume ke k'lo TV ukuyo." Sands: "why." Lakhe: "her husband is your friend. Don't be that guy Sandile." Sands: "I've always been that guy. Besides, Dumi uze ngawe. You brought him into my life and made me like him." Lakhe: "and that like should be enough for you to stay away from his wife." Sands: "Ex wife." Lakhe: "Spho and I work very hard to make sure everyone in this house is catered for, safe and most of all happy. You're not going to ruin our family circle because of your urges. Find yourself a good woman that is yours. You don't have many friends. Don't chop away those that already like you. You don't want to end up alone." Sands: "I'll always have you. Besides, I won't do anything that will jeopardize my friendship with both of them. Things are already steamy with Sibulele." Lakhe: "you're fully dressed." Sands: "Yes. Now do you see what's wrong with you." Lakhe: "you weren't in bed were you? Uvelaphi?" Sands: "places." he walked away. Lakhe: "don't walk away from me Sandile." Sands: "uzandithini? Chase me? Please." Lakhe: "mxim." he took his glass and went to the bedroom. I was sitting on the bed waiting for him.

Me: "what took you so long?" Lakhe: "I was chatting to Sandile. You're still awake?" Me: "yes..." I smiled. Me: "why ume emnyango?" Lakhe: "oh....I kind of dozed off. I'm so tired." Me: "dozed off? You're standing." Lakhe: "you know?" he got into bed. Me: "you okay?" Lakhe: "yes love. Just thinking about today and all. My dad's lawyers are arriving. So I probably won't make it to work." Me: "ok. And our appointment?" Lakhe: "appointment?" Me: "Doctor. For Baby." Lakhe: "that's today?" Me: "I told you on Saturday." Lakhe: "ngoban ixesha baby?" Me: "at 2pm." Lakhe: "isn't Paul on vacation? I think I remember his email esithi someone else is going to be there in his place. A friend of his. Kodwa uzongena from 1pm till 5pm. Apparently he also has a surgery. Baby why singalindi uPaul? We know him and trust him." Me: "Masilakhe Ikhaya Sobukwe. I am not going to wait a month to see my baby mna! I booked this appointment for today, at the hospital they said I must go for a check up Today and I don't care if the doctor is an alien. I am seeing my baby. Do you know how long I've waited for this!" Lakhe: "a week." Me: "don't you dare act smart!!" Lakhe: "okay, fine. Singalala ngoku?" Me: "I'm not sleepy." Lakhe: "You've been up since midnight. Then you work all day. When do you sleep?" Me: "I'm fine. I'll sleep after my appointment." Lakhe: "okay." Me: "I don't even have much to do at work today." he snored. Me: "Masilakhe!" Lakhe: "yes baby." Me: "I'm talking to you!" Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi, God knows I love you with all my heart, kodwa ndidiniwe sthandwasam. Please. Ndicela just 2 hours of sleep before this hectic day begins." Me: "lala kaloku." Lakhe: "now you're mad at me?" Me: "I'm not." he turned to the other side and slept. Mxim.

I was at the office around 9am. Just to oversee a few things. Really, there wasn't much for me to do and I hated sitting still being useless. I'd spent only 2 hours working and I had already finished what I needed to do. Walking around would seem like I'm doubting my colleagues especially Lakhe engekho. I stayed in my office and decided to do some online shopping for me and Lakhe. I hope he likes this shirt. It was a little bright but I thought it was nice. After clothing, I looked for shoes. Okay, I was really bored. This was insane. Where were my clients? Why aren't they calling me? Are they happy with our services? My phone rang. Finally!!! Me: "Good day, you're speaking to Spho." Lakhe: "its me." Me: "Oh hi." Lakhe: "Unjani." Me: "I'm good.. Wena?" Lakhe: "I'm great. What are you up to?" Me: "just working." Lakhe: "on my credit card?" I smiled. Me: "it needed exercise." Lakhe: "I see. Yazi ndiyavuka ngoku. Dad's lawyers just arrived, basebenza noDumi. I have to go make an appearance then become a magician and disappear. Andicingi ndihlale nabo imini yonke mna." Me: "but its your case-" Lakhe: "they'll call me when they need me. How about abazali baka Peanut go and have some brunch very quickly." Brett walked in. Me: "khabambe kancinci babe. Yes Brett?" Brett: "the computers are shut down." Me: "what do you mean? I'm on my com-" I moved the mouse around. Lakhe: "kwenzeka nton?" Me: "that's weird. I was on the internet a minute ago. It just shut down. I can't even access files now. Okay Brett thanks for alerting." he walked out. Me: "My God, Lakhe. Something is wrong here. Where are my files!" Lakhe: "calm down. I'm coming-" Me: "you're gonna take too long. I told you to get an IT department but you like being superman!" Lakhe: "Okay. Now you're just lashing out. I'll be 30 minutes." he hung up. He really arrived 30 minutes later while I was addressing the staff. Me: "We'll be up and running again shortly guys. I'd like everyone to keep calm and continue with everything else. This is not a time to sit back. Okay?" I walked to Lakhe's office where he was doing something with his own computer. Me: "so what's happening?" he had a super serious, super angry look on his face. I didn't even get a response. Me: "baby I'm sorry I panicked. I really was lashing out unnecessarily." still nothing. Me: "do you need help? I can call Kylani IT services. We have partnered with them for IT." Okay. It was evident I was being ignored. So I tucked my tail between my legs and proceeded to walk out. Lakhe: "someone was in this office." I looked back at him. Me: "but who? Oko ndifikile akhomntu uze ngapha." Lakhe: "I've locked my computer from any other hard drive except my own. Nothing goes out of it unless its authorized by me. Should something slip, I've set the whole system to shut down. So, someone was in here." Me: "Harold akekho ke namhlanje. Yena mntu une access. Can we check the cameras?" Lakhe: "not yet. I will ask the staff. Give them a chance to come forward. If they don't, corrective measures will be taken." Me: "that will take all day Lakhe."

Lakhe: "I know." Me: "why don't we just check the cameras baby please?"
Lakhe: "Spho. Ndim i-CEO. I trust my employees to be honest and reliable. This is an exercise of integrity. Without me knowing, the culprit must bring him or herself forth. If not, I have to dismiss whoever it is because they would have breached their contract." Me: "Fine." Lakhe: "you don't have to be here if you don't want to." Me: "What if it was me then." Lakhe: "Was it you?" Me: "what would I want from your computer, I have my own." Lakhe: "exactly." he walked out. I went to the bathroom because I was feeling a bit queasy. I stood by the sink and breathed. Dololo. All of a sudden I was fine again. I went back out there. Lakhe was talking to the gathered staff. Lakhe: "now is your chance to come forward and confess if you tampered with my computer. I will be lenient but if I have to source you out then I'm afraid the punishment will be much worse. I do not have the time to play, and I don't take kindly to dishonest people." he turned and walked back to his office. Me: "hun. Don't you thi-" Lakhe: "Can you not. I already explained to you what I am doing and why. Do not question me." Me: "I'm not." I went to my own office and looked through my emails. I responded to a few and decided to leave for lunch and never come back. Until tomorrow of course. Before leaving I made sure everything of mine was in place, up to date and sorted which unfortunately for me ended up taking almost an hour. It was 11:45 by the time I was done. I took my bag and walked to my car. Lakhe's car had left. He didn't say he was leaving either. I went to buy Steers and drove to Zingi's place. I knocked on her door wazovula. Me: "hey. I brought burgers." I went in. Zingi: "why unhealthy food. I sent you emails on a great diet." Me: "and I deleted them. This has tomato, it has lettuce, it has cheese, a patty. What is unhealthy here?" I took a big bite. Zingi: "anyway, Unjani?" Me: "I'm good. For now." Zingi: "what does that mean?" Me: "that means, I'm waiting for something to derail my goodness." Zingi: "I don't know what's wrong with you." she took the burger and ate. Zingi: "so I spoke to Dumi, we're going for therapy next week." Me: "that's great." Zingi: "it still doesn't solve my problem. He says its not a good idea for me and him to have sex because it will complicate things. As if we're not adults." Me: "maybe he's afraid. Probably feeling a little less confident about himself because he's in a wheelchair. This is just a theory. I'm not sure." Zingi: "then what do you think I should do?" Me: "I don't know. Make him feel good about himself. Just don't remind him of the past." Zingi: "he won't even come see me." Me: "when you do see him. Make an effort." Zingi: "Unjani uMasilakhe?" Me: "he's fine. Just dealing with a crisis at work." Zingi: "and Sandile..." Me: "he's okay too. Just being himself. Oh and he owns a hotel now. Part of his new self building tasks. Not that there's improvement but hey." she smiled. Zingi: "he'll be amazing as usual. Sandile has a lot of talent and he's smart. He just hasn't figured out where to invest his intellect. The minute he does, he'll be excellent. Don't rush him." Me: "WOW. You sound like his mom, actually, you sure you're not his mom?" Zingi: "eat your burger." Me: "okay." I chewed and swallowed quietly. Me: "so exactly, how would you know that he's smart.." Zingi: "we used to talk a lot. Stay up all night in between crazy sex-" Me: "I don't need to know that." Zingi: "we just spoke alot." I nodded. Me: "so I have to go. I just wanted to come eat with you. I have an appointment now." Zingi: "thanks for coming love. It really means a lot." I hugged her goodbye and went to the car. I texted Lakhe telling him to meet at the doctor's office. He didn't respond. I drove to my appointment ke mna, parallel parked my car and walked in. I was 15 minutes early. Receptionist: "Mrs Sobukwe, Mr Kusile is free now, so if you want to go in so long. You can." Me: "okay. If my husband comes please send him through." okay this isn't even my office and I order people around. I went in the doctor's office. Me: "Oh My God." he smiled. Me: "Siyanda? What are you doing!?" Siya: "I will pretend as though I'm not insulted. Unjani?" Me: "you said you.....Newton park.....medicine. What." I was so confused. Remember Siyanda? East London dude. Me: "are you stalking me?" Siya: "No... I'm just filling in for Paul, he asked me to. I have my own practice in Newton park like I said." Me: "you didn't say you were a doctor!" Siya: "I said I practice medicine. That's what doctors do." I was still confused for some reason. Siya: "Breathe in. Breathe out.. Relax." Me: "I am." Siya: "great. So what can I do for you." Me: "I'm just checking up on my baby." he stared at me. What was the look on his face? Me: "what." Siya: "you're pregnant?" Me: "yes."he nodded. Siya: "perfect." he sighed. Siya: "you can lay on the bed and relax." I did as told, also texting Lakhe again. Siya: "so is this your first." he applied the cold gel. It was my third. First, was forcefully removed. Second, I lost. Me: "Yes." this one had lasted this long. Siya: "15 weeks now." Me: "yes. Almost 4 months." Siya: "you must be happy." Me: "you're not." he looked at me. Me: "I don't even know who you are." Siya: "I thought we were friends." Me: "don't you think its odd that you look at me like that." Siya: "like what?" Me: "like I just cheated on you." he broke into a smile. Siya: "you want to know the gender of your baby?" Me: "uhm....not until my fiance is here." the door opened. Siya: "that him?" he stared at Lakhe. Lakhe stared back at him. And for a brief 5.2 seconds everyone froze except my baby's heart beat which was what distracted Lakhe. He walked to my side. Lakhe: "she's okay?" Me: "he's always been fine." he held my hand. Lakhe: "I'm so glad." Me: "baby are you okay?" he nodded. Siya: "has the baby kicked yet?" Me: "no, not yet. When do you think he'll start kicking ?" Siya: "usually around now it will be unnoticeable. The mother of my child used to say it felt like butterflies in her tummy. The fierce kicks start around 20." Lakhe: "So? The gender?" Me: "I wanna wait." Lakhe: "for what? I wanna start painting my princess' room pink." Me: "its too early for that. We'll paint at 7 months." Siya: "would you be needing pictures?" Lakhe: "of course." he helped wipe off the gel and fix my top. Me: "what's wrong?" Lakhe: "nothing baby." he couldn't look me in the eye. Something was wrong. So I had to quickly finish here. Lakhe: "I'll wait in the car." he walked out. Siya looked at me. Me: "so how's your fiance?" Siya: "she's good." Me: "what does she do?" Siya: "she's a doctor." Me: "Really? So sweet." Siya: "she's mostly at the hospital but during the afternoons that I come here, she works at mine. We drew up a schedule." I gasped. Me: "a schedule? Adorable." Siya: "and then? Why you being fake impressed?" Me: "I thought it would go well with your foul expression to my pregnancy." Siya: "friends are never foul to one another. I'm happy for you. Having a baby is the greatest gift known to mankind. Well, according to me. I'd wish nothing but success and happiness with your new love. Trust me, you'll fall in love with her or him." Me: "thank you. That's sweet." Siya: "I'll get you your pictures and vitamins." I sat on the chair until he came back. Siya: "hopefully I'll see you again soon." Me: "probably. Enkosi." I took my things and walked out. Lakhe was in his car. I got into the passenger seat. Me: "what is it? And be honest." Lakhe: "my baby is growing." a tear rolled down his cheek. Me: "yes." Lakhe: "it feels so surreal Spho. Like some dream, and I'm so afraid, I don't want my dream to end. I like it." he was crying now. And I hated it. I couldn't even comfort him, I was just downright irritated. Me: "Masilakhe. You walked into that room and froze. As if you saw a ghost. Uyamazi uSiyanda?" Lakhe: "ngubani uSiyanda?" Me: "the doctor!" Lakhe: "No I don't. He was staring at me so nam ndamjonga. Can I see the picture?" Me: "are you gonna cry again?" Lakhe: "No." I gave him the picture. Lakhe: "she's precious." Me: "don't you dare cry!" Lakhe: "Let me be please." Me: "let you.....? You are in a parking lot." Lakhe: "I know its just....there's so much I'm feeling right now." Me: "give me that. Until you calm down." Lakhe: "I'm sorry. Okay, I'm quiet." he inhaled and exhaled. Me: "you're crazy. I'm going home to rest. I'm sleepy." Lakhe: "you can't drive usozela." Me: "you'll be right behind me." I got off his car and went to mine. Well, his also, but mine. I drove home with him behind me. We arrived at home and it was awfully quiet. I wonder where everyone was. I waited for him and we walked together to the door. I opened and there Sandile was. Sitting upright on the couch. For once. Lakhe walked in slowly holding my hand. They stared at each other. Kind of like at the doctor's office but this was more intense. Sands: "Masilakhe." he looked him dead in the eye. Me: "Hi Sands." you couldn't break the tension even if it was the screen of an iPhone smashed into a file. What was happening? Lakhe: "Get Out." he said in a low tone. Me: "haibo Lakhe!" Sandile got up and walked out only losing eye contact after he passed him. Which was very awkward. I was about to say something but..... Me: "what the hell is that smell!" I covered my nose and mouth. Lakhe:

"what smell?" Me: "Sweet Jesus. Can you not smell that revolting rotting smell! Its like a dead animal!" I ran to the bathroom. By the time I got in my room the nausea had left me. Again. Me: "what the hell happened out there? What did you fight about now!" more importantly, why didn't Sandile fight back? Lakhe: "we didn't fight." he poured himself a cognac. I looked at his hands. They were shaking. Me: "Baby? What happened? Whatever it is can be solved, love." he moved around the room, looking a little..... Nervous? Distracted? Confused? I've never seen this look on him before. Me: "Lakhe, talk to me honey. Kwenzeka ntoni? What did Sandile do?" he wasn't talking now. Me: "well, ndizoyombiza ke mna to explain him-" Lakhe: "That is Not Sandile Spho!!!! Its not him! Just..... Its not." he covered his mouth as soon as he said it. As if it was a deadly secret.....or was it?

Lakhe: "so the security camera shows nobody was in my office? How? Of course I want to see the footage and I want to meet with your management!" so let's rewind a little bit. After the Sandile bomb shell, Lakhe's phone immediately rang as if he summoned it to. He quickly answered it as well. I was waiting for him to get off the phone because this was more important than some stupid computer and cameras and everything in that office! Lakhe: "No I will not wait. I won't. Jeremy, do what you may. I want that footage. From last week till today. Do you understand me?" he hung up his phone. Then he looked at me as if he regretted it. Lakhe: "so they say they don't see anyone walking into my office. Its been locked sinc-" Me: "wait a minute, hold on.....wait a whole minute. How- Wait- First of all, you're not gonna speed past our former conversation like you didn't just say what you just said." Lakhe: "Spho-" Me: "No. Tell me." he looked at me. Me: "Sandile has a clone!?" I gasped. Lakhe: "No." Me: "but you said that wasn't him." Lakhe: "Sandile is my brother and I love him very much." Me: "I know that but I didn't ask that." Lakhe: "He tends to....uhm...go in and out of a certain....character." Me: "what character? Disappearing Sands character?" Lakhe: "Yes. But this one is worst than that." Me: "Masilakhe stop talking in riddles." Lakhe: "this is a long discussion that I don't like talking about Spho." Me: "so you're gonna keep it a secret and let me assume the worst. And Sandile has a twin." I took my shoes off and walked out. Lakhe: "Okay Spho!!!" Me: "What? You hid from me that your brother has an ide-" Lakhe: "he doesn't have a twin!!!!" Me: "then explain!" Lakhe: "close the door." I closed it. Me: "so that WAS Sandile." he looked at me. Me: "its either Sandile. Or Not. That's it." Lakhe: "its Sandile." he swallowed. Me: "okay. So what happened between you two?" Lakhe:

"Nothing happened. Like I said before. Sandile has a character, well a few of those... Since he was young he had a condition. Since he was a child. It kept graduating as he grew and got worse. And..... has..... now been undiagnosed as SPD." Me: "what the fuck is SPD?" Lakhe: "Sadistic Personality Disorder." Me: "WHAT!!!!" Lakhe: "please don't freak out-" Me: "Let me get this straight, before you continue. Doesn't sadism mean gaining pleasure from seeing others undergo discomfort and pain?" Lakhe: "well yes but-" Me: "NO. This makes SO. MUCH. SENSE. He tortured my father and watched him burn to death, but the most terrifying part of all, is that..... He Enjoyed it?? WOOW." Lakhe: "he will never forgive me for telling you. Baby please. Don't treat him differently." Me: "or what? He's gonna snap? We are literally living with a breathing grenade." Lakhe: "he can keep it under control. He doesn't hurt family." Me: "I don't believe you at all. The look in his eyes when he saw you walk in. Heh." Lakhe: "can you please listen?" Me: "continue." I opened my laptop and hopped onto my good friend Google. Me: "what do you mean undiagnosed?" Lakhe: "well, you won't remember this but when we met, we once spoke about me having a doctor that helped me cope. Well that same doctor helped with Sandile, and helped him cope..while he was young but when Sands grew older he chose to stop seeing the doctor. He said he wanted to be himself a million times over. Which meant letting his brain change to whatever it wanted to be." I was staring at him wide eyed and mouth open. Was I dreaming? Pinch me. Lakhe: "so the doctor kept in touch with me and... I keep him updated, he explains to me on how I should deal with it and what it might be." I looked back at my laptop. I was fucking scared. Me: "this website says There's four types of Sadists. FOUR Masilakhe. According to me and probably a lot of other people, should a condition have more than one stage, it has reached dangerous, in this case savage levels." Lakhe: "four? What are they?" Me: "Apparently, There's the Enforcing Sadist." I read through it. Lakhe: "The controlling type. Mostly found in authority positions. Enforcing unnecessary punishment." Me: "then There's the Explosive Sadist." Lakhe: "unpredictably violent. Inflicting pain because of their own insecurities. What's the next one," Me: "Spineless Sadist. The coward.....oh God, no." Lakhe: "what?" Me: "He's tyrannical." Lakhe: "you haven't even read it yet-" Me: "I read faster than you. Look!" Lakhe: "the worst type of....." he looked at me. Me: "don't look at me. Read." Lakhe: "the most cruel sadist. He chooses his victims and enjoys tormenting- Spho, this is crazy-" Me: "No. Your BROTHER is crazy. This, is a medical study." Lakhe: "There's no reason to worry. Sandile can control himself, he's not an animal." Me: "he's tyrannical!" I shut down my laptop and walked out the bedroom. I was in the kitchen thinking of supper and I had the craziest craving for pizza. Where was Rob? Lakhe: "Sthandwasam..." Me: "what are we having for dinner?" Lakhe: "anything you want. I'm sorry for all of this." Me: "we are going to have a baby Masilakhe. And his uncle is unstable." Lakhe: "his uncle is not dangerous-" Me: "Oh my goodness!!" Lakhe: "okay, he is. I'm sorry. He can control it. He can. I swear. One mistake, and he's out of this house." Me: "okay." Lakhe: "let me make dinner. Go lie down, ubuthe you're sleepy." Me: "can I get pizza first. I'll wait for it in the room though." Lakhe: "sure. I'll order your favorite." I went to our bedroom, undressed and got into bed with my laptop.

3 hours later, Robert and Dumi walked into the house. Dumi: "I'm starving." Rob: "something smells nice." Rob: "Spho hun." Lakhe: "its me dad. She's sleeping, so if we can keep it down a bit. Uphi uSandile." Rob: "Not Sure. Ryan went over your case son-" Lakhe: "Tata, I need to know where Sandile is first. This case is the least of my worries." Rob: "what happened." Lakhe: "we had a visitor.....him." Rob: "Again? Oh Jesus." Lakhe: "I need to know what happened before he left your sight. Did you fight?" Rob: "No. We didn't fight. We barely spoke. Uveske wathi uyahamba yena." Lakhe: "why!" Rob: "hayike ndizoyazelaphi mna." Lakhe: "I have to look for him-" Rob: "we both know that you won't find him. Just let him-" Lakhe: "let him what? Hurt someone? Let's wait then!" Rob: "I need a drink." he walked to his room. Dumi: "kwenzeka nton?" Lakhe: "nothing. I need to find uSibu." he took out his phone and made the call. Sibhu: "bhuti?" Lakhe: "tell me you've seen Sandile." Sibhu: "I haven't bhuti. Why?" Lakhe: "we have a bit of another him situation happening." Sibhu: "Oh....shit. I'll look for him. I'll see what I can do." Lakhe: "okay." he hung up. Dumi: "should I be worried?" Lakhe looked at him. Dumi: "why are you referring to Sandile as another person. Why is there all of a sudden another him?" Lakhe: "just....uhm... You know, a joke I usually share with Sibhu. When Sandile goes coocoo bird." Dumi: "coocoo bird? Like crazy?" Lakhe: "No. He's not crazy. Like aggressive." Dumi: "so he's aggressive?" Lakhe: "Dumisani. Its nothing. He just sometimes blows things out of proportion, gets angry and disappears to steam off. For a couple of days." Dumi: "so, he's not dangerous." Lakhe: "to us. No. Definitely not." Dumi: "and.....to other people." Lakhe: "it depends.... If." Dumi: "if what!" Lakhe: "if they tick him off." Dumi: "I think I know why he's angry. He's been disappearing the past few days, every night and reappearing in the mornings." Lakhe: "why is he angry?" Dumi: "ever since, he understood that Rebecca is the one feeding information to the cops, he's been restless.....almost, disinhibited around her." Lakhe: "has he, uhm....had an obsession with something, singing, a specific show, a specific object..." Dumi: "tractors. He's been staring at them everyday all week. Not the normal types, the ones that have spikes that kind of dig into soil. Why?" Lakhe: "is that all?" Dumi: "well, plastic. He's been playing with plastic. He bought new types and filled it with water. Why is this relevant? You know Sandile is like a baby, he obsesses with stupid things." Lakhe: "oh Dumi." he hurried to the bedroom to fetch his keys. I woke up because of his rushing and mumbling. Me: "What now." Lakhe: "I have to go. I know where he is-" Me: "Calm down. Sit." he sat down. Me: "What is it?" Lakhe: "he's after Rebecca. Dumi says, throughout the week he's been leaving ngobusuku abuye ekuseni. I remember this because I went to the kitchen kusemnyama, I think ebefika yena. Also, he says he's been restless for a while now especially around Rebecca. I know Sandile Spho. He's like a serpent. Before he eats, he plans, he measures, he calculates. When he's done, he evaluates his mission, which is why he was here earlier, in that state he was in!! I'm almost too afraid to say this." Me: "he's going to kill her tonight?" Lakhe: "uSandile akabulali Spho." Ohhh shit. Me: "that means we're waking up to another body kengoku! Yuh hayi kodwa Lakhe! You said One mistake, this is it!!!" Lakhe: "I have to find him!" Me: "and then what! Heal him?" Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi. That is my brother." Me: "HE. IS. CRAZY." Lakhe: "he's not crazy!!!!!!!" he screamed. What the fuck was that? He stormed out. I was even more shocked now. Did he just scream at me? Ndaske ndabhidwa ke Yehova. Khawuphendule torhwana. What is this?

"Dark into the night.

My highest peak of life.

The moon shines on my scar.

And brings my pain to light.

I haven't slept in days,

I wander through the breeze.

Dark into the night,

Let this one go down in peace.

Tonight, I chose my one

She glows into my light.

My light being the pain,

That she will suffer in vain."

Lakhe: "Sandile..." he stood in a distance. The poem Sandile kept chanting, was actually his reality. The only coping mechanism, left within him was poetry. His whole being had changed. He didn't feel. He had dug a deep enough grave into the ground, sat on its edge, his legs hanging inside its darkness and played with his plastic bubble of water. Lakhe: "mninawa." Sandile looked up at him. Lakhe: "hey... What you got there." the breeze in the air was colder than usual. Lakhe: "Sandile." Sands: "what do you want." Lakhe: "I want to take you home." Sands: "I know my way home." Lakhe: "I know you do...but-" Sands: "you don't get to choose." Lakhe: "I know-" Sands: "you told me I could do it." Lakhe: "I did." Sands: "that it was my job." Lakhe: "of course." Sands: "why are you trying to take that away from me." Lakhe: "because this one might hurt." Sands: "who? Is it hurting Spho? Am I hurting her again? I don't wanna hurt her." Lakhe: "okay, okay... Then, maybe we can go home." Sands: "but I'm not finished." Lakhe: "Sandile you can't kill Rebecca!" Sands: "Why. You want her?" Lakhe: "I've never wanted her. You can't kill her because she's protected by police. Should she disappear, then my whole case escalates to something bigger." Sands: "I took care of that." Lakhe: "that's my job." Sands: "if you let me do mine, I'd let you do yours." Lakhe: "I'm not going through this with you again." Sands: "neither am I. Once the full moon peaks at midnight. The stars shining most bright. I'll take the one and bury her deep, her head above water and barely alive." Lakhe: "alive?! You're burying her ali-" Sands: "I'd leave if I were you."

I was sitting in the lounge with Rob and Dumisani. Lakhe and Sibuh came in, with Sandile. His pants and shoes had mud on them and he didn't look very happy. My heart just ached. It wasn't his fault that he was like this. He didn't choose. Sibuh: "molweni." Me: "hey guys." I got up. I could tell Lakhe was pissed at me. I'm not sure why though. I haven't even said anything. Lakhe: "we're going to take a bath." Sandile followed him to the bathroom. Me: "can I talk to you?" Lakhe: "I have to make sure he's okay." Me: "I know. Do you need anything?" he just looked at me and walked away. It did hurt. I could feel it in my stomach. It was like butterfly- Oh my God. She's kicking! Me: "baby." he shut the door. Sibuh: "Spho..." Me: "yeah?" he was behind me and couldn't see the mess I was slowly becoming. I wiped my tears quickly. Sibuh: "what is it?" Me: "nothing. The baby kicked." Rob: "what!!!" he pulled my arm. Rob: "come sit!! How does it feel? Put your feet up! Sibuy bring the camera!!" Me: "Tata. Its not that big of a deal. Hlala phantsi Sbu." Rob: "can I touch?" Me: "I don't think uzoyiva from outside." he held my tummy. Rob: "oooh. Its like little worms crawling in my hand." Not that dramatic I promise. Dumi: "Is Sandile okay?" Rob: "he's with his brother. He'll be fine." Me: "let me heat their food." I went to the kitchen to warm up their plates. Sibuy: "what's wrong." Me: "nothing." Something inside me kept saying 'TELL HIM'. But a bigger part said not yet. Sibuy: "okay. So umama ndimfakile kwi centre yakhe today. Thank you for finding out for me." Me: "its a pleasure. Any news on da- your dad." Sibuy: "No... I've decided to give it a rest now. Police would contact me if they find a lead." Me: "okay. So are you excited for your interview." Sibuy: "yeah. It would be nice to get something to do." Me: "Sibuy, are you okay?" he nodded. Something was off here. Plus it scared me a little. Why were his hands in his pockets the whole time? That was never a good sign. Me: "here's your food." Sibuy: "thank you." Me: "so I guess you'll be back here now." Sibuy: "yeah. I Was cleaning the house earlier. Making it nice. I'm thinking of renting it out." Me: "that's wonderful...but...where would your mom return to?" Sibuy: "I'll buy her a house. Somewhere far from there." I swallowed hard. Something was definitely wrong. He wasn't even blinking. Me: "great. I have to make a phone call. Please take this to Lakhe and Sands. I'll be in my room." I hurried out as quick as possible. In my bedroom I got on the phone immediately with my mom. Hey where the hell was uNosi? I'd have to check on her. Have to Start drawing a schedule now, the family is getting bigger, I cannot lose one. Mama: "Hello angel." she answered. Me: "hey mommy Unjani?" Mama: "I'm fine wena Unjani?" Me: "I'm great ma. So...I have a problem." Mama: "what have you done now." Me: "okay, why uzo assumer that ndim oyenze i- problem." Mama: "I'm sorry. What is the problem?" Me: "Mama, before you adopted me, the woman that I lived wit-" Mama: "your biological mother." Me: "well, Her. She happens to be Sibuy's mother." Mama: "Wow. Really?" Me: "Yes." Mama: "so ngu brother wakho." Me: "Yes. But he doesn't know and I don't want to tell him." Mama: "Why?" Me: "I don't want it to be a whole thing. I'm scared. I've never had a brother. I don't want one right now-" Mama: "honey, remember Mr Giggles." Me: "of course. My puppy." Mama: "remember how much you loved him?" Me: "I do. Then he got run over by a car and I can't do it ma. I don't want to." I cried. Mama: "stop crying baby. Sibuy is not getting run over by a car-" Me: "he was following me. I was walking to the shop. I left the gate open. And the car ran ove-" Mama: "Spho stop it. You can't avoid attachment with family because you're scared. These are things that are over powered by love. He has the right to know, you have the responsibility to tell him." Me: "You don't understand mama." Mama: "I know it hurts baby...and I don't mean the dog, I mean your childhood. You feel some sort of resentment and its okay. Your brother isn't the one at fault." Me: "he's acting really weird now." Mama: "well... Talk to him." Me: "it seems like I have to talk to everyone today. Uphi utata?" Mama: "he's uhm...watching a rugby game at a friend's place." Me: "oh ok. Bye mama. Love you." Mama: "I love you too baby." Me: "oh and tomorrow, I'm taking you shopping. I found the best kitchen ware shop in the country." Mama: "oh no." Me: "Bye. Mwah!" I hung up. Lakhe walked in. Me: "I apologize. I realize I was mean, inconsiderate and disrespectful to your and your family. I just didn't realize that this was serious. I only thought of myself as usual. Sandile can't be without you, its clear that you know better than anyone how to get through to him and I'm sorry I judged him. It can't be easy." Lakhe: "you were right. I can't control him. He's getting worse Spho. I had to lie to him. I told him that this would upset you and bring back memories of the last thing he did. That's when he stopped. Lying only makes it worse. He cannot know." Me: "but its not a lie. Its true. It does upset me." Lakhe: "I don't know what to do anymore. But you were right. He's a danger here. Maybe we should look at options-" Me: "there are no options. He would be worse off anywhere else. At least here, he is supported and loved. The mere fact that he gained control and came back with you, that is a sign. He has to stay." he sat down on the bed. Lakhe: "I don't know what I'd do without you. Without him. You've opened me up to a whole new world Spho." I felt the little butterflies again. Me: "I have a surprise for you." I took his hand and he touched my tummy. Lakhe: "what?" Me: "wait for it." Lakhe: "she's.....she's kicking me." Me: "oh please don't cry. You're ruining it." Lakhe: "I've been on standby all day. Just leave me alone." he kissed my stomach. Lakhe: "I don't know what's wrong with me baby, everytime I hear about my baby or see her, I just tear up like a little girl." Me: "just this once. Quietly." Lakhe: "okay." he put his ear to my stomach. Lakhe: "hey my angel.... I guess you're no longer a peanut now. You have little chubby legs. You can kick me. I hope you're not hurting your mom. Your uncle doesn't like that. He made me promise. So can you promise?" he lifted up his head. Lakhe: "its like she's dancing in there. Uyamva?" Me: "are you serious? Get up." Lakhe: "let me spend time with my child." Me: "go eat your food." Lakhe: "you're already trying to separate us." Me: "Go Eat." Lakhe: "just so you know, if she was born I'd take her with me to the kitchen.." Me: "that's cute. Don't forget to wipe your face." he walked out. I texted Nosi and asked where she was, her response was, I quote "Took your advice. Out on Date. C U L&r." Lakhe was gonna kill me. I replied: "WHEN is 'l8r'? Your brother is about to hold a search party!" She: "Shoot! I'll get an Uber quick. Plz stol him." What the fuck is stol.....oh stall. Wow. What was so difficult in one more letter? And an a? Lakhe: "so....Sandile wants to talk to you." my breathing got stuck. Me: "what?" Lakhe: "he wants to talk. He's in his bedroom." Me: "alone?" he gave me a sarcastic look. Me: "I'm sorry. I was kidding." I wasn't kidding. I was fucking scared. I got up and went to his room. Knocking on the door. He opened it. Dressed in a navy silk gown. Heaven help me. Sands: "Hi Spho." Me: "hey you. Unjani." I walked in. Sands: "So Lakhe told me, he told you what happened in the woods." Me: "oh that?" Sands: "I'm sorry I upset you." Me: "uh huh." Sands: "its just that, its my job to fix problems that hurt my family. Lakhe's job is to protect us." Me: "Can I take over both those jobs-" Sands: "No. You won't do what needs to be done. Confrontation does not work on everyone." Me: "I hear you." All I was hearing was that, this isn't his last time. Me: "so I heated your food and its ready for you." Sands: "thank you Spho." he hugged me. Me: "I'm just glad you're home. I hate not knowing where you are. You're part of this family and whether you like it or not. All of you are my kids." Sands: "Ndimdala nje kunawe." Me: "I don't care. You're still my baby boy. Okay? Don't worry me like this." Sands: "okay." I let go. Me: "so....have you called Khanya?" Sands: "No. Why?" Me: "sometimes its good to release some tension....in a loving manner." he smiled. Sands: "I hear you." he grabbed his phone. I walked out and sighed relief. That wasn't so bad. He was fine. Controllable. For now. I went back to my bedroom.

Wednesday morning I was up early going through my messages. Lakhe: "hey." he woke up. Me: "hey baby." I kissed him good morning. Lakhe: "what you up to so early?" Me: "I'm talking to Siyanda about my pregnancy." Lakhe: "ngubani kanene uSiyanda?" Me: "are you being serious right now?" Lakhe: "I honestly have no idea what goes on anymore. I'm like 20% clued up on things." Me: "you had an awkward staring contest with him yesterday!" Lakhe: "at work?" Me: "the doctor!" Lakhe: "Ohh. That guy. Wow." Me: "wow? That's it?" Lakhe: "What am I supposed to say?" I rolled my eyes. Me: "Anyway, I'm inviting him and his fiance over for dinner." Lakhe: "why!" Me: "because I trust Siyanda has the best interests for us and our baby." Lakhe: "he's a doctor. And so is Paul. It is their JOB." Me: "no, with Paul it felt more like an appointment. He was stiff." Lakhe: "stiff? Really? Wow!" Me: "at the risk of surprising you again. He sent me this video, look. Its so amazing." Lakhe: "Paul or Siyanda?" Me: "Paul doesn't wake up at 4am to text me back." Lakhe: "so.....You've been up since 4?" Me: "watch the video please." he took the phone. Lakhe: "its a pregnant woman sitting in a bath tub. Why am I watching this?" Me: "she's going to give birth." Lakhe: "inside the bath tub?" Me: "yes." Lakhe: "which she shares with her family?" Me: "that's not the point." Lakhe: "its creepy. I'm not going to watch a creepy video that's going to ruin my whole day. I won't be able to get that picture out of my head." Me: "so you're not gonna be there when I give birth to your child?" he smiled. Me: "I'm asking you a question." Lakhe: "its a female process baby. Its not right for a man to be there-" Me: "we're in the 21st century!!!!!!!" I yelled. Lakhe: "okay. I'm sorry. Love, we have 5 more months to go. This is not necessarily a now discussion. I might grow into it. Give me a chance to grow into it." Me: "oh you better grow! It must fit you like a glove! No woman made me pregnant. It was You!" Lakhe: "I understand." Me: "so they'll be here for dinner at 7." Lakhe: "so we're having dinner with the doctor... How is this growing us?" Me: "I just think his wife is sweet and he's a great guy. You could hit it off. Nibezi friends." Lakhe: "but I have my status meeting at 7pm." Me: "Everytime I try and make us new friends, awufuni wena." Lakhe: "I have the exact right number of friends." Me: "we need couple friends. A healthy relationship that mirrors our own." Lakhe: "define healthy." Me: "are you trying to be funny?" he chuckled. Lakhe: "you yell at me at 6 in the morning." Me: "you deserve it sometimes." Lakhe: "I like the way you say sometimes." I looked at him. Lakhe: "I'm sorry. Kodwa baby, we have a healthy couple relationship. There's Babal-" Me: "Don't You Even Dare. First of all, that's not a healthy relationship, secondly, I don't even like him." Lakhe: "that's not his fault. He's been trying to prove himself to you. To apologize. To make up for before. You won't even give him a chance." Me: "If I give Babalo a chance, you give Siyanda a chance." Lakhe: "so can we invite Babalo to dinner as well?" Me: "I thought you had a status meeting. No. You're first going to bond with Siyanda. Like him." Lakhe: "I already know what I lik-" Me: "No. You don't." he pulled me to his body. Lakhe: "you sure?" he kissed my neck, holding my breast. Me: "show me." his phone rang. He ignored it. Me: "it could be the office.." Lakhe: "Andisakubaweli. Work can wait." Me: "Lakhe, focus. Answer that phone." Lakhe: "party pooper." he took his phone. Lakhe: "Sobz speaking..... No, not yet." he sat up. Lakhe: "right now?" he got out of bed. Lakhe: "most definitely. I'll be 30 minutes." he hung up the phone. Me: "and then? What happened to wcw?" (work can wait.) Lakhe: "my sweet, I have a contact from Tokyo, he was talking about expanding and he just landed at the airport. He has an hour to spare. I have to go meet him." Me: "expanding? Tokyo? Ndibhidiwe kengoku." Lakhe: "I'll explain later. Cela undikhuphele a very nice suit and shoes." he ran to the shower. I got up and took out his grey fitted suit. It just came back from being altered. I took out the white shirt and the pink. I wasn't sure which he would like. Maybe white with a navy tie and navy gentleman's slippers. In no time he was back in the dressing room. Me: "so..... expanding?" Lakhe: "it was something I've been thinking about-" Me: "Masilakhe, not to burst your bubble but You've barely come out apha inside your country. Why would you wanna go open up in Tokyo. That's gonna mean traveling!" Lakhe: "Sthandwasam, these are still talks. I've always wanted to go global and this is the one chance I have. We'll work something out." Me: "just.....please come home for dinner tonight." Lakhe: "I wouldn't miss it for the world." he kissed my cheek and got dressed. Lakhe: "is my baby moving this morning? Good morning my apple. According to the internet, you're the size of an apple now. The apple of my eye." Me: "when did you find that out?" Lakhe: "I read sometimes. To get clued up. Well, this is my 20%. Baby, your tummy is starting to get big." Me: "its a little round. I still fit into my clothes perfectly. You can barely notice it." Lakhe: "I notice." Me: "you're my husband. You're supposed to notice." Lakhe: "next week she's gonna be an avocado. Avo ka tata." Me: "every week she has a new name? What will she be at 30 weeks? Daddy's little cabbage." Lakhe: "now you're just being mean." he kissed my tummy. Lakhe: "your mommy is jealous, apple pie." he wore his shoes and got up. I fixed his tie. Me: "I'm working from home today. I want to take a nap first and then ndise umama eBay West. I want to buy her pots to thank her for helping me with the wedding." Lakhe: "that's very sweet of you sthandwasam. While you're at it, undingenele kwa G Star, I need underwear." Me: "you have two drawers full of underwear." Lakhe: "Ndifuna ezintsha mos." Me: "okay. Go, you'll be late." Lakhe: "I love you hun." Me: "I love you too." he took his things and walked out. I went back to bed for my nap.

During the afternoon, I was with my mom. I bought her a set of red pots from Le Crueset and also cutlery. Mama: "isn't it a bit too colorful mntanam?" Me: "It looks stunning mama. These pots are everything. I think Lakhe would love blue." Mama: "I'm very sure Lakhe akanaxesha lembiza ke yena." Me: "unalo mama. He cooks." Mama: "are you serious?" Me: "ewe mama. Sometimes he cooks." Mama: "ayifani naye at all lonto." we walked to G Star to buy the undies and a jacket for him. It was gorgeous. He had to have it. After Raw, we walked around a bit and umama found a baby shop. Me: "mama. Its too early." Mama: "I know sweetheart but look at this baby cot." Me: "Lakhe is going to kill me if I buy that today. He says its early, asikathethi nangozala even." Mama: "its just a baby cot." Me: "maybe at 6 months ma." Mama: "okay. So what about ukuzala? Aren't you gonna pop in a hospital?" Me: "No...I want something special. I want a home birth." Mama: "a home birth? Why?" Me: "hayi mama wethu. I want to be comfortable endlinam mna. Not in some hospital with 60 other ladies." Mama: "not in a private room though." Me: "my house is already private. I spoke to uSiyanda about it. He says its a great idea. Lakhe is still growing into it." Mama: "I guess I have to grow with him. Have you heard the gender?" Me: "No, we're waiting." Mama: "okay baby." I went shopping for tonight's dinner. Me: "so how's dad?" Mama: "he's okay." Me: "just okay?" Mama: "Ewe. Just okay. Ude wathetha noSibu?" Me: "I can't mama. Yoh. I have this heaviness in my heart that just won't let go. I'm not ready. I'm happy for him efumene umamakhe. That's it." Mama: "what about u-sister wakhe? Don't you think he's looking?" Me: "you think so? Is that why he's being weird?" Mama: "njani weird?" Me: "ever since he came back from his mom's house, he doesn't blink xa endijongile and xa ethetha he's less excited than usual." Mama: "don't you think perhaps he's tired?" Me: "then angalali nje." Mama: "once you get this off your chest. You will feel much better. Uhlala naye uSibu. Its not going to change anything except bring you closer." I didn't want to be closer. Me: "I don't want to be unfair. I don't want to rule our relationship on My terms only. Its best if I wait until I'm ready." she sighed. Mama: "fine." I paid for my items and we went to the car. Me: "sendidiniwe mna ngoku, my back is aching." Mama: "that is being pregnant love. Ndizok'ncedisa with dinner. Funeke uphumle wena as much as possible." Me: "its okay mama. I can manage." Mama: "are you sure?" Me: "I'm very sure. I'm going to exhaust you xasendityhala isusu. For now, don't worry." Mama: "okay sweetheart." after paying for my parking ticket, I drove her home. I then drove to my house. It was just before 3pm. I walked into the house and to my surprise everyone, being Sandile, Sibu and Dumi, were playing the damn play station. Nothing pissed me off more than the fact that, the bloody play station has its own room and flat screen. WHY. BRING. IT. HERE. And Uphi uMasilakhe! I told him to get rid of everyone. Me: "Sandile." he looked at me. Sands: "hi Spho-" Me: "Nenzanton?" Sands: "uhm...it was Dumi's idea." Me: "that is not what I asked." Sands: "Sbu." Sibu: "benditshilo mna." Me: "I am expecting guests! Bazofika njani kunje apha!! Why aren't you in the game room instead!!" Dumi: "I'm sorry." Me: "you're supposed to be at work! Uxolisa ntoni!" Dumi: "sendigqibile today." Me: "I don't like to yell and I don't want to. I hate being the grump. Please clean this mess you guys and disappear before 6pm." Sands: "on it!" I went to the kitchen with the plastics. I went back to the car to fetch Lakhe's paper bag ndayoyifaka in the bedroom. I went to the kitchen to start up on dinner. I was starting to get a headache. I leaned on the counter for a few minutes. Lakhe should've been back by now. Sands: "you okay?" Me: "just a headache." Sands: "why unga rest? We'll fix dinner." Me: "these are important people. I want to impress them, I think they'd make really great friends." Sands: "I can handle it. Uyayazi I'm a good cook." Me: "okay. Here's the recipe." I had a sudden urge for a chocolate milkshake. And I wanted it NOW. Sands: "go lie down." Me: "ndisayothenga milkshake kqala." Sands: "Sibu can go get that. Iya ebhedini. You're tired." if ndidinwa kanje ngoku what happens when I'm huge? Oh this is gonna be difficult. I went to my bedroom ndangena ezingubeni. Sibulele wazosabela ndifuna ntoni. Me: "a chocolate milkshake that's all." Sibu: "you okay?" Me: "I'm just a little tired." he nodded and walked back out. Hayini he was beginning to creep me out now. Maybe he knows? But how? Who would have told him? Maybe Sandile noMasilakhe when they came back together! Why would they tell him! Its my thing to tell! I got up and stomped to the kitchen. Me: "you told him!?" Sands: "told What to who?" he was smiling at his phone. Me: "uSibu!" I whispered. Sands: "its not mine to tell. Why would I?" he finally put it down and looked at me. Me: "so nguLakhe?" Sands: "I don't think so. What makes you thing uxelelwe, did he say something?" Me: "he's being weird. He looks at me funny. Ingathi ndiyamdika or something." I peeped out the kitchen door. Sands: "he's already gone. What do you mean funny?" Me: "Sibu has loving soft eyes. These days, I do not see that love. Even xa ethetha nam." Sands: "maybe your mom told him?" Me: "That woman. Does not even know my name." Sands: "that's impossible. Look, just ask him. Then you'll find out utheni enjeya toward you." Me: "okay. I'll ask." Sands: "can you go back to bed?" Me: "Who you chatting to? And why you so happy?" Sands: "I'm chatting to my friends. Can't I be happy now?" Me: "Ohh." I went to my bedroom again. Then started to rehearse my dialogue with Sibu. A dialogue wasn't going to work, he was unpredictable now. I didn't know what he would say. Maybe Lakhe could help calm my nerves. I tried to call him. "Hi, this is Masilakhe Sobz. You've reached my voicemail, please leave your name and number I'll get back to you as soon as I can..." Are you being serious? Did this mean he wasn't coming to the dinner? Oh My Goodness, please do not embarrass me like this. I waited in my room, ingathi ndilindele uzobethwa. Why was I so nervous kanti? Where was Dumi? Maybe yena angancedisa undi-relaxer. Just before I got out of bed wangena uSandile. Sands: "why won't you sit still? Kuthen hleli nje ufuna uba ngu Dora with that stupid back pack that has an entire city in it? Sit. Lie down! I want you to taste this." Me: "I'm freaking out." I took the spoon and tasted. Me: "its lovely." Sands: "if you told him, you wouldn't have to worry." Me: "ubukhe wathetha noLakhe. His phone is off." Sands: "I'm sure he's fine. Don't change the subject." Me: "I'm not changing no subject. Andifuni qha uthetha ngalonto. I trust you guys will keep it down tonight. I have guests." Sands: "Inoba yi president lifikayo. Kunini usithi you have guests. I'm gonn put on my big boy suit-" Me: "you're not joining us. Ndim noLakhe, and our doctor and his fiance. I want to get to know them. It could be nice to have a doctor as a friend in case of emergency." Sands: "so basically, uyam'user. I did not expect that from you St Mary." Me: "okay Judge Judy, go get your gavel." Sands: "I'm just saying. You're taking more and more after me." Me: "izitshe net lambiza." Sands: "you know it and I know it." he walked out. I was so tired, why couldn't I sleep? I had to do something. Sibu: "Spho." he knocked. Me: "ngena." he came in with my milkshake. Sibu: "I also got you mini marshmallows. Ina." this is the Sbu that I know. Me: "that's so sweet. Enkosi." I took the shake and packet. Me: "so...uhm...Sibu. Are you okay?" Sibu: "I'm fine." his eyes didn't look fine. Me: "its just that....You've been different. Ever since you came back." Sibú: "I'm fine." he said again. Okay, so it was evident. He was NOT fine. Me: "what's wrong? Is there something you wanna share?" Sibú: "I don't know, is there something that You wanna share?" Shit. He knew. Me: "no." I felt like a little mouse. Sibú: "well...me neither. Enjoy your snack." he walked out. I texted Sandile. "Something Definitely up!! He's PISSED." Reply ka Sandile bethuna: "Seems fine to me. Hey, undishiyele mini mar's vha. I'm coming." akekho serious lomntu. 2 hours went by. I went to shower then looked for an outfit. The time was 6pm. My guests were due any minute now. I took out a crisp white boob tube bandage dress which passed a full 5 centimeters below my knee. I wore my gown over it and started my make up. I always started with my eyebrows and then go on to foundation, conceal and contour. It worked much better for me. I did a Smokey eye shadow with a hint of gold at the beginning of my eye. Applied dark maroon matte lipstick ndayonxiba a gold strapped stilleto. After brushing my weave, parting it in the middle, I took off my gown and went to the kitchen. Me: "guys my guests are arriving any minute now. Please disappear." Sands: "but I'm hungry." Me: "take your food and disappear." Dumí: "you look gorgeous Spho." Sands: "didn't you say the dinner was here?" Me: "it is." Sands: "Wow. I wonder Uphi uMasilakhe before I take his place." I laughed. Me: "go guys." Sands: "I'm going to see a friend of mine. I'll be back late." Dumí: "two nights in a row.....must be some friend." Sands: "unje umntu wam ke xa endilinda. Ubane side comments. I Will Be Back!" Sibú: "we'll be in the game room." Me: "senityile?" Sibú: "yeah." he wheeled Dumí away. Dumí: "have fun." they disappeared. Me: "see?" Sands: "he definitely knows and he's definitely pissed. Khange aqalise nokuncoma. Which is unlike him. He's the nicest one out of all of us." Me: "what do I do!!" Sands: "thetha naye Spho. Explain to him. It will be over quick." Me: "Uphi utatakho?" Sands: "he's probably with Smelly Ryan. He's been obsessed with this case ever since he heard." Me: "uNosi yena uphi?" Sands: "she's at her friends house. She left around 2. I said I'd pick her up xandibuya later." Me: "alright." I tried Lakhe's cell again. Still off. Sands: "don't worry about him. You'll be great-" Me: "its not about being great, he knows he has to be here to get to know these people as well. I'm doing this for him too!" Sands: "calm down. I'm sure ubambekile somewhere." Me: "no he didn't want to come. He doesn't like uSiyanda." Sands: "Siyanda is the doctor I presume?" Me: "ya. Naba befika. Thank you so much for making dinner Sands. It was sweet of you." the gate buzzed. Sands: "I didn't mind. You know me. Do you want me to stay with you? I can go change quick...." Me: "you don't have to do that." I opened the gate. Sands: "I want to... You think I can't handle smart talk?" I laughed. Me: "I wouldn't know. You play too much." Sands: "I'm offended." Me: "seriously, its okay. You can go. I'll be fine." Sands: "sure sure?" Me: "goooo." Sands: "okay. Boogie is in the back yard. He won't disturb you either. I'll see you later then." Me: "alright." my guests knocked on the open door. Me: "hi guys, come in." they came inside. Babsi: "WOW. Your house. You. Your husband. I don't know which one to start with!" Me: "this is actually my brother in law-" Sands: "don't ruin it. I was about to get a compliment!" Babalwa laughed. Me: "bye Sandile. Ungamlibali uNosi xa ubuya late." Sands: "okay. Enjoy." he left. Me: "welcome guys, umnyeni is still working. He's not home yet, he sends his regrets." I lied. I was really embarrassed. Siya: "he has to. For a house like this? I can't even imagine him falling asleep." Me: "oh stop." we sat down at the table. Siya: "what does he do?" Me: "a bunch of things actually. He is CEO at Gcell, he has two hotels which actually run themselves and a few other small entities." Siya: "that's amazing." Babsi: "ndiyayazi eyam indoda seyine man crush. He loves successful black entrepreneurs. Wena Spho Wenzanton?" Me: "I'm the MD. At Gcell." Babsi: "you're like a super couple." Me: "you guys are making me blush. So what kind of doctor are you Babsi?" Babsi: "I'm an obstetrician." Me: "what is an obstetri? Tongue tied." she chuckled. Babsi: "I'm a physician for pregnancy and childbirth, also combined with gynecology. How far along are you?" Me: "she's amazing! I'm 15 weeks." Siya: "yep...she makes me look like a cartoon character." I giggled. Me: "let me get our dinner guys. Can I pour you wine?" Siya: "please." Babsi: "just juice for me thanks." I went to fetch the special wine to pour for Siyanda and juice for Babsi. Then went to heat dinner while they had their beverages. I was a bit upset that I had to do this by myself. I wore the oven mittens and took the casserole dish that had roasted chicken to the dining table. I went back for the rest of the meal. Steamed vegetables and creamy mashed potato with a bowl of gravy. Healthy and tasty. Siya: "so...where did you meet the Mr." Oh My God. Why this question that confuses me silly? Me: "to be truly honest, I met him standing next to me on my hospital bed. I was in an accident the week before and in a coma. I lost my memory. According to him, we met at the mall, had breakfast and started dating." Babsi: "you lost your memory? That is hectic! At least he stood by you." Me: "yes he did. How did you guys meet?" Siya: "at med school. Ebengandifuni usiswakho, throughout our schooling. We only started dating 6 years ago." Babsi: "oh please. You were known all over campus." Siya: "I was a friendly guy nje." Babsi: "who wants to date a friendly guy?" ME. Siya: "everyone except you." Babsi: "Spho, this is lovely." Me: "thank you dear." Babsi: "I just moved here from Grahamstown. Maybe during our spare time you could show me a few boutiques." Me: "I would love to." something in my house started beeping. I looked around. Babsi: "oh sorry, that's me.." she checked a small device. Siya: "I thought we agreed to switch our pagers off." Babsi: "baby, I can't do that. uSibahle is almost 10 months pregnant and hasn't gone into labor, I have to do a c section." Siya: "ok."

Babsi: "I'm sorry Spho. Enjoy dinner guys. I have to get to the hospital ASAP."
Me: "its alright." Siya: "you can take the car, I'll get a cab." she took her bag.
Babsi: "thanks sweetheart. Bye Spho." Me: "byee." she rushed out the house.
Me: "so your pager?" Siya: "my work will never take over the personal time I have with important people in my life." Me: "you should understand she's a doctor. Its her job-" Siya: "your husband is not a doctor." he chewed on his meat. I didn't have a reply. I was just mute. Siya: "I'm sorry." Me: "its fine. You're right. I'm sure he's not even working, he just didn't want to come. Do you guys know each other?" Siya: "why?" Me: "that awkward look yesterday?" Siya: "he was the one that looked at me." Me: "uthe kum akakwazi. Couldn't even remember your name." Siya: "hmm." Me: "do you know him?" Siya: "never seen him in my life." he drank his wine. I wish I could sip some wine right now.
Me: "I feel like, There's something off.....with you today." Siya: "yeah. A little bit."
Me: "tell me." Siya: "today my son would've been 4." Me: "what do you mean?" Siya: "he drowned two years ago....didn't make it. A house of doctors, and he didn't survive." Me: "I am so sorry to hear that Siyanda. Do you want to talk about it?" Siya: "I don't know how. I never really have spoken about it. It just hurts and doesn't get better." Me: "perhaps if you spoke about him, it would be easier. I'm sure he wouldn't want to upset his daddy." he smiled. Siya: "he was playing in the lounge crawling and starting to get up and walk. He could, but he just preferred crawling. I came home from work edlala. I took him and kissed him. Then my pager rang.....and I left him with his nanny again. That was the last time I saw him alive." I held his hand. His eyes were glistening. He was trying hard not to cry, Hell I was near tears myself.
Siya: "apparently he'd crawled out the door and went to the pool. I don't know for how long he'd been in the water. Anyway...today is his birthday." he took a sip of his wine. Me: "did you visit his grave? Maybe it would help, say what you need to say to him." Siya: "I haven't been there since his funeral. Babalwa refuses to talk about him. I can't even put his picture in a frame, she gets so upset." Me: "I think you should see someone. This isn't healthy, you have to open up and feel." Why do I give people the same advice? Probably because I'm not a psychologist and I don't wanna ruin people's lives with advice." Siya: "enough about me. At least I got that out." he sighed. Siya: "I like this dress. I can see baby is starting to show herself." Me: "she's not giving me a choice this one." I wanted to avoid the baby talk but it seems like he wanted to get into it. Siya: "have you decided on anything yet? It would be nice to get a doula." Me: "what is that?" Siya: "an experienced woman who will help you throughout your pregnancy. Saves you the stress. I have a few I can recommend." Me: "so you're also an obstetr..." Siya: "obstetrician? No. I'm a GP." Me: "I thought GP's were a little older." Siya: "how old do you think I am?" Me: "I don't know.....36?" he laughed. Siya: "I'll take that as a compliment." Me: "how old?" Siya: "I really like that 36. I'll keep it there." Me: "come on. Tell me." he kept laughing. Siya: "ndimdala Spho." Me: "you look like a 36 year old guy. Suppose futhi une convertible wena." Siya: "I am really liking this number." Me: "38 then?" Siya: "I'm 41." I gasped. Siya: "what?" Me: "you're old." Siya: "ouch." Me: "I'm kidding." Siya: "wena unangaphi?" Me: "27." Siya: "Wow. 14 years..." I collected our plates. Me: "GrandPa." he laughed. Siya: "uyathanda nje undikhubekisa wena. Unnecessarily." I went to the kitchen. He followed me. Siya: "this is a beautiful house. This kitchen is out of this world." Me: "can you cook?" Siya: "nope. Unless its noodles then yes." I chuckled putting the dishes into the machine. Siya: "who else lives here.." Me: "Lakhe's family. You met his brother, his dad came to visit for a while, his two closest friends and his little sister." Siya: "and you're okay with all that?" Me: "yes. They're a lovely bunch. This house is too big anyway." Siya: "true. It makes mine look like a shoe box." Me: "I'm sure you have a lovely house Mr GP." Siya: "Dr." I looked at him. He was staring back at me. My heart quickened and flustered. Something ticked. I don't know what but it was strange. Siya: "so, let me get going." Me: "yeah. I'll walk you out." we walked out the kitchen. Siya: "ohh shoot. I forgot I have to call a cab." Me: "its okay, I'll drive you." Siya: "I'm not inconveniencing you?" Me: "not at all. It would be nice to drive around." I took my keys and we went to the car. I drove him to his place with directions given by him. Besides that, the car was quiet. He lived in Summerstrand which made the trip even longer. I finally stopped in front of his house. It was a grey, double story with a long glass window showing a stair case inside. Me: "you have a beautiful house." Siya: "enkosi." the silence again. Not awkward at all. Siya: "Look....it was my first time opening up to someone about my pain. Its not a nice feeling to be emotionally naked in front of someone." Me: "I understand." Siya: "Thank you Spho. You make it easy for me." Me: "its okay." and it was quiet again in the car. Me: "so when is my next appointment?" Siya: "whenever you want. Just hop on over." I nodded. Siya: "let me get going. Drive safely uyeva? Text me when you're home." Me: "Thank you. I will." he got out of the car and walked to the house wavula icango and went in. I drove back home. I wanted to talk to uZingi. I dialed her number but the phone just rang to voicemail. I tried again and she didn't answer still. I wonder wenzantoni. Something was going on with me. I don't know what it was but I felt upset. I couldn't explain oluvalo bendinalo. Maybe there was something wrong with uSiyanda. I drove into my driveway and parked the car in the garage. I took my phone and sent him a message: "just got home." Him: "I'm glad. Hope you'll be resting your feet now." I got out the car and walked in the house. Lakhe was sitting in the lounge with one leg over the other, texting on his phone. Lakhe: "baby." he put down his phone. Lakhe: "I'm soo sorry about tonight. My battery died and I had to go to utata for this case." Me: "its fine. I'm just tired, I need to lie down." Lakhe: "uhm....love?" Me: "yeah?" Lakhe: "you okay? Ibinjani dinner?" Me: "it was great." and it was... Lakhe: "I'm glad." I went to the bedroom. Lakhe: "honey..." Me: "yes?" Lakhe: "My hotel in Mozambique is in trouble. I can't seem to fix it from here, my manager is not coping and everything is falling apart. We lost the liquor license because of some illegal party. Anyway, I have to go sort that out." Me: "okay." Lakhe: "okay? I have to leave tomorrow morning." Me: "I'll start packing for you." I took off my shoes and went into the closet. Lakhe: "something is wrong. What happened?" Me: "nothing happened. I'm just tired." Lakhe: "you don't have to pack for me, I'll do it." Me: "I want to." I took out his LV suitcase. Me: "how long will you be there?" Lakhe: "I'll be back this Saturday." I took out a few shirts and pants. His new underwear. Shoes. Socks. Belts and toiletries. He was back on his phone and thank goodness for that. Inqondo yam ibidiniwe. After packing his bag, I took off my dress. I went to wash my face and came back to bed Lakhe: "I saw Sibulele and uDumi. Uphi uSandile?" Me: "he went to see a friend-" Lakhe: "what friend?" Me: "he didn't say." Lakhe: "Sandile doesn't have any friends Spho." Me: "maybe uye ku Khanya?" Lakhe: "uyothin ku-Khanya bengavani!" Me: "he seemed excited though-" Lakhe: "There's only one thing that excites uSandile Sphosenkosi!! His condition speaks for itself!" he went through his phone, dialing a number. Lakhe: "Rebecca's phone is off." Me: "do you think he....." Lakhe: "I don't know!!" he took his keys and left. Was it a bad thing I didn't really care? It just didn't matter anymore. I took his work bag to sort out for his trip. There were a lot of papers. Me: "what is all this?" Bank statements from some foreign account. Me: "what." The first had a balance of 25 million in dollars. The second one had 20 million also dollars. This meant he had over half a billion in Rands. No hotels and CEO position can give you this much money and why is it in dollars? It didn't make sense. I looked through the other papers. Payments. Millions worth of payments. To who!!! I took a picture with my phone. My skin was crawling. Where the hell did Lakhe get so much money from? "Wenzantoni." my heart stopped beating.....

Me: "Sibulele..." Sibulele: "why are you shocked? Who did you expect?" I swallowed. Sibulele: "Spho." Me: "bank statements." Sibulele: "ohhh.... You finally saw the problem." Me: "I'm sorry." Sibulele: "for what?" Me: "I don't know. I'm so confused. Where does this money come from? Why is it in dollars?" Sibulele: "if I were you...I'd pack all that back wherever you found it. Lakhe is not kind to snooping." Me: "you know something." Sibulele: "I told you weeks ago. I'm not going to repeat it again." Me: "you let me marry into a drug cartel!" Sibú: "if I said anything. It wouldn't change anything. You wouldn't have listened. Look, just let it go. Don't ask questions." Me: "don't ask questions? Are you hearing yourself!" Sibú: "Sphosenkosi...its safer for you to turn a blind eye." Me: "oh my God.... Is that why Loco was here?" Sibú: "when?" Me: "months ago...there was a shoot out. Lakhe said he took care of it." Sibú: "you were here? During the shootout?" Me: "yeah. How could I have been so blind?" Sibú: "you need to calm down. Spho, Masilakhe is an internationally dangerous man. Every-fucking-where. Do Not ask questions. Do you understand me? And never EVER tell anyone, Noba ngumamakho or utatakho, absolutely NO ONE about this. This dies with you." I started crying. Me: "he's going to be my baby's father!!!" Sibú: "I know Spho but..... Fuck it, I don't know. Andisayazi nam ngoku." Me: "and you? You're in this too? You're a drug dealer?" Sibú: "I'm not a drug dealer. I just help with shipment, sorting, meeting...." I stared at the window. Sibú: "we should put these away. Pretend you never saw them." I put them back in the bag and threw it on the couch. Me: "I'm surrounded by liars." Sibú: "I never lied to you." Me: "not you. I'm just....I'm scared." Sibú: "he married you. I don't think he'll ever hurt you." Me: "he told me before...that he had a drug selling past. He said he'd close down." Sibú: "I'm sorry." he hugged me. Me: "Sibú...." Sibú: "yes?" the door opened. Lakhe: "what's going on?" I sat up straight with my heart beating out my chest. Sibú: "nothing. Just talking.." Lakhe: "about what?" Me: "the baby." Lakhe: "oh." Me: "did you find Sandile?" Lakhe: "yeah. Turns out he really is with a friend. Ndibafumene behleli at Zest having drinks. His name is Vuyani. I remember him from high school. Ndisayovasa." he disappeared into the bathroom. I heard the shower turn on but the door wasn't fully closed. Sibú: "don't worry too much about the baby. As long as you're getting rest when you need it. And also ease down on the workload." he was typing while talking. Then he handed me the phone, the message read: 'Keep talking as conversation and read this.' Me: "I will. Its just that, I don't trust people with my work." I read the rest. ('you sure you're gonna be okay? If you feel uncomfortable we can work something out.') Sibú: "I know that but Spho you're having a baby now." I typed while he talked. ('I have to stay, I don't want him to be suspicious. I'll be ok.') Me: "I know Sibulele." Sibú: "Promise me you'll be fine? Call me if you need anything?" Me: "I will. Thank you bhu-" I stared at him. Sibú: "pardon?" he stared back at me. I pretended to laugh. Me: "Sibú. I mixed the 'si' with the 'bu'. Sorry." he smiled. Sibú: "okay. Goodnight." he walked out. I got into bed and waited. What was I going to do? A few minutes later the shower switched off. He walked in the bedroom again. I couldn't breath. He looked moredodgey. Lakhe: "what." Me: "huh?" Lakhe: "you're staring.....did I gain weight?" Me: "uhm..no. You look very sexy baby." Lakhe: "Nyani?" he smiled showing his light dimple that creepily never showed usually. But tonight there it was. Perhaps this was a genuine smile. Me: "I hope uSandile akazomlibala uNosi. He said he'd fetch her ugqiba kwakhe with his friend." Lakhe: "I'm sorry baby. I should've trusted you. Its just that, Sandile is unpredictable and also has a pattern. He has a norm of doing things, that's his pattern, but you never know when, because he's unpredictable. So I have to keep on my toes." Me: "I get it. I understand. I'm just glad he's doing well and being social." he got into bed. Me: "I honestly thought uku Khanya mna. The way he was smiling at his phone. And uDumi uthi he wasn't home yesterday either." Lakhe: "I can't think about this anymore." Me: "how did Tokyo dude go?" Lakhe: "very well actually. I think we might be looking into a global future soon." Why did he need to do illegal dealings? He had cash, he had a great job. WHY! Me: "that's great love." Lakhe: "I thought you weren't happy about it." Me: "I hadn't grown into it." he kissed my shoulder then neck. Me: "baby I'm not feeling too well. I think I'm gonna be sick." Lakhe: "aww...sorry my love. You know the BabyCentre blog is cool. How about we check it out for morning sickness treatment?" Me: "its at night. This isn't morning sickness." Lakhe: "morning sickness isn't only in the morning baby. Its just more frequent ksasa." Me: "can I check it in the morning?" Lakhe: "okay. Can I massage you?" Me: "every night baby?" Lakhe: "I made a promise. I'm a man of my word. Besides.....I love it when you fall asleep under my hands." that sounds scary. Me: "okay my love." the thought of making love to him did not sit well with me. It hurt me because eventually it was going to be questionable. I didn't have to do it tonight though. I had to digest. Plus I had a few more days to myself. Lakhe: "still haven't told him?" Me: "who?" Lakhe: "Sbu." Me: "I wanted to... I couldn't." Lakhe: "okay...ufuna ndimxelele mna?" Me: "I'll do it tomorrow." a few minutes later, I pretended to snore lightly. Lakhe: "goodnight sthandwasam...." he whispered into my ear. Lakhe: "I love you." then he cuddled me. This was gonna be a long night.

Thursday morning, I woke up and went to make him breakfast. His flight was at 8, he had to leave the house at 6am. Ugqiba kwakhe unxiba, he came to breakfast. Lakhe: "what?" Me: "the egg." it was making me nauseas. Lakhe: "suka ecamkwalo kaloku baby. Thank you." I went to sit on the couch with my cereal. Lakhe: "I feel like you're mad at me. You can't be this tired." Me: "I am mad at you Masilakhe. When I needed you, you dropped me. When you need me, I'm always there. This one thing I ask of you and you had to let me down." Lakhe: "Baby, ndicela uxolo. Ndinike number ka Siyanda. I'll call him and we'll meet up when I'm back. I promise you." Me: "it doesn't matter now." Lakhe: "you know that ndizomkhangela ndimfumane right?" I stared at his playful smile. Lakhe: "I already know where he works Spho. Don't look so surprised." Me: "just do what you want. Its what you always do anyway."

Lakhe: "Andifuni ke uhamba ndixabene nawe." Me: "andixabenanga nawe mna." Lakhe: "but you're mad at me." Me: "I'll be fine. Travel safely. Undixelele ufika kwakho." he kissed my cheek. Lakhe: "andizokwazi mna uhamba unje. I can postpone my flight to afternoon. So that we can go get coffee with uSiya ke." Me: "he's probably working. Your effort is noted though but you're trying to impress me." Lakhe: "uxolo my love. I will make it up to you." Me: "okay. Ungabi late Masilakhe." Lakhe: "I love you." Me: "I love you too." he kissed my lips and went to fetch his suitcase. He was a completely different man to me ever since my discovery. He rolled out his suitcase to the car. Lakhe: "I'll call you everyday baby. I love you." Me: "I get it honey. Nam ndiyakuthanda. Bye now." he got in his car and drove off. Finally, I switched on the TV. I'd barely slept last night. Actually, I didn't sleep at all. Dumi: "Spho?" Me: "hey Dumi. Unjani?" Dumi: "I'm good. Wenzantoni ekuseni apha?" Me: "Lakhe just left for Moz. I'll have to get ready for work soon. So bendisazimamele." Dumi: "oh okay." Me: "have you heard from uZingi? I tried calling her izolo, akaphenduli." Dumi: "ukokwabo ezilalini. She left yesterday morning since izkolo zivaliwe and took the kids. The reception there sucks ke shame." Me: "oh... That makes sense." Dumi: "do you need anything?" Me: "no, I just wanted to talk to her." Dumi: "I'm here...you can talk to me." Me: "its pregnancy stuff. Stuff she knows about." Dumi: "Oh. That's fine then. Leave her a message. She'll get back to you." Me: "I will. Do you want breakfast?" Dumi: "no. Just need some water, ndiya emsebenzini." I nodded. He went to fetch his water wabuyela eroomini yakhe. Sibuyela also came to the lounge area. He was already dressed ke yena. Me: "Are you ready?" Sibuyela: "yes I am." Me: "you look great, I know you're going to be amazing." Sibuyela: "enkosi. Are you okay?" Me: "I'm fine. I have to get ready for work as well.." he was doing that staring thing again. Like he expected me to say something. I couldn't say it now. He was going to a job interview and I didn't want to rattle him. Me: "so what time is your interview?" Sibuyela: "at 9am." Me: "lovely. When you're done uzokwazi uzojikela by the office." Sibuyela: "Okay. Utyile?" Me: "I had cereal. Egg is now my enemy." he smiled. Me: "khame ndisayovasa. I'll see you later." Sibuyela: "alright." I bumped into Sandile in the passage. Sandile: "I wonder ungxolela ntoni Spho." Me: "but I haven't said anything." Sandile: "Shhh.." Me: "utywala abuyo tshomi yakho." Sandile: "mxim." I went to take a shower when I was done, got dressed in a blue wrap around dress and black strap heels. All that was on my mind was yesterday's revelation and my stupidity. Just thinking about it made my skin crawl. The last thing I wanted was to be involved with a man hat does illegal things. Ibuye ngam lonto. I took my bags after I was ready ndaphuma. On my way to the office, my phone rang ingu Zingi. Me: "hey hun." Zingi: "hi sweets. Unjani?" Me: "I'm good. I tried calling you yesterday." Zingi:

"ndifumene message ye missed call ndik'xelele. I'm at the bundus. I cannot fucking wait to come back home." Me: "I thought you loved the bundus." I laughed. Zingi: "I do. Pregnant Zingi didn't get the memo. Everything here irritates me crazy." Me: "uzobuya nini?" Zingi: "I'm coming back tomorrow. I have a session tomorrow with uDumisani and a doctor." Me: "your counseling starts? That's nice. Also, I wanna see you. I have a problem." Zingi: "why? What happened?" Me: "nothing happened. I just need someone I can trust to talk to. Pregnancy stuff. I hope." Zingi: "You hope?" Me: "just tell me when you're here please." Zingi: "okay. Ndizobuya before 1pm. So we can have lunch at our secret place." Me: "okay babe. Bye." Zingi: "bye hun." I got to the office ndayongena as quick as possible. Lakhe sent a message that he was boarding and that the security company would arrive at 8:30am. I also had a meeting with Brett at 8:30am. I rescheduled Brett for 9am then but my 9am was a conference call with Victor from Telkom. So I had to put Brett after 9:30 and that might take a while. At 11am I was to see Judy at Finance. Today was officially a hectic day. Luyolo, Lakhe's intern. Left stranded again, walked into my office after two knocks. He had a plant pot with him. With an actual plant in it. I was so surprised. Is this gonna be a thing now? Luyolo: "Molo Spho. How are you?" Luyolo: "I'm great Luyolo. And yourself?" Luyolo: "I'm good. I made this for you." Me: "oh you didn't have to Luyolo." Luyolo: "I wanted to." Me: "Enkosi kakhulu bhuti. Its beautiful." just so we're clear, I'm not a plant person. Me: "have you spoken to Lakhe about your salary." Luyolo: "no I agreed to work for a few months free to prove myself." Me: "that's madness Luyolo, uzoza nganton apha all these months. I'll talk to Judy at Finance remind me at 11 okay?" Luyolo: "thank you so much sisi. I'll get back to work now." he disappeared out of my office. Thank God. 8:30 came, I spoke to the security company guys. They still had no lead for us as to what happened in Lakhe's office. 09:00am, I called Victor and his team. I was done by 9:45..... When Sibuy walked into my office. Me: "hey." Sibuy: "hi." he closed the door and sat down. Me: "I'm not going to waste your time. I know you know." Sibuy: "I know what?" Me: "uhm...about me." Sibuy: "about you?" Me: "Sibuy, you know I'm adopted. My biological mother was....unfit to raise me. And I was taken away.....I just recently discovered, that my biological mother is the woman that opened the door for you the night I dropped you off." Sibuy: "you're right." I thought I was telling the story. Me: "huh?" Sibuy: "You're right. I do know. I'm just wondering why, you never bothered to tell me. You kept it from me like a disgusting secret. Like you hated that I'm your blood." Me: "that's not the case." Sibuy: "then what is." I couldn't find it in my heart to tell him everything but..... Me: "my father abused me. Every time. Umama knew that and she never protected me from him. I had to run away like a thief and almost die to get away from them. I didn't have a childhood Sibuy and thats not your fault. I just didn't want you feeling different about your parents. You found your mom and you were happy-" Sibu: "I wasn't happy. She abandoned me. Ndiyi first born yakhe....then kept you. Do you think I deserved that?" Me: "No you didn't." Sibu: "I get that you got hurt Spho. And I'm so sorry about it. What I can't understand is why you'd keep a secret like this from me . Why you'd tell everyone else.....but me. I've tried with the little information that I had to scrape through to find my lost sister kanti yena uhleli kulendlu ndikuyo unbothered about how I'm feeling." he had tears in his eyes. Sibu: "I am so sorry you grew up like that... But I can't forgive you for hiding this big thing from me. I can't." he walked out. My heart sank. I was honestly expecting hugs and kisses and none of that happened. I guess I deserved it. It was selfish of me to keep him in the dark all this time.

The rest of my day was a slow, draining, tiring process. By the time the day was finished, I myself was finished. Most people at the office had left, it was around 5pm. I didn't even want to drive home. I took my phone out of the charger. I had a new message from Siya. Seeing his name on my screen.....I don't know....I felt better. Message: "I'm done at work, finally. Had a crazy day. Hope yours went better than mine." Me: "baaad day. :(" Him: "Talk over ice cream?" Me: "I have to get home." Him: "aww :(" Me: "just one hour." Him: "great. Meet me at the boardwalk entrance." I took my bag and went to the car. Ndakhwela ndayiqhithwa ukuya eBoardwalk. I parked and saw him standing in a distance leaning on a pole with his hands in his pockets. I walked to him. Me: "hey." Siya: "hey." we walked to Wakaberry. Siya: "are you okay?" he felt my forehead. Me: "I'm fine. Just overwhelmed." we got our cups and poured ice cream. Siya: "by what?" Me: "Everything. Work. Home." You. Siya: "so, what's happening at work." Me: "its crazy. Someone got acces to Lakhe's computer but nobody was in the office and akubonakali niks from the cameras. I've been back and forth the the security company and abayazi yenzeke njani lonto." Siya: "what if nobody went inside?" Me: "that's what it looks like. But someone connected to his computer. He knows this because he programmed it to shut down the entire building should anyone try." Siya: "Well.....maybe it was hacked. From outside." it was like a lightbulb went on in my head. Siya: "IT geeks have a better chance of finding the culprit. Very quickly futhi. Itsho kwi department yenu." Me: "I didn't even think of that. You're quite smart aren't you?" Siya: "uyathanda undikhubekisa ne?" Me: "it was a compliment. Relax." after paying we went to sit down at the small table by the window, watching people pass by. Siya: "what else is stressing you.." Me: "my brother." it was starting to sink in. I actually had a brother. Me: "we got into an argument earlier. Probably have to get home to his sulking face. And its my fault. He has every right to be mad at me." Siya: "I find it difficult to think that anyone could be mad at you." I smiled. Me: "people get very mad at me kanti. Kubenzima ngakum." Siya: "I don't think I'd last a day." Me: "you're just saying that. Unjani uBabsie?" Siya: "I don't know. I haven't seen her since izolo. She didn't come home." he picked the chocolate covered wafers in his ice cream. Me: "why not." Siya: "she says she was busy." Me: "you don't sound convinced." he looked up at me. Siya: "She probably was. I wouldn't know." Me: "is there something you wanna tell me?" Siya: "its nothing." Me: "talk to me." Siya: "Babalwa is amazing. She likes to help people. She does that a lot. I loved that about her but...now, she ignores me. She's barely home, always working. We have to book appointments to see each other. Its something I never saw myself doing. I might be a little spontaneous at times but I always do right for the people I love, I make picnics, I take them to the beach, I write her lovely things, I'm planning our wedding, just about everything to prove to her ndiyamthanda." Me: "have you spoken to her?" Siya: "I did. But she dismisses that kind of talk." Me: "I'm sorry to hear this Siya. I don't know what to say." Siya: "its okay." Me: "can I have your sour worms though?" Siya: "I've seen you eyeing them this whole time." I giggled. I took the sour worm. Siya: "how's the Mr doing?" Me: "he's okay. He's in Moz for a few days for his hotel." Siya: "Wow. Must be nice." I smiled faintly. It wasn't nice. At all. I was to a drug dealer. Siya: "you know ndisemncinci. I wanted to own an ice cream shop. And funny enough that dream never died down. There's something magical that happens to me when I eat ice cream.....in movies that's how people find their soulmates." I laughed. Me: "by eating ice cream?" Siya: "not just by eating. Its the feeling you get when the flavor sticks to your taste buds and it slithers down your throat into your stomach....then when you open your eyes....see a wonderful sight. I had it all planned out. I'd decorate my walls with a scenic 3D wall paper that would make my store seem out of this world." Me: "that.....is...amazing." Siya: "pipe dream..." Me: "its still cute." Siya: "I grew up with my mom and sister. So I'm a bit of a softie. Don't laugh..." Me: "I won't." Siya: "my sister bethanda undiflerha and put on one of her t shirts andifake i-figure belt when I was a kid. She wanted me to be a girl." I giggled. Siya: "yabona ke." Me: "I'm sorry..." Siya: "we should get you home, ku-late ngoku." we got up and walked to my car. Me: "thank you for this. I feel a lot better." Siya: "me too." we stood by my car. Siya: "enjoy spending time with you Spho." Me: "same here. I wish you the best with Babsi." Siya: "we'll be fine...enkosi for being a great friend and listener." Me: "that's Spho for you." Sands: "so this was nice." andothuka I almost choked! Me: "Sandile!" Sands: "heeyyy. Siyanda right?" Siya: "Yes. Hi." he shook his hand. Sands: "I was looking for this lady actually. Bye Siyanda." Siya: "uhm bye.." Me: "I'll call you when I'm home."

Sands: "same here." Siyanda smiled and walked away. Sands: "he is soo nice."
Me: "What did you do!" Sands: "nothing." Me: "Saandile!" Sands: "I promise you. He's sweet...." he stared after Siya. Sands: "it would be sad to hurt sweet.
Keep. Him. Close.....for me."

When I got home that evening I went straight to my bedroom. I was tired and my back hurt really badly. It already had been a long day. Sibu was tense engathethi nam. Sandile yilo wireless iveske iqhawuke ndingayazi ndicofe phi. Dumi and Rob were busy with the case with Smelly Ryan. I just wanted to be alone. After bathing I went straight to bed. I checked my phone for messages. So I sent one. It was obvious to who. Nothing made my heart beat faster when I saw his name on my screen. What was happening to me? He replied: "Hey... I'm Cooking dinner. Slow on texts." Me: "I thought you couldn't cook." he sent me a picture. Ndaphela yintsini. Me: "khupha amanzi embizeni Siyanda!!" Him: "hewethu ndilambile mna. Andinaxesha lalonto. Have you eaten?" Me: "not yet. My back is breaking." he called immediately. Siya: "what's wrong?" Me: "its just my back. I'm not dying." Siya: "Hold on, nanku Babe. Explain to her." Me: "guys..." Babsi: "hi Spho." Me: "hey Babsie. Its just back ache. Nothing much." Babsie: "but you're still in second trimester. Listen, do some exercise. Being in bed will not make it better. Stretching exercises, prenatal yoga, swimming and pelvic tilts. I'll make you a daily list okay?" Me: "okay." Siya: "and tell her not to work too much." Babsie: "Oh ndiyakwazi ke wena ngomsebenzi. You think smiling pays the bills." she gave him the phone. Siya: "apparently smiling pays the bills." I giggled. Me: "niyadika nobabini." Siya: "eat something. Awuzokwazi ulala ungatyanga." Me: "I'm going to the kitchen right now." Siya: "ufote ndibone okukutya. Ingathi kanti yi-grape eyi 1." I laughed. Me: "bye Siyanda. Usile shame." I hung up. I got out of bed ndanxiba gown ndayolanda yogurt and fruit. Sands: "I bought Nandos for dinner." Me: "ndi-sharp." Sands: "uzohlutha yi-yogurt?" Me: "ya." Sands: "are you still mad at me?" Me: "I'm not mad." Sands: "that's what you say when you're mad." Me: "okay Sandile." Sands: "I'm not gonna hurt your friend. He's harmless mos. Ndizamthin lamntu mna?" Me: "how do you know he's harmless?" Sands: "he smiles a lot. That's for sure-" Me: "so do you." Sands: "yeah that's true." he smiled. Me: "If anything should happen, to Siyanda or his family Sandile. You will see the way Hell is set up. I promise you." I went to my bedroom and locked myself inside it. I took the picture as I was told and ate my food finished. I crawled under blankets and instantly drifted off.

My eyes shot open. What time was it? 06:05am. Friday. The dream I just had..... Wow. I just wanted to go back to sleep. Getting up was hard. I stood up and went to shower ndayonxiba. I checked my phone. No messages. I needed to be back in bed badly. My phone rang ndayiphendula. Me: "hello." Lakhe: "baby wam." I breathed slowly. Ndaveske ndonyanya. Me: "yes?" Lakhe: "I'm sorry I didn't call you when I landed. How have you been?" Me: "don't you already know? Niiyancedisana kalok nomninawa wakho in stalking me." Lakhe: "what are you talking about?" Me: "I know you asked uSandile andijonge xa ungekho. He just appeared out of nowhere ndise Boardwalk with uSiya." Lakhe: "I didn't tell Sandile anything. I'll talk to him babes. Uxolo man." Me: "I have to get to work." Lakhe: "okay. I love you." I never thought this would be so hard to say. Lakhe: "Spho?" Me: "when will you be home?" Lakhe: "I'm flying in tonight." Me: "great. We'll talk then." I hung up. I took my bags and walked out to my car. Rob was here for once. Ebukele TV drinking his coffee. Me: "molo tata." Rob: "hi my angel." ingathi naye bekweyakhe inyuva. I went to my car, driving to work. I called my dad ndisendleleni. I can't believe I never listened to my father when he warned me. Khaya: "hello?" Me: "daddy..." Khaya: "Oh no.... Whenever you call me daddy, something is wrong." Me: "Is it possible to fall out of love.....very quickly." Khaya: "yes." Me: "how do you know you don't love someone anymore." Khaya: "it can be very complicated. Abafani abantu. Maybe you don't like certain things about lomntu, maybe this person hurts you, what happened?" Me: "Tata, I've messed things up. There's this guy...uSiyanda. He has really shifted my focus." Khaya: "who?" Me: "uSiyanda Kusile. He's also a doctor but akekho sesbhedlele." Khaya: "he shifts your focus how?" Me: "he's always on my mind, he's well being is my priority, I enjoy spending time naye and then....I get so upset when he has to go." Khaya: "oh my." Me: "its bad. I can't even look at uLakhe. He just revolts me." Khaya: "yeah its bad... You need to sit down with yourself mntanam and analyze what you really want. Figure out what revolts you ngoLakhe, is it hormones or just generally uyakudika. This Siyanda, understand his intentions, and so forth. For now, lock yourself up and listen to Spho's heart." Me: "okay." Khaya: "whatever decision you come with, as long as its sensible. I will support you. I don't want you uncomfortable because ucimba uphoxa mna, this is Your life. You need to know what's good for You before anyone else. Sumamela wonke udofi olapha phandle. Okay?" Me: "thanks dad." Khaya: "okay my princess. Let me go my hun, ndilapha in my office already. I have to work.." Me: "bye bye tata..." he hung up the phone. (In Khaya's office.) Khaya: "why did it take you this long to get here? I literally took 1 and a half days ndisuka all the way across the world, usuka just here ke wena. What is wrong with you?" Siya: "uxolo tata. I had things to tie up before I came here again." Khaya: "kodwa uyandihlupha Siyanda shame. Too much." Siya: "can we go back to my problem now?" Khaya: "I told you to let her go, Babalwa akakufuni. Myeke! End of discussion." Siya: "why don't you like her-" Khaya: "YOU don't even like her. Get up Siyanda. Go to work. Deal with it like a man. Do not call umamakho and sob about this. Its over. Okay? Go." Siya: "Wow. The prince doesn't even get healthy advi-" Khaya: "because you're a man! Not a prince!" Siyanda walked out.

I sat in my office all morning, locked away from the world. I prayed, I cried. I got all out of my system, except Siya. He was a parasite on my side. Something was up. He hadn't called or texted all morning. I went back to my work. Someone knocked on my door. Me: "come in." Sibú walked in. Me: "hey." Sibú: "Hi." he put down a cup. Sibú: "I brought chocolate milkshake." he took out of his pockets mini marshmallows. Sibú: "you didn't have breakfast at home." Me: "Thank you Sibú. This is swee-" Sibú: "its for the baby. Not you." he walked back out. I didn't know whether to laugh or cry. Ebendinyisa shame hayi nje kancinci. I drank the milkshake ndifake the marshmallows inside. Zingi called. Me: "hey." Zingi: "hi...ndisandofika ngoku. Can we go to lunch?" Me: "yes sure. Mandiphume kule office. Its driving me crazy." Zingi: "I'll meet you at the spot." I hung up and packed all my bags. Bye Felicia. Ndemnka. Our secret destination was a park. We bring junk food and a blanket sihlale under a tree. I remember this is where Zimi first stood up and started walking. All important convos happened under this tree. It was my happy place. After buying enough food for two pregnant ladies I went to the tree ndalinda phantsi kwawo kude kufike uZingi. She arrived okwakhe ephethe ezakhe izinto. Ezi healthy. Me: "you are so lost." I started eating my chicken. Zingi: "ithini ngxaki sisi." Me: "first of all, I want to say sorry I ever judged you." Zingi: "when did you judge me?" Me: "when you cheated on uDumi." Zingi: "you didn't judge me. You just told me to stop qha." Me: "I might have judged you a bit." Zingi: "Yinton ingxaki Spho?" Me: "I think I have a crush on someone else." Zingi: "Sandile?" Me: "euw no." she laughed. Zingi: "what's so euw about him?" Me: "ndiyazelaphi man. Its just euw qha. Anyway not yena. Ever." Zingi: "Sibú?" Me: "you won't know this guy. He's a doc-" she gasped. Me: "what now." Zingi: "you looove doctors." Me: "its not even like that." Zingi: "does he know?" Me: "No. He doesn't." Zingi: "Lakhe yena?" Me: "urr..." Zingi: "If you weren't married, I'd say go for doctor guy. But you are, SO, stay away from him. This is the same advice you gave me! Do not even entertain doctor guy, block him." Me: "okay." Zingi: "your hormones are running wild. If you just stay away from physical danger. Everything will be fine." Me: "physical danger?" Zingi: "Yes. He is physical danger. Buuut, you might dream about him..." Me: "I already did. Last night." Zingi: "keep it to yourself love. Doctor guy is just a fantasy. You love Masi, he loves you back. That's your reality and you need to take control of it." Me: "I hear you. And I fully agree." I drank some water. Me: "so Sibú is my brother." Zingi: "I beg your pardon?" Me: "undivile ke kanti." Zingi: "your brother? How?" Me: "we have the same biological mom.....I found out before he did and I kept quiet. He found out later now he's mad that I kept it from him. Ingathi uxelelwe ngumntu." Zingi: "well kodwa tshomi, bekutheni uzungatsho nawe when you found out?" Me: "I wasn't ready Zingi. I hate bringing up my past. I hate having to explain it." Zingi: "but he's your brother." Me: "it doesn't make it any easier. I just don't want to talk about it. I don't want pity and hugs and 'I'm sorrys'. You know I hate it." Zingi: "I get you. Mnike ixesha. He will come around soon enough. Sibú is so sweet." Me: "I thought so too. He came to my office before ufowne wena ephethe chocolate milkshake. He said since ndingatyanga endlini, he brought this. Xa ndisithi enkosi, he said its not for me, its for the baby. Andakhubeka." she laughed. Zingi: "that's funny. Let him cool off man." my phone rang. Siyanda. I rejected the call and switched off my phone. Zingi: "is it doctor guy?" Me: "yeah." Zingi: "I'm proud of you mna tshomi. You have more resistance than me. I know you wena." Me: "what you saying is making sense in my head but not my heart. But I am married whether I like it or not. I can't play the field anymore." Zingi: "that's good." As much as I hate it. I couldn't see Siyanda again. After an hour, Zingi had to go to her appointment with Dumi. I had to go home. I'd kill for ice cream but I'd rather stay out of jail. Zingi: "babe. Don't be so sad." Me: "I'm not sad." Zingi: "Spho, don't forget that ndiyakwazi. Whatever you're thinking of is hurting you and ufuna ukhala." Me: "I don't!" Zingi: "you bite your lower lip everytime ufuna ukhala." I let go of my lip and the tears started to threaten my eyes. Me: "I can't." I bit it again. Zingi: "Okay. Fine. Call me ufika kwakho endlini." I nodded. I got into my car. If my talk wasn't with uZingi, I'd probably drive to Siya's office right now. But Zingi was older and wiser. More experienced emtshatweni and experienced this mistake. She would not stray me to physical danger. So I drove home and parked my car. I wasn't in the mood to see anyone. If I could just get back ubuthongo bam from ksasa. I took my bags and left over snacks into the house and to my surprise, nanku Masilakhe Sobukwe. By surprise, I mean I almost fainted. I was waiting for him abuye ebsuku. Like he said. He stood there looking at me. Lakhe: "hey." was he reeally a drug lord? He didn't look like it. With his tight grey pants and a white shirt tucked in neatly. Shaping his worked out body. It was unbuttoned half way down his chest and the sleeves rolled up to his elbow. Did he get a hair cut too? Me: "hi." Lakhe: "are you gonna come in?" only then I realized ndime emnyango this whole time. I went to the bedroom. Wandilandela. Me: "I thought You'd be back tonight."

Lakhe: "I could feel something was wrong, I couldn't wait till then. I sold the hotel." Me: "Why." Lakhe: "its not as important as you. I know something has changed Spho. Please tell me." Me: "remember when I threw you out this house?" he nodded. Me: "when I said, there was something dark hanging on you that I don't like....and when I find out, I'm not staying a second longer?" his whole neck was exposed so I could see his muscle working inside when he swallowed. He didn't say a thing. Me: "do you remember?" Lakhe: "baby...please." Me: "do you remember?" Lakhe: "I do...but I can explain-" Me: "explain what?" Lakhe: "Spho, you can't just leave me." Me: "why not?" Lakhe: "you just can't!!" Me: "Or what? You'll shoot me? Like you did Loco? You'll burn me? Uzondithini?" Lakhe: "I will never hurt you Sphosenkosi. I've told you everything about me." Me: "No you didn't." Lakhe: "is this about Dez?" Me: "I didn't mention Dez. Is there something you want to tell me about Dez?" he swallowed again. Me: "I found statements in your bag. When I was packing. Where does that money come from?" Lakhe: "Spho, cela undimamele mntu wam. Nothing I do, will ever hurt you-" Me: "Masilakhe, uyifumana phi imali engakaya." Lakhe: "Spho I can't tell you. You know that I love you-" Me: "but you're still selling drugs." he opened his mouth to say something then closed it. Me: "look at me." Lakhe: "I'm sorry." Me: "u-sorry yintoni?" Lakhe: "I thought I could keep you away from it all. Its my life, I can't give it up-" Me: "you understand that we're about to have a baby right?" Lakhe: "yes." Me: "akho tata womntanam ke mna ozoba ligintsa or ozothengisa iziyobisi for fun. Unayo imali Masilakhe. Problem yakho unyolukile. If you think, I'm going to sit and pretend I'm okay with this, Unyile. I'm telling one last time. Shut this shit down. Or you will never see me, or your child ever again. And andiyi ndawo mna. Nguwe ozohamba. Ndiyakuthanda, I do. But don't ever think I'll turn a blind eye kwi kaka. Sivene?" he nodded. I took off my shoes. Lakhe: "I love you too." I went to the closet. Lakhe: "Spho.." Me: "Masilakhe." Lakhe: "I promise I'll do better. I'm going to make you proud baby." Me: "for your sake, I pray to God that you do." after changing my clothes I took the washing basket to the laundry room. Ndafaka impahla, after sorting them out, in the machine. After it was on, I went to the kitchen to start with dinner. Lakhe: "honey. I was thinking maybe if we could have braai tomorrow with our family and new friends. Maybe I can get to know Siya. I know I didn't give him a chance before so I want to give it a try." Me: "you don't have to. He's out of our lives. Your brother doesn't like him." Lakhe: "sizova ngoSandile kengoku? Hayi wethu babe." I had to crash this idea. Siyanda was past. He cannot bring him back. Me: "its fine Lakhe. You were right. We don't need more friends." Lakhe: "ok, something is going on. Did something happen between you two?" Me: "nothing happened. He's just secretive and I don't trust him."

Lies. He will see right through those lies. Lakhe: "I'm a better judge of character. He's coming to the braai. I'll call him."

