TTSBUKUT IIVITATING NEWS

SAWYER BENNETT

CANNONPITTSBURGH TITANS

By SAWYER BENNETT

CANNONPITTSBURGH TITANS

By SAWYER BENNETT

All Rights Reserved.

Copyright © 2023 by Sawyer Bennett Kindle Edition

Published by Big Dog Books

This book is a work of fiction. Names, characters, places, and incidents either are products author's imagination or are used fictitiously. Any resemblance to actual events, locales or p living or dead, is entirely coincidental.

No part of this book can be reproduced in any form or by electronic or mechanical means in information storage and retrieval systems, without the express written permission of the autl only exception is by a reviewer who may quote short excerpts in a review.

Find Sawyer on the web!

sawyerbennett.com

www.twitter.com/bennettbooks

www.facebook.com/bennettbooks

All Rights Reserved.

Copyright © 2023 by Sawyer Bennett Kindle Edition

Published by Big Dog Books

This book is a work of fiction. Names, characters, places, and incidents either are products of the author's imagination or are used fictitiously. Any resemblance to actual events, locales or persons, living or dead, is entirely coincidental.

No part of this book can be reproduced in any form or by electronic or mechanical means including information storage and retrieval systems, without the express written permission of the author. The only exception is by a reviewer who may quote short excerpts in a review.

Find Sawyer on the web!

sawyerbennett.com

www.twitter.com/bennettbooks

www.facebook.com/bennettbooks

Table of Contents

Title Page
Copyright Page
Foreword
Chapter 1
Chapter 2
Chapter 3
Chapter 4
Chapter 5
Chapter 6
Chapter 7
Chapter 8
Chapter 9
Chapter 10
Chapter 11
Chapter 12
Chapter 13
Chapter 14
Chapter 15
Chapter 16
Chapter 17
Chapter 18
Chapter 19
Chapter 20

- Chapter 21
- Chapter 22
- Chapter 23
- Chapter 24
- Chapter 25
- Chapter 26
- Chapter 27
- Chapter 28
- Chapter 29
- Chapter 30
- Chapter 31

About the Author

- Chapter 21
- Chapter 22
- Chapter 23
- Chapter 24
- Chapter 25
- Chapter 26
- Chapter 27
- Chapter 28
- Chapter 29
- Chapter 30
- Chapter 31

About the Author

Foreword

Dear Readers,

Thank you for continuing on this journey with me as we fall in lo another Pittsburgh Titan. This time you're getting Cannon's story new head coach is going to have you fanning yourself as well as tug your heartstrings a bit. If you read Drake, you'll see that Cannon's sto somewhat concurrently and you'll recognize some things. If you did Drake, no worries. As always, all of my books can be read as co standalones.

It's always been fairly easy for me to write about professional hoc only from my viewing experience, but also having a friend that's a Carolina Hurricane player. However, I found myself scratching my I what exactly head coaches do. I'd like to thank Jack Han for his he Cannon. Jack is an NHL analyst, worked in operations for the Torontc Leafs, and is a former AHL coach, among other things. He has an a Substack called The Hockey Tactics newsletter and spent a lot of his p time giving me an insider's view into what NHL coaches do at all level dedicating Cannon to him with much appreciation for his insig knowledge to help make this book more than just a romance!!!

xoxo, Sawyer

Foreword

Dear Readers,

Thank you for continuing on this journey with me as we fall in love with another Pittsburgh Titan. This time you're getting Cannon's story and the new head coach is going to have you fanning yourself as well as tugging at your heartstrings a bit. If you read Drake, you'll see that Cannon's story runs somewhat concurrently and you'll recognize some things. If you didn't read Drake, no worries. As always, all of my books can be read as complete standalones.

It's always been fairly easy for me to write about professional hockey not only from my viewing experience, but also having a friend that's a former Carolina Hurricane player. However, I found myself scratching my head on what exactly head coaches do. I'd like to thank Jack Han for his help with Cannon. Jack is an NHL analyst, worked in operations for the Toronto Maple Leafs, and is a former AHL coach, among other things. He has an amazing Substack called The Hockey Tactics newsletter and spent a lot of his personal time giving me an insider's view into what NHL coaches do at all levels. I'm dedicating Cannon to him with much appreciation for his insight and knowledge to help make this book more than just a romance!!!

xoxo, Sawyer

CHAPTER 1 Cannon

PLAYER.

Minor league coach.

Coach of the Pittsburgh Titans.

It's been a hell of a journey, but I'm where I'm supposed to be, no what happened to get me here.

It's the third game of the regular season. We won our first one, wh in Boston, but lost to Minnesota at home the day before yesterday.

Not how I wanted to start my new coaching career with the Tita I'm a transformative leader, using motivation and inspiration to eff innovation. A lot of old-style coaching leans toward expecting imp standards of perfection and then aiming ridicule for mistakes and errounderstanding is, this team's former coach, Matt Keller, was quasshole.

I am the opposite.

I tend to take the position that failure is an intrinsic part of grov improvement. Allowing failure helps players bounce back quicker rath leading them to berate themselves for not reaching an impossible stan perfection.

It might sound like my coaching style is too soft, but no one call with my record. That's why Brienne Norcross, the owner of the Tita Callum Derringer, the general manager, hired me.

The loss to Minnesota hurt, but we've moved on. My assistant of have been working hard running five-on-fives to improve play and ones with the clips provided by the video coaches to address inclineeds.

I'm a delegator, as many good head coaches are. It means letting control, which isn't easy for some. But when I moved from player to a learned very quickly that the head coach position has little to do with a drilling down into specifics and more to do with keeping all the coge monstrous wheel moving.

It's why I've been at the arena preparing for our game agai Edmonton Grizzlies since six thirty this morning. I met with my a coaches, who, in turn, went to handle meetings with the equipment medical staff. I moved on to a meeting with the media relations discuss relevant information about tonight's game. After that, it was with the assistant coaches for updates on injured players. From there pre-scout meetings and then reviewed video clips and analyzed the teams' objectives.

natter The assistant coaches ran the mid-morning skate, although I w Light drills for skill work and special teams practice, especially the ich was play.

After that, the other coaches cut loose for a few hours, but I stayens, but arena, going over five-on-five video reviews and taking another dive fectuate pre-scout reports to see if anything else came to mind. I made no possible suggestions for the assistant coaches, who in turn parceled of Drs. My information to the various lines, special teams, and the players individuate the Two hours before the puck was set to drop, we had our final remeetings with a more focused emphasis on power plays and penalt

The assistant coaches addressed the team with a review of our entir vth andplan, focusing on our identity as a group and how we need to play as a ler than listened in, but that's one of the big things I delegate. It's essen dard of everyone to know it's not my show but that the coaching staff is a cunit.

n argue And now, it's game time. We've had our pregame warm-up, and i ns, and last few minutes before we go out for the puck drop, it's my job to wrup with some inspiration and hype.

"We've got an even matchup tonight." We're in the locker room, tone-on-gathered around with my assistant coaches—Maurice Dupont, Sam The lividual and Gage Heyward—standing behind me. "You stack our lines, our teams, and our skills up against our opponent, Vegas would say the o g go of evenly matched. But that doesn't mean we accept that."

Most of the men stare at me intently. A few nod.

"We never accept anyone telling us what we can or can't do. W will or won't win."

s of the "Fucking right," someone says from the back.

"We never accept defeat until that last buzzer sounds, and never nst thewhen you're on that ice that you have something the other team doesn's ssistant "You as our coach," someone calls out, and everyone laughs.

ent and I chuckle, shaking my head. "Well, there's that, but I'm talking ab staff tognawing hunger that I know every one of you has deep in your bel as backinsatiable, gut-twisting ache to prove to the world that this team is a few period of the pitied for our circum specialbecause there's nothing pitiable about this team.

"In fact, I'm feeling a little sorry for our opponents this year lartched.they'll never have what we have. They couldn't even begin to image powerfire burning inside us to be the greatest we can be. So when you step that ice, you do it with the knowledge that we might stack up eved at thepaper, but in reality, they're no match for the Titans."

into the Approval roars from the players as they clap their hands. I turn t tes andwith the other coaches so we can make our way onto the bench. It's ut that players to take the information and advice and apply it.

ually. It's up to them to go out there and grab that win.

ound of

y kills.

e game

team. ITHE ATMOSPHERE IN the locker room after the win is almost carnival-like tial for in the revelry until it dies down as the players get showered, chang ohesive head out for celebrations. Only then do I go to the media room to do the conference to field questions, most of which are legit. There's a dumbain these though.

ap it all "Coach... given this is a newly built team after the crash eight ago, do you think today's win was a fluke?"

he men I'm irritated but keep a genial smile on my face. "I don't know, Till natcher, our loss against Minnesota a fluke?"

special I let him stammer for only a few seconds before calling on dds are reporter.