Saturday morning. My heart was racing. I don't know why though. The baby was really restless too. I got up ndayovasa. Maybe if I drove to Jeffreys bay, switched off my phone and came back on Sunday? After my shower. I searched through my wardrobe. Lakhe: "heeyy.." he hugged me from behind. I was still a little uncomfortable with him but at least he was trying and I was going to meet him halfway. Me: "so, how did it go last night?" Last night was his deadline to close his shady deals and he left here around 6 wabuya e-frustrated and tired after 10pm. Lakhe: "it didn't go too well. Kodwa, I found someone to sell to. We'll meet tomorrow morning when he lands." Me: "it'll have to be in the afternoon because tomorrow morning siyecaweni." Lakhe: "babes, these aren't the type of people you want to make wait. Its best ndiyenze xa efuna." Me: "fine. As long as its done." I took out my yellow maxi dress. He was playing with my bulging tummy, poking and pinching it. Me: "my parents are arriving at 1. Itshomi zam probably a little earlier to help set up." Lakhe: "okay. I got you something though. Vala amehlo." I closed my eyes. He shuffled around for a bit. Lakhe: "you can open baby." Me: "what is this?" I opened the pink paper bag. Me: "this is sooo cute!!!" Lakhe: "do you like it? When I saw it, I went crazy." Me: "are you kidding? I love it!" it was a white Burberry baby onesie. Me: "Burberry?" Lakhe: "I know its a little too m-" Me: "the shoes!!" it came with the cutest brown print Burberry shoes. Me: "kodwa umntana uzonxiba igama from head to toe?" Lakhe: "her dad does, why can't she?" he kissed my forehead. Me: "its adorable." Lakhe: "the day she's born, she can wear that." Me: "No, uzoyinxiba when she goes to church for the first time." Lakhe: "then uzonxiba uBalmain on her pop day." Me: "does she have to?" Lakhe: "You've accepted that its a she.." Me: "because she's as dramatic as you." Lakhe: "I am not dramatic..." I rolled my eyes. Me: "help me zip up my dress." he zipped me up. Lakhe: "you pop in yellow." Me: "too much ne?" Lakhe: "Nope...its the most beautiful sight." Me: "you're just being nice." I wore my comfortable sandals and brushed my hair. Me: "which room will be our nursery?" Lakhe: "uzolala nam owam umntana. I want her inside this bedroom." Me: "having her own room is better. She won't have to depend oko. That's how you teach a child independence. Whilst emncinci." Lakhe: "I want her to depend on utatakhe. She must understand that I am there for her no matter what." Me: "I hope you'll have the same sentiments when you pull her down from a stripper pole at 18." Lakhe: "strippers are the nicest people I've ever met." Me: "You did not just say that." Lakhe: "my child will never be a stripper, and she's sleeping in our bedroom until she's 10. That's it." That's not gonna happen. I went to the kitchen to make myself something to eat. After eating I started with putting out the marinated and seasoned meat bowls. I made the first salad. My friends arrived to help. Fez was outside with Sandile ebasa umlilo. But we know the real reason why she's there. To take selfies with him. Lol. Ndine picture yezo caption bawo. Fez: "guuys." she walked in. Me: "did you get enough pictures?" Fez: "sendenze ne folder yakhe. I have 24 pictures of him." Me: "What?" Zintle: "How!" Fez: "ndine methods kaloku mna. Andilipholi ikhwapha sana. I work for what I want. Tshomi aninayo iMbororo? Andisenxanwe." Me: "nguSandile umntu wembororo tshomi." Fez: "ookay!!" she rushed out. Zintle: "I need the bathroom." she left the kitchen. Sandile walked in. Sands: "Spho." Me: "now is not the time." Sands: "Hi Zingi." she carried on with her chopping. Sands: "Zingisa ndiyabulisa." No Response. There was an awkward silence in the kitchen. Sandile did not move. Which scared me a bit. Sands: "Zingisa." Zingi: "What!!" woahh! Sands: "I'm saying hello. Good God, yintoni ingathi ndicela isonka?" he walked to me. Sands: "Spho." mission yakhe was to come irritate aha. Chances are udikwe ngu Fez phandle. I was not going to be part. Me: "I think I heard the gate." I went to the lounge and almost felt my heart jumped out my chest. Siyanda looked at me then broke into a beautiful smile. Lakhe: "hey, you made it." he went to him. Siya: "hi." they shook hands. Lakhe: "I'm getting you a beer, Spho introduce him to everyone. Show him around. Ndiyeza." Me: "I have to co..." he disappeared outside. Siyanda moved closer to me. Siya: "why are you ignoring me?" Me: "I love my husband." Siya: "then why are you ignoring me? If you love him so much." Me: "its inappropriate. Ndingu mfazi womntu. Where's Babsi." Siya: "she's not coming." I saw my dad's car pull up. Me: "this is my father in law. Mr Rob Sobukwe." Rob: "Hi." they shook hands. Me: "tata, this is my doctor. USiyanda." Rob: "lovely to meet you. Excuse me, ndisayolanda utatakho Spho." Me: "he just pulled up." he went outside. Me: "that is Sib. My brother." Siya: "is he still mad?" he whispered. Me: "Yep." he chuckled. Me: "that is Zintle, my friend." she stopped to look at him. Zintle: "hey." Siya: "hi. I'm Siya." he smiled. Zintle: "its nice to meet you." Siya: "same." Me: "come this way. Uyamazi uSandile, that is F-" Sands: "Hey! You came! Come, izohlala nathi." Me: "andikagqibi um-introducer." Sands: "don't worry. He'll be fine. Come Siya. You can help me ngenyama." he pulled him outside. Waphuma noLakhe. I went to my dad and hugged him. Khaya: "Aha! My baby girl." Me: "Daddy." Khaya: "I am barely inside the house. What's wrong?" Me: "he's here." I whispered. Rob was out of range but I felt I had to whisper. Khaya: "who?" Me: "uSiyanda. Lakhe invited him." Khaya: "don't worry about uSiya. He's probably here to make friends." Me: "ok. Uphi umama?" Khaya: "she's on her way. I left first." Me: "why?" Khaya: "she was taking her time. Kuddala ndiready." Me: "tata what's really going on?" Khaya: "nothing mntanam. Rob is calling me. Go mingle." he left me there. I went to the kitchen. Zintle: "sooo....Where's Siya's so called fiance?" Me: "she isn't here." Zintle: "he's such a bad boy." Me: "inyama ikhutshiwe?" Zingi: "yes. Bellboy Sandile took it." Fez: "102 likes! Can you believe it?" she walked in. Fez: "anyway, Mr Hotpants is here!" Zingi: "who's Mr Hotpants?" Me: "Siyanda." I whispered. She was still confused. Me: "doctor gu-" she gasped. We gave each other the look. It meant disappearing together. I took the duck food ndaphuma, she followed me. At our private spot. Zingi: "what the hell!! You invited him?" Me: "Lakhe did! I tried everything I could to stop but he didn't budge." Zingi: "Lakhe knows?" Me: "Siya is our doctor. They met at our appointment." Zingi: "Spho this is bad." Me: "I will ignore him at all costs." Zingi: "please do." we went back inside the house. Before I walked in, on the other end I saw two shadows. They were standing next to the wall, talking. I tip toed closer. Siya: "but I don't understand tata why ndilapha. Why can't I just go back to joburg? There's nothing for me here, and I hate lying to her. You know how much she means to me and I don't want her hurt. Its best ndihambe." the other shadow just walked away. Why didn't it reply!! I went into the house, across the living room and scanned who was missing. Lakhe: "baby, have you seen uSiyanda?" he stood in front of me. Me: "Why?" Lakhe: "you were right. He's a great guy! We have a few stuff in common and he said he'd take me to golf next week." he was genuinely smiling from ear to ear. His dimple showing. He was so happy. Me: "there he is." Lakhe: "are you okay?" Me: "yes." Lakhe: "baby... I know ubusithi awumthembi. Kodwa he's not suspicious. He's open with everyone. Plus incredibly easy to talk to." Me: "I'm glad. I have to go get water." Lakhe: "okay." I went to the kitchen ndayozigalelela amanzi. Me: "I think I have a bit of a headache. I'm going to sit for a while." Zingi: "okay babe." I walked to the lounge ndahlala phantsi kwi couch. Maybe Rob was Siya's dad. Which meant that Siya is Lakhe's older brother? It didn't make sense though. But it did. Robert had Vuyiseka with uDubs, meaning he is able to have kids. What if.....he had Siya before he got married. Siya never mentioned his dad. Only his mom and sister. Sibu: "Uright?" he was standing next to me. Me: "I'm fine." I was not in the mood for him ke namhlanje. Sibu: "you don't look fine." Me: "who told you about me?" he looked surprised. He was not expecting it. Sibu: "Why is that important?" Me: "it is." Sibu: "its not." Me: "K." he kept quiet for a couple of minutes. Sibu: "ngu Simphiwe." Me: "whaat!" Sibu: "he didn't want to say anything. I forced it out of him." Me: "Why!" Sibu: "because he knows everything about you." Me: "you could've asked me." Sibu: "and you would've told me?" Me: "you didn't have to drag him in this." Sibu: "who's that guy?" I looked outside. Me: "ngu Siyanda. Masilakhe's new best friend." Sibu: "and apparently your dad's too." Me: "he doesn't even know my dad. I didn't introduce them." Sibú: "they seem pretty close to me. Whatever they're talking about.....its big." Me: "There's no such thing. They're both doctors so...." I can't even explain it. I looked at them closely. Siyanda looked very frustrated but his mouth was shut. Kuthetha utatam yedwa. What was happening here? Me: "Lakhe..." he was passing by. Lakhe: "hm?" Me: "what's happening there?" Lakhe: "where?" Me: "my dad." Lakhe: "he's talking to uSiya. What are they talking about?" Me: "I am literally in the same space as you are. I know what you know." Sibú: "seems cozy." Lakhe: "abazani nje....ohhh wait, now I got it. Siyanda said that when he was an intern doctor, he was under the guidance of a man that shaped his life the best way possible. It must be Khaya!" I sighed in relief. Me: "when did he tell you this?" Lakhe: "about 30 minutes ago." Me: "you're already that deep?" Lakhe: "I invited uBabaló babe. Is that okay?" I avoided rolling my eyes. Me: "okay." he got up waphuma. Sibú: "do you really believe that?" Me: "ngeyip-" Mama: "Spho..." Me: "hi mama...." she looked outside. Mama: "Oh Nkosi yam. Is that Siyanda?" she rushed out to him. Mama: "my baby boy!!" she hugged him. Khaya: "Zama!" Mama: "what?" he just stared at her. Siya: "hello ma." I was astounded. What. The. Fuck. Is. Going. On!

My baby was being restless today. I was a little crampy and the last thing I wanted was to go stress myself ngabaya abantu. I don't care anymore. I just don't. Sibú: "I did not see that one coming. Two brothers. How lucky are you?" I just got up ndayongena eroomin yam. I did breathing exercises like Babsi suggested in her email. I know what would calm my little apple down. A Chocolate milkshake. I had to go get it. I walked out of the house to my car. Babaló: "Spho? Uyaphi?" Me: "I'm going to get a milkshake." Babaló: "I can get it for you, I don't mind." Me: "No, I need the fresh air. And a silent drive. Thanks though." Babaló: "I hear you. Okay." I got into my car and drove away. After getting my milkshake, I went to sit under my tree. Sooner or later I'd have to go back to that house but I had to enjoy my thing first. A navy blue BMW parked next to my car. I could see from where I was sitting. Siyanda came out the car. I wish I could dig a grave and climb in it ndiphinde ndizigqumelele. How did he find me. Why u-Satan ethanda ukundihlupha? Zingi would never have told him. Ever. Siya: "hey." Me: "how did you find me?" Siya: "this is where we" he sighed. Siya: "I was working with utatakho, when I started as a doctor. I switched my specialty later yena wakwi psychology. We still spent time together. You then came to the hospital, some odd years ago. Your father ezobuyela eCuba. We first met then." I was confused but decided to hear him out. Siya: "we spent time together for a while. We had our first date here. Our first kiss. It was under this tree. Then I got an offer to work in joburg. You encouraged me to take it saying You'd join me after ugqibile ngeskolo. I took the job.....and then we crashed. We didn't find time for each other, I was always busy, you had to study, so we called things off. Then you moved on..." Me: "Why did you then approach me as a stranger ufuna ukuba yi friend yam? How did you know I was in East London?" Siya: "Your dad contacted me a few months ago endixelesa about your accident. The day before he arrived. He also told me I had to come back here. That you needed me. This was before he found out about Lakhe and you." Me: "and East London?" Siya: "uthe mandidibane naye pha. He was the person I was waiting for when I met you. I just lost control ukubona kwam, I didn't know what to say." Me: "so he brought you here.....because?" Siya: "I think you should ask him that yourself. I don't want to cause any problems and I'm trying to distance myself but he knows me too well. He knows that I've always loved you but I'm just not a destroyer. You're happy with uLakhe. I just thought you deserved to know the truth." Me: "Siyanda, you took over Paul's office as well..." Siya: "that was not my intention, I honestly had no idea you were his patient. If it makes you uncomfortable, I'll find you another doctor." Me: "I thought my father liked uMasilakhe nje." Siya: "I don't think he likes him at all." Me: "but...." the dream!! Me: "Siyanda!" Siya: "what?" Me: "nothing. I'm just processing." The dream I had about him. Is similar to this story. This is fucking crazy. Are you trying to tell me that dream wasn't a dream but a memory? How did I not recognize him? Well I couldn't recognize uSimphiwe at first either.... Worse ke yena he was very recent. Me: "I'm sorry." I could not breath. My heart was doing the dance again. Siya: "its fine. Look I understand." Me: "You lived in joburg?" Siya: "yes." Me: "Uphi yena umamakho." Siya: "they came to live with me in joburg when I moved all those years ago." Me: "Siyanda, you left your family, your work, your friends.....to come back here? For me?" he looked at his hands. Siya: "I have to go..." Me: "stop running. Thetha inyani." Siya: "Yes. Sphosenkosi. I did that. I guess I should've first done my research." Me: "I'm sorry." Siya: "its fine." Me: "what about uBabsi?" Siya: "she left me. It was not working out." Me: "Siya I'm sorry." Siya: "its not your fault Spho. Honestly." Yeah. It was my father's fault. How could he do this to umntana wabantu? Siya: "your husband is probably worried, go home Spho." Me: "I don't want to go home" he looked at me. Siya: "why not?" Me: "I don't like being lied to. I vented to my dad, and he pretended he didn't even know you." Siya: "utatakho uyak'thanda Spho. He will do anything to protect you." Me: "as for pretending to accept my marriage? Participating? Knowing fully well akafuni? It would've been much better, had he been honest." Siya: "maybe if you talk to him. He will be." Me: "maybe I will." Siya: "what are you drinking?" Me: "whiskey." Siya: "what!!!" Me: "I'm kidding. Its milkshake." Siya: "sugeza wena. Let me taste." I gave him a sip. Me: "it makes the baby happy." Siya: "so you're gonna be pumping out chocolate breast milk?" I laughed. Me: "awuphilanga ke." I put down the large cup. Me: "So.....will you be going back?" Siya: "I haven't decided yet. A lot waits for me back in Joburg. But a lot isn't that important anymore. I can't remember a time I was this content." Me: "I know. I just don't want you to hold on when there's nothing I can offer you." Siya: "I understand that." Me: "friends?" Siya: "yeah. Friends." Me: "so on Monday I'm starting prenatal yoga classes." Siya: "really?" Me: "yeah. I'm scared though." Siya: "There's nothing to be scared of. It'll be good for you and the baby to stretch out a bit." Me: "what are you scared of?" Siya: "from the top of my head? Knives." Me: "why?" Siya: "the thought of something being able to tear through my skin terrifies me." Me: "kodwa ungu gqirha? Hayi Siyanda." Siya: "I panic easily when it comes to imela. Shoot me instead. I think it comes from the fear that sekhe ndarajwa ngemela and this guy was threatening to tear my face. I couldn't risk my face for nothing." I laughed. Siya: "uyathanda undihleka ke. Wena woyika ntoni ?" Me: "cows." he laughed hysterically. Me: "its not that funny." Siya: "inkomo? Etya ingca? What could it possibly do to you?" Me: "the same as you, I have an experience nam. I was chased by inkomo. It was black, and crazy and it had big horns." he couldn't stop laughing. Me: "it really cannot be that funny." Siya: "wathini wena while it chased you?" Me: "I screamed obviously. Ndatsiba ithango lase khaya quickly because gate ibitixiwe and I tore my pajama pant, esi sonka bendiyosithenga flew in the air too sawa phantsi then amahobe la athanda Uhlala kwi electric fence flocked down in hundreds to peck the bread. I thought I was gonna die." he couldn't breath ehleka. Me: "what is so funny!" Siya: "this is the funniest thing I've everrrr heard in my life. I swear." he wiped his tears. Me: "mxim. Andiphinde ndiku balisele niks ke mna." Siya: "uxolo ke andiphinde ndihleke." Me: "but besides knives, what are you afraid of?" Siya: "I haven't established that. I love spiders. I used to collect them ndisemncinci. I had a snake pet when I was in high school. I adored bugs." Me: "a snake?" Siya: "yes I had a ball python. His name was Rory Black." Me: "you know that a snake is a reptile right?" Siya: "its actually a very sweet pet to have. If I had time now, I would probably get another." Me: "you ought to stay away from me with your Rory Black vhaa. Why can't you get a dog?" Siya: "everyone has a dog." Me: "Yeah! Because nobody takes walks with a snake!" Siya: "I'm just not a dog person." Me: "what did you do with Rory?" Siya: "I had to give him away. My mom hated him, he was all over the house. And he shed skin like foil." Me: "oh that is just disgusting." Siya: "let me guess, you had a dog?" Me: "I did, his name was Mr Giggles." Siya: "That is cute, leya isendlinakho yeyaka bani?" Me: "that's Sandile's Boogie. Lakhe got it for him on his birthday." Siya:

"ba-close ne." Me: "yeah kakhulu." Siya: "how are you feeling now?" Me: "I'm okay. Bendine cramps earlier on but now I'm fine." Siya: "what kind of cramps?" Me: "just light cramps. Its over now. Don't worry." Siya: "that's easier said than done. I don't want anything to happen to you or the baby. If at any stage you feel uncomfortable or something feels wrong, tell me immediately." Me: "okay Dr Yaya. I will do so." Siya: "its time for you to go home now. I'm sure Lakhe is worried. Come." Me: "you're right. Pull me up." Siya: "you're not that big. Subane drama sisi." I got up, laughing. Me: "you're coming with?" Siya: "No, I have to fetch umama at the airport, she's visiting for this week." Me: "have I met her before?" Siya: "Yep." Me: "so she knows who I am?" Siya: "Yeah." Me: "okay. Ndoyika nothi ithi ndithe hi, the situation we're in is not really ideal." Siya: "okay then." we walked to our cars. Siya: "I'll see you when I see you vha." Me: "goodbye Siya." I waved and climbed into my car. I drove to my house with a lot of questions in my mind. Questions I had no answers to. Funny enough, these questions could only be answered by me. Why was my brain doing this to me?

I arrived at home and got out my car, taking a slow walk to the door. Everyone was inside the lounge laughing and having a drink. My father ehleli nomama bezincokolela very cozily. Which confused me a bit. Weren't they fighting. Oh Nkosi yam. Thank you for not giving me enough strength to be bothered. Outside Lakhe was with uBabalo and Sibub, kuseliwe kumnandi with some guy I don't know. They didn't even realize I was missing. I can't lie, I was expecting worried faces manyani but again, sweetie you're not that important. I went to the kitchen with a smile on my face. Everyone else was having fun- Zingi: "Where the hell have you been!!" I got such a fright. Me: "I was at the spot. For fresh air." she sighed. Zingi: "Great. I thought you'd left with doctor guy." I took out a tub of ice cream. Zingi: "what's happening to your face?" Me: "what?" I checked my reflection on the fridge. Zingi: "you can't stop smiling. Its weird." Me: "what do you mean? I always smile." Zingi: "not like that. Why you so happy?" Me: "I just am." I giggled. Me: "khandiyeke wethu Zingisa. I'm going to the mini cinema vha." Zingi: "Spho.." Me: "what!" she followed behind me. I opened the door ndangena ndahlala phantsi. Me: "what is your problem?" Zingi: "you left with doctor guy!!!" Me: "I did not. Babalo saw me leave by myself." Zingi: "doctor guy left after you!" Me: "tell me something. How did we discover our spot?" Zingi: "the tree? When we met you said it reminded you of someone special, and you wanted to share it with me, why?" Me: "nothing." Zingi: "Spho!" Me: "okay fine. Don't freak out." Zingi: "I can't promise." Me: "doctors are not my fantasy." Zingi: "I'm not following." Me: "I thought of it being my fantasy because of something I lost a long time ago." Zingi: "I don't understand." Me: "I met Siyanda, years ago. Before he told me this, I dreamt of it. He was part of my life. Then he left for joburg to go work and we lost touch." Zingi: "I've never heard you speak of him." Me: "it was before you and I met." Zingi: "so you still have feelings for him?" Me: "No." Wow Spho. You're getting good at this. Zingi: "Good, because Lakhe is a good and honest man. That's what you deserve. Not someone who'll jump at the opportunity of working far from you and leaving you behind." Me: "I encouraged him to go Zingisa. I told him I'd follow. I didn't. Don't blame him-" Zingi: "then why is he back here! To win you back? After all these years behlelele nton?" Me: "my dad. He forced him to come back." she looked confused. Zingi: "forced? Why!" Me: "because Zingi, my dad has been lying and pretending to like uLakhe. I should've known he wouldn't mysteriously just be his number 1 fan. He never liked him from the start." Zingi: "so uthini uSiyanda?" Me: "he's trying to move on. I think. I don't know." Zingi: "forget about him Spho. Focus on uMasi. All this, is messing up your perfect life. Look at all of this. This house. A filthy rich man that loves you. Uzophinda uyifumanephi lonto? Do you know how many people want to be in your position right now? Don't be stupid please." Me: "ndicela uba ndodwa." Zingi: "I'm being-" Me: "Get Out Zingisa." Zingi: "mxim." she left the room. I sat by myself. Everyone thought this was perfect. Obviously from the outside it was. I was on the bloody inside. I was the one that had to keep secrets. See dead bodies. Dig graves for money. Stupid filthy rich my ass. She didn't know what she was talking about and I wasn't even talking about letting go. What does she know about good and honest? Where has she seen that because akamazi nanjani uLakhe. Why would she assume that bullshit? Khona bubomi bukabani obu? Jesus, abanye abantu are out there to test my patience. I ate my ice cream in silence. The door opened again. Khaya: "Princess." Me: "Not now tata." Khaya: "Now actually." he sat next to me. Me: "you lied to me." Khaya: "I didn't lie." Me: "excuse me?" Khaya: "I didn't lie mntanam. You didn't ask if I knew Siya. Therefore I didn't say so, nam." Me: "are you really going to play that card tata? Why didn't you just tell me!" Khaya: "I didn't want it to sway your decision." Me: "I'm married tata!! What decision? I don't have a decision! I made a commitment!" Khaya: "My heart, I'm sorry I hurt you-" Me: "why tata? Why did you bring uSiyanda apha?" Khaya: "I thought it would be nice for you to see him." Me: "why are you always trying to pimp me out?" Khaya: "I am not pimping you out!" Me: "first it was Brandon! Now ngu Siyanda. Its like you deliberately dig people from my past to come in between mna noLakhe. Who's next? Simphiwe?" Khaya: "There's no one next Spho. I want what's best for you-" Me: "I have Lakhe." Khaya: "that's not what's best." Me: "you like him! You call him by your name!" Khaya: "Spho. There's a certain change in a man when he is in love. That change never leaves him again. Uhlala eyilandoda itshintshileyo forever. I don't see that kuLakhe. He is exactly the same as he was before he married you. You're one of his possessions, not his equal." Me: "tata. I love my husband. He loves me. I AM his equal." Khaya: "then why does he undermine you and your work? Why are you always being sidelined and left in the dark?" Me: "its his company! It has nothing to do with our relationship." Khaya: "Spho. I know what love is. Lento ukuyo, that is not love. It is the idea of love. Don't tell me you haven't seen things that you hate about him. Things that make you uncomfortable. Hm? Do you really think its just going to die down and you'll get used to those things? My love, it will only get worse." I ate my ice cream. Why couldn't he just leave me alone! Khaya: "Siyanda kudala wakuthanda, you see the way he lights up whenever he sees you. His whole being is controlled by you. How do explain someone leaving his life behind just to be with you? Spho, do you realize that he was head of that hospital in joburg? When he came here he demoted himself to start from scratch. Just to be close to you." I had tears in my eyes. Me: "that's all on you. You are the one that dragged him here. Not mna." Khaya: "I didn't have to drag him. He willingly let it all go." Me: "I'm not going to be with uSiyanda tata. I don't care how much you love him." I wiped my tears. Khaya: "I know you love him too." he got up and walked out. Me: "I don't!" I cried. Me: "I don't love him. He means nothing to me." I felt like ripping out my heart and buying a new one that I could program. All the money in the world couldn't give me that. I hated being torn apart like this. Its like I was created to suffer. Now is not the time to feel sorry for yourself. Get up girl, go to your man, and love him. Like you already do. I went to the bedroom to freshen up first then went to look for him phandle. Me: "baby." Lakhe: "hey." his friends were still here. Dumi, Sandile noSibu nowhere to be found as usual. Me: "I want to talk to you." Lakhe: "now babe?" Me: "why? U-busy?" Lakhe: "kind of, I was going somewhere in a minute." Me: "oh...okay. When you're back then." he kissed me. Lakhe: "the best wife ever. I love you babe." Me: "love you too." he and Babalo plus the other guy I didn't know left the house. I could feel my father staring at me. Lakhe bengazonga hambani netshomi zakhe. That doesn't mean he didn't have time for me. Me: "Tata." Khaya: "I didn't say anything." Me: "You didn't have to. The mere fact that you 'pretend' to like him but behind his back you're ruining his marriage? That says enough. If that were to happen to you, ubungazoyithanda." Khaya: "maybe I'd change the thing about me that isn't attractive. Anything to keep my woman." Me: "Dad. Please leave my house." Khaya: "excuse me?" Me: "Ndicela uhambe tata. And please do not come back until you respect me and my husband. I love you, kodwa I cannot take this scheming. I'm going to work hard on my marriage. So I don't need negativity and schemes behind my back." Khaya: "Mntanam, I was just doing what's best for you." Mama:

"what's happening here?" Khaya: "our daughter is throwing me out of her house." he walked out to his car. Mama: "what!! Uphambene Sphosenkosi!" Me: "he is trying to tear my marriage apart." Mama: "there is no such thing! Utatakho akacingi ayenze into enjalo!" Me: "Mama, uSiyanda? Uzokwenza ntoni apha uSiyanda?" Mama: "he came to visit. He's always been close to our family." Me: "Mama. He is my ex. It is inappropriate. I didn't know this. Utata took advantage of it. Had he respected uLakhe, he would've done everything that's anything to keep Siya from here." Most of it is your fault though. But she doesn't need to know that. Mama: "ndizothetha notatakho. Kodwa uSiyanda is a sweet young man, he will never be the one to come between you and uMasilakhe. Trust me on that. I'll talk to you later okay?" Me: "okay mama." she hugged me and left also. Fez and Zintle were still in the lounge. Robert left with my dad and mom. I walked back inside the house. Me: "Uphi uZingi?" Fez: "she went home. Unqabe phi mfazi." Me: "I'm just around. Nihluthi?" Zintle: "like the cookie monster. My tummy is so full I look like you." I laughed. Me: "Mpa tshi. Uyephi uSandile?" Fez: "to get more booze. I hope you don't mind us staying a few more hours." Me: "akho ngxaki tshomi. When I'm tired I'll go lie down." Zintle: "soooo....where did Mr hotpants go?" Me: "igamalakhe ngu Siya and he went to fetch his mom at the airport." Zintle: "undifakile pha tshomi?" Me: "what about Sibuzi?" Zintle: "please don't remind me. Uyandazi mna andingumntu wothando and he looks very vulnerable." Me: "trust me. He isn't. Girls pull each other's hair over him and akabethelwa nangu Doh ka Dorothy.." Zintle: "really?" Me: "yeah. He's just one of those chilled asses." Fez: "uyi fuck boy uSibuzi! Oh My word!" Me: "aniyivanga ngam." as if ubizwe wathi gqi umfo esiya e-kitchen. Fez and Zintle stared at him. Sibuzi: "what." Fez: "nothing." he continued walking wayongena ekitchen. Fez: "when did he become suddenly so sexy." Zintle: "I know right!" Me: "you guys are crazy." A couple of hours later, I went to bed. My back was aching again and I was sleepy. After soaking myself in the relaxing bath, I came straight to bed. Just as I was about to fall asleep, the door opened giving me one hell of a fright. Lakhe: "hey baby." he whispered. Me: "hey." he undressed and got into bed. Lakhe: "so today was great. Siya is a cool guy. He left early, ebeyolanda umamakhe at the airport." Me: "okay. I'm glad you had fun." Lakhe: "so...you and your dad? Ni-right?" Me: "We're fine." should I tell him what happened? He is my husband after all and deserves to know. Also, my dad is still very much loved by me. I don't want to cause vibes. Lakhe: "really? He just sent me a text esithi umgxothile apha." Me: "He did. Didn't he." Lakhe: "what?" how do you tell your husband that your dad is pretending him without hurting his feelings? Lakhe loves him to bits, he even said its the relationship he never had with his dad. Kodwa utata uyenza njani into enje? Me: "I just don't think you should be investing so much into this relationship with my dad." Lakhe: "he's my father in law. Why would I not want to invest in a relationship with him?" This is hard. Me: "My dad does not like you. He tolerates you because akana choice." Lakhe: "that's good enough for me. At least he isn't hostile and unresponsive." Oh God please help. Me: "I don't want you to be uncomfortable and I don't want to hide anything from you. You know I hate secrets." Lakhe: "I know." Me: "I just discovered today that uSiyanda is my ex from long ago. I didn't know that. My father and him happen to be extremely close. Like father and son. That's why I don't want you to have high hopes for my dad." Lakhe: "I know. Baby, do not worry yourself. I spoke to your dad and yes, he has reservations and doubts but I assured him we'll be okay. Siyanda isn't here for you." he giggled. Me: "I'm glad You find it funny." Lakhe: "come on baby. I know I haven't been paying attention to you lately and you feel a bit neglected. There's no need. You're beautiful and I still love you." Hesana. How did my dad pull this off? How did he convince uLakhe to be sooo calm? Ohh.....He knew I was going to tell him so he did it first. Oh Dad. You have climbed new levels of scheming. It was actually quite scary, I was shivering at this precise minute. All I could think of was, what the hell was he planning to do next?

One week before Christmas. Seemingly everything was back to normal. The past few weeks had been.....well, okay. Apart from two days ago. This is when Masilakhe went mute. I cannot make this up. He literally never said a thing for the past two days. I've decided to just let him be. I had the Christmas dinner to organize and the presents to collect anyway. My tummy was really visible now. I was big. I felt big. With only 18 weeks which is almost 5 months. I don't know what's going with utata walomntana shame and his withdrawal symptoms. I was waking up and feeling a bit hazy. As usual, Lakhe was on his phone. Staring at it like it was about to explode. So I proceeded to struggle up to a sitting position then pulled myself up and paddled like a penguin to the bathroom. I hadn't heard from Siya since the braai and I was actually feeling much better about that than I thought I would. After the bathroom stop, teeth, toilet, shower. I was back in the closet. Lakhe: "I'm leaving for Japan tomorrow." I thought I heard the TV or something so I didn't respond. Then for a few seconds it was dead quiet. Me: "did you say something?" ndakroba out the door. Lakhe: "I'm going to Japan." my mouth was dry. Lakhe: "Bill Sullivan asked for me." Me: "Who is Bill?" Lakhe: "Tokyo guy." he got up and walked out. I felt like screaming. What the hell was going on!! Me:

"Masilakhe!!!" I couldn't exactly follow him since I wasn't even dressed. I slipped on pajamas and then followed by the time I got to the lounge the car was pulling out the driveway. Me: "Breath in. Breath Out." Sands: "why are we breathing?" I got a short fright and turned to look at him. Me: "Get Out Of My Face." Sands: "sorry." I stomped to the bedroom. When I sat down on the bed I tried to recall from the day before he went quiet. Every conversation. Every touch. I hadn't done anything wrong. Why was he so mad at me that he didn't even want to spend Christmas here? Ndenzeni mna? Sands: "Spho!" he knocked on my door. Me: "Go Away Sandile. I do not want to talk!" Sands: "Its good for the baby.....as long as you don't hit me. Let me in." Me: "I don't want to let you in!" Sands: "I'm coming in anyway." Sibuy: "khome Sandile. Move aside. Spho?" Me: "Go Away!!!" Sibuy: "in 3...one, two-" Sands: "I'm not waiting for that." he opened the door. I picked up my laptop. Sands: "Okay, firstly, besides that thing being expensive, It has your work and you love it so much. Please don't hurt me." he pushed Sibuy in front of him. Me: "I'm checking my emails." Sibuy: "what's happening? We feel a vibe in the house. Its been different." Me: "who's been different?" Sands: "I didn't say anything." Sibuy: "You. You're different. You're moody. You throw things at Sandile and me. Only Dumi is safe in this house. Even uNosi has decided to go to East London. Something is happening." Me: "Nosi is on a road trip with her friends. She'll be back tomorrow. We text." Sandile checked his phone. Me: "and me being moody, in case you haven't noticed, I have someone inside me who is constantly angry and kicking me. I don't sleep anymore. Oh no. I only take 20 minutes naps at a time and pee 50 times a day. And you know that saying, that says 'you're grinding my nipples'. You know what it means? You're irritated to the point of physical pain. But the difference is, I FEEL that physical pain. There is a lot more, waaay more that I could lay out for you right now, but I'm already tired!!! And throwing things? What do you expect? When you treat me like I'm crazy. You push food toward me like I'm some zoo animal waiting to attack, which I will if you don't get the fuck out of my room in the next 3 seconds." Sands: "can I call Siya to-" Me: "2.....1." he jumped out the room. Sibuy stood still and stared at me. Me: "ungandi test Sibulele." Sibuy: "You can fight me all you like. As long as you just tell me What's bothering you?" Sands: "can I come back in?" Sibuy: "you chose your team. Stay out!" Me: "Lakhe isn't talking to me. I don't know what I did to him maybe its because I'm acting crazy and he's tired of me." Sibuy: "if its any consolation, he's never here when you act crazy." Me: "so now I'm crazy!?" Sibuy: "your words not mine." the tears were coming. They were starting in my nose. That tingly feeling. Me: "he hates me. He makes excuses about work. Now he's leaving tomorrow for Japan!" Sibuy: "he doesn't hate you." Me: "he's leaving before Christmas. Clearly he isn't going to be here ON Christmas." Sands: "maybe you're coming with him?" Me: "he used the word 'Im' and referred to Bill wanting to see 'him'. Again, business." Sands: "oohhh....." Me: "Get in here. What are you oh'ing about?" he stood by the door. Me: "did he say something?" Sands: "uzandibetha kqala?" Me: "No." Sands: "Lakhe doesn't celebrate Christmas." Me: "that's ridiculous. He was planning on taking me to Italy." Sands: "for a honeymoon. Not Christmas. He was trying to get away from all this. The planning. The days leading up to the actual day." Me: "Are you telling me You've never celebrated Christmas kokwenu?" Sands: "well, we have.....but without him." Me: "Why." Sands: "I don't know. Only dad knows. He never told me." Me: "and where is dad?" Sands: "urrgh... With Smelly Ryan. I don't know if its old age but utata reeaaally needs to get his nose checked. They're in the study. You want me to break up their meeting?" Me: "No. I'll try talk to Lakhe kwakhona." Sands: "you're not gonna get it out of him. Trust me." Me: "ndithini ke?" Sibu: "I say ask utata uRob. He likes you. He'll tell you, kakade mos you're Lakhe's wife now. You have the right to know." Me: "I still can't keep him from going to Japan tomorrow." Sibu: "Go for a check up today and follow him to Japan tomorrow. As a surprise. Its romantic." Sands: "I'll call Siya." Me: "Leave uSiyanda Alone. I have another doctor. Her name is Babalwa." Sands: "aww... I thought ngu Siyanda. We had fun the last time. He's so cool." Me: "I'm going to book now. I'll see you guys later." Sands: "can I come with you? I want to see the baby." he smiled. Me: "No Sandile. I'll bring you a picture." he squealed and danced out the room. Me: "let me get dressed." Sibu: "okay." he closed the door behind him uphuma kwakhe. I went to my closet to go get dressed, calling Babsie to squeeze me in.

I got to the hospital in a little under an hour thanks to Lakhe's mean Audi RS machine, he'd taken my big car for some odd reason. Also, I had to change twice. I was running out of clothes. Actually, I ran out of them 2 weeks ago. I was down to my last maxi dress which means I have to buy maternity clothing. With directions from a nurse, I found Babsie's office and knocked on the door. Babsie: "come in." I walked in. Me: "heyyy." my breath got stuck in my throat when I saw him. Me: "Tata." Yes, my father. Was sitting on the far couch, with one long leg crossed over the other with both hands on his lap. Khaya: "My beautiful daughter. You look so-" Me: "No tata. Uzothini apha? Are you stalking me?" Khaya: "well... I came for a cup of tea, since I also work here." Me: "and I have an appointment." Khaya: "Unjani Spho? You know how I miss you. Especially ngoku ndingasakwazi ukuza kwakho. Can we at least talk?" My father knew me too well. If I said one more word. He would know something was up. Me: "ndingxamise yazi tata. I want to do a quick check up on the baby. Lakhe and I have a surprise trip to Japan." his face remained the same. Smiling and kind. Khaya: "that is beautiful, my child. I wish you a safe trip." I smiled. Babs: "let's get you up on that bed and check you then." I sat on the bed. Me: "how do you know my dad?" Khaya: "ba-" Me: "ndibuza yena tata." Babsi: "your dad is Siyanda's fan. He came to ask for my forgiveness on his behalf and is exploiting my kindness." Khaya: "Kodwa Babsi. He loves you." she applied the gel on my tummy. Babsi: "its just too complicated. I'm 44, he's a baby. I can't be playing the happy family card anymore. I've understood and accepted that." Me: "he's only 41 nje." Khaya: "what?" Me: "he said..." Babsi chuckled. Me: "guys sanubanje." Babsi: "he's always been a bit secretive about his age kuba engafuni ujongwa funny that he's dating an older woman. Sekhe wabizwa as uBen 10 and he hates it." Me: "Wow. So how old is he then?" she stared at the screen. My dad looked at the screen too, which caused me to look at the screen. The heart was beating. But what was wrong? Khaya: "what is it?" Babalwa looked at me. Babsi: "do you see this bright spot?" Me: "yes." Babsi: "its called an echogenic focus. On the heart of the baby." Me: "is that bad?" Of course its bad!!!! Its affecting the heart! Babsi: "at the moment, No." Me: "but?" Babsi: "an echogenic focus can be a marker of chromosomal abnormalities in the fetus." I swallowed. Babsi: "it could also be nothing. A Normal variant. Don't worry too much about it." Me: "can you tell now, if its nothing? Is there a way?" Babsi: "Not from an ultrasound." I was just stuck. Like the world has come to an abrupt standstill. I couldn't hear anything anymore. I was not anticipating this. Khaya: "Princess? You okay?" he held my hand. Me: "Yeah. how can we find out then?" Babsi: "You can do an amniocentesis. Its a common procedure. We remove and test fetal cells. Then you'll be put on bedrest for at least 48 hours. Once the risk has passed, you will be able to carry on with your daily activities." Me: "Risk? What is the risk?" Babsi: "a miscarriage." the standstill world was now shaking. It was shaking and destroying me inside. Khaya: "Spho? Breath!!" Babsi: "she's having a panic attack." Khaya: "I know that! Mntanam, Take deep breathes. In.....and out. Let's do it together." I breathed deeply. In and out. I was trying to push my mind from it. Me: "is it because I drank? Before I found out I was pregnant? I didn't know!" I cried. Babsi: "No. Its not your fault love. Do not stress. Go back home and discuss this with umnyeni. When You've reached a decision, tell me and I'll set you up with an amazing doctor who has done this many times before, successfully." Me: "why not you?" Babsi: "I'm leaving town for the next month. If you're willing to wait till then....." I held on to my father. Khaya: "its okay baby. The child will be fine. He'll be okay." he wiped my tears. Me: "you said he..." Khaya: "I hope its a he. I'd love a grandson." my heart was too heavy and I could not put it out of my head that there 'may be' something wrong with my baby. I can't just 'may be' forget about it. Babsi: "I'll be back just now." she left the room. Me: "daddy I'm panicking!" Khaya:

"Don't. Babsi is calm, she knows what she's doing. Most of the time, these echogenic focuses are nothing." Me: "what if this isn't most of the time tata. What will I do if my baby has abnormalities? How will I live with myself?" I sobbed. Khaya: "firstly, you are going to love him and take care of him. He would be your joy, his abnormalities will not define who he is, and what he means to you. It will be okay. I'll be here, all the way. I will help you any way I know how. We're going to get through this." I was silently praying inside that Babsi would walk in and tell me she was joking. That nothing was wrong. That the computer made a mistake. Maybe it was December Fools day? God, please. Please don't hurt my child. Babsi walked in with a smile on her face. I was ready to hear the good news. It was nothing right? Babsi: "so here's your scan pictures. Give me a call right away if you do decide to do the test. Okay?" I looked down. Disappointed. Me: "what happens if I don't do the test?" Babsi: "then we will find out when you give birth. If everything with your baby is fine. Get some rest Spho." I got off the bed and fixed my dress. I had ready tears but couldn't let them out. Khaya: "I'll drive you home." Me: "No Dad. Its fine." Khaya: "No, I'm driving you home. Soze ndikuyeke uhambe wedwa unje." I had so many plans that have now grinded to a halt. I wanted to go clothes shopping. I had to go to Flight centre. I had so much to do. Japan was not even an option now. I didn't want to go. I sat in the passenger seat staring at my hands while my father drove me to the house. I didn't even realize when we arrived. Khaya: "pumpkin, please promise me you will not stress about this?" Me: "I can't promise you tata. This is my baby. The only one I have. I'm scared. I got attached. I thought she was being aggressive but she's actually in pain. Daddy she's been wanting my attention and I kept blaming it on hormones. I neglected my baby tata while she cried for help." Khaya: "sweetheart, you didn't neglect the baby. Uzoba right ubhabha. Trust in God, Pray to Him as you always do. He will never desert you." I nodded. Me: "you're right. Enkosi tata. Uzongena?" Khaya: "No baby. You had a reason for putting me out of your house, I apologize kwakhona. Its fine. Uzuthi ku Sandile azolanda imoto when he's free apha kum." I got off the car with my hand bag and phone ndayongena endlini. Nobody was here. I didn't want to see anyone. I wanted to be alone with my baby. Uqgiba kwam utixa I went to the bedroom with a bowl of fruit salad and some water. I truly didn't feel like fruit. I wanted a sandwich. With melted cheese inside. And that's it. Thank God for once it didn't have to be creepily disgusting. I went to make my sandwich ndabuyela eroomini. After eating and going through work emails. I finally found the courage to take a nap. The minute I closed my eyes. The image of that screen with my baby in it and that bright spot appeared immediately in my mind. I wanted to scrape it off. So, I called utatakhe. His phone rang got voicemail. I hung up and sent a text. "We need to talk. Its urgent." Response: "in a meeting." I had to wait. I didn't want to wait though. What meeting is this? I made a call to work. Me: "Sive, get me Luyolo please." Sivu: "ok Sis' Spho. Just a minute." I waited 3 minutes. Luyolo: "Hello?" Me: "hi Luyolo. Unjani?" Luyolo: "I'm great thank you. Wena Unjani?" Me: "I'm perfect. Are you with uLakhe in a meeting?" Luyolo: "No. He said he won't be working today so I must carry on with Keith today and ngomso. Then we close for Christmas and New year." Me: "Oooh! I think I've started with forgetful syndrome. Now I remember where I misplaced him." he chuckled Luyolo: "okay sisi. Goodbye." I hung up. I had lied. Again. I hated embarrassment and speculating eyes. Why did I call in the first place? What meeting is this where he doesn't need Luyolo? And he isn't working- OH. Now its clear. He promised weeks ago, he would shut it down. WOW. I was still in panic mode. And wanting to cry but I didn't want to cry alone. I wanted my husband to hold me and tell me kuzolunga and kiss my head. I needed that right Now. The day seemed like a sloth making its way across a yard. Slow.... Endless....without much hope but just moving forward.

It was dark in the bedroom when I woke up after my nap. The sun had set. I haven't made dinner! I jumped out of bed and slipped on slippers making my way to the kitchen. Sibu was sitting on the counter while Sandile stirred the pot. Sibu: "hi usandofika?" Sands: "hey love bird. How did it go?" Me: "my dad says, uzuyolanda imoto when you're free. He brought me home." Sibu: "Why?" he got off the counter. I blinked the tears away. There was no use crying now. Sands: "Spho, what happened?" Me: "the doctor says my baby's heart has something called an echogenic focus." Sands: "what the hell is that?" and so I explained to them. Sibu: "but...the doctor says its okay. Nothing to worry about. So There's no need to stress. Right?" Me: "yes. I'm just hella sleepy. Bendizobeka ezizitya and start dinner but you have that handled. So.." Sands: "Spho. The baby is okay. Don't worry." Me: "yeah. I know." I knew now because the baby kicked just once. Something so indescribably amazing happened in my heart. Some type of reassurance that we'll be fine. Whatever the circumstance. I'll do whatever it took. Me: "I'll be in my room." Sands: "I'll bring your supper." Me: "enkosi Sands." I went to my bedroom, curling up in bed and opened my laptop. I knew this would be a problem but I wanted to know. I am crazy over Google. I had to know what these echogenic things did. I knew I wouldn't like what I found but like a determined girlfriend certain on getting her FBI badge, I persevered in search. Lakhe walked in the room. My heart jumped. I wasn't expecting him. I don't know why considering that this is his house and bedroom. He took off his shoes and belt. Me: "hey." Lakhe: "hey." Me: "how was your day?" Lakhe:

"good. Yours." Me: "what did you do?" Lakhe: "I was in meetings all day. I told you." Me: "did I do something wrong? To you." Lakhe: "No." Me: "then why are you acting so cold toward me all of a sudden." Lakhe: "I'm not cold. I'm just busy." Me: "with what? You barely talk to me now." Lakhe: "I'm talking to you right now though." Me: "Lakhe what about the other days?" Lakhe: "Spho. Honestly, life isn't going to be rosy everyday. I work. I get hectic busy around this time of the year and I'm stressed. Our financial year ends next month, you have all these requests for me, what I must do, what I must not and I have a trial coming up as well. I am not Superman." Me: "All I ask for, is communication. When you're stressed, where There's a problem, when yo-" Lakhe: "every aspect of my life must be run through you first before I can get to it? Spho, come on. You get to do as you please whenever you please. Why funeke ube hands on nakobam ubomi?" Me: "I just want to make sure you're okay." Lakhe: "I don't have to say I'm not. You can literally see that when I walk in. I don't want to be disturbed or questioned. You know this. We have been through this before. Could you just let me process my shit please?" I had something to tell him. Well, we all know that. At least I've stopped crying every 2 minutes. Lakhe: "I don't need any more problems or disruptions to my life. I cannot take it. Please give me some space." he went into the bathroom before I could respond. I don't know what that meant. He was exhausted, yes. This was his baby too, why should I have to worry alone? Especially for this big decision. Should we do the test? Rather we know now than later? Me: "Lakhe." Lakhe: "did you not hear what I just said?" I could feel my tears coming back. I was so torn. I didn't know what to do. Tell him anyway and risk him exploding and disappearing off to Japan for weeks. Or keeping quiet and risking my baby's life in the long run. He would hate me if something were to happen to his baby and I had the knowledge to prevent it way before. Me: "its about the baby." he stood at the bathroom door and looked at me. There was a cold, dark, acrimonious look on his face. His eyes in dark holes and his mouth a hard line. It was evident. I had struck a nerve. Lakhe: "I'm leaving." Me: "I'm sorry. I won't say another word. I promise." maybe I could wait a few days. A week. His well-being was also important. Lakhe: "No. Ndihamba ngoku." Me: "you don't have to. I'll go to the spare roo-" Lakhe: "I said...." there was a strong pause, not only did it scare me but I did not want to question it or him. He wore his shoes, took his keys and walked out. I had pushed too hard. Thinking that maybe he would be open to talking. I don't know what it was, but I had nothing to do with it. I just added on a few minutes ago. Other than that. Something incredulously painful hung on him. Sinister. Dark. It made him angry and hostile. What in the world could have happened in the past few days? Was it about my dad? Is that why my dad khange afune ungena? Well, besides me banning him and all. Then whaaat! Only one person could answer my question.

I woke up on Tuesday morning. I could smell Lakhe's cologne which meant he was here. I got out of bed and looked in the closet. Nobody. His suitcase was missing, meaning he was already gone. I went to make my bed ndaye bathroom. Once I finished showering I went to find a jean and one of my baggy vests ndanxiba and my white sneakers. I tied my weave back ndayongena e-kitchen. I needed to eat something badly. Bendilambe ndisifa and the baby was just as hungry, I could feel it in the kicks. I started with drinking water then made myself Oats. Sibulele came in. Sibulele: "Hey.. Uziva njani?" Me: "I'm okay." Sibulele: "you sure?" Me: "yeah." Sibulele: "come on, Spho. Its me." Me: "Lakhe is acting very strange. He was so pissed off izolo. I didn't even get a chance to talk to him. Now he's left for Japan." Sibulele: "so uzothini?" Me: "I don't know." Sibulele: "Do the test. Sikhona nje thina." Me: "and if I have a miscarriage? What then? I don't want that to happen Sibulele. Noba ke umntana ubanayo abnormality, There's nothing they can do for. So what's the point of putting her at risk?" Sibulele: "as long as you don't stress about it." Me: "I won't. I have a prenatal class today, I also have to go Christmas shopping. I'll see you later." Sibulele: "awukagqibi ukutya." Me: "I want McDonald's." Sibulele: "you're gonna have to finish that porridge first." I sat down and ate. Sibulele: "my mom," I stared at him like a predator. Sibulele: "the woman that raised me, she wants me over for Christmas. Come with me." Me: "to Durban?" Sibulele: "yeah. Its nice and sunny. Great tourist places. You can relax." Me: "Christmas without my parents? Yuh. Especially now that my dad is back. I haven't spent it with him for years." Sibulele: "that's true. If you change your mind the offer stands." Me: "okay. Can I go now? Ndigqibile." Sibulele: "Go." I took my bag and keys then left the house. I drove to the mall to pick up presents and get a few dresses for me and my big tummy. Christmas was on Friday and I had planned a very nice social dinner. I drove to my mother's house to surprise her. Or maybe also to ask for advice. I parked my car and went to the door. Me: "mama!" I knocked. The door was locked. Me: "mom!" Mama: "coming baby!!" I waited for a minute. Me: "I kind of need to pee badly." she opened the door. Me: "what was taking so long?" Mama: "bendivasa mntanam." Khaya: "hi sweetheart." I was confused now. Ndajonga ku mama. Mama: "utatakho uyabulisa." Me: "hi dad..... Since we're all standing here. Answer me this, the two of you for the past few weeks have been acting weird. What is up?" Khaya: "nothing." Me: "mama?" Mama: "everything has been great." Me: "so if ubuvasa, just now. Tata busenza nton?" he looked at me. Khaya: "I was in the toilet." Me: "both of you in the same toilet at the same time?" Khaya: "yes. Do you want some tea?" Me: "not from you thanks. I'll make it." I switched on the kettle. Khaya: "Uphi uLakhe? Did you cancel your trip?" Oh yeah... That. Me: "I don't want to go. I don't feel well." Khaya: "so yena Uphi? He left you?" Me: "he has business to take care of." Khaya: "of course he does." Mama: "Khaya, leave it alone." Khaya: "honestly?" Mama: "why don't you give him a chance-" Khaya: "He won't change now. Its too late." Me: "how do you kno-" Khaya: "because I was once him Spho! I have to go." he took his keys and left. Me: "Mama? And please don't lie to me." I poured the water into cups and put tea bags inside. 2 and a half sugars for mom. Just 2 for me. No milk. We sat down. Mama: "we are constantly trying to work on our marriage." Me: "why? You guys are perfect-" Mama: "No honey. We're not. We've never been. When we had you, it was amazing. Everything was great. Then wahamba wena wayofunda wazihlalela, the cracks started showing again. The truth is, mna notatakho are best xasidibene ngawe. He prefers to be absorbed into his work, if he's not fussing over you." Me: "Lakhe akakhonjalo nje. We bonded way before I got pregnant." Mama: "mntanam. Utatakho is only looking out for wena. You don't have to take his advice all the time. You're grown, you're allowed to make mistakes." Me: "My marriage isn't a mistake mama." Mama: "its not. Its a blessing and you have to treat it as such. Why did uLakhe leave without you?" Me: "I don't know. He's got a lot on his mind. He needed space." Mama: "away from his wife?" Me: "that's what he said. He just needed space." Mama: "what did you do?" Me: "nothing ma. He just switched up over night. He's not even gonna be here on Christmas." Mama: "haibo Spho! How do you let that happen? Its your first Christmas together!" Me: "he doesn't celebrate Christmas mama." Mama: "why? He's not Christian?" I don't even know actually. I don't even know my husband's religion! That made me panic. Me: "he just doesn't. Sibu is also leaving for Durban. He wanted me to go with him." Mama: "I don't know honey. Leaving umzi wakho when your husband isn't there either is not a good idea." Me: "he left me. Ndithini ke?" Mama: "awuyo nkedama Sphosenkosi. You can have Christmas here with me and your father. It will be much better with you around." Me: "why are you smiling like that?" Mama: "if you can also perhaps stay the night." Me: "Why?" Mama: "it would be nice waking up to your flap jacks and syrup." Me: "I'm not sure if I'm hearing you correctly ma, you're saying things, that mean something else. You want me to come here, so that utata can feel closer to you and then stay the night.....and make you breakfast in the morning. So ndiyi housekeeper mna mama?" she laughed. Me: "wow." Mama: "just one night." Me: "why don't you guys come to our house? I don't want to abandon family ka Lakhe. They didn't do anything wrong. Plus they're looking forward to the dinner." she shook her head. Mama: "we love the Sobukwe family. We've been spending a lot of time with them. We just want a cozy little Christmas. My little family." Me: "ndithini ke kubo?" Mama: "well, they'll be fine. Ithi andiphilanga and you have to take care of me." Me: "Oh mama." Mama: "pretty please?" Me: "I'll have to divide myself. Maybe move dinner to lunch then ndize ngapha late. I can't just abandon them on Christmas. I'm their daughter in law." Mama: "thank you my angel. I'll cook your favorite." Me: "ndatsho ndalamba. Oh and I need the toilet." I got up ndayochama, flushed, washed my hands and went to look through the fridge. Mama: "those are for Christmas." Me: "mandifownele McDonald's ke mos. I also have a prenatal class in 2 hours, uyafuna uhamba nam?" Mama: "definitely." I made a call to McDonald's and ordered my meal and waited patiently on the couch.

The day before Christmas. I was feeling sooo rejuvenated. So happy. Super excited for tomorrow. After a mid morning swimming exercise, I went to shower and get dressed. I would make a great sandwich for myself ndihlale ndizimamele for a few hours, then start on the salads later. Then take Nosi out for a movie. After making my sandwich, I sat on the couch. My phone rang. My heart stopped for a second then raced faster. Masilakhe. I haven't heard from him in days. Me: "Hi." I decided to answer. Lakhe: "hello." now what? The baby kept nudging me inside. Lakhe: "how's my little pumpkin doing?" Me: "she's kicking me crazy." Lakhe: "u-excite'wa ngu tatakhe?" Me: "probably." Lakhe: "I'm about to have dinner. Haven't eaten all day. I'm fired kodwa ndilambile." Me: "Oh okay." Lakhe: "I'm sorry about the other day. I was really frustrated. I can't even excuse myself. I feel bad." Me: "its fine." Lakhe: "ndizobuya next week. Wednesday. I'll make it up to you." Me: "Alright." Lakhe: "okay then. I love you. I have to go." Me: "love you too." I hung up. I was not going to let him ruin this happy day for me. I ate my food quietly ndibukele TV. Dumi came to join me. Sibuy was on his way out. Me: "uhambe kakuhle vha." Sibuy: "thank you. I'll call you ufika kwam." Me: "okay." Dumi: "bye." Sibuy: "ungasokolisi uSpho wena. My cab's here. Bye." he left the house. Me: "Uphi uSandile?" Dumi: "I haven't seen him all day." Me: "Nosi yena?" she's probably still sleeping. Uyamazani lamntana she sleeps all day long." Me: "utata yena Uphi?" Dumi: "I'm not sure. Haven't seen him either. Maybe uhambe noSandile." Me: "I hope you'll help me start with tomorrow's meals." Dumi: "I wish I could.... Zingi and I have decided to have a family Christmas. With the kids away. Just us two." Me: "Oh? That's amazing Dumi. I'm so happy for you guys." Dumi: "well. Its weird because.....well, we're not back together." Me: "why?" Dumi: "its embarrassing." Me: "come on. We're best friends. Tell me."

Dumi: "well, it so happens that.....I can get up." Me: "you can walk!!!?? That is amazing!" Dumi: "No! It.....can get up." Me: "OH....that is even better." Dumi: "you're sick. Anyway. It happened after our therapy session from last week... She was helping me get in the car. I told her I can handle it. Which I can by the way. She insisted....and had her boobs in my face. So ...yeah." Me: "I'm still happy for you. So you're setting aside Jesus' birthday, to rekindle your sexual desires." Dumi: "You've just ruined it." Me: "I'm kidding. We all know Jesus wasn't born on the 25th of December. Its technically just a holiday to Celebrate his birth." Dumi: "please don't make me mad. You know that gets me crazy. Jesus was born on the 25th. End of story." Me: "Not end of story.."

Dumi: "whatever. Anyway...that's happening." Me: "I wish you the best. And I hope someday, you guys can work through your differences." Dumi: "I'm taking it one step at a time. Plus she's carrying my third baby." Me: "that's great Dumz." Dumi: "Unjani ubhabha omncinci. Is she kicking?" Me: "like every 2 seconds. Akalali lomntana." Dumi: "maybe uzophuma kuwe ediniwe afune ulala oko." I giggled. That would be really sweet. Nosi: "guys." Me: "hey you. Ndicimba usalele." Nosi: "no.....so...uhm....I have something I need you to be open minded about." Me: "You're dating a girl?" Dumi: "why would that even be your first guess?" Me: "you heard her say open minded. I wouldn't mind you dating a girl, as long as she has manners and she's clean. You won't have to worry about pregnancy and other things." Nosi: "okay, that's not it. I'm not lesbian." Dumi: "then yintoni ingxaki?" the gate buzzed. She went to press to open it. Me: "Nosi?" Nosi: "well.....uhm..." Dumi: "umithi?" Nosi: "No!" Me: "your boyfriend is coming over for Christmas? Did you ask your dad? Cuz I'm not telling him." Dumi: "hayi nam." Nosi: "No!" she smiled. Nosi: "I invited my mom for Christmas." Me: "you did what?" Nosi: "we're her family. She needs us. Bendizomyeka ahlale yedwa? She's my mother Spho. Andifuni ahlale yedwa kulandlu." I was just baffled. Stella walked in the house. Stella: "hello my angel." she hugged her daughter. Stella: "why is this house so dull? Where are the preparations? Where's the excitement!" It died when you pulled in the driveway. I wanted to say. Nosi: "ma, say hi to Spho. Nanku noDumi. Bhuti's friend." Stella: "Hello." That's it. I'm gone. I got up from the couch. Stella: "you're pregnant? Didn't waste any time, did you?" I was not in the mood to shame. Stella: "its a pity you have to use a baby to hold on to someone who clearly isn't-" Nosi: "mama! What did I tell you?" Stella: "oh sorry darling. Apologies Spho. Are you due next week? You look rather huge." Robert walked in with his son. Sands: "hello ma." Stella: "My little baby." she kissed his cheeks. Rob: "Nokwakha." Stella: "Monwabisi. Sad how you can't even live up to your name." Rob: "what's sad is you not having someone to spend Christmas with. So you forced your daughter to bring you here." Stella: "I never forced her." Rob: "I've lived with you for almost 40 years." he smiled. Rob: "I know you."

Stella: "what ever makes your diabetes level." I went to my room. I took my overnight bag and packed a few clothes in it and shoes, plus toiletry and make up. Sands: "Spho?" Me: "ngena." he came in. Sands: "where you going?" Me: "I'm not gonna stay here with your mother. She hasn't been here for 5 minutes, but has already insulted me 3 times. I can't stress. There's already a situation with this baby." Sands: "ndiya understander mna. I think its good for you to go somewhere." Me: "I should've left with uSibu." Sands: "ungayi kokwenu nje? You can't spend Christmas eve alone. I want you to stay but umama will make things difficult and andifuni something to happen to you or the baby." Me: "I miss him so much." he hugged me. Sands: "I know. Uzobuya...and it will be like he never left..." Me: "okay....I promised not to cry today." I carried on with my packing. Sands: "do you want me to drive you?" Me: "no, I'll be okay thanks Sandile." I zipped my bag. Sands: "I'll take this to the car." Me: "No... Go to your family." Sands: "Look, ndiyamthand umama. I just don't want you to leave here and then she thinks she's now the woman of the house. Let me take out your bag. She doesn't need to know uyahamba." Me: "Sandile. Whether I'm here or not. That won't make a difference to her." I locked the sliding door firmly. Then took my bag and locked my bedroom. The windows connecting inside it were all locked. Sands: "uhambe kakuhle ke." Me: "thanks bye Sands." I walked to Rob. Me: "tata, ndisaya ekhaya for a while." Rob: "okay mntanam. I'll take care of things here. Undibulisele kutatakho." Me: "enkosi tata. I will." Thank God Stella was nowhere to be seen. Inoba base roomin with uNosi. I drove my car to Newton Park.

When I drove into the street of my parents' house. I noticed two cars parked out front. I recognized one of them. Nobody was expecting me. Not even my mother. I parked my car and took my bag to the front door then knocked. My mother opened. She gasped. Mama: "Hi Spho." why was she standing at the door. Mama: "I thought uza ngomso late. What's this? A bag?" Me: "ndicela ungena mama. What's going on?" Mama: "why are you here? Kwenzeke nton?" Me: "kufike umama ka Masilakhe pha. I can't stay with her mama. She's mean and stresses me out. Open the door. Nenzantoni apha?" she let me inside. I already knew he was here. His car was parked out front for goodness sake. Me: "molweni." Khaya: "Hello sweetheart." he smiled. Siya: "Hi Spho." he took my bag to the room. There was another woman in the lounge. Me: "molo mama." who was this? Woman: "Is this Spho? Oh My Goodness! You look beautiful! Give me a hug!" I hugged her. Seriously, who was this guys? Me: "Enkosi mama." I looked at my dad questioningly. Khaya: "Spho, this is Siya's mom. Sis'Lorna." Oh. Goodness. This is awkward. Siya: "have you eaten?" Me: "uhm...no. Not in the past 2 hours." Mama: "ndizok'phakela. Sit down honey." I felt like a stranger ekhaya honestly. What were they doing here? I sat down. Siya: "how've you been?" he sat next to me. Me: "great...wena?" Siya: "I've been okay. Unjani umntana?" Me: "I'm not sure." I was trying not to think about it. Siya: "njani? When last did you go for a check up?" Me: "a couple of days ago. Babsi says There's an echogenic focus on the baby's heart." Siya: "what is she doing to make it better? Or make it go away?" Me: "why do you look so scared?" Siya: "I.....its your baby. Its just, I don't want anything to happen to him." Me: "There's a test, I could take. Just that There's a risk." Siya: "what's the risk?" Me: "a miscarriage." he looked at the floor. Siya: "whatever this is. Its not worth your baby's life." Me: "and what if the baby is born with an abnormality?" Siya: "then we'll cope with that, knowing he's alive and unabazali abamthandayo. If they find something now, how will they heal it? You're just going to worry for the rest of your pregnancy. They can only do anything for umntana xa umzalile." Me: "we?" Siya: "I meant you and your family." Me: "that's not what we means." Siya: "I'll be there as a friend for support obviously. I'll never let you go through that alone." Me: "I know." Siya: "did you read up on it?" Me: "yeah. BabyCentre blog keeps saying its a normal variant and usually doesn't mean anything and doing the test is not a bad idea since only 1 out of 300 end in miscarriage. There's no proven theory that the amnio is the cause of miscarriage because most of its cases are successful." Siya: "1 out of 300 is still scary." Me: "yeah....I don't want to go through it again." Siya: "again?" I looked at him. What was this constant look of concern on his face? Me: "I never told anyone. Not even my dad knows. I miscarried when I was in an accident." Siya: "I'm so sorry to hear that Spho." Me: "its okay. I'm trying to make sure this one stays inside and healthy till he's ready to pop." he smiled. Siya: "have you decided? On the birth?" Me: "Yes. Definitely a private hospital. I want my child to be in immediate medical help. They have to check if he's okay." Siya: "hopefully Babsi will be around. She travels quite often. Its always better to have a doctor you're familiar with." Me: "you're a doctor I'm familiar with." Siya: "I don't give birth to babies." Me: "come on. You're a GP." Siya: "exactly." Me: "why did you lie?" Siya: "about what?" Me: "nge age yakho dummy. You thought I wouldn't find out." Siya: "whatever. I'll fetch your food." Me: "if its any consolation, you're still older than me." Siya: "it is. And thank you." he went to the kitchen. I couldn't help but laugh. He had this little boy attitude and smile. My mom and Lorna were having a private discussion across the room. I don't know where my dad disappeared to. Siya brought me my food. Siya: "there you go. Happy chewing." Me: "thank you." I took a big bite off my chicken. I was really hungry. Siya: "khame ndiyokhangel utatakho." he left me to my food wabuya kwakhona in a few. Siya: "he's on the phone with uLakhe. Khandiphe." Me: "what they talking about?" Siya: "you want me to spy for you?" Me: "Yes." he took my potato and left again. By the time he came back, I was done eating. Siya: "they spoke about Tokyo. Oko ehleka utatakho, nothing much. Then something about coming back soon. Lakhe is in Tokyo?" Me: "yeah." Siya: "but its Christmas." Me: "I know." Siya: "did something happen?" Me: "kind of. I don't know." Siya: "you at least told him about the baby?" Me: "I tried." Siya: "that's not good enough Spho. Its his baby too. He needs to know." Me: "I'll tell him. Ubuya kwakhe." I put down my plate. Me: "don't look at me like that. I'll tell him." Siya: "you need to put your feet up." Me: "can you calm down? Geez you're like this one inside of me." Siya: "uyakhaba? Can I feel?" Me: "don't get emotional." he held my tummy. Siya: "I can feel..." then his face changed. Me: "what?" Siya: "why ekhabela ezantsi?" Me: "I don't know, isn't that a thing they do?" Siya: "I don't know..." Me: "are you saying There's something wrong?" Siya: "No." Me: "Siyanda." Siya: "Do not be so worried all the time. Relax." I lay back on the couch. Khaya: "is everyone ready?" Me: "for what?" Khaya: "we're going bowling princess and then out for ice cream. Uyeza?" Me: "I would love to take a nap actually tata. But you guys have fun." Siya: "you can't stay here alone." Khaya: "That's true." Me: "andisehluthi tata." Khaya: "its good for you to exercise. Come." Mama: "thina sizohamba noSpho. You boys ride alone." Khaya: "okay." we came out the house. Watixa umama. I went to my car with sis Lorna and my mom. Khaya got into Siya's car with him. Siya: "I'm going to need you to stop looking at me like that tata." he started and drove away first. Khaya: "like what?" Siya: "oluhlobo undijonga ngalo. I know you called umama ka Lakhe ba makaze. You knew Spho would come running here and meet my mother then force me to spend time with her." Khaya: "I did no such thing." Siya: "I heard you on the phone, last week. Tata, why go through so much trouble, she's happy with uLakhe!" Khaya: "she's not! Something is wrong Siyanda. Be there for her please." Siya: "inzima lento uza nayo tata. I don't like meddling and I'm not going to. Its time you accept the fact that uSpho is married to that guy, and its not going to change. Not while you're still interfering. Leave them alone." Khaya: "you're right. I'm sorry I dragged you into this. Andizazi bendicinga ntoni." Siya: "you just want what's best for princess. I understand." he focused on the road. Siya: "what boggles my mind is why uncokola kangaka naye. And laugh so hard at his jokes. He's not that funny." Khaya: "are you jealous?" Siya: "of what? ULakhe? Please." Khaya: "Keep your friends close and your enemies closer, they say.." Siya: "If you gave him a real chance, just one." Khaya: "Not in a million years Siyanda." Siya: "I give up." he stopped at he robots. Siya: "so I've decided ndibuyela eJozzi. There's nothing for me here." Khaya: "what about uSpho?" Siya: "we cannot possibly go through this again." Khaya: "but as i-friend? To have her back? Support her?" Siya: "I'm a flight or phone call away." Khaya: "she's about to have a baby." the car moved again. Siya: "I know." Khaya: "stay Siyanda. That baby will need a dad." Siya looked at him and shook his head. Siya: "Masilakhe is the baby's dad. Tata, this conversation is really annoying me ngoku." Khaya: "I didn't want to tell you this." Siya: "what." Khaya: "I'm not supposed to....." Siya: "Tata." he parked the car. Khaya: "Rob told me that, Lakhe is on trial for murder. He is suspected to have killed his ex fiance. Who was pregnant with his child-" Siya: "whaaaaat!!!!!!!!!!!!!" Khaya: "Siyanda, calm dow-" Siya: "Tata, umyeka njani uSpho ahlale nalomntu!!! Don't tell me to calm down!!! Kunga suspectwa and he's on trial, there must be some truth to it!! He's a murderer? What the hell....." Khaya: "Siyanda, you can't tell Spho. She needs you in her corner. Don't just leave her hanging. Please. You can't go back to joburg-" Siya: "I'm not going anywhere!" Khaya smiled. Khaya: "that's my boy.."

I stood by the tables and watched my mom bowl. I was eating a cup of chocolate ice cream. Me: "what?" Siya: "nothing." Me: "You've been following me around like a detective." Siya: "I'm not. Uya kwezindawo ndifuna ukuya kuzo qha nawe. Can I have some ice cream?" Me: "why uthanda utyela umntanam?" he chuckled. Siya: "ulele umntana. Khandiphe wethu." I gave him a taste. My phone vibrated in my pocket. I took it out ndayijonga. It was Sandile. Me: "your best friend is calling." Siya: "who's my best friend?" I answered. Me: "Sandile." Sands: "Spho. You locked my brother's room?" Me: "Yes I did. Why?" Sands: "uhm....kunento endifuna uyiboleka yakhe." Me: "which is what?" there was silence. Me: "Sandile." Sands: "just a shirt. The white one." Me: "is it urgent?" Sands: "uzobuya nini?" Me: "I can come open for you. I don't mind. Nanku noSiyanda, sizoz." Sands: "No, I can come to you. Say hi to him for me." Me: "Sandile... I'm not giving away istixo sala room. Lakhe told me specifically not to let anyone in his room without both of us there." Sands: "oh okay." he hung up. Me: "he says hi." Siya: "everything okay?" Me: "ndiyabuya vha." Siya: "uyaphi?" Me: "I'm going to check what he wants. He seems jittery." Siya: "let me come with you." Me: "No, you're gonna distract him ndiyamazi uSandile." Siya: "how am I gonna distract him?" Me: "just stay please." on any other circumstance I wouldn't have said no, but uSandile is on a mission. He was being weirdly discreet which is unlike him because akakwazi kalok yena uxoka. Siya: "fine. As long as you come back." Me: "I will." he walked me to my car and I drove away. My phone rang again while ndiqhuba luckily connected to the Bluetooth. Me: "hey." Lakhe: "ndicela unike uSandile istixo." Me: "I'm on my way to the house." Lakhe: "ubuphi Dan?" Me: "ekhaya. Your mother is at the house. Ndizomvulela uSandile." Lakhe:

"Ndithe nika uSandile istixo Sphosenkosi. That's it. That's all I'm asking. Akho need ube extra." he hung up. Something was going on here. I just had a weird feeling in my gut. Maybe the baby was awake. Maybe she was trying to turn around. I arrived at the house and parked the car in front of the garage. Before I even stepped out the car. Sandile was by my door. On a regular day, I would've gotten a fright. Today, I actually didn't. Bendimlindile. Sands: "you don't have to get out the car. I'll be in and out." Me: "I promise you Sandile, I will knock you down before I let you take this key. Ndithe ndizoyivula la room. Yinton Dan Le ndingafunekanga ndiyibone?" Sands: "its nothing. I don't like bothering you. Uyayazi nawe ndithanda uphole. You don't have to walk all the way in. Worse umama uhlel efront." I got out the car. Sands: "Spho." Me: "I don't care. You're hiding something, and I'm going to find it. Ugcqiba kwam uyifumana. Ndilwe nawe for ukundixokisela Sandile. Brace yourself." Sands: "Okay! Okay!" Me: "Talk." Sands: "uhm....I wanted to hide your Christmas present as a surprise. From Lakhe and me." Me: "awww. That's so sweet! I might as well take it then kuba sendilapha and andizok'bona ngomso." Sands: "what?" Me: "you can give it to me now." Sands: "like ngoku? Can't I do my original plan?" Me: "No. I want my present. Go fetch it." I knew he was lying. Seriously, Sandile Cannot lie to save his life. Sands: "Lakhe says you can't see it." Me: "why?" Sands: "because he....wants to....make it a bigger surprise." Me: "okay." I walked toward the house. He followed behind me. Sands: "Spho... Yima." Me: "Sandile, I left this house a couple of hours ago. When I left my room, nothing was wrong. Your behavior is suggesting ufuna ukupha into kula room." I got to my room and put the key in. Sands: "There's nothing Spho. Relax." I opened the door ndangena and looked around. Everything was fine. Sands: "see? Go..." Me: "okay then. But let me get my jacket first. I feel chilly. Ndizosishiya kuwe istixo ungasokoli." Sands: "okay." I went to the closet, right next to the jackets wardrobe, kanye pha ezantsi, was Lakhe's safe and for the first time since I've known him. It was open. I pulled the door quietly. What. The. Fuck. I took out the white t shirt that had blood on it. My mind immediately flashed back to the few nights before our wedding, When Lakhe disappeared all day and half the night wabuya sesula igazi on his t shirt waza straight kule safe. I remember this because I heard the sound it makes xa ivulwa. So he was in such a hurry that he even forgot to close his safe. This is what Sandile was looking for. A white shirt. See? He just can't lie. Why did he want it so badly? Why didn't I notice this before? Probably because I wasn't looking. I took the t shirt and wrapped my jacket around it ndaphuma. Me: "I couldn't find this jacket, and ndithanda yona. I thought I lost it." he smiled. Sands: "its okay." Me: "I'll see you later then? Utixe ke apha." Sands: "okay. Thanks Spho." I half jogged to my car. I was shaking kukoyika and my heart raced. I shoved it under my seat and quickly drove off. I don't know why I took this t shirt. Now ndiyoyika ingathi ndizobethwa. It was full of blood. Lakhe only wore a bandage on his hand for one day. Maybe wethu its nothing, right? No, its something. He put it in a safe for a reason. Now he sent his brother to get rid of it? Ikhona into ebhethayo. I called Zintle. She picked up immediately. Me: "hee mtshana. Yayaphi la friend yakho uButternut that was head of a forensics lab?" Zintle: "sikhona esosbhanxa eso. Why?" Me: "uSino befuna i-number yakhe. I mentioned you might know him, so..." Ngubani uSino ?? Zintle: "who's that?" Me: "uyathanda ulibala ke wena. 2 years ago sise Cubana. Sadibana nezinye ii-girls. Kukho uButternut." Zintle: "Yoh. Inoba ndandinxilile tshomi. I'll text it you." Me: "thanks my love. Wenzantoni?" Zintle: "ndihleli wethu nomzali. Andisedikwe." Me: "oh hayi wethu. Undibulisele ku makazi." Zintle: "une tricks. Ufuna ndiyomthengela Hunters gold. Uyazelaphi? Yuuh hayi wethu." Me: "khawuvusele umakazi wethu. Ukuba ibindim ubuzotaka. Go do good." she laughed. Zintle: "ok tshomi. Nanku endibiza. I'll text you the number." Me: "thanks hun." I hung up. In a few minutes I got the text and I called immediately. I don't know what I was looking for but I was looking. BN: "Hi." Me: "Hello Bulelani. Uthetha noSpho itshomi ka Zintle." BN: "u-lovey ka simprah? How are you?" can I just throw up? Me: "ndiyaphila Unjani wena?" BN: "ndi-perfect." Me: "Bu, I need a favor from wena." BN: "it will cost you. What is it." Me: "uyakwaz mos utesta igazi if sikwi skipa?" BN: "Yeah." Me: "how does 5k sound?" BN: "make it 10k and I won't involve a single soul." Me: "uyandityabula Bulelani." BN: "how badly do you need that test done?" Me: "as in yesterday." I hated the thought going through my mind at that moment. What was Lakhe so deeply involved in that I had to go behind his back to find out? BN: "you realize tomorrow is Christmas." Me: "I know." BN: "the lab will be empty. I'll have to work alone, meaning I'm missing family time. The least I can do is come home with a hoverboard as a present for my son and some nice perfume for my girlfriend, don't you think?" Me: "R10 000 it is then." BN: "good. I'll send you my location, sidibane ngomso at 6am. Undinike the t shirt, and my money." Me: "Bulelani." BN: "Ya?" Me: "this stays strictly between us." BN: "Spho. You know me. That's why you called kakade. I'll see you tomorrow." I hung up. My car was parked in the lot of the bowling alley. On me, I had about 6k which I had drawed ngokuya bendisenza shopping and forgot about it. I'd have to wake and go to the ATM before 6am. I took a plastic from the back and shoved the t shirt in it ndayibuyisela under my seat. I breathed in and out. Countless times. Then got out the car. I walked into the bowling alley, sebezohamba. Me: "senigqibile na?" Siya: "yeah. Umama udiniwe." Me: "Yeah me too. My back is sore again." Siya: "its supposed to be getting better though, how are the classes?" Me: "they're good." I smiled. Siya: "are you okay?" Me: "I'm fine." Siya: "something is bothering you... Uthini uSandile?" Me: "ebefeketha as usual wethu. I feel bad for leaving him alone with his fam because akayifumani la attention iyeyakhe yedwa." Siya: "he's lucky to have a sister like you. Let me drive you home?" Me: "No, its okay. Hamba notata. I'll see you there." Siya: "Spho, what's wrong?" Me: "nothing." Siya: "ndijonge ke." I couldn't. Siya: "something is definitely wrong. What happened?" I looked him in the eyes. Me: "nothing is wrong." this lying thing was getting easier. Siya: "if you can keep this stare for 2 minutes I'll believe you." Me: "Fine. Let's do it." I folded my arms and looked at him. His eyes were soft and caring. Unpretentious. Also so strong. Me: "Poppy.." he smiled. Siya: "you remember." Me: "Shhh." I felt transported to another world. A world of bright sunshine and piggy back rides at a park. Protection from those barbaric pigeons. The giggles. Late night calls. That last kiss at the airport. With tears in his eyes. I remember. Every single piece. How.... I tried to breath again slowly. He moved closer to me. I was transfixed, I couldn't remove my eyes from his gaze. He moved infinitesimally closer. My senses were drinking in his cologne and the fresh mint breath almost a few centimeters from me. Khaya: "kwenzeka ntoni apha?" I snapped out of it. Siya: "we're having a staring contest." Khaya: "niyawaqalile kanene ngezinto zenu. Its time to go. Come." I quietly went to my car with umama nomamakhe. I first sat in my driver seat and listened to the irregular stepping of my heart beat. Ingathi yenza i-gwara gwara. Mama: "are you okay hone-" Me: "I'm trying to breath mama." Mama: "you don't 'try' to breath. That's not natural. What's the problem?" Me: "I have breathing issues. I have to take breaks and focus on that every once in a while." Mama: "hmm...okay. Take your time." Lorna: "I can drive for you baby." Me: "its okay ma." I started the car and drove to mom's house.

We arrived first at the house wayovula umama. I just wanted to climb in bed, besides the early morning and disappearing act I was to do ngentseni, I was tired. The women went inside. Siya's car parked behind mine wayongena endlini utata. I was standing by my car. Just dumbstruck and confused. Siya: "Spho.." Me: "yeah?" Siya: "you remember me don't you." Me: "No." Siya: "you're a bad liar. Undibize ngegama lakho. Uthe Poppy. I am the only person besides your biological mother that calls you that." I kept my mouth shut. Siya: "talk to me please." Me: "ndithini Siyanda. I'm married." Siya: "stop hiding behind this marriage. Just talk to me." Me: "I respect and love my husband too much to cheat on him." Siya: "or are you scared of him?" I looked on the tarmac. Siya: "no man is above God Spho. Ukuba uyamthemba and uyathandaza, akasoze naninina akulahle. Please remember that." Me: "I know." Siya: "I'm supposed to be spending Christmas here with your family tomorrow. If it makes you uncomfortable I could cancel." Me: "Don't." I blurted out. Siya: "are you sure?" Me: "yeah.." he pulled me into his arms and hugged me tight. I could almost feel my worries and stresses disappear. Me: "I should get inside." I let go of him. His hands still on my waist. Siya: "that's a good idea." I looked up at him. Me: "I don't want you to go." Siya: "nam andifuni uhamba. But I have to. I'll be here tomorrow morning. Uvuke ke nawe." Me: "I will.." I pulled away from him and walked to the house. His mother said her goodbyes and they left. I went to my bedroom, semi closing my door ndacima isibane. I called my brother. He picked up almost immediately. Sibuh: "hey you." Me: "andisazibaweli donuts kengoku." Sibuh: "haha.. Already regretting staying behind? Bendithe masambe. Would be getting you donuts now." Me: "sudika man. I wanted to talk to you bout something." Sibuh: "okay. What's up." Me: "I almost kissed uSiya." Sibuh: "whaat! How?" Me: "I don't know." Sibuh: "Spho. How did that happen? I thought you hated this guy." and so I went on to tell him the story of years ago up to now. Me: "its just this thing when I look at him in the eyes, ingathi its a reassurance that everything will be okay. I feel so light and happy around him, and upset xa funeke emnkile." Sibuh: "what about uLakhe?" Me: "I don't know. Ndiyamthanda uMasilakhe. I do. Its just.....very different." Sibuh: "different how Spho?" Me: "Andiyazi Sibulele. All I know is that ndiyamthanda and then with this one. I'm not sure if its love. What if its hormones or lust? What then?" Sibuh: "well.....I can hear it in your voice you have something deeply for this nigga." Me: "it can't be that deep." Sibuh: "it is. You almost kissed him. Worry yam is that if Lakhe finds out, he will kill you both." Me: "do you think he'd do that?" Sibuh: "I know he would. So don't even try making this Siya thing a thought. Suka kuye qha." I automatically thought of the t shirt in my car. Sibuh: "a lot of people can get hurt Spho. Leave it alone. I know kubhlongu but nyamezela mntase." Me: "if kutsho wena ke." Sibuh: "how's the baby?" Me: "Uright. The occasional kick here and there xa ndingam'hoyi. Yay'thanda attention lo." Sibuh: "uzofana notanci wakhe. Bazovana ngento ekho." Me: "I have another call coming in. NguLakhe. We'll talk later vha." Sibuh: "okay. Bye." I hung up and answered this. Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi." Me: "hey." Lakhe: "iphi t shirt yam luyithathe kwi safe?" Me: "eyiphi t shirt kengoku?" Oh Shit. Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi." Me: "Masilakhe." Lakhe: "Siphi. Iskipa sam. Besikula safe." Me: "andazani naskipa mna. Kutheni uzofaka izikipa kwi safe? Khona don't you lock that thing? Ndizoyivula njani mna?" Lakhe: "ndifike kwelo bhayi esaskipa sik'la ndawo yaso baby. Andifuni uxabana nawe." he hung up. I was about to pee on myself. How did he know I took it? How? How! How! Ubuya Wednesday mos. It was Friday tomorrow, I had a few days. If sibuyele pha esaskipa uzoyazi ukuba sithathwe ndim and that will be a problem. Again, what will he do if asikho? I will deny it until I die shame. I put my phone down and closed my eyes to pray. Just before I started, I heard voices. They sounded like ziphuma kwi room ka mama notata. Ndacwecwa ndayohlala kumnyango wam and listened. It was in hearing distance. Khaya: "ufuna ndithini ke Zama? We had an agreement. Asikwazi uveske sibuye umva." Zama: "Khaya, its enough now-" Khaya: "it can't be enough. You are the last person to tell me its enough." Zama: "it is a few hours before Christmas morning! Suppose uhleli ne family yakho." Khaya: "I'll be back ksasa mos." Zama: "Khaya this thing is destroying our home. Can we stop now? Please? If we focus on umtshato wethu-" Khaya: "ndizomfunaphi omnye umntana ke Zama?" Zama: "What you're doing will make you lose the one you already have!" Khaya: "ungak'linge uvuse umntanam elele ngale ngxolo yakho. You started this. Ngokwakho. Kutheni ungenoyimela? You should be happy that I'm not even cheating. I got the sour end of the deal, when you hurt me. Ndiyeke Zama, ndifuna uyobethwa ngumoya." Zama: "how can you say that!! " Khaya: "Zama, kudala ndizama. This is the only way. Ndiyakuthanda.....but I can't do this anymore. Ungu mama womntanam endimthanda ngobom bam bonke... Kodwa, we can't drag this any longer now. I'm sorry. Ndizokubona ksasa." I crawled back into bed. My whole body in shock. It felt as if ndim lo kuthethwa naye. All I wanted to do was cry. How could he be so cruel? I was disturbed my vibrating phone. Siya's text. "Home safely. Sweet dreams." I pushed my phone under my pillow. It vibrated again. Ndayijonga. Incoming call. Me: "Siyanda." Siya: "I just want to say goodnight." Me: "okay. I'm half asleep. Goodnight." Siya: "okay." I hung up.

I didn't sleep. Not a single wink. Oko ndijamele i-ceiling. I got out of bed at 5 ndayovasa ubuso namazinyo. I quickly got dressed and checked my messages to plan my route. I sneaked out the house to my car and to my horror, it wasn't there. My heart stopped beating. I was dry and so scared that my knees began to buckle. Mama: "Spho?" she was standing by the door with her gown on. Mama: "wenzan?" Me: "my car is stolen." Mama: "no baby. Utatakho uyifake garage after Siyanda and his mom left." I felt a sense of immediate relief fill a hole inside me. Me: "sphi stixo. I have to go." Mama: "uyaphi at this time?" Me: "I'm going for a drive mama. I need some fresh air." Mama: "okay." she gave me the keys and I went to my car in the garage. First thing I did was check for the plastic and t shirt. It was still there. I drove out to the ATM ndakhupha the remaining cash and went to Bulelani's place in Humewood. We met at his gate. Me: "hi." BN: "sho skeem. Ulungisile?" Me: "yeah. Is there a chance I can get back the results by Monday?" BN: "No. Probably Friday next week." Me: "just do it as fast as you can. The sooner the better." BN: "okay. Will do. Go before someone sees you." I gave him everything and left. I didn't want to go back home. I didn't want to see my father. Although there was no way to avoid it. I could go home and hide in my room until kufike guests and then I wouldn't have to talk to him. Sounds like a plan? Unfortunately for me, its not. Nantsi moto yakhe parked out here. I parked mine ndangena kumiwe e-kitchen. Zama: "how was your drive sweetheart?" Me: "Perfect mama." Khaya: "Where did you go princess?" I closed and locked my bedroom door without responding. Yena ebeyephi sezobuza mna. I looked for clothing to wear. I can't remember when last I had such a heartbreaking Christmas. I hated it. After taking out my dress and ironing it, I went to the bathroom ndazitixela kwakhona pha. My dad was still in the kitchen epheka nomama. I don't know why bendenza umntana o-fragile. Why can't they just let out the truth qha? Akho need yode ku-act'we. I soaked and bathed myself. When I felt good and ready, I got out ndanxiba gown yam, my slippers, ndakhupha amanzi ndavasa bath tub and walked out to my bedroom. Khaya: "are you gonna help us with lunch honey?" Me: "No." ndangena eroomin yam. Khaya: "Spho." I began getting dressed ndava imoto imisa phandle. Ndabuyela back to bed with my fleece blanket. Lorna and Siya were arriving ngaphaya. How could I pretend? I took out my laptop and went through my emails, doing a bit of work also. Siya: "knock, knock." Me: "ngena." he walked in. Dressed in a long sleeve white shirt, unbuttoned down half his chest, he had on navy blue tight fitting pants. And his fancy brown shoes. He smiled when he saw me. Siya: "I hope you're playing a game on that laptop and not working. You already look good being lazy." he sat on the bed. Me: "my father will chase you out of this bedroom, no matter how much he likes you." Siya: "I'll wait until he does.." Me: "uyaphi? You look so fancy." Siya: "WE. Are going to church with umama. It starts in an hour. U-ready?" Me: "I was not told of this." Siya: "nxiba sisi. I'll wait in the lounge." Me: "okay." I got up waphuma yena, closing the door behind him. He stood outside the house going through his cellphone. Khaya: "Why are you avoiding me?" Siya: "I'm not." Khaya: "you're not taking my calls." Siya: "because you're pushing too hard. I don't like it. I know you're trying your best to get me what I want kodwa its time for you to back off now. I've got it handled." Khaya: "Oh?" Siya: "I mean it." Khaya: "Fine. Ndiyakuva. But if you need anything-" Siya: "you'll be the first to know." he locked his phone. Siya: "Mama? Its time to go now. Andifun uba late." Lorna: "Okay! Zama, let's get going. We'll finish cooking ubuyeni kwethu ecaweni." Zama: "okay." Khaya: "sizonilandela. You can go ahead." I walked out the house. I was really tired. You could probably see it in the way I walked. Khaya: "Spho, uzohamba nathi mntanam." Me: "I'm taking a ride with Siyanda nomamakhe. I'm not going to wait while the both of you fake love each other and pretend like all is well. Treating me like a fragile child that's going to break to pieces if you were honest." Khaya: "what are you talking about?" Me: "Dad..... I'm going to church. I don't want to be aggravated. Please." Khaya: "I aggravate you now?" Siyanda opened the door for me. I slid into the backseat and sat myself comfortably wavala icango, driving us to church. Khaya: "What just happened?" Zama: "I don't know. She was acting weird nakusasa." Khaya: "what does she mean fake love? Do you think she heard us izolo?" Zama: "probably." Khaya: "do you think we should tell her?" Zama: "not yet Khaya. Not until you sort all of it out." Khaya: "andithandi umntanam akhubeke Zama. I don't want her upset. I'm going to tell her!" Zama: "NO! Just wait. We're going back inside the house now. Put on your brave voice for your family and hold on." Khaya: "fine."

When we got home from church. I helped my mother cook lunch for the family and our guests. Mama: "mntanam. Sit down, you need to rest now. Sesigqibile." Me: "I'm okay mama." Mama: "no you're not. Spho. Sit." Me: "okay. I'll sit." not in the lounge though. That's where my dad was and I did not want to talk to him. So I sat at the dining table where I looked lonely. There was a knock on the front door. Mama: "come in." and what do you know? Uncle Lani comes striding in. Lani: "molweni." Lorna: "hello Phumlani." Lani: "Ninjani? Aphi amadoda alapha?" Mama: "siyaphila Phumlani, base front." Lani: "hi Spho." Me: "hello tanci." Lani: "how's my favorite niece?" Me: "I'm fine tanci, considering the fact that you didn't bother coming to my wedding." Lani: "wedding? I was never told of a wedding." he looked at my mom. Mama: "it was last minute." Lani: "who did you marry?" Siya walked out the lounge answering his phone. Siya: "yes, this is he..... Right now? Who is supposed to be on call?" he was out the house after that. Lani: "Oh Thank God, its him. Ubuye nini khona?" Me: "its not him tanci." Lani: "now I'm confused." Me: "I married uMasilakhe." Lani: "Why?" Me: "hayi ke tanci." Lani: "but why kengoku uSiya elapha?" Mama: "he's here for work." Siya came back in. Siya: "uxolweni mama. There's been an accident on the N2, just before the Motherwell off ramp and they're bringing them to the hospital. Yi-taxi yabantu kunye nemoto ezimbini. I have to go help." Khaya: "same. I've just been called." Lorna: "but what about lunch? Anikatyi." Siya: "I'll be fine. For now. Ndizofowna when I get a chance." Me: "Siyanda." he walked to me. Me: "you're a GP though." Siya: "Aphe bhayi. I ran an entire hospital in joburg. Have faith." Oh? Wow. Okay. Me: "good luck then." he smiled and walked out. Lani: "kuzima ubayi engineer. Nobody calls you for help. Anyway, how come I was never told about Spho's marriage Zama?" Mama: "like I said. It was last minute. She decided in a week ufuna utshata and that's what happened." Lani: "Wow." he sat down. Lani: "anyway, like a normal person, who actually values members of his family, ndizonichazela ukuba I'm getting married in February." Mama: "to who?" Lani: "umama womntanam. I asked her last month." Mama: "Kuthen ungahlelanga naye since its Christmas?" Lani: "she'll be here in an hour ebeye ecaweni. Sukoyika. Unjani sis Lorna?" ouch. Lorna: "I'm great Phumlani. Wena Unjani?" Lani: "I'm happier than I've ever been." Me: "how old is your child tanci?" Lani: "he's 1 year and 2 months now. Still wears diapers though. And akathethi. All he says is dada." Me: "like you said, he's 1 year and 2 months. Usemncinci nje." Lani: "I guess." Mama: "what happened to not believing in marriage." Lani: "well....I figured its best to raise my son and the only way I can do that is if uhlala kum. The next step was to make umamakhe a queen and respected. I gave up my pride and did it." Lorna: "awww. That is so sweet Phumlani. I am happy that you did the right thing." Mama: "so you getting married ngenxa yomntana?" Lani: "I'm getting married because I'm inlove. Spho, where is your Mr?" Me: "he's in Tokyo." Lani: "is that a restaurant around here somewhere?" Me: "no Tanci, Tokyo is in Japan." Lani: "in Asia?" I looked at him. Lani: "why epha? Suppose uhleli nomfazi wakhe mos." Mama: "Spho, bring me the asparagus from the pantry please." Thank God. I got up ndayolanda le asparagus ka mama. Even when I came back, my uncle asked the same thing. Mama: "khayekane nomntana man Phumlani!" she snapped. Why was she so mad tho? Lol. This was amusing me actually because believe it or not, my mother was jealous. Lani: "kuphakwa nini kulendlu. Andiselambe." Mama: "uphuma njani endlinakho ungatyanganga." I held in giggles. Lani: "hayike u-funny kengoku. Spho, I see you're pregnant. How far?" Me: "18 weeks tanci." Lani: "half way there hey. Yikwekwe?" Me: "I don't know yet. Ndimbi dan tanci?" Lani: "khandiyithethe ke leyo, but since you brought it up..." I smiled. His phone rang. Lani: "nanku mfazi wam." he got up and went to answer. Lani: "yes baby? Ndiyeza ke." he hung up. Lani: "ndisayolanda umntuwam ecaweni. Ndiyabuya Sphosh ka tanci vha." Me: "okay." he walked out. I looked at umama while she cooked. I couldn't read her facial expression. It was just blank with a hint of sarcasm. Ndaske ndabhidwa. Lorna: "dinner will be ready in 30 minutes. Khandilungiselele tafile Spho." I got up ndalungisa tafile, putting the plates and cutlery in their places. I went to switch on the lights on the Christmas tree. Yes, we had a Christmas tree. I'd only bought my parents gifts because I didn't know sizoba extra apha endlini. I texted Butternut to check how everything is going. He was still busy. How long did it take kanti? I called Sibú to wish him a Merry Christmas. Ndayozivalela eroomin. Sibú: "heeyyy. Unjani?" Me: "I'm great. Wena Unjan?" Sibú: "I'm perfect. Ndigqibo kutya ngoku. Ndihluthi ndingqengqe ngecala." Me: "I'm still hungry. Andikatyi. Ubuya nini?" Sibú: "I'll be back on Tuesday. Why? Uyandikhumbula?" Me: "No..not really." as long as its before Wednesday. I needed to gear up my army before ibuye landoda ise Tokyo. Sibú: "kwenzeka ntoni?" Me: "nothing. Bendibuza qha." Sibú: "ikhona ke into ondifihlela yona." Me: "well...." Sibú: "talk to me." Me: "izolo, ndifownelwe ngu Sandile efuna something from Lakhe's room. I went to open for him and search before him. I found the safe open.." Sibú: "Oh God....Spho wenzeni." Me: "There was a t shirt. It had blood, I took it." Sibú: "why did you take it!!!" Me: "I don't know. Ndiyise komnye umfana to test it. But Lakhe called and he said he wants it back." Sibú: "Spho, ambolanda esaskipa usibuyisele pha!" Me: "but I denied it Sbu. If it magically appears ndizothi sivela Phi?" Sibú: "if it doesn't uzothi siphí?" Me: "I'm going to stick to I don't know." Sibú: "Spho, put that t shirt back there. If he finds it there, he will never ask why you took it. Ayiphindi ivuswe topic. If he doesn't find it there, then kuzonyiwa. Trust me on this. Put the t shirt back." Me: "but who's blood is on that t shirt? And why is it in the safe?" Sibú: "that doesn't even matter now." Me: "Sibulele. I am his wife. I have the right to know! And I know he won't tell me so I had to gather evidence!" Sibú: "I can't get any flights before Tuesday. And indlela zii-busy kakhulu for me to drive down to you. I don't know what the hell You've done." Me: "I just don't like secrets Sibú. I have to know otherwise I won't be comfortable." Sibú: "so when you know, you'll be comfortable?" Me: "I'll see then. Listen I have to go." Sibú: "okay. We'll talklater." Me: "sho." I hung up and went back out. Mama and Lorna were decking the table with the casserole bowls and platters and all. I was so hungry. Just before ndihlale phantsi, wangena kwakhona utanci. He was carrying his son. His fiance was right behind him.....she was Gorgeous. I so wanted the full story kengoku. Lani: "Spho, nanku maka Lukho, baby, this is my neice, that is her mother and this is our close family friend uSis Lorna." Me: "hi sisi.." Maka-L: "hi Spho, ndingu Nandi. Molweni sisi." and she had manners. Mama: "uno sisi ondim." which my mother suddenly didn't have. Nandi: "Oh I'm sorry...its just that...Spho looks matured and.....uhm.." my mom just looked at her. Lorna: "let's sit guys. I'll pray." Lani: "please make it 2 lines. If uyadlulela niyondifumana sendilayisha mna." Lorna: "khavale amehlo Phumlani. Please." we all closed our eyes. Lorna: "Dear God, siyabulela ngokukutya usipha kona mihla ngemihla, siyabulela bawo ngee ntsikelelo zakho, nokusikhusela kwimimoya emidaka." my uncle cleared his throat. Lorna: "egameni lika Yesu Krestu inkosi yethu, Amen." Everyone: "amen." we opened our eyes. Baby Lukho was staring at me ehleli on his father's lap next to me. He looked so beautiful with beautiful big eyes and thick pink lips. He had milky skin and the chubbiest cheeks. My heart was melting. Mama: "Sphosenkosi, Itya." Me: "but he's so adorable-" Mama: "he's not going anywhere. He'll be there ugqiba kwakho." Lani: "unomona ngomntana?" Mama: "Sphosenkosi ngumntanam, uthwele umzukulwana wam, it is my job to take care of them both. Akekatyi namhlanje, therefore, everything else will have to wait." funny enough, bendilambe a minute ago. When I saw this baby, all that went away. I had to eat though, for my own baby. I had my lunch. Making sure I had enough, not too much food, not too little. Ugqiba kwam ndaqokelela izitya ndazisa kitchen. Lorna: "ziyeke my sweet. Go put your feet up." I have no idea why I was being treated like an invalid. Ingathi ndizoveske ndiwe ndife. I went to the lounge and sat on the couch with my feet up. Siya sent a message: "Its so awful. Two lives lost. Six others on life support. The rest are not too bad. Think I'll be here the whole night." Me: "should I bring your food?" Siya: "Please." I locked my phone and watched TV for a minute. Baby Lukho crawled into the lounge. Sucking intensely on his pacifier. He stopped and stared at me then pushed his bottom up in the air, standing on his feet and hands, then slowly lifted his hands until he was standing with his own two feet. I clapped for him. He took small steps toward me smiling shyly. Wafika wama next to the couch. He stared at my tummy and poked it. Me: "uyayazi ngubhabha lo? he's a cute little booboo like you in there." he took out his pacifier and put it on my tummy. Me: "oh you're soo sweet! Thank you baby Lukho. Enkosi boy yam vha." he smiled. For a long while he played around me emane ngoza kum. Then I heard him fart. Was it a fart? I had to check. I managed to lure him closer and tried to peep in his pants. Nandi: "wenzantoni?" Me: "Oh... Uhm. I want to check if he needs changing." Nandi: "khulula brukhwe yakhe, check on the side of his diaper not from phezulu." Me: "Ohh.. Now I feel dumb." Nandi: "its okay. You'll get used to learning new things xa ungumama." Me: "I wish there was a test I could take instead." she chuckled. Nandi: "unfortunately, this isn't like a degree. Which would've been easier for you." Me: "heee." Nandi: "kudala endibalisela ngawe utanci wakho. You really are his favorite niece." Me: "I'm his only niece njena." we laughed. Me: "I'm gonna have to go to the hospital ndiyonika uSiyanda ukutya kwakhe." Nandi: "ngubani uSiyanda?" Me: "a friend of mine. Usebenza esbhedlele." I picked up Lukho and kissed his cheek. Nandi: "Oh... So are you married?" Me: "yes." Nandi: "to?" Me: "Masilakhe. He's in Tokyo for a meeting." Nandi: "Oh... Uzobuya nini?" Me: "next week." Nandi: "that's nice. Hopefully uzophathelwa a pretty little present." I smiled. It was a fake smile. Me: "let me get going before kube late. Bye Lukho." he looked like he was sulking after I put him down. Nandi: "uyasithanda ke isandla ubhutiza. Izapha nono." he grabbed my dress. Me: "Heee umfana. Ufuna uhamba nam?" he closed his eyes putting his head on my thigh. Nandi: "ungahamba naye. I'm sure utatakhe won't mind." Me: "are you sure?" Nandi: "let me ask him." she went to her fiance. Nandi: "baby, uSpho angahamba noLukho? Uzobuya kwangoku." Lani: "unini u'kwangoku'?" Me: "about 30 minutes. Ndisa ukutya ku Siya. He left before he ate." Lani: "is that so?" Me: "tanci you were here." Lani: "notatakho nje akekatyi." ifuna yena kaloku leyo. Mama: "ewe sele Uhamba nokutya kwabo bobabin. Uncedile mntanam." Me: "can I take him with me?" Lani: "only if you can tell me uSiya ithini into yakhe apha..." Me: "Uzele umsebenzi." Lani: "send'tshuba aphe ndlini." Me: "dad invited him-" Mama: "actually I did. Siyanda noLorna bayafana ingathi yifamily kuthi." is that so? Lani: "I hear you." I went to change my shoes. Nandi wayolanda car seat yomntana wayifaka kweyam imoto. Me: "I'm so nervous." Lani: "you should be. This is my only child." Nandi: "hayi man Lani. You'll be fine Spho. Lukho is sweet, akazokusokolisa unless ufuna ufunqulwa." Lani: "angalili umntanam please." Nandi: "he'll be fine! Nantsi bag yakhe Spho." Lani: "drive very slowly." Nandi: "sum'hoya utamkhulu lo. Relax." Me: "come Lukie." I took the tupperware containers and held his hand. We walked to the car ndamfaka kwi seat yakhe in the back and buckled him in. I was really nervous. I put the tupperware containers on the passenger seat and got in the car. I drove away to the hospital.