With the players gone—the last few headed over to Mario's fo celebratory drinks—I settle in at my desk to record my game observati a lot during the game, write down notes, and don't give individual direction to players. That's a job my assistant coaches hand they do it well, as they know the mechanics of the game as thorougl r forgetdo. They know the pre-scouts. I'll suggest a line change, but it's the as 't." who call it out, and if they feel something is better served, they'll do well, with impunity. It's important they know I trust their judgment a out thatas the players'. Sometimes being hands-off is the best way to ly. The confidence.

force to I tap away on my laptop, adding notes. We left the upper slot weak stancessome clutch moments, but luckily, our goalie, Drake McGinn, was tonight.

pecause My biggest dilemma—and this has been an issue since preseason—gine theour second line defenseman, Camden Poe, seems to be struggling. I vout onvideo of him last season, and it's not a new problem. He seemed a little only oneverything, about a quarter of a step behind on a breakaway or a second late getting his stick on a puck. It's hard to define, but when you want to leavegame after game, you can see that he might not belong on our second leave and the camden is one of the three players who wasn't on the Titans' plan it went down last February. While he seems to have coped well we trauma and survivor's guilt, it might be weighing him down more that think. It's something I need to discuss with him.

There's a knock on my door and I lift my head to see Gage H standing there. He's our newest assistant coach, replacing Bill Perr e. I stay moved on at the end of last season. Gage moved from the first-line ced, and coach after serving as a major unifier for the newly rebuilt team. But the press never his intent to stay long and when the coaching position opened assone, was the most obvious choice.

"What's up?" I ask, motioning him in.

months He doesn't enter, merely leans against the doorjamb. He arrived game in a suit, but he's changed into jeans and a sweater. "Maurice, Sam. Was I are going to head out for a beer. Come join us?"

I know I should go. The Titans are a family, and part of another strengthening bonds off the ice. But fuck... I'm tired. I've been nonstop for over sixteen hours, and I need sleep, not beer.

"I'm going to take a rain check, man. I'm ready for bed."

ons. Gage smirks. "I'd call you an old man, but we're essentially the sa e much and I'm tired as shit too."

lle, and "Maybe we exert more mental energy as coaches than the players hly as Ithe ice and it's just more exhausting."

sistants "I like that analysis." Gage pushes off the jamb. "Which is why I' that asgoing to have one beer before heading home."

s much "Well, I guess I could do one beer," I drawl, closing my laptop an buildfrom my chair.

"Grab your cane and let's head over to Mario's. We'll stand in so a duringto have just one drink."

on fire I snort as I grab my overcoat since it's dipping into the fortie nights. I wish I'd had the forethought to bring casual clothes, but I'll n—is thatby loosening the knot on my tie.

vatched Mario's is packed. My understanding is it's always been a ge off inhangout spot following hockey games due to its proximity to the are ond tooafter the team was rebuilt, the fans were rabid in their support of the tch himplayers. That spilled into after-game celebrations, so it's crowded by the ine. We get there.

le when Luckily, the bar owners let the players reserve tables, so vith the guaranteed a place.

han we The coaches, not so much.

Not that we don't warrant it, but mainly because we don't really heywardwith the players. It keeps somewhat of a professional line between usey, who authority is never blurred.

enter to Also, I doubt the players want us watching over them, so they t it wascrazy if they want.

up, he Maurice pushes through the crowd, and we follow him toward the the bar. He's able to wiggle his way in and order us a round, and then a spot near the wall where we can huddle and talk.

I to the I'd like to say it's casual, fun talk, but we end up discussing the am, and the things that worked to get us the win, and the things that need imp We talk about the two-game road trip we leave for tomorrow.

that is As I finish the last swallow of my beer and decline Maurice's of goinganother, I ask them, "What did you think of Camden tonight?"

"He's the weak spot on the second line," Sam says, and the others "It's like he's a beat off," I say. "Is it his knee?"

me age "I've had no indication from the medical staff reports." Gage has b primary liaison with medical and players. "By all accounts, it was do onrehabbed last season, and he's not had any complaints. He gets it iced doesn't even use a brace."

m only His knee is the reason Camden wasn't on the plane when it went He had a slight meniscus tear, not even that bad. It could've been fixed risingrest and therapy, along with the hope it wouldn't tear further, but he quicker and more stable fix with surgery.

"I'll talk to him." Gage asks. "See if he can identify the is "I'll talk to him. It might be he's just having a hard time clicking was mostline, and maybe we move him."

nake do Gage nods in agreement.

"And with that, I'm heading home. I'm about to fall asleep s popularhere."

ena, but The guys laugh, but Gage follows me out while Maurice and Sam he newhave another. We walk back to the coaches' parking at the arena and he timegoodbyes. We'll next see each other tomorrow midmorning for our factors, where we'll face the Dallas Mustangs and the Houston Jam.

they're I drive across the river to my downtown condo. Upon moving decided against a house, just as I had when I lived in Sweden and Gre I keep very few possessions, and I don't want to have to care for a yar ang outexpected to socialize with neighbors. I'm not antisocial—far from it, a , so our—but coaching is more demanding than my career as a player, and have room for much else outside work. I definitely don't need a lot of can getso a small two-bedroom condo suits me just fine.