On my arrival, I texted Siya asking him to come outside. I didn't want to bring the baby inside the hospital building. Lord knows what germs fly around in there. In a few minutes he was outside. I got out my car. Me: "hey, u-busy?" Siya: "Yeah. I was sorting out the O.P board." Me: "then kwathini ungayigqibi?" Siya: "I gave it to someone else to do, I couldn't keep you waiting." I smiled. Me: "uyi bully yazi." Siya: "injalo kaloku. Xa une bully, nawe ubayi bully komnye." Me: "I have a present for you." Siya: "besides my food? Oooh." Me: "look inside." he peeped in the window. Siya: "awww. Ngowam?" I laughed. Siya: "I'm kidding. Who's this?" Me: "this is my uncle's son. Lukho." Siya: "he is cute. Molo Lukho. Hey boy." Lukho just stared at him. Siya: "okay, so he doesn't talk?" I took Lukho out ndamfunqula. Me: "not yet. Naku kutya kwakho. That's for you and dad." Siya: "why ungathethi naye?" Me: "did he send you to spy on me?" Siya: "you're the only person I spy for. He just mentioned in passing that you seem to be ignoring him. He doesn't know why." Me: "I overheard him. He said he's leaving umama. Apparently, he can't pretend anymore. They pretend to be happy in my face but they're not. So many times ndibuza kumama Uphi utata andizulisele. He doesn't even sleep at home anymore." Siya: "so uyalinda?" Me: "No, I just don't like being made a fool." Siya: "if you speak to him, maybe he'll be honest." Me: "he won't. But you could." Siya: "I could what?" Me: "spy for me. Figure out what's going on." Siya: "I can't do that, love. And I'm not going to because its not our place to meddle. Bayeke olahlobo." Me: "fine. Maybe meddling isn't my calling. Its just that I wouldn't do it if bendinga bhanxwa. I don't know why bendenza umntana." Siya: "I'm sorry.." Me: "I hate being lied to. Nawe Siya, try and lie nje ngento encinci, I won't talk to you. I will literally block you out of my life." Siya: "I haven't lied ever since I confessed." Me: "okay. Bamba ke your pretend baby." I gave him the child. Me: "uyandisinda ngoku." he laughed. Siya: "ndilambile mna. Ndifuna ukutya." Me: "uyow'bona ba mawuthini. I need to sit." Siya: "why ningangeni?" Me: "There's germs there." Siya: "heee, uzama ukuthi nam ndine germs." Me: "yeah." he moved closer. Me: "usondela uyaphi?" Siya: "ndicel ukusulela ngezi germs." Me: "stay away from me." I giggled walked away. Siya: "iza sisi." he grabbed my arm with his free hand. Me: "Siyanda man." he pulled me gently. Siya: "I'm rubbing germs all over you." he held me tightly in his one arm, the other carrying Lukho. Me: "wenzantoni Siyanda." Siya: "kaloku andithi awufuni uyozilanda phakathi? So ndizisisile ke kuwe." Me: "nooo, you know what I'm talking about." Siya: "I don't." Me: "you do. I told you There's nothing more than friendship I can offer you." Siya: "I know that." Me: "I don't want you to feel led on." Siya: "I'm not. I enjoy company yakho qha. Nothing else." Me: "good. I don't want you to hang on to the hope that I might come back to you." Siya: "I don't know why because awonwabanga but its fine. I respect your decision." Me: "thank you. You can let go of me." Siya: "now?" I giggled. Me: "yes now." Siya: "okay ke." he let go of me. I took Lukho from him. Siya: "can I drive you home?" Me: "I'll be fine. Ndizezele mos. Take your food." Siya: "I want to make sure you're home safely." Me: "if you could just stop being obsessed. I'll be fine." Siya: "okay ke ndiyekile." Me: "ukushiyela ntoni ukutya?" Siya: "Yoh." he took the containers. Siya: "I'll probably see you tomorrow. Akuhambeki apha." Me: "khona why is your beep thing not going off?" Siya: "ndiyicimile. Bendingasoze ndikwazi uthetha nawe kukho lanto." Me: "okay ke. Switch it on uyophangela. Have fun." Siya: "I don't think that's possible but okay. Uhambe kakhle. Text me when you're home okay?" Me: "Go." Siya: "ndizok'linda kude utsale tshin. What do you think I am?" Me: "a man that has a job, saving other people's lives. Hamba man." I put Lukho in his seat and buckled him up. Xandivala ucango, nanku lomntu uselapha. Me: "Siyanda man..." Siya: "ziphi iztixo?" Me: "nasi." I showed him my hand. Siya: "good." he put the containers on the roof of the car. Me: "Siya...don't." Siya: "I have something for you. A Christmas present." Me: "where did you get time?" Siya: "I make time. Always." Me: "iza ndibone." he reached in his pocket and took out a stuffed puppy key chain. I just laughed. Siya: "yintoni?" Me: "its so cute. This is the weirdest gift I've ever received. Thank you." Siya: "at least you won't lose your keys." I hugged him. Me: "thank you." Siya: "its my pleasure." I let go. He opened my door and I got in. Me: "hamba kengoku." Siya: "okay. Let me take my food. Ikhona mos neyaka tatakho apha?" Me: "yeah." he took the containers. I started my car. Me: "bye." Siya: "goodbye." I drove away. When I got home, I could hear arguments all the way from outside. I took the baby and his bag in. Mama:

"phuma kwam!! Wawuthe awuphindi ubuyele apha! Kodwa namhlanje ukho! Ufunani?" Lani: "yindlu ka bhuti wam le. I don't need your permission and andiyi ndawo kungekatsho yena!" Lorna: "Zama, thoba sisi umsindo. Sinokwazi Uhlala phantsi siyilungise Lento-" Mama: "akhonto ndizayihlalela phantsi!" Me: "kwenzeka ntoni." Nandi got up wazothatha umntana wakhe ne bag. Nandi: "did you guys have fun?" Me: "yes we did. He's so quiet though." Nandi: "he's shy. Andithi boy boy? You're such a shy bunny. Binkie boy ka mamakhe." the baby smiled and giggled. Nandi: "we're going home now as soon as they stop fighting." Me: "why are they fighting?" Nandi: "Andiyazi ndisuka e-bathroom. Andiy'ngeni ke mna ndingabuzwanga." Me: "hayi ke i-worse." my uncle stormed out. Lani: "masambeni Nandipha." Nandi: "bye Spho. It was lovely meeting you." Me: "same here sisi." they got in their car and left. I was not taking any sides. I went to the lounge ndahlala on the couch to watch television. Benditshiseka actually, I wanted to wash dishes but I was already told ndiziyeke and I didn't want to cause more drama. It was late, I was tired, I needed to sleep. Me: "mama... Ndisayolala vha. I'm a little tired." she didn't respond. Lorna: "okay my angel. Ambo nqenqa. We'll be fine." Me: "ndingak'ncedisi with the dishes kqala?" Lorna: "hayi mntanam. You can go." I went to my bedroom, ndanqenqa phezukwe bhedi. I was almost fast asleep when I saw my husband standing by the door, the t shirt with blood on him. My eyes shot open. Me: "I'm dreaming...." I breathed. I looked around me. The room was empty. No one was here....

I woke up Sunday morning. Two days after Christmas. I stayed in bed for a few minutes ndiziva naar. When last did I have morning sickness? Today was more intense, I felt like each time I moved I was striking an emotional nerve. My heart was racing for no apparent reason. I just needed to be back in bed. I took a deep breath and sat up. The baby was kicking. Intensely. I tried to rub and massage my tummy. What was wrong? I went to shower and dressed in a tracksuit, I had to see a doctor for this. After making my bed, I went to the kitchen. Kodwa isusu besingavumi ukutya. I didn't know what could make me eat. The time was still 7am. My mom was still sleeping, she would wake at 7:30 for church. Utata wasn't here. Lorna ebesendlini ka nyana wakhe. I drank a glass of water. Each gulp felt like a ticking clock and on my last swallow, I heard a knock on the door.....ndaginya. Who could it be at this hour? I went to the door, unlocked it and opened it. I almost choked. Me: "Lakhe..." he just stared at me. I. Was. Shaking. Me: "what are you doing he-" Lakhe: "ndicela uthathe okwakho. Sigoduke Sphosenkosi." Me: "but bab-" Lakhe: "Now." he hissed.

I looked at him and laughed. Me: "khangene wethu, let me make you breakfast." I went to the kitchen ndimshiya pha emnyango. Me: "how was Tokyo?" Lakhe: "Spho. Umshiya njani umzi wakho kufike abantu? Uthi ithini family yam? I want you back in that house in an hour." Me: "hayi sweetie, I'll be in church in an hour." Lakhe: "I'm not fucking playing with you." Me: "uzandithini ke? Drag me? Go ahead. Andizoyeka obam ubomi because you magically appeared because kaloku wena uyi magician. Andiyazi Noba ku Wednesday na namhlanje." he breathed and turned around ndava ngecango lemoto and the revving then a swoof sound. He was gone. I sighed in relief. I really did have to go to church. I was scared. But at the same time bendinomsindo. Ucimba uyi king yaphi lo? Mama: "Uthetha naban?" she walked in the kitchen with her gown on. Me: "ngu Masilakhe. Wants me to go home. Betsho kubani that uyabuya? Ebethe mos ubuya Wednesday." Mama: "well Spho, maybe he felt guilty and came back earlier. Iya kumnyeni wakho uthethe naye. All this rebellious behavior and being angry for no reason is childish. Iya emnyenini wakho." Me: "xandingafuni mama ndithini?" Mama: "is this about Siyanda?" Me: "No....I genuinely don't trust uLakhe. I get scared." Mama: "why do you get scared?" Me: "he has these moments where he's so angry I can't recognize him. Ndiyamoyika mama. What if he hurts me?" Mama: "he would die before he ever touched you that way. He knows that. Buyela kumntu wakho, talk to him." she boiled water in the kettle. Me: "what do you mean he would die?" Mama: "I would kill him if needs be, nobody gets to hurt my daughter unless they have a death wish." Me: "maa...why you acting weird?" Mama: "I need to be alone." Me: "Oh..." so basically I was being chased out. I went to my bedroom ndayokhangela ilokhwe for church. I would go straight home after the service. I got dressed, packed all my things ndazifaka kwi bags zam ndaphuma nazo. After saying goodbye to my mother I drove to church. I was angry. Umsindo wam wasn't because of Lakhe. My anger was deeply rooted. I was angry because I had a comfortable life before all this drama. I had a great job. I had a house. I had a boyfriend. Why did he have to be so weak? Why was he a jerk? Why did he cheat? Simphiwe was a comfortable person. I wouldn't have to be testing blood on t shirts and running away from crazy psychotic family members. Money really cannot buy happiness. Nothing about all of this is real or happy. I parked my car at church ndayongena kwi service. "Surely He will save you from the fowler's snare and from deadly pestilence. He will cover you with his feathers and under his wings you will find refuge. His faithfulness will be your shield and rampart. You will not fear the terror of night, nor the arrow that flies by day, nor the pestilence that stalks in the darkness nor the plague that destroys at midday. A thousand may fall at your side. Ten thousand at your right hand but it will not come near you." watsho u-Psalm 91 as though ibindiva entliziy'weni. I had to be strong for the little one. I sat in one of the benches at the back listening quietly until the service was over. I still had a heavy heart kunzima ukuphakama. I had to go home. Indlela bendingafuni ngayo you would swear ndithenjjswe ngobulalwa. I had tears in my eyes. I just wanted to die. Kwafuneka ndiphakamile ndihambile. I drove as slow as I possibly could ndade ndayofika. From outside it looked as though akukho mntu. I stopped the car and took out my bags ndayongena endlini. Indeed bekungekho mntu. Yet. I calmed a little walking to my bedroom. When I opened the door, there he was. Masilakhe. Standing by the window with his phone in his ear. Lakhe: "Tengo que ir. Hablaremos despues." he hung up and looked at me. Me: "Hey." Lakhe: "Hi." I put my bags down. Lakhe: "busow'tyile?" Me: "no, I'll make a sandwich. I wasn't feeling well." Lakhe: "okay." Me: "I'm taking these to the laundry room." Lakhe: "Spho..." Me: "hm?" Lakhe: "I'm sorry." Me: "for what?" Lakhe: "for leaving you. For being rude. Being angry. You didn't do anything wrong and you didn't deserve it." Me: "Oh." Lakhe: "undixolele?" Me: "No. You spoke to me like I was rubbish. I tried Masilakhe to tell you things, include you and you didn't want to listen. Then you had the audacity to accuse me of stealing a t shirt and threatening me? That is Not okay." Lakhe: "but uyithathile nje." Me: "I didn't!!! Ndizosthini!" Lakhe: "why are you lying? I'm trying to be reasonable apha." Me: "you're accusing me of lying!" Lakhe: "because you are. Unoske uthethe inyani qha." Me: "I didn't take the t shirt." Lakhe: "I hate being lied to. Uyayazi nawe lonto." Me: "hehake." I took my bags and went to the laundry room ndafaka impahla ku machine and switched it on. I went to the kitchen ndiyokwenza into yokutya. I couldn't stomach anything at all though. Baphi ooDumi? Rob? Nosi? Sands? Where did everyone go? Maybe bazobuya soon. I made a quick peanut butter sandwich and drank mango juice. He walked into the kitchen and looked at me. Me: "what?" Lakhe: "andibethi Spho. I never have. I don't abuse women. Yinton ekwenza ungafuni uthetha inyani? Woyika nton?" Me: "hehake." Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi, ndiyakucela. I'm giving you till tomorrow afternoon. Ubuyisele iskipa sam. In the condition that it was in, kulandawo ubusithatha kuyo. Otherwise, kuyohlwa emini ngakuwe." Me: "I didn't take your t shirt." Lakhe: "you are aware that there are cameras in that closet right? And in all the other bedrooms of this house." oh....fuck. Lakhe: "did you really think I'd leave my house without knowing kwenzeka ntoni phakathi kuyo? I want my t shirt." I swallowed. Me: "I can't." Lakhe: "why not?" Me: "I sent it away." Lakhe: "away ? How?" Me: "xa uyazi undibuzela nton?" Lakhe: "ingaba ndiyathakatha ba ndinoyazi izinto ozenza naphandle." Me: "I just sent it away." Lakhe: "all I'm saying is. Mayibuye. Qha."

I spent my whole afternoon trying to call Bulelani. His phone was off. Why was his stupid phone off! I had to go look for him. But I couldn't use my car. Me: "baby. Can you check my car. Its making a noise." Lakhe: "what noise?" Me: "Andiyazi man. Its like.... Krrrrr. Please check." Lakhe: "I'll call a mechanic." Me: "but I want to go to Steers." Lakhe: "why?" Me: "I crave Steers. Sibu always gets me chocolate milkshakes." Lakhe: "oh." if you were wondering why he wasn't so attentive it was because I 'accidentally found' one of his favorite shows playing on TV. By 'accidentally', I mean on purpose. And by 'found' I mean searched. His focus level was on 26% now. Me: "I'll get an Uber then." Lakhe: "my car doesn't make sound." Me: "I'm scared to drive your car. Masambe sobabini?" Lakhe: "Uber baby." Yayy! I requested my Uber. Ndamlinda patiently. Me: "you want anything?" Lakhe: "no." Me: "okay. I won't be long." Lakhe: "ok." I went to the cab waiting outside and we drove off. I'd switched my phone off on purpose so that I'm untraceable. Ufika kwam at Bulelani's house, it looked locked and unattended. I knocked on the gate, rang the bell and finally waphuma. Me: "hey!" BN: "what's up. Why ulapha so early?" he rubbed his eyes. Me: "its 4pm. I need to get the shirt back." BN: "why?" Me: "its a matter of life and death." BN: "I'm not done ngayo. I said by Friday." Me: "all you had to do was get samples of the blood or traces or whatever." BN: "its a lot more complicated than that. But if you want it, uzoyifumana. For 2k of course." Me: "are you fucking serious?" BN: "I broke the first rule, this is the second and I'm going to break the 3rd to get the results for you in Days. Do you realize I've put this issue of yours in top priority? People wait weeks for results. Months even. Do you want to wait that long?" Me: "I don't. Just give me back the t shirt." BN: "no problem. Buya apha ksasa. Around 10." Me: "okay. I'll be here." I went back to the cab and we left for Steers ndayothenga take aways zam. I finally went home. When I walked in the door, he looked at me. Lakhe: "you really went to Steers?" Me: "that's what I said mos." Lakhe: "ndazelaphi izinto zakho kaloku." I sat down and started eating. Me: "Where's everyone?" Lakhe: "I sent them home." Me: "why?" Lakhe: "this is our house. We will live together only from now on." Me: "why?" he just looked at me. Me: "we were fine njena." Lakhe: "and we'll continue to be fine. I don't want crowds in my house. I want to come home from work, kukho mfazi wam epheka supper for us both." Me: "I'll be at work too." Lakhe: "okay. Unjani umntanam? Is she kicking?" Me: "we need to talk about the baby." Lakhe: "talk nganton?" Me: "before uye eTokyo, I went to the doctor." Lakhe: "what for?" Me: "for a check up. I wanted to surprise you in Tokyo. Turns out the baby has an echogenic focus on his heart." Lakhe: "what's that? Some kind of disease?" Me: "not really... Usually they mean nothing, but there is a test we could take to make sure nothing is wrong." Lakhe: "Usually? And if its not usually?" Me: "the baby may have problems after birth." Lakhe: "how safe is this test?" Me: "its safe.....the only risk may be a miscarriage but its unlikely to happen." Lakhe: "so, let me get this straight. There is something on my child's heart, that may or may not be a problem. Whereby taking a test to make sure, actually risks his life all together?" Me: "well-" Lakhe: "we're not doing that fucking test. My child is FINE. Akana niks erongo lomntana." Me: "Masilakhe, I'm not comfortable with that. What if-" Lakhe: "there are NO what ifs Spho! None whatsoever. This child stays undisturbed in your belly until he's ready to come out. I don't want nothing to disrupt his growth. Uze ke wena ujikele emven kwam uyoyenza lento." I looked at the TV. Lakhe: "undivile Spho?" Me: "I heard you." so far, it sucked being married. You can't even make decisions for yourself funeke uginye qha. I hated it. Lakhe: "yintoni ngoku?" I looked at him. Lakhe: "Spho, honestly. Do you really want to risk the life of our second baby?" Me: "why would you even think that?" Lakhe: "uqumbile mos!" Me: "Yinton le uyibonayo kum ithi ndiqumbile?" Lakhe: "that attitude for one." Me: "I'm not comfortable. That's all." Lakhe: "what makes you uncomfortable?" Me: "the baby. I'm afraid something is wrong and I'm ignoring it because of you. I'm the one that feels this baby from inside." Lakhe: "so Uthi andikhathali mna?" Me: "I didn't say that." Lakhe: "that's what it sounds like." Me: "Lakhe, I'm tired. Can you give me some space alone please?" Lakhe: "space? Why?" Me: "ndidiniwe." Lakhe: "then what do you need space for?" Good God. Why couldn't he just bloody disappear! I got up and went to the bedroom. He followed. Lakhe: "baby... Look, I don't want to lie, losing my baby sendimazi oluhlobo ezikhulela kamandi in your belly, it scares me. I don't want that to happen. If awukho comfortable, I'm here. I can massage you, I can make you food. Anything you want. Kodwa, Andifun ulahlekelwa ngumntanam. Please understand this." Me: "I understand." I sat on top of the bed. My feet were extremely swollen and sore. My back was aching. Me: "can you keep quiet for a few minutes and massage my tummy?" Lakhe: "okay, ndiyeza. I have to take this call first." he answered his phone ephuma.

I woke up a couple of hours later. He was on the bed, staring at me. Me: "creepy Lento uyenzayo." Lakhe: "kukho number that keeps calling you on your phone, xandiphendula. Icime." Me: "ubuphendulela nton phone engengo yakho." Lakhe: "I bought it though." mental note: ngomso lo usayo. Buy myself a new phone. Me: "is that so?" Lakhe: "then kwangena message..." Me: "and you read it didn't you?" Lakhe: "you switched off your on screen notifications and changed your password. Ufihla ntoni Spho?" Me: "I could ask you the same question." Lakhe: "it can't be an affair. I know you're not that stupid. What is it that you're hiding?" Me: "nothing." Lakhe: "then kutheni uzotshintsha password." Me: "after someone accessing your computer easily, ubufuna ndithin?" Lakhe: "that's not it. I know you're hiding something. I know futhi it has to do with me. I will look for it, and when I find it... All hell will break loose." Me: "are you threatening me? Again?" Lakhe: "this isn't a threat. Ndiyak'xelela qha, regard it as a notification." Me: "good....because you wouldn't be that stupid." Lakhe: "what's that suppose to mean?" Me: "If you keep on threatening me, I will urgently show you something to be threatened of. Ba awunandlela yothetha nam. Vala umlomo wakho uthule. I have been patient enough with your ass. Uyandidika ngoku straight. I dare you one more fucking time to make an empty threat. Kuzokwaziwana Masilakhe." he got up and walked out the bedroom with half a chuckle. I heard him whisper a tune all the way to the lounge then all of a sudden.....he kept quiet.

I spent my Sunday night alone in my bedroom. I don't know where Lakhe slept and I didn't care. As long as engekho ecamkwam. I woke up on Monday and started cleaning the bedroom. Half of me wanted to unpack his bags ndiyomenzela washing like a wife should, half of me didn't want to because uzothi I'm meddling. Ndayeka kunjalo. I went to shower ndaphuma ndayonxiba. I didn't have anywhere to go today so perhaps if I could go check on uZingi. I tried calling her, phone yakhe yabe i-off. I wore my soft socks ndaphuma eroomin ndisiya ekitchen. I was hearing people, whispering so I slowed down and listened. Lakhe: "what are you talking about?" Sands: "remember you sent me to pay off Fernandez?" Lakhe: "don't tell me he still wants more. I've finished paying my debt." Sands: "that's not it. He gave me a message that comes from Komander." Lakhe: "K? The man without a face? No one has ever seen him. Sepua's and Fernandez's boss." Sands: "Yes." Lakhe smiled. Lakhe: "he wants to do business?" Sands: "No... He has a message for you." Lakhe: "a message? Uthini? How does he know me?" Sands: "God, Lakhe what have you done." Lakhe: "Thetha man!" Sands: "He says, should you hurt the closest person to your heart, your heart will be the closest thing to him." Lakhe: "what...what does that mean?" Sands: "you suspected Khaya to be in some kind of dealings? What if..... he's the Komander? He's K." Lakhe: "that's impossible. I searched Khaya. He's clean." Sands: "this man disappeared for years. The same amount of time that Khaya lived in Cuba." Lakhe: "Khaya? Naaah... It can't be." Sands: "Bhuti. I don't know about you, but andiyingeni tuuu ke le. Ngu pepepe ka Peri Peri lo uzifake kuye." Lakhe: "Khaya is always working at the hospital. I kept a tail on him. I know his moves." Sands: "what about this Siya dude?" Lakhe: "Oh My God, Don't tell me about Mr Goody Pants, Mayor of Vanillatown. He's not K." Sands: "are you comfortable nalamntu around here?" Lakhe: "I don't have a choice Sandile. Siyanda is my ticket back to Spho's heart. He Needs to be around." Sands: "andiyiva Lento uyithethayo but back to K's message." Lakhe: "what if.....Komander is not connected to Spho. What if its someone else?" Sands: "who else are you close to?" Lakhe: "nguwe, uNosi, Sibulele... I don't know! Sandile, Komander is known for riddle messages and being confusing so that singayifumani move yakhe." Sands: "Keep your friends close, and your enemies closer!! This is not someone you love Lakhe, he's talking about someone you want to get rid of." Lakhe: "I've never been so mind fucked." Sands: "nguban enemy yakho." Lakhe: "its obvious ngulo Siyanda wasekunyeni." Sands: "You better make damn sure nothing happens kula Siyanda bhuti. I don't want to be an orphan mna." Lakhe: "my question is, why is he here? To torment me?" Sands: "probably. Kuzofuneka unyamezele ke. Its going to be one hell of a situation. Hopefully Spho loves you enough to stick to you." Lakhe: "Spho is the least of my problems. I can't lose my business and most importantly my credibility kwi business. Maybe I should get to know Siya. He can't be that bad, right?" Sands: "Wrong. But good luck though." I tip toed back to the bedroom ndahlala phezukwe bhedi processing everything I heard. Siyanda was connected to one of the biggest drug dealers that ever lived? Because I know for a fact it wasn't me. My dad haates anything illegal. He's vindictive, yes. But never involved in anything criminal. It had to be Siyanda. I don't even know him that well. I took the money I had in my wallet and sat again on the bed shoving it in my boob. I was thinking of trying to get out the house without being noticed. Lakhe: "hey.." he walked in the bedroom. Me: "hi." Lakhe: "kudala uhleli?" Me: "yeah. Ndiphuma kwi shower. Let me go make food." Lakhe: "okay. Nam ndizovasa ngoku." I went to the lounge and requested an Uber. Ndazulisa nge kitchen and juice. When my cab arrived I went out the house ndayokhwela and drove away.

After my exchange with Bulelani, I went back home. The results would be in by Friday. Andiyazi ndizozithini results kodwa ndizobona ngolwezihlanu. I got off the car ndayongena endlini. Lakhe: "and then?" Me: "and then what?" Lakhe: "why would you just disappear like that!" Me: "I went to fetch this." I gave him the plastic with his t shirt in it. He took out the t shirt wayijonga. Then he threw it inside the fireplace. Me: "what are you doing?" he lit a match and tossed in there too. Immediately catching fire on the t shirt. Lakhe: "now that its gone, I don't have to worry about it being stolen again. Bendibawela sithethe." Me: "about what?" Lakhe: "Us. I'm genuinely sorry." Me: "Okay." Lakhe: "I want us to go back to being in love." Me: "you mean, me being blind." Lakhe: "you're not blind, you never were." Me: "Did you ever close your drug dealing business." he looked at me for a few seconds. Lakhe: "Yes." Hesitation means Lies. Me: "so, you're not involved in any illegal activities whatsoever." Lakhe: "Ewe baby." Me: "Masilakhe, you remember ndikuxelela that I would leave? I wasn't playing. I will Not be involved with a criminal. EVER." Lakhe: "kodwa ayikho fair Lento uyenzayo Spho. Why are you always threatening to leave me-" Me: "I'm not threatening to leave you! I am telling you andizomelana nobuthuvi mna!!!! I am not your control bunny! Andizokhonza wena! If you do not clean up, I'm not going to bother neither. Tshini undenza isbhanxa mos." I opened the fridge to make food for myself. I hadn't eaten all day and ndilambile. Lakhe: "you're not going to leave." Me: "suziqhelisa ukuzibhanxa." Lakhe: "Spho uyandithanda. If you wanted to leave, you would've left a long time ago." Me: "you're right. This baby is the only thing that's keeping me here." he kept quiet. Lakhe: "we can work through this. Maybe we should try counseling." Me: "I'm not sick. You're so used to being like this, any sign of being normal is sick to you. Xandingafuni ubane gintsa Masilakhe, andizobane gintsa. I'm not going to swallow my morals because of love. If you can't change your behavior, ayindifuni leyo mna." Lakhe: "but andilo gintsa mna." Me: "whatever it is that you are." Lakhe: "ufuna ndithini to prove it to you." Me: "uzucimba ubhanxa mna." I took my food to the lounge. Lakhe: "kodwa Spho wena Noba ndithethe inyani uzondishiya." Me: "I thought I couldn't leave apparently." I ate. He stood by the couch. Lakhe: "Don't you remember our vows? For better or for worse?" Me: "you can't throwing that at me. Unless ufuna ndiqale nge 10 Commandments." Lakhe: "I really thought you loved me. All this time. That I'd finally found someone who doesn't care about the money I have. Why uzondenza lento." Me: "if that's your version of emotional blackmail, I strongly suggest you go to the mirror and practice. Maybe put some onion near your eyes. Look convincing." Lakhe: "I don't know when you became so heartless." Me: "ndibona apha kuwe. Uzilibele? Hayi noko ithe chatha ubugqwirha ba mawungazikhumbuli izinto ubuzenza. Remember the few days before Tokyo. How you left me here alone? Inyani ine khala ke yona shame. Ayifunwa ngumntu." ndaqhubeka ngokutya okwam. He just stared at me. I stared at the TV iyilonto. Lakhe: "You know your little friend does a whole lot worse than me." Me: "I know. At least he's honest and I'm not married to him." Lakhe: "Spho ufuna ndithini ke!" Me: "wena ufuna uthini." Lakhe: "for fucks sake!" he yelled. Then walked out the house.

Tuesday morning. I woke up and he was right next to me. Again. Me: "do you ever sleep?" Lakhe: "ndizolala njani umntu wam endimthandayo efuna ukundishiya?" (how do I sleep when the love of my life wants to leave me.) Me: "you know my conditions." Lakhe: "but you're so wrapped in this perfect Siya guy, awunayo ne chance yam." (I have no chance) Me: "maybe I am wrapped. But I've spent two days with you, ignoring him. What does that tell you?" Lakhe: "but I can't be like him." Me: "I don't want you to be like him! That's the thing, I want you to be you, without all this drama that you drag along." Lakhe: "uxolo kaloku baby..." (I'm sorry) he moved closer to me. Lakhe: "at least I only belong to you." Me: "I know that. Usondeliswa Yinton kengoku?" (why are you moving closer?) Lakhe: "ndicela uphuza?" (Can I get a kiss?) Me: "is that your being nice? And attentive?" Lakhe: "No. Ndiyakthanda Spho. You just keep rejecting me." (I love you Spho.) Me: "I reject you because undenza istuji." (you're making me a fool.) Lakhe: "uxolo ke baby." (I'm sorry baby.) Me: "Uthi uxolo kuba ubatyiwe nje. You don't mean it." (you're sorry because you're horny.) Lakhe: "I do mean it. As a matter of fact, ndiyokwenza breakfast ngoku for umfazi wam ndimvise kamandi. Then I will take her to a spa, then after that ndimse kwi shopping." (as a matter of fact I'm going to make breakfast right now for my wife, make her feel special.) Me: "as sweet as that sounds. I can do it all by myself. Ndodwa." (Alone.) Lakhe: "I know one thing you can't do for yourself." Me: "and that is what?" Lakhe: "you can't eat your own pussy.." Me: "Wow. Unzulu shame." (you're deep.) Lakhe: "uyakwazi ke?" (well can you?) Me: "ndifuna uyovasa." (I'm going to shower.) Lakhe: "awufuni ndikuvise?" (can I show you?" Me: "No thank you." Lakhe: "u-sure? I build yachts with my tongue...." Me: "hehe. Khame ndiyovasa Masilakhe." (I'm going to bath Masilakhe) Lakhe: "want me to join you?" Me: "no, just make breakfast. Uhlale ukule mood." (stay in that mood.) Lakhe: "okay ke baby. Ungandiphoxi nawe." (don't snap at me as well.) I got up and went to the bathroom ndiyovasa. I showered for a while, ndaphuma ebathroom. He was still laying on the bed. Me: "ayiphumi kengoku le breakfast." (so I'm guessing no breakfast?" Lakhe: "i-ready i-breakfast." (the breakfast is ready.) Me: "why are you looking so fucky." Lakhe: "umhle kodwa umfazi wam." (but you're beautiful my wife.) Me: "ayisebenzi lento uyenzayo. Ubune threats. Hours ago. Now all of a sudden ndimhle? Umhle nawe baby." (What you're doing isn't going to work. You were threatening me hours ago, now all of a sudden I'm beautiful? Then you're also beautiful.) Lakhe: "ndicela ukuyibona ke? Just once?" (can I at least see it. Just one?) Me: "Andifuni." (I don't want to.) Lakhe: "awusengcole. Baby, can I get one at least? For being faithful ke? Khandi compensate for uphelela kuwe." (you're being mean.) Me: "No that was part of your vows, andingeni ndawo mna." Lakhe: "Yoh. Ndiya punish'wa apha kodwa." (now I'm being punished.) Me: "uzobane ndlela yotheha nempatho. I-manners uzozichola naphantsi if necessary." (that means you'll learn some manners and a way of talking. You'll pick them up from the floor if necessary.) Lakhe: "ufuna ukutya nton?" (what you gonna eat?) Me: "just cereal." ugqiba kwam uthambisa pha ecamkwakhe. I went to look for something to wear. He went to make me my cereal. After getting dressed, I changed the sheets and made the bed over taking the sheets to the laundry room. Ugqiba kwam I went to the kitchen. Lakhe: "naku baby ukutya kwakho." (here's Your food baby.) Me: "thank you." we heard the gate buzz. Lakhe: "ngubani kengoku lowo at this time?" (who the hell is that at this time?) Me: "Inoba zii-neighbors zakho kaloku." (probably your neighbors) he went to open the gate. Lakhe: "abeva aba ne?" (these ones don't listen.) Me: "ngubani lowo?" (Who?) Lakhe: "uDumisani uSibulele noSandile." Me: "ibi unfair eyoba mawubagxoth abanye kodwa." (it was unfair for you to throw them out in the first place.) Lakhe: "this is my and yours house though. Suppose kuhlala thina qha apha!" (Suppose we live together only.) Sandile opened the door. Sands: "Good morning family!" Dumi: "Molweni." he was pushed in b Sibu. Sibu: "molweni bhuti." (greetings) Me: "hey guys." Lakhe: "I sent a group message. Nizothini apha?" (what are you doing here?) Sands: "hayi kaloku bhuti. Asizanga kwi side lakho. Our side is the other one, therefore asikho sendlini yakho." (big brother, we didn't come to your side of the house, ours is the other one. Therefore we're not in your house.) Lakhe: "its still my house. I paid for it. All of it." Sands: "Spho, khathethe nomfana wethu, ndisayo pakisha izinto zam mna." (Spho, please talk to this man I'm going to unpack.) Sibu: "uhm.... Akhange ndiyifumane imemo mna." p Dumi: "what was the memo?" Lakhe: "mxim." he walked to the bedroom. Dumi: "let me go to the bathroom. Ndiyabuya guys." (I'll be back guys.) he wheeled himself away. I poured the cereal down the drain ndavasa isitya and made myself toast. I don't care if he saw it on camera. I'm pregnant. I have the utmost right to change my mind. I ate my buttered toast and juice. We went to the lounge. Sibu: "so..." Me: "look at the fireplace." Sibu: "what about it?" Me: "its there." I led him out to the garden. Sibu: "the t shirt?" he whispered. Me: "Yes. He burnt it. Now he's definitely hiding something." Sibu: "as long as ingekho kuwe anymore. I don't want anything to happen to you." Me: "worse kengoku I think Siya is up to something. He may be connected to some big drug dealer called K." Sibu: "the man without a face?" Me: "apparently." Sibu: "but nobody has ever seen him. Only two people communicate with him. Uyazi njani?" Me: "Sandile was here izolo, I overheard him telling uLakhe that he received a message from K via Ferna something. The message said, should you hurt the closest thing to your heart, your heart will be the closest thing to me." Sibu: "shit. And?" Me: "he's been trying to break down the riddle. My family is clean. I don't have any gangsters in it. My dad haates anything illegal. My mother isn't even an option. Tanci uligwala ke. Then they somehow managed to break down the message. It could be a riddle. The 'keep your friends close and your enemies closer,' so what if the closest person to Lakhe is his enemy?" Sibu: "this is deep. I know Lakhe is dangerous. Kodwa, things I've heard about K. He's the type of person that causes nightmares and trips to psychiatrists. Its just that damn traumatizing." Me: "so, now, Siya ndimsusa kum ndimbeka pha kude. I don't want to be in the middle of this shit." (I'm putting Siya out of my life.) Sibu: "and uright. You could get seriously hurt. Or die." Me: "let's go back inside...."

Late on Tuesday afternoon, I got a call from my father. I decided to answer it. I was curious to hear what he had to say. Me: "hello?" Khaya: "molo mntanam. Unjani?" (Greetings my child, how are you?) Me: "I'm good. Unjani tata?" Khaya: "I'm fine thank you. How's the baby? Ude wa-decider ukuyenza test?" (decided to do the test?) Me: "Yes. I've decided not to do it. Everything will be fine, even if it isn't. Sizoyibona nomnyeni wam." (I'll deal with it, with my husband.) Khaya: "that's great my love. I just missed you. Akhonto ibitheni. I know lately I seem to be trailing off as utatakho and I want you to know I'm fully behind you with what you want. I understand that is your husband. I will try my best to accept him and bless your marriage. Andifuni ungonwabi ngenxa yam." (I don't want you unhappy because of me.) Me: "enkosi tata. Is everything okay?" Khaya: "well....yes." Me: "tata..." Khaya: "Oh princess yam. Its so difficult. I'm not coping." Me: "with what?" Khaya: "I..." the phone cut off. I know for a fact he didn't drop it. It was cut off. What the hell was happening. Lakhe: "everything okay?" Me: "I think my dad is in some kind of issue." Lakhe: "issue how?" Me: "I don't know. Something seemed off over the phone. I'm scared." Lakhe: "ufuna uyombona baby?" Me: "yeah." I wore my shoes quickly and took my keys. Lakhe: "let me drive." I tossed him the keys. We drove to Newton Park quickly. As soon as the car parked I got off and went to knock on the door. Silence. His car was in the driveway. I know for a fact he was inside. Maybe being held hostage by a robber. Me: "we need to break down the door." Mama: "why do you want to break down my door?" she opened and looked at me then at Lakhe. Mama: "molweni." she smiled. Me: "hi mama. Uphi utata?" Mama: "he's taking a nap. Why?" Me: "I was talking to him on the phone and it just cut off." Mama: "his battery probably died." Me: "can I see him?" Mama: "definitely. But no noise or talking, he hasn't slept in days and he has to be at work tomorrow." she led us to the bedroom and opened the door. Mama: "See? He's sound asleep." she whispered. My dad was curled up on the bed sleeping. His stomach was moving in and out so he was breathing fine. Thank goodness. I breathed in relief. He's absolutely fine. We closed the door. Mama: "why were you worried?" Me: "I thought he probably got sick like a heart attack or something. We were talking on the phone when he said that he wasn't okay and he wasn't coping." we sat in the lounge. Mama: "yes, its been very difficult mntanam ever since your father came back from Cuba he hasn't coped properly. I don't know if he's underworked or stressed but the conditions he was working in in Cuba he got used to, now apha everything is so different. Maybe he misses Cuba. He might go back." Me: "you want him to go back?" Mama: "of course not my angel, but the same as when someone is overworked and stressed it also happens when you're underworked. I just want what's best for his wellbeing." Lakhe: "That's true ma. Maybe I should talk to him when he's available and see where I can help." Mama: "that would be great nyana. I'm going to see uLorna for a while to give him some quiet time." Me: "yeah we should go too. Please tell him to call me when he's awake." Mama: "I'll tell him my angel. Enkosi for visiting." we said our goodbyes and left the house. Lakhe: "what do you think?" Me: "maybe he's sick and doesn't want to stress me." Lakhe: "then why were you worried?" Me: "it just cut off while we were talking, it was so weird." we drove quietly to our house. When we arrived Sandile was in the kitchen cooking. Sibu and Dumi standing around talking to him. I went straight to my room with Boogie to take a nap. Lakhe entered the kitchen. Sands: "Hey lover boy." Lakhe: "we need to talk." Dumi held his wheels beginning to wheel out. Lakhe: "stay exactly where you are." he looked out the kitchen door. Lakhe: "something weird is going on in that house." he whispered. Sibu: "what house bhuti." Lakhe: "k'lo Spho." Dumi: "weird how? Illegal weird? Or just voodoo weird?" Lakhe: "I think her dad is The Kommander." Dumi: "who's that?" Lakhe: "Sandile." Sands: "The Komander is an internationally known criminal. Who deals everything from drugs, to cars to humans. A man that has never been seen by anyone, no one knows what he looks like, where he is, we just know he exists. People that cross that guy, go missing." Sibu: "why would you think utata ka Spho is The Komander? He's not exactly thug material." Lakhe: "its just a feeling I have. He has disappeared for years to Cuba, The first time he met me he said I was a criminal, how would he have known that? And I just got a message from him recently. Why wouldn't he be?" Dumi: "That's just circumstantial Lakhe. From the way You've described Komander, he seems like a dark and sinister person. I can't imagine Khaya like that. He has a daughter, why would he traffic humans?" Lakhe: "I don't know man." Sands: "what exactly happened before and when you got there?" Lakhe: "well, Spho was on the phone with him. Then it cut off and she got worried. So I offered to drive her there. Safika uKhaya elele." Sibú: "okay, that is weird. Ebephi umama?" Lakhe: "she was there. She says he's been stressed lately and wants to go back to Cuba." Dumí: "What if.....what if its not Khaya?" Lakhe: "what are you talking about? I saw him sleeping with my own eyes." Dumí: "what if he's not Komander but someone he knows is." Lakhe: "someone like who?" Dumí: "when did The Komander send the message?" Lakhe: "I got the message yesterday." Sibú: "what was the message?" Lakhe: "should I hurt the closest person to my heart, my heart will be the closest thing to him." Dumí: "The closest person to your heart? Spho?" Sands: "it would never be that direct. But let's admit it, either way you look at it, she is in the centre of The Komander's words. I thought maybe he meant in the sense that, Keep your friends close and enemies closer." Sibú: "Yeah, I'm with that theory too because its obvious you wouldn't hurt Spho. So the million dollar question is, Who is your enemy?" Sands: "can I draw up a list?" Lakhe: "I've always had enemies Sibú. Always. But the most recent one nguSiyanda. I like the guy, I just don't want him near Spho. And Khaya adores him." Dumí: "Siya and Khaya are both your enemies. The Komander could be Siya." Sands: "absolutely not. I refuse to believe that candy floss of a human being is a cold hearted killer." Dumí: "Killer, no. Psychopath? Well..... You don't know him that well. Every psychopath I've ever come across fits Siyanda's profile like a glove." Sands: "what profile Dumisani?" Dumí: "The key attributes of a psychopath being calculating, ability to fit in, form friendships, be calm and very attractive so as to be able to charm others." Sands: "did you just call another man very attractive? I will definitely be spending less time with you." Dumí: "They're skilled actors. They're like pet snakes, they keep measuring your body size while cuddling you and starving themselves for weeks, and once they're sure you're at your most vulnerable, you trust them with your life and they've worked up an incredible appetite to devour, they kill you." Sandile dropped the pot lid. Lakhe: "Dumí, how sure are you of this?" Dumí: "I'm not saying he is one but I wouldn't rule him out immediately. Siyanda is very available. That, on its own, is dangerous." Lakhe: "Sibú, can you find out about Siyanda's life in joburg?" Sibú: "definitely. What's his surname?" Lakhe: "Kusile." Sands: "I am convinced Siya is Komander." Lakhe: "not just yet man Sandile." Sands: "Kusile? It has dawned? Lakhe stop being naïve, we need to face the hard cold truth. Siyanda is here to kill you."

I was woken up from my nap by Boogie licking my face. Me: "hey honey. Uvuswa Yinton?" I sat up. Lakhe was sitting on the bedroom chair deep in thought. Me: "hey." he looked up. Lakhe: "Hi. How was your nap?" Me: "it was good." my phone buzzed I picked it up and saw Siyanda's name on my screen. Lakhe: "something wrong?" Me: "No." I silenced it and put it down again. Me: "sephakile uSandile?" Lakhe: "no." the phone rang again. Lakhe: "why aren't you answering your phone?" I answered to avoid an argument. Me: "Hello?" Siya: "Hey, for a second I thought you were ignoring me." Me: "why would you think that." I got up to walk to the sliding door, before I even reached it Lakhe grabbed my arm. How did he ... Siya: "okay, I was hoping I'd see you. I don't have friends here, so I thought maybe we could hang out." I looked at Lakhe, he was nodding. Me: "yeah that would be cool." Lakhe: "here." he whispered. Me: "You want to come here?" Siya: "uhm, I don't want to step on your husband's toes. Would he be comfortable if I was there while he's in Tokyo." Me: "he's actually back. So its fine." Siya: "perfect. I'll be there in an hour." Me: "see you then." I hung up. Me: "why are you hurting my arm? What's wrong with you?" Lakhe: "Why were you walking out the house?" Me: "I was coming to open the sliding door for fresh air. What in the world are you on about?" Lakhe: "Oh. I'm sorry baby. What did he say?" Me: "what is going on?" Lakhe: "nothing. I just thought we'd spend time with our new friend." Me: "We?" Lakhe: "yes." I looked at him questionably. He was up to something. Me: "okay, I'm going to the bathroom. Tell the guys to set the table, I'll be out in 10 minutes." Lakhe: "sure." I went to the bathroom he dashed out the room. Siby and Sands were chilling in the lounge watching TV. Lakhe: "Uphi uDumi?" Sands: "he went to wash his hands, uyeza. What's up." Lakhe: "he's coming." Sands: "I just said that." Lakhe: "no I mean uSiya-" Sands: "what!! Why!" Lakhe: "Calm down-" Sands: "what do you mean calm down- why would you invite a psychopath in my house?" Lakhe: "Your house?" Sands: "you know what I mean. Lakhe, this is not a good idea." Lakhe: "Siby, what did you find?" Siby: "absolutely nothing. He doesn't even have a speeding ticket." Lakhe: "any friends?" Siby: "surprisingly no. You'll find this interesting. My source says he barely hung out with anyone. Well, that is ever since his best friend went missing." Dumi rolled in his wheelchair. Dumi: "who went missing?" Sands: "Siya's best friend in joburg." Lakhe: "what happened?" Siby: "well, this guy, uhm Rey something bebethanda Uhlala kunye at all times and then one day, they just stopped talking, the next day he never pitched for work. Then days turned into weeks, to a month and two, they found him 4 months later. he'd been mutilated. Ears, eyes and tongue cut out. He had an X carved onto his chest and his skin was decaying. That was it." they all stared at him. Sands: "all this time uhleli apha ecamkwam, withholding such information. Unzulu yazi Sibulele." Dumi: "Damn." Lakhe: "why did they stop talking?" Siby: "nobody knows." Sands: "I have a theory. Based on him being mutilated, he saw something he wasn't supposed to. He was going to rat and ebengamameli." Lakhe: "question is, what did he see." Dummi: "any relatives of Rey? Any other person he was close to?" Sibuh: "I haven't gotten that far, why?" Dummi: "the day he stopped talking to Siya, perhaps he mentioned why to someone. Someone could know the reason the two stopped talking." Sibuh: "I'm on it." Lakhe: "No, later. I want you to keep eyes on him, all of you." Dummi: "uhm, what do you mean?" Lakhe: "he's joining us for dinner." The bedroom door opened. Lakhe: "guys I've been telling you to set the table for 8 minutes now. Kuske kuthin ningeva? Spho, baby khazobona!" I walked to the lounge. Sandile sprang out his seat and went to the kitchen followed by Sibuh. Lakhe: "abeva abantwana bakho badala." Dummi looked constipated with the look on his face. Dummi: "I think I need to lie down." Lakhe: "no you don't. We have a guest. You can help set the table." Me: "Lakhe subayi bully man. Dummi go lie down-" Lakhe: "Dummi is not tired at all. He's helping me set the table." he wheeled Dummi to the dining table. I tidied the lounge they had been sitting in and opened the large sliding door to let some air in. After an hour wafika Siya. I opened the front door for him which was a horrible mistake. His cologne made my knees buckle and my mouth started watering. He looked at me. I looked at him. What now? My eyes slipped down to his thighs where his jeans were hugging his legs. Shit. Siya: "hey." Me: "hi." I managed to say. Siya: "I bought you a milkshake." I smiled. Me: "thank you." Siya: "Double chocolate. You'll love it." Me: "I do. Come in." he stepped inside the house and I hated myself for wanting to hold him. Lakhe: "Hey!" he shook his hand. Siya: "Hi Masilakhe. Unjani?" Lakhe: "I'm great. You've met the guys. We're about to have dinner. Come sit." I disappeared to the kitchen. Sandile was oddly quiet. Me: "do you need help?" Sands: "I do not." Me: "you okay?" he nodded. Me: "Sibuh, come say hi to Siy-" Sibuh: "yeah, I'm just gonna help Sands for a second." alright. I went back to the lounge. Lakhe was chatting to Siya. Dummi sat nearby staring at them. Me: "can I get you some juice or alcohol Siya?" Siya: "I thought you knew me by now." he smiled. Me: "preferences change." Siya: "mine don't." Me: "orange juice then?" Siya: "thank you." Dummi: "I'll get it Spho." if I didn't know any better, I'd say those 3 are avoiding Siya. My question is why? I sat on the opposite couch. Lakhe: "so, have you decided on staying in PE or ubuyela eJoburg?" Siya: "I'll be staying here for a while." Lakhe: "what about your life in joburg? I'm sure your best friend is going to miss you." Siya kept quiet. Dummi returned with the juice. Lakhe: "or is he here too?" Siya: "I don't have a best friend." he said darkly. Siya: "thank you." he took the glass of OJ. Lakhe: "every man has a best friend. Eyam ngu Dummi, we even live together ndlela le andithanda ngayo." Dummi: "Is that so? You don't want me to leave!" Lakhe: "I believe I kicked you and your buddies out on Sunday." Dumisani: "mxim. So Siya what do you do?" Siya: "I'm a doctor." he looked at me. Lakhe: "a General Practitioner. He's super great. Ebeyi Chief of the hospital in Joburg." Dumisani: "oh that's amazing." Siya: "not that big a deal." he sipped his juice still staring at me. Me: "have you spoken to utata lately?" Siya: "we spoke on Sunday. Why?" Me: "well, he doesn't seem okay. He said he wasn't." Siya: "Oh. Your mom arrived endlinam few hours ago esitsho naye. She's worried about him but he'll be fine." Me: "I thought you worked together and saw each other every day." Siya: "this week is a bit busy." he sipped his juice again. Sands: "dinner is served." he brought the plates and food to the dining table sayohlaleni phantsi. Siya: "have you been exercising?" Me: "Yes." Siya: "taking your vitamins?" Me: "Yes. Why?" Siya: "Nothing. Just making sure." after saying grace we ate our meal and afterwards I went to wash the dishes. Siyanda and Lakhe were sitting in the lounge talking. Dumisani was helping me with the dishes. After we were finished I went to join them for a game of monopoly. Everyone began to loosen up then. After two games, we relaxed in the lounge just chatting. Sibuleka kept disappearing with his phone. I wonder uncokola nabani encume kangaka. It was after 8pm when Siya got ready to leave. I was a little sleepy now. Me: "let me walk you out. Siya: "it was great chilling with you guys, Thank you Lakhe." Lakhe: "its always a pleasure man, you're always welcome." Sands: "have a safe trip." I walked Siya out to his car. Siya: "so...that was nice." Me: "it was. Thank you for coming." Siya: "thank you for inviting me. Sandile reminds me so much of my younger self." I giggled. Me: "I don't believe you were a Sandile. He's an idiot." he laughed. Siya: "you should get back inside. There's a bit of a chill." Me: "okay." we both kept quiet and stared at each other. I didn't know what to say really. Siya: "I don't want to come between you." Me: "I know." Siya: "I don't know if I can control myself when I'm around you. I miss you everyday Spho. I hope Lakhe knows what he's doing." he kissed my forehead. Siya: "get inside the house." I walked up to the door and closed it behind me. My team was lazing on the couch watching soccer. I stood by the TV. Lakhe: "hey babe." Me: "don't 'hey babe' me. What was that about?" Lakhe: "what?" Me: "you wanted me to invite him here to hang out with you. Why?" Lakhe: "I wanted to get to know him. Is that a bad thing?" Me: "then why were these three acting weird?" Sands: "I wasn't acting weird." Me: "you were dead quiet the entire time. Sibuleka was disappearing and reappearing like a magician. Dumisani looked like he was mid heart attack the whole time. Is there something you guys want to share?" Sands: "mid heart attack." he dissolved onto the floor laughing hysterically. Me: "I'm going to bed." I went to my room to sleep.

Sibu: "can I talk?" Lakhe: "yima." they watched TV for a few minutes. Lakhe: "so.... What did you find?" Sibu: "Rey's sister committed suicide the day after his body was discovered. And that's the only family he had." Lakhe: "how did she die." Sibu: "in her autopsy they found cyanide in her blood stream." Dumi: "Good grief, cyanide? She drank cyanide?" Sibu: "well....that's what the report said. Ruled out as suicide." Lakhe: "she definitely did not drink cyanide voluntarily." Sands: "I think someone paid her a visit. As you would a grieving friend, offering to make her something to eat and so forth." Dumi: "There's a vibe about this guy man. I've never been so sure that he was the one that murdered Rey. Did you see how he was when you asked about a best friend. He just changed." Sibu: "if there was any doubt in my mind. Its gone now. Sands, what are you thinking?" Sands: "Siyanda doesn't have a killing mechanism." Lakhe: "but you just said-" Sands: "I know what I said. He's just not the guy." Dumi: "Sandile, this is a psychopath. You don't know what he's capable of." Sands: "he doesn't show the signs of a murderer Dumisani but that doesn't mean he doesn't know someone who does." Lakhe: "so we're back to square one." Sands: "not necessarily. Siyanda may not be Komander but he knows exactly who he is."

Lakhe came into bed a few hours later. I felt the bed move but he didn't come close. I turned around and moved to his side. Lakhe: "uhleli kanti?" I pulled him closer and kissed his lips. Lakhe: "bab-" I pulled down his briefs and massaged his cock. Lakhe: "oh...wow...." I went under the covers and filled him in my mouth. Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi." I sucked on him long and hard, swallowing him in and gargling him out. I went further down to his balls and gently sucked while stroking him. His thighs were shaking. Lakhe: "ahhhhhh shittttt!!!" he groaned as he orgasmed. I sucked his length back in my mouth, deep to my throat and felt throbbing then a trickle of his cum in my mouth. I went on. Stroking his balls, sucking while he's cuming. Lakhe: "Fuuuuuuuuuckkkk!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!" he screamed. His body shaking violently. I went deeper and he pushed me away, his breathing in short gasps for air. I spit the semen on my hand to wash it off and kneeled on the bed. Me: "need some water?" he nodded quietly. I got up. There was an urgent knock on the door. Sands: "is everything okay in there?!!" Me: "we're fine Sands." Sands: "Uphi uLakhe? I heard him scream." Me: "he's here." I looked at him curled up on his side on the bed. Me: "say something." he shook his head. Sands: "Spho, I don't hear uLakhe. Where is he?" Me: "he's in a delicate position Sandile." Sands: "is he hurt?" Me: "just a little bump." Sands: "Spho ndicela uvule umnyango." Lakhe: "I'm fine man Sandile!" Sands: "oh....okay." well that was the most awkward conversation I've ever had. I got him water from our bathroom sink and he gulped it down at once then returned to his fetal position. Me: "are you okay?" Lakhe: "what in the world was that for?" Me: "I missed you." Lakhe: "you almost killed me Spho." Me: "I'm sorry, I didn't know you wouldn't like it." Lakhe: " You've never done anything like that to me before. Sandile was ready to call an ambulance. Where does that come from?" Me: "I don't know." Lakhe: "Is this about Siyanda?" Me: "why in the world would it be about Siyanda?" Lakhe: "I don't know. I'm just making sure." Me: "what's wrong?" Lakhe: "Do you still love him?" Me: "No." Lakhe: "Are you sure?" Me: "I married you Lakhe. I'm pregnant with your child. I'm in love with you, how more sure must I be?" he sighed. Lakhe: "Sometimes I feel like I pushed too quick for this. I was scared that You'd leave me. Then Perfect Vanilla Boy comes along, I would've been doomed." Me: "who's Perfect Vanil- oh Siyanda? Are you insecure about him? Because I could tell him to stay away if its making you uncomfortable." it was making ME uncomfortable. Lakhe: "Yes. No. He's your friend, and mine now too. I don't mind him coming over at least once a week. He's a cool guy." Me: "since when?" Lakhe: "heee. Hayi ke Spho." Me: "What's the real reason you want to be his friend?" he looked up at me innocently. Me: "tell me." he sighed and held his head. Lakhe: "I can't believe I'm going to say this." I waited. Lakhe: "he's cool. Kind of makes me feel like I'm part of the cool kids, I never had that. That's it." Me: "Cool?" Lakhe: "you know Babalo and Dumi are the only friends I'm not related to that I have. Sandile and Sibuhambi because they're family. And let's admit Dumi and Babalo aren't the world's greatest, they're nerds like me." Me: "its weird that you want to be friends with my ex. Kodwa awufun nombona uSimphiwe." Lakhe: "hehake. Ndiyinton kuSimphiwe ngoku." Me: "you were using him." Lakhe: "I was kakade ndayifumana Lento bendiy'funa kuye. And?" Me: "ungcolile. Worse omnye umntana uqale Brothers Union." he laughed. Lakhe: "Wow. Brothers Union? What do they do? Bake biscuits and sip tea?" Me: "awusagezi nje." Lakhe: "uxolo ke. Ndilibele yi-friend yakho. On a serious note, I've never in my life came twice in under 10 minutes. What you did tonight, does not leave this room. Uyandiva?" Me: "who would I even tell?" Lakhe: "Wena nala Sandile wakho are always giggling together. Ndaziphi nihleba bani." Me: "awusemuncu nje." he held my tummy. Lakhe: "I hope you didn't swallow." Me: "of course not. Ndiyitice ecaleni." Lakhe: "good." he yawned. Lakhe: "Spho I love you." Me: "I love you too baby." Lakhe: "ndiyalala ke mna ngoku kudala ndiziqwayitile." Me: "lala kaloku." Lakhe: "kutheni wena ungalali?" Me: "ndizolala xa ulele." Lakhe: "hmm..." in a few minutes, he dozed off. I just sat in bed deep in thought. I had this weird feeling in my heart like something was about to happen. I stared at the curtains then went to make sure the windows are sliding door were locked. Everything was in place, except my heart. I went back in to bed. Whatever it is, God will take care of it.

Khaya woke up early the next morning, his mouth bone dry and head spinning. Khaya: "damn it..." he sat up from bed. Khaya: "Zama?" she walked in the door. Zama: "yes sweetheart?" Khaya: "ndicela amanzi." Zama: "sure thing." she brought him a jug of water. Zama: "ina." he gulped the water, feeling instant relief. Khaya: "I was supposed to be at work." Zama: "I called them and told them you were sick." Khaya: "I was never sick." Zama: "and they will never know. We have a problem." Khaya: "Zama, I'm not in the mood for your games today." Zama: "Spho has found her brother." Khaya: "I know that. Its been weeks." Zama: "and her mother." Khaya sighed. Zama: "Do you think she'll talk?" Khaya: "she's a drunk. Nobody will believe a word that comes out her mouth." Zama: "her son might. Khaya, we cannot risk that happening. She's in a rehab center. All you have to do is talk to her." Khaya: "I'm not doing that." Zama: "Khaya. Honey. It won't be a good idea for you to miss an entire week of work now would it? We can't keep doing this. Just talk to her, make her understand." Khaya: "why don't you? She'll listen to you. You used to be -" Zama: "You're the doctor. You'll be there. Do it for your daughter." her phone rang. Zama: "Hello?" she answered. Khaya got up and made the bed then finished the remaining water. Zama: "Okay." she hung up. Zama: "I have some business to sort out baby. I'll be back later okay? Please go see her?" Khaya: "okay." he kissed her lips. Khaya: "I love you." Zama: "I love you too K."

It was a few days before the New Year. I was tired the entire time and bored. So I took my laptop and started with my work quietly. I don't know where Lakhe disappeared to. The house was quiet too. I heard my phone ringing from the bed covers and I picked it up. It was dad. Me: "Tata?" I answered. Khaya: "hi pumpkin. Unjani?" Me: "Not that good since You've just compared me to a pumpkin tata." he chuckled. Khaya: "uxolo mntanam. How's my grandchild this morning?" Me: "she's okay. Not too disruptive either inoba ulele. Unjani wena tata? I came to see you izolo ndafika ulele. Your phone just cut off. What happened?" there was silence over the line. Me: "dad? Is there something wrong?" Khaya: "no." Me: "tata are you sick? please tell me. We can find a solution." Khaya: "I'm okay my angel. I just had a bit of a headache so I took a sleeping pill to help me nap. Its been a busy week at the hospital." Me: "yeah utsho noSiyanda. He says he barely spoke to you since Sunday." Khaya: "ubudibene phi noSiyanda?" Me: "he came over last night." Khaya: "Spho, what do you mean he came over last night?!" Me: "I invited him.....why? What's wrong?" Khaya: "I thought you didn't like Siyanda." Me: "I don't." Khaya: "Sphosenkosi." Me: "tata, nguLakhe othe mandimbize. They hung out together and played games. Apparently they're friends now." Khaya: "ulkhaya noSiyanda are friends? Wow." that name was still weird to me. Me: "yeah, anyway when you have a chance you can come over for dinner nomama. I miss you." Khaya: "I miss you too my angel. I will let you know ke vha." Me: "yes sir. I love you tata." Khaya: "I love you too baby girl." I hung up. Well that made me feel much better. At least he was okay although he was hiding something. I would have to wait until I found him alone. After a few hours of work I realized it was a bit awkward that the house was still quiet. Unsettling actually. I got out of bed and walked to the lounge. There Sandile was, fast asleep on the couch with a packet of Lays in his arms. Dumi and Sibule were not here obviously. He was probably bored. I went to the kitchen to make lunch. Definitely in no mood for a sandwich. I wanted a full meal. So I started cooking enough for dinner as well. Halfway in my task Sandile woke up and came into the kitchen. Sands: "hey girl. Unjani? You look fabulous today uvelaphi?" he opened the fridge and scanned it. Sands: "Clearly not the grocery store." he mumbled. Me: "I didn't go anywhere. Kuthen wena ungayanga kwa Pick n Pay." Sands: "Andicingi kaloku ndintampule nge nyawu kwela langa mntase." Me: "lizokwenza nton ilanga?" Sands: "andisemhle for ukutsha." Me: "There's cars." Sands: "not today. Lakhe took his. Sibule took mine. Rob took yours. Everyone is gone and they left me here by myself to starve." Me: "two things, 1, you're not in a desert, quit being dramatic. 2, why didn't you use Uber?" he just stared at me. I carried on cooking. Sands: "uzophaka nini?" Me: "I'm still cooking. I don't know." Sands: "I have a guest for dinner." Me: "Who is it?" Sands: "I don't know." I looked at him again. Me: "what?" Sands: "I mean I have a guest I'm inviting I just don't know who. So depending on what time you dish up, I'll pick the one more convenient to the time." Me: "so this guest, is only here to eat my food." Sands: "Do you really want to know?" Me: "Well its my house, so yes." Sands: "not just to eat your food, also to get her ass thrown in the air and on to this dick-" Me: "Sandile!" Sands: "I asked." Me: "I don't want to know!" Sands: "you sure?" Me: "you're disgusting. Leave." he chuckled. Sands: "so what is it that you and Dumi gossip about so much these days?" Me: "I don't gossip with Dumi. And why does everyone think I gossip with everyone?" Sands: "well, it counts as gossip if it dies down the minute someone else enters the room." Me: "its not gossip. If I told you what I talk about with Dumi, THAT would be gossip. So no." Sands: "is it about Zingi?" Me: "why would you think that?"

Sands: "because they're spending a lot of time together lately. Going to therapy with Dr Fischer. Then having ice cream together at that little shop afterwards." Me: "how the hell would you know that?" Sands: "You're wild if you think I let anyone in this house roam around free all day long. I get bored." he munched on his chips. Sands: "like when Siyanda kisses your forehead. What's that about anyway." Me: "Don't worry about Siya." Sands: "oh he's not the one I worry about. My worry is strictly reserved for my puppy. Anyone else is not my concern thank you very much." Me: "Good to know you're a great dad to Boogie." Sands: "I am. So..." Me: "Siya is nothing but a good friend. There's a reason I never followed him to Johannesburg. Even if I don't know it today, but I'm sticking with it. Besides, Lakhe makes me happy. Sometimes. Sometimes I just want to beat him with a stick." he laughed. Sands: "Is that what happened yesterday? I'm glad you finally beat him because sooner or later I would have to. He can get out of hand at times. So what did he do?" well... Me: "besides being himself?" he smiled. Sands: "So, are Dumi and Zingi back together?" Me: "funeka ubuze uDumi ke mtshana." Sands: "I did. Twice. He ignored me. Why would he do that?" Me: "I don't know, its probably not even because you slept with his wife and humiliated him in front of us by confessing it. Detailing it. It beats me." Sands: "OOOH? Is that why? Then I'll have to cancel my date. You think he has a problem with me and her? Oh that's not good." Me: "wait..... The person coming here nguZingi?" he stared at me. Sands: "Who did you think Spho? That I'd invite a random stranger whom I met on the internet to have sex with me and chase out the next day? When I have an ex who's heavily pregnant with my best friends baby. Of course I want my ex! I want to adopt the baby, and be a great father to him. Then we can get married and move to Pluto." to be honest, I was mind fucked. It took me a full two minutes to realize he was being sarcastic. If it wasn't for moving to Pluto, I wouldve freaked out, only realizing that Pluto doesn't exist anymore eased my panic. Me: "Sometimes a yes or no." Sands: "much more fun watching your face change 7 different emotions." Me: "you're evil. And did you say Dumi is your best friend? Since when?" Sands: "not much I can do about it. He upgraded last week because he lives with us full time and I'm his Uber so he buys me McDonald's everytime I give him a lift." Me: "must be horrible being you." Sands: "You have no idea." he threw away the chips packet. Me: "So where is everyone?" Sands: "hmmm.....let's see." he gave it some thought. Sands: "Sibu took Dumi to his office and Sibu went to work, the time is 2:45 so Sibu will be leaving in ten minutes to go visit his mom at the rehab centre then fetch Dumi at 4:15. Then arriving here at 4:48. Lakhe went to a meeting with Gerard Ku`che. After that, he is taking Luyolo on an expedition and he'll be back at 5 this evening. Rob didn't tell me anything. He just rushed out. I tried to chase him but Boogie needed a bath, he was playing with honey and milk so..." I turned down the stove. Me: "before we come back to the dog playing with honey and milk, how do you know where everyone went and what time they come back." Sands: "they told me where they were going, I calculated when they'd be back." what? And what? Me: "how?" Sands: "Sibu leaves his office at 2:55pm. Visiting hours at the rehab centre are from 3 to 4. He leaves at 4:05pm. Arriving at Dumi's firm which happens to be 15 minutes away, at 4:20. Usually arrives at 4:15 since he drives like a crazy person, the time from Dumi's firm to here is plus minus 28 minutes. He should be at that gate before 4:50pm." Me: "So everyone tells you where they're going before they leave." Sands: "kind of. Sometimes I have to snoop." Me: "Why don't you find a hobby?" Sands: "I have plenty. Snooping is one of them." Me: "other hobbies that don't include other people." Sands: "ndidlala noBoogie then teach him how to swim. He's getting pretty good now." I sighed. Me: "I'm going to give you a task to keep busy everyday." Sands: "hehake Spho. I'm not bored." Me: "Yes but I am. Come let's go." I switched off the stove. Sands: "siyaphi?" Me: "to the mall." Sands: "Dear God, not the mall!"

It was 5:37pm when we came back from Baywest Mall. All the cars were back in their places. Clearly everyone was home. We walked inside with Sandile, carrying the parcels. I'd taken him shopping which he liked a lot. Except having to wear any other color besides black, I managed to get him to try navy. He hated it. I bought it anyway. Now everyone was in the lounge frowning at their phones. Dumi, Lakhe, Sibu and Rob. Me: "molweni. Ninjani?" no response. Sands: "Wowza. If yall think you can ice me out, you have another thing coming. Its busy packing its bags from Germany shame. Yazi aninazintloni. Hayi i-worse ke wena tata, andikwazi Noba usuka Phi. Today is gonna be a brand new day for each and every one of yo-" Lakhe: "nivelaphi? We've been waiting over an hour, phone zenu zi-off." Sands: "uwoah, ndikwazi ke ngothand uncanca ibele. We went shopping." Lakhe: "I see that!!" Sands: "soo, why you mad?" Lakhe: "ngeyiphi Le shopping that requires phones to be off? Ndifike mna apha endlin akhomntu." Sands: "ubuphi dan wena?" Lakhe: "I went to work!" Rob: "it was about time you two started again. Ntombi yam, ndicela undiphakele." Me: "okay tata." I went into the kitchen while the two brothers exchanged disses. I heated the food and brought everyone their plates and we started eating. After supper I got them drinks. Dumi and Sibu were abnormally quiet. Me: "Sibulele." he looked at me. Me: "what's wrong?" Sibu: "my mother stopped talking." everyone kept quiet. Rob: "what do you mean?" Sibu: "she just, went mute tata. She hasn't said a word all day." Lakhe: "maybe she's stressed." Sibu: "yeah, that's what I thought. But, the nurse says, she's active, talks a lot and helps everyone around her. Uyathanda ubalisa amabali. At times acule. The teenagers at the centre really like her and bahlala naye most of the time. Today, she just locked herself in her room." Sands: "uhm....bhuti, can I see you for a second?" Lakhe: "izapha Sibulele." they walked to the bedroom. Rob: "thank you for dinner my angel. It was amazing." Me: "its a pleasure tata. Can I get you anything else?" Rob: "do you have dessert?" Me: "ewe tata. There's still some cake, and some ice cream." Rob: "a slice of cake mntanam." Me: "coming up." I went to cut a slice for him and Dumi. Rob: "hlala phantsi ngoku uphumle. Put your feet up." I sat on the lone couch. Rob: "how's my grandchild?" Me: "uphilile tata. Uyandikhaba kungoku." he jumped up immediately to come place a hand. Rob: "ndiyamva! Eyy umntanam madoda, akonwabe man! Akak'hluphi?" Me: "hayi tata." Rob: "This is my first time experiencing a pregnancy. This is exciting. I cannot wait to hold him or her." Me: "I thought Nosi is biologically yours nje tata. Didn't you experience that pregnancy?" Rob: "yes she's biologically mine but we opted for a surrogate. So I didn't really get close to her until after she was born." Me: "Oh." Rob: "let me make you tea." he rushed to the kitchen. Me: "mind switching roles?" Dumi: "Nope, I'm good thanks." he laughed.

Sands: "I may have another theory." Lakhe: "what?" Sands: "we've poked something. Is it possible that our sniffing around has alerted Komander?" Sibu: "I was careful." Sands: "I know you always are, but sithetha ngo-Komander ngoku. He who can find hell. Then take you there for vacation. Someone, from whoever You've contacted or passed through, has probably let him know." Sibu: "what makes you think that Sandile?" Sands: "Rey." Lakhe: "shit." Sibu: "ndi-confused kengoku. What does Siyanda's late friend have to do with my mother keeping quiet?" Sands: "what if Rey wasn't mad at Siyanda or stopped talking to just Siyanda? All we know is that he stopped talking." Lakhe: "wasn't he a doctor? It'll be easier to find out." Sibu: "that's the thing, he wasn't a doctor. He worked at the morgue." Lakhe: "So he didn't really talk to anyone anyway. Shit." Sands: "or maybe there was someone else working at the morgue with him. Is it the same hospital as Siya?" Sibu: "yeah." Sands: "try and find someone who worked with Rey. Those last few days." Sibu: "Bhuti, what if....by carrying on snooping, what happened to Rey also happens to my mother? She didn't do anything wrong." Lakhe: "you're right. It might be coincidental but its worth looking into. Leave the Rey episode. Someone must have been in contact with your mother in the last 24 hours. Question is, who." Sands: "yeah, I think its safer to look at that route." Lakhe: "banayo cctv footage kulendawo?" Sibu: "not everywhere. Only in the offices." Sands: "how do you get in?" Sibú: "I D book. Signing in." Lakhe: "great. As an immediate relative you can get the visiting log for your mom. Its legal." Sibú: "bhuti ndiyoyika mna ngoku. How did the Komander know where to find her? Or that she's my mother? What about my other mother in Durban?" Lakhe: "Calm down. For now, we're just covering our bases. We're not sure that this is The Komanders doing. Let's not assume." Sibú: "What if Siya got mad when you asked him about the friend and now he wants revenge?" Sands: "highly unlikely. Why not target someone direct to Lakhe?" Sibú: "that's Spho, and Siya likes Spho. Lakhe doesn't like his mother so obviously he's not gonna go there! But I'm Spho's brother, which means our mother is the next direct target." he sat down on the chair shaking. Lakhe: "now you're just over reacting. We don't want a situation where Spho and utata start asking questions. It is imperative to keep them away from this. Spho is pregnant, I don't need her worrying about all this. Got it?" Sibú: "Yes sir." Lakhe: "Good. Now get it together." he walked out. Sands: "don't worry Sibú. We'll work this out together. Don't be afraid. At least not yet."

I was in bed reading a book that Wednesday evening after a luxurious bath. Finally feeling sleepy I put my book down. Lakhe came into the bedroom. Lakhe: "baby?" he got into bed. Me: "hmm?" Lakhe: "are you already sleeping?" Me: "yes." Lakhe: "kodwa uyandiphendu-" Me: "what do you want Masilakhe." Lakhe: "well....uhm.... I was gonna take Sibú out bowling and grab a few drinks because he isn't feeling okay about his mom. I was wondering if you want to come too?" Me: "hm.hm." Lakhe: "oh." Me: "please go Lakhe, I want to sleep." Lakhe: "are you sure?" Me: "Yes! Go." Lakhe: "thank you baby. I love you." he kissed my cheek and left. I knew for a fact I wasn't being invited at all. He just wanted to go, without loose ends. I could at least sleep in peace. After settling into a nice comfortable position I fell asleep.

I woke up to a phone ringing, thinking it was morning already kanti it was midnight. I stared at the landline number. Lakhe was fast asleep next to me. I wonder ubuye nini because he was still fully dressed but clearly fast asleep. I answered my phone. Me: "Yes?" "Mrs Sobukwe?" Me: "yes. This is she, her, I mean me." Who calls at midnight? "This is Sister Anne from Groovemor clinic. You're listed as an alternative contact person on Miriam Thumeka Ngxalase's file." Me: "Okay. Is everything fine?" "Well, Yes and No. I'm not sure if your brother has informed you but Miss Miriam stopped talking this morning. Now, I wanted to inform you that she just said something." I sat up. Me: "what did she say? When?" the call cut off. What the? I called the number back and it just beeped twice and cut off again. I called it again and it didn't even bother ringing. What the fuck is going on? I would've gone back to sleep but two things bugged me. The first was, this lady could have waited until morning to call, but instead called immediately meaning whatever that Miriam said was important. Secondly, why would the phone line stop working all of a sudden? At midnight? Something creepy was going on. I looked at Lakhe who was snoring lightly. Me: "baby." Lakhe: "hmm." Me: "wake up! The hospital just called!" his eyes shot open. Lakhe: "what hospital?" even in the dark I could see his eyes were red. Me: "Le ka mama ka Sibhu." Lakhe: "what? Bafowne Phi? When? Bathini?" he sat up. Me: "they just called me, bathi I'm listed as an alternative contact or whatever, literally just a minute ago." Lakhe: "what do they say Spho." Me: "this lady, Anne she says. Uthi umama ka Sibhu just said something." Lakhe: "and? What did she say?" Me: "that's the disturbing part. I asked what did she say and the call cut off. I called it back twice and now its not even ringing." Lakhe: "Spho....are you sure?" I showed him my phone since he thinks I'm lying. Even my TrueCaller app identifies the number properly. Lakhe: "what must have happened? Kutheni bengafownelanga uSibhu?" Me: "I don't know. I don't care, what I care about is why was the call cut off and what did she say that was so urgent it couldn't wait till morning. We have to go there." Lakhe: "You aren't going anywhere. Sphosenkosi, umithi umntanam. I am not letting you anywhere out of this house ngelixesha. Neither am I going anywhere because I'm supposed to protect you. What I will do, is tell Sibhu, but only in the morning ngoba naye uzofuna uya pha ngoku. We don't know what's happening pha and I will be damned if I let any one of you get hurt." Me: "It is scary. Nyani masimchazele ksasa. I can't lose Sibhu too." Lakhe: "okay babes. Masilale." Me: "but what if they get through to him and he goes there?" Lakhe: "asoze aphume kulendlu at this time uSibhulele without letting me know. Relax." we lay back in bed. Me: "ubuye nini ungaqalisanga kwa ukhulula nje?" Lakhe: "Yoh babes. I think about an hour ago. Ndilixhego kaloku mna ndidinwa very quick." he took off his shirt and pants. Lakhe: "Kuthen wena ungandikhululanga? Ndiyakwazi kaloku uyathanda undinqika ebuthongweni bam." Me: "ithandwa nguwe lo." we cuddled. Lakhe: "beniyephi noSandile?" Me: "benditshilo nje kuwe." Lakhe: "Uthe niye kwi shopping qha mos. And I didn't even get anything." Me: "I went to shop for Sandile. Not wena." Lakhe: "so Sandile is your husband now?" Me: "hayi, ngu brother wam. And he needed some love, that's it." Lakhe: "hmm. Kumandi ubanguye. Mna zange ndakhutshwa nokhutshwa. Ndiya use'wa qha." Me: "andizok'phendula ke yazi." Lakhe: "what did you buy your bestie?" Me: "some clothes. A pair of sneakers that took almost two hours to decide on. Yuh, your brother is impossible. Akayifuni nenye color except black. He says its going to itch him." Lakhe: "What were you expecting from him because even his underwear is black. Even ikawusi le." Me: "I bought him a white t shirt and a navy one. Xandihamba naye mna uzozinxiba. Noko idibene nobugqwirha leyakhe." he chuckled. Lakhe: "anizolwa man." Me: "Uphi uNosi?" Lakhe: "uye Kapa kwi tshomi zakhe nomamakhe." Me: "so landlu ise Monti yeyaka mamakho?" Lakhe: "mamakhe. Yes. The divorce is finalized." Me: "alright. Utatakho uzothini kengoku?" Lakhe: "well, it seems as though my house is a hotel. I caught him dragging his luggage in and tomorrow his cars are arriving. Andiyazi bacimba kuphi apha aba. And ndizoba gxotha bonke ndik'xelele. Dumi is the only one authorized to stay here." Me: "Khawuyeke abanye abantwana. Yazi wena uyathandwa kokwenu qha awuyibon lonto. Let them relax. Nawe ukhe uphole. Sooner or later bazode badikwe bahambe ubakhumbule ke wena." Lakhe: "bakhunjulwe kwa ndim? Nantsi eyam family mna endinoykhumbula. Kunini ndahlala nabo bona? Hayi wethu." Me: "fine, but let them stay. Be honest, you enjoy being around them." Lakhe: "I do. Kaloku wena uyandibaleka ukhuphe uSandile. Inoba ngomso kuzokhutshwa uSibu. Friday nguDumi. Soze mna ndikhutshwe. Akunzima uba ndim." Me: "are you done?" Lakhe: "ewe." Me: "lala ke." Lakhe: "fine." I chuckled. After a few minutes of silence I heard him snoring again. Tshin thiza lomfana.

Thursday morning I woke up without Lakhe in bed. I pulled myself up and went to the bathroom then showered. I came back to make the bed and look for something to wear. I was going to visit Zingi at her house maybe drag Zintle and Fez too, actually thinking of hosting a baby shower for her. I found a baby blue maternity maxi dress. I put on my granny sandals which happened to be very comfortable so I didn't care. Lakhe said they look like I'm living in a cottage with 25 cats. Heeee usile lowam umnyeni vha. I called Zintle. Me: "brother." Zintle: "hello malume Uright?" Me: "ndiright sthandwa. Ubusy?" Zintle: "ha.a ndiya-cleaner qha." Me: "I was thinking of getting something for uZingi and some cupcakes and other things senze Noba yi-mini baby shower." Zintle: "unyansile yazi. Yima ndivase ndifownele noFez. Sidibane Noba kuse Baywest?" Me: "ewe babes." Zintle: "sho." we hung up. After brushing my hair I went to the kitchen and found everyone sitting in the lounge watching TV. Me: "molweni Tata." Rob: "hello my sweet. I made breakfast." Me: "enkosi tata." Sands: "I helped." Me: "thank you Sands." Lakhe stared at them both and looked back at his phone. I went to fetch my plate and a glass of juice ndayohlala kwi dining table. I hated awkward silences. Andiyazi bayawatheni aba. After I finished eating I washed my plate and went to fetch my bag and keys. As I was walking out the front door. Lakhe: "uyaphi baby?" Oh? Me: "I'm going shopping." Lakhe: "again?" he stood up. Me: "Yes again. Do you need anything?" Sands: "uye Baywest?" Me: "yes." he stood up too. Me: "what is it?" Lakhe: "nothing." Me: "Uphi uSibulele?" Lakhe: "he's at work." Me: "did you talk to him?" Lakhe: "I woke up late. I left him a message to come straight home." I nodded. Me: "goodbye tata." Rob: "bye honey." I went to my car with my two tails. I honestly don't know what these two are up to and I was in no mood today. I got into my car. Wangena Sandile kwi passenger seat, Lakhe got into the backseat. I drove out the yard and went to the mall. Maybe they thought I was lying about the mall. When I parked at the Baywest parking lot we all got out the car. I called Zintle and Fez who were still on their way. Me: "baby, Uphi?" Zintle: "sisendleleni babes. We'll arrive in about 10 minutes." Me: "okay, text me xa nifikile so I can tell you which shop. Oh and just a warning, I have two bodyguards with me." Zintle: "uthini na ngoku?" Me: "Lakhe and Sandile." Zintle: "oh sweet! Okay babes." I hung up. These two looked out of place. I went into the mall and straight to the baby shop. Me: "this is so beautiful." I found a pure white fleece blanket. Sandile was looking at the white cot. Lakhe walking around. Sands: "this is adorable. Funeke ndithengele uBoogile. He would love it." Me: "that is for babies." Sands: "Boogile is my baby." Me: "since when is he Boogile?" Sands: "that's his full name." Someone needs to come fetch Sandile please. Sands: "I'm gonn put it on his diamond necklace. I ordered it from Germany." Me: "you ordered your dog a diamond necklace." Sands: "well yes, I figured if he looks handsome, he'll feel handsome." Me: "he's a dog." Sands: "he has feelings too." Me: "feelings that cost diamonds Sandile?" Sands: "here you are looking at a blanket that costs someone's monthly salary. And your husband looks like he's about to buy the entire store." I looked at Lakhe who already had a few items under his arm. Sands: "not to mention the Gucci blanket he brought home from Japan." Me: "he got the baby a Gucci blanket?" Sands: "its the cutest thing I swear." he smiled. Lakhe: "baby? Which color? White or brown?" Me: "Masilakhe. Put down the items." Lakhe: "but bab-" Me: "Now." he put them on the counter. Me: "in their places." he took out his black card and handed it to the cashier still staring at me. Me: "Masilakhe'ikhaya I'm here for Zingi! We're hosting a baby shower for her this afternoon. Put those things back!" Lakhe: "so mandifike mna ndingaphethanga present? Yavuya shame." Me: "you're not even invited!" he looked shocked. Lakhe: "its not even your party Spho." Sands: "yeah, mna ndizothenga Lena." he tried picking up the cot. What have I done? Bendibasaphi? Me: "we don't even need that. Zimi still has a cot-" Sands: "ngeyaka Zimi leyo not the new baby. He deserves his own. Ma'am, I'll have this to go." Lakhe: "Yep. Yep. Drag it over here. Yirhuqe." Zintle and Fez finally arrived. I greeted them while those other two debated on color scheme. Fez: "what's happening?" Me: "I made a mistake and brought them here." Zintle: "ububasaphi?" Me: "I didn't think they'd be like this. Izolo bendikhuphe Sandile, we went shopping. He enjoyed himself so much Lakhe got jealous, today ndithe ndiphuma ndalandelwa ngabo bobabini." they laughed. Zintle: "hayi ungumama nyani sana." Fez: "Yinton Le kuxatyanwa ngayo?" Me: "paint color for the baby nursery. Do you think they'll notice if we disappear?" Fez: "oh hayi tshomi sungcola. Besides bazosincedisa ngo-pusher trolley ezi." ndilibe kanene yi crush yakhe uSandile so its gonna be picture time ibengathi baye together kwi shopping. Yeyi. Akunzima. Me: "guys. We're discussing this further next month. For now, siphelelwa lixsha. Pay, siyofaka emotweni then we can look for other things." Lakhe: "okay baby. Bamba Sandile." Me: "do we have to buy this cot?" Sands: "Yes. I like it. I'm going to build it back together at home." Me: "please tell me its not for the dog." Sands: "hehake Spho, how extra do you think I am? Boogile is gonna grow to be big, so his one needs to be a bit bigger than the baby's." Zintle and Fez were in stitches. I really was not in the mood for arguing with Sandile Sobukwe today. He annoyed me enough yesterday. Me: "fine, ambozifaka emotweni." they collected their items and walked out after payment. I strolled the mall with my girls. Me: "those two are going to drive me crazy." Zintle: "at least wena unomntu that drives you crazy." Me: "awumfuni ke uSibu." Fez: "he's ignoring her calls." Zintle slapped his shoulder. Fez: "ouch!! Khange Uthi mandingaythethi tshin!" Me: "why is he ignoring you?" Fez: "revenge obviously, naye kaloku usis wakho ebezenza i-fresh fruit." I laughed. Me: "hayke sisi." Zintle: "Please talk to him Spho?" Me: "and say what?" Zintle: "anything. Ndibawela umbona." Me: "is it possible that ubawela umbona only because you're lonely and we're approaching the New Year wena ungena mntu." Zintle: "noFez mos akanamntu." Fez: "hayi sisi, nantsiya indodam isiza." I looked and saw Sands and Lakhe. Me: "ndizomxelela mna uSandile uyamthanda and une pictures zakhe ku instagram wakho." Fez: "hayi Spho suthakatha mfazi. Uzoyenziswa yinton lonto." I laughed again. The boys finally caught up. Me: "sizozifumana phi cupcakes or an actual cake?" Sands: "I know a guy." he took out his phone and made the call. Me: "now for the snacks-" Lakhe: "ndizoyozithenga kwa Checkers. Anything specific?" Me: "No, just snacks. We'll cook for her." he nodded and walked off to Checkers. Fez: "mna ndizothengela uZingi some new clothes. She needs to feel loved too, lomntana is stealing her limelight." Zintle: "okay babes." Fez: "masambe siye kwa Woolworths Sandile." I was shocked that he had the guts of asking him out loud. Sandile followed him still talking on the phone. Zintle and I stared at each other. What the hell just happened? Zintle and I walked around and eventually ended up at Spur because I was hungry. Lakhe joined us then soon Sandile and Fez came back too. We ordered food. Zintle: "so, Spho, I was figuring how about sigoduke, once everything is planned, just spend time and relax. Then ngomso ibeyi baby shower yakhe." Me: "that's a good idea. Ndinayo nendawo ediniweyo ngoku." Sands: "yeah, sizokwenza ne braai so funeke siyothenga inyama." I looked at him. Fez: "that's a great idea." Me: "He's not invited." Fez: "hayi Spho sungcola. They helped a lot today." Sands: "hayi mna bendingazoya kuye kakade. I need an excuse for i-braai." Me: "its December. You don't need an excuse for i-braai." Sands: "ndiright." my food arrived ndangena kuko immediately. After our lunch, we relaxed into a conversation. "Hi Fez." a voice said. It was a tall light skinned lady ehamba with two other girls. Wait... Fez: "Thami." he rolled his eyes. Thami: "molweni wethu Zintle noSpho. Aninqabe. And who's this." she looked at Sandile and Lakhe who both stared at their phones quietly. Thami: "anyway, ndiyabona awukaphucuki Fezile. What's that blog of yours again? Le ina 12 followers?" she laughed. Thami: "Sometimes you should leave that work to professionals." was she waiting for a response? Thami: "anywho, unlike some of us who-" Sands: "If you say one more word I will fucking drag you out of this establishment with your bloody face inside out. Uyandiva?" Thami: "hehak-" Sandile stood up. Sands: "Get." the look on his face made me buckle. Thami walked away. Sands: "niphakameni sambeni." he marched out. I asked for the bill. Zintle and Fez followed him. Lakhe was absolutely unaffected. You'd have sworn akekho. Lakhe: "yeke ndiy'batale baby." he took out his wallet. Me: "and then what happened to your brother?" Lakhe: "when?" Me: "now! When he threatened that horse." he burst out laughing. Lakhe: "Yazi wena noSandile. Mxim." Me: "Lakhe I'm serious, he changed from 0 to 100 real damn quick." Lakhe: "Sandile hates bullies. Eyona nto indothusayo yeyoba akhange amhlohle inyawo emlonyeni immediately, because Sandile is not in the business of warning people. Into ayaziyo kushova inqindi emntwin avale umlomo lo wakhe." Me: "unganqandi?" Lakhe: "hayi ndingenaphi?" he paid the bill and we walked out. Akhange kuphinde kuthethwe emotweni.

We arrived at our house around two in the afternoon. Zintle and Fez sat by the pool side drinking juice. I sat with them drinking my water. Sandile had disappeared into his bedroom the minute he arrived. Lakhe was watching television by himself in the lounge. Fez: "YOH. Friend." Me: "Don't." Fez: "Did you see how he defended me? I could've cried on the spot." Me: "Fezi-" Fez: "don't even try to dampen my shine. He is my superhero." Me: "Fezile, Sandile is not gay. I'm not saying this to hurt you, but to help you, I don't want you hurt." Fez: "hayi ke Spho, why would he defend me if he didn't like me? We spent all day together." Me: "you went to one shop." Fez: "My goodness. I didn't even know he could get all serious, one minute we were like, the next we're like..... Then he's like..... YOH." with the dramatic hand gestures, I kid you not. Zintle: "kodwa Spho does Sandile have a girlfriend?" Me: "he used to." Zintle: "a lot of people have gone from straight to gay. Maybe he's shy." abamazi uSandile aba. I'm talking about a guy who stalks people on a daily basis, as a hobby. The guy who befriended his ex's husband. Drowns himself in a swimming pool when he's mad. Me: "he's not gay." Fez: "unomona ke uSpho ndinomntu ofana nowakhe." Me: "first of all, Sandile akafani tu noLakhe, secondly, ndinomona ngantoni kuSandile when he's like a jellybean, thirdly, and I say this with love, Look at my Husband honey. Come on!" they laughed. Fez: "I have to admit, he is hella sexy vha." Zintle: "what happened to that light skin fella?" Me: "Siya? Ukhona somewhere. Anyway Fez, Yinton ngoku uThami?" Fez: "heee, ndizophinda ndikubalisele tshomi. Ndisekwi high yomntu wam." Zintle: "I wonder uphi owam because the only reason I came here was to wait for him." Me: "worse ba zonke itshomi zam zidyole endlinam nabantwana bam." we laughed. Zintle: "because you breed sexy children." Me: "ndincamile, oooh nanku tata." Rob walked to us by the swimming pool. Engese skime utatakho sana ingathi yi pimp. He was dressed in red shorts and a white golf shirt with red stripes. And funny looking shoes. He had a black glove in one hand, plus shades on his face. Me: "molo tata, you look spectacular. Uvelaphi?" Rob: "I went for drinks at the golf club with my buddy Gregory, then hit a ball or two. Molweni ma'lady." Fez: "molo tata." Zintle: "hello." Rob: "my angel, I want you to help me. Sandile is in a mood, Lakhe akafuni. I want to take a picture for instagram." he gave me his phone. Me: "sure thing. I'm going to take just moment photos of you." Rob: "how?" Me: "pictures of you unaware of the camera. Like you walking out the sliding door, looking at the pool, things like that." Rob: "maybe one next to my helicopter." Me: "not today." I took a few good shots of him then we went to the driveway, where I took one of him closing the boot, another opening the driver door and the last one of him sitting on the seat facing outward, one leg hanging out while he was looking at a phone. Me: "there." I gave him back his phone to see. Rob: "Wow!! These are the best pictures anyone has ever taken of me. Enkosi mntanam." Me: "its a pleasure tata." Rob: "I'm going to frame this. Khame ndiyobonisa uSandile." he went inside the house. I went back in too. Lakhe: "and now? Nibusy nganton notatakho." Me: "just taking pictures." Lakhe: "wonke umntu apha kulendlu uhoywa ngaphezukwam. Do you see why I want them to leave? Andilifumani netontsi le attention mna apha." he got up and walked out. In a minute his car drove out. I was still confused. Nyani andimniki attention? Mr I'm-in-a-meeting. 'I'm taking Sibu out because he's not okay'. When did I not give him attention whereas ndihleli naye all day at the mall? Akasena drama uLakhe bethuna. Kengoku ubaleka

Me: "I thought you were waiting for Sibub?" Zintle: "I was but you know its clear that akandifuni uSibub, mandimyeke wethu and focus on other things." I stared at her suspiciously. Me: "you mean utata ka Lakhe. Don't you even dare."
Zintle: "he has his own helicopter?" Me: "leave him alone! Zintle, Rob is in a delicate place, he doesn't need this. Please. Ndicela lo respect qha." Zintle: "okay fine! But should he make a move, I'm not promising I'll say no." Me: "Just go." Zintle: "bye mommy." she kissed my cheek and left. Me: "Fez awuhambi?" he shook his head. Me: "you okay?" Fez: "Sandile asked me to stay." Me: "when?" he showed me his phone. Indeed there was a message from Sandile: 'Ungahamb'apho.' I saw the sheepish grin from Fez's face. I didn't even know anymore ndaveske ndathula. Me: "izondincedisa upheka ke." we went to the kitchen, I took out the pots and meat. Wangena Masilakhe with plastics. He dropped them on the counter and looked at me with hands on his hips. Me: "what's this?" Lakhe: "this is dinner. Since you run around for this entire household uphinde upheke mna ndingalifumani tontsi Le attention yakho ndifike udiniwe ebhedini ulele. You don't have to cook. What's your excuse now." Me: "I never had an excuse." Lakhe: "clearly." Me: "litontsi elitheni eli Uthetha ngalo. Here I am talking to you, ayilotontsi elo?" Lakhe: "ayilo tontsi." I sighed. Me: "okay. Ulambile?" Lakhe: "Ewe." Me: "fine, check where Sibub is ndizophaka sityeni." Lakhe: "Yuh baby uSibub uzofika ngoo 3 apha ngu 2 ngoku." Me: "then have a sandwich." Lakhe: "Andifuni sandwich mna." Me: "ufuna ntoni Lakhe? Dinner?" Lakhe: "ewe. Cela undiphakele." I dug into the Spur plastic and took out a long slab of ribs. Putting it on a plate with some veggies. Me: "is this fine?" Lakhe: "ewe baby, enkosi." he took his plate and disappeared to the lounge. Me: "I don't know why he's being a baby today." Fez: "its cute man tshomi. Awumhoyi omnye wena." Me: "when! Ndihlala naye nje day in, day out." I took out a plate for Fez and dished for him as well wangena Sandile. Sands: "enkosi mntase, I can always count on you." he took the plate. Me: "that's not yours." he was already digging into a rib. Sands: "yeyaka bani?" he chewed. I took out another plate and dished for Fez who was stealing a picture of Sandile's side view eating. Me: "nantsi eyakho babes." Sandile put down his plate and took the new one. Me: "SANDILE!!!!!!!" I screamed. He froze. Sands: "Khange uthi ayoyam ley-" Me: "leave this plate alone. Itya Le buyitya. Put. This. Down." he put down the plate. Me: "thatha Le buyitya and leave." Sands: "but ubuthe ayoyam then wathi nantsi eyakho babes, now I'm getting yelled at. Ndenzeni?" Me: "I said leave." Sands: "fine." he took his plate and walked out. I dished for Rob then Dumi and Sibub. Covering their plates. Fez went to the dining table to eat. I brought Mr Rob's plate on a tray. Lakhe: "hehake." he mumbled. Rob: "Yinton Masilakhe Sobuk-" Lakhe: "since when does he get a tray now?" Me: "Lakhe you just took your plate and left." he shook his head and ate. Rob: "sumhoya sthandwa Sam. Uzohlala ecamkwam utye okwakho ukutya. Uyeke la nopopi wakho ugezayo." Lakhe: "ndingunopopi tata?" Rob: "if you keep frowning like that, yes." Lakhe: "fine." I took my plate and we ate our early dinner. Fez took the dishes to the washer and I cleaned the table. Sands: "Fezile." Fez: "hm?" Sands: "izapha." Fez followed him to his bedroom. Closing the door behind them. Sands: "Uright?" he sat on the chair next to a napping Boogie. Fez: "I'm okay. Wena?" Sands: "perfect. I just wanted to check if you're okay. La Superman wetshomi yakho really pissed me off. I hate bullies." Fez giggled. Fez: "hamba Superman." Sands: "why didn't you defend yourself? Uyakwazi mos Uthetha." Fez: "hayi wethu Sandile ndiyabayeka mna abantu abafana noThami. Its not worth it." Sands: "isn't it? So a life of being afraid is worth it? Mawukhubeke wena?" Fez: "well no. Its more complicated than that." Sands: "tell me." Fez: "I can't." Sands: "awuphumi ke kule room ungandixelelanga. And ndiyasuza ke mna." he said with a straight face. Fez laughed. Fez: "khayeke Sandile." Sands: "you think I'm playing?" Fez: "no...I just don't feel like digging that part of me. Not even my friends know this." Sands: "ooohh. Thami is your ex girlfriend? So?" Fez: "euuw. Ndingu notsitsi mna Sandile, kutheni ndizodyola nabanye oonitsitsi?" Sandile stared at him confused. Sands: "okay, whatever, anyway, tell me ke." Fez: "I can't. Its embarrassing." Sands: "Kutheni ungandithembanga kodwa ndiku instagram wakho?" Fez: "fine." Sands: "thought as much." Fez: "Well, ndicela ungaxeleli mntu." Sands: "hehake. Bendizoxelela bani?" he picked Boogie up and put him on his chest brushing his fur. Fez: "Thami is my half sister." Sands: "wow, ndicimba yitshomakho mna." Fez: "No. Ngumntana ka tata wam. Sikhule kunye well until I was 14 then ndagxothwa ngutata kuba ndiyi gay. Ndayohlala nomama and my stepdad. Utatam used to blame my mother for me being gay esithi ndilinyala amthuke nase stratweni. So eventually noThami ke started doing it." Sands: "bayekwa nguwe." Fez: "they're my family Sandile." Sands: "according to me, and probably the rest of the world, when they disowned you they stopped being your family." Fez: "its more complicated than that." Sands: "Fezile, uzohlala ukhubeke kude kuthini? You being gay isn't depriving anyone their salary. Their shelter or anything else. Bahlutshwa Yinton? Nothing. They're being bullies. And bullies kill people. These people will push you over the edge, next thing sidibane nawe sowuzityisa ipilisi apha. You need to put them to order right now." Fez: "how?" Sands: "you want the legal way or illegal way?" Fez: "legal obviously but for curiosity sake what would've been the illegal way." Sands: "if I tell you, we'd have to go through with it. Khame ndilalise uBoogile. He's restless." Fez: "put him down uzolala myeke. Ngunonjana mos." Sands: "ngumntanam uBoogile and uyamngxolela ufuna ulala." he looked at his phone. Sands: "we'll have to reschedule our adventure. Something has come up that needs my immediate attention. Sothetha ngomso." Fez: "okay ke. Goodbye. Bye bye Boogile." Sands: "hayi ke iworse. Uzokuva njan ume apho? Khaphume wethu." Fez walked out the room to the lounge. Fez: "peto." Me: "hey." Fez: "cela undikhuphe. Goodbye Mr Rob, bye bye bhut'Lakhe." Lakhe: "sho." Rob: "goodbye Fez." I walked him out to his car. Me: "Uright friend?" Fez: "tshomi ndiyamthanda mna uSandile. I think I'm falling for him." Me: "what happened?" Fez: "he listens when I talk and he is understanding. I feel connected to him." Me: "Okay babes. Don't worry about it. Just relax." Fez: "you're not gonna tell me I'm crazy, and he's straight and I should forget about it?" Sandile is serious about keeping people out of his bedroom, if you're in there by his order, you're one lucky motherfucker shame. Me: "no Fez, I'm your friend. If Sandile is showing signs of comfortability nawe then that's that. I have no business in meddling. I always support you no matter what. I've only known Sandile for a few months, maybe he is bisexual, and if he is, he would be lucky to land a great wifey like you." Fez: "that means so much to me my friend." I hugged him. Me: "Uhambe kakuhle ke sthandwa." he got in his car. Fez: "love you mommy." Me: "love you too sweetheart. And andingomama wenu nina." he laughed and drove off. I went inside the house and sat next to Lakhe staring at him. Lakhe: "what." Me: "nothing." he took his eyes off the TV and looked at me. Lakhe: "you sure?" Me: "you said andik'hoyi so ndim lo." Lakhe: "really? When a game of Manchester United plays, ufuna uzondihoya wena?" Me: "I give up." I took his phone and played a game. A few minutes later Dumi and Sibu walked in. Lakhe: "finally. Family meeting in 20 minutes, vasani izandla nitye and get seated comfortably." the guys did as they were told and everyone gathered after 20 minutes. Lakhe: "Spho received a call last night, actually right around midnight." Sands: "from whom?" Whom? Hamba Sandile. Me: "She said she was Anne from Groovmor Clinic." Sibu: "Anne? I know Anne. She usually takes care of the night shift and sometimes play chess with my mother xa engakwazi ulala. Shift yakhe iqala at 4 when I leave my visits." Me: "well uhm. Sibu, Anne called and said that your mother has said something. When I asked what did she say, and when, the phone cut off. I tried calling back but it didn't ring again." Sibu: "what do you mean it didn't ring? Njani?" Me: "it just beeps ayikhali. We wanted to tell you ksasa but you left early and we didn't want to disturb you from work." he shifted uncomfortably. Sibu: "I have to go. I need to speak to Anne." Sands: "I'm coming with you." he got up and took his keys. Lakhe: "nam. We'll be back soon baby." Me: "ucimba ndiyashiyeka?" Lakhe: "baby, please? We just want to know what is going on." Me: "its day time. I want to go too." Lakhe: "No Spho." he walked out. I went to my bedroom and closed my door locking it behind me. I took my laptop and carried on working.

Lakhe: "what the hell do you mean you can't find her Rose? She was here last night! She called my wife!" Rose: "I'm very sure. I haven't seen her today. And according to our register which I shouldn't even be mentioning to you, she didn't sign out this morning." Siby: "and what does that mean?" Sands: "that she didn't leave obviously. She's in here somewhere, Rose is it possible that maybe she's taking a nap? Do you have a place where your nurses rest?" Rose: "Yes. There is a break room. But Anne never stays, she goes home to rest." Lakhe: "I want to see that break room." Rose: "You aren't authorized to go there, sir." Lakhe: "Rose, I'm going to tell you one last time. We need to speak to Anne. Who else was working here last night?" Rose: "Timothy, he just signed in before you got here, let me call him." she dialed a number. Siby: "Bhuti..." Lakhe: "Yes?" Siby: "maybe....we should let it go." Lakhe: "njani Sibulele xa kulahleke umntu ongenzanga nto irongo?" Rose: "here he is, Mr Sobukwe." Lakhe: "Timothy?" Tim: "Yes, can I help?" Lakhe: "You were working with Anne last night?" Tim: "Yes. Why?" Lakhe: "Do you know where she might be?" Tim: "No." Lakhe: "Timothy, when was the last time you saw her?" Tim: "uhm....maybe before midnight I think." Lakhe: "what was she doing?" Tim: "she was...doing rounds." Lakhe: "and?" Tim: "uhm, that's all I remember." Lakhe: "Timothy." Sands: "what my brother is asking is, was there any other person around here? Besides staff? Was there anything out of place or awkward?" Tim: "come this way." he led them to the break room. Tim: "guys, I don't know where Anne is I swear, but....last night." Siby: "what happened?" Timothy looked down the passage and closed the door. Tim: "Well, I use the free internet to download some stuff to keep me company. We're not allowed to do it but, it gets boring on night shift so Ikind of steal it." Sands: "and then what happened?" Tim: "well, while I was using the company computer, downstairs, in private, I heard a bit of a thud. I thought it was from my videos so I didn't stop. Then.....the electricity went off." the guys looked at each other. Lakhe: "the power tripped? Or what?" Tim: "that's what I thought. I finished up, then cleaned up downstairs with my phone flash light-" Sands: "Timothy we don't care about your masturbation episodes, what happened next?" Tim: "I went back up, I think it was after 5 minutes after the electricity went off. I went to check the box and found the lever was pushed down. So I pushed it back up and the lights came on. I did try looking for someone else but I figured they were napping." Lakhe: "Where was the last place you saw Anne?" Tim: "at Block C. I know because she always takes her time on that floor if not the whole night. Did something happen to her?" Siby: "No. We just want to talk to her." Tim: "I have her husband's number. You can call him." he took out his phone. Lakhe took the number. Lakhe: "thank you Timothy, none of what you told us will leave this room." Tim: "thank you." they walked out. Sibú: "I want to see my mother. She lives in Block C." Lakhe: "go ahead. Uzosifumana emotweni." Sibú went to register his name and walked to his mother's room. He knocked twice and opened. Sibú: "mama?" she was sitting on the chair, by the desk writing. Sibú: "Unjani?" she continued writing quietly. He looked over to see what it was. 'Komanded.' Written over 50 times. Sibú grew cold. He looked around the room. He came here. Komander had been in this room. Sibú: "Mama, I'm going to get you out of here. I swear. Just hang tight. I'm doing everything I can. Uyandiva mama? Nobody will hurt you." he held her shoulder. She scribbled again. 'Komand Will Come.' Sibú's breath hitched a bit. Sibú: "what did he say? Did he threaten you? Is he in the hospital? A doctor? A visitor? Another patient? Where is he?" she continued writing 'Komanded' over again. "Sibú?" Sandile stood in the doorway. Sibulele looked up. Sands: "we have to go." Sibú: "Look." Sandile walked in and looked at the diary. Sands: "let's go. Now."

Lakhe knocked on the bedroom door. "Baby? Cela uvule umnyango. Spho?" I was finished with my work. I now browsed the internet for a car. I wanted a Range Rover and I needed to make sure if I could afford it first. This would mean a meeting with my financial advisor. I called him and he picked up almost immediately. "Hey Spho, how are you?" Me: "I'm fine Abo, how are you?" Abo: "I'm great, ndingak'nceda nganton namhlanje?" Me: "well I was thinking of buying a car, I want you to check for me if I'm good to go. I'm going to send my details after I speak to my lawyer then undijongele kwi Range Rover." Abo: "absolutely. Let me know when you've emailed me." Me: "will do. Thank you Abo." I hung up. Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi, I can hear you talking, so ndicela uvule. I know you're mad at me. Frankly I don't know why. Please open this door." I was going to, but he had an attitude in that statement because he knows I would open. I have a snack bar, a packet of chips and a milkshake in the bar fridge inside this bedroom. There is also a toilet, there is a sink for water as well. I don't have to open that door. Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi!!!!" Sands: "Yinton ngoku bhuti?" Lakhe: "tell her to open this door!" Sands: "Kuthen unomsindo kengoku?" Lakhe: "uSpho doesn't understand that I want to protect her and my child, just because ndithe kuye akanohamba aye k'la ndawo she's mad. Which is childish! Asiyazi mos yinton epha! Now she's locked me out of our bedroom because of that!" Sands: "yeah that is immature Spho. Uzotya ntoni? What about the baby?" I cuddled my tummy under blankets and listening to soft classic music in my earphones.

My phone was on flight mode and couldn't be disturbed. Sooner or later I fell into a deep sleep.

Friday morning I woke up feeling super refreshed and energetic. I changed the bed sheets and went to shower. After my shower, I went to get dressed. White leggings and a pink maternity top and my white Adidas Stan Smith sneakers. When I was done fixing myself and all, I took my handbag and walked out the bedroom. Everyone was in the lounge staring at the television quietly. Rob: "hello sweetheart, Unjani?" Me: "ndiphilile tata Unjani wena?" Rob: "I'm fine pumpkin." I looked for the keys on the key bowl in the lounge. Not even one key. Only eze moto ka Rob were present. Lol. Me: "Lakhe ndicela istixo semoto." Cwaka. I stood next to him. He stared at the TV quietly. Me: "Masilakhe?" no response. Lol. Izomxaka le ayenzayo. I took out my phone and went on to Uber. Rob: "Mntanam thatha ley-" Lakhe: "Tata." Rob: "hayi kodwa Masilakhe awunode u-punisha uSpho ngemoto." Lakhe: "imoto kaban? Endlin kaban? Uphi wena ngoku?" Rob: "Uske undibhide. Ubuthuzuzelwa ndim izolo oku, utshintshela mna ngoku?" I requested an Uber who was 2 minutes away. I took my bag and walked out. Rob: "what the hell was that for?" Lakhe: "une attitude uSpho." Rob: "nawe!" Lakhe: "if she can act childish, so can I." Rob: "Masilakhe, nitshatile. You're supposed to talk." Lakhe: "akafuni uthetha nam. So nam Andifuni ke. Uyaw'zibona ba makathini." Rob: "if something were to happen to her or your baby ehamba nge nyawo, uzothini Masilakhe?" Lakhe jumped up and looked out the door. Lakhe: "nankuya eyokhwela kwi Audi. Ndingenaphi mna?" Sands: "that's UberBLACK." Lakhe: "how the hell did you" Sands: "its what I do." he sat down. Rob: "Masilakhe, nika uSpho imoto yakhe. You're her husband no matter how childish she's being. You are supposed to nurture her." Lakhe: "Sandile uzobasa nini umlilo?" Sands: "izokwenziwa apha Le braai? I thought sizoya kuZ- never mind." he got up and walked out. Sibu: "I'll help him. Khaze ne beer Dumi." Dumi went to the fridge to fetch a carrypack of Corona and went outside. Rob: "What's really going on with you?" Lakhe: "nothing!" Rob: "nyana, talk to me." Lakhe: "cela undiyeke tata. I'm fine." Rob: "you know you're my baby boy-" Lakhe: "Tata, I'm not 2, ndiyeke. Please." Rob: "ndizokuteketisa ke mna ude uthethe uhlutshwa yinton. My chocolate muffin." Lakhe stared at him. Lakhe: "You're still in my house." Rob: "Thetha nam kaloku. Hayi Masilakhe andizokucenga kangaka awuyo cherrie." Lakhe: "mxim. Tata bendirongo phi? I just want to protect her. I don't want her to lose this baby. Is it wrong xandingafuni aye kwi ndawo ezinjeya? I'm not being mean but I've attached to my baby, I don't know what I'll do if I were to lose him." Rob: "kengoku kutheni ungathethi noSpho and make her understand."

Lakhe: "Spho is stubborn, kudala ndimxelela. Akafuni undiva." Rob: "then mxelele some more until she does. Keeping quiet and moping around usixhaya isn't going to help. And hiding the car keys isn't helping either." Lakhe: "unditixele mos out my room mna ndidiniwe ndifuna ulala. She didn't care about that." Rob: "she was upset." Lakhe: "why uthanda umthethelela uSpho? Why for once mna ndingathethelelwa?" Rob: "uyindoda umdala ungaka? Khaxole wethu. Women must be treated like golden eggs mntanam, if it means tiptoeing then so be it." Lakhe: "hayi ke tata naxa erongo? Andicingi mna." Rob: "you know the secret to a happy marriage? Happy wife, Happy Life." Lakhe: "but that didn't work for you." Rob: "no matter what I did, nothing could make Stella happy, except the jewelry and cars I bought her, her issues with me were never really with me. They were deeper than that. But Spho is not your mother, she is completely different, she is kind, she is sweet, she cares about you genuinely and does everything for you. Uyakthanda lomntana Sobukwe. She even cooks for you on a daily basis. Uyayazi ndagqibela nini uphekelwa ngumamakho mna? NEVER." Lakhe: "is that why you won't leave my house?" Rob: "that's not the point. Uyathandwa, the least you could do, is treat her like royalty. Please. Even not for wena, but for the baby. Imagine what she's going through, what she's feeling. The baby is slowing down her life and wena awuyiboni lonto." Lakhe: "I didn't think of that. Ndithin ke tata xa enditixela phandle and not talk to me?" Rob: "apologize, make things right. Make her listen if she won't talk. I shouldn't have to tell you what to do to your wife, if anyone knows her, its you." Lakhe took the remote and switched channels.

All the baby stuff was back in the house and I'd be damned if I had to go back there today. Lakhe was damn near driving me crazy. I just didn't want to see him at all. Zintle: "Spho, we need the baby presents to take to Zingi. Uzoqumba kude kuthini?" Me: "he revolts me." Fez: "heee Sphosenkosi, you're pregnant, his child, OBVIOUSLY he is going to revolt you but this is not about you ngoku. You need to go back there and fetch the things." Me: "uxuthe istixo semoto, mandizule ngo Uber mna ngoku. Sies." Zintle: "then we'll take my car." Me: "I'm not going back there. I have a meeting anyway." Zintle: "Who could you possibly have a meeting with on New Years Eve?" Me: "my financial advisor. Ndifuna uthenga imoto. Besides, my insurance paid out a few weeks ago, I'm thinking of adding a few bucks kuyo and buying a Range Rover." Fez: "Range Rover? YASSS Gyal!! I'm 100% with you. Ibene panoramic roof please. Ibe bomvu tshomza. Yuuuuh uzoba gorrrrge." Me: "not Red. I want it blue. Or maybe white." Fez: "u-white unditshisisa ngomchamo mna tshomi. Iyadika. Funeke i-color e-pazaaaz. Maybe yellow." Me: "yellow?"

Really?" Fez: "okanye ibe pink ke friend. Your choice." I giggled. Me: "how about wena uye endlin uyolanda ezinto. You'll talk to Sandile, he's your hubby now." Zintle: "ewe masiye Fez." Me: "I hope to God you're not hoping to meet with Rob." Zintle: "khayeke wethu Spho. Utata uRob ukuba ufuna impundu ezi fresh, nazi. Qha qwaba. Akazongatyi, utyiwa nawe. Uzam'pha?" Me: "euw." Zintle: "then let us be." Me: "sizodibaneni kwa Zingi in an hour." Fez: "iza ndik'droppe kwi meeting sikushiye khona." they dropped me off at Walmer, Zest. I walked inside and sat down waiting with a glass of orange juice. Ukhona lomntu undisindayo yazi. Besides my baby. I looked around and found a set of eyes staring at me. Wow. Out of all the places in the city he had to come here? By the look of his table he'd been here a while too. He got up and walked to me with his glass. Siya: "are you stalking me?" I smiled. Me: "don't flatter yourself." he sat down opposite me and I could feel my insides melting. I had to leave. Siya: "Unjani? I see your attempts of avoiding me." Me: "I'm not avoiding you, I'm fine, Unjani wena?" Siya: "I'm okay I guess. Just got off a 32 hour shift. Accident patients." Me: "you should be asleep." Siya: "I can't. My body is too stiff." Me: "so you think alcohol is gonna help you? Because you will end up next to your patients bed uneyakho nawe. Nincedisana nge bathroom break." he laughed. Siya: "ubufuna ndithini? My mother is on some road trip with her old friends baya eKapa for the New Year." my juice arrived. Me: "so why don't you take some time off and relax." Siya: "and do what? With who?" Me: "sight see. Find a girl. Or A guy. Have drinks." Siya: "I'm not the right company for other people right now." I nodded. Siya: "except you. You bring out the best in me." Me: "Do I?" Siya: "Yes." he smiled. Siya: "so uzothini apha?" Me: "well, I'm meeting my financial advisor. He's helping me buy a car." Siya: "what happened to your car?" Me: "I had an accident." Siya: "when! Kwathini ungatsho Spho? Is the baby okay?" Me: "Relax! Not recently. I'm talking about the one months ago. That car was written off." he sighed. Siya: "you scared me." Me: "I'm okay. Don't worry." Siya: "but you have the ML, don't you use that?" Me: "that's Lakhe's car. All of them." Siya: "is he using them?" Me: "that's not the point." Siya: "it kind of is. You're married to him, what's his is yours, and I believe that includes cars." Me: "yeah well, I want my own." Siya: "did something happen?" Me: "No." Siya: "I like how you think you can lie to me." Me: "I just don't want to talk about it." Siya: "Fine, what car do you want?" Me: "a Range Rover." Siya: "Wow, so you just decide to dive in with the big boys huh? That's good." I chuckled. Me: "nanku Abo." I waved him over. Siya: "let me leave you to it then. Undixelele xa uhamba." I nodded and he left to his table. I started my meeting with Abo and we were done within an hour. He had to rush somewhere else. I was tired again. And hungry. I went over to the lounge where Siya was sitting. He looked so comfortable like in his own living room with feet on the table. I sat down. Me: "I'm done." Siya: "andikakuboni usitya." Me: "yeah I just ordered now." Siya: "you want to get a take away?" he looked at me. Crap. Me: "uhm..." Siya: "relax, I don't bite." Me: "I have to go to a baby shower I'd planned and I'm already tired." Siya: "you have to be there?" Me: "Yes. She's my best friend." I untied my shoe laces. Siya: "izapha." he picked up my foot. Me: "No I'll be fine-" Siya: "stop fighting me." he massaged my foot. Siya: "zikubambile ezizihlangu and your feet are swelling. You're hurting yourself." Me: "andizonxiba eza sandal zika makhulu all the time, nam ndifuna ubamhle." Siya: "eziphi sandal zika makhulu?" I showed him a picture and he giggled. Siya: "I think they're adorable." Me: "you're just saying that." Siya: "yeah, they're horrible. But what's important is your comfortability more than anything. The baby is swiping a lot of your energy and the best way is to be comfortable. I don't want you to have aches and stress. Is Lakhe giving you back rubs like I suggested in the email?" Me: "yes, every night." Siya: "Perfect. Its a good thing he's supportive of you and his baby." Me: "why does it then feel like he's too much?" Siya: "don't give in to that negativity. There's a lot of women out there who go through this by themselves and they wish they had a supportive husband like yours. Don't take it for granted. Let him help you. If you need space, let him know. Don't just shut him out. Okay?" Me: "Okay." Siya: "how did your car meeting go?" Me: "really well. I can afford it. He has 3 places on standby. I'm going to check them out next week." Siya: "good. I wish you all the best." Me: "so are you just going to spend New Years alone?" Siya: "yeah. I'll be at the hospital though. Not really alone there." Me: "do you have to be at the hospital or awunayo enye indawo yokuya?" Siya: "funny enough I do, I just don't want to. An old friend of mine is in town. Wanted me to go with him to a pool party. Andisemdala for i-pool party." Me: "what would be your ideal New Years eve then?" Siya: "if I had a wife, it would be with her. Sihlale endlin. Watch TV with our dog Meryl. Cook together, when midnight strikes put on the fireworks outside and watch them together." Me: "no party? Invite friends?" Siya: "maybe just a few. I'm just not a party person. Maybe a small gathering, for a few hours then that's it." my phone rang and I almost swore at it. Who the hell could it be! I took it out and stared at it. Me: "its my friends. Hold on." I answered the call. Me: "hello." Fez: "awukagqibi babes?" Me: "no I'm still busy sweetheart, ningakhabe nisiya ndizonifumana khona." Fez: "okay then." I hung up. Siya: "you should go." Me: "Yeah." Siya: "Khame ndiye bathroom I'll be back." he got up and went to the bathroom. I pressed my phone while I waited. The waiter brought my refill of juice and food. I started eating. Siya came back in a short while. He took a piece of my meat and tossed it in his mouth, chewing. Me: "uyathanda undityela wena." Siya: "is that so? Ngoku ndisithi ndiyancedisa." I laughed. Me: "mxim vha." Siya: "can I touch your stomach?" Me: "uhmm." he put his hand on my belly and felt a soft kick. He smiled. Siya: "undikhabile." Me: "I know." Siya: "she likes me." Me: "is that what you think?" Siya: "ewe tshi. Its so obvious." Me: "uyavuya wena. She usually kicks during the evening. Adlale ke until I fall asleep, I don't even mind anymore." Siya: "so did you ask for the gender?" Me: "You're the doctor." Siya: "I never looked to be honest. I was kind of disturbed." Me: "by what?" Siya: "You." Me: "its not like You'd never seen me before." Siya: "True. Its just that bendingak'lindelanga and for you to say you're pregnant.....I just blacked out." Me: "yeah I remember you looking at me like I'd committed murder." Siya: "I'm sorry." Me: "its fine." Siya: "nanku uyaphinda uyandikhaba." Me: "you know she's inside me right?" he chuckled. Siya: "its so exciting. A new life is just amazing. Delicate. Its like writing a book. Something you're creating from scratch." Me: "Wow Siya, You've just compared my baby to a book." Siya: "the best book ever written, by the best author." I smiled. Me: "I think I want a girl. I'm the only woman kulandlu except Nosi who's in and out. I want a daughter." Siya: "I thought you wanted a boy. What changed?" Me: "from the experience of living with them, I've changed my mind." Siya: "and what if kuphuma ikwekwe?" Me: "then I'd love him too. No harm." he nodded. He looked at his watch. Siya: "are you rested?" Me: "Yes." Siya: "then its time to go." Me: "you can go, I'll wait for Uber." Siya: "no way I'm leaving you here by yourself. Let me drop you off." he put on my sneaker back on my foot and laced it up. Siya: "there." Me: "you're going to work?" Siya: "No. I've got other business to attend to." he paid the bills and walked me to his car. Siya: "you look beautiful by the way. You got the glow. Pregnancy agrees with you." Me: "thank you Siya." he opened the passenger door for me and I slipped in. He walked around to get into the driver's seat then drove us out. Siya: "so ugqibele nini uncokola notatakho?" Me: "on Wednesday, he called and let me know he's okay." Siya: "you seemed stressed the other day. Was it about him?" Me: "Yeah." Siya: "are you okay?" Me: "Yeah. Its just...something really weird happened." Siya: "what is it?" Me: "well, the clinic where umama ka Sibuy is, called at midnight to report that she'd spoken." Siya: "why would they call at midnight to tell you that?" Me: "she'd gone mute the whole day." Siya: "oookay. Then what happened?" Me: "when I asked what she said, the call was hung up. Everything about it was weird." I was actually waiting to see a reaction. Siya: "nothing else was said? She didn't call back?" I shook my head. Siya: "you sure it wasn't Sandile playing with you?" he wasn't phased at all. Me: "I don't think he'd go that far. Besides I checked the number, the call came from inside the hospital." Siya: "Did you ask the hospital what happened?" Me: "Lakhe went there yesterday, but I'm not talking to him so I don't know what happened." Siya: "when he came back from the hospital did you notice anything different?" Me: "I didn't see him, I was sleeping." Siya: "and this morning?" Me: "no he was his usual self. All of them." Siya: "all of them being? Sibuy and Sands and Dumi?" Me: "yeah." Siya: "Oh. So where is the lady that called you?" I looked at him. There. Me: "how did you know it was a lady?" he looked back at me. The most innocent look on his face. Siya: "I assumed. Most hospitals have majority lady nurses. Or Was it a man?" WOOW. He was good. Me: "no it was a woman." Siya: "Oh. I'm sure nothing is wrong. Don't worry yourself about it." Me: "you sure?" Siya: "maybe it was a power shortage. Maybe the signal was bad. There's probably an explanation as to why the call hung up." Me: "so you don't think anything happened to her?" Siya: "no. If something happened, someone must have seen. A hospital is huge and the lights are always on. There's cameras and There's always nurses and doctors walking around. I'm sure she's okay. Why are you so worried?" So it probably wasn't him. Me: "because this is the second call days apart that has cut from me. First ibingu tata." Siya: "maybe its your network provider. Have it checked." Me: "you're right." I directed him to Zingi's place and he parked outside. Me: "Thank you. For everything." Siya: "its a pleasure. I hope you enjoy yourself." Me: "I will. Please try and have some fun too." Siya: "I promise." Me: "goodbye then." I hugged him. There was a knock on the window of his side. SANDILE. He waved at us smiling. Siya opened the window. Siya: "Hey. Unjani?" Sands: "I'm perfect, are you coming in? We have plenty of everything. Food, cake, single women. You name it." Siya: "actually I'm good, thank you though." Sands: "really? You have plans?" Siya: "Yes." Sands: "On a scale of baby shower to real party, what are we looking at?" Siya: "I'm not going to a party." he looked over at me. Siya: "take care of yourself and little butterfly kicks." Me: "thanks Siya. Uhambe kakuhle." I got out the car and walked in the house. Zintle: "you made it!" Me: "I did. And why did you bring your friend?" Fez: "he insisted. I couldn't say no." Me: "you could. You just wouldn't." Fez: "Yuh mfazi. Don't crucify me. Geez. What's up with you?" I sat down on the couch. Me: "Uphi uZingi?" Fez: "she's getting dressed. What's up with you?" Me: "Nothing, I'm just tired. I had a long meeting." Sands: "with Siya?" Me: "No. With my financial advisor. Siya was at the restaurant, he offered me a lift qha." Sands: "oh. Why doesn't he want to stay for a drink?" Me: "you heard him say he had plans." Sands: "he's not going to a party though." Me: "Gee Sandile, your hobby is stalking people please go find him." Sands: "Well, aren't you spicy today." he sat next to me. Everyone else went to the kitchen. Me: "what the hell are you doing here? Uyayazi uDumi Uphi?" I whispered. Sands: "uyayazi uLakhe uvelaphi?" he smiled. Me: "If you think you're going to blackmail me, you have another thing coming. I was in a meeting." Sands: "and I was helping a friend. Why are you stressing?" Me: "Dumi is your best friend." Sands: "Lakhe is your husband." Me: "What are you implying?" Sands: "I'm not implying anything." Me: "Sandile." Sands: "I'm good at keeping secrets Spho. You know that. You let me do my thing, I let you do yours. Without interruptions. I'm not Judge Judy." Me: "Oh. My. God. You still like her?" I hissed. Sands: "And you still like him. Looks like we butchered back to the same spot." Me: "I don't like Siya." Sands: "That's not what I saw." Me: "then you need glasses." Sands: "Spho we can go back and forth arguing about what's what. Truth of the matter is, we're in the same spot. You're my sister, you have my back. I'm your brother, and I got your back Jack. Understood?" his eyes were low and dark. It sounded more like a threat. I nodded. Sands: "perfect. Now, for some TV? I think I saw a repeat of one of your favorite shows airing." I was just cold in my seat. What game was Sandile playing?

It was well into the night after we had dinner at Zingi's thanks to Fez. It was delicious. Sandile had fallen asleep after his second plate. Zintle was getting ready for a party. Zintle: "tshomi kaloku masambe." Fez: "hayi tshomi andihambi." Zintle: "we've been looking forward to this for months!! Njani ungahambi?" Fez: "hehake Friend, wabuza i-bus ibhaliwe." Zintle: "Fezile, sundiphambanisa." Fez: "nganton ngoku Zintle. If you want to go, go." Zintle: "Fez uSandile ulele. Uzamthin elele?" Fez: "uneenyoka ke." Zintle: "Spho talk to him." Me: "Yeah she's right Fez. Sandile uyow'vuka ksasa shame. I don't want to lie to you. Besides, you don't want to be in his face all the time. Awufuni adikwe nguwe. Let him miss you." Fez: "you're right. Okay, fine. Masambe ke tshomi." he took his purse. Fez: "bye guys. Love you too. Don't go wild." I laughed. Me: "Funny Fez.." Zintle: "thanks Spho, love you babes. Nilale kamandi." Zingi: "love you too." they left together. Me: "I should get this one home. Sandile? Wake up sweetie. Its time to go." Sands: "hm.hm." he shifted and continued sleeping. Oh hell. Me: "Sandile vuka! We're going home." he opened his eyes. Sands: "You were doing so well." Me: "what?" he sat up on the couch. Zingi was tidying the house. Sands: "thatha imoto ugoduke. Tell them you left me at a club. Keep Sibu and Dumisani inside the house." Me: "Sandile, No." Sands: "Yes." he gave me his keys. Me: "Sandile please don't do this. Zingi talk to him." Sands: "Leave her out of this. Sphosenkosi, I don't care uyaphi, iya ku Siya. Just go. Please." Me: "ndizothini kuDumi? How can I look him in the eye." Sands: "the same way you do uLakhe. Go." Me: "Sandile, don't do this to our family. I'm begging you." now he kept quiet and just stared at me with the cold dark look that scared me to death. I took the keys and my bag then walked out to his car, driving home. It was drizzling a bit. In my thoughts I saw Siya, as he was sitting opposite me at Zest. The way my stomach somersaults whenever he's around. When we were at the lounge chilling. I stopped at the robots. I wonder if he went to the party or at the hospital. No Spho, Drive home. Yet my foot wouldn't press the accelerator.

My hand went to the indicators and instead I turned right. My heart was racing. I took my phone and dialed his number then stopped. I had to go home. I made a U-turn and drove home without thinking again. My heart hammered inside my chest. I parked in my driveway. It was full on raining now. I got out the car and went inside the house. It was empty. Lights off and all. I walked to my bedroom and Lakhe was on his laptop laying on the bed. Me: "hi." Lakhe: "hi." I took off my wet clothes. He stared at me quietly. After covering with my gown I went to the laundry room to put it in the washing then came back to shower. I walked back to bed with my lotion ndathambisa. The laptop was off the bed now. He was just looking at me. Lakhe: "I'm sorry I hid the car keys." he started. Lakhe: "it was childish of me. I guess I wanted payback for getting locked out. I deserved it to be honest, I was being a jerk. I just want to protect you and my baby." I massaged my breasts. Hearing him swallow almost made me giggle. Lakhe: "I'd lose my mind if I lost either one of you. Ndicela undixolele Spho." I looked at him. Me: "Where's everyone?" Lakhe: "the boys are playing in the game room andimazi Uphi uSandile. Tata is sleeping." I nodded. Lakhe: "ubuye nganton?" Me: "ngemoto ka Sandile. Left him at a club." Lakhe: "you went to a club?" Me: "ndiyinton kwi club ke mna ndimngaka? I just dropped him off." Lakhe: "Oh." I took my thigh long socks and wore them along with my night dress. Lakhe: "I missed you." I got into bed. Me: "I'm sorry I locked you out. I was just mad." Lakhe: "its okay." he kissed my lips and I let him but that's all he did. Lakhe: "how was your day." I kissed him again. Taking his hand to my breast. He pulled me closer and kissed my nipple. His hand slipped between my thighs and rubbed on my clit. Me: "yesss...." his finger found the entrance and he pushed it in. I held his face and kissed his lips. Lakhe: "baby...." Me: "shhhh..." he disappeared under the blankets and opened my legs wider then I felt soft tender kisses on my inner thighs. His finger still pumped in and out slowly. Then his lips landed on my clit. Me: "Ohhhhh..." he sucked on it softly and gently. Me: "No, harder baby." he went a little harder, devouring. Me: "YESS!!!" he pushed the second finger in. Me: "Oh honey!!!" my thighs were shaking. Me: "baby plleeease don't. Stop." he held my thigh up while his fingers and mouth worked. Me: "its coming daddy!! Yesss!!!" I was throbbing and ready for him, it came in splashes driving me into a spiral of crazy. He came up and pushed his erection in, slowly dancing in circles. Me: "baby faster....please." he pumped faster, I turned over to my side. Me: "Lakhe!!!" Lakhe: "Yess baby...." he groaned. Lakhe: "shittt..." Me: "get all of it daddy Yess!!" he crumbled the sheet in a fist lock. Lakhe: "baby wam...." Me: "its cuming baby..." Lakhe: "shiiit shit shiiiiit. Spho I can't...." Me: "almost there baby. Yesss!!!" I held his hand as I shook with orgasm. He flopped beside me. Me: "Wow." Lakhe: "Wow is correct." I got up and went to the toilet. Me: "nguwe ke ozolala kulondawo uyenze manzi." Lakhe: "totally worth it." I came back to bed. He cuddled me in his arms. Lakhe: "is my baby fine?" Me: "yeah." Lakhe: "I don't want to hurt her." Me: "is that why you're so gentle?" Lakhe: "is that a bad thing?" Me: "Well, no. I just noticed you were holding back a bit." Lakhe: "I'm sorry." Me: "its fine. I think its safer that way." Lakhe: "I can't wait till You've healed after birth so I can tear you apart till the following week." Me: "you know that'll be 3 months after birth right?" Lakhe: "hayi ke ungaqali. 3 full months? Uthanda kangaka undiqhayisela ngempundu? Awusoze kaloku uzoyolala phe front." Me: "ndikuqhayisele nini ngempundu Masilakhe?" Lakhe: "awuziboni wena xa ugqibo vasa uthambisa apha?" Me: "awusena drama. Funeke kengoku ndinxibe bathroom?" Lakhe: "I didn't say that. But damn baby, awunondi punisher olohlobo. Please." Me: "uzolala efront kaloku." Lakhe: "at least one month." Me: "I said 3." Lakhe: "phof andina worry yam mna. Nguwe ozondinqika ndilele." Me: "enough about us, what happened at the hospital?" Lakhe: "Anne has disappeared baby. When your call cut off, the electricity tripped, I think someone did it on purpose, but how could they have been so quick? Omnye u-nurse obesebenza with Anne was downstairs only heard a thud. Then kwacima umbane. He went up 5 minutes later and put it back on. That was it. Nobody has seen Anne, not even her husband." Me: "This nurse she was working with, why did he take so long to go check for the electricity?" Lakhe: "he was watching porn and masturbating. He had to finish." I rolled my eyes. Me: "what if its him and he's using the masturbation as a cover up story? Why would a man admit to another man that he was masturbating at work? What if it was a distraction for you to stop asking?" he kept quiet for a while. Me: "and where was he watching the porn? On his phone?" Lakhe: "no he says he used the computer pha?" Me: "that's impossible. I'm sure, almost 100% that those types of websites are blocked from the hospital internet. He lied." Lakhe sat up. Lakhe: "yazi unyansile Sphosenkosi. He took us to a room away from the staff to talk to us and he was so willing to share that information." Me: "did he show you the downstairs he was supposedly masturbating in?" Lakhe: "he didn't." he got up and dressed in sweatpants and a vest. I too stood up and wore my nightie and long gown over it plus slippers. I followed him out of the room. He went to the game room. Sibu and Dumi, get this AND Sandile, I wish I was joking, were sitting together playing video games. When the hell did he get home? And How? But thank God. Lakhe: "We have a problem." Sibu: "yintoni bhuti?" Lakhe: "We got played. Timothy could have been lying. There is by no way he could watch porn on the hospital computer, he wasn't downstairs, he was the one who took Anne."

Sandile had made me hot cocoa and brought me biscuits. I don't know why. I wrapped a blanket around my legs because for some odd reason bendigodola. Lakhe also brought me thick warm socks for my feet. I was finally warming up. Sibú: "I have to get my mother out of there." Sands: "immediately. Tell them what you showed me." Sibú: "ndiye ndangena kula room ebekuyo, uhm, she was writing in some diary, the word, Komanded. Over and over again." Lakhe: "Whaaaat." he hissed. Sibú: "and then when I told her I'm going to get her out of there she wrote again, Komand Will Come." Lakhe: "and you didn't tell me this before!!!!!" he roared. Me: "Baby-" Lakhe: "Don't!! Sibulele uthulele nton! Were you just gonna bring this woman here to be found and get us all killed!!!!" he was super pissed off. I don't think I've ever seen him like this. Even with the Dez episodes. Sibú: "bhuti, I just want to get her out of th-" Lakhe: "don't you fucking give me that!!! Do you know what Komander will do, if he finds that woman!! She's as good as dead!!!!" Rob: "What the hell is going on!!!!" he walked in the lounge tying his gown at his waist. Lakhe: "Tata go back to bed. And you, I want to see you in private." Me: "Masilakhe, will you calm down and please explain to me what is going on? Why are talking about death?" Lakhe: "the less you know. The better. Sibulele, march." I held Sibulele's arm. Me: "he's not going anywhere with you like that." Lakhe: "I told you to stay out of this." Sibú: "its okay Spho, I'll be fine." Me: "NO. Sit. You too Lakhe." he stared at me. Me: "I said, SIT." he tightened his jaw and sat on the couch. Me: "Good. Now, who is Komander? And what does he want from your mother?" Sands: "Ko-" Me: "I'm not asking you. Sibú?" Of course I knew who Komander was, I watch the news. I think there was also a movie made about him. And that no one has ever lived to tell what he looks like. My question is, uyinton kweyam i-family? Sibú looked at Lakhe fearfully. Me: "he's not going to do anything to you, look at me, Sibulele, Look at me." I sat down next to him and held his hands. Me: "what's going on." Sibú: "The Komander is this guy, some international dealer." Me: "like a drug dealer?" Sibú: "Yes but not quite, he doesn't deal drugs directly. He creates, he is a brand. He owns the drug business, all over the world. Also, not just drugs, he's the head of many criminal activites, such as illegal car sales, human trafficking and.....no one has ever seen his face or dealt directly with him." Me: "Then how do you know he exists?" Sibú: "well, he has people he controls, people that carry out his messages, if you come across him knowing what he is, it is believed he kills you. The only way to protect his identity." I was confused. But okay. Me: "So what would he want from your mom?" Sibú: "because..." he looked at Lakhe again. Me: "look at me." Sibú: "because I was looking for him." Me: "after all You've just described for me about this man, you still look for him? Why?" he closed his mouth looking behind me. Me: "Lakhe, please go to the kitchen-" Lakhe: "Spho, let me deal with this!" Me: "I'm not going to let you yell at my brother for a small mistake!!! Which by the way, I'm not putting past your orders, so you're going to sit and be quiet or leave!" Sibuh. Sibuh: "I had reason to believe, he was close. To us." Me: "Close how? Geographically or Emotionally?" Sibuh: "Both." Me: "Who?" Sibuh: "I thought it was.....uSiya." I broke into a giggle. Me: "uDr Siyanda Kusile?" Sibuh: "Spho, he's the only person I looked at, his life in joburg. After finding disturbing piece of information, this happens." Me: "wait....what disturbing piece of information?" Lakhe: "No!! Enough!" Rob: "Let Him Talk." Lakhe: "Tata, Hayi!" Rob: "Masilakhe." Lakhe: "I dare you to spea-" Me: "I dare you to finish the rest of that sentence." Lakhe: "Spho, I can't let you hear this." Me: "Do you remember Loco? Your little extra mural activities in Durban, aka Laundromat? Do you remember Sis' Nolitha and your bail? Explain to me what more of you can't I take?" he sat down and sighed. Lakhe: "Qhubekeka Sibuh." Sibuh: "I found out that Siya had a friend called Rey, who used to work in the hospital morgue. They mysteriously stopped talking one day then Rey went missing. He was found 4 months later, mutilated, eyes, ears and tongue. With a X carved onto his chest." This I did not expect. I quickly recharged my energy back to being calm. I was in full panic mode. This was a guy I had lunch with. He massaged my foot. He told me I was beautiful. He gave me a lift to my best friend's house. Oh my God. Oh my God. Sibuh: "now I tried to track relatives of Rey and he only had one sister, who allegedly committed suicide a day after Rey's body was found. It was believe she drank cyanide." I was frozen cold. Lakhe: "see this is why I didn't want you to hear this!" Sibuh: "I tried finding someone who might have spoken to Rey the day he stopped speaking to Siya. But it seems, no one heard him say a word. Now the same has happened to my mother." he voice cracked. This Komander guy was really serious about his identity huh. Me: "So, let me get this straight, Rey stopped talking to Siya and apparently everyone, then disappears only to be found months later mutilated. Where was the body found?" Sibuh: "in some shallow grave in the bushes. Or forest or something." Sands: "what are you thinking Spho." Me: "Rey saw Komander, that's why his eyes were cut. He heard him speak, that's why his ears were cut. But he'd already gone mute, why would his tongue be cut out?" Sands: "maybe he threatened to tell someone?" Me: "No. From what I'm hearing, Komander reacts on action." Lakhe: "what are you saying?" Me: "Rey.....told someone." Sands: "Dear God, you're right!!" he clapped his hands. Lakhe: "wait, but maybe he told his sister?" Me: "Yes. But I doubt that's all he told. If you can find the connection, to your mother and Rey. We've got ourselves one more person that knows who Komander is." Dumih: "you should've been a lawyer." Rob: "Detective. I'm gonn build her her own homicide division. Right in this lounge." I smiled. Me: "enkosi tata." I looked at the clock. It was 10 minutes after midnight. Me: "Happy New Year everyone." Sands: "that's today? Wow! Happy New Year!!!" the whole family embraced in hugs. I still felt a little eerie about this Komander guy. Would Siya really do such a despicable thing? Why? Was I safe? I see him every day and maybe I'll slip and say something then he'll know I know and what then?

We all went back to bed around 3 in the morning. I actually didn't think I'd be able to sleep at all. As much as I pretended, I was not just scared, I was mortified. Could Siyanda really do this? I don't even know! Lakhe: "Mfazi wam." Me: "hey." we cuddled under blankets. Lakhe: "I'm surprised at how well you're taking this." Me: "taking what?" Lakhe: "the fact that your friend could be a serial killer." Me: "Could be." Lakhe: "Have you noticed anything strange about him? Please tell me Spho?" Me: "no I haven't." Lakhe: "it doesn't matter what it is, please." Me: "akhonto Lakhe. He's just as he is." Lakhe: "I don't want you to get hurt. I don't think I fully trust Siyanda." Me: "gee, if he wanted to kill me I think he would've done so by now." Lakhe: "that's not making me feel any better. I'm afraid I have to ask you to stay away from him." With pleasure. Me: "I will, I promise." Lakhe: "really?" Me: "why are you so surprised?" Lakhe: "I thought You'd fight me kaloku ngo Vanilla boy wakho noSandile. Ndlela le nimthanda ngayo." Sandile is fake as hell really, you'll never know who he really likes. Me: "well, I don't want to risk it. Carrying precious cargo." Lakhe: "Damn right. Daddy's little princess. Do you need a backrub?" Me: "no, just my feet." he went to the edge of the bed and massaged my feet. Lakhe: "uyayazi ukuba Ndiyakuthanda Spho. With everything I have. You're my life." Me: "I love you too Lakhe. Where is this coming from?" Lakhe: "I made a vow, that I'd let you know. Every night and morning. That I'd protect you and our children. I intend to keep that promise." Me: "uzandikhapha ngomso? I'm going to visit my parents." he opened his mouth to speak then closed it again. Me: "its okay if you don't want to go." Lakhe: "its just that, its weird knowing that utatakho doesn't really like me, but pretends to really do. Its actually confusing because in my mind I really believe he adores me. Now I don't know." Me: "baby, you don't need to worry about that, ndim otshate nawe, ndim umntu you should be worried about being liked by. Nobody else. Unless its a client and has really good money." Lakhe: "that goes without saying." we laughed. Lakhe: "Thank you Spho, I don't remember ever being this comfortable and happy. Udenza umntu sisi. Like an actual human being, most important of all, a dad. I can never thank you enough for that." Me: "oh stop." Lakhe: "I can't." he lay between my legs and kissed my tummy. Me: "ungamvusi please." Lakhe: "uyeke umntanam adlale undincede." Me: "ndifuna ulala mna Masilakhe." Lakhe: "uzolala kaloku. Lala." he brushed my stomach gently. I was ready to sleep, yesterday's exhaustion piled on like a stack of bricks and I was ready to crumble.

Saturday morning I was up by 8 and showered. Lakhe was still in bed, sleeping. Actually snoring. Me: "baby?" Lakhe: "no, no." Me: "honey, you're dreaming. Wake up." Lakhe: "huh?" he woke up and looked at me confused. Lakhe: "what are you doing?" Me: "I'm waking you, ndikushiye?" Lakhe: "why are you leaving me?" This one was still disorientated from his dream. I sat on the bed and held his hand. Me: "ndiya kwabazali bam for a visit, do you want to come with me or stay here?" Lakhe: "oh." I could not have been clearer. I don't think it was physically possible. Me: "Lakhe, wake up my love." Lakhe: "I'm awake." he sat up. Me: "did you have a bad dream?" Lakhe: "no...just, no." Me: "ufuna sithethe ngayo?" Lakhe: "no. Definitely not." my phone rang. Me: "should I leave you behind?" Lakhe: "huh?" I think I was circling the issue. The dream was something about me leaving him. Me: "Did the dream involve me leaving you? Ndikulahlile?" he stared at me wide eyed like a deer caught in headlights. Lakhe: "how did you know?" he whispered. Me: "its kind of obvious the way you're reacting about my departure really. I'm not going anywhere, just a short visit, matter of fact ndizobuya in just 2 hours okay?" he nodded. I went to get dressed. Jeans were my worst nightmare ndik'xelele. I didn't want to wear a dress either. A jumpsuit would just be downright inconvenient seeing that I pee 100 times a day. I guess I had to wear a dress. A warm one with stockings because bekukho just a bit of a chill outside. I looked at this outfit and it was a definite no. I would look like a granny. I looked for one of my warmer tops. All things summer sana. I went to Lakhe's wardrobe and found a white sweater. I wore it with a vest underneath it, then my jeggings and a white sneaker. Finally. After getting ready I was ready to leave. Lakhe was wrapped in a white Versace gown sitting on top of the bed. Me: "I like your robe Hugh Hefner. What's wrong with your face?" he smiled. Lakhe: "awusemhle." I sat on his lap. Me: "I'm not going to leave you, unless you do something incredibly stupid. I made a promise." Lakhe: "I won't do anything stupid I promise." Me: "good. Ndikulinde?" Lakhe: "No, I'm gonn stay here today. Go do your thing." Me: "alright. I love you." Lakhe: "love you too." I took my bag and keys then left the house. Masilakhe stared at the phone in his hand. Then listened to the message. "Hi Spho, its me uBulelani. The results of the blood work are available. Come and see me soon. There's something I need to tell you." Lakhe clicked the end button and walked out the bedroom. He knocked on Sandile's bedroom door. Sands: "I'm naked what do you want!!!!" Lakhe opened the door and closed it behind him. Lakhe: "we have a problem, can you put on pants?" Sandile stood by the window stark naked and unbothered. Sands: "first of all, I told you before you came in. Khandithi ngena. Ndik'ncede nganton bhuti." he looked for his underwear. Lakhe: "why are you naked anyway?" Sands: "I was in the hot tub. Why do you ask? You wanna join me?" Lakhe: "Sandile." Sands: "sorry, uthin bhuti?" Lakhe: "I had a bad dream." Sands: "ooohh. Like Martin Luther King Jr?" Lakhe: "No, not that. Sphe is going to leave me. Soon. I didn't have a problem with that theory until I saw it in my dream happening. Sandile it can't happen." Sands: "you know what, you're right. I like her dumplings, her cinamon pumpkin, that chicken a la king she makes and her Italian lasagna on Saturday nights. I have gotten too accustomed to this lifestyle bhuti. If I let you take it away from me, I will never forgive you." Lakhe: "then help me." Sands: "first, tell me about the dream." Lakhe: "I don't know. I had blood on my hands and clothes and she just freaked out. I can't see the dead body's face on the floor. But she caught me with it. She was disgusted by me. The look on her face. The way she screamed." Sands: "okay, so, you're going to kill someone?" Lakhe: "or she might think I did." Sands: "meaning?" Lakhe: "Sandile, I received a meesage on her phone. Well she left it behind and I went through it ndafumana voice mail that just came in." he clicked the on phone and played it. After listening till the end he looked at his brother. Sands: "the t shirt." Lakhe: "she took it for forensics." Sands: "Shit. So, they have information." Lakhe: "incriminating information. He has to go Sandile." Sands: "are you....are you serious?" Lakhe: "I am not about to lose my wife and child! Make it go away!" Sands: "Masilakhe, bhuti wam-" Lakhe: "I said Make IT GO!!! Today!" he stomped out the room.

I was at my parents' house in the lounge with the folks and awkward silence. I really don't know what's happened. I'd left my phone at home even so I couldn't be bored online. Me: "niyitye njani i-New Year mama?" Mama: "kamnandi mntanam. We were with our neighbors." Me: "that's nice." Khaya: "wena busenza ntoni?" Me: "well, it was rather a weird night." should I tell them? Or not? I wanted to so badly. Khaya: "really? What happened?" Me: "nothing, I'm just not used to being inside on New Year. Plus it was a very bumpy year, I was living with uSimphiwe, had a good job, was happy. Then had an accident, got Lakhe, got married to him now I'm pregnant with his child." Mama: "yeah. But at least you're happy, right?" Me: "kakhulu mama. He is so sweet when I leave ingathi he's a little puppy. He just doesn't want me to go." Mama: "aawww. That's lovely mntanam." Me: "he's been so distracted for the past few days something about Komander or someone." Mama: "who is that?" Me: "I don't know. Just someone he doesn't seem to like. For a second ebecimba nguSiyanda." Mama: "wait, now I'm confused. Is command a code name like Superman or what?" Me: "Komander mama, some drug dealer that's really dangerous." Mama: "why would Lakhe be worried about that? Is he involved?" Me: "No, but he has reason to believe, Siya might be him." Mama: "and what do you think?" Me: "I don't know what to think." Khaya: "I need a drink." he got up and walked out. Me: "is dad okay?" Mama: "he's perfectly fine. Tell me more about this command." Me: "Komander. I don't know much about him. Just that he's severely dangerous." Mama: "how does Lakhe know this? And why would he think Siya is dangerous?" Me: "oh its some story he heard about Siya's friend. Rey. Who was butchered." Mama: "ohh, I've heard about Rey. It was all over the news. Oh sweetie, that's demonic. Do you really think Siyanda would do such a thing?" Me: "I don't know him that well mama. What if he could?" Mama: "hayi mntanam. Get those evil thoughts out of your head. And let your husband know, I've known Siyanda for years, he is incapable of killing an ant, let alone a human being." I nodded. Me: "so who do you think it might be then?" Mama: "some deranged psychopath that's who. Uyenza njani intwenjalo kumntu?" Me: "you know what's even worse? Mama ka Sibubaba has just gone mute." Mama: "mute how?" Me: "she just stopped talking mama. Its been days now and they think Komander may have something to do with it. She has written in her diary, hints about Komander. We just don't understand yintoni ebadibanisayo." Mama: "Oh my God Spho! Didn't you say she was in a clinic?" Me: "yes, she is." Mama: "oh no." Me: "what?" Mama: "sweetie, you were probably too young to remember this." Me: "intoni mama?" Mama: "When we took you at the hospital wazohlala nathi umamakho wabhanjwa for selling drugs." I actually do remember vaguely endixelela! Me: "I remember mama usithi that ufunyenwe nezinto ezingekho semthethweni and I can't be near her." Mama: "Yes, maybe she got those drugs from this Komander and ufuna imali yakhe?" Me: "tshin mama yazi you're right!" Mama: "I'm glad I could help sweetheart but you need to stay away from this. Asimazi angakwenza ntoni lo Komander and you're pregnant. Leave this alone." Me: "I've left it alone mama. Andifuni nto izondidibanisa nomntu onjeya." Mama: "ewe mntanam. Please." Me: "uphelele Phi utata ngoku?" Mama: "Khaya?" she got up and walked to the kitchen. Mama: "that's odd." Me: "Inoba uphumile. Mandihambe mama, I promised Lakhe I'd be home in 2 hours. He's in a bit of a spiral today." Mama: "okay my love. Please stay far away from this Komander character." Me: "I will mama, I promise." Mama: "umamele umnyeni wakho xa ekunqanda because I know that u-stubborn wena." Me: "heee umama. I will." Mama: "Good and call me ufika kwakho endlini." I sighed. Me: "mama, stop stressing please. I love you, umxelele utata ndimnkile and I love him too. Goodbye." Mama: "I love you my angel." I hugged her and went to my car, driving back home. In an hour Khaya came back home. Khaya: "Uphi uSphosenkosi?" Mama: "she went home. What happened? You just disappeared." Khaya: "Nothing. I just needed some air." Zama: "why? Taka Spho is there something you want to tell me." Khaya: "No." he sat down. Zama: "Spho says umamakhe stopped talking." Khaya: "I wish her real mother would stop talking." Zama: "Khaya, I'm being serious. What happened there?" Khaya: "nothing Zama. I went there that afternoon and spoke to her. That's it." Zama: "Oh. Because they found a diary." Khaya: "what diary?" Zama: "her diary where she wrote something in. Something about.....Komander. Would you know anything about that?" Khaya: "ufuna ukuthin ngam Zama?" Zama: "nothing. Just sharing interesting information about current news events." Khaya: "how is this current news- You know what? I'm tired. I need to sleep." Zama: "Khaya, you know that I love you." Khaya: "by doubting me all the time?" Zama: "I just need to be sure." Khaya: "that I should be the one to kill her?" Zama: "Now you're just being ridiculous. Maybe we should let Komander know that she snitched. Or is about to." Khaya: "I don't want to be a part of this Zama." Zama: "that's not the deal you signed Khaya. You did this for Spho. Don't forget it. Should any type of repercussion happen izaya straight kuye. Ndiyak'cela mntu wam." Khaya: "Zama, something needs to give. My child cannot be in the midst of this forever." Zama: "I know. I never knew izophuma oluhlobo but Komander will never let her go. He knows how much of a leverage she is to us. He's the only one who knows and understands how much she means to us. And he will use all his might to have power over us. If Miriam is out of the picture, he won't bother us again." Khaya: "Fine. Then I'll let him know first thing tomorrow." Zama: "tell him now." Khaya: "do you know what he will do to her if he knows about this? Zama this is someone's mother." Zama: "Khaya, kudala uMiriam wacengwa. She is paying for her sins. Komander would have killed her years ago when he found out about Spho and that evil man they call a father. You were the one that saved her ngomsa etrongweni for drugs. Now you want to give her another life line? Khaya, I can't let Komander get to Spho and he's so close this time. Rather sacrifice Miriam to him, not our only daughter. He will ruin my child's life. Ndiyakucenga mnyeni wam." Khaya: "You're right. Okay, I'll tell him. Tonight."

I arrived at home in a short while, finding Lakhe standing by the door. I got out the car and walked to him. Me: "you okay?" Lakhe: "yeah. Just feeding the ducks." we went inside the house. Me: "Uphi uSandile?" Lakhe: "he went out to his friends for a while he'll be back soon." Me: "but his car is outside?" Lakhe: "they came to fetch him." I looked at him. Me: "and everyone else?" Lakhe: "my dad went to his golf club uhambe noDumi. Promised to introduce him to a boxing legend who was his friend then Sibuy decided to tag along." Me: "and Boogile?" Lakhe: "he's playing with the ducks." Me: "please bring him inside. Then you and I can do a bit of playing too." I kissed his chin. He smiled. Lakhe: "Nyani baby?" Me: "bring the pup inside. Then you'll see." he went outside to fetch Boogie who had muddy paws. Great. Now he would need to be washed because this entire house will be filled with mud. Lakhe: "I have to put him in the bath first then feed him azolala." Me: "okay, but be quick, or I'll start without you." Lakhe: "yes maam." he rushed to the bathroom. I went to the bedroom and undressed, laying on the bed waiting for him. He appeared in 10 minutes flat. Me: "umenzi umntana Lakhe?" Lakhe: "ndimfakile emanzini. Dried him up watya. Now he's napping eroomin ka tatakhe. All exits closed. He's safe." he climbed on the bed and kissed me. Lakhe: "I missed you." Me: "me too." I took off his t shirt. He put his face on my breasts. Lakhe: "my breast friends.." Me: "really daddy?" he kissed my lips. Someone knocked on the door. Lakhe: "who the f... Ungubani!!!" Sands: "hey! Ukhona. I'm back." Lakhe: "okay." he kissed me again. Sands: "uhm.. Aren't you gonna open? Its kind of lonely out here. I have no one to talk to." Lakhe: "come the fuck on." he breathed. Lakhe: "Sandile I'm kinda busy." Sands: "Oh...I just.....never mind." yuh andakhubeka. Me: "please go to him." Lakhe: "what! No!" Me: "please Masilakhe. My conscience can't take it. I'll reward you tonight. I promise." Lakhe: "Yuh hayi kodwa baby." Me: "2 in 10 minutes." Lakhe: "Fine. I'm going. You owe me." Me: "I do sthandwa Sam. I love you. You're so brave and amazing." Lakhe: "don't try and sell me into liking it. I've already said yes." he wore his t shirt. Lakhe: "and I love you too." he opened the door and walked out to the lounge. Lakhe: "ndim lo." he flopped on the couch. Sands: "I thought you were busy." Lakhe: "I was. Not anymore." Sands: "oh. Bendizofownela uFey and hang out with him. He always has time for me." Lakhe: "Sandile, what is it with you and this guy? You know he's gay right? Ndiyakwazi kaloku wena you like to blindfold yourself to reality. So what's the deal there?" Sands: "I'm in love with him bhuti." Lakhe: "WHAT!!!" Sands: "yeah, I don't know who to tell. It was so weird." Lakhe: "Sandile, what the hell! You're gay now?" Sandile stared at him sarcastically. Lakhe: "oh thank God you're kidding. Stop doing that!!!" Sands: "only when it stops being fun." he giggled. Sands: "hayi ke bhuti, do I look like I would even hug another man, well except utatam. I'm not gay. He's just my friend." Lakhe: "ndaziphi na Sandile with your tendencies and experiments." Sands: "hehake bhuti. Ndingade ndiyo experiment enye indoda." Lakhe: "Fine but does he know that?" Sands:

"know what?" Lakhe: "that you're not interested in him? I've seen the way he looks at you, always taking pictures of you Sandile that kind of behavior might get you date raped. Do you know that? Next thing he slips something in your drink and experiments with you. Set the record straight." Sands: "Fez is not that kind of person. He knows that we're friends hence he always wants to hang out with me. Besides, Boogile enjoys having him around ebemenzele Weetbix when he was here." Lakhe: "whether he made the dog weetbix, corn flakes or instant porridge. Did you let him know his place in your life?" Sands: "Lakhe andinguwe mna. I don't give people positions as if they're my employees." Lakhe: "I don't understand how you've survived this long shame. Ndincamile." Sands: "you're jealous that you don't have someone take pictures of you." Lakhe: "my wife does that all the time. Key word: WIFE. Not friend because that would be creepy. Dumi has never taken a picture of me neither has Babalo." Sands: "Your friends don't love you like mine do. Sibulele's phone is filled with pictures of me. Because I'm his best friend plus I'm his wallpaper." Lakhe: "firstly, most of those pictures are selfies that you take with his phone, secondly I saw you change his wallpaper and threaten him not to take it off. You know what, I finally understand, you ARE a Fez. Now it makes sense why you're so attached to him." Sands: "he had the option of deleting and changing it yet he didn't. Why? I've already said. You, don't have a best friend so you naturally can't understand." Lakhe: "okay indidikile Le conversation. Did you do the thing?" Sands: "what thing?" Lakhe: "do you want me to spell it out?" Sands: "that would be great yes." Lakhe looked at him. Sands: "I'm kidding! Yuh, uske ungabi serious. Its done. Probably dead or dying." Lakhe: "I don't need probably I need definitely." they whispered. Sands: "don't worry, it'll be hours before someone finds him, and he'll be gone by then. His car is tangled up in some trees kude. Anyway, I took a further step of retrieving the paperwork. I burnt them. So There's no record of your t shirt being in forensics or who's blood it was on it. You're safe." Lakhe: "I owe you." Sands: "Yes. Change your wallpaper." Lakhe: "andisoze ndisuse umfazi wam ndifake wena ke usile. And what's your obsession with being wallpaper?" Sands: "I'm already on 4 wallpapers. I need 5 to be considered a celebrity." Lakhe stared at him. Lakhe: "Okay. Then change your own. Babuya nini ootata?" Sands: "ndiyobakhangela? I can bother them to come home." Lakhe: "you're a special case wena." the gate opened. Lakhe: "naba. I'm thinking of taking you guys out. We haven't had a family night out." Sands: "Sweet. Are you trying to win brownny points from Spho?" Lakhe: "I'm not having that conversation with you." Sands: "you don't have to. She already told me." he smiled. Sands: "that night when you screamed like a baby..." Lakhe: "she told you that?!!" Sands: "Oh yes." he crossed over his leg. Lakhe: "what business do you have discussing my sex life with my wife Sandile!"

Sands: "wait what?" Lakhe: "what were you talking about?" Sands: "what do you mean sex life? And they say I'm the disgusting one. Geeez." Lakhe: "what the hell were you talking about then!!!!" he yelled. Sands: "ungxolela ntoni kengoku?" Rob: "Masilakhe. Masilakhe. Masilakhe. Iyawa Yinton? Yazi you're like a grizzly bear that has tonsillitis. Hleli nje une nerves." Lakhe: "Sandile. Talk." Sands: "I'm not saying anything. Otherwise I'm gonna be known as the town gossip and nobody will want to tell me anything." Lakhe: "Sandile I swear-" Sands: "you'll what? Beat me? Ndiyow'biza uSpho mna. Spho!!!!" he yelled. Lakhe stormed to his bedroom. Me: "undibizelani uSandile?" Lakhe: "you told him about that night? When I specifically told you not to!!!!" Me: "which night?" I sat up from bed. Lakhe: "OH? So its all nights you discuss with my brother? What doesn't he know? Huh?" he took his jacket and keys. Me: "baby, hold on. I don't discuss anything with Sandile especially concerning you or.....nights. What did he say." Lakhe: "don't lie to me!" I grabbed him. Me: "I'm not lying to you!" Lakhe: "then how the hell does he know about our sex life!!!!" Me: "sex life?" Lakhe: "I'm not going to repeat myself! You know exactly what you did!" I love my husband I do, but he is the one and only person on planet earth who makes the least sense when angry. Andimva tuu mna. Me: "Baby please calm down." Lakhe: "I can't. I'm going for a drive." Me: "then I'm coming with you." Lakhe: "Andifun Uhamba nawe Spho because next thing uzoyondihleba kuSandile." Me: "baby I have never gossiped about you." Lakhe: "then how would he know about that night then?" Me: "I need you to specify what night and what he said." Lakhe: "I'm not doing that. You can go discuss it with your buddy." he walked out. I sighed and wore my slippers tying my gown around my body. He walked back in the room and stared at me. Me: "uphoxwe ngubani ngoku?" Lakhe: "how does Sandile know what happened ngobabsuku wayezongqongqoza emnyango Sphosenkosi." Me: "Ohhh. He asked. BUT ndithe kuye I beat you with a stick. Ucimba ndikubethile. That's it. Why would I share our bedroom things with Sandile of all people, matter of fact, any people." he put down his keys. Me: "ugxothwe ngubani efront?" Lakhe: "ngutata. He says he's taking us out for dinner and a movie." Me: "us being the entire house." Lakhe: "Ewe. Uzonxiba nini." Me: "before sihambe I want to tell you something, nonke." Lakhe: "okay, get dressed so long. Let me go prepare them." he kissed me and I pushed him away. Me: "ungekaxolisi ngale outburst ugqiboyenza? Heee unesbindi shame." Lakhe: "I'm sorry. I over reacted." I went to the closet. Lakhe: "ndicela undixolele sthandwa sam." Me: "ndikuxolele." Lakhe: "can I get a kiss?" Me: "no. Injani weather phandle." Lakhe: "sukhohlakala mfazi wam." Me: "Khange ndiqalise." Lakhe: "ziyak'fanela ezi sweater zam ke yazi. Akho need utshintshe nxiba olahlobo ubunxibe ngalo emini." Me: "okay." I got dressed warmly. Instead of sneakers I wore socks and boots, we walked out the bedroom together and found the family in the lounge. Me: "molweni tata Unjani?" Rob: "ndiphilile mntanam. Wena?" Me: "ndiphilile nam tata." Rob: "Nyani? Its really hot outside you look like you're going ice skating." Sandile held his mouth. I stared at him. Me: "I know tata, but sometimes when There's a breeze, I get cold and afunekanga ndigodole." Rob: "if you say so. Uhleka ntoni Sandile?" Sands: "hayi tata ndihleke nini mna?" Rob: "uyotshintsha ke iskipa. We going out for dinner and a movie." Me: "before he leaves, There's something I need to tell you. Bendihleli nomama today and she shed some light on why Komander could've been connected to Miriam." Lakhe: "hayi Spho why would you tell her that!" Me: "if you think I'm going to keep quiet while a clearly crazy dangerous piece of Satan is surrounding us, you're unstable. Ndithini kengoku mna? Why must your entire family be involved but mine can't ingathi ndiyinkedama?" Rob: "That's true. We've kept quiet on most things zalapha endlini, and you just explode when someone tries to talk to you Masilakhe, ufuna uSpho athethe nabani?" Lakhe: "Mxim." Rob: "What did she say Spho." Me: "When I'd run from home, and landed in hospital, umamam came to adopt me. I don't know who called her or how it happened. All I know is, when I woke up, they were ready for me. When I moved in with them I asked her where my other mother was and if she was going to come back and she said no. She was arrested. For selling drugs." Lakhe: "Shit. Now this means, she really may know who Komander is. And we all know what that means, he's coming for her." Kengoku ibiyinton iqumbisa inantsi clue? Yoh hayi suka. Sibu: "Spho are you sure about this?" Me: "Yes. I remember from my memories I asked her and she told me, she was arrested for drugs." Sibu: "but how sure are we that she got these drugs from Komander? There's a lot of drug distributors out there!" Lakhe: "true but almost all of them belong to Komander. Maybe she owed him money." Sibu: "Bhuti, I need to get her out of there." Lakhe: "simthini Sibulele? Have you forgotten that my wife, your sister, is pregnant, nanku utata umdala, Dumi is paralyzed. Ndim nawe noSandile qha abakwazi ukulwa apha and Andicingi mna ndilwe uKomander Sibulele. That man is dangerous. We have too much to lose here. She cannot be in my house. I'm sorry." Rob: "kodwa nyana you're being harsh." Sibu: "its fine tata, xaningamfuni umamam apha endlini. I'll be the one who leaves. I'll find her a place and protect her myself!" Me: "Sibulele awuzoya ndawo-" Sibu: "no Spho, what I don't understand is that ngumamakho nawe lo but you don't care if she dies on the street." he walked out the house. Sands: "real smooth bhuti." he followed his best friend out. Lakhe: "kanti where am I wrong? Am I the only one who understands how dangerous this guy is? Am I wrong for trying to keep my family away from him?" Rob: "kodwa Lakhe, you could get extra security and a guard at the gate." Lakhe: "A guard at the gate? A guard at the gat-.....Tata lomntu went through HOSPITAL SECURITY without being seen!!! What is a guard at the gate going to do to him? Chase him with a stick? Hayi tata! Hayi!" Rob: "Masilakhe you are over reacting now." Lakhe: "uzobuya uSibulele when he's calm. He understands this and he will accept it!" Me: "Lakhe you can't do that." Lakhe: "I can't? Heee! We might as well just invite Komander over for tea and jam scones ke mos. Get to know him and exchange Facebook names and Instagram handles while we're at it." Komander on Instagram? Now that would be funny. I held in a giggle. In my head I visioned a guy that had a floor length black coat and his head covered with the hood so we couldn't really see his face but he's holding a tea cup with dry ashy hands and long fingernails like a bruha. (witch) I was finding it really hard to keep a straight face. Lakhe: "hayi Andiyazi nifuna ndithini ke." he sat down. Sandile came back alone. Rob: "Uphi unyana Sandile?" Sands: "ndim lo." Rob: "I'm talking about Sibulele." Sands: "oh he said he needed space. He'll be back in 20 minutes." Rob: "okay, sizomlinda." Me: "ndikwenzele i-tea tata?" Rob: "please mntanam." Sands: "nam torho mntase." Me: "Dumi?" Dumi: "hot chocolate please." Lakhe: "ndizok'ncedisa." we went to the kitchen to make the beverages sabuya nazo to the lounge and everyone held their own. After about an hour I started to panic. Me: "Sandile Khange uthi uSibulele will be back in 20 minutes? Its been an hour." Sands: "I remember that is exactly what he told me. Maybe he took the long way home." Me: "would you please go check on him." Lakhe dialed his number and heard it ring. No answer. I tried to call him and also wasn't answered. Sands: "okay, I'm going out to look for him." Rob: "ndihamba nawe." Lakhe: "uyaphi ke wena tata?" Rob: "ndikhapha uSandile. I don't want him alone out there." they walked out. Lakhe stared at the TV. Me: "Dumi are you okay?" he looked at Lakhe. Then back at me and shook his head. Lakhe looked at him. Lakhe: "do you need anything?" Dumi: "No. I don't." Lakhe: "then what is it?" Dumi: "I'm just worried. I have a bad feeling." Me: "about Sibulele? Nam Dumi." Lakhe: "hayi kengoku. Sibulele is a grown man not a child." Dumi: "that doesn't mean something didn't happen to him." Lakhe: "something like what?" Dumi: "Lakhe, There's a lot going on. His mother's involvement with Komander and him searching for Komander." Lakhe: "you're exaggerating this. Why would he kidnap him? Uzamthini?" Me: "what did he do to Rey?" Lakhe dialed the number again, again without answer. We waited over 30 minutes before Sandile and Rob came back. It was nearing dark now and I was panicking even more. Sands: "akabonakali anywhere. And look what I found." he held Sibulele's cellphone, screen broken. Lakhe: "uyifumene phi?" Sands: "about a few streets away. On the ground." my heart couldn't take it. Me: "are you saying he was taken?" my voice shook. Sands: "that's a very high possibility." He threw the phone on the couch. Sands: "Sibulele never goes anywhere without his phone. Maybe he knew we'd be looking for him and he dropped it on purpose so that we know he's not just mad but something has happened." Me: "can you unlock it?" Sands: "password is Sandile." everyone looked at him. Sands: "eyam ngu Sibulele mos Yinton ngxaki?!" he snapped. I unlocked the phone. Me: "The last call was a video call." Lakhe: "to who?" I read out the number. Sands: "I don't know that number." Me: "the duration of this call is a minute and a half. Ayingo mamakhe? Its not even on Truecaller." Lakhe: "I can ask someone to check it. Sapha." I gave him the phone. Dumi: "Do you think whoever it is might have saw it happen? Or did he end the call before it happened?" Me: "let's hope he didn't. Why don't I call it back?" Sands: "No. I'll do it." he took the phone after Lakhe transferred the number. The number hit voicemail. Sands: "shit." we waited another 20 minutes and Lakhe's phone rang. The house was dead quiet. Lakhe: "Yes Steve?" Steve: "Hi Mr Sobz, uhm, I've searched for this number and it comes from Grahamstown. And that doesn't necessarily mean the call came from there. Just that the number was registered there." Lakhe: "is there a way of tracking where the call came from then?" Steve: "They haven't invented something I can't track. Give me 5 minutes." I took Boogie and cuddled him on my lap. He was sniffing my belly trying to nibble on it eventually getting tired and lying on his back on top of my lap. Inoba ucimba he's a little baby yazi. Steve: "I can't get on to this number, look, I need the serial number of the Sim card that took the call." Lakhe: "how the hell am I supposed to know that?" Steve: "dial this on the phone then, and read me the results." Lakhe did as he was told. I listened as he recited the number again. Steve: "Got it. The call came from Joburg." Lakhe: "you sure?" Steve: "Positive. Do you need anything else?" Lakhe: "I guess I'd be pushing my luck if you could find the video call on its own, like recorded somewhere." Steve: "Yeah You'd be pushing your luck. That picture is long gone." Lakhe: "thank you, I'll run you your cheque." Steve: "sure thing." he hung up. It was dark outside now. I was at the brink of tears. Everyone in the house was dead quiet. Not even the TV was on. I didn't know what to do. Boogie was biting my thumb naye ngapha. Probably hungry now. Me: "ukhona umntu olambileyo?" no response. Rob: "its okay sweetheart. Hlala phantsi, I'll get take aways." Lakhe: "awuzokwazi uphuma kula gate. I cannot let that happen." Rob: "Lakhe uzosifixela kude kuthini aph-" Lakhe: "Sibulele has been kidnapped!!!! You walk out that gate, and who knows what happens to you!" Rob: "fine, I'll make a call." Lakhe: "Andifuni mntu endlinam tata! If anybody is hungry, naliya ikhitshi! Nx!" he walked out the lounge to the bedroom. Rob: "uzotya ntoni Spho?" Me: "I'm fine tata." Rob: "you haven't eaten in a while. You have to have something in your stomach for the baby. Please." Me: "I don't think I can stomach anything. Maybe just bread and tea." Rob: "okay." he walked to the kitchen. Everyone was in a stunned silence through out the night. I barely finished eating and I couldn't sleep. Nobody could. Before we knew it, it had already dawned.

It took all of me to wait a whole 24 hours. The minute it hit I had already called the cops. Thankfully Lakhe agreed to it. We filed a missing persons report and they left. I doubt they were even gonna look. I pray to God he was still alive. At least until we find him. Sands: "I'm going back out. Lakhe: "Sandi-" Sands: "No bhuti. If they want to take me, so be it! I'm not going to sit around here all day long waiting." Dumis: "be careful." Sandile walked out. About 15 minutes later I heard the gate buzzed and I jumped up to answer but it was our stupid neighbor. After letting them in and waiting for them to get to the door I went to sit back down. Babalo: "molweni." Lakhe: "hi." Babalo: "uhm...are we disturbing something?" Lakhe: "no. Ubuye nini?" Babalo: "I just landed 2 hours ago. I was in Cape town with my family. I was supposed to come back tomorrow but I thought I'd just come prepare for work. Are you sure you guys are okay?" Dumis wheeled down the passage to his room. Me: "would you like something to drink? Juice? tea?" Babalo: "guys you're scaring me. Kwenzeka ntoni? Uphi uSandile noSibu?" I went to the kitchen. Lakhe: "They went out. We're just a little tired." Babalo: "ooh, well, let me leave you to rest, literally dropped the luggage in the lounge I just wanted to let you know ndibuyile before I sleep till tomorrow afternoon." Lakhe: "alright man. Sohlangana." Babalo walked out with his wife. After Lakhe saw them out he came to me in the kitchen. Lakhe: "I'm sorry baby. This is all my fault." Me: "how is this your fault? Did you kidnap him?" Lakhe: "I drove him to walk out enomsindo. I should've been more considerate." Me: "its done now, its not like besiyazi izokwenza lento." Lakhe: "I still feel bad." his phone rang. Lakhe: "what now." he picked up. Lakhe: "yes?" Babalo: "bra its me." Lakhe: "yeah, what's up." Babalo: "uhm, have you been to my house by any chance?" Lakhe: "No why?" Babalo: "Lakhe, my house has been broken into. The problem is, nothing is missing. I didn't notice this when I brought the bags in." Lakhe: "then how do you know it was broken into?" Babalo: "I'm going to need you to see this yourself man. I just.... I can't. My wife is crying. I don't know what to do!" his voice was breaking. Lakhe: "yima ndiyeza." he hung up. Lakhe: "masambe Spho, get the pupp and dad, ndiyolanda uDumisani." he went to fetch Dumis and I went to get Rob and Boogie. We all walked out after locking and went next door. Babalo was sitting outside with Hlumi who was crying hysterically. He himself looked visibly scared. Lakhe: "kwenzeka ntoni Babalo?" Babalo: "I don't...." he breathed. Dumis: "breath.....breath. Look at me." I took Hlumi aside and consoled her. What the hell was going on? If its just a house robbery then it shouldn't be a big deal, they had insurance and money. Lakhe walked toward the house. Babalo: "don't touch anything! Please." he went with him and in just a few minutes they were back. Now the look on Lakhe's face was hard and unreadable. Me: "what's going on?" Lakhe: "tata call the police. Now." Babalo: "what if they think I did it?" Lakhe: "you just got here Babalo. You have records of you being away." Babalo: "okay." he came to his wife and held her hand. Babalo: "baby?" she went to him and held him tight. Was there a dead body in the house? I looked at Lakhe. Was it Sibuyi? As if he read my facial expression, he said: "No." Me: "kwenzeka ntoni Lakhe?" I was scared to go near the house even, because kaloku umntu uphuma pha ingathi ugalelwe ngamanzi e-ice. I didn't want to see whatever it is. Rob: "they're on their way." benditshiswa nangumchamo. The police arrived in 10 minutes flat. Perks of living in a suburb, people always had time for you and part of that pissed me off because if besise lokshin we'd have waited two hours, so already bendine attitude that was now for the policeman who has not done anything wrong. Yet. Lakhe took them inside the house. Babalo stayed right where he was with his wife. I wonder yintoni le ikwazi ukoyikisa uBabalo, I want it at my gate. The officers came back sezithetha efownin and within minutes arrived two more cars. Yellow tape surrounded the house, we stood out the gate, more neighbors joined us asking questions. I held on to the puppy and my husband quietly. Babalo: "Spho. Hlumi wants to talk to you." I went to the police car she was sitting in. Me: "yes, ndim lo. What's wrong?" Hlumi: "I think the stress has fast forwarded my periods." Me: "okay. I do still have some tampons and pads endlini. We can go." she nodded. After getting the go ahead from the detective we went to my house with utata uRob and Dumi, I let Boogie into his dad's room for his afternoon nap. I gave Hlumi Gyna guard intimate wipes and a tampon. Me: "iright i-tampon or ufuna pad?" Hlumi: "I'd rather the pad. You remember when we arrived here I was pregnant?" I do not recall. Me: "yeah?" Hlumi: "well, I lost the baby. We haven't really spoken about it. Its as though it never happened." Me: "I'm sorry to hear that Hlumi." she shrugged. Hlumi: "its life." I gave her the pad instead and she went into the spare bathroom. When she came out I had gotten her some juice and a pain killer. Hlumi: "enkosi." she took the pill sayohlala in the lounge. Hlumi: "I don't understand how someone could do such an inhumane thing." now I was confused. Rob: "Hlumi what happened in your house? Yintoni le ipha?" Hlumi: "tata, sifikile noBabalo, parked the car in the garage. I wanted to shower first but Babalo said masiqale sizoxelela uLakhe sikhona and then sibuye sivase and sleep. So we dropped the bags in the lounge and came straight over. When we went back to the house, I took my bags to the bedroom and.....I saw it. The whole bedroom was covered...in blood. On the walls, the curtains and on the floor. The bed was ripped off its sheets. I don't know where they are. The duvet was soaked in blood. Everything was...." she started crying again. I was shivering in my skin as I hugged her. Hlumi: "I don't know who died in my house. Who killed them!" Me: "I'm sorry Hlumi...the police will find them. I'm sure of it." I had a lump in my throat. Someone was slain right next door and we didn't see or hear a thing. Lakhe came in the house in an hour. Lakhe: "ninjani?" he touched Hlumi's shoulder. Me: "we're okay." Lakhe: "can we talk?" I got up and followed him to the bedroom. Lakhe: "This is not Sibu. Okay? Please don't panic. The forensics say judging from the dryness, that scene is a few days old." I nodded. Me: "still Lakhe. Someone was butchered right next door to our house!! In our friends' house!" Lakhe: "yeah, and the body is missing. Baby, this is bad. I feel so sorry for them." Me: "I know." I hugged him. Lakhe: "I'm going to book them in my hotel for a while. They can't stay in that house. Especially because its a crime scene now. Unjani uHlumi?" Me: "she's quiet now. She told me. Maybe we should call a doctor. How about balale apha for tonight?" he looked at me puzzled. Lakhe: "hehake Spho, I said I'd book the hotel. They'd be in my suite pha." Me: "yeah but they need to be around people who care Lakhe. What they've seen isn't child's drawings. They're traumatized. Just one night." he sighed. Lakhe: "you're too kind for your own good." Me: "isn't that why you married me?" Lakhe: "fine. One night. I'll call the doctor. Khome ndiyolanda noBabalalo pha phandle." we walked back out. I went to start cooking.

At 9pm, Sandile finally came in. He looked at our guests and then at his wrist watch. Sands: "and then? Visiting hours are well over." Lakhe: "Sandile. Sit." Sandile sat down. Lakhe: "Babalalo noHlumi just flew in this afternoon and found a bloody scene in their bedroom." Sands: "What?! Who!" Lakhe: "There's no body or traces. Its as though they were carried out with the bed sheets because they are the only things missing from the house." Sandile looked at Babalo apologetically. Sands: "wait, when did this happen?" Lakhe: "asiyazi. The detectives estimate its been a few days." Sands: "no but we would've seen something!" Lakhe: "I gave them my gate camera recordings dating a week back. I'm not sure if the camera will catch it on film if bekungene umntu but bazobona." Sands: "I need a drink." Rob: "get three glasses." Sandile brought the bottle of Bourbon and three glasses. Pouring double shots for Hlumi and Babalo. Sands: "it will help you sleep." Hlumi: "I don't drink." Sands: "I will pour it down your throat." Me: "Sandile!" Sands: "I'm sorry. Just goggle it down. It won't do any harm." she drank the alcohol. We all stared at the TV because I'd be lying if I said we were watching it. My phone rang. Me: "hello?" I answered. Mama: "My angel. Unjani?" Me: "I'm fine mama wena unjani?" Mama: "you don't sound fine." Lakhe: "please don't say anything." he whispered. Me: "I'm just a little tired mama. I was about to sleep." Mama: "okay mntanam. I was just saying hello sizothetha ngomso vha, I love you." Me: "I love you too mama." I hung up. Lakhe: "I don't want them worried and driving over here in the middle of the night kwenzek ezizinto. We'll tell them everything tomorrow." I nodded. Me: "I know." Lakhe: "Babalo, do you want me to show you to your room?" Babalo: "yeah." I actually felt sorry for him. He was not taking it well at all. Lakhe took them to their room. Me: "did you find anything?" Sands: "no. Its like he just vanished in thin air. Spho, how well do you know Siyanda?" Me: "as well as you do." he rubbed his eyes and sighed. Lakhe came back to the lounge. Sands: "when was the last time he was here?" Me: "it was Tuesday evening." Sands: "and coincidentally this happens next door." Me: "I don't know Sandile. I just don't know." Lakhe: "you were the one who said he didn't have a killing mechanism, Sandile." Sands: "I might have been wrong bhuti. Something strange is happening here, two people have gone missing, and one of them was killed next door, the other was kidnapped a street away and we can't find a body or a trace for either. I told you bhuti, I told you digging into Siya's life was a bad idea. But nooo, you just had to bring over him over here and for what? Now you've invited the devil into our house, and I don't think I can take it anymore. I can't." he buried his head in his hands. Rob: "this isn't a time to give up Sandile. We have to fight this-" Sands: "how are you going to fight this tata! Asimazi ngubani! He's a ghost! Tell me how the hell!" he got up and walked to his room. Lakhe: "Tata, myeke uSandile he's stressed, his best friend is missing." Rob: "I know. I wish there was something I could do." Lakhe: "me too. Funeke ngomso sifownele umamakhe in Durban and let her know. Dumi let me get you to your room." they left together. Rob: "ambolala mntanam. Akhange ulale izolo. You need to rest." Me: "nawe tata." I got up and went to my bedroom. After undressing and getting into bed, Lakhe came in and did the same. Lakhe: "baby." Me: "yes?" Lakhe: "ndicela your permission to try something." Me: "what?" Lakhe: "please give it some thought." Me: "okay, what is it?" Lakhe: "ndifuna uyolanda umama ka Sibhu kwesasbhedlele. Having her close to other human beings, may make Komander panic. I want to bring him near to us. That's the only way to bring Sibhu home." Me: "why are you asking my permission?" Lakhe: "because I want you to be the one to talk to her. She has to bring him here."

Early on Monday morning I'd woken up again, it was the 5th time during the entire night I probably slept a collective of an hour only. I went to shower and brush my teeth. Lakhe was not in bed, I'd probably kept him awake with my tossing and turning too. I went to find something to wear, after dressing in leggings and a wool dress I made my way to the kitchen. I made breakfast for everyone who was sitting in the lounge and we ate together quietly.

Lakhe: "Sandile ndizohamba naye siyolanda umama ka Sibulele at the hospital, tata ndicela wena ufownele his adoptive mother and let her know kwenzeka ntoni but keep it to minimal." Rob: "Got you." Babalo: "what happened to Sibulele?" Lakhe: "he's missing." Babalo: "What?" the blood drained from his face. Lakhe: "only since Saturday afternoon. I'm sure it's not his blood in your house." Babalo: "do you know who might have seen him? Why not hire a PI?" Lakhe: "I don't think anyone saw him. And there's no trail anywhere of him." Babalo: "Lakhe how sure are you that wasn't his blood?" Lakhe: "Babalo calm down. The detective said that scene is a few days old." I took my plate to the kitchen. I was near a breakdown honestly and I didn't want to think of the possibility of Sibulele murdered in cold blood. I can't bare to think of the last thing he said to me. The gate buzzed and Lakhe opened it. Lakhe: "it's your parents." Now was absolutely not the time. They drove in and came up to the front door. Khaya: "molweni." Me: "molo tata." everyone also mumbled a greeting. Zama: "what's going on?" I looked at Lakhe. Lakhe looked at his father. Khaya: "Spho." Me: "cela nihlale phantsi tata, I'll make tea." Khaya: "I don't want tea. What's going on? Why niqumbile nonke endlini? Robert?" Rob: "Khaya, we have a problem." Khaya: "what is it?" Rob: "it seems as though uSibulele has been abducted." Zama: "What!!" Khaya: "yenzeke nini lento!" Rob: "Saturday afternoon. We were having a discussion and he got upset waphuma ethatha walk, to cool down, Sandile followed him but wathi ufuna uba yedwa, wabuya uSandile esithi he said he'd be 20 minutes. He never came back. Instead we found his phone on the ground a few streets away." Khaya: "did you report this to the police?" Rob: "Yes. There's no trace of him anywhere." Zama: "hayini Somandla umntana. Who could have done this? Is it this Komander man Spho? Khandithi kuni yiyekeni lento?! Jonga ngoku!!" I looked at the floor. Lakhe: "you remember uBabalo tata, he came back yesterday afternoon from his holiday. Someone had gone into his house, they noticed that their bedroom was a crime scene." Khaya: "a crime scene how!" Lakhe: "there was blood on the walls, the floor and-" Zama: "No!!" she cried. Lakhe: "there was no body. And no sheets. They said the scene was a few days old so ayingo Sibulele." Khaya: "kwathini ningas'fownelanga Masilakhe'ikhaya! Whoever took Sibulele, also did this kulandlu! Who knows what kind of animal this is! How could you let this happen!" Rob: "this was beyond his control Khaya. All of us. It was just a matter of time and it so happened Sibulele was out at the wrong time." Khaya: "so what are we doing to get him back home?" Lakhe: "the police are working on it. Sandile goes out to look everyday. Nangoku siyaphuma." Khaya: "ndik'xelele phezolo Zama something was off and we should've come then! Jonga le mess yenzekileyo." my mother was still quietly crying. He took out his phone and made a call. I felt so helpless. After he was done. Lakhe and Sandile left. Rob called Sibus other mother. "Hello?" Rob: "hello, ndithetha nomama ka Sibus?" She: "Yes. Ndithetha naban?" Rob: "ndingu Rob, utata ka Sandile noMasilakhe." She: "Oh!! I see. Is everyone okay?" how do you tell a mother her son is missing? I got up and went out the sliding door to get some fresh air. Hlumi came to stand with me. Hlumi: "can I make you some tea?" Me: "No I'm okay." Hlumi: "why didn't you tell us that your brother was missing?" Me: "it seemed insensitive after what you saw in your house. Plus I didn't want to scare you. You were already traumatized. Uleli njani?" Hlumi: "barely. But better than uBabalo. He didn't even sleep a wink. I was thinking of taking him to the doctor again." Me: "that would be a good idea. It can't be easy witnessing that kind of scene like that." Hlumi: "he's already thinking of selling the house. I'm so numb, I don't even know what to do. I heard the neighbors saying there might be a serial killer on the loose hunting people's vital organs." Me: "don't ever listen to those bored housewives, they watch too much television. There's no serial killer." Hlumi: "I heard your mother mentioning Komander. Who's that?" Me: "someone I hope we never get to meet." "Spho!!" I heard my dad call me. I went inside. Me: "Tata?" Khaya: "uyephi uMasilakhe. He needs to come back, I've called a police friend of mine they'll be here in 30 minutes." I called Lakhe and told him. We waited until they came back. The car parked in the driveway and they came up to the door. Khaya: "what the hell. Uzothini lo apha?" referring to Mirriam who carried her little bag close to her body. Lakhe: "I've ordered for extra security around the house, they'll be here shortly." Khaya: "WHAT IS SHE DOING HERE." Lakhe: "tata uSibulele was worried about his mother, and landawo ahleli kuyo is not safe-" Khaya: "lendawo wayehlelise mntanam kuyo yayi safe yona?!" Zama: "Khaya calm down, Spho are you comfortable having her here? Yindlu yakho lena." I quickly glanced at Lakhe, he had a pleading look in his eyes. Me: "yeah, its fine." Khaya: "you cannot be serious! Masilakhe, why did you bring this woman here knowing fully well urhuka lamabhadi akhe? Spho is pregnant! Nizoyithin into fikelwa ngulomntu uKomander?" Lakhe: "that's why I ordered the security tata, he won't get through it." Khaya: "God help us all because seemingly you don't know who the hell you're dealing with." he sat down. The friend my father spoke about arrived wabuza the exact same questions as the police did, in fact, he irritated me. Me: "excuse me but what difference are you going to do? The police are stuck with no leads. What do you got?" Guy: "I have resources the police don't plus, I have the time. This case is my priority." I rolled my eyes. That is exactly what the police said, to be honest. I'm

Days went by and there was still no sign of my brother. His mother in Durban called 10 times a day, a lot of begging and pleading took place to convince her not to come here. I really couldn't accommodate guests and I was in no mood to talk to people. Hlumi and Babalo had gone to her parents' house. Sleep was not even on the agenda now. It just refused. I only ate for the baby because I definitely wasn't hungry. It was an abnormally cold Thursday morning in the beginning of January ke phof. Sandile was now full on mute too. Nobody in the house spoke. I tried asking Miriam where Sibulele could be. She refused to say anything. All she did was draw in her book, she didn't even know who I was or pretended not to. Namhlanje I wasn't even gonna bother really. I was with Rob in the lounge, Dumi was working in his room. Lakhe and Sandile disappeared early this morning. Instead of the TV the radio was on. Something needed to be alive in this house. "Poppy." at first I thought it was the radio. "umntanam." no it was coming from the lounge entrance. I looked up and saw Miriam in tears holding her skirt. What's happening now nkosiyam. Me: "tata cela fownele uLakhe." she came to hug me. This was so uncomfortable but I let her and kept my mouth shut. I didn't even know what to call her. Miriam: "you're alive." Me: "I have been. For a very long time." Miriam: "they told me you'd died." Me: "You've been in this house for 4 days. You're trying to tell me only now you recognize me?" Miriam: "they told me you died. They want to take me from you." Me: "who?" Miriam: "your father, he wants to take me from you. They told me you died." Me: "andifanga mama ndim lo !!" I was so mad, you wouldn't believe. Miriam: "he's coming. He wants you away from me." we were running around in circles, which concluded one thing kum. She was mentally unstable. None of what she was saying was making any sense, she saw me as the little kid who ran away. Only now she wants to protect me from that so called father. Rob: "Miriam we need you to tell us who visited you in hospital." Miriam: "He did. Your father came to see me. He wants me gone." Me: "my father? Why would he do that?" Miriam: "he wants to take you away from me." I swear if I hear that sentence one more time. I'll snap. Me: "Uphi uSibulele? He's gone missing. Who took him?" Miriam: "uBhubhu. They want to take my babies away from me!" she cried. Khaya walked into the house. Miriam jumped up and looked at him. Me: "tata, can you explain to me why you went to visit Miriam in hospital? Scaring her." Khaya: "I never scared her. I went to check on her. She is unstable. I wanted to make sure she got everything she needed in terms of psychiatry." Me: "You didn't say that tata! Akhange usixelele ubuye pha!"