Granted, it's in a swank as hell building with private parking and seend of I bought all new furniture to fill it, given the pay increase I receive we findmoving from the minors to the professional league. But past that modestly.

game. I take a quick shower when I get home, but despite being phyroving.exhausted, I'm not quite sleepy. Flopping down on the couch, I a remote at the TV and surf Netflix. My chest squeezes as I scroll I offer ofmovie Armageddon. I don't even think about watching it as it stirs fe don't like.

nod. It was the one movie Melissa and I watched most often. I loved the and suspense, and she loved the romance. I was touched when Harry een thethe end, but Melissa would sob into my shoulder.

is fully My eyes shift to the slew of picture frames I have on one of the , but hebookcases. I'm close to my family, and I have a lot of photograph together.

t down. I have some of me and Melissa still displayed. She might have d withalmost nine years ago, but I don't ever want to forget her. It sometime chose ato look at her—always with a bright, sunny smile on her face. But it hurt because she was my wife. We'd been together since our junior sue?" high school.

*i*th this I was holding her when she died.

So yeah, it should still ache, but it's not debilitating anymore. Morthan not, like right now, I can smile when I look at one of those p tandingShowing her youth and vitality, the very best of Melissa before the Those memories are a source of comfort.

stay to The pain never fully goes away, but it has significantly lessened c say our years. I've learned to live with it.

light to And I've moved on.

here, I enville. d or be actually I don't f space, ecurity.

ed after , I live

ysically aim the past the elings I e action died at

built-in s of us

together.

I have some of me and Melissa still displayed. She might have died almost nine years ago, but I don't ever want to forget her. It sometimes hurts to look at her—always with a bright, sunny smile on her face. But it should hurt because she was my wife. We'd been together since our junior year in high school.

I was holding her when she died.

So yeah, it should still ache, but it's not debilitating anymore. More often than not, like right now, I can smile when I look at one of those pictures. Showing her youth and vitality, the very best of Melissa before the cancer. Those memories are a source of comfort.

The pain never fully goes away, but it has significantly lessened over the years. I've learned to live with it.

And I've moved on.

CHAPTER 2 Cannon

I like city living. Not that I often take advantage of the great restaution cool bars all within a few blocks of me, but I love the convenience of things being within walking distance should I choose to go.

When I moved here a month and a half ago, I immediately found a shop around the corner from my condo. I'm a bit of a coffee add somewhat snobbish, so The Grind became my go-to place for my s caffeine.

I hit it religiously every morning when I'm in town, and it fortuopens at six a.m. for the super early risers.

When I enter at six thirty, my eyes immediately land on Ava. She her regular corner table with an iPad propped up on a Bluetooth keybo a stack of papers beside it. She chews on the corner of her pen—sor she does when she's concentrating—and makes entries on the keyboa perusing a sheet of paper.

There's only one person in front of me in line, and the young accepts his money for a cappuccino. He moves off to the side to wait for

The girl behind the counter beams at me. "Hi, Cannon. The usual?"

Yeah, I come in here a lot. "Please. And add a shot of espresso."

"Late night?" she surmises with an empathetic look.

"Nothing your coffee won't cure." She laughs, I laugh, and I credit card on the reader.

I move down to the pickup counter. The customer before me has h bent over his phone. He glances up, looks back down at his phone, a his eyes snap back up in slight recognition. But I can tell he's not su really knows who I am.

Yes, as the Titans' new head coach, I had a lot of press coverage joined the team, but our faces aren't as recognizable as the players', you're a diehard hockey fan. I am wearing Titans' gear. My norma outfit on non-game days is a pair of khakis and a polo with the team it's chilly, like today, I wear a jacket or coat, also embroidered with tl logo.

The amount of team gear I get is outrageous, but it wouldn't necession point me out as a member of the organization. At least one out of ever people I pass wears some sort of Pittsburgh team gear, whether it be befootball, or hockey. Pittsburgh is sports crazy.

rants or I offer a smile, but before he can say anything, they're calling his of those He grabs his coffee and walks out the door, giving me a nod as he p bet later he'll tell someone, "Dude... I think I was in line next to a coffee West, but I couldn't be sure. He had a hat on, but he was wearing a lict and jacket. Maybe it was him."

hots of Truthfully, I prefer the anonymity of being a coach versus the star being a player. It makes doing simple things like grabbing coffee a lot Iitously A young guy slides my coffee across the counter. "Here you go, Ca Now the people who work here... I don't know if they know where sits at They've never once asked over the weeks I've been coming in—the ard and know me by my first name, which is written on my cup in black Something They don't act weird, and they haven't asked for autographs. I don't so red after whispering to each other when they think I'm not looking, and there subversive glances. It's another reason I like this place. I can just be baristahere.