Khaya: "when have I ever discussed my patients?" Me: "tata, how has Miriam only seen you and Sibulele and is scared of YOU!" Khaya: "kanti funeke nditsho kangaphi that she is unstable!!" Me: "Tata Andicingi ndinyukelane nawe because I respect you too much, but I need to know the truth. Why is she so scared of you." Khaya: "ask her!" Me: "mama? Why are you scared of him." she held her mouth shut. Great. We're back to square one. Me: "tata, please.... You have to go. You're scaring her." Khaya: "Spho you're going to choose the woman who abandoned you over me?" Me: "Dad, do you have something to do with this abduction? Do you know where Sibulele is?" Khaya: "Spho why would I kidnap a grown man just to torment you? Ndizamthini uSibulele?" Lakhe and Sandile walked in. Lakhe: "I drove as fast as I could. What happened?" Me: "She spoke." Sandile: "uthini? Does she know where we can find Sibulele?" Me: "unfortunately not. She just goes around in circles. Then she just stopped." I looked at my dad. Khaya: "Do you really want me gone Spho? Is that it?" I just sat down. I was so exhausted. My body was failing to hold me up any longer. A phone in the distance rang. It was mine. Me: "Lakhe." he took it and answered it. Lakhe: "Spho's phone? This is her husband speaking." I looked at him. It sounded serious. Lakhe: "Yes of course! Where!" I stood up. oh God please let it be him. Lakhe: "we're on our way." he hung up and sighed. Lakhe: "they found him." my heart leaped in joy I almost cried. Me: "we have to go fetch him! Uphi! Where did they find him?" Lakhe: "They're taking him to Provincial hospital, apparently he just appeared at the Mount Road police station. Masambeni." Rob: "I'll stay here with uMiriam and Dumi. You guys go." we took two cars. One with my father and Lakhe, the other with Sandile and me. We arrived at the hospital and looked for him. The detective and the doctor luckily were together when we came in. Detective: "Great, you guys are here. Sibulele is in a bad state. He came in crawling at the station. Barely able to speak and collapsed on the floor. I recognized him from the picture you gave us. Here's his doctor." Doc: "I need immediate family." Me: "I'm his sister. This is my husband and his brother. This is my dad." Doc: "perfect, so all of you are family. Sibulele seems to have a bump on his head, I'm transferring him to Greenacres hospital to get an MRI scan but only after he regains some energy. He's still dehydrated and faint. I'm going to need you to sign these." Khaya: "Okay, I'm one of the head surgeons in Greenacres hospital." I took the papers. Doc: "perfect then, I'm giving him an hour to recuperate then we'll take it from there." Me: "can I see him?" Doc: "before we move him yes. I'll let you know. Excuse me." he rushed off. Thank God he was still alive. I sat down and started to pray right then and there thanking the Lord for sparing his life. Who knows what he went through? After an hour the doctor called us. Doc: "Spho? Your brother is asking for you sweetie." I jumped up and followed him eagerly. When I entered the ward he was in and saw him I was near a breakdown. Me: "hey you." I held his hand. Sibulele: "hey." Me: "Unjani?" Sibulele: "I can't feel the bones in my body. I think they're all broken." Me: "at least you're alive. You're here. They're going to fix it." Sibulele: "I'm alive." Me: "of course. You're safe now." Sibulele: "I don't think so. I barely escaped Spho. I was supposed to have died. God sent an angel to save my life." now I was crying. Me: "that's true. We're taking you to Greenacres hospital soon, you'll have your own room and nice food. Then soon we'll take you home." Sibulele: "okay. Please don't leave me here alone." Me: "I'm not going anywhere bhuti wam." Soon the doctors came to transport him to the ambulance that took us to Greenacres hospital. He could walk on his own but was clearly in pain and limping. After his MRI scan they gave him sedatives to help him sleep. Sibulele: "Spho, please don't leave me." Me: "I'm not going to leave you." Sibulele: "I don't want to be alone." Me: "I'll be right here next to you." Sibulele: "I love you." Me: "I love you too. Get some rest." he dozed off eventually. Lakhe and Sandile came in with the doctor. Doc: "I'm waiting for his results, it'll take a few days, but I'm positive he's okay, just a little shaken and in pain. The drip hydrated him and put him back to the land of the living." Sands: "when can he go home?" Doc: "as soon as he wakes up. I do suggest that you keep him another day but in cases like these such as him being abducted and kept hostage, it is much better for him to be home in a familiar environment. Where he feels safe. If he's not up by 6pm, he has to stay overnight." he walked out. This doctor was super prompt. I like that he didn't beat around the bush or waste time with big medical words. Uyazazi ukuba uthetha nabantu aba normal. Who didn't even go to medical school. My heart was back in its place and for the first time I yawned. I lay my head on the bed while still sitting on the chair. It was just before 3. I wanted Sibulele to wake up before 6 pm so that we could go home. Lakhe walked out the room. Sandile just stood there staring at his best friend. I was too sleepy to even ask what he was thinking. In a few minutes Lakhe rolled in a bed. What the... Me: "where did you get that?" Lakhe: "doesn't matter, awuzokwazi ulala olohlobo. It might be a few hours before he wakes." Me: "he asked me not to leave him alone." Lakhe: "okay kaloku, here's your bed. I'll find a blanket." Sands: "There's one in the car." Lakhe left again. I got onto the bed and lay down my head. Sandile sat on the chair. Sands: "I should've insisted. At least we would've been together. I'm glad you're back Sibulele. Life couldn't have been the same without you." Lakhe walked in with the blanket and covered his wife. Lakhe: "there." he sighed. Lakhe: "2 hours max and you wake him up. Do you understand? He's not staying the night here." Sands: "ewe bhuti.".....

I was up around 5pm and to my surprise Sibú was awake or trying to be. This had Lakhe written all over it. Me: "Sibú are you okay." Sibú: "yeah, wanna go home." he slurred. He was definitely still sleeping. Lakhe: "signed and done." he gave the discharge papers to the doctor. Doc: "he's to be back in two days time for a check up. I'm not liking that bump but its not too bad. The swelling will go down in a few days. On your way out don't forget his medication. I'll see you in two days." and he left. I really like that doctor. He was so cool and calm. We made our way out the hospital and drove home. I'd last seen my dad when we arrived at the second hospital. When we got home, Sandile took Sibú to his room. Sands: "he's sleeping in my room tonight." Lakhe: "okay, Spho, its time for you to sleep baby." and for once I didn't fight him. I was legit exhausted. Me: "okay. After a shower." Lakhe: "and food. I'll make you something." Rob: "I already did. Its in the microwave." Lakhe: "enkosi tata, mbovasa Spho ndiyeza." I went to the bedroom shower. Lakhe heated the food. Rob: "how is he?" Lakhe: "bad. At least he knows us, and remembers most things. We just haven't mentioned the incident. He's in so much pain tata. I just didn't want him to spend the night in that place." Rob: "that's good. The extra security is here." Lakhe: "I see. My house is looking like an army base." Sandile came into the kitchen. Sands: "he's asleep." Lakhe: "that's good, keep an eye on him. I don't want him out of your sight." Sands: "got you. Ndizolanda ukutya qha ndibuyele kuye." Lakhe: "at least we're all getting some sleep tonight." Rob: "bendine worry ngo Dumí noSpho. At least its over now." Sands: "my question is, how the hell did he escape? Did he see him?" Lakhe: "I don't think so, he would be dead by now. Sandile try not asking these questions. Let him rest." Sands: "I won't." he took his food and walked away. Lakhe: "Nguye oyena mntu bendine worry ngaye mna. For a second it looked as though he was going crazy." Rob: "I know. Manditixe nyana the entire house. We also got a new security system, every window and door has a sensor, if opened it will trigger the alarm. There's new cameras outside and in. And we have electric current on all knobs and handles. Try not to touch any door knob or window until its been disabled in the morning." Lakhe: "okay. Let everyone else know. Goodnight tata." Rob: "Goodnight. I'll be in the lounge with Dumí. Go rest." Lakhe went to his bedroom. I was already finished with my shower but I was extremely tired. Even putting on lotion would be too much work. Lakhe: "hey baby." Me: "Hmm." he put the food aside and took the lotion, squeezing some in his hand. Lakhe: "eat so long. Take a few bites." esandithambisa, ndatya ecaleni at least half the plate before I just dozed off. Lakhe put the plate aside and dressed his wife in her silk red gown and warm socks. He covered her with the duvet and he sunk into bed. It had been a long day. Hours felt like mere minutes, when an ear piercing scream shot through the walls of the house.

Lakhe jumped to his feet, I was instantly awake my heart hammering in my chest. Both of us froze and stared at the door. What. The. Hell. Was. That?

I went to the door first and ran down the passage to go check where the scream was coming from. Lakhe: "Spho!!!!!" Sandile's room flew open and he appeared almost as frightened. Me: "did you hear that?" Lakhe caught up. Sands: "Yep. I was right next to it. It was Sibú. He had a nightmare." Me: "what?" he moved away from the entrance of his bedroom and I walked in slowly. Sibú was sitting in the corner hugging his legs. Me: "oh honey." I went to him. Sibú: "he wants to kill me." Me: "who?" Sibú: "the Komander." my body felt like ice. I hugged him tight for warmth. Me: "he's not going to hurt you. He won't come near you." Sibú: "he's outside." Lakhe walked out that second. I knew there was no Komander outside. It was a futile exercise really. Why would someone just be lurking in the yard to torment one human being. That's just cray cray. But then again Komander was just as cray cray too. Me: "Sandile fetch your brother please." Sands: "Andicingi kaloku ndiphume pha ph-" the alarms of the house went off right then sending a shocking wave of noise throughout the house. Sibú started shaking immediately. I had to hold him tighter to make sure he didn't lose grip and start screaming again. Me: "nguLakhe lo uphumayo, don't be afraid bhuti." he couldn't even speak ndlela le ebengcangcazela ngayo. Me: "Sandile!" Sands: "fine! Fine! Who cares what happens to dear old Sandile anyway." he walked to Lakhe. Rob and Dumí appeared. It was a whole scene. Rob spoke on the phone running around the house and finally the alarms shut off. Sibú: "he wants me gone, Spho he wants to take me away." something clicked in my brain immediately that second. If I wasn't already scared, I was damn near wetting my pants now. This is exactly what my mother had said just yesterday. Was it my imagination or is everyone that meets Komander emotionally scarred? What in the damn world does he tell them or show them? It seems as though he brainwashes them into thinking they'll never be safe as long as he lives. What does he do to them? This cannot be a human bethuna yhini kangaka. Me: "he'll never take you away from me. I promise you that." Lakhe and Sandile came back. Lakhe: "its all clear outside. How is he?" I shook my head. Lakhe: "okay." he walked back out and came back with Sibú's pills and water. Lakhe: "he should drink this." Me: "hayi Lakhe." Lakhe: "baby he's going to be distraught all night, its best he just sleeps qha." Me: "Sandile, can you take my place?" Sands: "you mean cuddling another man? No." Me: "Sandile, hold my brother while I talk to yours." Sands: "fine." I went to Lakhe. Me: "he's not having nightmares." Lakhe: "what do you mean?" Me: "Komander is controlling his mind Lakhe." Lakhe: "what the hell do you mean?" Me: "I mean, Miriam and him said the exact same thing to me less than 24 hours ago, and they weren't together ever since he came back." Lakhe: "so.....he controls what they think and dream?" Me: "well, I don't know about dreams but thinking? Yes. Baby, Komander could be some cult leader of some sort. Torturing his victims into thinking that they'll never have peace while he's still around. Can anything explain Miriam's sudden mental instability? Sibulele's fear and tragic nightmares? They've both seen him. And he did something to them." Lakhe: "sithini kengoku baby?" Me: "we have to be patient. Miriam didn't speak to me for days. Yet izolo she just came and told me that someone was trying to take her away from me. She was so scared." Lakhe: "my dad said she was scared of your father Spho. What if your father is Komander?" Me: "I thought of that theory but Sibulele would react to him too if he was. For now, only my mum does and that's a debate on whether it is because he adopted me." Lakhe: "Spho, sizoyithini lento? Let him just drink the pill." Me: "and make him worse? He's already restless imagine being drugged?" Dumi: "yeah that would be bad." Rob: "but what choice do we have? Won't it be better if he's weaker? Uzolala-" Me: "aphuphe kablungu angakwazi uzilwela. He needs a doctor, unfortunately not this time of night. We gonn have to supervise him one at a time. At least its 2am now, I'll stay with him till 3. Then the next person will stay till 4. And so forth." Lakhe: "ha.a Spho, you need to sleep, you haven't slept properly in days. I'll stay with Sibulele till morning." Sands: "yeah nam I don't think I'll be able to sleep." Rob: "then that's sorted. I'll make a call to the doctor in the morning." I took the pills from Lakhe's hand. Lakhe: "I wasn't going to." Me: "I have to be sure. Goodnight everyone." I went back to my bedroom and fell asleep almost immediately.

I was up by 6am Friday morning. I'd had a terrifying dream. I was still shivering from the memory. Remember when I was imagining Komander having a long black cloak with a hood on, not able to see his face and also long dirty fingernails. That's exactly what I dreamt and he was carving an X on someone's chest licking the blood off his nails. I was tied up in a chair forced to watch this gruesome action. I went to the bathroom and sat there for a while thinking to myself. Is this what Komander could have done? My goodness this was so frustrating. I took a shower and wore clean pajamas and a gown. Lakhe came into the bedroom winding his wrist and flexing his fingers. Lakhe: "hey. My hand is still sore, the door knob electrocuted me ekzeni. Forgot about that stupid security system." Me: "I'm sorry baby. You should get some rest. At least I'm awake now. Naye utata uRob, he'll call the doctor and we'll take care of Sibbu." Lakhe: "okay. Call me when you need anything." Me: "uhleli uMiriam?" Lakhe: "I don't know. Ndimgqibele izolo. Thank goodness she didn't wake up kuyo yonke lanto. I don't think I would've been able to cope." Me: "I need to try to talk to her again. She knows something, I just need to dissect it from all the gibberish she keeps saying." Lakhe: "okay my love. First eat please." I decided to dress in a black leggings and a thick white jersey. I wore warm socks and slippers then walked out to Miriam's room. I'd wake her up and go make her tea so that we can sit in the garden and talk. Hopefully. I really felt sorry for her. As angry as I was in the past, and mostly at her for not protecting me. I could move on and we could start afresh. I mean not as traditional mother and daughter but as civil human beings. At least for Sibbu. I knocked on her door. No answer. I knocked again. Still quiet. Are you trying to tell me she's still sleeping? I turned the door knob and pushed open the door slowly. She wasn't in bed. Where could she be. Me: "sis'Miriam?" I heard a creak. Almost like wind. The windows were closed though. I walked into the bedroom looking at the bed on my left. It was as though she didn't even sleep on it. Maybe she ran away? Where was her bag? Supposedly in the wardrobe on my right. I turned around and was faced with horror. My heart stopped instantly. I started shaking from head to toe. I couldn't utter a sound kwaveske kwamnyama. I just stared at her, hanging from the ceiling, a white sheet in a tight noose around her neck, her body swaying in a twisting form until it stopped, and faced me. Her eyes still open but clearly had no life in them. I stumbled out of the bedroom holding onto the wall in the passage and threw up on the floor. That's when I started to fall apart. I could see the shadow of someone coming to me and then saw nothing.

I opened my eyes to bright lights. It was a dream. Oh Thank God. But why am I in hospital? Me: "I was dreaming wasn't I? But why am I here?" Lakhe stared at me quietly. The doctor came forward. Doc: "what did you dream?" Me: "I'd just woken up, showered and dressed, after talking to my husband I went out to my mothers room. I walked in and found her hanging in the ceiling." Lakhe turned around and faced the wall. Doc: "do you remember your conversation with your husband?" Me: "uhm...yeah, he said his hand was sore and I told him to sleep a bit, not much." Doc: "Spho, that wasn't a dream." then it all came back to me in a crashing wave. Doc: "what you saw was reality, you discovered your mother's body, hanging in her bedroom ceiling. She's dead-" Lakhe: "doctor!" Doc: "she needs to come to terms with it, she literally blacked out because of shock." Oh God. Me: "she committed suicide?" Doc: "well yes. She hanged herself with her bed sheet." fresh tears ran down my face and when I closed my eyes I saw her lifeless body hanging there, swaying until it faced me. As if to mock me. How lucky was I to discover both my parents' dead bodies months apart. I must be golden shame. The doctor was talking and Lakhe just stared at me quietly. I couldn't hear a word. I was just blank so I got out of bed and got dressed. Lakhe: "uyaphi baby?" Me: "home." Lakhe: "The doctor thought it would be bes-" Me: "I'm pregnant. I'm not staying here for thoughts. I'm going home." he didn't argue with me. Instead kept quiet all the way home. It was already in the afternoon, I hadn't eaten all day and I was really moody for some reason. There was a strange man sitting in the lounge with the rest of my family. My parents were also here. Lakhe: "uzoty ntoni?" Me: "because I'm supposed to know?" Lakhe: "uhm-" Dumis: "Don't." Me: "I asked a question Lakhe. How am I supposed to know!" Dumis: "I think what he meant was, would you like a peanut butter sandwich? Your favorite." Me: "I don't want peanut butter." Lakhe: "you have to eat." Me: "I know that!!!" Mama: "okay, I'll make the food. Lakhe, can you give Spho a foot rub? Sit down honey." Me: "I don't want him to touch me. Don't touch me-" Lakhe: "I'm not touching yo-" Me: "why are you shouting?" Lakhe: "I'm sorry. I won't touch you." Me: "because I disgust you?" Lakhe: "what is happening?" I walked to the bedroom. Sands: "maaannn, you are in tr-ou-bl-e." Lakhe: "Nx." he walked to the bedroom. Lakhe: "baby? Kwenzeka ntoni ngoku?" Me: "who's that man sitting in my lounge!?" Lakhe: "I don't know njena nam, ndingena nawe. Do you want me to kick him out?" Me: "yes!" Lakhe: "done." he walked to the lounge and sighed. Lakhe: "please leave." Rob: "Masilakhe!" Lakhe: "Spho doesn't want him here. She asked that he leaves tata." Rob: "this is the pastor." Lakhe: "Oh." Rob: "he came to pray for the family." Lakhe: "nice, so is he done?" Rob: "No, he would like to talk to the both of you." Lakhe: "I don't think that's a good idea. She almost bit my head off." Rob: "Lakhe, Spho is reasonable. Stop making her out to be a monster. She will understand if the pastor wants a word." Lakhe: "can't he come back tomorrow?" Rob: "Masilakhe." Lakhe walked back to the bedroom. Lakhe: "sthandwasam." Me: "is he gone." Lakhe: "it turns out-" Me: "IS. HE. GONE." Lakhe: "well no bec-" Me: "why don't you ever listen to me?" Lakhe: "he's a pastor-" Me: "I don't care." Lakhe: "hayi Spho. You love church-" Me: "is he church?" Lakhe: "well-" Me: "then he leaves. Okanye ufuna axelelwe ndim?" Lakhe: "sweetheart what's going on?" I wore my slippers and took off to the lounge. Me: "Can anyone who is not a resident of this household please leave?" Rob: "Sph-" Me: "everyone. I want everyone gone. You have two minutes before I call the cops." I went to my bedroom and took my phone dialing the police number. In two minutes I'm really pressing the call button, I'm not gonna have this. Back in the lounge Rob: "Spho needs some time to calm down." Sands: "No she doesn't, I do suggest that you do as she says. She's not bluffing." Khaya: "Spho would never throw out a pastor." Sands: "maybe he's not really a pastor then, is he?" Pastor: "of course I am. You know what Khaya? I'm leaving. I don't want to be part of a scandal." he walked out. Sands: "I heard her say all non residents." he clicked on his phone. Dumi: "Same." Rob: "Sphosenkosi is going through a rough time. She just saw her mother dead. Obviously she's not in a right state of mind." Sands: "you're still a temporary resident, I wouldn't risk it if I were you." Rob: "You're exaggerating this." Sands: "Tata, you of all people should know Spho, you live here, this mood that she's in is the mood she kicks people out. I remember egxotho uLakhe and he bought this house ke yena. Go ahead and play with it." Rob: "its been a tough night. Uzolala uSpho avuke eright." I walked into the lounge hearing my name. Me: "I think I heard myself correctly ndisithi if you're not living here permanently." Khaya: "are you throwing your parents out?" Me: "ewe tata." Mama: "hayi Spho!" Me: "mama, utata is keeping secrets. Deep secrets. Tata you are the only one, who spoke to Miriam in her right mind. You knew what was wrong. Until you decide to tell us the truth, you and your pastors are not welcome in my house." Khaya: "you can't blame me for Miriam's suicide!" Me: "oh I'm not blaming you. I'm accusing You. A woman went missing in a hospital you went to. My brother disappeared and miraculously appeared in a police station, now a suicide? Not to mention next door's bloody scene." Khaya: "Spho I am your father! How could you think I'd do something like that!" Me: "then tell me what Miriam told you." he stared at me. Khaya: "You've already made your decision about me, so what's the point. Masambe Zama." he walked out. My mother followed after him. I went to the kitchen. Rob: "What the hell." Lakhe: "tata please." Rob: "Masilakhe, it has been a very eventful day. First Miriam's body, Spho fainting after finding it then she's throwing her family out. What is going on?" Lakhe: "She's taking a lot of strain today. Can you please let it go? Right now, you need to keep a close eye on her. I have something to sort out." Rob: "What's something?" Lakhe: "Like who killed Miriam. There is no way she committed suicide. Someone inside this house killed her."

Friday afternoon, I went to bed early. My heart was broken and I had a headache. Lakhe: "baby, I need to go somewhere for a few hours." Me: "Why?" I didn't want him to go. He had to stay and hug me to sleep but then again. Lakhe: "I just need to sort out arrangements for Miriam. I'll be back soon." Me: "promise?" Lakhe: "I promise." Me: "okay." Lakhe: "sthandwasam." he sat on the bed and held my hand. Lakhe: "I'm sorry about everything that has happened to you." Me: "its not your fault." Lakhe: "I feel like it is, its just that at this point in my life I can't lose you, for the first time ever I have something to live for. You and my child. I can't mess around people like Komander because he has no regard for things like family and true love. He's a demon. I realize my mistake, putting up security means nothing to someone like him, I have to face him head first." Me: "I don't want you to face him, please Lakhe, promise me you won't do that. I can't lose you too. Let's just leave this guy alone now." Lakhe: "I want you to know that you're my universe and I love you. I'll do anything for you." Me: "I know baby. I love you too." Lakhe: "take care of my baby." he kissed my forehead and walked out. Sandile was in the lounge with Dumi and Sibulele watching TV. Lakhe: "Dumisani, can you drive?" Dumi stared at him sarcastically. Dumi: "Dude, I'm paralyzed." Lakhe: "I need a driver." Sibulele: "I'll drive bhuti." Lakhe: "Sibulele-" Sibulele: "I just had one nightmare bhuti I'm fine!" Lakhe: "I'm not talking about your nightmare. Your mother just died-" Sibulele: "its not like I can bring her back by sitting here feeling sorry for myself. Let me drive. Please?" Lakhe: "fine. Dumi, you're going to stay here with utata. The security is still outside. Lock the minute we step out, you don't open for anyone, do you understand?" Dumi: "yeah." Lakhe: "masambeni Sandile." they walked out the house, Dumi locked behind them. Sibulele drove Lakhe's car out the yard with Sandile in the passenger seat and Lakhe at the back. He gave directions from his ipad. Sibulele slowed down at the robots and stared ahead. They turned green. Sandile: "Sibulele?" he looked at him. Sibulele just stared ahead quietly. Lakhe: "Sandile please take the wheel. Sibulele come to the back." Sibulele: "no I'm fine." he swallowed and stepped lightly on the accelerator. Sandile: "you're not fine." Sibulele: "I am. I swear." he sped up a little. Sandile: "Sibulele you don't have to be brave. We understand you're going through a tough tim-" Sibulele: "You have absolutely no idea what I'm going through!!!" he snapped. Lakhe: "Sibulele." Sibulele: "bhuti." Lakhe: "slow down the car." the car slowed down. In a few minutes they'd reached their meeting point. Lakhe: "come with me." they got out the car. Sandile walking in front, Sibulele next to Lakhe. They entered the building and followed the staircase downstairs. Sandile pushed open the door and walked into a room with his brothers. Sergio: "My Sandcastles." Sandile: "wassup Sir." Sergio: "Mr G." Lakhe: "funny how you greet my brother so endearingly before me as if he pays your salary. Where's the rest?" Sergio: "my apologies sir, all of them are two minutes away." they waited and the rest of the team arrived. Black Stallion in his usual bubbly mood. Bull Cloak very quietly staring at him annoyed. Lakhe: "Has anyone seen Frank the Snitch?" Black: "I have." Lakhe: "where." Black: "Not so much as seen but heard of." Lakhe stared at him with a stern face. Black: "Oh, where? I heard from a contact of mine. He joined the K.U.G." Lakhe: "what." he hissed. Black: "uhm. Yeah. He saw the tattoo on the back of his neck and the symbol on his left wrist. He's under their protection." Sands: "you're trying to tell me Frank was so scared of my brother he went to join Komander's group? The guy much worse?" Black: "clearly. He knows you can't touch him if he's under their protection." Lakhe: "oh can't I? We'll see about that. This is my brother in law, Sibulele. He was abducted last Saturday afternoon, and returned on Thursday morning. I want whoever was responsible to be found and brought to me immediately, whoever can get the information to me as quick as Usain Bolt, you'll earn yourself 10 bars." Black: "now by bars do you mean like merits in a school report or we're talking real live bars like 10 million." Lakhe: "do I look like a fucking primary school principal to you???" Black: "No." Lakhe: "the second task, I need to find Komander, anyone who knows anything, no matter how. Tell me." Sergio: "Sir, Komander? What would you want with him?" Lakhe: "that doesn't matter. I want his whereabouts, that on its own is 10 bars. You pass both, you get 25. Is anyone confused?" Everyone: "No sir." Black: "I am. Now I don't mind looking for the abductors. But Komander himself? That's suicide. Nobody has ever seen him and lived to tell the story." Lakhe: "yet he's around and runs operations all over the world? Matter of fact, I change my statement, I want YOU to personally find him. I'm giving you 48 hours otherwise you'll lose a limb." he walked out. In the car, Sandile took the driver seat. Sands: "where to next?" Lakhe: "Groovmor clinic. I need Timothy in my hands." Sandile drove straight to the hospital centre.

Sandile went inside the hospital in search of Timothy and found him by reception. Sands: "sweetheart, I've been looking all over for you." he stood behind him with hands in his pockets. Timothy turned around and looked at him. Tim: "excuse me?" Sands: "I thought I'd take you out for lunch. Are you busy?" Tim: "first of all, Who are you and what do you want?" Sands: "Wow, this is how you treat all your boyfriend's? Or is it just me?" Tim: "you're not my boyfriend. I don't know who you are." Sandile took one step toward him. Sands: "Baby... I would kindly suggest, you stop playing with me. You don't want your love to be upset. Take your things, and join me for lunch." Timothy swallowed but stood his ground. Tim: "No." Rose: "is everything okay here?" Sands: "Just trying to surprise my fiance for lunch but he's still mad at me for last night." he had a menacing look in his eyes. Rose: "awww. You're so sweet. You can go Tim, its almost your lunch break." she walked off. Sands: "you heard the lady. Let's go my butterfly." he held his forearm and pulled him out. Tim: "who the hell are you!!" he asked as soon as they were outside. Sands: "who I am, is none of your concern, and if you don't want me to drag you I suggest you calm the fuck down. I am not below killing you. Move." Tim:

"people will ask about me you know! You can't kill me! There's cameras in that hospital." Sands: "all it takes is one phone call to get rid of that evidence, and a 12 foot grave to get rid of you. Timothy, I don't like to cause a scene but if ufuna ndikucenge kwedin, I'm going to kick your asshole wrong side out. Don't fucking test me." Tim obeyed quietly and got into the car. The backseat was available with only Lakhe. Sibu in the passenger. Sandile drove off. Lakhe turned his head to look at Tim and smiled. Lakhe: "Hi." Tim: "what do you want from me? I told you everything I know." Lakhe: "Yeah. Except you lied. Now, my brother is not that nice....but if you're going to deal with me, You'd wish I were him. Since I'm having a pleasant day, I'm going to give you a chance to collect your thoughts. We're going to drive around, tour our beautiful city, maybe get some food, you eat McDonalds right? We'll get you a burger. Then, once you're full, and your thoughts are aligned like ballerinas. You tell me the truth." Tim: "but-" Lakhe: "a.a.a.a.... I said we're going to drive around, tour the city while you gather you thoughts. We've only passed one street. You have about an hour." he looked back at his ipad. Timothy sat in his seat shaking. He only had one option, run for his life. Something dangerous was illuminating around this man in the back. He was obviously Satan. Shit. Lakhe: "the doors are automatically locked but obviously if you try anything stupid I'd cut your fingers off." he never once took his eyes off the ipad. Tim thought deeply. What the hell had he gotten himself into? All he needed was extra bucks that's it and those extra bucks came in 10k. Who would refuse an extra 10k? It wasn't a problem. He didn't think it was at first. All I had to do was keep in my lane. Tim: "I need to pee." Lakhe: "do you need a cup?" he looked at him. Tim looked back at him and saw a vile look in his eyes. He wasn't joking. God... He wasn't joking. Tim: "erh...you..." Lakhe: "I'm not going to stare at your dingaling but you're not getting out of this car until I get what I want and I'm satisfied. Try one more thing Timothy. I promise I'll ruin both our days at the speed of light." Tim: "its okay, I can hold it." Lakhe: "that's good." he went back to his ipad. Tim: "if I tell you everything, will you let me go?" Lakhe: "of course Timothy. I'm a man of my word." Tim: "okay." Lakhe drew out a knife as shiny as a reflective mirror. Tim's eyes widened. Lakhe: "Are you hungry?" Tim: "No. Thank you." Lakhe: "even McDonald's? I'm paying of course." Tim: "no its okay. I'm not hungry." Lakhe: "Suit yourself. Tell me where Anne is." Tim: "I don't know where Anne is." Lakhe: "see, this is why I needed an hour to show you this beautiful city, because your thoughts aren't ballerinas. And I happen to like ballerinas, now, you're pissing me off Timothy." Tim: "sir, I swear I don't know where she-" Lakhe grabbed his collar and pulled him close. Lakhe: "Don't. Fucking. Lie." he hissed. Tim: "I'm not lying I swe-" the knife landed on the side of his neck. Lakhe: "the next thing that comes out your mouth had better be the Bible truth or so help me God. I dare you, Lie To Me." Timothy looked at him pleading. Tears streaming down his cheek. Tim: "he just met with me one night and he offered me cash to keep quiet and mind my own business." he sobbed. Lakhe: "Who." Tim: "he said his name was Comfort. I asked what he needed me to be quiet about and he said he would fetch something from the hospital and that I had to disappear for a certain period of time and only reappear 5 minutes after the power goes off." Lakhe: "and then?" Tim: "he gave me about 2k. Then that night the weird incident happened. He left me 8k on my desk. I never saw him again. I don't think he hurt her." Lakhe: "you don't? What makes you so sure?" Tim: "because....Anne, her husband....he's a drug dealer. He beats her sometimes and she doesn't come to work for weeks. I figured maybe he did it. That's why I gave you his number. Please." Lakhe: "Do you trust me?" Tim nodded quickly. Sands: "bhuti." Lakhe looked at him. Sandile shook his head. Lakhe: "you're lucky my brother likes you. And you better pray to God himself, that you don't mention a word of this. Otherwise I will come find you and do worst things you could've ever imagined than dying. Do you understand me Timothy Wilson? Do you realize that if I can't find you, I will surely find your sister Melanie at Diaz primary school. Or your brother Oliver at his soccer practice at Lawson Brown high?" Tim: "I understand." Lakhe: "that's good." he let go of him. Lakhe: "drop him off." after dropping Timothy off Sandile drove around. Lakhe: "who the fuck is Comfort." Sands: "obviously from the Komander Ultimates Group. All his minions' names start with kom." Lakhe: "SHIT! This is exactly what I fucking need!!! I have a court case I have to prepare for in two fucking months, and this bastard of a human demon thing has to appear! Why can I not seem to catch a break!" Sands: "and even if we found this Komfort, he would rather die than let us know of Komander." Lakhe: "I know that! And obviously if he goes missing then shit will literally hit the fan. Actually not even the fan, the air conditioner! Just take me to my wife." Sandile turned the car around and drove back home.

Lakhe walked into the house after a few hours he had left. I was cooking dinner. Lakhe: "hey baby." Me: "hey." he hugged me. Lakhe: "you smell so good." Me: "thank you. Are you okay?" Lakhe: "yeah, I'm not sure if you want a service for Miriam or just a burial." Me: "I actually really don't know. I guess a funeral." I closed the pot and sighed. Me: "you know I was ready to put everything behind me and start a new relationship with her. Then she decided to do this. I was going to make her tea, sit in the garden with her and talk." Lakhe: "I'm sorry baby. Maybe the stress was too much for her." Me: "she could've said something Lakhe. My dad doesn't live here so he wouldn't be able to hurt her. Why would she just kill herself?" Lakhe: "Stop worrying yourself about this, baby. We don't have the answers. Its sad but we have to face reality that she's gone. At least we have Sibuyela back and I intend on keeping all of you safe." I hugged him. Me: "thank you daddy. Thanks for the extra security, although it feels like Nkandla but I feel safer." Lakhe: "You're welcome my wife. I'd do anything for you. Do you need any help?" Me: "dinner will be ready in two minutes. I need you to set the table and let everyone know." Lakhe: "done." Boogie paddled into the kitchen, his little paws clicking on the tiles. Lakhe: "and then?" the pup sat down and stared upward licking his little mouth. Lakhe: "uyabawa ngoku Boogie? Is that it?" the puppy wagged his little tail. Me: "khayeke umntana Lakhe and set the table." Lakhe: "makabene yakhe ke plate andifun nyama ishotayo mna." he walked to the dining table. Once the meal was ready I took the plates to the dining room as well and dished up. The gate buzzed. Who the hell now. It seemed as though no one was getting up to open either. There was a mob of armed security just at the gate kakade. They wouldn't move unless instructed. They even had black helmets on covering their faces with tinted glass, completing their bullet proof attire. They looked like ninjas honestly and I trusted them with my life. The gate buzzed ag- oh for fucks sake. I went to pick up. Me: "hello?" I looked at the camera and found Nosi and her evil mother. God, why now? Please. Nosi: "Hi Spho. Ndicela uvule." I was so defeated. I opened ndabuyela ekuphakeni ukutya oku. They entered in a few minutes carrying suitcases. Ndaske ndanukiselwa yiDoom. I promise. Stella: "good evening family. How are you?" Sands: "siphilile mama Unjani?" he hugged his little sister. Stella: "splendid darling. Oh, Spho honey do you need help?" I stared at her and continued with my task. Stella: "I took the courtesy of getting you a present. Spoiler alert, its a maid. Its literally the best gift a woman could ever ask for. Your back must be aching and your feet swollen. You deserve some rest and let someone else do the work." Me: "I actually enjoy my wifely duties, cooking and cleaning for my family. Doing their laundry and ironing. I don't need help." Rob: "ooooooh snap." I felt like laughing. Why so petty Rob? Stella: "at least a doula to help you through the pregnancy?" Me: "I'm fine but thank you for offering." I wondered why she was so nice all of a sudden. Nosi: "bhuti, can mama stay with us for a while?" ooh that's why. Lakhe: "This is Spho's house. She decides who stays and goes." I stared at this nerve of mine. Since when? I hated this. I didn't want to decide this. Throwing a woman out? Why me? God never gave me a cold heart shame. But then again I happened to have one a few hours ago. Ndadalwa ngolunye uhlobo mna. Me: "she can stay for a few days." Stella: "oh sweetheart thank you. I promise I'll be as quiet as a mouse. You won't even know I'm here!" she took her suitcases to her bedroom with her daughter. Rob: "you don't have to let her stay you know." Me: "its fine tata." I went to fetch extra plates in the kitchen. Rob: "you have a rare and beautiful wife who happens to have the kindest soul I've ever seen. You mess it up one time, and I will swoop in like an eagle and marry her for me." Lakhe stared at him. Sands: "euw tata. You just had to take it there?" Lakhe: "stay away from my wife man." Rob: "I'm just saying." Lakhe: "Tata. Life would never be able to prepare you for what I'd do to you if you came close to my wife like that." Rob: "That's cute." Rob laughed....

After dinner Stella had left again, since bekumnyama I figured that uzobuya ksasa not that she told anyone. I finished cleaning up the kitchen and answered my ringing phone. It was my mom. Zama. Well there was only one left anyway. Me: "hello mama." "Spho." oh that was my dad's voice. I looked at the number again. He used my mother's phone to call me? Its not like I wouldn't answer his call mos. Me: "hello tata, is everything okay?" Khaya: "You mean after you kicked me out?" Me: "I only asked you to leave. You brought a strange man to my house and you weren't being completely honest. You know, you only wanted me to speak to the pastor just so that he can brainwash me to being quiet. Am I wrong tata?" he kept quiet. Me: "Dad, You've done this ever since I turned 16. You kept things from me and whenever I asked, you brought a pastor who would scold me into silence. This, proves you know something that I don't. I didn't want to say this in front of Lakhe's family because abangeni ndawo, but you're my parents, I let you in on every aspect in my life, why can't you do the same?" Khaya: "Spho, its not like that." Me: "then how is it like tata?" I was greeted by silence again. Me: "uyabona ke tata why I get frustrated? I'm not a teenager anymore-" Khaya: "Yes but you're still my child Spho and its my duty to protect you!" Me: "Tata, on my wedding day, you handed me to Lakhe. He is the one who protects me now. Why are you doubting him?" Khaya: "Spho this is dangerous grounds that he has dragged you in. Why would he bring that woman near you esazi she has a bounty on her head!" Me: "where was she supposed to go? Tata ungumntu olungileyo ohamba icawa. Why can't you forgive her for the past?" Khaya: "Spho, that woman has made my life hell, I will never forgive her. I'm not sorry she killed herself at all. She deserves it after what she did." Me: "tata uthetha ngant-" he hung up. I looked at my belly. Me: "utheni utamkhulu wakho mntanam?" Lakhe: "hey." Me: "hi." he walked in the kitchen. Lakhe: "I couldn't help overhearing." Me: "what exactly did you hear?" Lakhe: "everything." Me: "then that's eavesdropping. Not overhearing. Unondaba wam." I kissed his nose. Lakhe: "baby I know uva kabhlungu, you don't have to hide it." Me: "I'm not hiding it. I'm just frustrated and scared. I can't stop thinking." he sat on the bar stool. Lakhe: "thinking what?" Me: "What was so awful that Komander did to Miriam that she had no choice but take her own life?" Lakhe: "baby kutheni ucinga ngalento when I told you not to." Me: "my dad knows something Lakhe. I feel like I don't even know him anymore." Lakhe: "what makes you think that?" Me: "he says he'll never forgive Miriam and he isn't sorry that she killed herself she deserves it for what she did." Lakhe: "baby, I'm sorry to say this but utatakho might have a leg to stand on. Your mother kept quiet and stood by as your own father molested and raped you in their house. What kind of mother does that? Hell, she would have never lived another day ngowam umntana mna. I understand why Khaya is so angry at her. You're his only daughter." I didn't want to think about this anymore but something was nagging me. My wounds had reopened when I regained my memory it still hurts to think about it yet I couldn't avoid it. Me: "But Lakhe something is fishy, everytime he brought a pastor to our house, he was covering something. It started when I was 16. Everytime I asked questions he couldn't answer, he brought a pastor who bombed me with Bible verses of obedience and respect and so forth." Lakhe: "is that why you can't throw my mother out even when she treats you like trash?" Me: "This is not about your mother right now. What if my dad is connected to this Komander person? I don't know anymore." Lakhe: "Babes, I know your dad. There is no way he would know Komander. I mean I had my doubts recently too, but honestly, utatakho is the most law abiding citizen I've ever met I'm surprised he doesn't have a Noble prize yet. Do you want me to show you abantu that associate with Komander banjani?" I shook my head. Lakhe: "uyoyika ngoku?" Me: "No." Lakhe: "baby your dad is clean." he hugged me. Stella walked into the kitchen, when did she come back? Stella: "oh my babies." we looked at her. I needed to get to bed. Stella: "sweetheart, You've met Vicky right? She used to work for us in our house in East London." Me: "yes we've met." I remember she was going to enroll for a short business course and Rob would help her start a Supermarket business. What was she doing here? Me: "Unjani sisi?" Vicky: "ndiphilile Spho Unjani wena?" she smiled sweetly. Me: "I'm fine thank you." Lakhe: "mama, uzothini apha uVicky?" Stella: "to help Spho with the household chores of course." Lakhe: "I believe Spho said she's fine." Stella: "This is a huge house, I mean not as big as mine but still huge. Especially for a pregnant lady. She needs rest. Masilakhe you grew up with a maid. Your wife can't be slaving away for you." Me: "iza ndik'bonise room yakho Sisi." Arguing with Stella or anyone else for that matter was not in my to-do lists today. My brain was genuinely tired. I took Vicky to her room then I went to rest. I had a headache. My feet were sore. And I was hungry. My husband walked in the bedroom. Me: "sweetheart, can you please get me some zinger wings?"

Lakhe: "I'll ask Sandile babes. He drives faster than me." Me: "Baby, Sandile didn't make me pregnant. I want you to get it for me." Lakhe: "haibo. Aren't they the same zinger wings regardless?" Me: "no. You must bring them." he stared me clearly stunned. Lakhe: "fine. Ndiyabuya." he walked out. I sat in bed quietly and recalled the events of today, I kept shaking in fear. Everytime I saw Miriams lifeless body, swaying till a standstill. Facing me. As if she summoned it to. What was going through her mind when she did this? Did she even know what she was doing? Because the last few days she was unstable. A soft knock on my bedroom door disturbed me. Me: "come in." the door opened and Sibuh stepped in. Sibuh: "Uphi uBhuti?" Me: "he went to kfc. Left just a while ago. Ufuna yena?" he closed the door behind him. Sibuh: "No, I want to talk to you." Me: "come." he got into bed. Me: "what's wrong?" Sibuh: "promise me you won't tell anyone?" Me: "I promise." Sibuh: "not even uLakhe." My spouse? Sibuh: "Please Spho, promise me." Me: "I promise." this had to be serious. Sibuh: "when I was walking, the day I was kidnapped, I got a video call. From someone called Shyla. She was the head detective in Rey's case. It was weird for her to video call instead of a normal phone call, but ndibuze ufuna ntoni, She said, she saw my picture in Rey's belongings and she wanted to check if it really was me." I stared at him. Shocked was the understatement of the year. Me: "but....how?" Sibuh: "the picture was taken when I was 4. When she showed me, I had no doubt in my mind ukuba ndim. And she also showed me one of yours, una 2." I swallowed hard. I've never even seen a pic of myself ndina 2. Sibuh: "I asked her how was that possible because I've never met Rey, I don't know him. Why would he keep a picture of me in his wallet? She couldn't answer me. So, I asked her if she found who killed him and she said no. They never caught the killer. She says Rey died only a month after he was reported missing. Which means his body remained unfound for another 3 months. Rotting." I could feel the bile working up my system. Sibuh: "I told her that I'd have to call her back. I wanted to digest yonke Lento and possibly ask my mother if she knew Rey. We hung up, then I bumped into someone. Before I could say I was sorry, a taxi stopped next to me and he threw me in. I was blindfolded. Tied up then injected ngento. Immediately after I felt the injection prick I grew weak ndalala." I pulled the blanket up closer to me ndigodola. Sibuh: "I woke up to darkness, I don't know where but it felt like I was in a silo." Me: "like a tin?" Sibuh: "Yes, it felt like a giant tin, there was no way out. No door, no window in sight. There was also a putrid smell like a dead dog or feces. I couldn't move. I thought I was paralyzed. A very long time later, something opened from far up. When I looked up....." he paused. I held his arm encouraging him to go on as much as I didn't want him to. I couldn't stomach it. Sibuh: "they threw someone in and he landed right on his head on the cement and his skull split open. They closed the door after that. I sat there for two days with a dead rotting body. In that heat." I wiped my tears with the back of my hand. Sibú: "on the third day. A door opened, I noticed that it was a lower door than that first day. I heard a voice that said 'Come here.' it was dark I couldn't see. When I didn't move he spoke again. He said: 'I will leave you here to die if you don't move.' I followed the direction of his voice. He pulled me out and took me into the bushes. My legs gave up in a few minutes and I fell. I could hear him talking but two voices now. Both of them carried me to this cabin. Again they injected me bandishiya khona. I woke up hours later I should think. Someone was standing on top of me. He had a tattoo on the front of his neck that looked like a snake. I couldn't look at his eyes. He....I couldn't see him. I begged him to let me go. He asked if I knew who he was, I said no obviously. He asked if I know why I was taken, I said no I don't. He told me that he had the power to take and give. That if he asked for something, he would make sure he receives it, that if someone asked him for something, he would also give. But, he was the only one. He could take me, to wherever he pleases and no one would ever see me again. He said he'd found hell and he had plans for it. That's where I began to remember, I was in front of Komander. He was speaking to me. I think he saw me start to panic because he held my arm and told me not to worry. His words were, 'Don't worry about you, its not you I'd take, its the one who means the most to you.'" he held his head. Me: "did he tell you why he took you?" he shook his head. Sibú: "he just said I must let my mother go." Me: "did you know she was going to die?" Sibú: "no... I didn't know." Me: "after your dream you kept saying, he would take you away, he wanted to take you, what did that mean?" Sibú: "Spho, Komander knows everything. He knows everyone. Their secrets and desires. He can't be fooled. You can't hide from him. He's Satan incarnate." Me: "and you saw him?" he nodded slowly. I was stunned. Me: "why do you think he let you live?" he shrugged. Sibú: "I think he was trying to prove a point." Me: "What else did you see?" Sibú: "my final night....I was tied up, my neck hurt badly. I hadn't eaten or drank, I felt so weak. I remember seeing four other people in chairs. Tied like me. Their heads were covered with a black cloth. He removed the first one and said 'for He who has not sowed shall not reap, and so he had not worked would starve but breeds no importance therefore shalt go.' He said this so many times. Spho.....he....he cut out their eyes while they were still alive. Their tongues and ears. He carves the X on their chest with a blazing torch. Their screams haunt me every time I close my eyes. Their pleading. He leaves them to suffer and the next day reopens those open bleeding wounds. Imagine being cut in an open scar?" andaminca ingathi kusikwa mna. I'd heard enough. Sibú: "I can never let anyone know. You're the only one I trust. Spho, if you tell someone, he will kill me." Me: "I won't tell a soul." I don't think I could. He hugged me tight. Sibú:

"All I prayed for was to see your face again." Me: "I'm sorry you had to go through all of that." Lakhe walked in the room and stared at us. Sib: "goodnight." Me: "did you take your pills?" Sib: "just before I sleep I will." Me: "Don't forget to pray." Sib: "okay." he walked out of the room. Lakhe stared after him. Lakhe: "and then?" Me: "Can we pray before we sleep?" I was seriously scared to death. Lakhe: "What's going on?" he closed the door. Me: "someone died in our house just last night." Lakhe: "What did Sib say?" Me: "Nothing." Lakhe: "He was in my bed." Me: "I was just asking how he was, and he said he was okay." Lakhe: "Did he tell you about what happened?" Me: "No, he didn't. I don't even want to know actually." he hopped into bed with the KFC paperbag. Lakhe: "do you think he saw him?" I opened the wings bucket and started munching. Me: "saw who?" Lakhe: "Komander obviously." Me: "I wouldn't know." Lakhe: "what if he did?" Me: "then that's that. Not much we can do about it." Lakhe: "but why would he let him live if he did? Only one explanation." Me: "what." Lakhe: "he's working for him." Me: "that's absurd." he took a wing and ate. Lakhe: "Did you ask him?" Me: "Lakhe, I don't want to talk about Komander. I never want to hear his name again in my house. Let. It. Go." Lakhe: "Fine."

Saturday morning, Khaya walked into his house. Khaya: "my love." Zama: "Hi." she stirred the porridge boiling on the stove. Khaya: "I'm sorry, you had to go through that. I wish there was something I could do to make it better." Zama: "There isn't Khaya." Khaya: "Did he hurt you?" Zama: "Why in the world would Komander hurt me?" Khaya: "then what happened?" Zama: "I can't tell you." Khaya: "Zama." Zama: "you know the deal, I can't say anything but I'm fine. He didn't touch me." Khaya: "Well, he contacted me, he said thank you. And he sent us gifts." Zama: "Oh God, not again!" her voice shook. Khaya: "Let's just see Zama..." he put the bag on the table and opened it. Inside was a black box engraved with the letter K. He gave it to her. Zama: "this doesn't seem like a human tongue type of box." Khaya: "That's a good thing right?" he smiled nervously. She opened the box and stared at the most beautiful piece of jewelry she's ever laid her eyes on. Zama: "WOW." a diamond necklace with a single emerald stone in the middle. She stared at the price tag still hanging on it. Zama: "700 000 dollars. Khaya I can't take this, its more than 9 million South African Rands. That's triple the cost of our house." Khaya: "There's a note." she took the note and read it: 'My faithful Zama, You are as rare as this necklace, I had it specially designed just for you. Its a 3 piece, make sure you wear the light pieces at all times. The ring and the bracelet. You never take them off.' Zama looked at her husband. Khaya: "now to open mine." he took out his box, slightly smaller and opened it. He smiled. They stared at the chrome black diamond watch. It looked like royalty. Zama: "Audermar Piquet." he opened his note. 'My loyal Khaya, You are as ferocious and timely as this watch. I had it specially made, just for you. Its a 3 piece, make sure you wear the light pieces at all times. The ring and the bracelet. You never take them off.' Khaya: "its beautiful. I love it." Zama: "why did he get us such expensive jewelry?" Khaya: "To say thank you obviously, as for never taking them off, they probably have safety devices on them. Umvile ke Zama, never take it off." Zama: "of course. Sizothi sizifumanaphi ke?" Khaya: "from each other obviously. I bought you yours, you bought me mine, the prices should never be mentioned to anyone. Ever." they wore their light pieces. Zama: "God, even the light pieces look exquisite. Would you hate me if I replaced my wedding ring with this one?" Khaya: "not if you hate me for doing it too." they laughed. Zama: "Ill thank him after breakfast." Khaya: "okay. At least now, everything will be back to normal." Zama: "yes. I hope so." she switched the stove off. Zama: "want some porridge?" Khaya: "Yes please. Let me wash my hands."

I woke up quite later than usual. Even Lakhe was still asleep. I felt so confused and dizzy, my way to the bathroom was short and when I got there I was even more confused. I didn't even dream. After my shower and brushing of teeth. I sat in my underwear staring at my closet. I wore my yellow maternity dress and granny shoes then went to the kitchen. Nobody in the lounge. Which was odd. In the kitchen I got the shock of my life to find Vicky already making breakfast, I'm not going to lie that annoyed me more than necessary. This is why I don't want a maid. When I wake up, I'm the one who makes breakfast. Only me! Vicky: "hello Spho Unjani?" Me: "I'm fine. What are you doing?" Vicky: "breakfast." You're doing it wrong. But mandiyeke. I went to the lounge Sandile appeared too, then Sibu after that Dumi, a while later Stella. After greetings we sat down for breakfast. So I was not the only one feeling glum today. Thank Goodness, I thought it was the pregnancy. Sands: "Where are my boiled eggs and roasted toast?" a lot of you may be asking how do you roast toast, trust me if you live with Sandile, you learn to make it happen. Vicky: "you like the normal toast nje." Sands: "not anymore, Spho ndicela roasted toast?" Me: "okay. Dumi?" Dumi: "sunny side up egg. And my bacon in medium heat olive oil." Sibu: "Ill have the same. But no crusts on my french toast. With melted cheese on my eggs." I went to the kitchen to start breakfast again. By the time I was done Lakhe and Robert were awake too. We sat down to eat once again. Stella: "so you're trying to tell me, all of you have a specialized breakfast menu?" Sands: "Yep." Nosi doesn't even eat breakfast yilento esalele ke. Stella: "Why?" Sands: "Spho makes it special, asifani sonke. That's why the custom made breakfast, that's if you're a permanent resident. Visitors get the other boring scramble egg shit." Lakhe: "who eats scramble egg?" Dumi: "not me." Sibu: "too messy." Stella looked at Rob. Stella: "You're awfully quiet. Which eggs do you like?" Rob: "the kind that creates my babies." YUH. That shade would last an entire year. I wanted to giggle so bad. Sandile choked on his food. Lakhe: "relax tata. So early in the morning? Hayi." Stella: "myeke mntanam, Your father has always been a risk in the morning. I can't believe I actually missed it. How many months are you Spho?" Me: "Six." Stella: "wow. You're at the end of the second trimester. Good thing that all the sickness is behind you." Rob: "how would you know?" he sipped his coffee. Stella: "I read, Robert." Rob: "Really? You mean real live books or just fashion blogs, because There's a difference." Stella: "and what is the difference?" Lakhe: "Okay, I'm not having this in my house. If you're both going to live here, you act civil or leave. I'm not going to take this squabbling. Tata, If you have nothing kind to say, you gonn keep quiet. Nawe mama. My wife is pregnant and we're trying by all means desipte our circumstances to keep a positive environment. So, please." That was so sweet of him. For once he used his adult words instead of screaming like a toddler. The gate buzzed, Sandile went to pick up. Sands: "yes?" he looked at the camera and opened the gate, rushing out immediately. Lakhe stood up and followed him. Rob: "what's happening?" he stood up. Sibu: "yima tata." he went after his brothers but stood by the door. Stella: "what is it!" Sibu: "its Babalo. Our neighbor." I got up and walked out too. Me: "kwenzeka nton?" Lakhe: "let's go back inside. Izani Babalo." he took the box in his hands and walked into the house. We all stood in the lounge. Sands: "What happened?" Babalo was in a stunned silence. He was just quiet, tears rolling down his face. Hlumi was crying as well. Me: "open the box." Lakhe: "Babalo, you need to talk to me. What is this? Must I open it?" Babalo shook his head. Hlumi: "There's a note." Lakhe took off his t shirt and held the letter with the shirt not his bare hands. 'I have found hell in your house, If you leave me there, you will curse the sun that set on the day you were born.' Lakhe: "who the fuck sent you this!" Hlumi: "it was on the doorstep when we came home. Babalo was in the process of selling the house." Sands: "what's in the box? Did you open it?" she shook her head. Hlumi: "the note was stuck on top of it. I was scared." Sandile took a knife and sliced open the tape. He opened the box and stared inside. Sands: "Wow." Stella: "what is it?" they looked inside. I'd already had a traumatizing day yesterday thank you very much. I stood behind my husband quietly. Stella screamed. Dumi: "Jesus Christ." Sands: "What in the fresh hell." Babalo oko ejonge kwasathana sana. I must say, seeing him like this didn't make me feel good at all. I felt so sorry for him. Rob: "you need to call the police." Lakhe: "azothini amapolisa tata!! Nako bexakwe yila scene from last week. What the hell can they do!! They're bloody useless man!" Rob: "either way Lakhe, this is human parts. We can't keep it in our house." Hell, why did he have to say it? Stella and Vicky sat far away holding each other. Hlumi held on to her stale faced husband. Dumi called the police. Me: "get dressed baby." I took his hand to the bedroom. Lakhe: "My God Spho, what the hell is happening kulandlu?" Me: "I have no idea. Maybe this Komander has really found a nest and it happens to be Babalo's home. Baby, he needs to see a doctor, did you see the stress veins in his forehead. I don't think he has slept ever since Sunday." Lakhe: "eish Spho." He wore his t shirt. Lakhe: "he needs more than a doctor. He's beyond traumatized lomntu. Wear your jersey." Me: "ndiyaphi mna?" Lakhe: "There's no way I'm leaving you here." I wore my jersey and we walked back to the lounge. The police were on their way. I avoided that box with every might of my body. Njebe ndizithanda indaba, ezi bendingazifuni tu. How could something like this happen, Again. Sandile brought a bottle of cognac and two glasses for Hlumi and Babalo. He means well, but why the alcohol? Me: "Not now Sandile. They still have to talk to the police and the doctor." Sands: "Fine. Ndiyabuya." Me: "uyaphi?" Sands: "Next door to go check what the hell is living in that house." Me: "No You're not. Sit down. The police are on their way." Sands: "Spho, We can't wait for those useless things! The police won't do anything!" Me: "I'm not going to argue with you. Sit. Nobody is leaving this house, until the police get here, take statements from everyone then leave. If any one of you knows something. You better speak up now, because the minute the police arrive, you're on your own." Lakhe: "crap." Me: "what?" Lakhe: "I left the house the last night remember undithuma your wings?" Me: "We have cameras all over those gates. You will tell them the truth, nothing is going to happen. Whoever went in that house, will be in those cameras."..... I hope.

Saturday afternoon.

After the police had taken down all the statements and verified alibis, the forensics took the mysterious box. We all sat in the lounge. Sandile brought the cognac bottle to me. Sands: "Now can they drink?" I just shrugged. I don't know why he was so obsessed with getting others drunk. Hlumi was seated next to her husband and kept glancing at him. Me: "would you like some chamomile tea?" she shook her head. Sands: "Cognac?" Hlumi: "No thanks Sandile." Lakhe: "so what now? You gonn live in a house that is someone's so called nest?" Babalo didn't respond. I was sure he didn't even know how to. Hlumi: "maybe we'll just move in with our parents for now. I can't stomach the thought that someone was butchered in my house." Sibulele was oddly quiet. I wonder nyani if Lakhe was right. He claims to have seen Komander but he's alive. Why? Plus he didn't even get to tell me how he "escaped". What if they struck a deal and now he's part of their clique? So we're living with a soldier of Satan now? Oh my God. Sibulele: "what's wrong?" he looked at me. I realized I'd been staring at him for too long. Me: "Nothing." I got up. Me: "I'm going to feed the ducks." This was just scary. What if Sibulele killed Miriam and created a distraction by his screaming nightmares? My mind started reeling. Was it possible that he could've killed his own mother? I don't even know who to trust anymore let alone who to talk to. A person could go crazy. Is this why he didn't want me to tell Lakhe about his experience with Komander? I got the bird seeds from the kitchen and went to the garden. There was at least 30 guards around the yard. All armed and ready. I went about my business to the duck penthouse, yes Lakhe's ducks have their own penthouse. I fed them quietly. Sandile: "Everything okay?" he had followed me out the house. I looked at him and smiled. Me: "of course." Sandile: "you don't have to lie to me. We're family." Me: "I know." Sandile: "I saw you staring at Sibulele as if he was a terrorist. Why?" I chuckled. Me: "You have a wild imagination. I was just thinking." Sandile: "That he may be working for Komander?" Me: "Uyathakatha wena." he laughed. Sandile: "Witchcraft? Me? No." he looked around then took a step closer to me. Sandile: "You're not the only one that thought that by the way. The night of his nightmare. I fell asleep deeply, waking up feeling a bit dizzy during the night. I can almost assure you right now, he was never in bed." he whispered. I looked at him completely surprised. My heart stopped. How come he never said this before? Lakhe appeared. Sandile: "So they're shooting the new season now, I can't wait for it to come out. Anyway, nice chatting. Bye." he rushed back to the house. Lakhe: "gossiping again I see." Me: "how is talking about a series gossiping?" Lakhe: "you two were whispering like mice before I got here. It must be really juicy." Me: "heee." Lakhe: "Baby tell me." Me: "about Empire?" Lakhe: "you and I both know you weren't talking about Empire." I was scared to tell him actually. If I told him, I'd have to tell it all. Sibulele's life was on the line. Whether or not he was working for Komander, I didn't want his blood on my hands.

A few hours went by. Actually it was close to 5pm. Robert's phone rang. We were still in the lounge, just after a late lunch. Each of us were scared to do anything even if it meant going to our bedrooms. The only free people here were Lakhe and Sandile, they roamed around freely without thinking. Robert: "Robert speaking." he listened. Lakhe: "maybe we should watch a movie to get our minds off this madness. There's a cinema in this house that's barely ever used." Sands: "I'll get the snacks." Rob hung up his call. Rob: "not just yet." Stella: "Good grief, what is it now!" Rob: "that was the mortuary that I'd chosen to store Miriam's body. It has gone missing." Lakhe: "What has gone missing tata." Rob: "her body Masilakhe." Lakhe: "haike bayanya kengoku! Somebody had better come up with a fucking good explanation when I get there!!" he grabbed his keys, storming out. Sandile followed him. I looked at Dumisani. Me: "What was in the box?" Rob: "No Spho." Me: "tata, I need to know." Rob: "What was in that box has nothing to do with Miriam." Me: "I'm not so sure tata." How does a whole body go missing? Nosi came to the lounge. Nosi: "What's going on?" Yeyi iyalala le girl. I would so love her sleep schedule. Stella: "Sweetheart, I think its best you sit this one out. This is adult business. Go back to your room." Nosi: "hayi mama. You're scaring me. Where are my brothers?" Sibu: "They're fine. Just running some errands. We're just having an important discussion right now okay? Everything will be fine." Nosi: "Alright then." She went back to her room. I sat in my spot and did some calculations. Nothing came up in my head. Lakhe and Sandile came back after almost an hour. Rob: "What happened?" Lakhe: "indeed she's missing. There is no sign that she was ever there." Rob: "that's impossible. I was there!" Sands: "So was I." Rob: "What the hell does this mean!" Finally, my calculations add up. Me: "This means Komander took her. Cut off the essential parts. Sent them as a package to Babalo's house because he knows they'll come straight here." Its not rocket science really. They all stared at me. Sibu: "Spho you can't think like that." he had genuine tears in his eyes. Sibu: "that is our mother not some piece of meat. We must have hope." Me: "What hope Sibulele? You think Jesus himself came to fetch her? Hope is the last thing we have. Its painful but There's no avoiding it." Lakhe: "this isn't helping. They said they'd contact us when they get hold of the guy that was in charge of locking up last night. We have to wait." Sands: "I'm not going to wait for that bullshit. I'm going to look for him myself if I have to." Sibu: "I'm with you." he got up. Lakhe looked at his phone. Lakhe: "let's go. Baby, ndiyabuya, lock these doors." he kissed my cheek and left. I had to do something about Babalo. He needed to sleep. I called Hlumi to the kitchen. Me: "I have a pill that can put him to sleep, he needs to close his eyes Hlumi." Hlumi: "I agree but he doesn't want to take a pill." Me: "I can crush it into his juice." Hlumi: "That's a good idea. Please do it Spho, I'm really worried about his sanity." I crushed the small pill and put it in his juice and stirred. As small as this pill is, it would knock him out in minutes and for long hours. Hlumi took the juice and gave it to him. Thankfully he drank it all. Me: "You can use the same room as last time." Hlumi took his arm and they went to the bedroom. She came back almost immediately. Hlumi: "he's asleep. Enkosi Spho." Me: "that's why I'm here. Now, you need to eat." Hlumi: "I can't." Me: "its not optional. Uzondincedisa ngopheka, then sihlale sitye, nantsi ice cream for now, tell me more about you. We need to get our minds off this situation." Stella: "Can I join?" she walked in the kitchen with Vicky. Me: "Yes. The more the merrier." I took out the pots. Hlumi dished up the ice cream for them all. I took out a bottle of coffee liquor I couldn't indulge in. Hlumi: "What's that?" Me: "chocolate sauce." I poured a bit in all their bowls of ice cream. I chopped up the beef into chunks and put them on boil with water and a bit of worcster sauce. Me: "where did you grow up Hlumi?" Hlumi: "in Cape Town. Only until I was 9 then my family moved here. Sahlala KwaMagxaki. I attended Pearson High, then I went to NMMU. My dad bought a house in Rowallan Park. That's where they live now." Me: "what were you studying?" I chopped the vegetables. Hlumi: "I was doing Public Relations. I met Babalo, in my second year, he was working for an insurance company then. Studying part time. We fell in love immediately. After I'd graduated, I got a job. He wanted to study full time but obviously he was used to being independent I offered to support him and he said no. Then we started fighting and broke up for the first time. I moved to Bloem, and worked there for a while. About a year later we met up again when I came to visit PE. We chatted and fell back in love again but never pursued a relationship. He graduated finally and started his own business. We decided then I'd move back to PE and try again. So I did, now here we are." Me: "that's so sweet Hlumi, its a good thing you didn't give up on him." Hlumi: "oh but I did. In Bloemfontein I was dating this great guy. Everything about him was perfect. He frustrated me so much because he had no faults. It was the best relationship but I didn't feel enough for him. I'd always wanted to marry someone like that, but when I got him it just didn't feel right. With Babalo, he has faults, always fighting but I felt passion with him. So I left perfect guy for my average guy and I've never been happier." Stella: "So you married for love?" Hlumi: "Yes." Stella: "Well, its understandable because your love has money too." Wait.... Hlumi: "So you never married for love?" Stella: "Robert was anything but inlove with me. He was a superstar. Every single woman wanted him, when he asked me out. I wasn't interested because he was such a drag queen." we laughed. Stella: "I'm serious. Your father in law loves attention Spho. Cameras followed him. Journalists wanted interviews. Only after 3 months of dating he asked for marriage. He said he needed to settle down. He wanted kids, a family. That's it. Not love and fairytale endings. Just a family." she stared at her ice cream. Stella: "I guess in the end he ended up with what he's always wanted. A loving supportive family. You take good care of them Spho. I'm sorry I treated you the way I did." Me: "Its in the past now." I took out the dough in the fridge. Me: "how about you sis Vicky? Tell us about your love." she laughed. Vicky: "khayeke udlala man Spho. I don't have a love. Never had." Me: "Hayi sisi, we must get you a date." Vicky: "with what!"

Me: "A Man." they laughed. Robert stood at the door and looked at us, with a surprised look on his face. Me: "do you need anything tata?" Rob: "No sweetheart. Just checking if nise right." Me: "Yes we are. I'm making dinner so long." Rob: "alright." he walked back out. Stella: "how do you get him to be so polite?" Me: "I don't know actually. They're all like that." Stella: "I call him Risky Robert. You never know what mood he's in. It was always risky." Me: "so Mam' do you want to find love sometime? Now that you and Mr Rob are officially divorced." Stella: "I'm not a love person dear. I need security. Someone to take care of me. When I say this, people like to think I'm greedy, do you know I met Robert while he was a boxer? I was the one who encouraged him into investment and studying further then opening his own company. I groomed him to be a businessman. He just wanted to box, nothing else. Seeing him succeed was the only fuel I needed, not this love nonsense." Me: "awww. That's what love is njena." Stella: "No its not." Hlumi: "it kind of is. If you didn't love him, you wouldn't put that much effort in ensuring he has a great future." Stella: "Well, it wasn't just his future but our kids' and mine too. I couldn't just let him waste it away. Look how comfortable he is now. He's a multi millionaire. He's happy. We would be living in a four bedroom house in the township had he not listened to me. Look at his boxer friends. Are they millionaires? No." Me: "so you still love him." Stella: "Don't be ridiculous Spho. Robert is a ghou. Impossible to love. He makes everything difficult." I giggled. She's so in love she can't even hide it. Me: "Ma, you need to be nicer to him and see how he reacts." Stella: "I tried that once he accused me of trying to poison him." I burst out laughing. Stella: "You don't know Robert like I do. That man is crazy for cray cray." she had finished her ice cream. Stella: "I'm feeling a bit tipsy, what did you put in that ice cream?" Me: "coffee liquor." Stella: "hmm... Is there still some left?" Me: "of course." I gave her the bottle and she gulped it twice. Stella: "That feels good." then dished up more ice cream. Stella: "I think I need something stronger." Hlumi: "There's the bottle of cognac Sandile keeps dangling in my face." Stella: "Yes! That!" I just looked at them. I didn't even envy them drinking. I was happy they were letting loose despite recent events. Who wouldn't get drunk after witnessing someone's body parts? Vicky: "I'll have a small drop. That's enough." Stella: "Nonsense darling. Here, bottoms up!"

Masilakhe sat in the underground basement of his warehouse. The team walked in and lined up. Lakhe: "Does anyone of you have information for me." Nobody responded. Lakhe: "I gave you a task." he stared daggers at Black. Lakhe: "I believe you owe me a limb." he stood up holding his saw. Black: "Mr G, now hold on." Lakhe: "for what reason." Black: "I may not have

Komander, or his whereabouts BUT, I have some info." he stepped closer to him. Lakhe: "What did you do." he hissed. Black: "I didn't have a choice." Sands: "Oh my God he didn't." Black: "I don't want to lose a leg man! Look, I got initiated yesterday, they see me as one of them. I'll get you Komander come hell or high waters." Lakhe: "Are you fucking insane!!!! Are you fucking insaaannnee!!!!!!!!!!!!!" he growled. Black jumped back a whole meter. Black: "Sir-" Lakhe: "Do you realize what the fuck you've done!!!!!" Black: "Sir, Komander is not in this city. He travels under the radar with a different alias." Sands: "What do you mean?" Black: "I mean, its almost impossible to track him down. He doesn't use the same name twice. He has a right hand man, named Komodity. He is the leader of Ultimates. He is the one who does the rituals. He is the only one in the world that knows where Komander is and the only one that Komander trusts, he does the name changes and plans his routes. Plus, he lives right here. In Port Elizabeth." Lakhe: "Who is he?" Black: "I haven't gotten to that yet." Sands: "You do realize that if and its a matter of when, these people find out you double crossed them they hang your balls on the Eskom Electricity poles, and you won't be attached to them?" Black: "I know. I'm very discreet." Lakhe: "Get out of my sight." Black: "I promise I'll never disappoint you." he walked out. Sergio: "We're fucked." Kyle: "Should just kill him boss. He's too much of a liability." Bull: "Seconded." Sands: "thirded." Lakhe: "Sandile, I want you to follow him, drag him back to me when he least expects it. I have plans for him." Sands: "done." Sergio: "but don't we want to know who Komodity is first? How else are we going to know if we kill Black?" Lakhe: "then we'll have to do it after he tells all. Either way, I don't want Black breathing." Sibulele: "Wait.." they all looked at him. Sibulele: "I'll do it." Lakhe: "You don't kill." Sibulele: "I'm not going to kill him, you won't be able to get to Black without alerting the K.U.G. They'll be monitoring him even in his sleep. There's a good chance if you kill him, the entire group will come wipe us out. I can get him, and I can find Komodity too." Lakhe: "And what exactly is your plan Sibulele." Sibulele: "To put it in your words? Drag him back to you. Kicking and screaming." the darkness in his eyes was absolute. In that instant the basement illuminated in bursts of stark white light, as a bullwhip crack of lightening thundered above them angling Sibulele's face in a demonic rage-filled emotion. Something about him had changed, Lakhe thought. Something deep and dark. Finally.....

Lakhe and Sandile were on their way home, Sibulele dropped off at some point to fulfill his task. By now the rain came in a deluge, the sky had darkened already, only lighting up a few strikes of drumming thunder at a time. Sands: "I'm kind of disappointed. Sibulele was like our baby brother. Now he seems to have changed." he looked out at the stormy weather. Lakhe: "I think its good that he can get out of the bitch panties every once in a while." Sands: "No, bhuti I think There's something wrong." Lakhe: "how can YOU of all people see something wrong?" Sands: "I know I'm fucked up. No doctors can fix me but with Sibu its different. He isn't sick, nobody just switches over night like that." Lakhe: "don't worry about uSibu. He's fine." he parked in the garage. They walked into the house, everyone seemed to be in a weirdly creepy happy mood. Stella was singing. Kissing Rob on his cheek and brushing his bald head. He looked pissed off but sat quietly without moving. Lakhe: "what the hell is going on?" Rob: "Your mother is drunk." Vicky giggled. Rob: "and Victoria, and Hlumisa. All of them, they're drunk." Lakhe looked at me. I looked back at him innocently. Lakhe: "don't even dare give me that Boogie look, what did you do?" Me: "Nothing." Lakhe: "I know you did something. Uphi uDumisani." Rob: "also drunk. Passed out in the bathroom." Sandile hurried off to look for him. Lakhe: "Tata, how do I leave the house for a few hours and come back to the entire house drunk? What were you doing?" Rob: "I was watching sports. I'm nobody's baby sitter." Stella: "My sweet pumpkin punch." she kissed his mouth. Lakhe: "You deserve that." Rob: "Nokwakha get off of me. I'm not playing with you." Stella: "My chukulukululu with the butter lips. I've always loved your butter lips. Taste like strawberries." Lakhe chuckled. Rob: "I'm counting to five. You ought to be off me by then or I swear." Stella: "I'm not going anywhere, my superstar." Rob: "1, 2, 3..." Stella: "4, 5. Do you remember when I met you." Rob: "Lakhe, get your mother off me." Lakhe: "I'm not doing that. That's what you get for wasting my expensive alcohol." Rob: "Spho got them drunk, not me!" Lakhe stared at me. Lakhe: "Not my beautiful wife, suphosisa tata. Akanxilanga yena uSpho. How can she get people drunk when she doesn't even drink?" Rob: "I love that you asked, let's review the camera footage." Oh shit. Lakhe: "I don't care about footage. I need to get those two in bed, you will deal with your wife.....wait, Where's Babalo?" Hlumi: "Spho drugged him." Rob: "Told you." Lakhe: "Hayi baby." Me: "he needed to sleep. These ones needed a distraction. Everyone is happy-" Rob: "except me!!" Lakhe: "hayi wethu tata. Its return investment, still get your wife benefits. When last did you get a kiss?" Rob: "You're lucky you're my son. Phakama wena, masambe." Stella: "ooohh sexy!" she held on to him as he pulled her to his room. Lakhe: "be safe." Rob: "I am still your father boy!" Lakhe laughed. Me: "Uphi uSibu?" Lakhe stopped and looked at me, thinking. As if he was trying to think of a lie. Lakhe: "He said we should drop him off at his mom's old place. Needed some time alone." Me: "Oh. How is he?" Lakhe: "better. He's being strong." Me: "did you find the guy in charge of the mortuary?" Lakhe: "not yet baby." Sandile appeared again. Sands: "alright ladies, let's get moving." they held each of his biceps and walked with him to the bedroom. Me: "The box that arrived with Babalo and Hlu-" Lakhe: "Don't worry about that box baby." Me: "Can you let me finish?" Lakhe: "fine." Me: "is it possible that could be Miriam's parts." Lakhe: "Baby, I don't want to talk about this. You're pregnant, this is too much stress for the baby. Please?" Me: "Why are you trying so hard to lock me out of this knowing fully well I'm good at piecing together information?" Lakhe: "I'm worried about our child Sphosenkosi." Me: "the child is fine. I'm not stressed." Lakhe: "Spho your mother just died. Her body is missing. How about you focus on grieving." Me: "I haven't felt anything for her for as long as I remember. If I start crying and mourning now that would be a failed attempt of pretense because I'm not affected. Yes, seeing her body threw me off a bit, but that's it. She's more of a stranger to me. Umamam ngu Zama mna." I hated to admit that seeing Miriam's body conjured my current nightmares and thoughts. I had to keep busy for the sake of my sanity because if I didn't I kept seeing her hanging body twisting on that noose facing me. Sometimes it smiled at me. Other times it just stared. And in the past two hours as I sat here with my drunk family. I saw it again in my head, without eyes. I was probably one tear away from a mental breakdown. Lakhe: "I know that Spho. I just can't let you be close to this." I sighed. Me: "Fine." I got up and walked to the bedroom. Lakhe: "Spho, come on baby." Me: "I just need to be alone Lakhe, go about your business." Lakhe: "Am I wrong for wanting you to be safe and stress free?" I didn't respond. Just closed the bedroom door and sat on my bed with my laptop. Lakhe stood in the lounge by himself. Lakhe: "I wish you could just understand." he whispered. Rob: "understand what?" he appeared from the passage. Lakhe: "Spho wants to be so involved with this thing." Rob: "like any other human being." Lakhe: "She's pregnant tata." Rob: "she knows that and you treat her like an invalid because of that. She feels unappreciated, and useless. Why do you think she wakes up so early to make us all breakfast and clean up after us? Making her sit down all the time and fold her arms, she feels like a baby machine and that's not all she's good for. Spho is smart Lakhe, being pregnant didn't wipe that away maybe just slowed her down. Stop treating her like a child." Lakhe: "How do you know this?" Rob: "I spent all day talking to her like a normal human being and I understood her. I told you I make a better husband." Lakhe: "Tata, don't even try me. I'm warning you." Rob: "relax!" Sandile came back to the lounge. Sands: "I smell dumplings. Good God, I love that woman." Lakhe huffed and puffed furiously. Sands: "Yinton ngoku wangu Batman?" Rob: "he's mad because we love his wife." Sands: "If anyone could cook for me like she does, I'd marry them on the spot. Impregnate her with triplets. Call them Lucky Sands Junior. Get it? Since you're Lucky? And my name is Sands? Then the babies are junior?" Rob laughed. Rob: "awuphilanga mntanam." Lakhe was fuming, clicking on the remote furiously without a word. Rob: "hayi nyana suqumba siyadlala. We're just playing with you. Spho is like my daughter." Sands: "Not to me." Lakhe shot him a death glare. Sands: "You think I'm scared of you?" Rob: "Sandile..." Sands: "but we're playing tata, why does Lakhe get so sensitive with jokes? She is my twin, he knows this." Rob: "Leave your brother alone now. I'm going to do a bit of work. Spho already dished up for you. Don't disturb me unless it's an emergency." Sands: "Your back is got. And everyone else is asleep." Rob: "Good." he went to his bedroom/office and locked himself in to catch up on his banking.

I read the article of the murder of Reynold 'Rey' Khumbulani Peter. He used Reynold Peter for reference. According to the description, he was a tall, broad shouldered, well built man. The picture supplied was a little blurry. Maybe he had a Facebook page? I logged on Facebook to check his profile and found it luckily public. There was something very familiar about him. I could've sworn I'd seen him before. I read more about him. Then found a bit of information about his family. Grew up in Mthatha. Raised by grandparents. Parents died in car accident, something about brakes not working. He was also in the car when it rolled but luckily survived and was moved to the rurals with the grandparents after recuperating in a private clinic. He moved to Johannesburg at the age of 22 to study Mortuary science then later on studied Pathology. Graduated top of his class at Wits and started working immediately at a private hospital. Six years later. Butchered. Something about this story was nagging at me. That car accident wasn't an accident, it was staged. They were supposed to have died, but he didn't. He recovered and disappeared without a trace to the rurals. Then moved to Joburg once he was old enough. How did this relate to me and Sibule though? He couldn't have been our older brother right?. Maybe an uncle? Its a pity Miriam and Rey were the only ones who know but both are now dead. But wait, maybe the grandparents know? Are they still alive. I needed a PI.

Lakhe and Sandile watched TV alone together quietly. Each in their own thoughts. Sandile thought about the tractor he was watching on TV, how it could pierce into someone's skin and bury them same time. Very effective, then about Boogie and when he ate last, then about the food he just ate almost an hour ago, his last thought was getting another plate for himself of the dumplings and beef stew Spho cooked before he gave Boogie his dinner. Lakhe about his child's name. If it was a boy or girl. Not sure which he wanted the most. Maybe a girl so that she would look like her mother. A beautiful face and pretty toes. Curly black hair and a smile that pulled at his heart strings. She would get away with anything just like her mother. And he would protect her with all he had. He wanted a daughter. Nobody would touch her or hurt her. What if he gets a boy instead. He thought deeply. Would he be like me? Damaged but unbreakable? A mighty force and a killer? Someone who everyone feared and stayed far away from? He wouldn't have friends. He would be an outsider. People would poke fun at him for being weird. I can't let that happen to my boy. Lakhe: "Tell Sibulele to get his ass back here. Tell him I said he should leave it." Sandile stared at him? Sands: "Why?" Lakhe: "because I damn well said so!" Sands: "Then no." Lakhe: "its pointless taking out Black. He'll never last in the K.U.G. Leave him there." Sands: "what's gotten into you?" Lakhe: "Don't fucking question me and do as I say. I want him back here in 30." he got up and went to the bedroom. His wife was on her laptop with her serious work face on. Nothing could disturb her with that expression on. Nothing could get in her way. He wondered if his daughter would inherit the same trait. It would be fun trying to irritate her while doing school homework, like he's about to do with his wife. I looked at Lakhe standing in the middle of the bedroom, he had a stupid grin on his face which meant he was about to do something stupid and I wasn't having it. I was in no mood for stupidity, I had work to catch up on, I was going back to work on Monday and most of my clients had already resumed work a week before. I didn't have time for his games today. Me: "what do you want?" Lakhe: "nothing. I'm not here for you." he crawled in between my legs and kissed my stomach. Lakhe: "hi pumpkin." he whispered. So that's what he wanted to do. Good. I continued working not listening to his little conversation. Lakhe: "your mother doesn't want to talk to me my love, she's shutting me out. Kick her." I looked at him. How you gonn send the one soldier attached to me to attack me? This one was unstable shame. Lakhe: "go on my mighty force, kick." I felt a little nudge. Lakhe: "yes baby, again." he poked my stomach. Lakhe: "You go my angel! Come on." I felt the baby kick again more aggressively now. I stopped working and stared at him and his demonic tendencies. Lakhe: "I'm so proud of you my angel." he kissed my belly over and over again. The baby was active moving around, Lakhe nibbling at him/her. I'm not going to lie, I was melting quickly. I couldn't help smiling. He looked at me. Lakhe: "hi." Me: "what do you want from me?" Lakhe: "but I told you I came to play with the baby." he took his phone, revealing my tummy. Lakhe: "I can see her moving around, baby look." Me: "I can see." Lakhe: "I'm going to keep this until she's 18. Graduated from high school and play it for her when she goes to university." he started recording. Lakhe: "hi my sweetheart." Me: "I'm going to tell her or him you're trying to embarrass them in front of their friends." Lakhe: "that's gonna be for the rest of his or her life then, I will embarrass every chance I get. Can you see yourself growing in mommy's belly? You'll always be a part of her and me, which means you'll always have us in your corner. The same corners you're in right this second, look, I'm hoping this is your hand. High five." I giggled. He stopped recording. Lakhe: "when are we going to the doctor? Paul is back from his vacation now." Me: "on Tuesday babes. What's the word on Miriam's body. We can't hold a funeral with no corpse. That's just creepy." his phone rang. Lakhe: "Its the mortuary." he answered, Lakhe: "Masilakhe Sobz speaking." he listened quietly as his head turned to stare at me in shock. Then he jumped off the bed and walked out. He stood in the lounge, where Sibulele had just arrived, Sandile laying on his back on the couch. Lakhe: "I just got a call from the mortuary." Sands: "they found her? I bet she just took a walk, never meant anyone harm." Lakhe: "Worse." Sands: "She went for ice cream too?" Sibulele stared at him fiercely with an unspoken pain in his eyes. Sands: "I'm sorry Sibulele, that was uncalled for." Lakhe: "The guy who was in charge of the mortuary the night Miriam's body went missing is dead." Sandile sat up straight. Sibulele: "what!!!" Lakhe: "They just found his body in.....a plastic bag. In one of the fridges they use. My contact informs me that.....he was butchered. His eyes are missing."

Sibulele sat down slowly in the lone couch. Sands: "this some bull. Bhuti this guy needs to be stopped! He kills innocent people just because they saw him? They didn't do anything wrong! He kidnapped Anne, he kidnapped Sibulele, he kidnapped Miriam's body and now the undertaker is killed? Its not even been two weeks, this man is a lunatic bhuti." Lakhe: "You're saying someone is a lunatic? The whole of Sandile?" Sands: "I've never touched an innocent human being and turned them into meat! And I am not crazy!" Lakhe: "I didn't say you were crazy." Sands: "Then why are you looking at me like that!" Lakhe: "like what?" Sibulele: "Did they say anything about my mother?" he asked quietly. Lakhe: "No, they didn't." Sibulele held his head. Sibulele: "I arrive here looking for my birth parents, my father seems to have vanished off the face of the earth, my mother commits suicide and she too, vanishes like air. This is nothing short of being cursed. I'm probably the unluckiest guy ever." Lakhe: "Don't talk like that man. You're not cursed." Sibulele: "then how do you explain this? How does this happen to one human being?" Lakhe looked at him unable to say anything. Never being good with words, he turned around and walked to the bedroom. Lakhe: "baby?" he entered the room. Lakhe: "Sibu is not okay, I think he needs to talk." Me: "then talk to him." Lakhe: "I can't." Me: "Why not?" Lakhe: "I don't know what to say. My contact from the mortuary says they found the person who was in charge. He's dead." I can't say I was entirely surprised. At this point, it seemed murder was our daily bread. Lakhe: "Sibu is upset, he thinks he's cursed." I got out of bed. Me: "if he's cursed then I guess I am too." I wore my slippers and went to the lounge. Sibu was beside himself, I wasn't sure if he was crying. He just had his head buried in his hands. Me: "sweetie." I sat down on the arm rest of his chair, he looked up at me and hugged me. Me: "what's wrong?" Sibu: "everything is a mess." he sobbed. I looked at Lakhe. He just stood at a far distance with a strange look on his face. Sandile was on the next couch staring at the TV. Wow, so much for support. Me: "its going to be okay Sibu. You have me, you have ubhuti and Sandile too. Plus, spoiler alert you're going to be an uncle. Doesn't that excite you?" Sibu: "a bit." Me: "it should because I can't rely on these two. This baby is going to look up to you, run around after you. You have to be strong." Sibu: "Okay." he wiped his tears. Me: "do you want me to come with you to mom's house? We can sort her things out together." Sibu: "Yeah. We have to sell the house too." Me: "Sure. What about her furniture?" Sibu: "She didn't have any. She sold it to buy alcohol. But there's a bed." Me: "we can donate the bed to an orphanage." Sibu: "I'm an orphan too." my heart broke. Me: "we've got each other. Its all going to work out okay, I promise." Sibu: "I'll get ready." Lakhe: "How about you go tomorrow? Its raining furiously outside right now." Sibu: "it stopped raining two minutes ago." he stood up and walked to his room. Sandile stared at Lakhe, Lakhe looked back at him. Sands: "How?" Lakhe: "Baby, you can't go anywhere with him." he whispered. Me: "why not?" Lakhe: "There's something wrong with uSibu. He's not stable enough to drive." Me: "I can drive." Lakhe: "how would he know it stopped raining two minutes ago? Exactly?" Me: "Nothng wrong with that. We won't be long. We're just packing her clothes, then wash them and take them to a donation centre." Lakhe: "Baby please." Me: "Why are you afraid?" Lakhe: "I'm not afraid I'm worried. Sibu is not in his right mind." Me: "and what gave you that assumption? Did he do something out of the ordinary?" Lakhe: "not yet. We can't wait until he does." Me: "Sibu is my brother, he'd never do anything to hurt me." I went to wear shoes. Sibu was done and waiting by the bedroom door. When I came out he smiled. Sibu: "Is it a boy?" Me: "I haven't asked yet. I want it to be a surprise." Sibu: "I think its a boy. Let's go." we walked to the car and got inside. Sibu drove all the way to our mother's house. The car was quiet, no radio, no conversation. I felt calm, I liked it that quiet. When we got to the house, he got out first and I stayed in my seat. Even though I didn't grow up in this specific house but it lived the two people that I didn't like that much. Sibú opened my door and held out his hand. Sibú: "Princess?" Since when did he call me princess? I looked at him and saw something nerving in his eyes. Why were they completely dark? Doesn't he have brown eyes? I got out the car and we went into the house. It smelled a bit musky since no one has been here in a while. I stood still feeling completely uncomfortable. Something evil resided in this place. I don't know what the hell it is, but it was here. Looming all over around me. Sibú: "Do you want some tea?" I shook my head. Sibú: "let's get to it then. Here's her room." we walked into her room. Indeed there was a neatly made bed. A dressing table and a night stand next to the bed. The cupboard was on the opposite side. Sibú: "I think the wardrobe holds more of anything here." he opened and we sorted her clothes. Packing them in a box. At the bottom of the wardrobe was something that felt like a hollow space. It was underneath. It needed a key to open. It was an underground safe. Me: "What's this?" he looked. Sibú: "I don't know. I'll get a hammer." he got up and left. My phone rang and I stared at the I.D caller. Lakhe. Me: "baby?" I answered. Lakhe: "Are you okay? Where are you?" Me: "sikulendlu. I'm fine. We just finished sorting the clothes. Sibú went to fetch a hammer-" Lakhe: "a hammer for what!!" Me: "Relax, There's a locked safe under the wardrobe. We want to open it." Lakhe: "Okay, text me when you're done." Me: "okay babe." I hung up. Sibú: "Got one. Stand back." I moved back. He hammered the lock out of place and opened the safe. Sibú: "Wow. Really? A box in a box? How exciting." he said sarcastically. I took out the box chuckling. Me: "do you think we should open it?" Sibú: "Yes. We were her kids." we opened the box. Filled with photographs, letters and newspaper clippings. I saw the first picture of a little girl wearing a floral pink dress. At the back of the pic was written: Spho, 2. The second picture was of a boy dressed in a navy tracksuit: Sibú, 3. Me: "Its us." Sibú: "Yeah. Look at this." he gave me a letter. I looked at it. "Take Care of my children, I can't have them here. Its too dangerous. I cannot do what you can as their mother. Make sure my baby girl is safe. Away from harm. Away from me. She is going to make me weak Miriam. I care too much. Let my boy grow up away from all of this, send him away. Here's a number. This woman will take care of him. Make sure they never find out who I am. We should have never done this, stopped while it was still good. Thank you for the memories..." I looked at Sibú. Me: "This isn't from the guy who raised me. He wasn't my biological father. So who is?" Sibú looked back at me. Sibú: "I don't know. But I'm going to find him." Me: "You know I looked Rey up? A lot of weird things came up. The story about his life, There's something odd about it." Sibú: "You think that's where we should start?" Me: "Yes. Maybe that can reveal some other things which can give us a clue of who our father could be." Sibú: "I'm not having a good feeling about this Spho. Our father didn't want us in his life. He sent us away for a reason." Me: "You think looking for him could be dangerous?" Sibulele: "Not dangerous more than disappointing. What if he chases us away?" Me: "Do you want to know him?" Sibulele: "Yes. Obviously." Me: "So do I. Then we don't have a choice. We've got to find him."

Lakhe: "Sandile. I'm panicking. She's not answering." Sands: "If you're going to keep telling me mundane things I'm going to tape you onto that chair with an apple in your mouth. Leave me the hell alone!" Lakhe: "How can you be calm!!!" Sands: "You've already taken the hysterical role what am I supposed to be? A sheep?" Lakhe stared at him. Lakhe: "Mxim!" Rob walked into the lounge going to the kitchen. Rob: "Hey, what's up." Sands: "Sph-" Lakhe: "Nothing." Sandile looked at him. Robert went to the kitchen for something to drink. Sands: "Why are you hiding this? If Spho is in danger-" Lakhe: "When. Sibulele wouldn't hurt her, she's his little sister." Sands: "We don't have the same Sibulele in mind. You mean the sadistic maniac that was sitting in that chair a few hours ago? How can he go from animal to emotional tsunami so quick? That can't be taught, it's a gift from Satan on its own. He should teach a class. I'm gonn register first for that module." Lakhe: "Sibulele is dealing with a lot of shit right now, he just got kidnapped, brought back barely alive, his mother died and he's traumatized. Give him a break." Sands: "A break is not what I'm going to give Sibulele. You don't see it now, but soon you will. He saw Komander, he is part of him. They have put demons inside of him. He has gone bat shit crazy. Watch." Lakhe: "Dad was right, awuphilanga wena." Sands: "fine, then we'll wait. I for one am dying to eat the 'I told you so' cake. Its tasty." Lakhe: "its going to be stale because you won't get to eat it. You don't have feelings, this is how people who are in an emotional turmoil act. First they're fine, then they're strong and can handle it. Then they fall apart. Its science." Sands: "Okay. I want to see how this plays out. What are we going to do with Miriam's body?" Lakhe: "What can we do? Its missing. We can't have a funeral until we find it." Sands: "Sue the mortuary." Lakhe: "For what? I have enough money already. Besides, There's no point in closing the place down. They didn't lose it because of negligence, it was stolen. Not much they could've done. We know its Komander and we don't want to draw attention to ourselves." Sands: "okay. Here's your tag team pulling up." the car drove up the drive way. Lakhe: "I told you she was fine." Sands: "You were panicking like a stick. Don't even try to act brave." Lakhe: "Get married first. Then we'll talk." I walked into the house with Sibulele carrying boxes. Me: "You can put them in the laundry room, I'll wash them tomorrow. I need to see my dad." Sibulele: "cool." it was already dark outside. Me: "hi honey." I kissed Lakhe's cheek. Lakhe: "You didn't answer my calls." Me: "When?" I checked my phone. Me:

"oh, I didn't see these. I'm sorry sweetheart." Lakhe: "I was worried Spho." Me: "I apologize Lakhe. I didn't see the calls." Babalo walked in the lounge. He had just woken up, clearly. He looked confused and still sleepy. Sands: "Hey lover boy, did you have a nice nap?" Babalo: "Can someone drive me to the hospital?" Me: "What's wrong?" Babalo: "My mind. I feel like I'm going crazy. Everything I look at looks like blood." Sands: "You need a drink?" Babalo: "No, just a hospital. I want to book myself in the psych ward." Lakhe: "But Babalo that's for people who have lost their mind." Babalo: "I'm close to that, and I don't want to reach it. I just want to be okay again. Please." Lakhe: "Okay, I'll take you. Masambe, do you need anything." Babalo: "change of clothes maybe and toiletries." Lakhe: "Did you let your wife know?" Babalo: "She'll try to talk me out of it. Spho, please tell her once I've gone." Me: "Okay." It must be incredibly difficult to decide this type of decision. Sending yourself to the mental side of a hospital? Yuh. I'd rather just go all the way crazy then. Lakhe: "Okay, let's go."

Zama was in her kitchen cooking early supper. Khaya walked in. Khaya: "hey sweetie." he kissed her cheek. Zama: "you sound awfully cheerful. What happened?" Khaya: "Nothing. I'm just happy." Zama: "Okay. Dinner will be ready in 10." Khaya: "I'll wash my hands so long." he went to the bathroom. Zama carried on with the pots, turning down the stove to let her meal simmer. She stood cold in her spot. There was a shadow behind her she was almost afraid to turn and look. His fragrance introduced him. A sweet but rough scent that brought the smell of a freshly cut forest with wild flowers. The cologne could send knees buckling to the floor. Something expensive and enticing you wouldn't give a second thought. She couldn't avoid it anymore. She turned around with her head bowed down. Zama: "Sir." The door opened and he stepped inside. Khaya stood in the passage way and bowed his head down. Kom: "Good evening." Them: "Good evening sir." Kom: "You can commence to your places." they went to the lounge as he entered and sat down on a single chair. They sat in front of him. Kom: "So How is everything going? I'm a bit bored, nothing this place can do to entertain me." Zama: "Everything is going well sir. All is in order as you requested." Kom: "Good, that's good Komary." he looked at Khaya. Kom: "I need to leave soon. Not sure exactly when, but I'll need the usual. Passport and personal." Khaya: "Yes sir." Kom: "How is Spho? Your daughter." Khaya: "She's doing well sir." Kom: "She pregnant I see." he scratched his neck revealing his tattoo. Khaya: "Yes sir." Kom: "hmm....who's she married to?" Khaya: "A boy named Lakhe." Kom: "Lakhe..... Is he good to her?" Khaya: "Yes sir." Kom: "Mkay. As long as he's good and respectful to your child, that's all that should matter. Is he busy with anything." Khaya: "Just a distributor sir. The usual but covers with his other job." Kom: "And what is his other job?" Khaya: "CEO. GoldenCell." Kom: "That huge company? You go boy. I like that. Iss good. What about his family? They treat her well? Your child is a princess Khaya." Khaya: "Yes sir, Robert Sobukwe is the boy's father. He's harmless." Kom: "You mean Rob Sobz? The boxing champion? Hahaaa! This is funny. I got him those boys." Zama: "Lakhe and Sandile sir?" Kom: "That's the ones. Couldn't get them via the normal route. Its a pity he doesn't know who I am, he dealt with the usual personnel though. You know I don't touch what I own." they kept quiet. Kom: "How far along is she. Your daughter." Zama: "six months sir." Kom: "Perfect. Is it a boy?" Khaya: "Yes sir. Its a boy." Kom: "Even more perfect. I want you to name him King. He is a ruler, a leader, a figure they will bow down to. You hear me?" Khaya: "Yes sir, His name shall be King." Kom: "Great." Zama: "Can I dish up sir?" Kom: "I don't eat that kind of food. Anyway, I just came to tell you, I need a name. I need to go. Two days maximum. I've been here too long." he stared at the door. Kom: "You expecting someone?" Khaya: "No sir." Komander stood up, nostrils flaring. Kom: "Who did you call here!!" he demanded. Zama: "I swear, nobody sir. I'll chase them awa-" a knock interrupted. "Mama?" the door opened. Komander stared quietly and sat down. The expression on his face showed nothing but anger. Spho walked in. Me: "Hi guys. I'm not here to stay, I need to talk to dad." I stared at the guy sitting on the couch. My God. Can somebody call GQ Magazine please? Who the hell is this! I stared at him in awe. If I wasn't married and needed a sugar daddy, I'd choose this one. He was in great shape. The color of his skin a milky caramel, with pink pinched lips like he was pouting or was he mad? Either way, he looked drop dead gorgeous. His eyes dancing around and stopped in my mid-section. The corner of his mouth lifted up a little. The muscles in his face relaxed. He looked up at my face. Me: "Who's this?" he looked at my dad. "You're not going to introduce us?" Mystery man asked. Zama disappeared in the kitchen. Khaya oggled and breathed hard. I sat on the other couch. Me: "Dad?" Khaya: "My angel." he responded. Khaya: "uhm. This is, a friend of mine. Tyrone. Ty, sir, uhm, this is Spho. My daughter."

Tyrone? I'd never heard of a Tyrone before. He was staring straight at me without blinking. A sweet smile on his face. Why was he wearing a polo in this heat? Me: "its nice to meet you Bhuti Tyrone." Him: "The pleasure is all mine." Khaya: "What did you want to talk about mntanam? Its getting late." Was he chasing me out? Me: "Not much. I just wanted to apologize to you for the way I treated you." Khaya: "I understand my child." I'm not even done. Me: "Tata its more than just that. I love you dad, and sometimes I lose my cool because I share everything nawe. You don't share a single thing back. Which is why I get suspicious. I realize now, I was wrong. I should've spoken to you and the pastor. I'm sorry." Ty stared at Khaya. Khaya: "Its fine Spho, really. I understand. You're pregnant-" Me: "Please don't blame the pregnancy. The baby has nothing to do with this." Khaya: "Fine. I forgive you." Me: "Great." Ty: "You have an amazing daughter. You raised her well." Khaya: "Thank you sir." Ty: "Sir? You're funny. Let me get going. I'll call you. It was an absolute delight to meet you Spho." Me: "Thank you Mr Tyrone. Same to you." Although you barely said a word. Ty: "By all means, just call me Ty." he looked at Khaya then walked out the lounge. If that wasn't sarcastic, I don't know what was. In the kitchen. Zama was dishing up dinner. Komander stood behind her. Zama: "I'm sorry sir, I didn't know she'd show up." Kom: "Its fine. There's nothing you could've done. Spho is your child. She comes running, you open that door wide. That's what being a mother is." Zama: "Yes sir-" Kom: "Stop calling me sir. I'm not a soldier with just you. Look at me." she turned around and faced him. Her cheeks heating up. Kom: "You feeling sick?" she shook her head. He touched her cheek drawing her closer to him. Kom: "You're burning up." Zama: "Just you." he broke into dimple smile. Zama: "Please." Kom: "Khaya is your husband. You stay loyal to him. I am your boss, you stay in that lane for me. Understood?" Zama: "Yes." Kom: "Good. Mrs Ngudla, enjoy the rest of your evening." Zama: "You too." he walked out the door and was gone. Back in the lounge. Me: "Tata, I've never heard of Tyrone. Where's he been all this time?" Khaya: "We met in Cuba." Me: "Oh? I didn't even know you had friends. How long you known him?" Khaya: "Why am I being interrogated?" he snapped. Me: "I was just.....asking." I slowly got up. Me: "I should get going." Khaya: "I'll drive you." Me: "No its okay." Khaya: "Its late, the roads are slippery, you're pregnant. I'm taking you home." Me: "Its okay, I'll ask Lakhe to come fetc-" "NO!" they said together. Zama: "Just let your father drive you baby." Me: "I'm not really a baby anymo-" Khaya: "Spho." Me: "Fine tata." Why were they acting so weird? Zama: "eat first." Me: "I already ate ma. Thank you. I really should get going." I hugged her goodbye and we went to the car. My father drove quietly, I also kept my hole shut because kalok sana he didn't want to be interrogated. When we arrived at my house, he had his phone ready. Khaya: "My Uber is pulling up." I looked behind me and saw headlights. Me: "Thank you tata." Khaya: "Anything for you my angel. I love you, goodnight." Me: "Did you change your wedding ring?" I noticed when he was driving that it wasn't the same one I know. Khaya: "oh yes. We decided to spoil ourselves." With an expensive bracelet too? I mean I've been subjected to nice things now, I know the value of something just by staring at it and those items on his left wrist could buy me a Ferrari. I decided not to question it. Me: "Please text me when you're home." Khaya: "okay. Undibulisele apho." we got out the car, he jogged to his Uber I went into the house. Lakhe was standing by the door with his hands on his hips. Lakhe: "Who's that?" Me: "My dad. He insisted on bringing me. He says hi." Lakhe: "Why do you look like that? Upset? I can get ice cream." I shook my head. Me: "Just bed." Lakhe: "kwenzekke nton kokwenu Spho?" Me: "Nothing baby. I got there and they were chilling with their friend Tyrone." Sands: "Your parents have a friend?" Rob: "I thought I was their friend." Me: "Me too. And, this guy looks like a supermodel. Anyway, he eventually left. I left shortly after him." Sandile chuckled. Sands: "I mean I was shocked they had a friend, but now you're saying supermodel and I'm kind of confused. Tyrone is a boy's name, correct?" Me: "Yes, he's a man." Sands: "Then I'm no longer interested." Stella: "I am. Is he single? Was there a ring on his finger?" Me: "I didn't really check ma." I chuckled after seeing Rob's facial expression. Stella: "If you didn't see it, it wasn't there." Rob: "First of all-" Stella: "Ha.a Robert please. Yuh." she held her head. Rob: "Andik'thumanga." Lakhe: "Let's get you to bed my love." he held my arm to the bedroom. Lakhe: "foot rub?" Me: "No, just want sleep." I undressed and got into bed yawning. Lakhe: "I'll do it while you're sleeping." Oko wayeyaleziwe ngu doctor nge back and foot rub, he'll never stop. I was actually grateful because I don't want to take advantage of him. Even though I should. Lakhe: "So, this friend of your parents...Where's he been?" he massaged my feet. Me: "That's the weird thing. Tata said they met in Cuba and he was acting weird. Like ufihla something." Lakhe: "Like what?" Me: "I don't know. Maybe Tyrone isn't a friend. Maybe they didn't meet in Cuba. Something was off. They didn't even want me to leave alone. And get this," he laughed. Lakhe: "I know when you say 'get this' its about to be really spicy." Me: "It is baby, I saw on my dad's hand new jewelry. Not just your normal Sterns and American Swiss kind, oh no, this some serious hard core custom made pieces. Millions of worth. He says they decided to spoil themselves." Lakhe: "and you don't believe it?" Me: "I don't know what to believe. If anything, that jewelry would have matched Tyrone. He looks exotically beautiful, just like those pieces." Lakhe: "Sounds like you have a crush on him." Me: "I might." he smiled. Lakhe: "Maybe he bought the jewelry for them. Its no big deal." Me: "Oh but it is. Why so expensive?" Lakhe: "Maybe he's rich." Me: "Have you bought Dumi a present?" Lakhe: "Why? Is it his birthday?" a flash of panic swept his face. Me: "That's my point. You don't buy someone an expensive present just because." Lakhe: "But back to Dumi, when is his birthday? I don't even know." Me: "its in April. Relax." Lakhe: "Oh good. So let me get this straight. You're suspicious of Tyrone, your parents have suspicious expensive gifts and you're worried because?" I thought for a second. Me: "yeah I don't know why I'm worried. Its probably nothing. Let me sleep honey." he kissed my lips. Lakhe: "Good night." he went to the bathroom. I got comfortable in my spot, curled up like a ball holding my big belly then finally fell asleep. I felt like I was sinking. I tried to grab a hold of anything but I was in a pit of darkness and then it stopped. I heard breathing. Grunting. Hard. The lights switched on and they were all around. Creatures. Disgusting filthy demonic looking creatures. I hugged my stomach protectively. God, what fresh hell is this! They charged toward me all at once but hit right back to where they started. Something kept bouncing them back. A protective wall. They didn't give up. Didn't stop. As much as this invisible protective wall was around me, I wasn't sure if it would last. The look in their eyes, staring at my belly, saliva dripping from their mouths. I started praying. Something touched my arm skin and I screamed my lungs out. Hitting it with all my might. Lakhe: "SPHO!!!!!!!" he cried. I woke up sweating. Looking around me. My breathing was still labored. My hands in balls of fist. Lakhe: "what the hell?" I could not stop shaking. I jumped when I heard a knock on the door. They were here. Me: "Please. Go..." I cried. Lakhe: "What?" Me: "Don't let them take me. Please. Don't open!! They want to take me." I sobbed. "Masilakhe open this door!!! Before I break it down!!" Lakhe got out of bed. I grabbed his arm. Me: "Please!!" Lakhe: "baby, ngutata lo." Me: "No, they want to take me away. They want the baby." Rob: "M A S I L A K H E !! !!!" Lakhe: "Baby I have to open uyamazi utata will freak out. Nobody is taking you anywhere." he went to open the door. I cringed further up the bed. Far away from them. Rob: "What happened! I heard a scream." Lakhe: "I don't know. She had a nightmare." Sands: "That sounded more like Sibulele's scream." everyone kept quiet. Lakhe: "What the hell did he do to her!" he pushed them out the way. Rob held him still. Rob: "Yima nyana. You can't just barge into Sibulele's room rattling him to a scare. Something more serious is happening." Lakhe: "its that damned house! Its cursed!! Miriam has something in that house that does this!!!" Sands: "What if she's the one in the house?" Lakhe: "she's dead!!" Sands: "I believe that's the point I'm trying to make." Rob: "Let's ask Spho." Lakhe: "Tata look at her. She almost beat me to death. Whatever it is that she saw....." he looked at her shaking uncontrollably on the bed. Sands: "Fuck Fuckety Fuck Fuck Fuck. They were in contact with a demon." Lakhe: "What!!!" Sands: "Only now I realize it. I think I've read about it somewhere. It infests itself in a place, everyone who comes near it, it latches on them. Sibulele was in contact with it, he hugged Spho, it attached to her, she sleeps next to you, it latches onto you and I'm going to be at the Radisson Blu hotel if you need me. No way on gang I'm letting that thing near me." Rob: "Sandile is just stupid, there's no such thing. People have nightmares, its life." Sands: "No its not. I don't wake up beating people and screaming from my nightmares." Rob: "the thing is, you ARE the nightmare. Lakhe, talk to Spho ask her what happened." Lakhe stared at him. Lakhe: "Sandile is the expert in this topic." Sands: "she's your wife." Rob: "Go to her Lakhe." he nudged him forward. Lakhe: "Don't push me." Sands: "Chicken." Lakhe: "mxim" he sat on the edge of the bed. Lakhe: "sweetheart, I'm going to come near you okay? I'm not going to hurt you, its me, your husband." he inched closer. Lakhe: "is it okay if I touch you?" I nodded. He sat next to me and hugged me. Lakhe: "what did you see?" Me: "They're outside. They want to take me." Lakhe: "Where do they want to take you?" Me: "Home. They want to take me home."

A phone rang, a few minutes later. Sands: "I'll take it." Sandile took Lakhe's phone and answered. Sands: "Hello?" "its me. Please Lakhe, you have to come fetch me. Please." Sandile stared at Lakhe. Sands: "Babaloo? Is that you?" B: "Yes. They.. They're everywhere. Please come now! I'm going to die." he cried. Sands: "I'm coming. Stay put." he hung up. Lakhe: "What is it?" Sands: "We need to get him out of there. He's crying. He says he's going to die." Rob: "How the hell.... Masambe Sandile." they walked out. Sandile drove as fast as possible to the hospital, they went straight up to the psych ward which was locked. Rob: "We can't get in." Sands: "We have to tuta. He can't be in there alone." he looked around for a minute, thinking. Sands: "Wait in the car. I have a plan." he rushed off to a call and slipped in while the nurses were crunched down at their notes and files. He looked around and found a pair of scrubs, he quickly put on. He put on a surgical cap and mask. Only his eyes and ears were visible. Two doctors came in. Neither paying attention to their so called colleague. Sandile slipped back out walking casually to the psych ward. Nurse: "doc?" Sands: "I have a restless patient in there, I need to have a word with him before I knock off." Nurse: "Which doctor are you?" Sands: "Dr Kusile, Obviously. Are you drinking?" Nurse: "No Doctor." she opened for him. Sandile looked thoroughly through the ward. One bed was in a tangled mess. Sands: "Babaloo? Its Sandile. Where are you?" he looked under the bed and found him there. Shaking. Sands: "Shit. Come here. We're leaving." he whispered. Babaloo: "How. They won't let me out." Sands: "Where are your clothes? Get dressed. We'll see how we get out." Babaloo got dressed quickly and they went for the door. "What about me doc?" they looked behind them. Babaloo: "next time, I won't forget. I promise." Sandile looked at him. Babaloo: "That's Lunatic Luke. Don't mind him." they slipped out and took a walk down the passage. Sands: "we'll be back in a minute." he addressed the nurse. She didn't pay much attention to him. Out in the parking lot Robert was waiting anxiously. The time was 1:08am. Sands and Babaloo walked out the door and they got in the car. Sands: "let's go." he sped off instantly back to the house. The drive was quiet and fast. Once they arrived, the lights inside were on. Sands: "Looks like we gonn have one of our legendary slumber parties again. Now that the whole house is awake." they went inside the house. Spho, Lakhe, Dumi, Sibú and Hlumi were in the lounge. Stella, Vicky and Nosi probably still sleeping. Hlumi went up to hug her husband. Hlumi: "What happened." they sat down. Lakhe: "Before we get to that, Why is Sandile dressed like a surgeon?" Sands: "Let me be bhuti. It was the only way to get him out." Babalo: "Thank you Sandile. I don't know how I can thank you. What I would've done without your help and fast response." Sands: "Was it Lunatic Luke that spooked you?" Babalo: "No, he actually helped me. He stole a phone and made me call whoever I trusted to come get me. He said he saw what happened, if I didn't get out of there I wouldn't have made it till morning." Lakhe: "and what did happen Babalo?" Babalo: "Someone or something strangled me in my sleep." Lakhe: "And how sure are we that it wasn't Lunatic Luke?" Babalo: "I woke up, during the struggle for my life. And I couldn't see anything. It wasn't dark, I was supposed to have seen hands, a face, anything. Instead, I was being strangled by air." Lakhe looked at Sandile, Sands back at him. Sands: "Then what happened?" Babalo: "I tried to scream but I couldn't, my throat was in a tight grip. Luke come over and looked at me holding his Bible. He prayed, swaying it in my face. The grip started to loosen then eventually let go. The weird thing is, nobody woke up. If He hadn't seen me and came to pray.... I could've died and nobody would have known."

I had a headache by morning. None of us slept a wink after Babalo came back. Instead, we just watched TV till dawn. I was tucked in Lakhe's arms. Hlumi holding onto Babalo's who cuddled his wife. Dumi was on the couch and Sandile in the wheelchair rolling around laughing, having the time of his life. Sandile is such a child yazi. Rob also sitting watching TV. Sibú entertaining his stupid friend, hitching a hike on the back of the wheelchair. Dumi's phone rang. He looked at it then answered. Dumi: "Hello?" "Hi Dumi, ndim umama ka Zingisa. Zingi needs your help as the father of these children! She just gave birth two hours ago, the baby is early and I can't take care of the children because I have to look after her too. Find a way to fetch the kids. They have school on Monday." Dumi: "Ma, why didn't you tell me she was in labor?" She: "Zingi told me not to stress you because you're already in a difficult position. Kodwa kengoku, I'm in charge of her now, until she's out of hospital. Come fetch your kids." Dumi: "Have you named the baby?" She: "Mfana. Andinaxesha lodlala nawe mna!!! Come fetch these kids!!" she hung up.

Dumi: "Sandile, Can you drive me to the hospital and for goodness sake give me back my wheelchair!" Me: "Zingi gave birth." Dumi: "Yes, and she didn't tell me. She's in the hospital, I have to go fetch the kids too." Lakhe: "You don't want me to go get them?" Dumi: "We can go but I want to see my baby." Lakhe: "Let me take you. I'll get dressed." Sandile brought the wheelchair and helped Dumi on it. Sands: "Congratulations daddy." Dumi: "Thank you Sands. Uhm, Spho... I know this is too much to ask but, is it okay if the kids are here for a while? I'm going to need help with them and they're used to you." Me: "Definitely. Yes of course. Send Zingi my regards please. I'll come visit her later." Dumi: "Okay." he wheeled to his room. Lakhe went to his to get dressed. Vicky and Stella woke up coming to the lounge. Stella: "This is such an early bunch. You all wake up this early every morning?" Rob: "Yep." Stella: "please Robert. Not anyone was talking to you." Rob: "You slept in my bed and that's the attitude you want to bring?" Stella: "no wonder my body feels like stone. I need the spa. Spho honey, are there any good ones around?" I gave her the name and number of my favorite one. Stella: "thank you Sweetie." Me: "Anyone for breakfast?" Sands: "I'll help." we went to the kitchen and started our breakfast, first with Dumi's and Lakhe since they were heading out. Then we continued with the rest. Sands: "Spho, last night. When you were dreaming, what did you see?" dreaming? I looked at him. Me: "I didn't dream." Sands: "you don't remember waking up scared? Screaming? Hitting Lakhe?" I looked at him in the eyes. Me: "I am sure, that did not happen. Why do you ask?" he backed away slowly. Sands: "No reason." he walked out the kitchen. Huh. Isn't he just an odd ball?

It was almost 1 in the afternoon when Lakhe came back with Dumi and his children. It had been a long while since I'd seen the kids and I was super excited. Zimi was taking a nap on her father's lap Lulo was holding a rugby ball under his arm with a backpack secured on his back. He came straight to me and gave me a hug. Me: "hi Lulo. Unjani?" Lulo: "I'm fine thank you and yourself?" Private school kids and their English, Lord do help us. Me: "I'm great sweetie." he shrugged off his bag and went straight out the back to play. Me: "How is Zingi doing?" Dumi: "She was sleeping. She's stable. The birth was difficult. They had to perform an operation instead of natural. But she's going to be okay." He really did care about her. I could see it in his eyes he was really worried. I can only imagine what he was going through. Zingi was the mother of his kids, her well-being was important to him. Especially now that he couldn't walk. Me: "And the baby?" Dumi: "Still in the ICU." Me: "is everything okay?" Dumisani: "Yes, she's just a little early. I wanted to name her Zingisani, but Zingi's mother was against it. Since we've broken up and I haven't discussed the name with Zingi yet. So I opted for Yonelisa. She's so beautiful and tiny. Like a cotton ball. Just like my little Zimi." he stared at his sleeping daughter on his lap. Dumisani: "I love them so much. I cannot believe I was so stupid. How do I leave a house with such love and happiness like that?" Me: "Everyone makes mistakes Dumisani, the important thing is that we learn from them and don't repeat. Also making right what we did wrong. Everything is going to work out. Give it time." Dumisani: "I hear you." Me: "Should I take her to bed?" Dumisani: "No I just want to stare at her for a while." Me: "Okay." he went to the lounge. Lakhe was in the bedroom, I walked to him, found him sitting on the bed. Lakhe: "my love." Me: "hey, you look tired." Lakhe: "I am. I'm going to take a nap but I want us to discuss something first." Me: "What?" Lakhe: "our baby's name." Me: "Did you see Yonelisa?" Lakhe: "I did, she's gorgeous and so precious." I sat next to him. Me: "So, what were you thinking?" Lakhe: "I'm not sure. My name is Masilakhe'ikhaya. My brother is Sandile. Which is a very big coincidence. Now that, we've extended as per his name, we had a gift, Nosiphiwo." Me: "That's so beautiful baby." Lakhe: "Against all odds, Silakhile landa ikhaya lethu. Which I want my baby's name to be." Me: "That whole sentence?" Lakhe: "No, just Silakhile. Maybe our second baby can be extension, Landile." Me: "I think the correct form is Lwandile." Lakhe: "Sandile will never forgive me, it has to be either Sandile junior, or Landile once." Me: "Sandile must have his own babies and name them junior." Lakhe: "My brother is a special case baby, I've learnt the hard way to just give him what he wants." Me: "Fine, Silakhile Sobukwe it is. Quite a rare name I must say, I like it." Lakhe: "Baby Sila. Or Baby Khile." Me: "Baby khile if he's a boy. Sila if she's a girl." Lakhe: "I can't wait to have more babies and more discussions like this with you." Me: "We have to get this one out first." Lakhe: "how long should we wait to get pregnant again?" Me: "I haven't even given birth and you're already thinking about knocking me up again?" Lakhe: "I want our kids to have 2 years age difference. All four of them." Me: "FOUR??? You're trying to tell me, for the next eight years I'm going to be pregnant for four of them?" Lakhe: "Is that going to be a problem for you Miss Congeniality?" Me: "Why don't you go and get pregnant then if it's not a problem!" Lakhe: "Baby, I want a big family. A lot of kids running around. Sandile came when I was older, soon I got busy with high school and he got Nosi, then I went to University." Me: "not every two years though. We'll talk about it and see. I also want a big bunch especially because I was an only child and very lonely." Lakhe: "perfect. It's working out." he lay on his back on the bed. Lakhe: "I need some sleep." I cuddled up next to him.

Lakhe woke within the next hour. He went to the lounge where Babalo and Sandile were sitting. Lakhe: "Uphi uSibulele?" Sands: "Taking the world's longest nap in history. He went to bed same time you did." Lakhe: "I hope Hlumi is doing well?" Babalo: "She is. Catching up with her work." Sands: "Also dad is awake. He's working again." he rolled his eyes. Lakhe: "Okay." he sat down. Lakhe: "Don't you find it weird that Spho and Sibulele fell asleep around the same time and both are still sleeping?" Sands: "And they had similar nightmares that they both don't remember." Babalo: "What does that mean?" Lakhe: "I don't know what it means. It could be that its because they're blood-related." Sands: "Or blood related." Lakhe: "That's what I said." Sands: "No, you mean they're family, I mean they've got something only the two of them have." They kept quiet for a while. Stella came home from the spa with Vicky and Nosi. Sands: "Are you okay sis Vicky? Why you walking like Donald Duck?" Stella: "Her first mani-pedi darling. She will be fine. Can you make us some tea sweetie we'll be in my room." Nosi: "Okay mama." Stella and Vicky went to her room. Nosi was in the kitchen making them tea and took it to them. Babalo: "You said Spho had a nightmare?" Lakhe: "Yes. Its a pity she doesn't even know." Babalo: "What time?" Lakhe: "around midnight I guess. Few minutes before you called she'd just woken up." Babalo: "do you know for how long she was dreaming?" Lakhe: "for quite a while she was restless before she hit me. About 30 minutes I guess." Babalo: "Where did she hit you? Show me." Lakhe took off his t shirt and looked at the greenish mark on his shoulder. Lakhe: "that wasn't there before." his chest had a similar mark and his arms. Sands: "Boouuuyy, you better call Lunatic Luke. I had said before and I'm saying again, There's by no way on GANG I'm letting that demon near me!! Call Luke!!" Babalo: "Luke can't leave the hospital. He's a permanent resident there." Lakhe: "Where is his family?" he put his shirt back on. Babalo: "They died in a house fire that people say he started. So I don't know." Sands: "I think I'll take my chances with an arsonist than a demon. Thank you very much." Lakhe: "then how do we get him out?" Sands: "Leave that to me." he stood up and walked out the house. Lakhe: "have you eaten?" Babalo: "I can't get anything in. My throat still hurts from the strangle." Lakhe: "You have to find a way to eat though, and sleep." Babalo: "I'm scared of sleeping. What if it comes back to kill me?" Lakhe: "How would it have found you here? Don't worry about anything I'm going to be here, awake. I'll even get a guard to watch you sleep. If you so much as twitch, I'll be there in a second. Nothing will hurt you here, this is MY house. No demon was helping me when I bought it, so there sure as hell won't be one residing here." Babalo: "Thanks Lakhe. I don't want to take advantage of you. I don't even have real friends out there. Not even one of them can check up on me but you're offering to watch me sleep? I don't know how I can ever repay you." Lakhe: "You don't have to. This is what friends do. Just don't tell Sandile, he's going to think it applies to him as well." Babalo laughed. Lakhe: "I'm going to get you something that will help you sleep and some food. While you eat I'll be talking to the guard." Babalo: "Do you think Sandile can get Lunatic Luke out of there?" Lakhe: "If There's anything you need to know about my brother is that he can do anything he sets his mind to and he usually does. He will get him out." he went to the medical cabinet in the kitchen, taking out a pill. Making food and bringing it to the lounge. Dumi was awake as well with Zimi bouncing on his lap. Zimi: "Bhubhu!! Bhubhu!! Bhubhu!!" Lakhe: "hi my angel." he gave Babalo his tray then went to fetch Zimi. Lakhe: "Where's your big brother? He needs to eat." Dumi: "Probably in that game room. I'll fetch him." he went down the passage. Lakhe: "Ayisente princess. Look at the fairy hair." Zimi: "fery." Lakhe: "you have fairy hair." she shook her head. Zimi: "ZimZim." she corrected. Lakhe: "Princess Zimzim." she giggled. Lakhe: "Let's get you food." Dumi: "nanku omnye." he handed over Lulonke. Dumi: "Is Spho still sleeping?" Lakhe: "Yeah, do you need something?" Dumi: "No just asking. She doesn't really sleep during the day. She's probably tired." Lakhe: "Yeah. She is." he disappeared into the kitchen. 2 hours later, Sandile walked into the house. Sands: "Come in. You can't stand there forever." a frail old man stepped in the house. He was in abnormally large clothes. His cheeks caved in and eyes in dark circles. His thin gray hair barely visible. Luke was really old. Sands: "Here he is. I need some juice." he strolled to the kitchen. I woke up from my bed and wore my slippers. My nose was itching like I was about to have a cold. I needed something to block it from even starting. I walked to the kitchen, passing the living room with a strange man sitting on my couch. Don't know how many times I must tell Lakhe I don't want strangers in my house, but does he listen? Nooo, niggas just love to do their thing. Its like he enjoys seeing me shout, worse ke lo aze naye, he's just trying to kill us all. I wonder if he knows who he is, I'm going to disappoint him today and be quiet. Sibul walked in the kitchen. Sibul: "hey." he poured a glass of water and a pinch of cayenne pepper in it. Me: "hi." he gave it to me and took the pills. Sibul: "these won't work." Me: "is this safe for the baby?" Sibul: "Yes. Its fine." I drank the water. Sibul: "who's that?" Me: "Another homeless guy Lakhe has adopted. I need to get ready. I'm going to see Zingi in the hospital." Sibul: "cool." I walked out the kitchen passing the lounge again. Lakhe: "Spho, honey. This is Luke." Me: "You mean Lunatic Luke?" Sandile choked on his juice. Lakhe: "How did you know?" Me: "Who doesn't know?" Lakhe: "uhm...me." Me: "So you're trying to tell me you brought a stranger to our house? Again." Lakhe: "No." Me: "Lakhe, this guy was on the news a few years ago for setting his family house alight. They all died in there while he watched from across the street. He was taken and evaluated, found that he was mentally unstable and put under strict care in some psych ward. That's why he's called Lunatic Luke. The story was all over the news." Everyone knows the story of Lunatic Luke. I don't know which rock Lakhe lives under really. Lakhe looked at Luke. Lakhe: "Are you serious?" Luke: "I didn't set them alight. It wasn't me." Me: "Of course it wasn't." I mumbled. I wasn't going to wait till this guy had a box of matches in his hand before I start to panic. Me: "I'm going to the hospital to see Zingi."

Sunday evening Khaya and Zama got home from a dinner date. They walked into their house and switched on the lights. Zama: "Tonight was a lovely evening. Thank you Khaya. I haven't felt like this in a while." Khaya: "Its a pleasure. Sometimes we have to just let loose and enjoy the moment. We haven't done that in a long time. Have you heard from my brother Phumlani lately? I haven't been able to reach him." Zama: "No, I haven't." Khaya: "I'll have to go check on him tomorrow. I have to call boss and let him know I have a name for him. Excuse me." Zama: "Yeah, after he leaves at least we'll be able to get back to normal routine." Khaya dialed a number and listened. Khaya: "Evening sir, I apologize for disturbing. I have an identity ready for you.....Yes sir." he hung up. Zama: "So can we get to bed now? Its late...." she kissed him. Khaya: "I'd love to, but he's on his way." she sighed. Khaya: "he won't be long, just fetching these things. That's it." he kissed her again. Zama: "Fine." in a few minutes, the door opened and Komander walked in. He stood in one place. The aura of death surrounded him as he stood under the light. His beautiful face in a twisted expression. Anger was an underestimation. Something was wrong. Deadly wrong.....

Khaya and Zama stood still in their spots not knowing what to do. Zama: "Evening sir. Is everything okay?" Komander walked in and around in small circles. They waited quietly until he stopped abruptly and stared back at them. Kom: "Am I a bad person?" Khaya and Zama looked at each other. Khaya: "Why do you ask sir." Kom: "Answer me. Honestly. Am I a bad person?" Khaya: "No." Kom: "Why do you say no?" Khaya: "I don't think you're a bad person." Kom: "What qualifies me to be good then? Because if I'm not bad that means I'm good right?" silence. Kom: "So you're lying to me?" Khaya: "Sir, you're a good person. Deep down. You have many qualities that are good."

Kom: "Like what." Zama: "You give parents happiness, in the form of children. You forgive people. You buy gifts for people you like. You offer a place of safety and security. People look up to you." he looked at her. Khaya: "What happened sir?" Komander breathed silently. Zama: "whatever it is that has aggravated you, tell us, we can deal with it." Kom: "I've already handled what aggravated me. The boy, where is he." Khaya: "Sibulele lives with his sister, Spho." Kom: "I want to see him. Now." Khaya: "Yes sir." he went to the bedroom to make the call. Kom: "I'm no longer leaving the city." Zama: "Why?" Kom: "Something about this place." Zama: "Is this about Spho?" Kom: "No. Her brother." Zama: "What about him." Kom: "Don't you worry about that." Zama: "Sir-" Kom: "Told you not to call me that." Zama: "I'm sorry. Where are Spho's real parents." Kom: "Her father died, he also didn't want kids. Miriam is her mother. She fell off the wagon and let them down. How she could turn a blind eye for all those years baffles me. She had to die." Zama: "How did you...." Kom: "You lied to me for years Zama." Zama: "I didn't lie, I told you-" Kom: "You told me she was abused, you didn't tell me she was raped! I should have killed you for that, nobody has the right to hurt the children in any way!! But I loved you. Now you owe me." Zama: "I thought we sorted my punishment out years ago. I didn't lie to you." Kom: "Why did you keep quiet for that long then? What are you hiding?" Zama: "Nothing. I swear." Kom: "You know he's already dead. So, what are you still holding onto?" Zama: "I'm not holding onto anything." Kom: "I have a way of getting the truth out of you and very quickly at that. And I know Spho would make a great guest in my house. She's so sweet. Full of life. Zama, I am warning you." Khaya: "he's on his way." he walked back to them. Komander was glaring down at Zama, she was looking at the floor. Kom: "Have it your way then." Zama: "Please! She didn't do anything wrong!!" Kom: "What are you holding onto that I do not know Zama." she looked at her husband with tears in her eyes. Khaya folded his arms and stood aside. Seconds, minutes went by with silence. Kom: "You forced my hand." Zama: "I....brought him to...Miriam. I didn't know." Kom: "Brought who." Zama: "Masixole. I'd met him before Khaya, I introduced him to Miriam. I didn't know what he would d-" two strong gripping hands surrounded her neck choking the life out of her. He pinned her to the wall, growling in her face. Black lace began covering her eyes, her feet barely touching the floor. The grip got tighter. Air no longer available and she finally went limp. Komander dropped her to the floor. Kom: "Do you have chamomile tea? I need to sort out my head before this boy arrives." Khaya: "Yes sir."

Sunday evening, the two kids were fed and Dumi put them to bed in his room. Lakhe and Sandile washed the dishes. Stella and Vicky playing cards against Rob and Nosi. Sibulele in his room. So they thought. Everyone was too preoccupied to notice. Lakhe: "I think we should put Lunatic Luke on your side of the house." Sands: "Oh? So its my side that gets tossed into satan's front yard?" Lakhe: "he's not going to set anything alight." Sands: "I googled him. Spho was right, he was all over the news!!" Lakhe: "either way, we need his help. I have a feeling he can figure out what's going on or get rid of it. I can't welcome a baby in this environment." Sands: "You're right. Uphi uBabalo noHlumi?" Lakhe: "They're sleeping." he put down the dish cloth. Lakhe: "Spho can't know Luke is still here. We have to hide him." Sands: "This is not a good idea. You gonna have to deal with it because I can't lie to her, she sees right through me." Lakhe: "Just take him. She'll be back any minute." Sandile took Lunatic Luke to his side. Lakhe tidied the living room. I walked in, the house looking nice and clean. I was impressed. Me: "hi sweetheart." I kissed his lips. Lakhe: "Hey. How's Zingi?" Me: "In pain but she'll be fine. The baby is sooo beautiful. Where's the kids?" Lakhe: "Dumi tucked them in. We should get to bed too, its late." Me: "Where's everyone?" Lakhe: "Stella, Vicky, Nosi and dad are playing cards in the game room. Sandile is in his room, Sibulele too, Dumi and the kids have gone to bed. Boogile is sleeping, its just me and you." Me: "Where's Lunatic Luke?" Lakhe: "I don't know. I told him to leave." Me: "Are you sure?" I itched my nose. Lakhe: "Yes." everytime I came into the house, I had a sniffle or an itch. Must be the climate. Me: "Okay, I'm going to Sibulele for a second. I'm coming." I went to Sibulele's room. Lakhe went to his bedroom and ran a bath for his wife, adding bath salts and bubbles. He lit candles on the side. She would love this. Me: "Baby?" I came in the bathroom. Me: "Wow. This looks so enticing. But Where's my brother?" Lakhe: "I told you in his room, come bath with me." Me: "he's not there. I checked. Twice. Sandile doesn't know. Nobody does. Where is he?" Lakhe: "maybe he took a walk?" Me: "At this time of night after what happened to him?" Lakhe: "then I don't know." He could have damn well threw knives at me the way I got so angry. How could he not know!!!! I left him here! How would he just disappear!!! Lakhe: "Spho?" I yanked open the door and stormed out. Lakhe: "babe!!" he followed after me. Lakhe: "You can't go out in this dark!!" Me: "Watch me." I grabbed a club and walked to the door. Sibulele stood there and looked at me. Sibulele: "Looking for me?" Me: "Yes." I hugged him. Sibulele stared at Lakhe. Lakhe looked back at him suspiciously. Lakhe: "Where have you been?" Sibulele: "Where is Lunatic Luke?" Lakhe: "He's gone." Sibulele: "No, he's inside the house." Lakhe: "I told him to leave." he widened his eyes to signal the lie. Sibulele: "No you didn't." Lakhe: "First of all, You've been awol for a while. I told him to go." I let go of Sibulele. Me: "You smell nice. Have you eaten?" Sibulele: "Yes and thank you. I'm going to bed. I have an early day tomorrow at work." Sands: "I'm coming with you. My room is a mess." Sibú: "Goodnight Masilakhe." he kissed my forehead and walked down the passage. Lakhe just stared at him perplexed. Lakhe: "Did he just call me by my Christian name?" Me: "I'll talk to him." Lakhe: "No, don't baby. I'll be the one to talk to him. Leave him." Me: "Are you sure? He can't take a chance, you're the head of the house. It must have slipped out his mouth but he needs to know it's wrong." Lakhe: "Don't worry, I'll handle it. You and I have a bath date. Go and get ready, I'll join you in a minute." I kissed his lips and hurried to our room. Lakhe walked to Sibú's room and barged in. Lakhe: "What the fuck is wrong with you." Sibú: "With what?" Lakhe: "Firstly where do you get off challenging me? Especially in front of my wife?" Sibú: "I wasn't challenging you at all. I just don't understand why you're lying about Luke when we both know he's still here." Lakhe: "How the fuck would you know that!!!" he pushed him. Sibú: "heee, you're going to hit me because you can't tell the truth?" Lakhe: "Ndiqale nini ubangu Masilakhe kuwe kwedin? Do I need to remind you of your place?" Sibú: "No....you don't, Bhuti. My head is in a buzz" he smiled shaking his head a little. Sibú: "I apologize." he looked straight in his eye. Sibú: "Is that all, bhuti? Like I said, I have a busy day at work tomorrow." Lakhe: "You better watch your place Sibulele. Watch it very carefully." he walked out. Sandile looked at Sibú. Sands: "what's up with the two of you?" Sibú: "You should ask your brother. He's the one acting like a messiah. I really need to sleep." Sands: "where were you?" Sibú: "I went to see a friend of mine." Sands: "what friend?" Sibú: "just a friend." Sands: "a girl?" Sibú smiled. Sibú: "goodnight Sandile." Sands: "Oh my, it's a girl. Who is it?" Sibú got into bed. Sibú: "if you going to be sleeping in my room, you better be quiet." Sands: "fine." he put on the play station and played quietly. He had to watch his best friend sleep. Something very odd was happening and he had to see it.

I woke up on Monday morning, feeling extremely exhausted but I had work to do. I went to shower and came back to sit for a second. Lakhe: "where you off to so early?" Me: "Work." Lakhe: "You don't have to baby, you look tired." Me: "my team is expecting me." I got up and looked for a dress. Lakhe: "I can handle your team. Sleep some more." Me: "Go away Lakhe. I am going to work." I found a soft pink cotton bodycon dress off the shoulder with long sleeves and the length just over my knees. Lakhe: "Don't tell me you're wearing high hee-" I stared at him in warning. Lakhe: "You look stunning." I wore my white strap block heels, filled my white clutch with my essentials and wore my gown to do make up and hair. Once I was done, I took my laptop bag and clutch. Me: "Goodbye. I'll see you at the office." Lakhe: "I'm not coming in today. Can you please reschedule my meetings?" Me: "Me?" Lakhe: "Yes." Me: "That is your PA's job." Lakhe: "Why do I need a PA when I have a wife?" Oh? Wow. I walked out the door. Lakhe constantly undermined me at work. If its not taking over my meetings and presentations, he's saying such things. I'm not a PA. I worked very hard, very long to get to my position. At this point I don't have time for admin things such as these. I got in the car and drove off. My Range Rover would be arriving soon. I just could not wait. Arriving at the office, I got Sive to order me breakfast. I had a meeting with my team at 9:30 I needed to be sharp for. Our first meeting of the year. I wanted new innovative ideas. I wanted passion. Something. While I went through my sea of emails I ate the food. Sive came into my office at 8:45 panicking. Sive: "Maam, There's a Gerard Ku'che waiting in Boardroom 1 and Mr Sobz isn't here yet. They have a meeting." Me: "Tell my team to give me an hour before they start. I'll hopefully be done by then." I took my things and headed for the boardroom. I am not a PA. I am an MD. Me: "Mr Ku'che." he raised an eyebrow. Me: "Sphosenkosi Ngudla. MD, Our CEO is unavailable at the moment and I can be of assistance." he stared at my belly. Why can't men just swallow their prides and work? Do you really have to judge me for carrying a life? This was annoying. Gerard: "I was really expecting Lakhe, if he's unavailable I'll postpone." Me: "He won't be available for a while. I am in charge now I understand you're having trouble boosting your company image in a positive manner? That is my department. I may have a few ideas that might spark your interest." he listened intently as I went on with my daily bread. 30 minutes later he had a smile on his face. Gerard: "I love it. All of it. When do we start?" Me: "as soon as possible. You send me the contract, our lawyers meet, and we begin." Gerard: "You'll be hearing from me by the end of the day. Thank you Spho." we parted ways. I had my team waiting, as soon as I got in, they started. This took 3 draining hours of my life. I couldn't even finish, I had another meeting with Keyani Co then the Demol brothers. By 2pm, I was dangerously tired. I took a breather in my office and calmed down. I was satisfied with the work I had done. All 3 of Lakhe's meetings I'd done. He would be so proud. My team was done and ready for production. I started on the Gerard Ku'che project. It was exciting doing something like this, my actual job. Not really but what I originally qualified in. I believed in hard work and keeping the client happy and by the looks of things, Gerard is a man you want to be kept super happy not only was he a millionaire but he is a board member of quite a number of other companies that could bring us money. I also wanted to have an advertising department within our company. I can already imagine their workgrounds. Walls bursting with different colors. Maybe change it every season? Spring will be orange and pink, Autumn, brown and red. Winter obviously blue, silver and white. Summer would be gold, yellow and lime. Then we can see which colors boost production, or better yet which season. This is going to be awesome. I also needed something to motivate my team, their ideas depressed me. Maybe if I dangled a carrot? By 3:45 I got ready to leave the office with my things. When I looked up, Sibú was standing by the door. Me: "Hey." Sibú: "Hi, I came to drive you home." Me: "You read my mind. I'm so tired." he carried my bag. Sibú: "Why did you come to work? You married the boss, you get to relax, especially because you're carrying his baby." Me: "I needed to get out of that house. Its been almost a month. I can't deal. How was work?" Sibú: "Hectic, its the end of our financial year next month. I've got so much work everyday from now. I'm on reserve kungoku." Me: "That's why I didn't choose Accounting as a career." Sibú: "It kind of chose me." we laughed as we got into the car. He drove us home. When we arrived, I'd dozed off a bit. Sibú: "Spho, we're home." I opened my eyes and got out the car. In the house everyone was in the lounge. Vicky probably the one cooking dinner which I was grateful for. I just wanted bed. Me: "Molweni." everyone greeted. I went to my room. Lakhe was there by himself on the bed. He had a look on his face. Me: "hello." he just stared at me. Me: "What now." Lakhe: "What now? Really?" Me: "I'm coming from work, I'm tired and you're angry for no reason-" Lakhe: "No reason!!!! After you sabotaged my meetings!!!!" he roared. Me: "Sabotage?" Lakhe: "you went after MY clients! Without even consulting me!!! I told you to reschedule but nooo!!!" Me: "can-" Lakhe: "You made me look like an idiot to my clients!!! Like I had some midlife crisis and couldn't see them or I'm on holiday or some shit!!! Well You've got what you wanted Sphosenkosi!!!! They're yours!!!!" Me: "Are you done?" Lakhe: "Don't even dare try to justify yourself after what you did. You were wrong! It was not your place, yet you swooped in like a python. You don't ever listen to anything I say because unguzwilakhe wena!" he took the packed bag I didn't even notice when I came in. Me: "Where are you going?" Lakhe: "I can't stand the sight of you right now." Me: "Because of some clients? I didn't sabotage you Lakhe I helped-" he walked out the door without another word. And then? What the hell was that about?

It had been hours after Lakhe left and it was not after dinner. Everyone was oddly quiet. Stella: "He's a child." she finally concluded. We all looked at her. What was she on about? Stella: "Lakhe. I mean really, why over react over profit? You're making him money and he's mad? Childish." Where did she even hear this? Sands: "Well...." I looked at him. Sands: "You're right ma. Super childish. So I'm going to my side of the house while this tension dies down."

Me: "You're spending a lot more time there lately." Sands: "I'm renovating it."
Me: "Must be nice." I took my plate to the kitchen and washed it. After the dishes I went to my room to call Masilakhe. He kept rejecting my calls. I needed to accept that he has left and I was going to have to do life alone. I took my laptop and started my research for motivating my team. It took hours before I realized it was getting late. I got out of bed, wearing my slippers and trotted to Sandile's side. Maybe he would know where Lakhe was and maybe how I could apologize or bring him back. I walked in the dimly lit passage way and crossed over the hall then knocked a bit on the door. "Come in." a voice coughed. I entered and to my surprise, it wasn't Sandile inside. It was Lunatic Luke. WOW. So this is where they are hiding him and lying to my face? I walked back out without a word to my bedroom, I took a shower and got into bed carrying on with my work. None if it, involving Lakhe's clients since I was a python now. I did my advertising department project. Which made me happier than normal. After a few hours I dosed off waking up in the morning. I went to get ready for work, made my bed and left for the office.

Sibulele walked into his bedroom after taking his shower. Sibulele: "What is your real issue Sandile?" Sands: "With what?" Sibulele: "You're sleeping in my bedroom, I know you were standing at the bathroom door while I was showering, why are you monitoring me?" Sands: "I'm not monitoring you." Sibulele: "even when you try to be subtle, you will never fool me. I'm your best friend. So tell me what's the problem?" Sands: "You're imagining things." Sibulele: "Is it because of the kidnapping? This is when your strange behavior started. Sandile I'm okay, nobody is going to take me again. You don't need to be afraid." Sands: "Afraid? When have I ever been afraid?" Sibulele: "Well you're acting strange. I feel I need to let you know, I'll be fine." Sands: "Sibulele I don't care about that." Sibulele: "I know you do. Anyway, what are you up to today?" Sands: "I have a meeting at the hotel. I need your help with the books as well." Sibulele: "remember to bring them home tonight. Have you seen Spho?" Sands: "She left already." Sibulele: "its not even 7. Did she eat?" Sands: "No she didn't. I think she's mad." Sibulele: "Why?" Sands: "I don't know. She pretended she didn't see me when I was standing by the lounge. And she didn't take the car. She left with Uber." Sibulele exhaled and finished getting dressed. Sibulele: "I have to go." Sands: "Okay. What time will you be back?" Sibulele: "We can't possibly go through this everyday. You know what time I knock off work. I have to go." he took his bag and dashed out. Sandile waited until the car was out of the driveway then started searching the room. Nothing was out of order.

Everything perfectly in its place. Maybe a little too perfect. He walked out and found his father in the lounge. Rob: "Where is your brother?" Sands: "In his hotel room." Rob: "and what the hell is he doing there!" Sands: "His words were 'I need space'. He said he'll be there for a few days." Rob: "You tell that brother of yours to get his behind back in this house before the end of business today!!!!!" Sands: "Why am I being yelled at? What did I do?" Rob: "I am yelling because I am angry!!! He is a married man! All troubles and problems are dealt with inside the premises of his house!! I never raised him like this!!! Tell him to get back here or else!!!" Stella: "ROBERT!!!!!" she screamed. Stella: "U Y A N G X O L A!!!!!" Sands: "You know when mom speaks Xhosa, she's really serious. You are making a noise. You woke Boogie." Rob: "I don't care!!!" he grabbed his keys and walked out. Dumi appeared with his children fully dressed for school. Dumi: "I heard yelling and then felt tension." Sands: "Then you're in the right house. I feel like the only one still sane here. What do you need?" Dumi: "The kids need to get to school, me to work." Sands "aboard the Sandsmobile. Joking, we taking Spho's car because its bigger." they had breakfast and got into the car, leaving for the kids' school. Hlumi and Babalo came to the lounge already dressed. Hlumi: "Did we miss breakfast?" Babalo: "No I don't think so. Here's a note." he read it: 'Early morning. Eat Breakfast.' He showed his wife and sat down helping himself to breakfast. Babalo: "Baby, what are we going to do? We can't live off Lakhe and his family forever. We can't go back to our house either and I can't sell it because of the lunatic orchestrating horrible scenes in there. I don't think I can buy another house at this stage." Hlumi: "I know baby, and nam I don't like living off other people. How about I buy a house for us?" Babalo: "I can't let you do that." Hlumi: "I want to. You've done a lot for me already Babalo. We're married, we're partners. I'm sure I can afford a house." Babalo: "I'm not going to let you do that. I'm your husband, I'm supposed to take care of you and provide for you. Your salary is to buy yourself whatever you want and help out your parents and take yourself out with the girls. I'm not going to let you sacrifice this. I'll handle this. I just need a few days to think. We should book a hotel." Hlumi: "Is that necessary?" Babalo: "I'm not going to take advantage of Lakhe's kindness. He's been the nicest friend I've ever had and I don't want to ruin it." Hlumi: "Okay, but let him know what you've decided before we leave." Babalo: "Okay." Luke: "hello?" they looked at the second passage where Lunatic Luke appeared. Hlumi: "who's this?" she whispered. Babalo: "This is Luke baby. Hey, how are you man?" Luke: "I'm fine." he stood in the same spot. Babalo: "Are you going to join us for breakfast?" Luke: "okay." he came to sit. Luke: "I'm living on the other side now." Babalo: "Oh? That must be exciting." Luke: "No, its kind of lonely." Babalo: "sorry about that." he looked at his wife. Babalo: "How about we rent that side from Lakhe? He isn't using it anyway." Hlumi: "except that side belongs to Sandile and he'd rather let a homeless man live there before you." Babalo: "You're right." Luke: "What's wrong with your house?" Babalo: "its a murder scene." Luke: "who died there?" Babalo: "I don't know. We just arrived one day to our room in a bloody scene. Then when we came back, a note and box were waiting for us. A threat. If we sold the house, something would happen. I can't risk that." Luke: "So what are you going to do? Let someone dictate your life?" he dug in the breakfast. Babalo: "I don't even know who it is." Luke: "Then go back to your house." Babalo: "Did you not hear about the part of the murder scene?" Luke: "Its still your house. Why let something you don't know, throw you out." Babalo: "I'm not going to put my wife in danger. I am not willing." Luke: "All you have to do is believe in God Babalo. Let Him take control. If you're going to live in fear of evil you may just as well join it." Babalo: "How will God help me with this!! Not even the biggest detectives can understand what happened or why or who for that matter." Luke: "You seem to forget that God is no ordinary man. He is capable of doing things His own way. The supernatural way. If you can so easily believe in evil, why can't you believe in God and what he can do? We're talking about a God that can let a baby in a basket travel safely down the Nile river famous of crocodiles and dangerous reptiles. A God that can part a sea to let all those who believe in Him over to the other side. I could go on but you went to Sunday school, you know this. Its real life. If you want a miracle, first believe it will happen, Pray to God handing your problem over to Him and like a seed planted in soil let it be. God will take control." Babalo: "sounds like a hard gamble Luke." Luke: "you just have to have faith Babalo. You just have to have faith."

During the day I started getting extremely hungry. Sibu had brought me breakfast in the morning and I hadn't eaten since. Now it was 1pm and my appointment with the doctor was at 2. I tried Lakhe again. No response. I took my bag and requested an Uber to Greenacres. I needed a burger from Mugg n Bean then I'd go to the doctor. After that I was supposed to fetch my new Range Rover. After eating, I went to the doctor's office and waited in line for my 2 o'clock appointment. When my name was called I tried Lakhe one more time and this time I just flipped. This wasn't even about me now it was about the baby. Why would he do such a thing? I walked in the office and stared at Siyanda. This is not what I needed. Not today. Me: "Where's Paul? He's supposed to be back from vacation. I booked an appointment to see him, not you." Siya: "Wow. Hello to you to." I folded my arms still standing by the door. Siya: "Paul is only coming back next week. I only leave then." I just wanted to see my baby. I felt tears stinging at the corner of my eyes. Siya:

"What's going on Spho?" Me: "Nothing! Just help me on the bed." he stood still and stared at me. Me: "am I supposed to beg you?" Siya: "You're over reacting. You're pregnant and allowed to feel anything you want. I know its uncomfortable and you're tired and upset. But I need you to let me know what's wrong." I went to the bed attempting to climb on it. He helped me up. Siya: "Spho." he stood in front of me. His left hand touching my face. Siya: "I hate seeing you like this. Please tell me what I can do." Me: "I just want to see my baby." I burst into tears right then. I don't know why but I was so eager to see and hear my child's heartbeat. He wiped my tears. Siya: "That I can do. Lie down for me." I lay on my back and he started. Siya: "So where's Lakhe?" Me: "Not here." Siya: "Oh." I was staring at the screen waiting. Siya: "how are you?" Me: "Please let me be Siyanda. You're nice but I really want to be alone right now. Please." Siya: "Got you." my baby appeared on the screen. Siya: "There's the little butterfly kick." I was gonna cry again. The heartbeat. Oh Lord. Siya: "Want to know the gender yet?" I shook my head. Me: "I just want a video and a picture." he nodded. Siya: "everything is developing perfectly. 26 weeks done, you have 14 more to go. Are you excited?" Me: "Yeah. Can you also give me something for heartburn?" Siya: "Sure." he wiped my tummy. I sat up and got off the bed. Siya: "Spho I'm here for you. At all times. Day or night." Me: "Thank you Siyanda but I have a husband for that." Siya: "Well where is he now?" Me: "My husband's whereabouts are none of your concern. You are either my doctor or my friend. Don't step over the mark." Siya: "I am your friend, and I care!" Me: "I'm going to be late for a meeting." Siya: "Spho, I know its the hormones and I don't blame you but I can see its more than that. I've backed off but I do care." he wrote down in my file then handed it to me. Me: "Thank you. And I'm sorry for acting like a crazy lady." Siya: "You're not crazy. Stop saying that. Hell, I'd be pulling my hair out if I had to carry a human being in my belly for months. Someone who kicks me and fights me for water and food supply? You have two brains inside you and sometimes they won't be in sync. That does not mean you're crazy." then why did Lakhe leave me? Me: "Thanks Siya." I walked to fetch my meds and requested Uber for the car dealership. I arrived in 30 minutes. They were waiting for me. My blue baby was waiting for me. After signing and handing over I just stared at my beaut lovingly. Range Rover Sport. I was given my keys and I got inside it. The salesman walked me through the functions when we got done, I was dying to get home and into bed with ice cream. I drove out the dealership and straight home. I would have loved to go see my friends but I was legit too tired. This reserved energy was enough to get me home only. When I parked in the driveway, Sandile came out the front door. He tilted his head to the side. I got out the car with my bag. Sands: "Oh my God, its you!!!" Me: "Surprise, surprise." Sands: "Its beautiful!!! I love it. I mean the color is too much, but its beautiful." its too much because its not black? Me: "Thank you Sandile." I went inside and straight to the fridge for my ice cream. When I passed the lounge I greeted the family. Lakhe was also seemingly back. I got to my room, took my shower and got into bed with ice cream and work. Back in the lounge, Robert stared at Lakhe icily. Lakhe: "What?" Rob: "I ought to slap your head, boy. Yintoni ngxaki yakho!!!" Lakhe: "Tata, just because you're living in my house doesn't mean you can meddle in my marriage. You never see the wrong Spho does. Its always my fault." Rob: "I'm not taking anyone's side now!! Why would you leave the house and sleep outside in a hotel?" Lakhe: "I needed space." Rob: "In a house with over 15 bedrooms Masilakhe?" Lakhe: "Tata, let me be please." Rob: "let you be? Let you destroy your marriage? This tough guy act will not solve anything, in fact it will ruin you. You'll be left with nothing kuba kaloku wena you're Mr Man that can do everything himself." Lakhe: "Of course. By all means insult me." Rob: "I'm done talking to you Masilakhe. One of these days you will wake up without Spho or your child and you will be left with that stupid attitude. Go ahead and play with it." he got up and left the house...

Lakhe watched the TV quietly without so much as a twitch. Sands: "So what's for dinner?" Lakhe: "Why don't you ask your beloved best friend." he said flatly. Sands: "heee." he got up. Sands: "I'm going to fetch Dumi and the kids." Lakhe: "with what? A two seater?" Sands: "No I'm using the ML since it has no owner now. Spho bought a Range Rover-" Lakhe: "What!!!" Sands: "I feel like you're mad but I'm not sure why so I'm going to walk out now." he went out the house. Stella: "Why are you so mad Lakhe? Is it because Spho took your clients? So what? She's making you money." Lakhe: "Who told you that?" Stella: "Your father of course. Who else?" Lakhe: "Mama, my marriage is not going to be discussed." Stella: "but sweetie, when you're not around Spho is the-" Lakhe: "I said, this is not up for discussion!!!" he got up and went to the kitchen. Stella: "Fine. But your dad is right. Attitude will only make it worse." she yelled after him. Sibü arrived home from work. He stared darkly at Lakhe in the kitchen, taking a bottle of water and walking back out to his sister's room. Sibü: "Spho?" he knocked. Me: "Come in." Sibü stepped in and walked over to the bed. Sibü: "hey." he threw himself on the bed. Me: "hi. Rough day?" Sibü: "it keeps getting worse." Me: "Life." I put aside my laptop. I needed to nap. Sibü: "I found a PI this morning and I told him about our story. He's willing to help." Me: "okay, when does he start?" Sibü: "I was waiting for your go ahead." I nodded. Me: "well go ahead." he sent a text on his phone. Sibü: "Who's Range is that outside?" Me: "Mine." Sibü: "its gorgeous." Me: "Thank you." Sibü: "You don't seem happy." the door opened and in walked in Lakhe, he went straight to his closet. Me: "I'm okay. Just went to the doctor for a check up." Sibü: "Everything going well I hope." Me: "Yes. Siya calls it a perfect development. Butterfly kicks is the baby's new name." Sibü: "That's cute. I like it. Have you thought of a name?" Me: "Well, thought, yes. Decided, not really. I'm thinking of just a normal name without any strings to us. I don't want my baby to feel the need to live up to a difficult name." Sibü: "hmm....that's nice. I can get a baby naming book for you to go through." Me: "I'd love that." I put down the ice cream container. Sibü: "how was work today." Me: "Amazing. Yesterday I felt my team wasn't really motivated and I needed to refresh them so I stayed up half the night researching a strategy to get them to perform better. Plus, I have a new project swimming around my mind and it excites me so much." Sibü: "tell me." Me: "I can't, its top secret. Although, I'll have to sell it because I don't have a company in my name." Sibü: "Isn't GoldenCell half your company?" Me: "No. That isn't mine unfortunately." Sibü: "You can sell me your idea then. I'm sure my boss will love it." Me: "Do you have 2 million?" Sibü: "2 million blood cells, yes." I laughed out loud. Me: "you're crazy. I don't need your blood cells." I put my head on my pillow. Me: "I'm going to take a nap." Sibü: "okay. I'll make dinner so long. How does Spaghetti and mince sound?" Me: "I'm already hungry. It sounds good." Sibü: "Done." he kissed my cheek and left the room. My phone rang, disturbing me. I had half a mind of not picking up at all but I did. Me: "Yeah." Khaya: "Hi honey." Me: "hello tata Unjani?" suddenly Lakhe appeared again, opening a drawer. Khaya: "I'm fine my child. How are you?" Me: "I'm fine tata. Uphi umama?" Khaya: "uhh...she went to a church meeting." Me: "Oh." Khaya: "I just missed you, I thought I'd call and see how you're doing. Its lovely hearing your voice." Me: "Thank you tata, I miss you too. I'm back at work full time too." Khaya: "Why?" Me: "I can't sit and do nothing. I have a job tata." Khaya: "I know my angel but you're pregnant." I exhaled out the energy I was going to use to respond. Me: "I can handle it tata. Its not really that much work." Khaya: "hmmm.... How is Lakhe?" Me: "Fine." Khaya: "Is he around? Can I talk to him?" Me: "I don't know where he is actually." Khaya: "okay. Tell him I called." Me: "I will. Kiss mom for me. I love you guys." Khaya: "We love you too." I hung up. Lakhe was standing around the room. Maybe he wanted to say something. So I waited, instead he just walked out. I went back to my nap.

Sibü came to wake me up for dinner about an hour later. Sibü: "Its time to eat." I sat up. Me: "I don't really feel like eating." he sat next to me. Sibü: "Why not?" Me: "Well, I want to eat just not with the family. I feel like everyone is judging me for what I did to Lakhe and I can't take it. I mean I made a mistake. I wasn't aware that it would hurt him, if anything I thought he would be proud of me. I was going to tell him about how I handled everything and which direction to take Gerard's company. Instead I ruined it. Now he's not talking to me and the house is tense. Its just best I stay here." Sibü: "What exactly did you do?" Me: "Lakhe had said I must reschedule his meetings, I decided since I'm already in the office why don't I stand in for him. This wasn't a sabotage at all. I don't want his clients. I also didn't want them to be mad at him if he just rescheduled meetings on the last minute, to them it will feel like he has no respect for them and their time. I was just trying to avoid that. He was the one that introduced me to his associates saying when he wasn't around I was in charge. I don't know anymore." Sibü: "I hear you. I'll bring your dinner here then so we can eat together." Me: "No Sibü, you can go eat with the family. I'll be in the movie theater. I need to get my mind off this." Sibü: "Did you try talking to him?" Me: "I tried to explain and he just left. I tried calling, he rejected my calls. I don't know Sibü. I'm just really tired now. I'll leave him to his company. I'll just do my work and let everything else be because even the projects that I had in mind to grow this company will irritate him clearly. I'll just scrap them and carry on like an employee as per my contract. I thought I was trying to help." Sibü: "One thing you must understand about Lakhe, and I love him don't get me wrong, but he can't stand to see someone doing something better than him. I'll get the food." Is that what this is about? His ego? If I wasn't disappointed before I surely was now. I must step around on egg shells to make sure he is happy at work? This is upsetting. Who knew that working for your husband would be this difficult? I sat up and just as I was going to the toilet I got a phone call. Gerard Ku'che the Truecaller app stated. Where did he get my number? Me: "Hello?" Gerard: "Hi Spho, how are you?" Married, why are you calling me after office hours? I wanted to say but Me: "I'm fine thank you and yourself Mr Ku'che?" Gerard: "Dr Ku'che. I'm a PhD." OH? Lmao. Me: "I apologize. What can I do for you Dr Ku'che." Gerard: "Now I sound like braggy pants. Just call me Gerard." I was getting more and more uncomfortable with this call. Me: "Alright then, Gerard." Gerard: "Spho, I'm really impressed with your work. I spent the entire day going through projects you've directed in the past and I am impressed. I was telling my brother just now, he wants to meet with you of course. Is there by any chance you can squeeze us in tomorrow morning?" Oh crap. Me: "I'm sure Mr Lakhe Sobukwe would be available for you sir." Gerard: "I'm not asking for Lakhe, I'm asking you. Will you be able to see us?" Me: "I'll check my diary, and get back to you in two minutes Gerard. Is that okay?" Gerard: "I'll be waiting." I hung up. Me: "ahhh crap..." Sibü came in carrying a tray. Sibulele: "what now?" Me: "One of Lakhe's clients wants to meet me, bringing his brother. Do you know that family is holding a multi-million Rand empire in their name? The father is a billionaire in Saudi Arabia. I'm getting shook Sibulele." Sibulele: "Relax. This could only mean you're going to be making more money and your husband is going to hate you forever." he laughed. Sibulele: "I'm joking. Talk to him Spho. I'm sure he'd love this. It means more money for the company, more exposure." Me: "Okay. Where is he?" Sibulele: "he went for a drive." Me: "I have to call Gerard in a minute." Sibulele: "Call Gerard, let Lakhe know when he's here. Also let him know you're not challenging him, but you're supporting him. Its important." I nodded and called Gerard back. After my conversation with him I ate my food. Sibulele: "So I found a lawyer to help me with mom's house. Should we really sell it?" Me: "Yeah. If we don't, people will know nobody lives there and start doing things inside it and let's be honest, we don't even know anyone there. I don't want it to be turned into one of this drug-smoking houses." Sibulele: "you're right. But how about we rent it?" Me: "for who? Its not like we need the money." Sibulele: "its where our mom lived. Our home. I don't want us to just throw it away." Me: "we're not throwing it away if we're holding onto non-existent memories. We never lived there. We know nothing about the house. Miriam lived here, and we'll always remember her." Sibulele: "you know what? You're right. I hope we can at least find our father." Me: "me too." after our little dinner, he took the plates when Lakhe walked in. Me: "baby-" Lakhe: "I just came to fetch my laptop." Me: "Aren't you coming back to your room? Your wife? I'm sorry about Monday, I wasn't sabotaging you." he kept quiet and took his gadgets. Me: "You didn't even come to our baby appointment." Lakhe: "Did you tell me about a baby appointment or did you go see your friend." Me: "I called you Lakhe. Monday night and Tuesday morning right until I went into the doctor's room." he walked out the room. I was going to lose my mind if I dwelled on this much longer. Easier to just let him be. I opened my laptop and looked at a picture of me. This wasn't my laptop. I have a wallpaper of flowers. So Lakhe took my laptop?" I got out of bed and went after him. The car pulled out the driveway and sped off. Why the hell would he do this!!! I could feel my anger brewing from my very core being. It worked its way up like bile. I didn't even realize I had tears in my eyes. All of a sudden I just wanted to fold myself in my father's arms and cry. I had a lump in my throat no hot chocolate 'I'm sorry' could fix. I missed my father but I was a married woman and had to stick it up. I turned around sadly and walked to my bedroom. Sands: "I'm going to fucking kill him!!!" Rob: "Myeke Sandile, just check on Spho. Where is her brother?" Sands: "he's taking his evening shower. Tata uLakhe umlilisa njani uSpho emithi? Why the hell would he do that!" Rob: "Make sure Spho stops crying before he is done. I don't think any of us need to see Sibulele angry yet." Sands: "What's the point? They see each other before they sleep every night." Rob: "Then make sure she's asleep Sandile. I'll sort out Lakhe." Sandile went to the master bedroom. Sands: "Spho?" he knocked and pushed the door open. Sands: "hey you." Me: "Hi. I need to sleep, I have a long day tomorrow." Sands: "okay, do you need anything?" Me: "No." Sands: "Is the baby doing fine?" Me: "the baby is fine. Can I sleep Sandile? I know you mean well but I just want to be alone." Sandile clenched his teeth suppressing his anger toward his brother. Sands: "just shout if you need anything. Goodnight." Me: "Night." he walked out and closed the door behind him.

Wednesday morning I woke up with pain in my lower back body. I got out of bed and tried some prenatal yoga on the floor, made the bed and went to shower. When I was done, I stood in the closet looking at the pure white bodycon dress with a turtle neck and long sleeves. It would do. I got dressed and wore my maroon red block heels. Took my maroon clutch bag and loaded my necessities into it. After fixing my hair and make up, I left for the office. Stella: "I have to say I like that girl now that I know her." Nosi who had been woken up by her dad to go to college was sitting in a chair miserably. Nosi: "and why is that mom?" Stella: "I mean being married to my son isn't a joke. Lakhe is as crazy as his dad if not worse. Yet, she can still wake up and walk out looking like that. Amazing." Nosi: "Where is bhuti anyway?" Stella: "I don't know. Eat up, you're going to be late." Nosi: "aren't you driving me?" Stella: "No, your dad is. I have a hair appointment at 10." Nosi: "its not even 9." Stella: "my point exactly, I need another nap. Good luck my angel. I love you." Nosi: "Why do I have to go to school? I can be like you and marry a rich guy." her mother smiled. Stella: "I already had a degree when I married your father. And I will be damned if I let you follow a trophy wife path without having an education to fall back on. Buck up miss, and get to school. We'll have this conversation again when you've graduated." Nosi: "Fine." Stella took her tea to the bedroom. Rob appeared. Rob: "Ready?" Nosi: "yeah. Dad, does mom have a degree?" Rob: "What degree now?" Nosi: "an academic degree. What other degree would there be?" Rob: "I've never seen or heard your mother talking about any degree. She doesn't have one." Stella came out the passage holding a piece of laminated paper. Bachelor of Science. Robert was taken aback. Rob: "Where has that been all these years?" Stella: "I take pride in supporting your ego Robert, but get one thing straight, I'm not stupid." Robert swallowed and walked out. Nosi followed him to the car. Nosi: "You got served." she teased. Rob: "Just get in the car, child."

When I got to the office building, I went straight to the bathroom. I was feeling a little queasy. After getting my head back in place I went to my own office. Sibü arrived soon after, holding my breakfast. Sibü: "I hate it when you don't eat breakfast." he gave me the plastic. Me: "Thank you Sibü but I can't get out of that house fast enough." I took out the Mugg n Bean take away and I ate. Sibü: "everything okay? You were already asleep last night when I was done." Me: "Yeah, I was tired still." Sibü: "Okay, I have to get to work. Enjoy your day." Me: "you too bhuti." he walked out. After I finished my food, I looked in the mirror and made sure I looked fine. Gerard Ku'che would be arriving any minute now. I tidied my desk and soon Sive came to call me for the meeting. I went to the boardroom bumping into Lakhe at its door. He walked in, I followed after him. Me: "Good morning Dr Ku'che. This must be your brother." they looked so alike, it was scary. Gerard: "Yes. This is my brother Gerald." Me: "So Gerard and Gerald?" This was going to be more confusing than a policewoman prostitute. Gerard: "Yes, but no PhD for him." he mocked his brother. Gerald stared at him. Gerard: "Nice to see you Lakhe. All is well I hope." Lakhe: "Oh yes. Great to see you too Gerard. What can we help you with today?" WE? Gerard: "Oh, I just came to introduce my brother to Spho. CEO of Ku'che Designs. He is in love with her work." Lakhe: "Careful there buddy, that's my wife." he chuckled. Gerald: "Amazing stuff. And my wife is at her tea appointment." Gerard: "rather a tea appointment, mine is getting her intravenous injections of Glutathione. Why? I don't know. What that is? I don't know. All I know is, its juicing my money." they laughed. Wow, so this is fun. Mocking women, with a woman present. Me: "I'll leave you guys to it then." Gerard: "no, no. We came to speak to you about something. Gerald wants to make a proposal." Me: "About?" Gerald: "Well, I own a design company. I was thinking about how it would be if some of my employees teamed up with you for various projects?" Me: "You want some of your employees, to be working with me?" Gerald: "I want you to mentor them. You have great experience and a great portfolio. When I saw your work, I almost blew my brains off. What do I do to get someone like you in my company?" Lakhe: "Are you trying to steal my most valuable asset Gerald? In front of me? You're more unstable than I thought. Spho has her hands full with our company, and well, she's pregnant. As the father of this baby, her husband and her boss, I kindly decline the offer. We enjoy doing business with you both, but we know our limits." Bile brewing again. Gerald: "Spho?" Me: "I think its a wonderful idea Gerald, but my husband is right, for now its not much of a good idea." Gerald: "Alright then. I hear you. Just know, whenever you change your mind, the offer stands." Me: "Thank you. It is a pleasure meeting you sir. If you'll excuse me, I have an urgent meeting." Gerald: "Very well Mrs Sobz." we shook hands and I walked out. I took my car keys and bag, going straight to my car. I needed to breath away from him because I was too angry. So much advice on how a wife should respect her husband and always keep him happy. Keep him safe and always be obedient. No advice to men on how they should treat their wives. We aren't allowed to cry about our situations or tell friends let alone your parents. You must just be quiet and eat a sour grape alone. Sleep alone while he gallivants to God knows where two nights in a row. If I had done that, the world would stop and every single thing pointing a fire arrow at me. I drove out the parking lot into the freeway and joined the N2.

I drove as carefully as possible until I reached East London. I didn't even realize where I was going until I saw the board. I stopped at Engen garage to fill up my tank. I didn't want to think. I don't know what I was doing here, but I didn't want to think about anything. I needed peace and quiet. Some alone time with my baby. I went to Hemmingways to buy changing clothes and comfortable shoes plus toiletries and other essentials. Then I bought food. I was stuck between going to a hotel or to Dubs Nomfundo's house. She would be delighted to have me and I would be happy, laughing and probably at peace. Rather than stuck in a hotel room using a bath millions of others have used, probably had sex in it too and I was already turned off by the hotel. It would be filthy. I called Dubs and asked for directions and I drove to Mdantsane. When I arrived, she was standing at her gate with her hands on her hips holding a dish cloth in one, her eyes squinting and mouth pouting. Typical black mother stance, waiting on her child. I parked in front of the gate and got out the car. Dubs: "Tshini Spho!! Nguwe kanti lo !! Hayi mfazi." she smiled. I went to hug her. Me: "hello dubs Unjani?" Dubs: "ndiphilile mntanam. Nankuya Vuyi esiza. Kukho lamakhwenkwana kaloku, its a trouble." I chuckled waiting with her. A few women came out next door. "Molweni Nomfundo." they waved. Dubs: "hehake." she whispered and looked at me. Dubs: "Hello." she said weakly. They trotted toward us. Dubs: "Kubonwa lemoto ke nawe ume apha, Spho. Abayiqhelanga eyobulisa. Uthethe la English yakho yase America mntanam." I almost laughed. They reached us and started chatting. "Akasemhle bethuna, ngubani lo Nomfundo." Dubs: "yi-first born yam." Me: "I'm taking my bags inside ma, can I get the key for the car gate?" Dubs: "in the kitchen." she smiled. I went to fetch the key same time as Vuyi came in. After I'd parked my car inside and brought my bags and the food I bought in. We sat together in the lounge. Dubs joined us. Dubs: "Ninjani Spho?" Me: "Ndiphilile Dubs Unjani Wena?" Dubs: "Siphilile mntanam. Sinqabelene qha. Niyitye njani Christmas ne New year?" Me: "bendisekhaya mna, uLakhe ebese Japan yena esebenza, wabuya ke kodwa sahlala kunye nge New Year. Bekumandi. Kuni?" Dubs: "Oh hayi wethu, beku right. Usiswakho ebeye kwi party." I laughed. Vuyi: "hehake mama. Usekulonto?" Dubs: "Ndibalisela uSpho nje." Me: "uqala nini internship yakho?" Vuyi: "ngo February sisi." Me: "and u-excited kengoku?" Vuyi: "ewe wethu sisi. At least ndizoba busy." Me: "and uzobane experience. Uthi make sure ke usebenza kakuhle and be efficient umamele boss zakho, bazokuthanda babenokuqesha." Vuyi: "Nyani sisi?" Me: "Ewe, even if ubayi junior staff xa uqeshiwe wena uzo-register eUNISA ufunde ecaleni, uziphangelele. Gqiba kwakho ufunda ufumane diploma or degree, you'll have lots of experience and a qualification, even if abafuni ukunyunyusela any other company would find you very employable." Dubs: "And uyayazi ke uSpho Lento kuba uyi boss kweyakhe business." my heart sank. I wasn't the boss actually, just another employee who was too ambitious and needed to know her place. Me: "awubaweli ndinikhuphe dabawo. Noba siye mall, sibukeleni movies, siyotya kwi restaurant for dinner. Go shopping." Dubs: "Masiye ngomso mntanam. Okwangoku khahambe no-Dade lo. Mna ndizopheka umngqusho." she dug in her bra and gave Vuyi R100. Dubs: "nibhatale DSTV singahlali kwisthukthezi." Me: "hayi Dubs, ndizoybhatala DS its fine. Sukuzihlupha kakhulu." we gave her back her cash. I went to change into a pink loose maternity dress and white sneakers. Vuyi and I left for the mall.

Lakhe walked in his house from work. Everyone sat in the lounge staring at him. Lakhe: "No dinner tonight?" nobody responded. Lakhe: "What's going on?" Rob: "Where is Spho?" Lakhe: "How would I know? She left the office in the morning saying she had an urgent meeting." Rob: "and its almost 6, she isn't back." Lakhe: "Maybe she went to visit her parents?" Rob: "Did you call her parents and ask?" Lakhe: "Why don't you just get to the point tata?" Stella: "The point is Spho comes into this house at 15:30. She didn't today, so obviously something is wrong." Lakhe: "where is she?" Rob: "You mean you don't know where your wife is Masilakhe?" Sands: "I'm having dinner at Fez's place." he got up. Sibuyi: "I'll join you." they walked out together. Vicky: "ndisayolanda ukutya kwabantwana." Dumi: "sokulinda in the small room." they left the lounge. Rob: "I've got a dinner meeting." Stella: "Do you need company?" Rob: "you mean with your science degree that you never told me about?" Stella: "Why would I tell you about that?" Rob: "I don't know.

Maybe because we were married for over 30 years and we have a family." Stella: "What does my education have to do with raising my family?" Rob: "you had a dormant qualification all these years where you could have been working." Stella: "So this is about spending your money Robert? You're mad because I stayed at home to raise our kids?" Rob: "Its not about money!" Stella: "Then why does it bother you that I have a degree I don't use?" Nosi: "and studying for your Masters." Rob: "What?" Stella: "Nosiphiwo nobody was talking to you." Rob: "So you stayed in our marriage without contributing a thing now you're studying for a Master's degree on top of the one you've been sitting on top of? What are you planning to do with all these papers?" Stella: "Fine Robert. I see that I've inconvenienced you. I'll pay you back each and every cent I got from the divorce settlement. I'll give you back your house and cars. Since they mean more to you anyway." Rob: "I didn't say that-" Stella: "Its what you meant. You might not say it with your words, but you said it with your heart." she pressed her phone. Rob: "You can't start texting while we're talking." she put the phone to her ear. Stella: "Hi Corey. I need you to transfer the money into Robert's account. All of it.....yes my ex husband.....I know.....Just do it please.....thank you." she hung up. Rob: "You're being dramatic. You know that?" Stella: "Am I?" she put the phone back to her ear. Stella: "Benny can you change the name of the estate to Robert's? Yes I am aware he is my ex, I was the one who got divorced.....Yes.." Nosi: "Wow. Dad are you not going to do anything?" Rob: "Your mother is over reacting. There is no reason for all this admin work." Stella: "Thank you Benjamin." she hung up. Stella: "Now if you'll excuse me I'm going to change the names of your cars back to you." Rob: "I'm not taking anything back-" his phone vibrated. He checked the screen and looked back at Stella. Rob: "You're insane. This is your entire settlement!!" Stella: "since I eat your money Robert, you can have it back. All of it." Rob: "I don't want it!" Stella: "Then uzobona ba mawuyithini Robert." Rob: "Can you listen to me please?" Stella: "So you can mock me?" she got up. Rob: "I've never mocked you. I was shocked. I don't mind that you have my money, I never have. You never forced me to marry you or spend a cent on you....now that I think about it. I was the one forcing things. I'm sorry. I mispoke." Stella: "Its fine-" Rob: "What upsets me is that all this time I thought I had a wife who just wanted pampering but you're smart. You're a scientist. I could have bragged about this in my dinners." Stella: "Mxim." she went to her bedroom. Rob followed her. Rob: "Stella...." Stella: "Undiyeke!!" he closed the door behind him. Rob: "I can't accept this money because it belongs to you." Stella: "I don't want your money Robert. I gave up my life, to take care of you and your family. I have never once been unfaithful to you but you managed to fall in love with someone else and impregnate her. I stayed with you. I built with you. I left my family for you. My father never approved of you, he disowned me because of you. I had a good life before you and I left it. Today, I was after your money? I mean I can take your insults, I've lived through 3 decades with you but this specific one. I'm sorry but I can't." she took out her suitcase and started packing. Rob: "Where are you going without anything to your name?" Stella: "Right where I started. Without you." Rob: "Hayi Nokwakha, ndicela uxolo. Yhini." she continued packing. Rob: "I can't let you leave. Not like this. I made a mistake. Ufuna ndithini?" Stella: "Nothing. I want nothing to do with you." Rob: "Then let's go to the dinner together." Stella: "Is there a theme?" Rob: "its just dinner. There's no theme." Stella: "Fine then." she unpacked her suitcase again. Rob: "So you want something to do with me now?" he hid a smile. Stella: "It would be rude to turn down dinner Robert. You know that. I need to get dressed so you need to leave." Rob: "Do I have to?" Stella: "Just go Robert." Rob: "I'll help you pick a dress." Stella: "You have an ulterior motive and I don't have time for it." she looked through her clothes while he sat down on the chair smiling.

Luke sat on the couch in the lounge and stared at Lakhe. Lakhe: "Have you eaten?" Luke: "Not yet, no." Lakhe: "I'm not in the mood to cook so I'll order you a pizza." Luke: "No its okay. I just want a sandwich." Lakhe: "Well you know where the kitchen is." Luke: "Your whole family left you." Lakhe: "If you're going to tell me that I messed up, please just spare me." Luke: "I would however they've all already condemned you so its pointless. You want to talk about it?" Lakhe: "What's there to talk about?" Luke: "Just tell me your side." Lakhe: "There's nothing to tell Luke. I don't need to talk." Luke: "You may not want to but you have to. Why are you pushing people away Lakhe?" Lakhe: "I'm not talking to you." Luke: "Is it possible that you had a tough upbringing and you're feeling insecure?" Lakhe kept quiet. Luke: "Your family loves you. They would never do anything to hurt you. Your wife wants to support you, at work and at home. She had the option of throwing me out yet she didn't." Lakhe: "She had no right to take my meetings." Luke: "So you have never taken any meetings from her in the past?" Lakhe: "its different. I'm CEO." Luke: "That's the problem right there, you're not just CEO. You're husband. Your wife follows your lead. She thought it was okay because you did this before. Now she got upset and left you like you left her a few days ago. You are her reflection, so before you throw stones, make sure your house isn't made of glass." Lakhe: "I've already ruined it. My problem is that everyone takes her side no matter what." Luke: "She's pregnant and very emotional. She needs to be kept happy. I mean its not fair but its the least we as men can do to support that uncomfortable phase." Lakhe: "I do support her, but how about she supports me for a change?" Luke: "How? When you can storm out whenever you like. Lakhe, I understand it is frustrating. For the longest time, You've been in control of your own life. You never asked for permission for anything, you did as you pleased. When you got married, you had to leave that life behind. You have a family now, your wife is your equal. What you don't like, you talk to her about. Its hard I know but that's why you're the head of the house." Lakhe: "I don't even know why I'm mad. I looked at her work. Its incredible. It took me so long to be able to get used to the clients and even longer to convince them of anything. I'm not really a social person. She just swoops in and makes them bow down to her. Her ideas are original and amazing. She just" he sighed. Lakhe: "Much better at this CEO thing than me. I've been thinking maybe I should step down and let her take the reigns." Luke: "Absolutely not. That's the last thing you're going to do. That's the last thing she wants. She's not going to take your job from you. Your problem is trust issues. You have this idea that everyone you love is out to get you. That's not the case with your wife. You need to learn how to put aside your anger and talk to her. Tell her how you feel." Lakhe: "I don't go around sharing feelings Luke. I'm a man." Luke: "a lonely man I see. Look around you. This may be temporary but the more you push, you'll be left like this permanently. Why did you marry Spho? What attracted you to her?" Lakhe: "Obviously she is beautiful. She is driven. She has a wonderful heart. I wanted her to be with me so I can have a normal shot of a happy family. The way I grew up. A little more involvement though. I fell in love with her heart. I was inspired by her strength. I can look at her and just crumble. I've never felt like that in my life. The craziest thing that keeps knocking me out is that she's carrying my child. Me. Inside her womb. That's me. Something I helped create. I have to raise this child to be a better human than me and I don't know if I can. I can't be better, how can I make someone else be?" Luke: "you can't be better. You won't be. What you lack, your partner makes up for. That's why you chose her. You need to believe in that decision. She isn't trying to outdo you. Each of you have special roles to play. You need to let loose, stop panicking and let life be. You cannot possibly be a bad parent for trying your best. You're going to be fine. Find your wife, sit her down, let her know your feelings and concerns. I certainly miss doing that with mine. Don't gamble with it." Lakhe: "Thank you Luke for listening and not being judgmental." Luke: "its not my place to judge anyone for anything after what I did." Lakhe: "What did you do?" Luke: "What they accused me of." Lakhe stared at him. Lakhe: "Oh. Uhm. I don't know what to say." Luke: "I'm a murderer, I deserve to die and rot in hell, I'm sick. There's a lot you could say." Lakhe: "Why did you do it?" Luke: "Maybe right now wouldn't be the right time to talk about it. I'm going to bed."

#103 : Part 1

Lakhe and Nosi were watching TV in the lounge. Lakhe: "and who's this?" Nosi: "That's Kylie Jenner." Lakhe: "what's she famous for?" Nosi: "She has a make up empire and clothing line. Plus she's the youngest in the Kardashian/Jenner family." Lakhe: "what is a make up empire." Nosi: "Ha.a bhuti, if you're not going to watch and be quiet please go." Lakhe: "but who's that." Nosi sighed. Nosi: "Kim Kardashian West." Lakhe: "She looks like Kylie." Nosi: "That's because she's her sister." Lakhe: "she's pretty." Nosi: "Who?" Lakhe: "Kim Kardashian West." Nosi: "She is Kanye West's wife." Lakhe: "Cool. And who's that?" Nosi: "I'm done watching with you. I hate to shame you but Sandile is much better at this than you." Lakhe: "That's because Sandile is always watching television, I'm always at work. How am I supposed to know?" Stella and Rob walked in. Stella: "evening kids." Lakhe: "Now that you're coming in and I finally know this show, you look like Kris Jenner." he looked at his sister. Lakhe: "Kris is the mother right?" Nosi: "Nailed it." she high fived him. Rob: "What are you watching?" Nosi: "Keeping up with the Kardashians. How was dinner?" Rob: "It was great. We bumped into Spho's parents at the restaurant." Stella: "Her mother seemed very withdrawn. Did you talk to Spho? She must have told her mom." Lakhe: "she isn't taking my calls." Nosi: "Send a message." Lakhe took out his phone and sent a message. Rob: "Sandile is still not back?" Lakhe: "No." he looked at his phone. Rob: "At this time?" he dialed for his son. Sands: "hm?" he answered. Rob: "Uphi Sandile?" Sands: "I said I was going to Fez's place for dinner. And I'm still here." Rob: "and when are you coming back? Its late." Sands: "I'm not a teenager tata. What do you want?" Rob: "I want you both back in this house Sandile. We're not taking any risks! I'm not going to have to deal with another kidnapping. Get here!!!!" he hung up. Rob: "this child wants to give me grey hair." Stella: "Lakhe? Why are you staring at your phone like that?" Lakhe: "She isn't responding to my messages." Stella: "Give her some time. She will." Lakhe: "What time mama? Where could she be!" Stella: "you're one to talk, didn't you ignore her and miss the baby appointment?" Lakhe: "How the hell does everyone in this house know everything about my life?" Stella: "I'm going to wash my face. Goodnight everyone." she went to her bathroom, looking through the cupboard's. Rob: "What are you looking for?" Stella: "My vanishing cream." Rob: "It probably vanished." Stella: "Why are you in my bathroom Robert?" Rob: "this isn't your bathroom. Three rooms in this house use this bathroom. Two of those rooms are yours and mine, the other one is free. We have to share the bathroom." Stella: "I'm not sharing anything with you." Rob: "I just took you to an expensive restaurant for dinner." Stella: "And?" Rob: "Stella, I need to use the toilet."

Stella: "And I need to wash my face." Robert unbuckled his belt. Stella: "Robert what are you doing!" Rob: "I need the toilet." he unbuttoned his pants, zipping them down. Stella: "Stop it!!! Robert!!!!" Rob: "then get out." Stella: "I have the right to be here!" Rob: "but so do I!" Stella: "Robert you are disgusting!!! Put your pants back on." Rob: "Go." Stella: "No!" Rob: "then you leave me no choice." he pulled down his pants. She screamed. Lakhe walked in. Lakhe: "what the hell is going on? Dad!!!" he looked away. Rob: "I need the toilet. I told her to get out." Stella: "I was in here first!" Lakhe: "Good grief, mama you lived with dad for over 30 years. You've seen him naked!" Stella: "he doesn't belong to me anymore." Lakhe: "Fine, you can use my bathroom just for tonight." Stella: "I don't want to use your bathroom. Rob should use it." Rob: "I'm not going anywhere." he sat down on the toilet. Lakhe: "Oh Dad." Rob: "Was I supposed to hold it in?" Stella: "You're a ghoul!!!" she spat walking out. Lakhe followed her out. Lakhe: "Ma, just go to my bathroom." Stella: "I can't use Spho's bathroom without her here. Besides, I can't find my vanishing cream and don't you dare say it." Lakhe giggled. Lakhe: "but mama, why do you always freak out on dad?" Stella: "He's always trying to annoy me. Its in his system to make my life uncomfortable. I wouldn't be surprised if he was the one who stole my vanishing cream." Nosi: "Why do you use a vanishing cream?" she walked into the bedroom they were in. Stella: "my skin deserves to feel healthy just like I am. How was college?" Nosi: "Boring. The girls there are so superficial, I felt like killing myself." Lakhe: "you're not there for the girls, you're there to study." Stella: "What are you studying anyway? Did you decide?" Nosi: "Yes, Marketing." Lakhe: "Are you sure?" Nosi: "Its the only thing remotely interesting to me. Its fine." Stella: "What about your art people?" Nosi: "They're doing well. They have their supplies and food." Lakhe: "Do you check on them? Because they're known to use drugs and I don't want you caught up in that scandal." Nosi: "I do check up on them bhuti and I've hired a house manager to look after them." Lakhe and Stella looked at each other. Stella: "I have to say mntanam, I'm quite impressed with what you're doing for other people. Lakhe what charities do you have?" Lakhe: "I don't keep track of that, the company sorts it out." Stella: "I'm talking about personal charities. You need to give your time to others-" Lakhe: "I give all my time to this family. Now I have to give it to another family?" Stella: "its called giving back to the community." Lakhe: "if Sandile gives back, I will." Stella: "You're my baby boy and I know you'll do the right thing." Lakhe: "If that's your emotional blackmail, its really bad. You use that line on Sandile too often and he caves. I don't know what's so special being called baby boy but it doesn't affect me in the slightest." Nosi: "I'll call you with your child's name." Lakhe: "You don't even know my child's name." Nosi: "Yet." Sandile walked in. Sands: "Been looking all over for you guys. Hi ma." he sat on the bed. Lakhe: "ask him about his charities." Sands: "what's that?" Lakhe: "I rest my case." Stella: "Uphi uSibulele?" Sands: "taking his evening shower." Lakhe: "What is an evening shower, why does Sibulele do this? Since when?" Sands: "I don't know. He says it helps him sleep better." Lakhe: "You need to get him a girlfriend." Sands: "I tried. He doesn't want one. Zintle was practically offering herself and he all but laughed in her face. It was sad." Lakhe: "you sure he's not gay?" Sands: "Don't say that, I've slept next to him. I don't need that picture in my head. Where's my dad?" Lakhe: "I'm glad you say he's Your dad because after the sight I saw I'm not sure what he is anymore." Sands: "He's the one who summoned me home. What did he do?" Lakhe: "he took off his pants in front of ma and me." Sandile laughed out loud. Sands: "How did I miss this." Lakhe: "it was terrifying." Stella: "How would it be terrifying for You!" Lakhe: "I'm an old man ma, I don't need to see another man's dingaling." Sands: "You see my dingaling all the time." Nosi: "uhm, can we not have this conversation while I'm here. Thanks." Sands: "So you saw dad's dingaling too?" he laughed. Nosi: "God forbid, No." Sands: "is he high? Where is he?" he got up looking for his father. Lakhe: "so are you thinking of getting back with him?" Stella: "Absolutely not. Your father is impossible." Nosi: "but you two went to dinner." Stella: "Where did you kids grow up? Don't you know its rude to turn down dinner?" Lakhe: "even from your ex?" Stella: "Dinner has nothing to do with the company. Its about the food and looking amazing." Nosi: "So You'd eat with a hobo?" Stella: "If he can afford a R800 meal then yes." Lakhe: "So no." Robert came in the room. Stella: "did you spritz the bathroom and light the scented candles?" Rob: "No." Stella: "Why Not?" Rob: "we're not married anymore so I don't have to." Stella: "So you're just going to shit stink the entire house Robert, nobody told you to order hors d'oeuvres!!!!!" Sandile clutched his stomach laughing. Rob: "Why does it bother you so much Stella?" Stella: "You are basically impossible and I cannot stand living with you." she pegged her nose. Rob: "You know the only reason you want to come into the bathroom after me." Stella: "I'm done talking to you. And I want my money back." Rob: "You said you don't want m-" Stella: "Give it back!" Rob: "Andifuni." Stella glared at him. Stella: "I hate you." Rob: "Same. Did you tell the kids how Ryan choked on his fish and his wife's boob side slid out her blouse?" they laughed. Stella: "I told she had implants. She looks like she's smuggling cabbages." everyone laughed. Lakhe got up. Lakhe: "I'll see you guys tomorrow." Rob: "What's wrong now?" Lakhe: "Nothing. I'm tired. I have to work in the morning." Rob: "okay." Lakhe walked to his bedroom and closed the door behind him. He sat down on the bed looking at his phone. After some courage he dialed her number and listened to the ringing sound then it stopped. "hello?" his heart leaped. Lakhe: "baby?" Spho: "Is everything okay?" Lakhe: "uhm, yeah. I just miss you. I'm sorry Spho. For everything. I'm a fool. I mean, an actual idiot. I'll do anything, just tell me where you are. Please." Spho: "I don't want you where I am. I'm safe and at peace. What you did really hurt me Masilakhe, you could have said you don't like that I took your meetings. I would've apologized and made up for it. Instead you packed a bag and left our house, further not taking my calls letting me sleep worried and stressed. Then you miss our baby appointment, because I did tell you last week when you asked, you missed it on purpose trying to punish me. That was really low of you." Lakhe: "I'm sorry Spho, can I at least come over so we can talk about this?" Me: "No you can't." Lakhe: "Baby, I can't sleep here alone." Me: "you left me there alone though. So you weren't sleeping alone those nights?" Lakhe: "I was alone and miserable and angry. I couldn't sleep. Spho, I need you. Please don't do this to me right now." Spho: "you did this to yourself. Had I been there you wouldn't be talking to me. You're only lonely because you can't see me." Lakhe: "then tell me what to do to make it right." Spho: "I'm not going to breastfeed you into righting your wrongs. You'll do what you feel is appropriate." Lakhe: "How am I supposed to make things right with you when you won't tell me where you are or let me come to you. Are you coming home?" Spho: "No I'm not. I'll be staying here for a while." Lakhe: "you're punishing me?" Spho: "No I'm not, I just need to be in a peaceful environment. Non-stressful and happy. I've been in agony for weeks, I don't want to lose my baby because of stress." Lakhe: "Me too. I'm sorry I stress you." Spho: "Okay." Lakhe: "I'm going to find you though." Spho: "Lakhe please respect this. If I need you I'll call you." Lakhe: "I just want to make sure you're safe." Spho: "but I'm telling you I'm safe." Lakhe: "maybe You've been kidnapped and forced to say you're safe." Spho: "What a generous and polite kidnapper to let me be on the phone this long then. Clearly I'm in good hands." Lakhe: "Okay. I miss you. When will you be back." Spho: "boy bye." Lakhe: "Okay fine then. I love you." Spho: "I love you too." Lakhe: "I'll call you in the morning." Spho: "maybe after 10 am. I'm on holiday so I need to sleep in." Lakhe: "You never sleep in when you're with me." Spho: "because you're loud." Lakhe: "am not." Spho: "are too. You should be sleeping." Lakhe: "andithi you don't want to come home." Spho: "Poor baby. Let me sleep then." Lakhe: "Okay. I love you." Spho: "Love you too. Goodnight." Lakhe: "Goodnight." they hung up.

Thursday early morning, Khaya came into the house. Zama was cleaning. Khaya: "hey." she carried on quietly. Khaya: "For how long are you planning to ignore me? You know the last straw was at dinner last night. Why did you even come if you were going to sit there and say nothing?" she didn't respond. Khaya: "If you're mad at me for what Kom did to you then you're being crazy. You were the one keeping secrets from him knowing fully well what he's capable of. I can't just step into your conflicts with him. You know he'd kill anyone in front of his face when he's angry, why are you always making me the bad guy?" she got up and went to the bathroom. Khaya: "Zama..." after she finished washing her hands she went back to the kitchen. Khaya: "Look, I'm sorry. I don't know what you wanted me to do when I didn't even know anything. You have to learn to talk and be honest." she made the tea. Khaya: "Let me make it. Sit." she didn't move, just mechanically continued. Khaya: "Zama, we are going to have to talk either way. I am sorry, I really am but I'm never going to go against Komander for anything but my child. I need you to know that." he went to his bedroom. Zama put aside her tea and made soft porridge, making sure its runny and smooth enough to slide down her painful throat. When she was done she poured a small amount in a bowl and added milk plus sugar. A familiar smell hit her hard as a force. Her eyes almost danced with the beautiful scent. She turned around and bowed her head. Komander stared at her and walked to the lounge. Khaya appeared from the bedroom. Khaya: "Sir." Kom: "Did you see the news?" Khaya: "No sir. I just came from a shift." Kom: "They say, a psychotic killer has escaped the loony bin. The crazy piece about it is that nobody saw him leave. You know anything about that?" Khaya: "No sir." Kom: "huh." Khaya: "Is there anything important about this guy sir?" Kom: "No, there isn't. Just that he burnt a house with his wife and children in it." Khaya: "That's bad." Kom: "Of course it is. He killed children! Anyway, people are going to start ending up missing and they will think its him. He's going to cause a whole spectacle for me. I need you to find him, and take him back to that place or..." Khaya: "Yes sir?" Kom: "Let me think." he rubbed his chin. Kom: "No he's too dramatic. He can't be anywhere near me." Khaya: "Wouldn't it be better sir if they thought it was him?" Kom: "And how would that be better putting an entire city in panic? Right now, things are fine. If people go missing, its random acts of crime. If they have a name behind these crimes, a whole bucket load of snakes is going to spill. He needs to go." Khaya: "Done." Kom: "How is your daughter?" Khaya: "She's fine sir." Kom: "Good. So why is her mother acting up?" Khaya: "I'm not sure I understand sir." Kom: "She's been standing in that kitchen ever since I got here." Khaya: "she just hasn't been feeling well." Kom: "Komary come here." she walked to him. Zama: "Yes sir." her voice completely burnt and inaudible. Kom: "I don't like hurting you. You know that but if you keep lying to me. I'm going to do something about it." Zama: "Yes sir." Kom: "you may want to see a doctor for that throat." Zama: "I will sir." Kom: "Good. Let me hit the road. Let me know when you're done with this dodo guy. I won't be in the city for a while. I need to get rid of something." Khaya: "Yes sir." Komander walked out.....