or it. As is my usual habit, I move to the table next to Ava's. I take her head stays bent over her work. Her dark hair is pulled back into ponytail, and she wears the same navy visor cap as the other baristas v business logo on the front. Her uniform includes a navy polo shirt v tap mystore logo over the left breast and a pair of khaki pants and tennis sho name tag is pinned over her other breast, and under it, printed in headletters, reads Assistant Manager.

nd then "You're not doing anything good for my ego by ignoring me," I see if he settle into my chair.

She doesn't lift her head, but I can see a smile curving. "You don when I<sup>an</sup> ego."

unless "True, but you could at least say, Hello, Cannon, how is your n al work going?"

Ava looks up, and as I was on the first day we met right here a logo. Iftables, I'm momentarily knocked silly by how beautiful she is. It's he teamfirst and foremost, a bright green that I've never seen on any other pe my life. My own hazel eyes have striations of green in them, but the essarilymore matte than the jewel-like nature that makes up the entirety of her ery five Her smile reveals straight white teeth as she mimics me. "Hello, C aseball, How is your morning going?"

"Much better now that you've acknowledged me and soothed my name.quip.

asses. I Ava rolls her eyes and returns to her work. But she doesn't ignc Cannon"Again, you don't have an ego, and you know damn well that Titans'charming."

"Now we're talking," I tease, propping my elbow on the table, n dom of on my palm so I can stare at her. "What else?"

easier. Ava starts typing, eyes pinned to the screen, but she chuckles. annon."see... you're funny—although in kind of an annoying way—personal o I am.at times, you seem fairly intelligent."

ley just  $\,$  I snort, leaning back to sip my coffee and settle in to watch her. Be sharpie.know that will annoy her too.

ee them Ava and I met the first day I walked into this shop at six third are noTuesday morning. She was sitting at the very table she's at now, although myselfdidn't notice her at first. I was actually in the middle of a phone can Callum Derringer. I sat at the table I'm at now and promptly knocl er in ascoffee over. I cursed, jumped up to avoid it running off the table onto a highthen Ava was there cleaning it up.

with the Before I'd wrapped up my call to Callum, she'd wiped down the vith the and brought me a fresh coffee.

es. Her "On the house," she'd said, and sat back down at the corner table smallershe'd been working on an iPad.

Clearly, she was an employee, not only recognizable by the uniform say as Iby the fact she replaced my coffee free of charge. But she was more that a barista because she was doing paperwork.

I introduced myself, we exchanged first names only, and that vextent of our first conversation.

norning Over the past several weeks, we've progressed to flirting, or son she'll insult me in a backhanded way, always with a devilish grat these conversations have never gone deep. Just some quick, light banter ever er eyes,come in and she's working. Sometimes, I'll flirt, but admittedly, I erson ingreat at it. That skill is so rusty, it squeaks in despair. Ava flirts ba tone isteasing manner, and it appeals to me.

irises. Our interactions are never long, merely the time it takes me to dr Cannon.coffee. She's got a sharp wit, which I appreciate, but she's also smoki and I wonder why she's working here. I've interacted with her encego," Iknow she's too smart to be working in a coffee shop.

Ava glances up at me and smirks as I stare back at her. "I've strok ore me.ego today. How about you stroke mine?"

you're "That's a whole lot of stroking, and I'm not sure I know you that toss back. She tips her head and laughs, and it's smoky and sexy as fuc ny chin She rolls her eyes. "I gave you a free coffee about six weeks ag know me well enough."

"Let's "Fine." I wave my hand outward to her work area. "You typole, and prettily."

Ava grimaces and shakes her head, an amused expression on her cause Ishe turns back to her iPad. "Your flirting skills suck."

"Wait... we're flirting?" I drawl in mock surprise.

ty on a "You most definitely are not flirting. No girl I know wants to be t nough Itypes prettily."

all with I grin and take another sip of my coffee. "How about you let me be ked mya drink sometime, and I'll try to work on my skills before then?"

ne, and Ava's head snaps up and whips my way, twin emeralds sparklii surprise. "What?"

ne table I'm a bit surprised myself—I didn't walk in here with any inter asking her out. It's not that I haven't asked women out before, but I desemble whereon many dates these days. I'm always so damn busy that it never seen important than my work.

orm but But Ava has definitely captured my attention. "You heard me. nan justtake you out for a drink."

"Um." She looks back to her computer, brow furrowed. Eyes back was thefilled with confusion, she asks, "You want to go out with me?"