Sandile knocked on Lakhe's door. No response from inside. He kept knocking. Lakhe: "What!!!" Sands: "Wow. So early?" he opened the door and walked in closing it behind him. Sands: "We have a meeting with the team in 10 minutes. Why are you still in bed?" Lakhe: "I have to be at work." Sands: "then get dressed. I'll drop you off when we're done man." Lakhe: "I can't." Sandile looked around the room. Sands: "Why not?" Lakhe: "I'm going to prison Sandile. For probably 25 years or more. I won't get to raise my child." Sands: "No. We're not having this pity party today. You can't be thinking about this right now." Lakhe: "When am I going to think about it? When I'm jail? My child is going to hate me. Spho will obviously leave me and marry some good guy. I'm going to lose my company. Its over." Sands: "Spho loves you, she won't just leave you. You need to get your mind off this, come." Lakhe got up and went to get dressed. Sands: "Did you shower? I'm not going anywhere with a man who hasn't showered." Lakhe: "Why would I get dressed if I didn't shower?" he wore his shoes. Sands: "So when is Spho coming back?" Lakhe: "I don't know. Let's move." he took his keys and they left for the warehouse. Sandile in the driver seat, Lakhe next to him. Lakhe: "uphangele Sibulele?" Sands: "I think so, I didn't see him today. He must have left early." Lakhe: "call and check." Sands: "I'm driving." Lakhe: "because I've never seen you driving 160 km per hour while texting?" Sands: "your funeral." he put the phone against his ear after dialing. Sands: "voicemail." he hung up. Lakhe: "Nx. You need to put your friend in order Sandile. This behavior isn't sliding anymore. I fucking hate it." Sands: "I hear you." they finally arrived at their warehouse and parked. Lakhe got out walking to the door. They climbed down the stairs and went into the basement. Everyone was waiting for them. Lakhe: "Is everyone here?" Sergio: "Yes G. Except Black." Black: "I'm here." he walked in carrying a body on his shoulder like a sack of potatoes. Lakhe: "What the fuck is that?" Black: "Oh its a present. For you." he dropped the person on the floor. Lakhe signaled to Sergio who removed the bag on the face. Frank stared back at them, his eyes widening. Lakhe: "Hello." Frank tried to open his mouth. Lakhe: "Black, where did you get him and why did you bring him here?" Black: "I was following him. Don't worry, nobody knows where he is. I'm supposed to be delivering a stack so they won't suspect me." Sands: "a stack of money?" Black: "No, a stack of bodies. Why would I be driving around with a stack of money?" Sands: "Why would you be driving around with a stack of bodies!!!" Black: "I just told you, I'm supposed to be delivering them." Sands: "where!!!" Black: "I can't tell you that." Lakhe: "Sandile? Would you want to take this one?" Sands: "with pleasure, but I want some time first. Black, can you deliver him somewhere for me." Black: "You're wild now. I have work to do." Sergio: "just out of curiosity, are these dead bodies or live bodies?" Black: "they're alive. Just heavily drugged. Like this one. He can't talk. Can't move, just paralyzed for about 8 hours. He can feel everything though." Sands: "Where are you taking them?" Black: "I told you I can't tell you. Now I have to leave. I have an hour to inject them again before I drop them off." Sands: "take this one with, I'll tell you where to drop him." Black: "I'll come back for him later. He's going to be numb for few more hours." he walked out. Sands: "What kind of job does he have delivering bodies?" Kyle: "My biggest guess is he's in the trafficking department." Bull: "human trafficking?" Kyle: "of course. All those people have mysteriously gone missing and are on their way to the harbor. Transported all over the world, never to be seen again." Sergio: "That's sick." Sands: "That's Komander for you. Sick." Sergio: "and kids too?" Kyle: "Komander sells everything that breathes. Probably the wealthiest criminal alive or ever to live. The sad thing is having to disguise himself because everything about him is illegal. He doesn't have a normal life like you and me." Lakhe: "How do you know so much about him?" Kyle: "My brother in Columbia works for him." Sergio: "Which department is he?" Kyle: "The butchery." Sands: "a human butchery I assume." Kyle: "Yep. They butcher humans and sell the vital organs in the black market. I heard they wanted to open one up here in Africa but they haven't chosen the country yet." Lakhe: "Okay, enough about Komander and his activities. We're here to work. Sergio, tie Frank in that corner." Sergio did as he was told. Bull rolled out the A3 paper on the table. Bull: "Our merch is arriving tomorrow with this ship, here's a layout of the harbor and how we get to it." Lakhe: "Perfect. You and Kyle will be standing here. This is going to be Sandile and me. Sibulele's right behind us here. Sergio I want you by the cars. We'll-" his phone rang. He looked at the screen and ignored it. Lakhe: "We'll be coming from this side, the security have been let known. We have only 10 minutes here for immediate cover. After that we're on our own. So we sweep as swift as possible- what the fuck is that sound!" Sands: "Its Frank. He can't talk so he's making sounds with his mouth." Lakhe: "shut him the fuck up. I can't hear myself think!!!" Sandile took duct tape and put it on Frank's mouth. Lakhe: "After we sweep this container out, we come out this way not the same route. Where you will be waiting Serg. We pack up and drive out. Please let everyone who is concerned about you know you won't be home for the rest of that evening. We can't risk driving around during the night. Once we get here, we lock up and sort out till morning. I'm going to go over this with you again-" his phone rang again. He answered. Lakhe: "I'm working!" Rob: "I don't care. Come back to this house immediately!" Lakhe: "I cant-" Rob: "You damn well can and you will!!!" he hung up. Lakhe: "I have to go. I'll be in contact Sergio. Sands, take care of that thing by the end of today. Your father is freaking out again." he walked out to the car and drove himself home. Upon arrival, his parents and his lawyers were waiting in the lounge for him. Lakhe: "What is it?" Rob: "Sit." Lakhe sat down. Lakhe: "What's going on?" Rob: "I'm going to need you to calm d-" Lakhe: "Tata, tata, don't you dare start with me. What's going on!" Rob: "Ryan just met up with the prosecutor for your murder case." Lakhe: "and what happened?" Rob: "A confession happened. Someone came forward to confess." Lakhe: "wait...what?" Rob: "You didn't kill Dez." Lakhe: "That's what I kept telling you!! Who is it!" Ryan: "They didn't let us know. They're still verifying everything in his confession. Seems as though he knows the details of the scene though." Lakhe: "So what happens now?" Ryan: "Well, when the judge has confirmed the confession the state will drop the charges against you." Quincy: "the state knows you have a lot of money, so the important thing is they don't find anything that links you to this guy, otherwise they'll say you paid him to take the rap for you." Lakhe: "I don't even know who the hell it is! Why would he just confess?" Ryan: "Quincy? Would you know something?" Quincy: "How would I know?" Ryan: "Your wife is the prosecutor man." Quincy: "We never talk about work. Or discuss the cases. We're oppositions. It would cause a lot of fights." Lakhe: "then steal her notes and photocopy." Quincy stared at him flabbergasted. Ryan: "yeah Lakhe, just because you do it doesn't mean its okay." Quincy: "or legal. I'm not trying to get a divorce either." Rob: "but aren't we supposed to be making sure that this person has no real ties to Lakhe? What if they know each other?" Ryan looked at his partner. Quincy: "I'm not stealing her notes." Ryan: "just look at them then." Quincy: "No. I'm an honest lawyer. This is below anything I've worked for all these years." Ryan: "You were ready to defend a murderer. Get off the ethical giraffe and do it!" Lakhe: "I thought we've confirmed I didn't kill Dez." Quincy: "I didn't get this far by being dishonest." Ryan: "Quincy, I'm going to threaten you until you do it." Quincy: "You promised!" Ryan: "Just do it!" Quincy: "Fine! Fine!" Ryan: "good. Now all we do is pray."

I woke up a little after 10 in the morning. I brushed my teeth and went out to the kitchen door. Dabawo was carrying a broom. Dubs: "futsek!! Hamba!! Tshin undiqhel amasimba bonanje." she was chasing a dog all around the yard. I burst out laughing. The dog squeezed himself out the gate running away. Dubs: "Tshin yazi inesibindi sozokaka apha endlinam! F'nek soloko nditshayela ub'thuv benja ndingafuyanga. Akhonto indidika indiphambanise njengo hleli nje ndikhamisile ngentseni kuba kaloku kukho imisila ehleli ijonge phezulu kwam." I couldn't stop laughing. She swept her yard. Dubs: "Hee uvukile mntanam. Vuyi usayothenga isonka." She went to stand by the gate while I boiled the water for tea then joined her. Dubs: "heee, khajonge. Hleli erhorhozelwa jonga la njana ingathi licingo eligobileyo. Ndingayazi uVuyiseka ubona ntoni kwez'nto zimdaka ebabona oobhuti bakhe banjani. YUH, mandoyiswe. Uleli njani Spho?" Me: "kamandi kakhulu dubs." Dubs: "ewe kaloku kuyathandazwa kule indlu. Akho kwamoya uzisondezayo." Me: "Yuh dabawo, ingaske ndihlale oko. Inintsi tension kulandlu." Dubs: "asoze ingabikho tension niba nintsi Spho ningathandazi. Wonke umntu uzoza neyakhe ihibili. Ubuthethile noMasilakhe?" Me: "ewe besithethile izolo before ndilale." Dubs: "kengoku umxolele?" Me: "Andiyazi wethu dabawo." Dubs: "hayi ke sisi. Nguwe wedwa umfazi ka Masilakhe. Akhomntu uzok'xelela ba uthini. Funekile ufunde uxola emtshatweni. Mthandazele umnyeni wakho ayeke ubayi 2 cents ye sylon. Awunokwenza Lento ayenzayo. Xa Uthi irongo xa eyenza kutheni izoba right isenziwa nguwe? Funeke ubeyi example pha kuye. Akuthwa suqumba, awuzongabinamsindo. Kodwa ibanomsindo phambi kwakhe umane ngomtshisa ngento eshushu ayazi irongo into ayenzileyo." I giggled. Me: "ndimtshise Dabawo?" Dubs: "umbone ba uyow'phinda na. Awuyazi amadoda ndlela abangabantwana ngayo. Mjonge ngoku ungekho uzokufekethela ingathi ngumntana oncancayo. Nanku maVuyi. Hewethu mfazi yinton le lektrik pole ubuhamba nayo." I chuckled walking to the house. Vuyi: "hehake mama. Ngu Simbu lowa ndandifunda naye." Dubs: "Yuh hayi kodwa akho ne muscles pha." Vuyi: "Khayeke torho mama." Dubs: "ungade uqumbe sana. Yi ow yakho?" Vuyi: "ayo ow yam uSimbu." Dubs: "yi mango crush yakho?" Vuyi: "mama andina crush ku Simbu." Dubs: "Ndik'bon umuncu apha ku face kaloku. Andinoyazi." Vuyi "Andiqumbanga. Ndilambile qha." they walked in the house. I made the tea for all of us. Vuyi was looking a bit upset or angry? I wasn't sure. Dubs: "ukhutyekiswe yila ow yakhe iyi giraffe." as difficult as it was, I refrained from laughing out loud. After tea, I started making breakfast. Dubs: "khanimeni ndiyovasa lomzuzu mna." she went to the bathroom. Halfway through making the food I looked over at Vuyi. Hayi man what's wrong? Me: "What's the problem Vuyiseka?" Vuyi: "Nothing sisi." her voice trembled. Me: "Vuyi. Talk to me." tears streamed down her cheeks. I don't remember how but I instantly got angry. Whoever that boy is was gonna get it. I was eyeing the broom Dubs used to hit that dog. Vuyi: "I decided to check on the guy I've been seeing before I bought bread. When I got to his room, some girl opened the door esithi uyi girlfriend yakhe. Waphakama yena wathi mandifokofe kwakhe." Dubs: "Uthi kutheni!!!" oh shit. Vuyi: "mama please." Dubs: "hayi hayi Vuyiseka!!! Ngula Simbu lo?!" Vuyi: "hayi mama, Simbu yitshom yakhe ndidibene naye endleleni. Just let it go." Dabawo already had a sjambok in her hand marching out the door. I followed after her stomping to the corner shop. Vuyi: "mama!!!" Dubs: "ukuba awundisi kulendlu. Ndiyoyifuna ndiyifumana. Hee mfana!!!!" Simbu froze looking at her approaching him. Dubs: "ihlalaphi la tshomakho." he was obviously smart because he calculated very quickly and pointed straight at a blue house without asking which friend. We marched to the blue house. Dubs knocked on the back door. A tall brown skinned slender girl opened the door. "And then?" Vuuuccu! The sjambok stung her thigh. Dubs: "uyotsho 'and then' kunyoko. Andizanga kuwe. Phume caleni ndingekak'vuni." the girl jumped aside. Dubs: "uphume wena k'lo room. Ndik'funa apha e'stage'in." she waited. The boy stayed still. Dubs: "iyow'ba yi box ye matshisi Le pozi yakho mntanam. Zincede uphume." by a flash he dashed out and I grabbed his arms before he ran. Dabawo smacked him with the sjambok. Dubs: "kowam umntana? Unye stoepin mntanam. Unesibindi som'awtisa umhlale xakuthande wena? Unganya." "Heeeey!!!!" a woman stepped out of the main house. We let go of the boy. Dubs: "Yeke. Uyintangam undilingene." Woman: "Hayi Nomfundo Uthetha ngantoni ngoku?" Dubs told her the story. Woman: "hayi kaloku umbethelani umntanam-" Dubs: "Ayinguwe wawugxotha uVuyiseka ngentseni apha uphethe umtshayelo umthuka? Ndithe uyintangam." Woman: "Ndandingayazi mos nguVuyi mna lowo-" Dubs: "Oh uyamazi namhlanje? Kudala ndahlala ndiginye kukrakra kule ndawo. Nindenzele izigigaba. Ninyile ke ngomntanam. Ndiphinde ndimbone net lo nyinyoba wakho esondele kowam, uyowmalanda emortuary. Masambe Spho." we walked out the house. Woman: "kodwa uyandifaka ezintweni Msimelelo. Yinton lento uyenzayo kwam! Yuhh!" back at our house Vuyiseka was standing in the kitchen. Dubs: "Ndiphinde net ndive ubuye kulamzi. Ndiyow'ngena kuwe." she went to her bathroom. Vuyi: "what happened?" I giggled. She laughed. Vuyi: "hayi Spho." Me: "Khahlale phantsi utye wethu." after breakfast, we bathed and got ready. When we were all done, we took our bags and left for the mall.....

Late Thursday evening. The sun was setting. A red hue lining the far horizon. The sky dimly lit preparing for the dark of night. Sandile sat on the edge of a well dug deep 12 foot grave. He dangled his legs inside the hole playing with the flashlight in his hands. Switching it on and off. "help...." a weak voice tried to scream, failing dismally. The injection had worn off. Sandile looked into the grave at him. Sands: "You tried to kill me Frank." then continued playing with his flash. Frank: "I didn't....I swear I didn't. It was never my plan to get you shot." he coughed. Sands: "Yet I got shot." Frank: "Sandile, don't do this. Please... I have a child!" Lakhe walked toward the scene and stood above the grave.

Lakhe: "I told you to wrap this up before the end of the day." Sandile looked up at him. Lakhe: "We don't want anyone finding us or him." Sands: "I don't care." he threw a stone at the grave, hitting Frank on the head. Frank: "G, please? I promis-" another stone hit his nose. Sandile chuckled. Sands: "Good shot." His whole being had changed. He didn't feel anymore. The familiar feeling of numbness taking control. He stared into the dark hole. His victim kept trying to scream, Lakhe was talking, shouting. He had blocked out all sound. Looking at the victim in the bottom of the hole, crying, shaking fed his spirit. Becoming more powerful over him. The longer he kept crying, the higher the fire in him burnt. He was at peace. Lakhe shook him. Lakhe: "Sandile!! Kill him and let's go!" Sands: "I'm not going to kill him." he stood up took the shovel. Sands: "he's just going to kill himself." he started filling the hole with soil again. Frank screamed. Lakhe: "you're going to bury him alive?" Sandile threw in another load of dirt. Frank: "Helpp!!!!" he screamed, panicking into a psychotic rage. Sandile smiled throwing in another load. Lakhe: "This is insane, I'll wait in the car." he walked away. Frank: "somebody plleeeassee help me!!!!" Sands: "you want some water?" Frank: "Sandile I swear I'll never do this again. Please, I'll leave and never come back here! Please Sandile. Think of my daughter." he pleaded. Frank: "I'll show you Komander. I promise. I know where he is." Sandile stopped and looked at him. Frank: "He's different from what you've ever seen. He will be worth sparing my life I swear." Sandile looked at the soil then back at the grave. Sands: "Why are you lying?" Frank: "I promise I'm not! I work for him! He is here." Sands: "You think I'm stupid?" Frank: "No." Sands: "Good. Now Sit still because I'm not done. We have the whole night together."

Lakhe walked into his house. Rob: "Where is your brother? I've been calling him and he's on voicemail!" Lakhe: "He's with his friend. I said I'll fetch him later. What's for dinner?" Rob: "I don't know Lakhe, where is your wife." Lakhe: "She's with your sister tata. I'm hungry, did you cook?" Rob: "did you even try getting her home? You can't just sit here and relax!" Lakhe: "Why not? She said she needed some space to breath because she's stressed and mad at me. She isn't lost." he went to the kitchen. Lakhe: "Akuphekwanga?" Rob: "Your mother went shopping with Vicky." Lakhe: "So nobody is going to cook?" Rob: "I'm sure they'll bring something." Lakhe: "Ndilambe ngoku nje tata." Rob: "Then make a sandwich Masilakhe! Goodness!" Lakhe went to his bedroom and dialed his wife's number. Spho: "Hello?" Lakhe: "Sphosenkosi ubuya nini?" Spho: "I'm fine thanks and yourself?" Lakhe: "akhomntu uphekileyo ke apha and mna I'm hungry!" Spho: "then make something to eat." Lakhe: "I'm tired!" Spho: "Are you serious?" Lakhe: "I have a wife who cooks for me. I don't need this type of stress Spho." Spho: "Your wife is on vacation. I'm at the beach right now." Lakhe: "Please come back." Spho: "No. Unless its a natural emergency, which includes someone dying. I'm not coming back for a few more days." Lakhe: "Are you serious? Spho I said I'm sorry. What do you want me to do?" Spho: "Nothing. This is a holiday for me. Nawe enjoy your space and go on a boys night out." Lakhe: "Fine. Will you be back Monday?" Spho: "No. Not Monday, look my battery is on 10%. We'll talk later." Lakhe: "My patience with you is on 10%." Spho: "Goodbye grandpa." Lakhe: "Fine." Spho: "I love you." Lakhe: "No you don't." Spho: "I do, I have to go." Lakhe: "Fine. Love you too." he hung up. Lakhe: "Natural emergency huh." he got up and walked out. Lakhe: "where are the kids?" Rob: "They went to the hospital with their dad to see Zingi and the baby. She's being discharged today." Lakhe: "Great." Rob: "You look sneaky. What are you thinking?" Lakhe: "Nothing. I'm stepping out for a min-" Rob: "Masilakhe!" Lakhe: "I'm just going to visit Babalo, maybe his wife cooked something I can eat." Rob: "Babalalo lives at Hlumi's parents' house and I know how much you hate socializing. So try again." Lakhe: "I'm going for a drive, maybe drop by the hospital for a gift for the baby." Rob: "I know you're about to do something shady." he went back to his newspaper. Lakhe drove out the yard and went to the McDonald's drive-thru. He ordered two McFeast medium meals and paid it cash then drove to the beach. He parked at the lot and stared disgustingly at the food. Lakhe: "I hope this counts as a natural emergency." he took a bite and swallowed. After finishing all the food, he threw all evidence in the nearby bin and drove back home. Stella and Vicky were finally home. Rob: "uLakhe uthe ulambile ke." Stella: "Oh my sweetie. I'll whip something up." Rob: "You can't cook." Stella: "Says who?" Rob: "Me, You've never cooked anything." Stella: "I can!" Rob: "Its okay, you're a scientist. You don't need to know everything." Stella: "Robert. I'm going to prove you wrong. I know my way around a lab, I'll know my way around the kitchen." Rob: "Nosi, please look for the number of Poison control." Nosi laughed. Stella went to the kitchen. Lakhe sat in the lounge staring at the TV. Three hours later. Stella brought dinner to the table. Rob: "I think I have an app on my phone that let's me review my will." Stella: "Funny. I cooked for my child. Lakhe?" she walked over to him. Stella: "Masilakhe!" Rob: "What's wrong with him?" Lakhe: "bucket." Rob: "What about a bucket?" Nosi went to fetch a bucket just in time for her brother to vomit in it. Rob: "Come on!!!!" Stella: "Relax! Its just vomit." she held Lakhe's head. Stella: "What did you eat baby?" Lakhe: "Nothing." She wiped the corners of his mouth. Stella: "maybe we should call a doctor. Open your mouth." he opened his mouth. Stella: "Oh My God!" Rob: "What!" Stella: "His throat looks swollen. Phone the hospital Robert!!!" Sibuh walked in. Sibuh: "What's going on?" Rob: "No time for an ambulance. Sibuh drive us to hospital. Help me carry him." Lakhe: "I can.....walk." Rob: "You can barely speak." he pulled his son up carrying him to the bigger car. Rob: "Call his wife Stella." they drove to the hospital. Rob looked for Khaya when they got there. Khaya: "Robert, hi. What are you doing here?" Rob: "Lakhe. His throat is swollen. He was throwing up. Can you help him?" Khaya: "Bring him this side." they followed him to a room, letting Lakhe lay on the hospital bed. Khaya examined him. Khaya: "What were you eating? Where is Spho?" Rob: "I'm not sure. Is he going to be okay?" Khaya: "This looks like he had something he's severely allergic to. Wait here." he walked out. Rob: "You're stupid. You know that?" he dialed a number and put the phone against his ear. Rob: "Spho? Hi angel. Lakhe is in the hospital. It doesn't look good..... Yes, you can drive up in the morning. Its too late now. Okay mntanam." he hung up. Rob: "That's exactly what you wanted, wasn't it?" Lakhe stuck his tongue out. Rob: "You're a damn psychopath." he sat down on the chair. Khaya came back in. Khaya: "Can you talk?" Lakhe shook his head. Khaya: "I see. Look, we need to pump out your stomach, because the more it stays in your stomach, the worse your condition becomes. The next few hours will be painful. Try and calm down. We're moving you in two minutes." he spoke to another doctor outside. Khaya: "Great, let's go. Robert you stay here and fill out his forms. We'll be back soon." he wheeled the bed out.

By 6am on Friday morning I was driving out of East London. I had barely slept properly. How does someone just land in hospital when he was fine a few hours ago? I arrived in PE just after 9 in the morning. I parked in the hospital visitors lot and went in. I met with my father at the entrance and he walked me to his room. Khaya: "Where were you?" Me: "I was in East London tata. On holiday." Khaya: "Seems as though Lakhe didn't know that." Me: "How is he?" Khaya: "You can tell me if There's something wrong." Me: "Nothing is wrong tata. I just needed to breath. He knows." we went into the hospital room. Lakhe was asleep in his bed. Khaya: "he is not allowed to talk for the next 48 hours. His throat was swollen from inside and it needs to go down first. It could have damaged his voice box." I sat down on the chair holding his hand. Me: "What happened?" Khaya: "Severe allergy. He must have swallowed something. Its a pity he can't remember what." I felt so guilty. Why did I leave? He would have never gotten sick if I'd just stayed put. Khaya: "I'll give you a minute." he walked out. Me: "Pumpkin?" I kissed his hand. He slowly opened his eyes. Me: "hey you." he smiled. Me: "My dad says you're not allowed to talk for two days." he nodded. Me: "he put you on some heavy drugs ne?" he nodded again. Me: "I'm sorry my angel. I'm not leaving you again okay?" I hugged him. His parents walked in. Stella: "Hi Spho." Me:

"Molweni ma." I'd never in my life felt more like shit. Rob: "What did the doctor say?" Me: "he's not allowed to talk for two days. What did he eat?" Stella: "Nothing. I last saw him at breakfast. Robert what did you feed the child?" Rob: "Why on earth would I poison my son?" Lakhe touched my tummy and looked up at me. Me: "She's glad to know you're still alive. We must find out what you ate so that we know to avoid it. I'm beginning to think you're allergic to everything now." he shook his head trying to open his mouth. Me: "No. Close that mouth. Here's a notepad and pen." I dug through my bag and gave him paper and a pen. He wrote down: 'I missed you.' Me: "I missed you too my perfect angel." I kissed his hand. He looked at his dad smiling. Rob: "Wow." Stella: "I'm getting something to drink. Would you like anything Spho?" I hadn't eaten since yesterday. Me: "Yes. Let me come with you. I'll be back just now okay?" Lakhe nodded. Stella and I walked out the room to the cafe. Rob: "You would rather die than be patient? You're more unstable than Sandile Masilakhe." Lakhe wrote down : 'Leave me alone.' Rob: "Leave you al- You almost went into a coma!! We couldn't sleep! Your mother was worried sick! Why would you do that!" Lakhe scribbled again. Lakhe: 'I had my reasons.' Rob: "You could have just drove to East London then!" Lakhe: 'Spho would get mad.' He wrote. Rob: "I'm telling her. She's already blaming herself for this." Lakhe: 'Don't you dare!' Rob: "I will tell her." Lakhe: 'I'll tell mom your secret too.' Rob: "You can't even talk." Lakhe: 'I can write.' Rob: "I'll break your hands Masilakhe." Lakhe: 'Then leave me alone and let me be loved by my wife please.' Rob: "Mxim." Lakhe wrote on his paper again: 'Call Sandile for me, tell him to come here. I want to talk to him.' Rob: "How are you going to talk to him?" Lakhe glared at him. Robert went to call Sandile. Stella and I came back from the cafe carrying my sandwich and juice. Me: "Sthandwasam. Do you want anything?" he shook his head then wrote down. Lakhe: 'just you in my arms.' Me: "awww. I'm never letting you out of my sight again my little baby." I hugged him. Robert stared daggers at him. Lakhe squinted his eyes back at him. Me: "My dad says you have to stay here. They want to monitor you overnight." he shook his head. Rob: "Maybe he should stay a week, just to be safe." Lakhe scribbled down quickly: 'Can't stay here alone baby, please. Take me home.' Me: "I'll see what I can do sweetie pie ." Lakhe: 'promise?' Me: "I promise. Let me go find your father in law." I walked out the room. Rob: "I never raised you as a conniving liar." Stella: "Robert!!" Rob: "You don't even know what he did." Stella: "What did he do?" Lakhe pressed the panic button. Robert stared at him. Rob: "You really think that scares me?" The nurse walked in. Lakhe wrote down: 'I don't want him here.' The nurse looked at Robert. Rob: "the truth will come out Masilakhe. I'll be waiting for you at home." he walked out. Stella: "What's going on between your father and you?" Lakhe shrugged. Sandile and Sibuh walked in. Sands:

"heyoo." Stella: "he's not allowed to talk for two days. Don't make him speak! I'm going to look for Spho." she walked out. Sands: "wassup." he opened his packet of Lays. Sibü: "You're not allowed to eat that here." Sands: "I don't care. I'm hungry." Lakhe scribbled on his paper. Lakhe: 'We still on tonight. Our merch arrives at 11pm. We must be there 15 minutes earlier to go over our plan. So from, 11 to 11:09pm we'll be covered. We should be in our cars by 11:10pm and disappear. Sandile, you'll be giving out orders on my behalf. Do you remember the plan I laid out yesterday?' Sands: "Yes." Lakhe: 'Perfect. We leave the house at 10 tonight. Remember we only come back in the morning. Remind the boys.' Sands: "Will do. So why can't you talk anyway?" Lakhe: 'Fuck You. And take this paper, burn it somewhere outside.' He tore out the paper and gave it to him. Sandile shoved it in his pocket. Sibü: "Your file here says allergies." he read the board. Sands: "Oh my God, you didn't." Lakhe showed him the middle finger. Sands: "I don't know where Spho found you but really she could have done so much better. You're a piece of shit." Lakhe: 'I am not. I'm a delight and I plan to prove it.' He wrote Sands: "You just tried to kill yourself for attention." Lakhe: 'I didn't. I was hungry. What was I supposed to do? Anyway, I want to surprise Spho.' Sibü: "What if she finds out you lied?" Lakhe: 'She better fucking not Sibulele.' He tore off the paper giving it to him. Sibü: "I won't say anything. You need to trust me. Although I have something else to discuss with her." Sands: "One of your private conversations again." Sibü: "Not really private. We don't have private conversations." Sands: "So what is the discussion about." Sibü: "Well. When we went to our mother's house to pack her things, we found a note that stated that someone else is our father, not the guy who raised Spho. This other guy was scared of raising kids, he said we made him weak and we would destroy his life. So he left her with us. Now we want to find out who he is. Spho and I decided to get a PI, and the guy has a bit of information." Sands: "Are you sure you want to find the guy who didn't want you?" Sibü: "we're grown now. How could we possibly ruin his life?" Sands: "Man, in my opinion Robert is my dad. The guy and woman who made me don't exist and I'd never even try to look for them because they abandoned me. I grew up in an orphanage for the first 5 years of my life. If Robert hadn't come fetch me and make me his, I would've suffered. So I don't want to know those ugly people." Lakhe showed Sibü what he wrote down. 'Good Luck. Hope it goes welll.' Sibü: "Thank you bhuti." Sands: "I think its a terrible idea. What if he's a bum who wants to suck you dry?" Sibü: "I've never had an active father in my life Sandile, Can I just take my chances?" Sands: "Fine, I'm being a Lakhe. I give you my blessings." he looked at his brother. Sands: "I've renamed the word ass with your name." Lakhe stuck his tongue out. I came back to the room with his discharge papers. Me: "I managed to twist dad's arm to let you go but I have to keep a very close eye on you. And we have to come back here in the morning for a check up. Hi guys." Sands: "Hey you. You look fabulous." Me: "Thank you Sands." Sands: "I really like your jersey." Me: "its a maternity poncho." Sands: "I think it would attract a more suitable husband." Lakhe kicked him. Me: "That's sweet of you Sandile." I filled in the form. Sands: "What made you marry my brother?" What was up with this one today? Sibü: "Sandile." Sands: "Just curious." Me: "I fell in love with him Sandile. Why do you ask?" Sands: "I thought it was for the baby." I read what Lakhe was writing. 'Chase him out.' I chuckled. My father walked in carrying a sleeping child. Khaya: "everything still okay here?" Me: "Who's that?" Khaya: "One of my patients. He was in a car accident. His mother didn't make it." my heart broke. He looked 4 years in age. His arm was broken and in a cast. I stood up. Lakhe held my arm. Me: "What is he going to do?" Khaya: "We are trying to get hold of other relatives. Until then I have to hold him, he is scared of anyone else." Sands: "What about his father?" Khaya: "I don't know any more information but we'll find him. Anyway, once you're done with the form, let me know so I can check him one more time before you leave." Me: "Okay." he left the room. Me: "Why did you stop me." Sands: "he says you get attached to everything you touch." Sibü: "and it drives him crazy." Me: "I do not!" Lakhe picked up the vase. Sands: "its actually nice talking on your behalf." I took the vase from Lakhe's tight grip. I finally finished up with these endless papers after about 10 minutes. Me: "its time to go home. I'm going to find dad so we can leave." Khaya: "here I am. Bamba apha Sibü." he gave him the sleeping toddler. I wanted to hold the child and comfort him. How does it feel not having a mom to hug you anymore? I still have Zama and my dad. This baby had no one. Yet. I stepped closer to him, Lakhe held my hand again. Really? Me: "I just want to hug him." he shook his head in disapproval. Me: "Name 1 thing I've ever been attached to after touching?" Sands: "Boogile, Lakhe, hot chocolate." Khaya: "a hug couldn't do no harm." Lakhe wrote down furiously: 'It will do a lot of harm. Sphe is in her nesting stage, she is going to be attached.' Me: "fine." I sat down folding my arms. My heart was really aching. Sands: "Stay strong." Khaya: "and we're done. I need you here at 8am tomorrow. Come here little fella." he took his foster toddler. He had woken up now, his eyes big and brown. Khaya: "Enjoy your day guys." he walked out. Stella came in holding a cup of coffee. Stella: "we're leaving already?" Me: "Yes ma. Can you get dressed by yourself honey?" he shook his head. Sandile folded his arms huffing. Sibü: "I'll help." Lakhe stared at him sarcastically. Sibü: "Oh. Sorry." I dressed Lakhe in his clothes and we got ready to leave. Sands: "What a lucky man you are Lakhe. I'd certainly fake a sickness for this type of treatment." Sibü: "You're being a Lakhe." Lakhe gave Sandile a piece of paper. Sandile read and laughed. 'No longer allowed in my house.' Sibü took the bag and walked out to the car with his bestie. After we double checked everything we walked to find my dad. We needed a write up of Lakhe's diet for the next two days. I held his hand walking down the passage. We went up a floor and found my dad in front of the entrance. The man I've seen before in his house standing with him. What was his name again? They both stared at us coming. Me: "Hello. Its nice to see you again." he beamed into a contagious smile. His whiskey brown eyes dancing around. His teeth perfectly aligned and bright as diamonds. Tyrone was his name! Ty: "The pleasure is all mine."

I just stared at him in awe. How was he even allowed to roam the earth? He looked extra gorgeous today. I wasn't sure if it was the lighting or what but Good God, he looked like an angel. His eyes looked like they were shiny brown gem stones. Khaya: "So uhm, what's wrong Spho? Did you need anything?" Me: "Oh yes dad, What is Lakhe allowed to eat? I have to be prepared when we get home." Khaya: "I'll write you a list mntanam. Uhm, Tyrone this is Masilakhe, Spho's husband." Ty: "Is this the lucky guy? I was beginning to think she was single." Lakhe smiled. I could tell it was not a friendly smile. He was being polite because he couldn't really voice out a smart remark. Me: "This is also my mother in law, Stella." Stella: "Wow. Look at your eyes." she shook his hand. Ty: "Oh...I can't." she laughed. Stella: "I'm Stella." Ty: "Tyrone. Its a pleasure." he kissed her hand. Stella: "Is this the man you told us about Spho?" I shook my head immediately. Stella: "Yes you did. Remember you said he looked like a supermodel?" Tyrone laughed out loud. Open up Earth. Please let me in!!!! Me: "I don't remember those exact words ma. Its time to get Lakhe home. Please text me as soon as you can dad." Khaya: "sure honey." Ty: "Oh now wait, I'm still getting used to the compliments." Khaya: "I thought your flight was in two hours." Ty: "You didn't even take me to dinner and I'm already being chased away? Some friend you are." Khaya: "I have to take care of Christian until his uncle gets here. They're flying in from Nigeria." Ty: "I'll take care of Christian." he took the child into his arms. Little Christian snuggled up in his chest and fisted his shirt. Pullinh at my heart strings. Stella: "Why don't you come to dinner at our house?" Lakhe stared at his mother clearly shocked. Khaya: "He has a flight in two hours." Ty: "Its rude to turn down a dinner Khaya." Stella: "Finally somebody gets it!!" Ty: "However I'll have to postpone ma'am, I hope the offer stands until I come back?" Stella: "Most definitely. I'll have to hold you to your word." Me: "It was lovely meeting you again Tyrone." Ty: "Oh Spho, seeing You makes my whole day. Thank you." Me: "You're welcome. Bye dad. Let's get moving sweetie." we left the hospital. Sandile and Sibiu were waiting by their car.

Sands: "What took you guys so long?" Stella: "Mntanam, I just met your stepdad. You would love him." Sands: "Wait, what? Lakhe?" Lakhe shrugged.

Sands: "What stepdad?" Stella: "Don't panic my angel. He is a gentleman. See you at home." she got into my backseat. Sands: "We're going to talk about this the minute we get home!" Lakhe was in my passenger. I got in the driver. I drove out and straight home. Sandile followed behind. Lakhe wrote on his notepad. 'Why don't you come to dinner at our house? OUR house? Really mama?' He showed his mother. Stella: "What was I supposed to do? Not invite him?" Lakhe scribbled down furiously. Lakhe: 'YOU DON'T EVEN KNOW HIM. And can I add that you're still living with your ex husband? My DAD. How do you even begin to invite a man over for dinner? Without even consulting ME!!!' Stella: "Its not like I asked for his hand in marriage Lakhe, the fact that I invited him to the house means I'm not hiding any agenda. This is Spho's friend obviously." Me: "He's as old as my dad, so no." Stella: "Well I apologize for being polite. The next time someone asks for dinner I'll say no and probably go to hell." Lakhe turned around and stared at her long and hard then he wrote down. Lakhe: 'Do not try and make me feel guilty for anything. He's not homeless and he's not our friend.' We finally arrived at home. Soon after, Sandile pulled up too. We all went inside and I took Lakhe to bed. Me: "We need to get you into a bath my sweetie pie. Here's the list from dad. I'll make you food once we're done okay?" he nodded, smiling sweetly. I ran his bath and he got in. After bathing him, took him to bed and massaged his chest and stomach. He kept flinching. Me: "Still sore?" he nodded. Me: "Sorry baby." he took his cellphone and started writing in the memopad. Lakhe: 'I don't like that guy.' Me: "Which guy?" Lakhe: 'Tyrone. He looks too perfect. His entire face creeps me out. Its as though he was an angel that got kicked out of heaven by God. Do you think its possible?' I laughed really hard. Me: "You cannot be serious." but the look on his face was very serious. Lakhe: 'Spho, I have a bad feeling about him and the minute he held Christian, my heart tore a little, I can't lie.' Me: "I thought I was the one attached to everything." Lakhe: 'Its not about that, There's just something weird about the guy. Nobody looks that good. I hate to admit this but I would be terrified to see him at night. What does he do?' Me: "I never asked actually." Lakhe: 'What day is it?' Me: "Friday. Why?" Lakhe: 'I don't want Christian near him. Nigeria is too far. Call your dad, I'll get a judge to grant temporary foster care for him until his uncle checks out and can take care of him.' Me: "I'm not going to do that. Dad knows what he's doing. We can't interfere." Lakhe: 'This is a child Spho. A small life that can't defend itself.' Me: "He has dad and an uncle on his way. Why are you freaking out?" he got up and got dressed. Me: "Lakhe. You can't just decide to foster a child. I'm pregnant!" he grabbed his keys and showed me what he typed. Lakhe: 'I love you Spho but I'll never forgive myself if something bad were to happen to an innocent child. Please?' Me: "fine. I'll call him but I can't promise anything." I decided a video call might work better. He might be busy but I wanted to look in his eye. I had to convince him before Lakhe went crazy. Like he hasn't gotten crazy enough. He went from cold, detached and uninterested to warm, loving caregiver in a second. It was not like him at all. The video rang for a while before a face popped up in the screen. Khaya: "Hi baby did you get my message?" Me: "Yes dad. Uhm, are you busy?" Khaya: "kind of. Why?" Me: "then I'll be quick. What would you think if we took care of Chris until his uncle arrived? Lakhe says its okay and we have enough space." Khaya: "Er... Spho this is a child, not a puppy. You can't just keep him. There's systems in place." Me: "Lakhe says he can get a judge to grant temp foster care. Please dad?" Khaya: "I don't know Spho." Me: "Please tata. I can take care of a child. I have done so for Zingi. I'll make sure Chris is okay." Khaya: "Fine. But you'll have to come here to fill all this paperwork and the social worker will have millions of questions." Me: "We'll be there just now." Khaya: "Okay." he hung up. Me: "There." he wore his shoes. I was actually very tired but I didn't want to dampen his spirits. On top of the fact that I haven't slept, I drove all the way here to take care of him. He stood up and looked at me with a questionable look. Me: "I'm okay. Let's go." he gave me his phone and I read. Lakhe: 'I'm driving.' I gave him the keys without hesitation and we walked out. There was still debate in the lounge with Stella, Sandile and Rob. They barely noticed us leaving.

Khaya sat in his office staring at the papers. Kom: "What's the problem?" Khaya: "I don't know why but Spho wants to foster this child until the uncle arrives." Kom: "Why?" Khaya: "I'm not sure. Spho loves kids alot. She hates seeing them hurt." Kom: "Its a good quality for a mother. And Christian doesn't have a mother." Khaya: "I don't want her to stress herself sir. She's six and a half months pregnant." Kom: "She has her husband. And his mother. And her brother." Khaya: "What if she gets attached?" Kom: "Its inevitable. Look at Christian. He's adorable." he looked at the child in his arms. Kom: "Let her take the child. She'll be happy. So will Chris." Khaya: "Her husband didn't want anything to do with the child but now he's even getting a judge? What changed?" Kom: "We already have a judge." Khaya: "Oh yes. I apologize. Its hard to.....never mind." Kom: "Hard to what? Imagine me as a judge? I went to school Khaya." Khaya: "I apologize sir." Kom: "Speak what's on your mind." Khaya: "Its just you're an actual authority figure in law enforcement but..."

Kom: "but I kill people? You can say it." Khaya: "I'm sorry sir. I'm out of line."
Kom: "I'm glad you see that. And be glad Christian is asleep too." he held the child's cheek and ear. He looked at his closed eyes. The long eye lashes sticking out in all directions. His little mouth slightly open showing tiny shark teeth. Kom: "Take him." he ordered, getting up. Khaya took the child.
Komander paced around the room. Lakhe and Spho walked in. I was surprised to see Tyrone still here. Didn't he have a flight to catch? Me: "hi again." Ty: "hello Spho. Does your husband not speak or he's just plain rude?" Me: "Oh no, my apologies. He had allergies and his throat is swollen. He's not allowed to speak for 2 days." Ty: "Oh I'm sorry. Sometimes my mouth just runs like a leaking tap." Khaya: "Its my fault. I'm his doctor, I should've explained." we all sat down and began the process. Dad was right about the social worker, she asked an awful amount of questions. What's more surprising was that Tyrone is a judge. How in the world did he know my father? In what universe are doctors and judges friends? Lakhe was right. Something dodgy was happening here. After almost an hour of what seemed to be impossible. We were half way through. My body was shutting down. My dad had left the office. The judge, two social workers and a police officer were here. Honest to God, I was now regretting my agreement. The entire process left me drained. By the time we were done. Christian was in the corner playing by himself. Ty: "And there you have it. He's yours until Monday." Three full hours worth of investigation, for three nights? Wow. I'd hate to know how long it would take for an adoption. Ty: "Chris?" the boy looked up at him then stood up walking swiftly to his side. Ty: "This is Aunt Spho and Uncle Lakhe. They will take care of you until your uncle gets here okay?" the boy nodded. Ty: "Are you going to be a good boy?" Chris: "yeah." Ty: "Good. Go over and say hi." Chris walked to us and fitted himself in between my legs with his head on my big belly. Ty: "how beautiful." This was scary. This child's comfort levels needed to be questioned. How was he so at ease with strangers? Me: "Hey Chris. How are you?" Chris: "fine." My dad walked back in. Khaya: "Mom and Dad now huh?" Me: "Aunt and Uncle are fine." Khaya: "here is his back pack and this is his medication. Every morning and night. All of them are marked. Here's his food list too." Me: "Thank you so much dad. We'll take good care of him." Khaya: "I know you will sweetheart. Call me if you need anything. Here are his documents. You're good to go." Lakhe picked up Chris. I took his bag. Ty: "Please mind his arm. Its still delicate. And painful." Me: "We will." Time to go home.

Instead of driving straight home, Lakhe went to the mall. I was going to fall asleep standing I swear. At Woolworths, he bought a few items of clothing for

Chris. Didn't even go to a fitting room. He just measured it against his body and was convinced it would fit. Men. We took a pair of sneakers and sandals. Some underwear and pajamas. After the clothes, we went in the food section to buy more food. Once he paid, we left the mall and went home. I don't know how we'll explain this to the family. Only now I realized I would be the one doing the explaining. I got out the car taking Chris with me. Lakhe brought the bags in. Everyone in the lounge stared at us. Sands: "Oh no." Me: "Before you start-" Sands: "Spho stole a baby. We're all going to jail." Me: "Sandile. Calm down. Nobody is going to jail. We got Chris legally. And only for a few days until his uncle arrives. Can everyone please pitch in. Chris is a sweetheart and I don't want him to get hurt, he br-" Chris was hiding behind me. Me: "and he's shy I guess." Lakhe came in with the bags and went straight to the bedroom. I followed him with Chris. Why was his name Christian anyway? Not really traditional for a black kid but okay. Me: "Is he sleeping here?" Lakhe nodded. He sat down and signaled for Chris to go to him. He changed his t shirt to a pajama top and shoes to slippers. My heart melted. They weren't even talking to each other but everything was in sync. They got into bed and looked at me. Oh? He gave me the phone to read. Lakhe: 'You've been fighting sleep for hours mommy. Time for a nap.' I got in bed. Me: "How are you Chris?" Chris: "good." Me: "Yeah? You been sleeping all day." Chris: "I broke my arm so the doctor gave me medicines to make me better." Me: "How do you feel now?" Chris: "better now. Why did you swallow a basket ball?" Lakhe held his mouth trying not to laugh and hurt himself. Me: "This isn't a basketball, I swallowed a seed and drank water. So it grows into a baby." Chris: "Oh. Then you spit the baby out?" Me: "Yes. I spit the baby out and he grows like you." Chris: "Cool. My mom died. The doctor says she went to live with Jesus." my heart stopped. Chris: "I like Jesus. He can take care of her and then you take care of me. Like my mom did before she died." Oh what kind of pain could this be? Me: "Okay sweetie but your uncle will come fetch you soon." Chris: "but I don't have a uncle." Lakhe and I looked at each other. Me: "are you sure Chris?" Chris: "Yeah. Isn't he my uncle?" he pointed at Lakhe. Me: "Don't you have an uncle Christian? Your mommy's brother?" Chris: "Nope. Only me and mommy but she's gone now. I have you." I was stunned to silence actually. Lakhe had a horrified look on his face. Me: "Yes angel face. Did you see the puppy? His name is Boogie." his face beamed into sunshine. Chris: "I love puppies!" he jumped up and ran out. Me: "Are you thinking what I'm thinking?" he typed on his phone. Lakhe: 'Your father lied. This is illegal, Spho. We've just kidnapped a child.'.....

For a good two minutes we were stuck. I didn't know what to do. All of a sudden Chris came busting in carrying Boogie with his one free arm. Chris: "Look aunty." Me: "I see honey." he got into bed with the dog, tickling his tummy. Boogie's left leg shaking with amusement. Lakhe gave me his phone to read. Lakhe: 'What do you think he was going to do to him? Was he just going to give him away to strangers?' Why would my father do such a thing to an innocent child? Me: "No. Don't think like that." Chris: "Like what?" he looked up at me. Me: "I'm talking to Uncle sweetie. Do you know the man who was with the doctor?" Chris nodded. Me: "Who is he?" Chris: "Mr Tyren." Me: "Have you seen him before?" he shook his head. Me: "you were sleeping in his arms." Chris: "Yeah." Me: "What did he say to you when you woke up?" Chris: "Nothing. But when I was sleeping I heard him say he wants to find me a family who can take good care of me. That I must not get hurt. He smells like chocolate." Seemingly Tyrone wanted a safe place for Chris but why did my dad lie saying he was waiting for an uncle from Nigeria? Chris: "You're going to keep me? I like it here." my heart broke. How could it not? Only a monster could say no to this child. He folded himself in my arms. Lakhe was looking through the papers we got from this man. Me: "Lakhe." he nodded looking at him. He gave me his phone. 'Where is this guy's name here? His signature?' I showed him. T. R. Nammok. I didn't know whether he was colored or what. I never heard him speak a word of Xhosa. Tyrone Nammok. He was definitely colored. Me: "What do we do?" he typed on his phone and gave it to me. Lakhe: 'I'll get my lawyer to review this entire process and advise us. For now I need to talk to dad, he's dealt with adoption before. Let's go.' Seems like I wasn't going to sleep anytime soon. We went to the lounge with Chris, who was heavily obsessed with the puppy. Sandile glazed at his every move like a snake in waiting. I pushed his shoulder. Me: "he's only a child. Let him play." I whispered. Sands: "Boogie is my child too." Oh Sandile. Me: "Tata, uLakhe has something he wants to talk to you about." Lakhe gave him his phone to read what he wrote. Rob: "Let's see the papers." he read through them. Rob: "What makes you think its illegal?" Sands: "I'm sorry what?" Stella: "What's illegal?" Dumi: "I heard my anti name?" he rolled in to the lounge. You would think nobody is listening and they're all minding their own business but nope. Rob: "Yeke Dumi, go through this with me. I had papers exactly like this with yours and Sandile's adoption, Lakhe. Nothing illegal about it." Me: "Well...the child doesn't have an 'uncle' like my dad said he did. Judge Tyrone was there ready and willing to sign him over." Rob: "and?" Sands: "Nditshilo mna. I knew it. Too quick and easy to be true. Wasn't there supposed to be a home visit to see where you lived as well? Anyway, I don't think its a good idea to take him back. Neither is keeping him, I'm not going to wait for the black helicopters to get here mna guys, you'll find me at the Radisson." Me: "Sandile, we can't just keep him." Sands: "Why not? You have documents that an actual lawyer, an actual doctor and supposedly an actual judge confirm are legal. Whether or not it is, you'll draw attention to yourself if you go back there. When are you expected to take him back?" Me: "Monday." Sands: "then you go there on Monday." Rob: "I don't see why you're so worried. The child could have ended up in an orphanage or in the hands of an abusive family. Instead, he's with you." Sands: "I think they're more worried about when he leaves and where he's going." Lakhe gave me his phone. 'Who knows what type of environment he's going to in Nigeria. How they will treat him?' Me: "Where is Sibü?" Sands: "he's taking a nap." he read off Lakhe's phone. Sands: 'There was an unusual vibe about the guy that we met, I don't trust him.' He looked at me. Sands: "which guy is this?" Me: "Tyrone. Lakhe says he looks like an angel that was kicked out of heaven." Sandile laughed hard and long. Stella: "He's right. Now that you mention it, something in his eyes had an eerie feel about them. To think I invited him for dinner." Rob: "In who's house perhaps?" Stella: "Not yours, obviously." Sands: "mama, You felt a weird vibe and still invited him?" Stella: "At the time I didn't feel weird at all. I just kind of panicked when I saw him. I felt stuck, then when I started talking to him everything felt comfortable. Soft. Unpressured like he was assuring me everything is fine." Lakhe clapped once. Sands: "Why would you panic in the first place?" Stella: "he's indescribably beautiful it hurts my breathing." Rob had a bored look on his face when staring at her. Rob: "There's no such thing. You just exaggerate everything." Stella: "Ask Spho, she's the one who said he was a supermodel and Lakhe saw him too, describing him as an angel." Sands: "Lakhe says he was thrown out of heaven." he giggled. Dumi: "You know another angel who was thrown out of heaven?" Me: "I don't want to talk about that right now. This is creepy enough as it is. Where's Chris?" he wasn't in the corner he was playing in. Sibü walked in the lounge carrying him. Sibü: "this one doesn't want me to sleep." Again. This child's comfort levels are very questionable. Luke came from the second passage almost frightening me. I keep forgetting he's still here. Luke: "hello." we all greeted him. Sands: "Oh my goodness, you're still here!!" Me: "Don't even. You knew exactly where he was." Sands: "It was Lakhe's idea." Luke: "I thought Dumi had only two kids?" Sands: "Yes. This one is Lakhe's." Me: "His name is Christian." Luke: "he's cute." he sat down. Luke: "I was reading my Bible when I had a vision of something disturbing. I thought I'd come here and check on all of you." Sands: "What did you see?" Luke: "two things. A man in a black coat. He was standing right there." he pointed to a spot by the door. Luke: "I couldn't see his face but, I could hear his voice. It was smooth, and calm." Rob: "What did he say?" Luke: "He was speaking in another language I've never heard before." Sibü: "What was the second thing you saw?" Luke: "a dead body. Covered in a black body bag." Sands: "Let me get this in my head. Spho, this is the second time you see this man? The first time you did, you came back home and went to sleep immediately. The night of your nightmare. Sibü on the other hand, had disappeared a week before that and when he also came back, he had a nightmare. Similar screams, both of you not remembering. Could it be possible that it is this man causing these nightmares? Spho, did you look him in the eye that first day?"

Me: "Yes, I fixated on his eyes for quite a minute." Sands: "Lakhe, did you look him in the eye?" Lakhe shook his head. Sands: "mama?" Stella: "Yes. Like Spho said, I was fixated. His eyes looked like jewels." Robert rolled his eyes. Sands: "the only way we can confirm this is if someone between the three of you has a nightmare tonight. Like I said, I'll be at the Radisson if you need me." Sibü: "What exactly are we confirming?" Sands: "If this man is a real person or some demon." Me: "I don't know if this is a good idea Sandile, I'm panicking. Why am I panicking?" Sands: "its the perfect idea." Luke: "No, it isn't. I finally figured it out. We can't wait for nightfall, we need to pray. Now." Sands: "Why?" Luke: "Because, if it is so, that Spho and Sibü had these nightmares, today isn't a coincidence that she bumped into him and I had a vision. A third person, means a death. Yes, there will be a nightmare but whoever has it this time will die in their sleep. And that third person is between You and You." he pointed at Lakhe and Stella. I felt cold shivers down my spine. The sleep I had instantly evaporated. I was wide awake now. We can't afford another death. I am not emotionally capable of handling it especially if its going to be my husband.

Me: "Luke is right we need to pray." Sands: "Seriously? How is prayer going to work? How does someone die from a nightmare. Hayi Luke fondin, uyasishaya ngoku." Me: "I'm not taking any chances." Stella: "Me neither! I can't die yet! Luke, pray if you must. Matter of fact, all of us, gather in a circle and let's start a night vigil. There's by no way I'm sleeping to my death." before anyone could protest or talk, Luke began praying. Luke: "Our heavenly Father, we come before You this day in need of Your protection, guidance and strength. We ask that You rebuke the evil that surrounds us and this home. Cast out any evil and demonic spirit loitering around Your children. Release our spiritual strength to be able to face the forthcoming danger. We ask that you empower us. Cleanse our hearts and souls, forgive our past mistakes and lead us on a righteous path. Your children are standing before You God, seeking help. Bind them with everlasting love and security. Cover them with courage and a mighty spirit to face their problems head on. We hand over this delicate and dangerous situation to You. We trust You God. We bow before Your name. Barricade this family into Your heavenly protection. Let their enemies who bring bad luck to them be disappointed. Let them witness your mighty glory as the night approaches and the morning brings a brighter day. In the name of Jesus Christ, nothing will break or torment this family. In the name of the Holy Spirit I speak Fire to the demons. They are to burn in the sight of your loyal children!! Burn!!! In the name of our Almighty, no premature death will come anywhere near this family. Deliver them from evil Father because You are our Savior, Our Healer!! We look upon You for strength. We announce Your presence dear God in this house. We announce Your presence in their hearts. Move in between them. Let the Holy Spirit walk with every step they take. Let those guards outside be Your angels sent from heaven to protect and secure this house from all danger. I breath faith into each and every one of you standing before me. Conform to God's word. We are not worthy of His mercy yet He always comes through. Believe in what He can do. This is no ordinary man. This is a supernatural being with powers way beyond the hands of man. Way beyond our trails of thinking. Give Him the respect!!! To God be the glory!! Shake a supernatural force into this house. I put forth a mother and father who has raised Masilakhe, Sandile and Nosiphiwo. Cement them to Your glory God. Open their eyes, and hearts to receive your full strength. I put forth, Masilakhe, a husband and father. Anoint him God with Your holy oil. Cleanse his heart. Let him receive Your full grace ten folds. Bless his wife, carrying their child. Protect her Lord, guide her in the righteous way to bring this family closer to themselves and to You. Bless the soul of Sandile Sobukwe, grant him the deepest desires to unlock the goodness in his heart. Protect your young daughter Nosiphiwo from the walks of life she stumbles upon. Cover her with Your sacred blood, let no evil come close in destroying her future and dreams. Put your hands on each and every member of this family, hold them closer together God. We are acknowledging Your presence. We Welcome you into this home Father Almighty. Hold us together for the remainder of this night As You only knows what happens next. We thank You God. We glorify Your name. We have placed our lives in Your hands. Amen." I finally opened my eyes. Christian was holding on to me quietly. Would it be possible if I kept Luke forever? I felt so much safer.

After the prayer, everyone was quiet and doing their own thing. Sandile was on his usual couch frowning at the TV. Luke: "Why are you so angry?" Sands: "I'm not angry." Luke: "then what's wrong?" Sands: "Luke. I'm going to say this once, I'm not in the mood for a chat right now." Luke: "Are you feeling guilty after everything You've done in the past to have someone pray for you and your well-being." Sands: "The next thing I say will be in the form of a vase in contact with your face Luke." Luke: "I understand. You know where to find me." Dumi and Rob sat on the opposite couch. Stella went to her room with Nosi. Me: "Uphi uSibulele?" everybody didn't know. He had probably gone to his room. Lakhe gave me his phone. 'What do we do about Chris?' I read. Looking at the boy sitting on the carpet playing with the puppy. I really didn't know. I was scared that on Monday he'll be shipped off to another country which he doesn't know to live with strangers who could be just about anyone. I wrote back on his phone because I didn't want anyone eavesdropping. Me: 'Its a big decision baby. He's just a child. I don't want him exposed to cruelty somewhere. He already feels comfortable here. I don't know.' He read it then typed. 'We'll see during this weekend how we cope.' I kissed his cheek. Lakhe: 'You need to sleep.' He wrote. Me: "After dinner." He shook his head pulling me up. In the bedroom I got into bed. Me: "Can I have some snacks at least?" he went to go fetch chips, biscuits, chocolates and all kinds of sweets. All I wanted was a packet of Lays and he legit cleaned out the snack cabinet. I was not ready for a Sandile meltdown to be honest. At the edge of the bed he sat down and massaged my swollen feet. Christian came in once again but no Boogie this time around, he got into bed and snuggled up next to me. I gave him a ball of Lindt chocolatier. You should've see how his face melted at the chocolate. He licked the corners of his mouth sucking his upper lip and licking his fingers. Chris: "Mr Sandile made me wash my hands. He says Boogie has to sleep now." Yazi unomona uSandile bethuna. Me: "everytime you finish playing with the dog honey, you have to wash your hands okay?" Chris: "Okay." Me: "What do you want to watch?" Chris: "I don't watch TV. But I have a CD for music." he took out the disc from his backpack. 'The Quack quack album.' I almost laughed really. Lakhe took the CD and inserted it in the CD player. Chris immediately jumped up and started singing. Chris: "All my friends, we sing a-long. With all our pets in the farm. They call out loud and sing, Woof woof woof. Dennis the dog. Pom pom pom." he was doing the actions too, jumping around. Lakhe was hiding the biggest smile on his face. Chris: "and right when she comes, its Kitty the cat. Meow meow meow. Shake-a-leg, pow! Pom pom pom." this was one crazy song I swear. Chris: "before we clap its, Nelly the mouse, she goes kroop kroop kroop. Pom pom pom." I laughed. If I hear them pom poms one more time I'm afraid I'll laugh all the way into my next life. The performance was so cute. After the song he came back to bed and dug into his bag again. Chris: "oooh, my favorite. Here aunty." he took out a story book and handed it to me. He took out an action figure as well. Chris: "This is Mr Courage. He kicks monsters' butts." Me: "How nice of Mr Courage to protect little Chris." he looked further in his bag. Chris: "here's another book, for bedtime. Here uncle." he gave it to Lakhe. Chris: "my crayons of course. Can't leave them behind. Look at my coloring book." I paged through it. Me: "This is beautiful Chris. Did you do this?" Chris: "Yep." I showed Lakhe. He acted surprised to see a 4 year old's coloring. Chris: "Oh No." he looked panicked. Me: "What is it?" Chris: "I can't find my cape."

How can I be a super hero without a cape aunty?" Oh Goodness. Me: "We'll get you a cape sweetheart. Don't worry. The world will be okay tonight while you take a one day holiday." Chris: "Are you sure?" Me: "Yes of course. You deserve a vacation." Chris: "Okay. Only for tonight." Me: "definitely." the last thing I remember was him counting his crayons with Lakhe and my sleep finally caught up.

I woke up about an hour later from my nap. Christian and Lakhe were asleep next to me. I got up and went to the bathroom first then after washing my hands trotted down to the kitchen. Only Sandile was sitting watching TV. I looked through the fridge. When last did we do the grocery? Apart from what we bought with Chris. Me: "Sandile." he appeared in the kitchen. Sands: "Yes?" Me: "Do you mind going to the store to get me some meat?" Sands: "Yes." Me: "Please?" Sands: "I'm busy." Me: "Do you want to come with me then?" Sands: "I'll go change my shirt." he walked back out. Typical of Sandile not to want to go to the shops alone. I wanted a leg of lamb to roast and some vegetables. Maybe tomorrow I could make shrimp pasta. Then on Sunday we can all go out for dinner. I went to wear sensible shoes and fetch my handbag and keys. In the bed, Lakhe and the boy were still fast asleep. They looked so cute. I can't believe this was my life now. A year ago I wouldn't have thought that I'd have a whole husband and two kids. I tiptoed out the room. Sandile was waiting by the door. We walked to my car. The drive way was full of cars, it was giving me a headache. It was Rob's car, Stella's car, Masilakhe had two cars, Sandile's car, Sibuh's car and my new Range Rover. Seven whole cars. Me: "Do we really need this many cars?" Sands: "yeah, its a lot but mama and dad aren't staying forever. They'll be leaving soon." Me: "Are you sure?" he laughed. Sands: "They enjoy being here but I know my mom. She wants her space. Dad on the other hand wants to travel the world. I don't know why they seem to be falling more in love lately." Me: "Right? Maybe they might get back together wethu." We got in the car and drove to Checkers. Sands: "I think they shouldn't. They're much happier apart than they were married." Me: "Its up to them. They will have to face the truth themselves without us interfering." Sands: "Something is bothering me." Me: "What is it?" Its been long since someone confided in me. Sands: "Luke. He makes me uncomfortable." Me: "Is it because he prayed for you?" Sands: "I don't need his prayers. I'm not a charity case." Me: "Nobody prays for you because they see you as charity. Sometimes its in your spirit to pray for another person. Maybe they can't do it themselves so God sends one of his soldiers to do it. Its not meant as an insult or humiliation. Its actually a blessing. When we aren't strong for ourselves, someone else can be strong for us and adjudicate on our behalf. Isn't it good sometimes to have someone fight your battles for you?" Sands: "Well yeah, I guess. I just feel....guilty." Me: "Why do you feel guilty?" Sands: "I've done a lot of bad things Spho. To a lot of people. I'm living this good life while their families suffer. Why would someone pray for my safety instead of my victims'?" Me: "As much as You've sinned, God still created you and loves you. You are His son. There's nothing you can do to make Him turn His back on you no matter what you've done. Here's a typical example, Satan. God doesn't hate Satan. Only God has the power to kill him and he hasn't. As much as He knows Satan won't change, He hasn't given up on him. That's his son. Consider all the things Satan does. Painful things. So long as you truly repent, return home and live your life through God, He will forgive you. Regardless of what you do. You know one time my pastor was preaching about salvation. I was quite young at the time. He said, the more good you do, the more spiritual rewards you get. Now, as humans we are not perfect. We sometimes make mistakes and fall off the wagon. When we sin, God takes away from those rewards. One at a time. You'd think you're having a car accident and think its just bad luck, kanti that's the first shake you get from God to straighten up your act. The next you lose your business, and you start getting depressed. You lose your family, you go bat crazy and stop believing in Him. Those are little shakes that should open your eyes. Instead, we run further away. Sooner or later you'll run out of rewards, God can't take more from you anymore. Why do you think, just out of the blue sometimes, you meet someone who asks you to accompany them to church? Visit their church? Talk to you about God? That's one of the final signs. That person is sent by God to save your life. Abanye abantwana bakhula kamnandi kuba they have grandmothers to pray for them, thina we have only our parents who at times forget or don't even pay attention. So these earthly angels come to us, and being in the state of mind we're in, we tend to get irritated and uncomfortable. We don't want to hear about God. Because mos kakade I'm already broke and poor, nobody cares if I'm a drug addict, God has done nothing for me. That's the mentality we have. Kanti nanku umntu, brought by God Himself. We ignore that person, kuphelile ngathi. The next sniff of cocaine, sends me into a spiral overdose and I die. Not because God hated me but He loves me so much that He couldn't take seeing me in that state and pain. He had to take me. So when someone prays for you Sandile, when someone invites you to church, take it as a sign that God is trying to reach out to you. That you need Him at that moment, you're running low on salvation. He is trying to save you. That uncomfortable feeling is you being outside your comfort zone. And its a good thing. Its no mistake Luke came here or prayed when he did. Don't feel bad about it, okay?" I parked the car at the mall. Me: "Are you okay?" he nodded looking out the window. Me: "Sands?" he sniffed and opened the door, climbing out. Oh my goodness, did I make him cry? I got out the car and went over to his side. Me: "you can talk to me." his eyes were red. Sands: "I haven't shed a tear in years." Me: "its okay, I won't tell anyone." Sands: "I don't know if I can change Spho. Is it possible? Luke wasn't lying. Deep down I always imagine what it would be like if I was a normal person. If I'd get married and be loved. Most importantly, if I could love that person back. I want to be normal but I don't think I can change." Me: "You can't change overnight. The most important thing is to keep trying over and over. Work on yourself. Love yourself. Respect yourself. Be the best version of yourself and you'll attract someone with the same values." Sands: "You don't have the same values as Lakhe. In fact, he doesn't deserve you. Yet he has you. I have some hope." Me: "The answer is right there, I'm his salvation. God sent me to him for a reason. Are you trying to tell me in the period we have been married, you haven't seen a tiny bit of softness and change in him? Let Luke in, talk to him. He has such a deep insight about God and life. Plus You'd relate more to him." Sands: "because we're both murderers?" Me: "No! Because you're both men. Why would you th.....wait....what?" Sands: "never mind. Thank you Spho. For sharing this with me. You touched my cold heart. Now I realize why you have such a big heart. I wish I could make you proud." Me: "you listening to me, makes me proud. Come here." I hugged him.

After grocery shopping, we went home and I prepared the lamb for a roast. Sandile was sitting on the counter keeping me company chatting his funny stupid stories. Sibu and Nosi came to join us. Robert came in too. Rob: "All my children in one room." Sands: "still two missing." Rob: "Of course. Where is Lakhe anyway?" Me: "he's taking a nap with Christian tata." Rob: "okay, have you decided on keeping him?" Me: "We are not sure yet." Rob: "I think you should. He's a smart and adorable kid. You two would make great parents." Nosi: "I agree." Sands: "hold on....before we start agreeing and nodding heads, our previous conversation about the legitimacy of these papers has been forgotten?" Rob: "The papers are legal Sandile. Stop being a jelly bean." Sands: "a jelly bean? You're spending too much time with the kids." Rob: "Maybe if you gave me grandchildren, so you are in no position to complain now." Me: "Where's ma?" Rob: "She's in her room, praying. She hasn't stopped. I have to give Luke credit. She really thinks she's going to die." Sands: "You're not going to see the kingdom of heaven shame tata." he got off the counter. Rob: "I wasn't the one who scared her." Sands: "You're laughing. That's just as bad." Rob: "Am I not allowed to laugh?" Sands: "The kingdom will be a pipe dream for you." Rob: "where are you going?" Sands: "To console my mother tata. She's not going to die. Nobody in this house will." he walked out the kitchen. Rob: "What's up with him?" I shrugged. Of course I knew. Sandile was stepping up. A very big step from his childlike personality. I was proud already. After cooking I took the dishes to the dining table then went to wake Lakhe and Chris up. We went to have dinner with the family. Everyone was in their own thoughts. I had a slight feeling they were anxious about tonight and Luke's vision. So after dinner I gathered them up again in the lounge for an evening prayer. Sibulele: "Is this absolutely necessary?" Me: "Do you have a problem?" Sibulele: "No, its just two prayers in one day is a little testy isn't it?" Me: "We aren't testing anything. We are God proofing the house and everyone will participate. When I start the prayer, each and every person will contribute two lines until it comes back to me, we say amen and go about our evenings. Since Lakhe can't talk, I'll speak on his behalf." Sibulele: "two lines of what?" Me: "of prayer Sibulele. We are bringing God closer. Can we please close our eyes and hold each other's hands?" we formed a circle and held hands closing our eyes. Me: "Dear God, I bring our family before you this evening. We have drifted away from Your word and we humble ourselves to You in praise. We announce Your presence Lord. Allow us to glorify You in thanks of the mercy You have on each of our lives." Stella: "We ask for protection against evil. Relieve our hearts of heavy burdens." Rob: "Bring our family closer, please forgive our past mistakes. Thank you for holding us together in good and bad times." Nosi: "I ask You Lord, to help us conquer any demonic entity sent to ruin us. Break down any force that is meant to destroy us." Sands: "Fill our cups with salvation. Strengthen and empower our hearts to do better to and for others." Dumi: "Protect our children at all times. Reach into their hearts so they can follow a righteous path." Vicky: "Usixolele Yehova iizono zethu. Ukhulule intliziyo zethu sibenoxolela abanye." then silence... Sibulele was dead quiet. Me: "Open his heart, Lord. Let Your word do its job. Cleansing him and freeing him off this entity. Break it down and flush it out of him." Sibulele: "Spho." Me: "Hold him close to you God. Bind him with your love and grace. Have mercy on his soul. Soar through his spirit in every way possible. I send the Holy Spirit to surround him, at every turn." Sibulele: "Spho please...stop." Me: "I breath Fire to whatever it is holding him back! Controlling and manipulating him. Free him Father Almighty. Take control God. Grab a hold of his soul. Talk through him. That negative energy has no place in his body. That evil spirit has no corner in his soul. Speak to him Lord. Hold on to Your child God. All in the name of Jesus Christ, Amen." I opened my eyes. Luke had joined us and had his arms around my brother holding him still. Me: "What happened?" Luke: "He wanted to attack you."

I felt so defeated. All I could do was stare. Sibulele was kneeling on the floor now, shaking. Luke: "There is something inside him. That's why he kept calling your name asking you to stop. He never wanted to hurt you. Something else took over his body and he was fighting it." Lakhe showed him the door, opening it wide and folding his arms. Luke: "he needs this family now more than ever." Sands: "We have children in this house Luke. We cannot afford taking that chance." Luke: "If you let him go now, he would do more damage. You don't want to feed this thing." Me: "then what do we do? I don't want to sleep with one eye open!" Luke: "We need to pray for him Spho. I have a friend of mine who specializes in this. He can drive the demon out." Sands: "Demon? Sibulele has a demon?" Me: "I don't know Luke. This sounds really dangerous." Luke: "It is. We will need a very quiet, unoccupied space. This thing could leave his body and attached itself on someone else here." Rob: "Okay, you know what? Sibulele is part of our family. We will support him. Luke do as you may, I'm going to look for a secluded spot. So what do we do with the demon once its out?" Luke: "Patrick is the master of demons. He'll take it with him." Sands: "Take it where? Can't you just kill it?" Luke: "Tell me, how do you kill a demon Sandile? I for one would love to know." Sands: "I don't know about everyone else but it terrifies me that this guy takes demons out and leaves with them. Who knows what he does. Releasing them out in the open, at the mall for unsuspecting humans." Luke: "I believe he takes it to the morgue and attaches it into a corpse, so that it resides there without being disturbed since its going to be buried underground." Sands: "Is this why ghosts exist? Wow." Rob: "So when do we go? Is tomorrow fine?" Luke: "Tomorrow will be too late. We need to do it tonight and you're not going anywhere." Sandile looked at Lakhe. Rob: "but if you need help-" Luke: "You will get hurt. Its much better this way. I know what to do." Sands: "how long will this take?" Luke: "it doesn't have a time frame. It takes as long as it feels. Can I make a call to Patrick?" Sandile gave him his cellphone. I sat down slowly. I felt so sorry for Sibulele. Where did he get in contact with this thing? Which means, he was the one who killed Miriam? He didn't look like he was in his right mind. My head was spinning. Once Luke was done, he gave the phone back. Luke: "he's on his way." Sands: "can we do anything to help." Luke: "Yeah. You can pray for him. He is on low supply right now. This procedure is dangerous, he looks weak already. Its possible this kills him while leaving his body. I'm going to need you all to pray when we leave. I'll let you know when he's safe." Me: "can he hear me?" Luke: "Yes. He can. You need to reach his soul Spho. He is in a weak state now." I nodded. Me: "Sibulele?" he looked around. Luke: "Don't come closer." he held his shoulder. Luke: "he could attack any minute it takes him over." Me: "Sibu, bhuti wam, you need to be ready for battle now. You need to fight and win this. I miss you. I don't want you to be stuck like this. You must know that we love you very much and we are behind you." Sibu: "You will never get rid of me." I was taken aback by that deep hoarse voice. My heart hammered in my chest. Everyone seemed to be shocked too. Sibu: "I. Own. Everything. You can never get rid of me." he laughed. Sibu: "Spho..." his normal voice came back. Oh crap. This was things of the movies. Not here in my house. Attacking my brother! Sibu: "Let me go Spho. He will never stop." he cried. Sibu: "Please!" Luke: "He has no place in your body or soul Sibulele. We will not stop until he's gone! Fight!!" Sibu: "Fight? You think you can fight me? Do you even know who I am? Of course you don't. How could you. Little Sibu and your friends cannot touch me. Tell me Lakhe, are you done wrestling with your demons? Sandile? Frank is still calling out for you. None of you are above me." he cackled. Sibu: "Spho, you love me. You've held me in your arms. I've felt your baby. This is how you're thanking me?" Luke started praying holding on to him. Sibu: "You ought to leave me alone if you want to keep your hands." Stella and Robert joined Luke in prayer. Sibu: "You're wasting your time really. Even your God cannot kill me." Luke: "Spho, pray." he grabbed Sibu tighter, Robert helping him. Me: "he is going to kill me-" Luke: "Do it!!!!" Sibu: "Sphosenkosi, don't you dare!" Sandile stood in front of me. Sands: "Pray Spho." Lakhe stood next to him. Me: "Father Almighty, I ask that you announce yourself in our house. Break down every evil spirit and crush them to their knees. I rebuke that demon out of my brother's soul-" Sibu: "Spho!!!!" Me: "Shake this house and set him alight God! We ask for your mercy God. Save Sibulele's soul. Strengthen his spirit as he fights this demonic being. Let no evil manipulate or take over his body! Tear it open and cast it out in the name of Jesus Christ. I command you to LEAVE!!!!" he screamed his lungs out. It sounded like metal scratching metal. Luke: "command him again!" Sibu: "You are not my master!!!!" Me: "I command you to leave my brother's body and go back where you came from. I command you to burn!! The fire of the Holy Spirit is catching on to you!! Burn Satan!!! You have no residence in his body nor this house!! I command you to break and burn!!" I heard a loud thud. I opened my eyes. Sibu was laying on the floor. Luke: "Keep praying." Me: "he's dead?" I sobbed. Luke: "Keep praying. Command it out! Lakhe hold your child. Go Spho!" Me: "I command you out of this house!! I rebuke you demon!!! Holy fire will catch on you and burn you coming anywhere closer to this family!!! El Shaddai, cast out this entity from our house. Set it on fire!!! Burn it!! In the name of Jesus Christ, I COMMAND you to burn!!!! Restore my brother's soul God, reside in his heart, seal his spirit with your love and protection. Raise him up. No evil spirit shall knock him down! No premature death shall come near us! Protect your children God." I felt a hand on my shoulder. When I turned around I almost jumped out of my skin. A tall man was standing behind me. If it wasn't for the biggest Bible on planet earth in his hand, I would've screamed. Me: "Who are you?" Luke: "Patrick." Sands: "How did you get in?" Patrick: "You left the gate and door open. I see You've done my job." he knelt next to Sibü. Patrick: "Wow. It knocked him out badly. This is probably the strongest entity I've ever dealt with. It looks so familiar. At least he's still alive, but barely." he looked at me. Patrick: "You saved his life." Me: "Is it gone? The thing in him?" Patrick: "No. It is mastering strength. This is why you shouldn't stop praying. It knows you think its dead or gone, and it will strike when you least expect it, much stronger than before. We don't have much time. I need an empty room. With no furniture or anything, its time I take it out. Hold your child close to you, he's very vulnerable." he pointed at Chris. The boy's eyes were wide open like a deer caught in headlights. He looked so frightened. Me: "come here honey." he ran to me. I picked him up. He was shaking all over. Patrick: "You tough guys can help me get this one to the room." Sibü started moving slowly. Patrick: "Quick!!!" they carried him to an empty room. Luke: "Nobody can be quiet now. Everyone, pray. Pray violently against this thing. Fight with your fire!" I heard a loud bang and a scream. Luke ran down the passage. We continued praying in the lounge. Bang after bang after scream. Christian started crying, holding on tight. If he could cover himself with my skin, he probably would've. One last thud then stillness. Luke: "Thank You God." I opened my eyes and looked around. Everyone seemed to be here. Sands: "Is it gone?" Luke: "It will be quite a while till we find out but I trust Patrick. Is Chris okay?" Me: "Yes, just a little shaken." Luke: "He will be fine." Sands: "Does anyone want some juice? I'm thirsty as a lion." Stella: "I'll have some." Lakhe sat next to me and sighed. He took Chris from my arms, wiping his face. After 30 minutes or so, Patrick came out the room. Patrick: "Done." he looked disheveled. Like he was in an actual fight. Patrick: "He will be okay, he's still weak. Luke will take care of him. He knows what to do." Sands: "You want juice?" Patrick: "No, water will be fine thank you." Sandile went to fetch the jug and a glass. Sands: "What was that anyway? Do you know where it came from?" Patrick: "The single most strongest spirit I've ever seen. Something that is used to crushing its victims by just the look of an eye. And it is so rare." Me: "You said it looked familiar." Patrick: "It did. I've handled one like it but it was much smaller. Less aggressive than this one. If I didn't know better I'd say Satan himself came and took over. Whatever it is, will not hurt you again. Trust me. And don't blame Sibü. He didn't do anything wrong. If anything, he tried by all means to save you. To not hurt you. He gave himself up, for you. I cannot begin to imagine fighting something this big alone." Sands: "So where's the demon now? I hope its not lurking in this house." Patrick: "It can't lurk. It will never survive. Your prayers, brought it to its knees. All of you have a fire that will burn it should it ever come close, so I urge you, everytime that small voice in your head says 'pray', you do it immediately. Stop the car in the freeway if you must. That is your warning sign of danger. It is a spiritual siren. Try as often as possible, to pray. Its time for me to go now. I need to let it loose before it weighs me down." Luke: "Thank you for coming Patrick." Patrick: "No problem. Take care of him, no amount of doctors can raise him now. He needs prayer." Luke: "I will do so." Patrick said his goodbyes and walked out. Sands: "So that just happened, huh. I'm never watching horror movies again. They're childish compared to what just happened." Dummi: "I almost peed my pants, I'm glad my kids are with their grandmother for tonight." Luke: "I'll check on Sibulele." the house felt much cleaner now and a breath of fresh air swirled around. My heart was at peace finally.

Friday evening I was in bed. My back was aching and I was sleepy. I'd fed Chris his medication and he passed out next to me in minutes. Lakhe came to massage me as usual. Once he was done, wrote on his phone. Lakhe: 'You need to rest, I'll be with Sibulele for the night. Just in case.' Me: "Be careful." Lakhe: 'I will be. Promise me to stay in this bed. You've been tired since morning and you need good rest. Stop stressing yourself and sleep.' Me: "I promise. I don't think I can get up anyway, I'm so sleepy." Lakhe: 'Good. I love you.' He kissed my lips. Me: "I love you too." I closed my eyes and immediately drifted to sleep. Lakhe stood up and walked to his closing. Dressing in black attire and beanie that would cover his face when necessary. He tip toed out the room with pajamas and slippers, dropping them in Sandile's room. When he walked out, he bumped into Luke. Luke: "Where are you off to?" Lakhe: 'Just a drive to clear my head. Luke, I need and trust you to take care of my family.' He showed Luke what he wrote. Luke: "I'm asking you one more time. Where are you off to?" Lakhe: 'It doesn't matter, just keep an eye on Sibulele.' Luke: "Lakhe, this journey of yours does not look good. I don't like how I feel." Sandile appeared behind him. Sands: "ready to go?" Luke: "Wait." he touched Lakhe's neck. Luke: "If something does not feel right, you'll feel it in your heart. And you will come straight back home. Whatever this is, can never be worth your life. Do you hear me Sandile, listen to your heart." Sands: "Gotchu mfethu. Let's move." they went to the car and drove out. Sands: "Well, you heard the man. One feeling and we're out." Lakhe rolled his eyes. Sandile raced to the harbor and parked in his revised spot. Sands: "everyone is here. Its 22:44. Time to review." Kyle joined them in their car. Sands: "its almost time for take off. Is everyone ready?" Kyle: "Yes, everyone is in position. Where's Sibu?" Sands: "He's not well. Let's go over this one more time." they wore their ear pieces. Kyle: "Wait..." he stared ahead. Kyle: "Oh no. No, no, no!" Sands: "What?" Kyle: "that...that guy. Standing over there. And that one, and the other one there on top." Sands: "Ya. And? What about them?" Kyle: "Look closely. That's the K.U.G. Those ninjas of Satan." Sands: "What? How would you know?" Kyle: "Their jacket. Look at the logo. My brother has that exact one." Lakhe showed Sandile his phone. 'Call Black.' Sandile dialed his phone. The call rang. Black: "Yello!" Sands: "Man. Where are you?" Black: "I'm at home. Why?" Sands: "Black, do you know anything about what's happening at the harbor?" Black: "Yes. Its closed down for the night until morning. Komander is moving his stock. Anyone who steps inside the lock down, will be killed. Instantly. Why do you ask?" Sands: "Shit."

Sandile pulled down his seat and held his head. Sands: "What do we do now." his phone rang again. Sands: "Black." Black: "Did you hang up on me?" Sands: "Yes." Black: "What's going on?" Sands: "You were supposed to tell us what is going on! You knew we were planning to be here!" Black: "No, you didn't tell me anything nor did you ask. I assumed you understood the concept of me delivering the stack meant there was going to be a day they leave." Sands: "That was days ago!" Black: "It would have been super suspicious if they left on the exact same day. Where are you?" Sands: "At the damn harbor and these soldiers with black jackets are walking around here! How the hell are we supposed to get out?" Black: "Crap. Okay look, you're at the same docking section as the last time right?" Sands: "Yes." Black: "Okay, at least you're safe for now. They move every hour though because they use the entire harbor. They start with the bodies, then move on to the gold and then drugs. They were supposed to start at 22:00. It takes about an hour and a half. Which means, by 23:30 they'll be done and move over to gold which is near you. You have about 10 minutes window every hour." Sands: "Black, you're confusing me. 10 minutes to do what?" Black: "to get the fuck out of there." Sands: "they are walking around all over this place! How the hell can I do that!" Black: "Man, you're in some deep shit. Let me come over. You said they're wearing the black jackets right?" Sands: "How many color jackets do you get?" Black: "There's 6. Each for different occasion. I cannot stress enough how important it is to get the dress code correctly. I'll be there in five minutes." he hung up. Kyle: "So what do we about our merch? We just leave it?" Sands: "I don't know if you're deaf dumb or stupid but the minute you step out of this car, you're dead. All of us are. You heard Black." Kyle: "Yes I get that, but-"

Sands: "but nothing. Komander is here to do his shit, we will come back another time to do ours. Because for one, I doubt they will ask first why we're here, they'll just assume we came to rob them. Or we're police." Kyle: "Okay." they waited for a few minutes. Kyle: "Do you think maybe Komander shows himself to his workers?" Sands: "I doubt that. It would be too much of a risk. I think there's just a limited number of people that know who he is. Like those that work directly under him." Kyle: "you mean the Komodity and Komfort and Kompany guys?" Sands: "Yes. There's probably a hierarchy. Him as the boss, the kom's who know him and then under them is another category then after that the Black's of the business." Kyle: "There is a whole lot of them though." Sands: "general workers, yes. But only the Kom guys have seen him I'm sure. You have to prove your loyalty." Kyle: "I wonder how. Maybe you have to kill someone." Sands: "That's too easy, all of them would be promoted. Its probably something heinous. Just the thought of it should make you shake. Do you want to join the KUG?" Kyle: "Absolutely fucking not. I don't have a death wish." Sands: "You have a lot of questions for someone not interested." Kyle: "I'm just curious. What could possibly be going through a person's mind that they'd join something like this?" Sands: "Three people you know joined. Frank, Black and your brother. Frank joined because he was a coward. Black was just plain stupid. So ask your brother." Kyle: "he said he needed the rush. Apparently the K.U.G gives some sense of responsibility and adrenaline rush." Sands: "I would've thought it was for the money." someone knocked on his window. Sandile drew out his gun at the sight of a KUG logo. Black: "Its me!" he whispered. Sands: "I would've shot you dead man! What the hell!" Black slipped in the backseat. Black: "Hi guys. Hello Mr G." Sands: "How are you going to get us out of here?" Black: "Oh yeah. You gonn drive out the same way you came in." Sandile turned around and stared at him. Sands: "And you couldn't tell me that over the phone?" he hissed. Black: "and miss the fun? No. Its much more complicated than that. You guys are in two cars. One car leaving, fine, but two? Sardines. Where's Serge and Bull?" Sands: "down there. Then how do we leave?" Black: "shhh..." he looked out of the window into the dark night. His head tilting slightly to the side. His eyes traveled in a straight line across the parking lot. Black: "Tell Sergio to start the car and not move. Now. Lights off too." Kyle spoke into his mouth piece. Black looked the other direction and scanned again. Then back to his first position. Black: "Drive slowly, 20km/h speed. The car should creep." Kyle recited. Black: "stop." Kyle: "Stop the car Serge." Black: "Pull down the car seats." Kyle repeated over the piece. They waited a few minutes. Black: "Drive." Serge's car moved slowly a few meters. Black: "turn right slowly." the car turned. Black: "stop. Same position as before." Kyle: "Brake and get down Serge." they waited a few more minutes. Sands: "Why do you keep stopping him. Its clear that side."

Black: "If they see something move. It won't be so clear. Drive." Kyle: "Go ahead Sergio." Black: "Almost there..... Stop!" Kyle: "Stop the car." Black: "Shit. That was close. Now we gotta wait." Sands: "for what?" Black: "In 15 minutes, the guards at the gate swap shifts. There's only a two minute window. We should move closer too. If we miss this chance, we have to wait another hour, which will be a shit fest for us. Keep your lights off." Sandile started the car with its lights off. He crawled it over the parking slowly and parked a few meters away from Sergio's car. Black: "10 minutes left. Pull down your seat Mr G." Lakhe pulled down the seats. They waited the full 10 minutes. Black: "Now. Sergio, drive out." the first car pulled out. Black: "No racing yet." Sands: "when do we go?" Black: "hold on..." he looked out the wind-screen. They waited. Black: "Slowly, drive out." Sandile slowly drove the car out and onto the road. A few meters out he looked at the rear mirror. Sands: "I think someone is following us." Black: "I told you two cars was a damn problem. Sergio, Race. Car. Maniac, NOW." Kyle: "You heard that Serg?" he spoke in his mouth piece. Black: "Sandile. You better set this road alight." Sands: "No need to tell me twice." he pressed the accelerator. Sands: "Still no lights?" Black: "they already saw us so There's no point in hiding anymore, we just need to lose them." Sands: "I know a place." he abruptly hit the brakes and turned left. Sands: "Still behind me?" Kyle: "Yes!" Sands: "alright." he turned right, making a U-turn and parked. Kyle: "What the fuck are you doing!! Are you trying to get us all killed!!" Headlights shone in front them. Sands: "Yes. Yes I am." Lakhe looked at his brother and shook his head. He set his rifle and opened the sun roof, standing up in his seat. He rested his elbow on the roof and peaked through the scope aiming at the driver, determined eyes stared back at him. Focused. Dangerous. There was no waiting now. Lakhe pulled the trigger, the bullet crushing into the wind screen and straight into the head of the driver. Then he aimed at the passenger. Kyle: "Sandile!!!!!" the car was coming at them in full speed. Lakhe pulled the trigger, hitting the passenger in between the eyes who was in turn aiming at him, his head bounced back. Sandile reversed, swerving to the right. The other car swooshed past them, missing them by centimeters and heading straight for the street light pole. It crashed into it, the light going off in a bang. Lakhe sat down in his seat. Sandile drove off. Sands: "Didn't know you're such a pussy Kyle." Kyle: "I just saw my life flash before my eyes. How can you still be calm?" Sands: "Your brother joined KUG for the adrenaline rush? Seeing death is my adrenaline rush." he turned left. Sands: "You hungry? We could stop at McDonald's." Kyle: "I'm fine." he snapped. Lakhe: 'Everyone goes straight home. We'll meet Monday.' He showed Sandile. Sands: "Alright. Sergio can you hear me?" Sergio: "Yeah man. Where you guys at?" Sands: "Just drop the car and go straight home. We'll meet up Monday." Sergio: "Sure thing. I'll tell you when I'm home." Sands:

"Cool." he dropped Black off since he lived closer. Then took Kyle home. Sandile drove to Kragga Kamma. Sands: "Its been a while since we done that. Reminds me of Durban. Also scares me to the shits because if Spho ever found out, she'd kill us." Lakhe wrote: 'She would do more than kill me. She can't know about this. This car needs to go.' Sands: "I'll sort it out. You go in there and be lover boy." Lakhe: 'gonn fuckin slap you.' Sands parked in the garage and closed it. They got out the car. Sands: "I'll sort it out in the morning. I think this entire city will be closed down tonight after they discover that car. Lakhe went to change into his pajamas in Sandile's room. Lakhe: 'Night.' He showed his brother. Sands: "Sure." Lakhe walked to his bedroom, opening the door slowly. He stood at the doorway staring at his pregnant wife. The blanket was on her legs. Her white silk nighty glistening over her belly. Christian was spread next to her, snoring. Lakhe closed the door and leaned on it. He made it home...

I woke up Saturday morning at 6. I knew I had somewhere to go to but I'd forgotten where. I looked around me. Lakhe and Chris were sleeping peacefully. I hated to wake him but I needed to know where I was supposed to go. Me: "Masilakhe." he opened his eyes slowly. Me: "Where am I supposed to go? I know I had an appointment today. Yet I don't know where." he just stared at me and went back to sleep. Wow. I got up and went to the bathroom. After the toilet, shower and brushing my teeth. I went back to the closet. I took out a nude bodycon dress and white sneakers, getting dressed. I went to do my make up, a natural look with a shock of red lipstick. Brushing my hair to a low ponytail and wearing shades. I took my beige coat off the rack and hung it on my shoulders. Lakhe came in the closet. He stared at me. Me: "What?" Lakhe: 'Where are you going?' Me: "I don't know. I just need to be ready in case I remember." he wrote down again. 'My appointment is at 8. Its just 6:30. And how are you going there without me?' Me: "Oh yeah! I'll make breakfast so long. Get ready. I'll come bath Christian." he pulled me in his arms. Me: "Good morning." he smiled and kissed my lips. Me: "you're ruining my make up. Let me go eat." he wrote on his phone: 'You look gorgeous. Like a sculptured cake.' Me: "You're a comparing me to A cake? Well better than an animal but still." Lakhe: 'I'll bath Chris. Let Vicky make breakfast. Go relax.' I kissed his cheek and went to the kitchen. Sandile was holding a bowl of cereal staring at it. Me: "Hey you." Sands: "Hi." Me: "bad morning?" Sands: "I haven't been up long enough to comment on the quality of the morning." Wow. That was a lot. I took out my frying pan and olive oil. Preparing to make my egg. I had a lot more other things to think about. Such as visiting Zingi, making sure if she needed anything. I'm sure she was overwhelmed by the baby and needs all the support possible. Especially this time doing everything by herself because Dumi didn't live with her anymore. I cracked the two eggs on the pan and watched them sizzle. On the side I made some toast. Sands: "I'm talking to you?" Me: "huh?" Sands: "I said, I'm feeling a little cranky I'm sorry." Me: "Oh okay." I took out a plate. He was beginning to annoy me because he had more to say and wasn't saying it. Me: "What is it?" I faced him. Sands: "Nothing." Me: "Why are you staring at me then?" Sands: "I, uhm....nothing." Me: "Sandile, you're gawking and its annoying me. You need to talk it out." Sands: "You look pretty today." Me: "I know and thank you. What can I help you with?" Sands: "Its just....when you get anxious, the first person you think of is who makes you happy. The person who loves you." Me: "Yes." Sands: "So what happens when you don't have that person. What do you think about? How do you deal with the anxiety?" Me: "Happiness can't always be dependent on another human. Primary happiness should come from within. Make it a hobby. A happy place. Something that won't disappear or let you down." Sands: "My hobbies are odd. They don't help my case." Me: "You want a girlfriend?" Sands: "No." Me: "then?" Sands: "I was just asking." Me: "Stay away from Zingi." I whispered. Me: "and don't you dare deny it." Sands: "I know I'm being a jerk-" Me: "I'm gonn stop you right there. You have best friends, a family in this house. I am not letting you ruin it." Sands: "I don't want her in that way. I just feel sorry for her. She has to go through all that alone. The baby is premature, she's got two other kids. Her husband left her and is in a wheelchair. I feel like I was the one who ruined her life." Me: "You both made the choice of sleeping together. Her husband also wronged her and you did not cause the accident. Yes, you contributed but you cannot take full blame for what happened. Everyone played a role. Pass me the sausages." he gave me the sausages. Sands: "Still." Me: "Stay away. You'll do more damage now." after I finished preparing my breakfast I went to sit and eat. Lakhe was in the bedroom dressing Chris after his bath. Chris: "I woke up at night to go pee and you were not here with us. Where did you go?" Lakhe pointed to the kitchen. Chris: "Why can't you talk?" Lakhe made a choking sound and fell on the carpet. Chris laughed. Chris: "you're silly." after dressing up they went to the kitchen for breakfast. I cleared up the dishes when they finished eating. The time was 7:40. Time to go. We went to my car. I put Chris in the back and secured the seat belt on him then got in the passenger. Lakhe drove to the hospital. We were only going there for the throat check up. We decided not to ask my dad anything about Chris yet. Upon arrival, we walked up to his office. After several knocks and no answer. Another doctor walked down the passage. Me: "excuse me. Do you know where Dr Ngudla is?" Doc: "He's on leave. He left yesterday." Me: "What? He told us to be here to check up on my husband's throat. He said nothing about leaving." Doc: "Well, I'm sorry. All his patients are referred to Dr Osborne. He's down the hall." he walked away. I could not believe it. I took out my phone and punched his number in. "You have reached the voicemail." I hung up. Me: "How could he do this to me?" My heart broke. First smuggles me a child then run off without a word? Lakhe held my hand and walked me to Dr Osborne. Even while I explained everything, my spirit was down. Why would my father do such a thing? Or is he running from me? The doctor examined Lakhe's throat. Doc: "This is looking good. You'll be in talking shape by tomorrow." We left the doctor's office. Me: "Lakhe...." he looked at me. Me: "My father....do you think he's involved in something?" he shook his head. Me: "Then I guess I need to find Tyrone.".....

Lakhe had typed all the way to the car and he gave me the phone to read. He got in with Chris. I read: 'Babe, For once can we not focus on other people. There's nothing but stress coming with this guy and we can't afford that. We're having a baby. We have to take care of Chris as well. Please let this go.' How the hell can I let it go? I gave him his phone and fastened my seat belt, keeping my mouth shut. He just sat and looked at me. I refused to look back. I had a lot of things to get done. I took my phone and texted my friend. 'Hey Zingi, Is it okay if I come over today? Will you be busy?' Send. She replied almost instantly. 'Please come Spho.' I felt so guilty that I didn't offer days ago. She's probably overwhelmed. Lakhe started the car and drove to the house. Me: "I'm going to take Chris with me, I'm going to Zingi's place." I announced. He just looked at me. When he parked the car in the driveway, he held my arm as I tried to get off. Me: "Zingi needs me, Lakhe. And I need this car to drive around in case she needs something." Lakhe: 'please don't be mad.' He wrote. Me: "I'm not." Lakhe: 'Leave Chris behind. We're going to have a boys day. I'm sure he doesn't want to sit and giggle with girls all day. Lol.' After reading this I gave him back his phone and got out the car. I went inside the house where Sandile and Dumi were chilling in their shorts. Sands: "Hi Spho." Me: "Hi." I went to the bedroom. Sands: "What did you do?" Lakhe put Chris down and sighed walking to the room. I changed my outfit because it was getting hot outside. I took out a soft pink dress that was just above my knees and my comfy sandals. I got dressed again. Lakhe stood by the door waiting. I took my bag. He held my arm. Me: "What?" he gave me his phone. Me: "Can I just go? Please? I just want to relax. This is why I'd gone to East London in the first place, to get away from stress and you. Can I just have a few hours with my friend?" he didn't move. I looked at what he wrote:

'Why do you always have to fight me?' Me: "When exactly did I fight you?" Lakhe: 'In the car? And now? What is it that I said that pissed you off?' Me: "You treat me like a child Lakhe. Nothing is ever okay until You do it." Lakhe: "Chasing after Tyrone, a guy we don't know isn't dangerous? What do you want with him? Its not like he would know where your dad is vacationing.' Me: "And I said okay. Can I go now?" Lakhe: 'Baby, what is it?' Me: "I'm suffocated Lakhe. I just want to get away from here." I walked past him and grabbed my keys on the way out the front door. I drove out the yard and headed straight for Zingi's house. Chris: "Why is aunty leaving me behind?" Sands: "Lakhe?" Lakhe sat down and showed him the phone. Lakhe: 'She needs space. Says she feels suffocated. I suggested she leave Chris.' Sands: "Chris, aunty will be back okay? For now, you're chilling with your uncle. Go to him." Chris: "I want aunty." Sands: "She went to the shop. She will be back." Chris: "I don't want to stay here with you." Sands: "and you think I want to stay here with you?" Dumi: "Geez Sandile. He's just 4." Sands: "So? He's rude." Dumi: "He's a child." Chris started sobbing. Sands: "Wow." he increased the volume on the TV. Dumi: "Christian? Come here." Lakhe picked the boy up and took him outside to the ducks. The child screamed at the sight of them, kicking and screaming. They walked back to the house. Dumi: "Just take him to her! Please! I cannot listen to that scream all day." Lakhe typed on his phone, showing Dumi. Lakhe: 'I wanted to spend time with him.' Dumi: "He clearly doesn't have you on his itinerary today. Take him to her." Lakhe went to collect the action figure and coloring books plus the crayons packing them in the bag. He took Chris to his car and they drove to Zingi's house.