Now I'm the one who's frowning. "Why is that so hard to believe? netimes "Well... because you're..." She waves at me, seeming to struggle in. Ourthe words. "You're... you know..."

ry day I I shake my head slowly. "I really don't know."

I'm not "You're..." She looks over to the counter where three people stanck in afor coffee, then back to me. She lowers her voice. "You're the Titans' I work in a coffee shop."

ink my A slow smile forms on my face. "I was wondering if you'd recoing hot,me. You never acted like you did."

ough to Her cheeks turn pink. "I didn't recognize you. One of the baristas told me that first week. I didn't want to make a big deal of it."

ed your "For which I'm glad," I assure her.

"But you are a big deal," she points out and turns back to her wor well," Ito dismiss this conversation.

k. I can't help but smirk. "And you're prejudiced against people who. Youbig deal?"

Her eyes slide my way, and she glares. "Of course I'm not prejudic be very "Then say yes to a drink. It's not complicated." But then sor occurs to me. "Unless you've got a boyfriend."

face as Ava scoffs. "I don't have a boyfriend. But I'm sure you can do bett "Who are you to judge what I can and can't do?"

She ignores me and keeps typing, but I won't be deterred. "What old shelast name?"

That startles her, and she cuts me a side eye before ans buy you"Cavanaugh."

I pull out my phone, navigate to Contacts, and start a new one ig with Cavanaugh. And your phone number?"

Those eyes lift to meet mine, her head tipped slightly. "Really?"

ition of "Yes, really. We're going out for a drink."

lon't go She just stares at me.

is more I stare right back, refusing to blink. "Phone number. Now."

She releases a frustrated breath and snatches my phone from my Let me"Fine."

I watch as she types in a number before handing it back to me. I st to me, dubiously. "You didn't just give me a fake number, did you? Because where you work, so it will be difficult for you to ghost me."

" Ava laughs and shakes her head. She makes a shooing motion. "Go to findYou're bothering me."

I love that she's not starstruck. I love that she tells me to go awa call you later to nail down the date."

I in line She doesn't acknowledge that, and I know she's doing it to ann coach. I'm not about to let her have the last laugh, though.

I step up to her table, move in very close, causing her head to tip ognizedlook at me in question. "Just wanted to see those beautiful eyes on time before I left."

did and Said eyes flare wide at the compliment, and her cheeks glow pink at I wink at her and bend a little closer. "Now that's how you flirt. C later."

rk, as if Turning, I walk out of the shop feeling pretty damn good abounder.

io are a

ed."

nething

ter."

's your

wering,

. "Ava

y hand.

are at it

I know

o away.

ıy. "I'll

She doesn't acknowledge that, and I know she's doing it to annoy me. I'm not about to let her have the last laugh, though.

I step up to her table, move in very close, causing her head to tip back to look at me in question. "Just wanted to see those beautiful eyes one more time before I left."

Said eyes flare wide at the compliment, and her cheeks glow pink again.

I wink at her and bend a little closer. "Now that's how you flirt. Call you later."

Turning, I walk out of the shop feeling pretty damn good about that encounter.

CHAPTER 3 Ava

 $W_{ m HAT\ IN\ THE}$  hell are you doing, Ava?

It's a question I've asked myself over and over again since invited me out for drinks the day before yesterday.

The freaking head coach of the Pittsburgh Titans.

As I stare in the bathroom mirror, my face flushed from having many dirty martinis, I ask myself the question one more time. I still have an answer.

I was confounded that Cannon wanted to go out with me. I'd tal silly flirting and short conversations over the past weeks as nothin than him being outgoing and gregarious and me being a good represe of my company.

Okay, that's not exactly true. I've been a little entranced by the m only because he's famous, gorgeous, and rich, but because he's sort o in his attempts at flirting.

Other than his rather forward comment that he finds my eyes be not once did I think he was interested in me. Our bantering has been more than some fun in our hectic mornings.

But here I am, having accepted his invitation, now supremely be even mildly drunk—and having one of the best times I can remember.

We were only going to meet for a drink. We both have to be at woltomorrow morning, so I insisted we meet at this bar. My job as the a manager at The Grind is to handle opening the store, and the Titans home game tomorrow that he has to be in bright and early to get read know Cannon lives near The Grind, and my place is a ways out (and the nicest neighborhood), so I wanted to make it convenient for him.

Plus, I didn't want him to see my crappy apartment.

I suggested a bar right around the corner from the coffee shop. It w of a pain in the ass for me as I had about a four-hour window between got off work at three p.m. and when we decided to meet at seven. I forty-five-minute commute each way, but I didn't mind.

It was only supposed to be for a drink. But one drink turned in along with appetizers, because we were having such a good time.

Two drinks turned into three because jokes abounded, and with a the flirting actually got better on both sides. I haven't laughed this ages, but our deeper discussions have held me captive.

Just a few minutes ago, Cannon looked at his watch and grimace Cannon almost ten. Still an early night for most people, but not for us early rise "Speak for yourself," I snickered. "I graduated from college a me years ago, so I'm still at the age I can do all-nighters and be fresh tooeday."

ll don't It was a backhanded slap at his age, which I learned tonight is thirt had a good time teasing him about our age difference, which really ken our years isn't much at all. In fact, my ex was a few years older than Cannog more Challenge flashed in his eyes. "I'm up for another drink if you are."

And now here I am.

My head is swimming, but in a pleasant way. In the way that has an ann, not smile plastered on my face because I'm out with an amazing man and f goofyno clue how this came to be.

I check my makeup and decide on lip balm instead of a new leautiful, lipstick. It's just going to come off on the martini glass, anyway.

nothing "One more drink, and then you're taking an Uber home," I firm myself in the mirror.

The Ava who looks back at me with a smirk tells me that I'm control of how the evening will end. Mr. Martini is running the show.

rk early When I exit the bathroom and head back to our high-top table, ssistantyoung couple standing there talking to Cannon. He's signing a drink have and he hands it to the man with a smile.

ly for. I God, he's got a gorgeous smile. It's dangerous, to be honest, with land ino'clock shadow, just one dimple on the left, and full lips. His dark hazel eyes are set upon a face close to perfection. Like he coul supermodel if the coaching job didn't work out. I giggle at the thought ras a bit a laptor of the couple walks off as I approach, and Cannon stands to pull mother when I out for me. He's been a gentleman all night, holding open doors, pull chairs, standing when I leave and approach the table.

have a "You got recognized," I say with a grin as I take my seat and he rehis. We'd been talking earlier about the difference between being a to two, figure as a player versus a coach, and he doesn't seem to be approar often.

alcohol, "It happens," he says, his eyes cutting down to the fresh martini.

hard in I pick it up, and Cannon taps his tumbler of bourbon gently again. "Cheers."

ed. "It's "Cheers," he says, smiling at me over the rim before taking a sip.

ers." He's still smiling as we set our glasses down and he shakes his hea ere four "What?" I ask.

he next "I just don't get it."

"Get what?"

ty-six. I "Why you're single. I mean... you're gorgeous and sexy, which ... ninehave men crawling out of the woodwork, but you're also kind, funny on. and keenly intelligent. You're the type of woman men walk through " What are you hiding?"

I flush with pleasure over the compliment, which has to battle v a goofytiny twist in my gut over the fact that not all men would walk through I haveme.

"You really are hiding something," Cannon says as he studies me ayer of and he must be reading the emotions on my face.

"Not hiding anything," I assure him as I swirl the toothpick any tellthrough three olives. "Just a prior relationship that would disprove theory."

not in I wince because I didn't mean that to sound pathetic, so I imme play it off with a laugh. "That is to say, my last boyfriend was a dicl I see adidn't know what was good for him."

napkin, "Recent breakup?" Cannon asks.

"No. Over six months ago."

his five "And you haven't dated anyone since?"

air and "Haven't met anyone since. I basically work and sleep and don d be amuch time or opportunity for anything else."

Cannon chuckles. "You sound too much like me."

y chair "Well, here's to us stepping out of our comfort zones." I hold ling outdrink. Once again, he taps his glass to mine and drinks. "This has t awesome evening, even though I'm going to be exhausted and turns tohungover tomorrow."

public "I'll drink to that." Cannon rests his forearms on the table and leached aslittle closer. His eyes bore into mine. "So, why was the ex a dick?"

My face heats up, not because I find the question intrusive. I've h too many drinks to be a closed book, but the underlying rea ainst it.embarrassing.

My expression must give that away because Cannon takes my has squeezes. "You don't have to tell me. Forget I asked."

d. But the liquor has loosened my tongue, so no sense in lying. "W starters, he told me I was a lousy lay."

Cannon's eyes almost bug out of his head. "He fucking said that to I snort-laugh, not because what Derek said to me is funny, but be wouldcan't believe I actually said that out loud. I believed Derek when he as hell, and it's truly the most humiliating thing that's ever happened to me. 'fire for.God... forget I told you. That is definitely the alcohol talking."

"What kind of asshole says that to someone?" Cannon mutters. vith the I wrinkle my nose and give a slow shrug. "The type who gets fire forcheating?"

Cannon's eyes flash furiously, and maybe that's the alcohol to intentlycheated on you? And then blamed you?"