When I'd arrived at Zingi's house she was barely holding it together. Zingi: "Thank God you're here Spho. Please hold her. I need to use the toilet." I took the infant in my arms and she ran to her bathroom. I looked down at Baby Lisa, she was so cute. Her big eyes stared back at me. Me: "Hi angel." I sat down on the couch. Zimi came to me. Me: "Hey sweetie pie. Look at you big sister. How are you?" she smiled. Me: "Say hi to Yonelisa. Isn't she cute." Zimi: "No." Wow. Me: "Why no baby?" Zimi: "Zimi cute, baby no." uh huh. Sibling rivalry already. Me: "So Where's Lulo?" she shrugged. Zingi finally came back and flopped on the single couch. Zingi: "I haven't had a proper bowel movement in days. Let alone proper sleep. Or a proper meal for that matter. How are you?" Me: "I'm fine. Zingi why are Zimi and Lulo here? I thought they were with your mom?" Zingi: "they were until last night. She had somewhere to go to." Me: "and you didn't call me why?" Zingi: "I didn't want to bother you Spho." Me: "but I want you to bother me. We love having the kids over. You can't be suffering alone, uDumi uhleli pha doing absolutely nothing watching television shows with Sandile. They must help you!" Zingi: "My mom is supposed to be back today. Its no big deal." Me: "So you just stay here alone?" Zingi: "Yeah." Me: "Have you asked Dumi to come back?" Zingi: "I don't want him back. We're just not the same anymore." Me: "Zingisa, Dumi is your husband. You need to forgive each other and get back to raising your beautiful children together. He regrets what he did and I know you do too. So why don't you stop tiptoeing around this whole thing?" she sighed. Zingi: "its not him...." Me: "Oh My God." Zingi: "Spho, I want to be with Sandile." Me: "I'm not going to be a part of this Zingi. Sandile is not the person you want to be with. Besides, he's best friends with Dumi now. Do you really think he'll throw away that friendship?" Zingi: "Then what do I do?" Me: "Remember Siyanda? What you told me? STAY AWAY." Yonelisa fell asleep in my arms. Me: "She's so beautiful." Zingi: "Thank you. When are you due?" Me: "In April. I cannot wait. I missed the whole of summer." she chuckled. Zingi: "How is Mr Lakhe?" Me: "Don't even go there. I feel like he deliberately irritates me so that I leave the house. He just says things, mean things." Zingi: "You need to give him a chance." Me: "Zingi, I'm tired. I just need a break." Zingi: "Lakhe can't stay away from you. Trust me. You are taking things personally because of your hormones and the house is full. You don't need a break. You need to tell them to leave." Me: "That's so cruel. They'll leave eventually." Zingi: "No they won't. You know why? Because you're too nice." Me: "and we recently got a foster child. His name is Christian and he's so cute." Zingi: "A foster child? Why?" Me: "His mother died in a car accident. He didn't have anyone so we took him." I heard a car door close. Me: "Are you expecting someone?" Zingi: "No." she went to the door. This baby was so precious. Chris: "Aunty!!" I looked up. Whaaat is going on? Me: "Hi sweetie." Lakhe walked in and sat next to me. Zingi: "So this is Christian?" Me: "Yeah. What are you doing here?" he gave me his phone. Lakhe: 'He was crying for you. He thinks you left him behind, I tried comforting him. He didn't want to hear it so I brought him here.' Me: "He had an allergy that made his throat swell so he can't talk for today." Zingi: "Ohh...I thought he was ignoring me. What in the world is he allergic to?" I looked at Lakhe. He looked at Chris, fixing his t shirt. Me: "What are you allergic to Masilakhe?" he shrugged. I got played. I cannot believe it. He went that far? How could I have forgotten? Oh, he was good. Me: "Should I put her down Zingi?" Zingi: "That won't be a good idea. She'll cry her lungs out." Lakhe had his arms open ready to take the baby. Me: "Isn't Sandile waiting for you at home?" he shook his head. Taking the newborn. Me: "Are you hungry Chris sweetie? Should I make you a sandwich?" Chris: "Yes please." I went to the kitchen to make a sandwich for him and juice. He ate quietly by the table. Lulo came in with his Caucasian friend Bentley, because that's a name now. But I guess its better than 'Hennessy'. What goes through your mind when you name your kids? Ben: "Hi Mrs Spho." Me: "hey Bentz, how you doing?" Ben: "I'm great. My dad is taking us on holiday in March. We're going to Spain." lol. This kid. I like him because he always has a conversation starter and its always about his dad. Almost as though he's compensating for something. Maybe absence? Me: "That's amazing! Are you excited?" Ben: "I guess." Me: "What did you do this December?" Ben: "My mom and I went to Dubai to visit my aunt." Me: "Your dad didn't go with?" Ben: "He had to work." See? Me: "Well I hope you have fun in Spain. I heard its amazing." Ben: "Really? Do you want to come with us?" Lol, I was being invited on a family vacation by a 6 year old. Me: "Me? That would be so much fun but I have to have a baby in April." Ben: "Oh, that can't be fun." Me: "Apparently not." Ben: "You should name her Dreams, because she just shattered yours. Gotta go." Lakhe held in laughter. Me: "Bye Bentley. Nice seeing you. As usual." Ben: "Is it? People say I'm not nice." Me: "You are. You're a very nice boy." Ben: "Thank you Mrs Spho. I hope your baby is pretty like you too." Me: "Thank you honey." he ran off to Lulo's bedroom. Christian followed him and they closed the door playing in there. Zingi: "I don't like that Bentley child." Me: "I think he's adorable. Akayifumani attention kokwabo. Dad always working and stuff." Zingi: "Yeah and I heard mama got her a boy toy too." she whispered. Me: "You lie!" Zingi: "hmmh girl, you should see him. He is a dream and a half." she took out her phone searching through it. Me: "Where did you get his pic." Zingi: "I stole it on instagram. He was my midnight inspiration." she showed me and I gasped. Me: "Is he real?" Zingi: "Yes! And get this." she inched to the edge of her seat and so did I. Lakhe moved closer. Zingi: "Hubby found out about it and secretly filed for the big D." I gasped. Me: "Oh no! What about the kids?" Zingi: "Paul probably won't want custody because of his traveling so Gina will take them." Me: "This is so sad. And Ben is so excited to go away on a trip, he hasn't seen him in months." Lakhe nudged me. Me: "What?" I looked at his phone. Lakhe: 'Paul Delores?' Me: "Yes." he typed quick. Lakhe: 'Pulled the divorce. Gina found some incriminating evidence about his company and threatened to expose him.' I gasped. Zingi: "What!?" I showed her. She gasped too. Me: "How do you know!" Lakhe: 'Paul is Gerard's business partner. He confided in him and Gerard came to ask me for advice.' I showed Zingi. Me: "So now what is he going to do?" Lakhe: 'His marriage has a divorce clause in it. If she passes a 7 year mark married to him, when they divorce she gets half his estate. This includes properties, cars, company shares. Everything. And its already year 6. If he can't find that evidence and destroy it, he's fucked.' Zingi: "But what if he kills her?" That was a high possibility. Me: "Do you think he would? She's the mother of his kids!" Lakhe: 'Still. She played him. He probably will do whatever it takes.' I was so worried. Me: "Stop him!" Lakhe: 'I don't even know him. He's Gerard's friend.' Me: "A woman is about to be killed, Masilakhe!" Lakhe: 'He won't kill her. He'd have to take care of the kids and he obviously can't do that.' Zingi: "At least. I thought it would be the Watterson tragedy all over again." Me: "Why does that sound familiar?" Zingi: "Three years ago, James killed his wife and both their children then went AWOL. He lived two streets away from here." Me: "My goodness!!" Zingi: "The police found him in the basement. He had hung himself." Me: "What had gone wrong?" Zingi: "It is alleged that Isabel had cheated on him and the kids weren't his. Apparently the doctor told him he was infertile. That's when he went on a rampage." Me: "But why would he kill the kids? What did they do wrong?" Lakhe gave me another nudge. Lakhe: 'What if he knew the kids' real dad? And he wanted to hurt him too?' Zingi: "Ooooh My God!!!! His brother!!!" Me: "What!!!!" Zingi: "At the funerals he was beyond hysterical. Nobody could calm him down. They had to sedate him. He was so distraught." Me: "So James knew, if he'd killed his brother it wouldn't do anything other than let him rest in peace. So instead, he wanted to torment him for the rest of his lives by murdering his kids? People are sick." Zingi: "If you think rich people don't have problems, count yourself lucky." Me: "Money really cannot buy happiness. Just an illusion. Something other people see as glittery not knowing how difficult it is to clean glitter." Zingi: "True that." I picked Zimi up from the carpet where she'd fallen asleep and took her to her room. I switched on the baby monitor and put it on the top shelf then left her in her bed. Zingi: "Did you hear the news this morning?" Me: "No, what happened?" Zingi: "You know the rumors of that Komander group associates thing. That serial killer guy that nobody knows how he looks?" Me: "Yeah." Zingi: "Well, They found a car in the early hours of this morning crashed into a street pole. The two people inside it shot dead. Unidentified guys, the police believe they're not from SA. Anyway, they had tattoos on their wrists and back, which further confirms the existence of this group. They're not sure what happened or how they ended up there but there's a witness." Me: "Why did they have to say it! This poor guy will be hunted down!" Zingi: "I know right? So I call Nessa, she's a big gossip with big boobs down at the station she says to me; this witness is so rattled they had to get him a doctor to start talking. He says it was as though he was watching a Hollywood movie." Me: "did he say what happened?" Zingi: "Not yet. They have to get him protection and a lawyer. I cannot wait for the story to come out." My phone rang. Mom. In the middle of such fresh hot gossip? Really? Me: "Hello ma." Zama: "Hi SpHo. Unjani mntanam?" Me: "I'm fine thanks ma, how about you?" Zama: "I'm fine sweets. I just wanted to let you know your dad and I are in St Francis for the weekend. He needed time off from stress." Me: "I wish You'd let me know before I went to the hospital at 8 in the morning for Lakhe's check up." she spoke to him in the background. Zama: "He says he forgot my angel. He's sorry." Me: "Okay."

Zama: "Would you like to talk to him?" Are you serious? Me: "I'm kinda busy right now. Maybe later." Zama: "Oh. Okay." Me: "I have to go ma. Goodbye." Zama: "goodbye baby." I hung up. Lakhe was giving the baby to Zingi. She had woken up. He came to kiss my cheek and walked out. Me: "for a second, I thought he'd never leave." Zingi: "I told you he can't stay away from you." she latched the baby onto her breast and fed her. I could hear the little gulps and it was making my heart skip a beat. Me: "Anyway what else is new.." we carried on with our chat.....

Lakhe stormed into the house furiously typing on his phone. Sands: "What now!!!" he took the phone. 'There's a witness from last night. He saw everything.' Sands: "WHAT!!!" Lakhe: 'It was on the damn news! How did you miss it when you're always watching TV!' Sands: "I don't watch the news!" Lakhe: 'If he waddles his mouth off to the cops and identifies me. Its over Sandile. Find Him. Now!!' Sandile jumped up and raced to his car. Dumi: "What's going on?" Lakhe: 'Nothing to worry about. Just taking care of some business. Where's Sibulele? Still weak?' Dumi read. Dumi: "Yes. He's in his room." Lakhe walked to the bedroom and knocked. Luke: "Come in." Lakhe stepped in. Luke: "Hi. Watched the news?" Lakhe: 'Get out.' Luke: "Did I say something wrong?" Lakhe glared at him. Luke: "I'll be in the lounge." he hurried out. Lakhe touched Sibulele's arm and wrote down for him. Lakhe: 'We need your help Sibulele.' Sibulele: "What's going on?" Lakhe: 'Last night went a little more crazier than anticipated.' He proceeded to tell him about what happened. Sibulele: "Well damn then." Lakhe: 'That's why you need to get better and help us.' Sibulele: "Get better from what?" Lakhe: 'Luke said you were still weak.' Sibulele: "I was. I'm fine now. I just enjoy sitting here chatting to him and doing nothing." he got out of bed. Sibulele: "Show me where it happened."

Sibulele and Lakhe got out the car and stood at the end of the street. Police tape was still surrounding the area. Sibulele: "So what happened?" Lakhe wrote down. Lakhe: 'We came from that road, stopped about seven meters in. The other car came through, I came out the sun roof and aimed at driver then passenger. Shot them both and we moved out the way, the car whizzed passed and hit that pole over there. Then we left.' Sibulele: "I can see how that's a problem. You see that light? Right opposite its shining directly to two houses. Lounge windows. Which means, anyone from those two houses could have heard tyres screeching and look out then saw it happen. Your witness is a resident between those two houses." Lakhe looked at him putting his hand over his shoulder. Sibú: "Now we need to find out who lives there which is easy. Let's go home." he got in the car. Lakhe wrote: 'How will you find that out?' Sibú: "Ohhh, but I never ask you about how you mastermind such large amounts of money for so many years without being caught." Lakhe: 'Guilty.' They drove off. Sandile was waiting for them at the gate at home as soon as they arrived. Sands: "I can't find this guy." Sibú: "I can. Give me a minute." Sands: "Sibulele, trust me when I say this-" Sibú: "I've trusted you more than enough Sandile. You have your skills, I have mine. I can find this person by the end of today. You will then plan how to get him, which is what you're good at." Sands: "Fine." he went inside the house. Sibú: "Why is he so mad." Lakhe: 'Not you. Something else is eating him. He's been in a mood all day.' He walked in the house. Dumí: "Nice to have everyone back considering I was left out of today's activities." Sibú: "To be fair I was unfairly taken out of my comfort zone." he went to his room. Lakhe sat next to Sandile then typed. Lakhe: 'What is it?' Sands: "Will you leave me alone?" Lakhe: 'Sandile, I'm not in the mood to breastfeed you. You clearly need to talk. I know you. Sooner rather than later you will explode into a hot lava mess. I don't want to be here for that, nobody does. Talk to me.' Sandile pushed the phone away and went to his room. Dumí: "What's wrong with him?" Lakhe shrugged and went to find Sibú. After entering the room he typed. Lakhe: 'I think he's feeling a bit useless. Do you mind including him? I can't deal with a Sandile breakdown. Not this week.' Sibú: "Of course. I'll talk to him. He's probably lonely." he went to find Sandile. Finding him in his room. Sibú: "My mans." Sands: "My brother sent you to come speak to me like I'm a zoo animal that needs to be tamed?" Sibú: "Yes. That's exactly what he did, but only because he's worried about you." he climbed on the bed. Sands: "There's nothing wrong, I just want to be alone." Sibú: "There's something wrong because the Sandile I know loves to be around people." Sands: "Sibulele, I'm tired. Please." Sibú: "Fine. I'll just sit here quietly. You can pretend I'm a stone." Sands: "I don't have stones in my bedroom, so you better walk the fuck out or I'll throw you out." Sibú: "A pillow then." Sandile stared at him quietly. Sibú: "I've seen that look million times before and no it doesn't scare me. I know your worst Sandile. I know that today is one of those days but I miss my mans so I'm staying here." Sands: "I'm not gay." Sibú: "Still my mans tho." Sands: "mxim." Sibú: "I sent a signal out for the witness, come look." Sands: "I don't care about that. I just need to sleep." Sibú: "Then sleep." Sands: "Sibulele ufunani kum?" Sibú: "Nothing. Just to hang out. Do I even need a reason?" Sands: "How the hell am I supposed to sleep with you looking at me like that?" Sibú: "You always watch me sleep. Why is it uncomfortable for you now?" Sands: "Man, get out." Sibú: "Fine but I'll be back." Sands: "Just go." Sibú walked out the room. Lakhe was waiting in the

After an amazing afternoon with Zingi and the kids, I got ready to leave. Me: "I'm taking the kids with me Zingi. Umamakho will contact me or come pick them up when she's ready." Zingi: "I can't let you do that." Me: "Yes you can and you will. Their father lives with us, he misses them. This is a great chance to bond with them. Also you can bond with your newborn without worrying about the kids." Zingi: "I guess. Its just very quiet here when they're not around." Me: "I know but you need to rest. The minute your mom arrives, she can look after the baby and you can sleep. Stress free." Zingi: "You're right." I took Zimi's car seat and went to attach it in my car. Zingi packed her kids' bags. Me: "everything set." Zingi: "goodbye guys. Mommy loves you loads okay?" she kissed her kids goodbye. Zimi: "Love you mom." Zingi: "love you too my little angel. Be a good boy Lulo okay?" Lulo: "Okay. Love you too." Zingi: "Bye Chris." Chris: "bye." he waved carrying his bag and little doll man to the car. Well its actually an action figure but they're still Superhero dolls either way. Lol. I started the car after making sure they were all buckled up and I drove out. Straight to McDonald's. I was going to buy supper. I had already texted Vicky not to cook, encouraging her to a night off going to the movies with her bestie, Stella. After buying everyone a meal, I drove home. Lakhe thinks he's super smart. Actually, he is. How could I have been blind to it? It was right there from word 'Allergy' and the symptoms. A little elevated from the last time though. Did he fake his throat too? Or was that just accidental bonus? I didn't trust it. My phone connected to the car Bluetooth rang. It was my dad. Right now was not the time. I don't know when the time would be right but it wasn't now. I answered the call regardless. Me: "Hello tata." Khaya: "Hi angel, how are you?" Me: "I'm fine. How are you?" Khaya: "I'm okay. I'm sorry about the appointment thing. We had this trip scheduled way back and I didn't anticipate Lakhe being sick." Neither did I. Wait, don't all your patients get sick? Isn't that how you make money? Almost makes it sound like an inconvenience. Me: "Its okay. We got Dr Osborne. He was nice." Khaya: "Hopefully by tomorrow morning Lakhe can be talking again. He's taking the medication and eating according to the meal requirements right?" I looked at the McDonald's packs. Me: "Oh yes. He most definitely is." Khaya: "That's good. Its great seeing you take care of him, honey. You're a great wife. He is lucky to have you." Me: "Thank you dad." Khaya: "Alright, we'll talk when I'm back. I love you and goodnight. Say hi to the boys for me." Me: "Will do. I love you too. Night." I hung up finally driving in the yard. Stella's car was gone so they've already left for the movies. Me: "Honeys, please bring the food in for me." Lulo: "okay makazi." I took Zimi out of her seat and carried her inside the house. Dummi: "my beautiful sweetheart." she jumped on her father's lap. Dummi: "Thank you Spho." Me: "You're welcome. Where's everyone?" Dummi: "In their rooms." Lakhe came out his, wearing socks and shorts. He kissed my cheek. The kids came in with McDonald's food. He stared at them clearly shocked. Me: "Dinner is served. Dummi, please call Sandile, utata, Nosi, Sibuh and Luke." Dummi: "Sure but Nosi left with Mam Stella." he rolled down the passage. Lakhe looked at me. Me: "Would you be a darling and get us plates baby? Your favorite ones, the rectangular shaped." he typed on his phone. Lakhe: "What am I going to eat?" Me: "I got enough for you and the family. I'll set the table." Lakhe: "I don't eat this food. You know that!" Me: "Ohhh baby don't. Its too early for this game." Sandile and Robert came to the table first followed by Luke then Sibuh. Sibuh: "Yum." Lakhe stood still as a building. Rob: "What's wrong son? You need a lawyer?" Sands: "Already? I'm still getting used to Spho's pampering so if you don't mind." Dummi: "What's going on now?" Me: "Sweetheart, we're still waiting for plates. Why are you standing?" Sibuh: "Ohhhh...damn." Sands: "and I'm hungry. So you might wanna snap it up." Lakhe moved closer to me and looked me straight in the eye. Me: "You would rather die than let me have some peace. I had the decency to let you know I'm okay, to save you the trouble of being worried and stressed about my safety the way I was with yours when you left me without a second thought. I humbled myself for you in front of your clients, respected you and did as you ordered while you and your client friends belittled women, talking about what YOU think should be on my to-do list everyday, tea appointments and skin treatments. You think I am too weak to be a business mogul. A leader. Someone who can actually shape your company for the better. Nothing I ever do in that office will be good enough for you, all you will see it as, is an attack. So after you did what you did, I needed time to destress and calm down, I took a holiday, to be in a peaceful surrounding. A calm atmosphere. Change of scenery. Just overall happiness which is good for me and this baby. Instead of apologizing and letting me have a minute of joy, you created a ridiculous chain of events that led you to the position of not being able to talk, cutting my vacation short to take care of you. Why do you do this to me? What have I ever done to you Masilakhe? You know what? Don't even answer that. I can't keep doing this to myself, and my child. So I quit, effective immediately. You'll have my resignation letter within the hour." I walked to my room. Sands: "I don't have any more space in my room for you to sleep." Rob: "You really messed up this time Masilakhe. My room is full too by the way." Luke: "I have plenty of space. And an extra fluffy pillow if you need one." Dummi: "Wow you guys. Really? Like a whole pack of vultures waiting to peck someone apart. Are you okay man?" Sands: "Firstly, Vultures

don't peck, let's start there. Actually before we even start, a whole pack? Really? Where did you go to school? Its a committee of vultures, or a colony of vultures. If they're circling, which is what I hope you mean, its a kettle of vultures." Dumisani: "Thank you for the English lesson Sandile, maybe when you're done you can register for a PhD." Sands: "I wouldn't give you the satisfaction." Rob: "You will need a miracle to fix this. Not to mention your company will take one hell of a knock losing a whole MD like this. Man, do I feel bad for you." Sands: "I mean I could take getting dumped, but my company getting dumped too? That should hurt. I'd take a couple of nights on the sofa any day than that. You really made God angry shame. He would've defended you but you let Him down." Sibisi: "Weren't you sulking an hour ago?" Sands: "I was not sulking but I have to admit, seeing this conversation has made my day. I'm glad I'm single. Imagine my company getting dumped because of me. So many people would cry because of me. I understand I'm a piece of shit but hell, what did the company do." Rob: "Okay, enough now. Masiyakhe it seems as thou-" Lakhe walked out the door. Rob: "And you wonder why his company got dumped." a car drove out the drive way. Dumisani: "I think he's upset, Sandile you should go after him." Sands: "for what? I didn't do anything wrong." Dumisani: "I would go if could but I can't. Yeah, he acted like a jerk but you can't kick a dog while he's down. You need to check on him." Sibisi: "I'll do it. I think I have an idea where he went." he walked out. Sands: "So you guys are trying to guilt trip me for something I didn't even do? Wow, if you thought Satan only resided in hell." he got up walking after Sibisi.

After carefully drafting the letter, I emailed it to him and to Head of HR. My phone rang in two minutes. "What do you mean you're quitting? We just landed the Telkom deal a few months ago and you're in charge of it. How in the world can you quit?" Me: "Sarah, my husband will take care of Telkom and all other deals. Everything will be okay." Sarah: "Spho, rather take maternity leave. Come back after the baby is born. I understand you're stressed right now, I'm a mom myself." Me: "I don't want to take leave Sarah." Sarah: "Is it the salary? We can increase it. I'll speak to Finance. I'm sure Mr Sobzi won't mind." Me: "Sarah, I've made my decision, unfortunately its not about money or the pregnancy. I enjoyed working with you guys and I'll miss you. I just can't stay." Sarah: "Are you sure there's nothing we can do?" Me: "100 percent sure." Sarah: "Alright then. I guess I'll have to process this. I can't say I'm pleased though. But its your decision and I respect you." How good it felt to hear that coming from someone's mouth. 'I respect you.' Me: "Thank you Sarah." we hung up. Chris came into the room. He climbed on the bed and looked at me. Chris: "Are you angry with uncle?" Me: "No sweetie, why do you think that?" Chris: "You looked angry when you talked to him and he left." Me: "I wasn't angry Chris. I was just having a serious conversation with him. That's all." Chris: "Well, it looked very serious." Me: "It was. I'm sorry okay. I didn't mean to startle you. Uncle will be back and everything will be fine." Chris: "What if he doesn't come back?" Me: "Trust me, he will." Chris: "My dad left and he never came back." Me: "I'm sorry about that, but uncle won't leave you and not come back. Okay?" Chris: "Okay." we cuddled in bed. Me: "Do you want to tell me what you remember about your dad?" Chris: "I don't remember him but my mom used to tell me about him." Me: "What did she say." Chris: "That I look like him. I have his smile and that he loves me." Me: "That's so sweet. You must be happy you have a handsome dad then." Chris: "but why didn't he come back to me?" Me: "Maybe he got busy honey. Life can sometimes get in the way. I'm sorry." Chris: "Maybe one day he'll come visit me." Me: "Yes. He might and he'll be so happy to see you." Chris: "You think?" Me: "Of course." Chris: "I'll be happy to see him too." Lakhe walked in the bedroom. I expected him to act macho and go grab his things and walk back out as usual when he is guilty. Me: "What do you think you'll say to him when he arrives?" Chris: "I don't know. Maybe Hello and give him a hug." Me: "hmm...and show him your toy perhaps?" Chris: "Well, it'll take more than one visit for him to meet Mr Courage." Me: "Of course, I agree." Lakhe hopped into bed and cuddled by the other side of Christian. Chris: "hello." Lakhe tickled his chin. Chris: "I said hello not make me laugh." he giggled. Lakhe held him and tickled his ribs. Chris: "Mama!!!!" he laughed hysterically in bubbles of joy. Me: "Baleka baby, iza ngapha." I hid him behind me, only to face Lakhe. Side by side, we stared at each other. I wasn't mad at all. Even the sad moment I felt when my heart broke wasn't there any more. I was just glad, he was here. Silently glad. Lakhe: "I'm sorry." no sound came out his mouth, I could only read his lips. He held my left hand and kissed it. Lakhe: "Please, forgive me?" Me: "You lied to me. Made a fool out of me. You had me run around stressing and caring for you when you knew deep down you did this deliberately." he took his phone and typed. Lakhe: 'Baby I know what I did was horrible. I'm sorry. I just wanted you with me. I wasn't thinking straight. When I was alone, it was scary, I hated how I felt so naked without you in my arms. I couldn't take that feeling. We haven't spent time together in a long while. I was desperate but you were never a fool. I guess I was being selfish. Sphe, its been so crazy here, I miss you. What I did was wrong, and I understand if you want to leave me." Me: "Why would I leave you? For what?" Lakhe: 'I just assumed that, when you said you're resigning. You wanted to leave." Me: "I'm resigning from the job yes, but not this marriage. I'm sorry, I have a part also in not spending time together. I accommodate everyone and end up tired before I get to you. I know I've been snappy and annoyed too, which is wrong. Its not your fault." Lakhe: 'Maybe we should go out. Take a drive, come back Monday. You, me and Chris.' Me: "Right now?" Lakhe: 'Yes. This one will be asleep by the time we get to the car anyway.' Me: "I think he's already asleep." he looked behind me and nodded. Lol. I don't think there's anyone that sleeps more than Chris. Its impossible. This child values his naps like nobody's business. Me: "Then I guess we have ourselves a road trip. Let me pack. Change him." I got out of bed and he changed Christian to warm clothes and boots. After I packed two bags. One for me and the other for them both, we were ready to go.

I woke up on Sunday morning to the smell of breakfast. My mouth began watering immediately. I opened my eyes and saw Lakhe setting the table. Yesterday, we had left the house and took a drive for real. It was disappointing to me because we didn't even leave the city. Me: "Hi." Lakhe: "Good morning my love." his voice a little hoarse. Me: "You couldn't wait could you?" Lakhe: "Not being able to talk was slowly driving me crazy." Me: "You were already crazy before you stopped talking." he climbed on the bed. Me: "Where's Chris?" Lakhe: "He said he's getting you a flower." Me: "I thought you said we were taking a road trip. We didn't even leave Port Elizabeth." Lakhe: "I got this place a few weeks ago when we started living in a circus. I thought this could be our little hide out for some time." Me: "Is this where you bring all your girlfriends?" Lakhe: "Only the ones I like, yes." Me: "I thought we agreed this wasn't serious. It seems you are going a little too fast Mr Sobz." Lakhe: "I remember our agreement. Just tired of hiding out in hotels all the time. My wife is already suspicious." Me: "And you think a private townhouse in your name isn't suspicious." Lakhe: "Would be if it was in my name, but my wife doesn't know yours." he kissed my lips. I kissed him back. Chris: "Euw." he stood by the door. Lakhe: "forgot he's even here." he whispered. Me: "Hey you. How did you sleep?" Chris: "Great. I love my room." he walked in carrying two flowers. Chris: "Here you go. Morning sunshine." Me: "awww this is so sweet. Thank you so much Chris. Morning my angel." Lakhe: "breakfast is served." Chris: "You can talk?" Lakhe: "Yes. My throat is fine now. You're a smart little fella, aren't you." Chris: "I guess. Can I watch TV while I eat?" Lakhe: "Mama?" he looked at me. Me: "Yes, as long as you finish your food." Chris: "thank you." he took his plate and went to the lounge. Lakhe: "We have a few minutes by ourselves." Me: "Erh no. The last thing we need is a 4 year old walking in on us having sex. Eat." Lakhe: "I'm taking him to Sandile for the day." Me: "I don't really trust Sandile to look after a whole human being."

Lakhe: "You're right. I think Dumi will be a better candidate. Anyway, speaking of kids, what are we going to do about Chris?" I heard a giggle in the lounge. Lakhe: "What is he watching?" I listened to the sound the TV was making. Me: "Mickey Mouse clubhouse." Lakhe: "Okay. So, do we keep him?" Me: "How do we just keep him? If we keep him, then that means we're supporting what my dad did." Lakhe: "Well, my father says its legal. He looked at the papers so did Dumi. The only creepy part is why Tyrone was still there when he had a flight to catch and why was he so willing to sign the child over." Me: "What if the child is related to him in some way?" Lakhe: "but why would he want to give him away then? I'll have to get someone to look into this guy." Me: "You didn't want me to snoop." Lakhe: "Yes because you're pregnant. I don't want to put you in any danger. Anyway, I'll get a lawyer and a social worker. Hopefully, Chris will belong to us by the end of the month, I want to enrol him at school too." Me: "You already thought that far?" Lakhe: "Of Course. I want to make sure he's in a perfect school. With lots of activities and a great education system." Me: "Lulo's school is amazing." Lakhe: "Well....." Me: "What?" Lakhe: "Lulo's dad is a lawyer and mom is a salon owner." Me: "And? What's the difference?" Lakhe: "Chris' parents are CEO and MD of one of the largest companies in the country. Have shares in the biggest hotels. Worth millions. There's the difference." Me: "You're already in competition? We haven't even signed the papers." Lakhe: "I just want what's best for him." Me: "What's best for him is a comfortable learning space. Our net worth has nothing to do with it." Lakhe: "It has everything to do with it. I don't want him to be left out of things just because he has wealthy parents. I don't want him to feel uncomfortable because of other people's situations." Me: "Oh My God. You're fixing your life through him." Lakhe: "I'm not-" Me: "You are! That's why you want to adopt him. So that he has the most perfect life possible. You felt uncomfortable because your parents were rich? Be honest." Lakhe: "Yes I did. When Rob adopted me, I wasn't used to expensive things, not even normal things. I'd come from a poor home. Then lived in an orphanage and was picked on a lot there. So, when I moved into this huge house with him and Stella. I was an only child and very overwhelmed. Part of the reason why I never spoke. At school, he'd take me with that big car and everyone would stare at me like I'm an alien. I got friends but they too only liked me because of my family wealth. My dad being the superstar he was as well. It was only when Sandile came along I felt more comfortable because I had someone to share this with." Me: "I'm sorry about your nice life experience baby but Chris is fine. He is a happy child. You need to trust that he will be okay. If not, we will find a way to make it right." Lakhe: "Okay." Me: "Good, so I'll register him at Lulo's school. We'll need a heads up from the social worker though." Lakhe: "Fine." Me: "Don't sulk. This school is amazing. Lulo plays rugby and Zimi does ballet. Chris might find something he likes too. Like a musical instrument. That would be lovely." Lakhe: "I guess." We ate our breakfast. Lakhe: "So the day after you left me, the lawyers came and told me there is someone who confessed to killing Dez." Me: "What!! And you didn't think of telling me?" Lakhe: "You were gone baby, and when you came back I couldn't talk. Anyway, Quincy is trying to figure out who the guy is. My question is, what made him confess? I was the only suspect. He literally would have gotten away with it." Me: "Well we just need to thank God. No matter what the reason of this person's confession." Chris came in the room again holding his plate. Chris: "Finished eating." Me: "Good boy! Are you full?" he shook his head. Lakhe: "let's get you some more then." they went to the kitchen....

In the main house, Sandile was in the lounge waiting for breakfast. Sibulele in the kitchen, making the breakfast. Rob came to sit followed by Stella and Vicky. Rob: "Where's Spho and Masilakhe?" Sands: "They left last night." Rob: "I remember them leaving, didn't they come back?" Sands: "No tata." Stella: "Where did they go?" Sands: "because I'm The Herald? I know everything?" Rob: "Okay Wow. Why are you so spicy?" Sands: "Sibulele has been in that kitchen for three hours. The smoke detector has gone off twice. I'm about to eat my hand!! I'm hungry and- You know what, fuck it." he grabbed his keys and walked out to his car. Dumi: "Where's he off to?" Rob: "Who knows with Sandile." he picked up Zimi tossing her in the air. Stella: "Vicky and I are going to church darling, we'll be back later." Rob: "Can I have my black card back?" Stella: "Why would you think I have your black card? And aren't all your cards black?" Rob: "I know it was you who took my card Stella. The Investec one. Only you and God, knows how you manage to spend with it. Nonetheless, I want it back." Stella: "I don't have your card." Rob: "I'm not an idiot." Stella: "Neither am I." Rob: "Is this about that vanishing cream of yours you think I stole? What the hell would I do with it?" Stella: "it has diamond exfoliators Robert! You know what you did with it! Do you know how much that thing costs?" Rob: "No, how much?" Stella: "Mxim!" Rob: "I bet my bank card knows. You have your own money and a degree. What do you want from me!!" Stella: "I don't have your card!!!!" Rob: "Then who else would take it? Nobody else in this house knows my pin!" Stella: "Maybe its in the exact same place you left my vanishing cream then!!!!" Rob: "I don't have your stupid vanishing cream!!!!" Stella: "I'm leaving!" Rob: "open your purse!" Stella: "excuse me!" Rob: "You heard me. Open. Your. Purse." Stella: "I will do no such thing Robert Monwabisi Sobukwe!!" Rob: "You took my card!!" Stella: "When did I take it!" Rob: "Then give me the purse." she gave him the bag and he looked through it. Rob: "I'm opening your wallet." Stella: "I can see that. It boggles my mind why you still ask for permission when you practically accuse me of theft." he gave her back her things. Rob: "I know you took it. Where did you hide it?" Stella: "I will strip butt naked if I have to, I did not take your card!" Dummi: "Please don't." Rob: "If I hear another alert on my phone and you dare come back here with new things. All 9 sections of hell will break loose. Try me." Stella: "Congratulations Robert!! You've managed to anger me on a Sunday right before a church service." she stomped out. Robert went to his room. Sibulele: "Breakfast is served- Where's Sandile?" Dummi: "He's having a Sobz moment." Sibulele: "a what?" Dummi: "All members of the Sobukwe family act a little crazy at the same damn time. Sandile stormed out of here without an explanation, then his mom and dad started yelling their throats out and she left, now Rob locked himself in his room. A Sobz moment." Sibulele: "That's some creepy shit. Where the kids?" Dummi: "playing outside. Zimi!! Lulo!! Come in here." they rushed in the house. Sibulele: "So its just the four of us. I'll go find Luke." he went down the passage. Nosi tiptoed into the house. Nobody had noticed she had gone out the previous night and by Gods grace nobody would notice her come in. Zimi: "Nanku." except Zimi. Dummi: "Hey." he looked up. Dummi: "Where have you been?" Nosi: "I just took a stroll." Dummi: "With high heels in your hand?" Nosi: "I know what it looks like but can we keep it between us please?" Dummi: "You want me to lie?" Nosi: "No, not at all. Nobody will ask, so you won't have to tell. Where are my parents?" Dummi: "Mom went to church, your dad in his room looking for his bank card." Nosi: "Shit! He noticed?" Dummi: "You took the card?" a door opened. Nosi: "I borrowed it. I'll put it back." she ran to her room. Sibulele: "So I guess its the five of us." he came to the dining table with Luke. Robert came back out his room. Rob: "I'm going golfing for the day. If anyone asks." Dummi: "You're really going golfing?" Sibulele: "I'll pack a lunch." Rob: "I'm not going with you two today. Stay here." Sibulele: "and do what?" Rob: "find something. I'm not really going golfing!" he hissed. Dummi: "why are you whispering? There's nobody here." Luke: "Where are you going?" Rob: "I'm going on a date." Sibulele: "I knew it. Spho chose you that outfit, didn't she? You look too dapper for golfing." Dummi: "Is that why you were looking for your black card. Trying to impress on the first date huh." Rob: "Impress what? Imagine me carrying a black FNB card on a first date. She'll think I'm a chancer." Sibulele: "You know to us regular people, FNB on its own, issa lot. Imagine it matte black. That's just dangerous." Dummi: "Yeah, you passed the rich line. Should change your name from Robert to Richard. Richard Wealth Sobukwe. Sounds about right." Sibulele laughed. Sibulele: "I should borrow you my card. The normal gold one." Dummi: "No, we need a Capitec card actually. This will test her loyalty. If she flees, she's not the one." they laughed.

After Lakhe washed the dishes, I bathed Chris and dressed him. He wore a white plain t shirt and jeans with elastic on the ankles. Instead of the sneaker, he chose to wear his brown sandal and went to the kitchen to show Lakhe. I made the bed and jumped in the shower. When I was done I took out my beige bodycon dress. Lakhe: "I love these cute dresses. Showing my baby off." he kissed my tummy. Me: "thank you. What will we be doing today?" Lakhe: "We can drive to the Elephant park. I'm sure Chris will love it." Me: "Okay, Go shower so long." I kissed his chin. Chris: "Someone is knocking at the door." he yelled from the lounge. Lakhe: "I wonder who that is." we went to the front door. When Lakhe opened, Sandile was leaning on the wall with his hands in his pockets. Great. Lakhe: "How the hell did you find us!" Sands: "You're really going to ask me that? Me?" he walked in. Lakhe: "the whole idea of leaving was to get breathing space." Sands: "Without me?" Lakhe: "I'm trying to bond with my family Sandile." Sands: "Did you make breakfast?" Lakhe: "No, leave." Sands: "and go where?" he took out his phone. Sands: "You throw me out and I bring them all here. I got all the time." Lakhe: "This is a three bedroom house." Sands: "Gotta keep the yoppa on me, I got all kinds." Lakhe: "What are you saying!" Sands: "Basically, Try me." Lakhe: "Fine. What do you want?" Sands: "Breakfast." Lakhe: "There's an extra plate and you better be done when I'm done dressing. We had plans." Sands: "When are you coming home?" he sat on the bar stool. Lakhe: "When we feel like it." he walked to the bathroom. I warmed up the plate in the microwave. Sands: "I won't tell anyone where you are unless you keep me a plate." Me: "What's going on with you lately. You've been cranky. More than the usual." Sands: "I'm not cranky." I took the plate out the microwave and stared at him. Sands: "How could you leave me behind, I'm your favorite." Me: "The house is too full. We just needed time alone." Sands: "but Chris is here." Chris: "I can hear you." Sands: "Why does he get to come along?" Me: "he's the child. We certainly can't leave him with you." Sands: "You've got a point there." he took the plate. Sands: "thank you. By the way I think Sibuburnt your kitchen. He tried making breakfast. For three hours. The smoke alarm went off more than 3 times. You might wanna make this your permanent home." Me: "Thank you for the update. How is everyone else?" Sands: "I don't really care. This is good bacon. Is it from Woolworths?" Me: "Yes." Sands: "They always have the best." Me: "Its why I buy it. Sandile...." Sands: "I know you're trying to figure me out and understand why I'm like this." Me: "that's because you're my brother in law. I care about you." Sands: "No, you're trying to protect your kids because you don't know what I might do." Me: "hayi Sandile." Sands: "I will never hurt you or your children. Ever." Me: "Why do you find it so difficult to let someone else love you? I'm your sister. Why can't you unclog your pores and relax for once?" Sands: "unclog my what?" Me: "When I ask what's wrong, I genuinely care. I will run after you if I can but I mean look at me man! No Sandile." Sands: "So now I'm getting yelled at again?" Me: "just eat." he ate quietly. Chris: "You too much of a big boy to be sad. You know what I do when I'm sad?" Sands: "Chris, I don't care." Chris: "I sing my duck song. Let's do this." Sands: "You're scared of ducks but they're your motivation?" Chris: "That's why I sing." Sands: "I don't want to sing." Chris: "Then you'll dance." Sands: "Spho-" Me: "listen to the boy. He knows what he's talking about." Chris: "Quack quack quack, join the duck parade." he danced pulling Sandile. Chris: "Waddle, waddle, waddle, waddle, watch them wave. Bums up, head down, shake your feathers all around, everybody dancing at the duck parade!!!" Sands: "Fine!! Fine! I'm happy now! See?" Me: "Coward." I whispered. Chris: "You gonn let me know when you need me." he walked back to the lounge. Sands: "That is the most traumatizing song I've ever heard." Me: "Wait until you hear the other one. Then you'll know trauma." he looked at his phone, walking to the bedroom. Lakhe was getting dressed. Lakhe: "Because privacy is a myth here. Why was Chris singing his happy song?" Sands: "He thought I was upset. When is he going home?" Lakhe: "He isn't. This is his home." Sands: "What?" Lakhe: "You heard me. So what you want?" Sands: "Sibulele found the witness. He says he'll be moved in two hours. We have to act fast." Lakhe sighed. Lakhe: "And I thought I'd get a break and take my family to an elephant park. We gonn have to fight." Sands: "Why can't you just once stop making everything about you!!! I'm part of your family too!" Lakhe: "Sandile you're old you're supposed to be having your own!" Sands: "Oh so you're trying to say I'm a failure now? Mr big shot?" I walked into the room. Lakhe: "What the hell is wrong with you!! Why are you blaming me for what you're doing to yourself!!" Sands: "I thought You'd have my back whenever I needed you Lakhe!!" Me: "What is going on!!" Sands: "Clearly I'll never be good enough for you." he walked out. Me: "What did you say to him!" Lakhe: "Sandile is being childish." Me: "Lakhe you can't say he's childish. You're his big brother. Xa ekhubekile who must he turn to!" Lakhe: "His dad!" Me: "Have you thought maybe his dad isn't available? Stop being selfish and go talk to your brother. Go." he took the car keys and walked out. Sandile drove out the yard, Lakhe followed after him. After a few kilometers stopping at the red robots together. He pulled down his window. Lakhe: "1 hour max." Sands: "iss all I need. I called Sibulele. He's meeting us at the warehouse." Lakhe: "cool." Sands: "and P.S you are so going to hell. You staged a fight and lied to your wife, the universe gonn punish you

man. Haha." Lakhe: "It'll start with you." Sands: "Gonn have to catch me first." he sped off.....

In the warehouse, the three guys stood around the table together. Sibü: "They will be changing shifts in about 35 minutes. We need to make it snappy. This place has a back entrance. Once the police car parks out front, the two officers will leave the house, the ones in the car get out the car and into the house. Which means we have less than a minute to get in, take him and get out unseen. Unless....." Sands: "Unless what." Sibü: "Unless you're in for a blood bath. These officers are heavily armed. This is not just any witness. This is a very important person to them because they're the only one that saw what happened by detail to the death of two Komander employees. I'm sure the police think, Komander did this. They're doing all they can to prove it. This is why they move his location every few hours, they know he's a wanted man." Sands: "Fine. We need to get moving. There's not much time left." he wore his beanie. Sibü: "We'll take my car. Let's go." he took the oversized duffel bag on the floor and they walked to the car. Sandile got in the driving seat, waiting till everyone was inside then sped off. Sands: "direct me." Sibü: "keep on driving I'll tell you when to turn." after 10 minutes of driving had past. Sibü: "Right at the next light." Sandile turned right. Sibü: "second street on your left and park." Sandile turned and parked. Sibü: "this is the back street we'll use. This house isn't occupied, the old lady that lives here is at church." Lakhe: "So the target house is behind it on that other street?" Sibü: "Yes." he pulled out a small bottle and syringe. Sands: "What the fuck?" Sibü: "I got this from Black. This will paralyze our victim for a few hours so we pump this in them on sight, they fall limp, we carry them out. No hassle." Sands: "I thought we'd just shoot them in the head three times and leave. Why do we got to take him with us?" Sibü: "You really want to shoot someone on a Sunday?" Sands: "Even if I shoot them tomorrow, they'll be dead nonetheless." Sibü: "Time to go. Drive this car in this yard." Sandile backed the car up the driveway then covered their faces with balaclavas. Lakhe: "I'll check the coast. Sibü will move in and give him the shot. Sandile swoops in right after and catches them. Both of you carry him out to the car, I stay behind you to cover you. Once we're in the car, we out of sight. This is a risky job. We need to be quick." they got out the car, swiftly moving to the back yard and looked over the wall at target house. Sibü: "okay I see the two officers. They're getting ready to leave." Sibü filled up the syringe. Lakhe: "Where's the damn witness!" he whispered. Sibü: "can't see him yet." Lakhe bent down and took out his gun attaching the silencer. Sibú: "moving to the lounge. I hear a car. Let's go." they jumped over the wall landing softly on their feet like cats. Lakhe walked quickly over to the door, pointing his gun down. Lakhe: "Sibú." Sibú stepped in the house straight for the bedroom. The officers were standing at the gate, relaying the evening's report and the next location. Sibú found the witness in the bathroom brushing teeth. He sunk the syringe on the neck and caught them falling limp. Sandile helped him carry the witness out the back. They climbed over the wall struggling with the heavy body. The officers were done talking, two moving to the car. The other two toward the house. Lakhe ran to the back wall and jumped over too. Sandile and Sibú shoved the body in the boot and they all got into the car. Sandile driving off quietly. Sibú finally let out a sigh. Sands: "Did your informant bother to let you know the witness is a woman!" Sibú: "I'm sure he didn't know." Lakhe: "What are you two planning to do with this woman?" Sands: "You were the one who wanted us to find her." Lakhe: "How could I have predicted it would be a woman." Sands: "It doesn't matter. What matters is, she threatens our lives by her existence." Lakhe: "Do whatever it takes. I want her gone. Send her to China for all I care." Sands: "As long as she's alive Lakhe, you'll never know peace. She has to die." Lakhe: "I don't want a woman's life on my conscience. Or yours for that matter. We don't kill the innocent. I'll think of a plan by the end of the day. For now, keep her in the warehouse basement." they drove into the warehouse underground parking. Lakhe: "I have to go. Can I trust the two of you to not do anything sketchy?" Sibú: "Yes sir." Lakhe took off his beanie tossing it in the car then walked away.

Robert came home mid afternoon with a bright smile on his face. Dumi: "How was your date?" Stella: "date?" Rob: "Yes Stella, I went on a date and it was magical." Stella: "Sorry to tell you this but you're incredibly boring. The only reason someone would tolerate you is for a free meal and money." Rob's phone rang. Rob: "Hold that thought." he fixed his voice and answered his phone. Rob: "Robert speaking." Stella: "Where?" Rob: "Hi Noma, how are you?.....I'm fine thanks.....did you get home safe?" Stella: "Its mid day." Rob: "I had an amazing time too. Did I tell you how stunning you looked?" Stella: "urgh." Rob: "Don't worry about that sound its just the kettle. So tell me, when am I seeing you again?" he got up and walked to his room. Vicky: "I will start dinner." Stella: "No. Don't. I will do it Victoria." Vicky: "then I'll help." they walked to the kitchen. Vicky: "I know it hurts." Stella: "Don't be silly Victoria. Robert can do as he pleases. I myself will be going on a date too." Vicky: "you don't have to Stella." Stella: "I'm not doing it for him but for myself. My personal trainer has asked me more than once to join him for a drink. Maybe I should say yes." Vicky: "Isn't he 20?" Stella: "He's 28. Which is basically 35." she took out her phone. Stella: "You can continue with dinner. I am going out." Vicky: "Stella-" Stella: "foodies honey." she walked to her room. Robert came to the lounge and switched to the sporting channel. Rob: "Where is Sandile and Sibulele? You'd swear these kids are allergic to this house." Dumisani: "If only I knew. I'm just glad my kids are here keeping me company. Tell me about your date." Rob: "Well, she's pretty and funny too. I had a wonderful time. She's a nurse at Greenacres hospital. We met the time Lakhe went in for his allergy." Dumisani: "While your son is sick, hanging on his life by a thread. You find time to pick up women?" Rob: "It was on Friday morning. He was fine by then. Do you think Stella is jealous?" Dumisani: "Nope. She's happier than she was when she came in. Why?" Rob: "When is she thinking of giving me back my bank card?" Dumisani: "I doubt she's the one that has it." Rob: "Who else would take it? Masilakhe! How dare he!" Dumisani: "Except Masilakhe is grown and has his own money." Rob: "You're right. And Sandile isn't really into money. If he took it, he'd buy a car for himself and give me back the card saying thank you." Dumisani: "That boy is a class act." Rob: "You don't know the half of it. Nosi is my baby, she'd never take the card. So who? Sibulele?" Dumisani: "Not his character." Rob: "I really don't know who. Stella is the only person with enough motive." Dumisani: "I don't think she took it." Rob: "Then wh-" Stella walked out the passage to the front door. Rob: "Where are you going?" Stella: "Out." Rob: "Stella where is my card." Stella: "This is boring. I won't be back till late. Don't wait up-" Rob: "Where the hell are you going talking about don't wait up! The fact that you're all boujee'd up and going out speaks volumes! I swear, if you use that card-" Stella: "Yeah, yeah, all 9 sections of hell will burn. If I had your bank card. I'd be in Rome right now, walking through those ancient buildings taking selfies. Then I'd book a trip to the Vatican City and visit the Pope. Then I'd buy him dinner. After that, go shopping in Milan. Buy a factory or two. Fly to New York attend a fashion week dressed in head to toe Versace. Following week, visit Paris. Shop at Givenchy. Then go buy my children matching Burberry coats. Find a young french artist, fund his work, buy him a studio then come back, and tell you all about it. Now if you don't mind, I'm going out." Rob: "I know for a fact you're planning to do exactly this. Stella I am warning you." Stella: "I don't have your stinky card." Rob: "I dare you to do this." Stella walked to her car. Rob: "She has it all planned out. She wants to bankrupt me!" Dumisani: "I don't think that's possible." Rob: "That's it! I'm calling the police." Dumisani: "You can't tata. You can't prove she took it. Maybe you misplaced the card. I'll help you look." Rob: "I'm giving her 24 hours.".....

Sibulele and Sandile sat in the warehouse basement with the captive. She looked at her feet. Her ankle chained to a pole. Her wrists locked together. They had put a blanket over her. Sands: "Are you fully awake?" he asked her. Its almost evening and You've been out since morning." She: "Who are you?" Sands: "don't worry about me. Would you like something to eat?" she shook her head. Sands: "Fine with me." Sibulele: "Come on sisi, you need to eat to keep your strength." She: "Are you going to rape me?" Sands: "I am offended you even asked." he shuffled the cards in his hands. She: "What do you want from me!" Sands: "Tell us about Friday evening. What you saw." She: "Nothing." Sands: "Alright then." he stacked a few cards in front of Sibulele then himself. She: "I swear I won't tell anyone. Please just let me go!" Sands: "You were ready to tattle tale a few hours ago to the police. How does it feel that they can't even protect you. Imagine if the bad people came to get you, then it would have been different kinds of hell for you. Luckily, we got there in time. Now let's play a game, if you guess this correctly I'll let you go, if you don't, we gonn sit and chat some more. Here's the question: Do you think we're the good or bad guys? Hint, There's no correct answer." he chuckled. Sibulele: "Come on bra." Sands: "I'm just having a conversation." Sibulele: "here's some water sisi." he gave her the bottled water. His phone rang in his pocket. Sibulele: "excuse me." he took it out and answered. Sibulele: "hello?" "Sibulele..." Sibulele froze at the cold dark voice in his ear. "I need to see you. Tonight." Sibulele: "Of course.".....

Sandile looked at Sibulele. Sands: "who the hell was that on the phone with you." Sibulele: "Because you have to know every detail of my life." Sands: "Yes. I will not let you go through what you went through again." Sibulele: "Then here. Call him back and admit you don't trust me." he gave him his phone. Sands: "If you're trying to use reverse psychology, its not going to work." He redialed the last number. After two rings, someone answered. "What now?" Sands: "Who's this?" "Are you serious? We just spoke a minute ago." Sands: "You were speaking to my brother not me, and since he's a sneaky son of a bitch, I need to know who you are." "I'm Orlando. He hired me as a private investigator to look for his dad." Sands: "Okay. Thanks bye." he hung up. Sibulele grabbed his phone. Sands: "I had to check, the last time I let you run wild, you got possessed and was Komander's minion." Sibulele: "You are the last person I expected to not trust me. Honestly fucking disappointed in you." Sands: "I'm trying to look out for you. The only thing that will make me sleep better at night is knowing you're safe! If I overstep the line every once in a while, Tough!

I am not going through that crap with you again!" Sibü: "And rubbing it in my face every chance you get that I was possessed as if I went out there looking for a demon." Sands: "No you didnt-" Sibü: "I can't do this with you. I'm leaving." Sands: "You can't leave!" Sibü: "Watch me." Sands: "Are you honestly mad that I questioned your actions?" Sibü: "its not you questioning anything but you not trusting me. Do you think it was fun not being in control of your own mind, body and spirit? Do you think I enjoyed the feeling of being numb and not caring? Do you think I especially liked the part where my body was forcing me to kill my sister. I had to fight for my life and almost lost it. To think that you're assuming I'd go back to all that pain is just damn shameful man, I don't know what kind of monster you think I am." Sands: "Mans, I'm sorry." Sibü: "Keep your apology. I see how you guys are mindful of me and always watching my every move at home as if I'm some mutant. What happened to me was not my fault, I didn't ask to get kidnapped, I didn't ask him to do what he did to me, so just...just leave me alone." he had tears in his eyes. Sands: "What did he do to you?" Sibü walked out of the warehouse. Sands: "Can I trust you not to move?" he asked the witness. She nodded. Sands: "What am I saying. Of course I can't. Women are tricky." Witness: "Your brother was possessed by a demon?" Sands: "As you heard, he doesn't like talking about it." Witness: "Do you blame him? He's already embarrassed and you made him feel as though he asked for it." Sands: "Do me a favor and put them lips together. Leave me alone while you're at it." he sent a message on his phone. Sands: "Now I need to get you a baby sitter that will treat you okay. Black is too busy, Bull is not that safe, he looks like the type of guy you might wanna stay away from in prison, Ky has become a whiny pants all of a sudden, Frankenstein is in a 12 foot grave, oooh I know who." he sent a message. Sands: "he'll be here in 44 minutes, no that can't be right." he called the number. Sands: "Serge? I'm not waiting 44 minutes for your ass." Sergio: "I meant 4 minutes my Sandcastles. I'm almost there." Sands: "alright." he hung up. Sands: "So its actually 4 minutes. How are you doing?" Witness: "I need the toilet." Sands: "Keep it in. This will all be over soon, I swear." she started sobbing and praying. Sands: "You are chained to metal. If your God can get you out of this, it would be conclusive proof that He really is that good. On the other hand, he took a demon out of the mans. I mean it was pretty wild. So keep on." Sergio came down the stairs. Sands: "Yo wassup man." Sergio: "Sandcastles. What it do." Sands: "I need a few hours of your time watching this lady over here. The mans is mad at me and I have to go and apologize I guess maybe get some flowers too." Sergio: "uh huh. Not a problem." Sands: "thank you. Don't worry she's really nice but she a chatterbox. I left you some cards too. There's food and water over there. You don't let her loose for absolutely no reason at all. Unless the building crumbling down. Call me."

Sergio: "Wait let me go fetch my charger and chill supplies in the car." Sands: "Be quick please." Serge left the room. Witness: "Is he going to hurt me?" Sands: "He literally went to fetch a phone charger and chill supplies. Which man ever brought chill supplies to come hurt you?" Witness: "why don't you just kill me!!" Sands: "That was the initial consensus but we don't kill innocent women." Witness: "Why are you keeping me alive if you don't want to let me go!" Sands: "You really are a chatterbox." Sergio came back with a back pack. Serge: "Got a whole 6 seasons of Lost on my ipad. With healthy 45 minute episodes with 24 in each season. Some biscuits and a chocolate, few magazines. Whole package." Sands: "At what point do I look like I care about your Dora the Explorer hand purse?" Serge: "Why am I here again?" Sands: "I'm kidding. But I have one question, you keep this in your boot in the hopes that someone will ask you to come keep an eye out?" Serge: "Precisely yes. I also have a getaway bag." Sands: "This is as healthy as fried chicken but okay. I'm leaving. I'll be back in a few. Again, no letting loose. She been praying, and I doubt you're strong Serge, don't let her get to you." Serge: "I'm not an idiot." Sands: "I'll try to remember that when my big brother has you on the chopping table ready to remove your head. So goodbye." he walked out.

Later in the day, we left the elephant park to go have some lunch. Chris had fallen asleep on Lakhe's shoulder. Me: "What are we having baby?" Lakhe: "Anything you want my queen." Me: "Lakhe I need an answer." Lakhe: "We can try a seafood restaurant." Me: "I don't want seafood." Lakhe: "Then let's drive back to PE baby, its only 45 minutes. I'll cook for you." Me: "Are you sure?" he smiled and kissed my cheek. Me: "You've been acting strange all day. What did Sandile say?" Lakhe: "He's fine baby. I'm just worried about him." Me: "So you want to check up on him?" Lakhe: "No baby, this is our time together." Me: "You've been distant and when I comment on that you try making up for it by being sweet. Like you're buttering me up for something." Lakhe: "Heee ubaby." Me: "Talk to me. I'm supposed to be your best friend. If you can't open up to me, who will you talk to?" Lakhe: "I know you're my best friend baby. There's no where else I'd rather be." we got to the car, and we secured Chris in his seat. Me: "Tell you what, I'll do the cooking. You rest okay?." Lakhe: "No. I cook. You sleep." Me: "What are you going to cook?" Lakhe: "Spaghetti. And you're going to eat it." Me: "We can get pizza-" Lakhe: "Spaghetti." he started the car and drove off. I checked my emails on the road back to Port Elizabeth. Me: "Sarah says she'll process my resignation in the afternoon tomorrow. I think she still hopes I'll say I was joking." he didn't respond. Me: "honey?" silence. Wow. Okay. So I carried on with my phone.

Lakhe: "Why do you have to leave the company Sphosenkosi when we've fixed our problems? Why you gotta let everyone know we're fighting?" Me: "But when did we fight?" Lakhe: "I don't understand why our home problems are taken to work." Me: "I thought you'd be happy that I'm not going to be working and will only be taking care of myself and the baby." Lakhe: "Did you have to quit? You couldn't just take maternity leave?" Me: "I thought you'd like that I'm away from your company and clients." Lakhe: "Oh so you decided that after they liked you?" Me: "Who said they liked me." Lakhe: "After you took over from me without my permission, obviously they liked you. Now I'm going to look like an ass when I explain that You've quit your job. Possibly I'd lose clients too." Me: "You can't lose clients just because I quit. That would be stupid-" Lakhe: "You've just doubled my work." Me: "Why do you like fighting with me unnecessarily?" Lakhe: "So I'm being an inconvenience to you now?" Me: "I'll talk to you when you're calm. I see you're agitated." Lakhe: "Of course I'd seem agitated when I'm talking the truth." I kept my mouth quiet. The rest of the way to our house was silence. Not even the radio was playing. I didn't bother myself tu. If he wanted to play the guilt card, it was all his for only 5 cents. I wouldn't be endangering my mental health because of his tantrums whenever I "sabotaged" him at work. I couldn't handle it. I just needed to have some space and relaxation. He parked the car in our second house. I got out of the car and took Christian with me. Once I put him in bed, I went to the kitchen to make myself some food. I sat with my sandwich in the lounge when I got a call from Sibu. Me: "Hey. Unjani?" Sibu: "I'm good, you?" Me: "Great. What's up?" Sibu: "Can you talk?" Me: "Yeah I can talk. Is everything okay?" I walked out the sliding door. Sibu: "Yeah, everything is fine. Orlando called me some hours ago. He says there's something he wants to tell me. He found something." Me: "And? Did you ask him what?" Sibu: "No, we haven't met. I just thought I'd let you know, in case you wanted to come with." Me: "I won't be able to come along but I want you to let me know what he says." Sibu: "Okay. I will." Me: "You seem a bit shaky." Sibu: "Just an argument I had with Sandile." Me: "What about?" Sibu: "Nothing. I'll call you later after I meet Orlando." Me: "Okay then." Sibu: "bye." I hung up. When I turn around to walk back into the house Lakhe was standing right behind me. I got a mini fright. Me: "Why did you sneak up on me like that?!" Lakhe: "I never sneaked. You were the one that was taking private calls outside." Me: "I was talking to my brother." Lakhe: "I didn't ask." I walked past him into the house. I don't know what his problem was today but I was not in the mood. Lakhe: "So You're not going to respond?" Me: "How do I begin to respond to that? Lakhe undifuna ntoni?" Lakhe: "Do not resign. Call Sarah and tell her to delete it." Me: "you can't tell me what to do." Lakhe: "You'll file for maternity leave instead then come back after birth." Me: "I don't want to come back to your company Masilakhe. You have the potential of being a horrible boss. I can't take that chance because I'm in love with you, you're my husband and child's father. I don't want tension between us." Lakhe: "When have I ever been a horrible boss?" Me: "You're being bossy right now telling me what to do." Lakhe: "Spho, I'm not being bossy. You can't just quit because of one small difference." Me: "I'm not quitting because of a difference. I'm quitting because I'm tired. That's it." Lakhe: "So you're trying to tell me you're going to be a house wife?" Me: "Yes." Lakhe: "I don't believe you." I lost my appetite. I didn't know what he wanted from me. Lakhe: "I know you love working Spho, why do we have to fight about it?" Me: "I'm going to take a nap." I went to my bedroom and closed the door behind me. My head was already pounding. This is why I don't want to go back to work. He puts so much pressure without realizing it and I cannot take it.

Late evening, Sibulele went back to the main house after his meeting with Orlando. The minute he walked into the door Sandile came to him. Sands: "I've been looking all over for you." Sibulele: "I don't want to talk to you." Sands: "I know, so you'll listen. I'm sorry, I didn't mean what I said. I didn't realize it would hurt you. That's the last thing I want." Sibulele: "It's not about what you said. It's about your actions, not trusting me. What am I supposed to do then Sandile?" Rob: "What is going on here?" Sibulele: "I'm moving out." he went to his room. Sands: "Sibulele!!" he marched after him. Sands: "I refuse to let you leave this house!" Sibulele: "It's not your choice Sandile." he packed his suitcases. Sands: "Sibulele, I do trust you. What I did was just a reflex to protect you." Sibulele zipped up the first suitcase and went on to pack the second. Sands: "Sibulele bra, come on. I'm sorry." Sibulele: "I hear your apology." Sands: "Then don't go." Sibulele: "It's clear I make everyone here uncomfortable." Sands: "That's not true." Sibulele: "You know it is." Sands: "I'm telling uLakhe. I can't let you do this." Sibulele: "Go ahead and tell him. I don't care." he zipped the second suitcase then pulled his charger out the socket in the wall. Sands: "Sibulele." Sibulele: "Sandile, stop. Please. I'm not fighting with you at all." Sands: "At least tell me where I can find you." Sibulele: "At the Radisson. I'll see you around." he took his suitcases to the car. Sandile stood in the lounge. Rob: "What did you do now?" Sands: "I'm not the only, You're all treating Sibulele differently ever since this demon thing and he noticed and guess what? It hurt him." Rob: "Well, I didn't realize we treated him differently. I am barely ever here. Why didn't he-" Sibulele walked in. Sibulele: "Tata, I have something to tell you." Dumi came into the lounge as well. Rob: "What's going on?" Sibulele: "I've decided to move out. I need my own space. I'll be at the Radisson for a few days but I'll come visit. Always." Rob: "What is this about Sibulele?" Sibulele: "Nothing tata. I just feel like being by myself. I have to go." Rob:

"Well you'll have to tell Lakhe, I won't be able to." Sibú: "I will sir. Thank you." he walked out the house.

I woke up in the late evening. I could smell the delicious meal that I wasn't sure what was. After going to the bathroom I made my way to the kitchen. Lakhe and Christian were watching TV in the lounge. Me: "hey." Lakhe: "hey mommy. How was your nap?" Me: "It was great." Why was he being so nice? Lakhe: "Sibú called, he wanted to talk to you." Me: "Oh yes. I'll call him after dinner." Lakhe: "You can call him now." Me: "I'm hungry." he just looked at me. Lakhe: "Did you know he moved out of the house?" he finally said. Me: "No, when?" Lakhe: "Today. I'm surprised because you were busy whispering with him on the porch." There it is. Me: "All he said was that he was going to meet with Orlando and he had a fight with Sandile. He didn't want to talk about it." Lakhe: "maybe he wants to talk now." Me: "Fine I'll call." I dialed the number and listened to it ring. Sibú: "Hello." Me: "Hi Sibú. how did it go?" Sibú: "Are you sitting down?" Me: "Of course." Sibú: "Well, it so happens that Rey was our uncle. Miriam's younger brother." Me: "No!!" Sibú: "Yep. That's the connection between those two. Orlando has gotten in touch with their grandparents. That's if they want to talk to us." Me: "You think perhaps if they do, they'd know who our father could be?" Sibú: "Possibly. Its worth a try. We're getting closer to the truth Spho. Soon, we'll know who he is." Me: "doesn't that scare you?" Sibú: "a small part of it scares me but the fact that Orlando can find out his name within days makes me calm. I have faith." Me: "Why did you move out the house?" Sibú: "You moved out the house and You're asking me?" Me: "I needed a break." Sibú: "Same here." Me: "So did you fix things with Sands first?" Sibú: "I didn't. Sandile needs to understand not everything is a joke." Me: "I get that but let's be honest Sandile is a child. I'm sure he's sorry." Sibú: "I just need my space." Me: "I hear you." Sibú: "Ohhh hell...." he whispered. Me: "what?" Sibú: "I just received an email from Orlando. I'm reading it right now." Me: "What does it say?" Sibú: "Rey died just after the 1st birthday of his child." Me: "Oh that's so sad." Sibú: "he says the child's name is Christian."

I dropped the phone on the floor. Lakhe: "baby?" I stepped back. Lakhe: "Spho, don't you dare run from me, what did he say." I turned to walk to the bedroom quickly. Lakhe: "I'll be right back Chris okay? Keep watching the score for me." Chris: "Okay." Lakhe took the phone from the floor and rushed to the bedroom. He closed the door behind him and kneeled on the floor between my legs. Lakhe: "Baby." Me: "Christian." was all I could mumble. Lakhe: "He's okay, he's watching soccer. What did your brother say?" Me: "Rey, is Christian's father." Lakhe: "Who's Rey?" Me: "Siyanda's best friend that was killed. He is Christian's biological father. And Rey was my mother's younger brother." Lakhe: "How the hell...." Me: "The question is how the hell did he end up with us. Its so creepy." I whispered. Lakhe: "The child did nothing wrong Spoho. Perhaps the mother was bringing him to Miriam." Me: "Now both his parents are dead, and his aunt. This is not a coincidence." Lakhe: "I know its not. Maybe its not such a good idea finding all this out. Seemingly Komander knew this family. And very well too." Me: "Sibu said this before after his abduction. He said Komander knows everything. Do you think he knows we have Christian?" Lakhe: "I doubt he would want to hurt a child. Spoho, you do realize your father knows something about this, right?" Me: "I know." Lakhe: "And baby, I need you to stay away from it. It seems as though everyone who comes into contact with Komander dies mysteriously. I don't want to lose you or anyone in our family." Me: "I promise. I won't do anything." Lakhe: "Are we still thinking about adopting Chris as ours rather than just a cousin? Legally, he's supposed to be with us since he doesn't have family. You're his cousin. What I want to know is, do you want him to be our son?" Me: "Yes. But we have to be honest with him Lakhe." Lakhe: "When he's older we'll tell him the truth, for now I want us to focus on him having an amazing normal childhood with two loving parents and baby siblings." Me: "I understand baby. Do you think we need to tell the family?" Lakhe: "They don't need to know, Sibu is fine but that's it. Can't put anymore lives in danger." I nodded. Me: "So tomorrow where should I go to apply for adoption." Lakhe: "We'll call the social worker." he stood up and sat next to me. Lakhe: "I made lasagna. Chris helped. He was the one imitating the YouTube video." I laughed. Me: "really?" Lakhe: "Yeah. So if you're hungry, we can dish up for you. I need to go check up endlin, resolve this Sibu moving out issue. Then I'll be back." Me: "Okay baby." he kissed my lips. Lakhe: "I love you." Me: "I love you too." Chris: "Its a goal!!!!!" he barged into the room. Chris: "Come see!! Its a goal." he pulled Lakhe out to the lounge. They cheered together. I pulled myself together and went to the kitchen to dish up dinner. Me: "Food, guys." I brought them their plates and we ate in the lounge while they watched soccer. After our dinner, I washed the three dishes and the pan he used to make the food. Lakhe: "Honey I'll be back just now. Chris is watching the score for me." Me: "I'm not watching soccer." Lakhe: "There's only 10 minutes left of it baby." he kissed my cheek. Lakhe: "I'll be quick." Me: "Okay baby." he left the house.

Lakhe arrived at the warehouse at the same time as Sandile. Lakhe: "If you're just arriving and Sibiu is awol. Who's watching the witness?" Sands: "Sergio. I had business to take care of." they walked in together. Lakhe: "What did you say to Sibiu? Why can't you just keep quiet at times?" Sands: "You want me to tell you or keep quiet?" Lakhe: "Tell me!" Sands: "Well, I kinda overstepped the boundary by asking who he was talking to on phone further verifying it. He feels it was unnecessary and that we've been treating him differently ever since his demon possession. Like we're scared that he is harmful." Lakhe sighed. Lakhe: "I'll talk to him." they got to the basement where Sergio was binge watching his series. Sergio: "Mr G." Lakhe: "Yes. How's everything going?" Sergio: "Just well. She's been asleep for a while." Lakhe: "You drugged her?" Sergio: "I had to. Her begging was annoying." Lakhe took out the pistol from behind his back and attached the silencer. Sands: "What are you doing?" Lakhe: "What we should've done in the beginning. There's no point in keeping her alive. She knows what we look like and why we want her here. If she gets loose again, our lives are over." He pointed the gun at her forehead. Sands: "But Lakhe we could just pay her off and fly her out to some foreign country." Lakhe: "And then she comes back here after some time? Not only are the police looking for her, so is Komander. He wants to know the person who killed two of his soldiers." Sands: "She is harmless-" Lakhe pulled the trigger, a bullet whizzed through her skull, and a second one to make sure followed. Blood oozed out of the two abnormal holes in her head. Lakhe: "Get rid of that body then go home." he walked out. Serge: "Shit. I knew your brother was hard-core, but shiiiiit." Sands: "We have some work to do I guess." he sighed. Serge: "perhaps if we check our usual contact for the 12th sin." Sands: "She didn't do anything wrong. She doesn't deserve to be shoved in a 12 foot grave." Serge: "You do know if the police find her body, its gonn be a wild frenzy. The media, the city." Sands: "Her family needs to bury her. We'll be careful. Seal your boot with plastic to protect it from the blood, when we transport her. Bring it down the underground parking." Serge: "Sure thing." he walked out to his car. Sandile looked at the lifeless body before him. Sands: "I'm so sorry."

Lakhe arrived at his mansion. Rob was sitting in the lounge alone. Lakhe: "Hi." Rob: "Hi." Lakhe went to his bedroom to shower and change. He came back when he was done. Lakhe: "Are you okay?" Rob: "Yeah...no....I don't know." Lakhe: "You need to make up your mind, I have a wife and kid waiting for me." Rob: "Well, aren't you just polite. Its just, I like Noma. She's amazing, she's funny and pretty." Lakhe: "Is this one of those million nicknames you give to umama?" Rob: "No. This is another woman. We went on a date." Lakhe:

"Oh....and mama knows about this?" Rob: "Yes. Now she went on a date too. Some gym freak that looks like a damn sculptured balloon! He just wants her money." Lakhe: "And why do you care?" Rob: "Because once he's done eating her money, she'll come take mine!! You know your mother!" Lakhe: "Is it possible that you're jealous?" Rob: "Why would I be jealous?" Lakhe: "Because you're still in love with her." Rob: "That's not true. I just don't want her to make a mistake and come ruin things for me!" Lakhe: "I see." Rob: "So what do I do?" Lakhe: "Nothing." Rob: "You're useless. Please call Spho, she can reason with her. She'll listen if it comes from your wife." Lakhe: "No tata, my wife is not going to be a pass ball for you and your ex wife. If you want to talk to ma, talk to her straight. Or talk to the guy, find out what he's about." Rob: "You're right! I saw on his Instagram page, he's not private so I'll DM him." Lakhe: "What?" Rob: "DM, Direct Message? You need to get on track with the times." Lakhe: "I'm not on social media so....that's far from me. Anyway, I gotta go." Rob: "Bye." Lakhe: "Wait, Uphi uDumi?" Rob: "he's in the game room with the kids." he looked on Instagram. Rob: "he's so unrealistic. Looking like a doll. I bet he's gay." Lakhe: "Dumi? Gay? Erhh, no." Rob: "I'm not talking about Dumi, I'm talking about this swine." Lakhe looked at the screen. Lakhe: "Wow. Okay." Rob: "See? He's a con artist." Lakhe: "Dad, you need to relax. Just because he's a model of some sort doesn't make him a con artist." Rob: "Not because he's a model, but because he's dating older women. Two things, he either has major mommy issues or he's a con artist." Lakhe: "Or maybe he likes mama and makes her happy." Rob gasped. Rob: "Are you trying to say I never made her happy?" Lakhe: "I'm trying to say focus on Noma and leave mama alone with her Ben 10. If you're dating, why can't she?" Rob: "He's younger than YOU!!" Lakhe: "Okay, And? Its not like I can put anything on offer. Let her live her life. Stop butting in. Get off that boy's profile and take Noma out for ice cream." Rob: "I'm no-" Lakhe: "Get. Off. The. Profile." Rob: "Fine! Fine!" Lakhe: "You don't go back there for any reason. It makes you look petty and weak. And I have no weak father. Straighten up." Rob: "You're awfully bossy today. What's wrong with you?" Lakhe: "Nothing. I have to go back to my family." the intercom buzzed. Lakhe opened the gate. Lakhe: "its the lawyers. Must be paying them good money for them to drive around in Porsche's." Rob: "Be nice." Lakhe: "I'm trying but I don't have a Porsche." the two lawyers came to the door. Lakhe: "Come in." Ryan: "Mr and Mr Sobz." Rob: "Evening Ryan. Its kind of late isn't it?" Ryan: "This won't take long. We found the guy who confessed." Lakhe: "Who is it?" Ryan looked at Quincy. Quincy: "Do you know a Gregory Sander?" Lakhe: "The name sounds familiar." Rob: "You've met him?" Lakhe: "I don't think, met. Ohhh, he's Dez's ex. She dated him before dating me." Rob: "So her ex killed her?" Lakhe: "That's the weird part. Gregory was the one who dumped Dez because he'd fallen in love with someone else. She accepted it and they remained civil. There was no bad blood. Why would he just decide to kill her?" Quincy: "In his confession he says they had fought and he lost his temper." Lakhe: "No....that's not true. They dated for about 3 years, Dez never mentioned anything about him being abusive in any way. There would have been a sign somewhere. Nobody just wakes up and becomes a murderer." Ryan: "Well, whatever happened. He's the killer. He confessed and the charges will be dropped against you by the end of the week. You'll be a free man. Enjoy your evening gents." they walked out. Rob: "This is great news, why aren't you happy?" Lakhe: "Dad, something isn't right. Gregory just chose to confess out of the blue? Do you have something to do with this?" Rob: "Absolutely not!" Lakhe: "Someone just saved my life and very soon.....they'll come collect the debt."

I woke up early Monday morning. Lakhe was awake staring at the ceiling and I had a feeling he hadn't slept. Ever since he came back from the main house, he was quiet and distant. Me: "Baby?" Lakhe: "hey." Me: "What time is it?" Lakhe: "its 5 honey. Go back to sleep." Me: "I can't. You haven't slept. You didn't even tell me what happened last night." Lakhe: "The lawyers told me that it is Dez's ex that confessed but I think someone paid him to. I know he didn't do it, the question is, who?" Me: "Why do you think he didn't do it?" Lakhe: "Because he's not abusive Spho. Dez never for once complained about him if anything I was the one annoyed that they stayed friends." Me: "Okay, why do you care if he didn't do it?" Lakhe: "Spho, You'd never understand. Someone out there killed Dez and framed me. Either the same person, or someone different paid Greg to confess, so that said person has a hold over me." Me: "I know you're worried, but I don't think you should be." Lakhe: "I have to talk to him." Me: "That's not a very good idea. The police might think you're the one that did the paying." Lakhe: "What do I do Spho? Someone is out to get me." Me: "Not necessarily right now. We will face it together when it happens. For now, you focus on me and Chris and your company." I kissed his lips. Me: "Chris is still asleep." I whispered. Lakhe: "aren't you going to work?" Me: "We spoke about this." he caressed my breasts. Lakhe: "Can I convince you otherwise?" Me: "You can try." Lakhe: "fine." he lay back in his spot. Me: "Lakhe, can we please have sex? Its been weeks. Do I really have to ask?" Lakhe: "Didn't we have sex last week?" Me: "that was three weeks ago!" Lakhe: "Oh." Me: "You think I'm unattractive because of this hue tummy right?" Lakhe: "Absolutely not." Me: "Then what is it! Everytime I try to pursue you, you turn me away." Lakhe: "I'm just tired baby that's it." Me: "Lakhe I am sexually frustrated." Lakhe: "I can kiss it better.." he came to kiss my lips, I pushed him away. Me: "Tell me what's wrong?" Lakhe: "Nothing." Me: "Are you having an affair?" Lakhe: "Where would I even find the time for that?" Me: "Why won't you sleep with me then?" Lakhe: "Its been a busy few weeks Spho. Come on." I was hurt. He was disgusted by how I looked now that's why he didn't want me. I got out of bed. Lakhe: "Baby, please. Can we not fight today?" I switched on the shower and stepped in. After a minutes he joined me. Lakhe: "Sweetheart I love you. Of course I want you." Me: "ok." I was done with my shower. He pressed me against the wall kissing me full on the lips. Cupping my breasts, I reached for his manhood and disappointedly found it limp. He wasn't in the mood. Me: "Just stop." Lakhe: "I'm sorry." I stepped out the shower and dried myself up. I didn't even know what to do. I just hated how I looked immediately. My heart was heavy and I couldn't wait to just give birth and work out back to my slender body. This pregnancy was ruining everything. All my dresses looked wide as curtains and I felt like an elephant. There wasn't any decent thing to wear. I wiped my tears and just slipped on a pale blue maternity maxi dress and my usual sandals. I combed my hair after making the bed and went to look for Chris. He was still sleeping. I went to start making breakfast. As much as I didn't want to see Lakhe, I had to stay because of Chris. I wanted to register him at pre school today then meet with the social worker. Lakhe came out the bedroom dressed and ready. Lakhe: "uhm, I have to get to the office early." I kept quiet. Lakhe: "I guess I'll see you later." he went to his car outside. After a few seconds he came back to the kitchen. He kissed my cheek. Lakhe: "I love you." he walked out after that. I had so many questions. Where did Lakhe keep disappearing off to? Plus, for the first time ever he's trying to keep me busy at all times. First by adopting Chris and second not wanting me to quit my job. Why was he so insistent on making sure I was busy? I ate my breakfast alone. Chris woke up just after 6am. He came to eat and I fixed his bed then bathed him. He got dressed in jeans and a Superman t shirt and red sneakers. Since we had only come with one car to this house we had to Uber home to fetch my Range Rover then off to our errands. Chris carried his back pack and we got into the cab. After arriving at the Sobukwe mansion, I realized everyone was still asleep. Which was a good thing. I wrote a quick note in case someone worries. 'Came to fetch the Range. -Spho' and left it by the keys bowl. I buckled up Chris and off we went.

Khaya and Zama arrived in Port Elizabeth Monday morning. Zama: "That was a lovely get away." Khaya: "For you maybe. I just spent days and days of stress. What in the fucking world happened at that harbor? Two of my guys were led out and shot dead in a ditch by an obvious assassin. In the report given its stated that the bullets come from a height and the car was obviously moving because it crashed into a pole seconds after. So tell me, what kind of normal breathing human can shoot like that?" Zama: "Its not like you could've seen it coming." Khaya: "I'll tell you what I see coming Zama, a war. Whoever that was, was trying to prove a point. And they did. Its clear we're being provoked." Zama: "So you're trying to say someone is after Komander Ultimates Group?" Khaya: "That's exactly what I'm saying." Zama: "Then that would be the world's most stupidest person in history." Khaya: "Nobody can find him or her. The witness has disappeared before she said anything. Its a damn nightmare. How does someone just vanish in thin air? I need a drink." Zama: "No, you need to be fully sober. Komander will be here any minute now and you need to be alert." Khaya: "I can't calm down when my ass is on the line." his phone rang. Khaya: "Yes?" "Hi, I just received a call from Spho, asking about the adoption process. What should I tell her?" Khaya: "Just stall her for a while. I need to sort something else out in the a meantime. I'll let the boss know." "Cool." they hung up. Khaya: "As if life is not complicated enough, Spho wants to adopt Christian." Zama: "What? No Khaya, what if she finds out the truth?" Khaya: "How could she? We were careful. I can't deal with this right now, you take it. I on the other hand have to fix this mess." a strong scent greeted them followed by Komander in full black attire. His face looked unpleasant. Kom: "I had to cut my trip short because of this bloody mess You've created!!" Khaya: "I apologize sir. I did everythi-" Kom: "You didn't!!!! Seemingly, a ghost led them out the harbor and shot them like experienced assassins and the only witness has disappeared probably dead by now!! How the hell did the cameras in that place break? They were fine when I booked it!" Khaya: "I understand your anger sir, I will do everything I can to find out what happened." Kom: "Like Hell you are. Do you know who did this and why?" Khaya: "No sir." Kom: "Then how in the damn universe did they gain entry!!" Khaya: "Sir, I promise to find out." Kom: "I want a neck in my hands at this time tomorrow. You better pray to God its not yours." he walked out. Khaya: "Shit." Zama: "What are you gonna do?" Khaya: "I have no bloody idea. I need to drink something my brain can't think." Zama: "Drinking won't solve a thing baby. You just need to find out who was unauthorized to be there. It could be easier than you thought." Khaya: "That's not my problem Zama, I know Komander couldn't care less for these dead boys. He is specifically looking for that assassin. How many of our soldiers have been killed, at about no point did he care. He wants the shooter." Zama: "What do you think he wants with him?" Khaya: "Oh Zama.....we're talking about a whole lot of destruction. That shooter combined with Komander can bring the world a load of pain."

Monday late afternoon. I'd gone to the school with Chris to register him. I'd gone to buy him his school supplies. Then bought him more clothes, since the ones we bought were only a few. Finally we arrived at our house. Sandile's car was parked out front. Still amazed at how he managed to find this house. Me: "Hey you. Come help me with these bags." he picked up the plastics and we took them in with Christian behind us. Me: "how are you?" Sands: "Good. You?" Me: "I know you're not. Might as well tell mama. What's wrong?" Sands: "I feel like I'm not doing well in the business side. I've never really excelled in it and now my hotel is starting to suffer." Me: "So what are you thinking?" Sands: "Well, since you quit your job with Lakhe, I was wondering if you could help me revamp the hotel to something hip and happening." Me: "You're hiring me to improve your brand?" Sands: "Yes." Me: "You do know I'm expensive right?" Sands: "Don't I get a family discount?" Me: "No." Sands: "Fine, send me your invoice. Just try and do this for me quicker than possible. And please don't tell Lakhe." Me: "Of course not. I'll have to meet up with your team tomorrow and find out what they're all about. One of the first things you need to understand is that happy employees represent a successful brand. I'll need to work on them before the actual business." Sands: "I'm glad I came to you. I understand why Lakhe is so frustrated that you left the company." Me: "Well, he'll have to be strong." I was thinking of getting takeaways because I was too tired to cook. Me: "I'm actually excited to be working for you. Even if its only going to be for a short while." Sands: "Why don't you just start your own company?" Me: "Well...Lakhe will think its an attack." Sands: "How? He's telecoms, You'd be marketing, advertising and brand influencing. In what world is that an attack?" Me: "I was his department of all those. Basically makes up of 60 percent of that company." Sands: "Spho, you're good at what you do. People want your work, he knows this. Not only are you good but you're easy to work with and super polite. He can't be mad at you for that." Me: "I know but Sandile this is the married life. I have to keep him happy and comfortable. Maybe if he can replace me in the company I'd start a company of my own knowing he's taken care of." Sands: "He does not deserve you." Me: "Every princess has a beast. Its life." I smiled. Me: "So who takes care of Dumi while you're running around." Sands: "Dumi is very self reliant. He does everything himself its quite impressive. He can bath himself, dress himself, take himself to the toilet. He is very independent. Vicky only helps him with the kids and only under his supervision." Me: "I'm proud of him. That's really amazing." Sands: "What are we having for dinner?" Me: "I'm

Me: "What did pizza ever do to him?" Sands: "Nothing. He just doesn't like it."
Me: "Your brother has been living under a rock all his life. I'll roast him some meat." Sands: "I'll help..."

Babalo and Lakhe sat at the back of the restaurant, a waiter brought their drinks to the table. Babalo: "So what's the issue man." Lakhe: "I don't know who to talk to." Babalo: "We've been through some pretty dark shit together in the past few weeks. So talk to me." Lakhe: "I'm scared of losing my wife." Babalo: "That makes the two of us." Lakhe: "and I feel like everyone is so drawn to her. If she ever left me I'd be left with nothing, like all my family would take her side rather." Babalo: "Why do you think that." Lakhe: "I was talking to my dad yesterday and he just said, please call Spho, she'll know what to do. And I felt really useless. She's good at work, she's good with the kid, she's good with my family." Babalo: "That's what a good wife is supposed to be like. What is your real problem? I'm confused so help me out, Is it possible that you're jealous of your spouse?" Lakhe: "No, I'm proud of her. She's done really amazing for herself and for us too." Babalo: "I'm still waiting for the problem." Lakhe: "She thinks I'm not attracted to her. That I'm having an affair." Babalo: "Are you?" he sipped his drink. Lakhe: "bruh, I had to move two meetings to make time to see you. Where would I find time to cheat? She's my whole world." Babalo: "then why do you feel she feels like that?" Lakhe: "Because I avoid having sex with her." Babalo: "I'm confused again. Man, have you seen your wife? I mean no disrespect but daaaamn. She looked great before she fell pregnant but she looks so much better with her round tummy and curves. Lakhe, what is your problem?" Lakhe: "Bra..." he sighed burying his head in his hands. Lakhe: "I am so scared of hurting her. The last time we had sex, I couldn't enjoy it because I kept thinking how the baby was feeling. Like I was hurting him in there, invading his space." Babalo: "You don't hurt the baby whilst having sex, its safe. Doctors approve of it." Lakhe: "Doctors didn't do shit when I watched her miscarry our first baby. I was there Babalo and I felt so helpless. I literally watched the life drain out of her. Do you know how that feels? I can't risk this one too. I refuse to." Babalo: "I understand, After the miscarriage Hlumi had, I cut myself off from the world. Its very traumatic but you need to talk to Spho and let her know how you feel. Then together you can go to a therapist to help you deal with this PTSD. Because whether you like it or not, you are traumatized by what you saw. That's why this is affecting you, and it won't stop until you fix it."

I'd roasted meat for Lakhe and seemingly Sandile because he kept stealing a piece. Our pizza arrived and we dug in. Sands: "I'm so full. Thank you Spho." he said after 5 slices. Sands: "I'm going to take a nap." Me: "Okay." I cleared up the table while he went to flop on the couch. Chris: "You're in my spot." Sands: "Your spot is on the floor." Chris: "I'm going to hurt you if you don't get off my spot." Sands: "I'd like to see you try." Chris picked up his car keys. Chris: "This is your last chance." Sands: "What you gonn do? Hijack my car? I'd like to see you drive an i8. Something even your daddy can't do." Chris: "Oh I'm not going to drive your car. But the toilet will." Sands: "What?" Chris strolled to the bathroom. Sands: "Boy, you better get back here with my keys!!!" Chris flushed the toilet. Sandile screamed. Sands: "What did you do!!!!" he rushed to the toilet. Chris gave him the undamaged keys. Chris: "Next time, make sure you stay off my spot. This your last warning." he went back to sit in his spot in the lounge. Sands: "You are the devil." Chris: "You'll learn to love me." he changed the channel. Lakhe walked in. Lakhe: "I heard a scream all the way down the street. What is going on and what are you doing here?" Sands: "That child almost flushed my keys down the toilet-" Lakhe: "That child has a name." Sands: "He tried to flush my keys!" Lakhe: "Chris did you try flushing the keys?" Chris: "Yes." Lakhe: "Why did you do that?" Chris: "He was sitting in my spot and didn't want to move. What was I supposed to do Uncle?" Sands: "Sit on the other couch!!" Lakhe: "Do you ever sit on another couch at home? Or do you remove people from your seat?" Sands: "That is besides the point." Lakhe: "The point is, Sandile in this house that is Chris' spot and you don't sit in it. At home, nobody will sit in yours. Christian, you don't ever take another persons belongings without their permission. Not for fun, not for damage. Do you understand me?" Chris: "Yes Uncle." Lakhe: "Sandile do I make myself clear?" Sands: "ewe bhuti." Lakhe: "Good." he turned to the kitchen. Lakhe: "My heart. I'm starving." Me: "I was wondering when you'd notice me." Lakhe: "had to sort out the kids before they burn down the house." he kissed my cheek. Lakhe: "how was your day?" Me: "it was okay. The social worker said she would get back to me regarding Chris and I got him into pre school he starts tomorrow." Sands: "Thank God. I will drive him there if I have to!!" Lakhe: "ndithetha nawe?" Sands: "Sorry." Lakhe: "So you registered him at that hillbilly preschool?" Me: "Its a good school." Lakhe: "The name is Pumpkin Patch Preschool. Its a hillbilly school." Me: "Unfortunately there isn't a Havard of Preschools willing to take him in right now. There's year long waiting lists. And we agreed on this." Lakhe: "I know. So what activities is he going to participate in?" Me: "I haven't signed him up for those yet, I want him to be comfortable and choose for himself what he wants." Lakhe: "He's 4. He doesn't know what he wants." Chris: "I want to play the piano." Me: "See? He knows what he wants." Lakhe: "What do you know about the piano Chris?" Chris: "My mom said my dad used to play it for her. He was good she said. So I want to play it too." Lakhe looked at me. Sands: "Don't mean you'll be good too." Lakhe: "Sandile." Sands: "Did you box just because your dad was a professional boxer? Uhhh, NO. If anything, you can't box to save your life." Lakhe: "You keep quiet or you leave my house. Chris will play his piano. Baby, does that school offer piano classes? Of course not. Their best activity is probably Catch The Ball." Me: "I'll find a music school." Lakhe: "Good. Now that's sorted out. When is our doctor appointment?" Me: "On Friday. I roasted you some meat, There's also veges. We had pizza." Lakhe: "Thank you my wife." I dished him his plate and he went to sit down eating. I was done cleaning the kitchen so my next thing to do was a nice hot bubble bath. I ran my bath in our bathroom, adding the bubbles and lighting up scented candles. After undressing I stepped in and relaxed my body in the hot water, immediately calming my muscles. Should've brought a book. It was almost 20 minutes later when Lakhe walked in the bathroom. Lakhe: "Hey." Me: "hey." Lakhe: "You look comfortable." Me: "I am. Also sleepy now so I need to get out." I got up and rinsed the foam off my body then dried myself off with a towel. Lakhe: "I want us to talk." Me: "No. Its okay. If its about this morning, then its fine." Lakhe: "What is that supposed to mean?" Me: "it means I don't care about it anymore. I understand." Lakhe: "No, that's not making me feel better at all." I took my lotion to the bed. Me: "Babe. I get it. I wouldn't want to sleep with a whale either. We can wait until after birth." he took the bottle of lotion from my hand. Lakhe: "I can't let you say that because it hurts me. Spho I love you with everything I have. I want you of course. All the time, the only problem is...." he sat down. Lakhe: "I'm scared Spho. The first time you were pregnant we didn't know. When you lost the baby, I was crushed. I hated myself for not being able to protect him. Now, we got a second chance. I don't want to ruin it. I don't want to hurt him. It mentally fucks me up when I think about having sex, not because I don't want you but because I'm scared we might lose our baby. I know this sounds stupid but I don't think I can emotionally afford that type of pain again." I was super sleepy from that bath, barely keeping it together but I heard everything he said and it was sweet that he was trying to protect his little baby. Lakhe: "Please say something." Me: "Baby, I'm sorry I was hard on you before. I really didn't think of that. I just thought it was me you didn't want, I didn't realize that it hurt you. I'm sorry and I do understand. Its just that, do you mind if we put the conversation on pause for tomorrow? I'm struggling to stay awake." Lakhe: "Yeah, I see that. I will massage you to sleep. Go ahead baby." Me: "I love you for that." Lakhe: "I love you too." I lay on my back in bed and he massaged my thighs, legs and feet. I don't know what else because I drifted off to sleep.

Tuesday morning I woke up at my usual 6 am. Lakhe was already tapping on his laptop. A part of me was really pleased I didn't have to do that anymore. Lakhe: "Good morning." Me: "Hi. I fell asleep didn't I?" Lakhe: "At least you had the decency to announce yourself and tell me how handsome I was." Me: "I don't remember that." I kissed his arm. Lakhe: "So Sandile slept here. In the guest room. I'm beginning to think I've had a child all this time just disguised as a grown man." Me: "Could've figured that out when he followed you from Durban. He adores his big brother. He has no one else to look up to that pays attention to him. Tata Rob is a great dad but he's preoccupied with his life. Sandile sees you as his hero." Lakhe: "I know. That's why I can't throw him out, but you can." Me: "I'm not throwing him out. He's welcome to stay as long as he pleases." Lakhe: "What was the point of leaving that house if they follow us here?" Me: "Sandile lived perfectly with us alone without any extras. He's used to that set up. We didn't mind. The whole family is the issue." Lakhe: "Fine. I hear you but Chris and him have beef." Me: "Obviously, that's only because siblings fight, daddy. You are going to have to sort them out." he didn't respond. Lakhe: "Shit." he finally said. Me: "What?" Lakhe: "Telkom. They're sending two company reps to come visit. What do I even do with them?" I went on to Facebook and caught up on life. Lakhe: "Baby, I swear I'll do anything. I will literally sign my soul over to you just please come back to work. Or, work from home. Just help me." Me: "I'll give you pointers, but I won't help you. Its either you do this yourself or hire another MD. Put Harold in the meantime." Lakhe: "Fine, pointers it is." for the next 45 minutes I helped him with a brainstorm session and a pick up point for the team when he gets to the office. I had to get Chris ready for school. Me: "You're good to go regarding Telkom." I got up and took a shower. After getting dressed, I went to bath Chris. His outfit today was slim fitting cargo pants, a white t shirt, black jacket and black baby Timbaland boots. He looked super cute. I made him his lunch and watched him eat cereal. His bag was packed and ready to leave. Sands: "Finally, I cannot wait to see you gone. I will sit on your spot all day and fart." Chris: "I will make you hurt." Me: "you guys, come on. Let's go Chris." Chris: "Where are we going?" Me: "I'm taking you to pre school." Chris: "Why?" Sands: "because you're annoying." Me: "Sandile stop it. You're not annoying Chris, I want you to learn how to read and write. So that you can read the baby bed time stories and write me lovely letters, Okay? You'll be back at 12. I will come fetch you." Sands: "or forget you there." he disappeared into his room. Me: "Don't listen to him. Nobody will forget you there okay? We'll go for ice cream afterwards." Chris: "pinky promise?" Me: "pinky promise, my buttercup. Let's go." we left for Pumpkin Patch Preschool.