I give a nonchalant wave of my hand and tell my one and only spearedevening. "I didn't pay it any mind. He was just covering his ass and re yourwasn't as bad as him getting me fired."

"Whoa, whoa, whoa," Cannon says, and to my surprise, stands find additional takes out his wallet. I watch as he retrieves two hundred-doles, so heand drops them on the table, which more than covers the drin appetizers, plus a hefty tip. When that's done, he offers his hand to mup. I take it, and he urges me up from my chair. "Let's take a walk."

It's chilly outside and my wool coat is toasty, but that's not keeping me warm. Cannon tucked my hand into his elbow as we 't havedown the block, which is a good thing because I won't be walki straight lines tonight.

I'm not falling down drunk, but I am completely tipsy, so I don up myleaning against his large frame.

been an "Okay... lay the whole story on me," he says.

slightly I glance up at him, and he turns his head to look down at me. He over me by several inches. "This conversation turned very serious," I rans in a Cannon shrugs. "I'm a diverse guy."

That makes me laugh and puts me at ease, although I know the r ad wayare adding to it. "I was an HR generalist for a large life insurance coason is back in my hometown of Raleigh, North Carolina."

"Oh God," Cannon moans with exaggeration. "Please don't and andyou're a Cold Fury fan."

Giggling, I squeeze his arm with my other hand. "While my famil <sup>7</sup>ell, forthe Cold Fury, I'm not that into hockey to be honest."

Cannon claps his hand over his heart. "You're killing me."

you?" "But," I drawl with a laugh, "I'll be sure to start watching from novecause I "That makes me happy. So you're an HR generalist, which i said it, exactly?"

'Oh my "My job was mainly to administer pay, benefits, and leave, as enforce policies and practices."

"Gotcha."

"And my ex, Derek, was a vice president in marketing."

"Were you allowed to date within the company? Or was this allow. "Heaffair?"

I snort over the insinuation. "Sorry to burst any scandalous bubb lie thiswe were allowed. He wasn't working in a direct line of supervision overuly, it "And yet he had you fired," Cannon points out.

"Yeah, must have been in the fine print," I joke with a mirthless rom his "At any rate, not long after we started dating, Derek got transferred lar billscompany headquarters here in Pittsburgh. Got me a job transfer as well ks andmoved in with him."

e, palm "How long ago was that?"

"About nine months. My parents were against it. They felt that what's making myself too dependent on Derek and moving too fast. They're walkedoverprotective. Actually, they can be quite overbearing, but it's from ng anyof love. The rest of the story isn't all that complex. I found out he's a —cheating with his secretary—I confronted him about it, he said 't mindthings, and it was over."

"And he got you fired," Cannon says, disgust in his voice.

"And," I say with exaggerated drama, "kicked me out of his towersWithin a twenty-four-hour period, I found out my boyfriend was chea nuse. me because he thought I was horrible in bed, got me fired, and rende homeless."

nartinis "Jesus fuck," Cannon growls, and then my head is spinning, not find in mpanyalcohol but because he stops right in the middle of the sidewalk and me.

tell me His chilled hands frame my face, but I'm burning hot from the in that crackles between us. It's not a consoling kiss, brought on by sy y loves and a need to redirect me.

The kiss is instantly carnal, and the way his tongue swirls wit there's no doubt that this has everything to do with sexual attraction.

w on." No sooner has the kiss started than Cannon pulls back. His eyes be is whatmine. "Do I need to apologize for that?"

He's rendered me mute, but I shake my head, still caught betw well ashands.

It's apparently all he needs because his mouth crashes onto mine at Cannon's tongue dominates as his hands dive into my hair. I grow the onslaught, my hands gripping his lightweight sweater beneath he illicitcoat. I'm overcome with lust because of his dominance, his skillful and the surety in what he's doing.

les, but I'm fueled by alcohol, so I respond to the kiss, dropping one hander me." waistband of his jeans. I dip only my fingertips inside and use the leve haul myself flush against him.

laugh. Cannon issues a harsh curse into my mouth when our bodies to the contact, spins us around, and backs me into the brick wall of a pharmall, and Iwalks his body right into mine so I can feel every hard—and I mean angle of his body.

Tearing his mouth from mine, Cannon stares down at me, his t I wascoming out in harsh bursts. "Not sure I'd be kissing you like this with kind of alcohol. I'm usually a lot more reserved on first dates."

a place "I probably wouldn't have let you kiss me like this without the alca clichéadmit, moving my hips against his. "But I know I'm not drunk end I meanregret it tomorrow."

Cannon groans against the friction I'm creating. "Not going to li fact your ex said you were bad in bed pissed me off, and I want to prohouse.wrong. Just by that kiss, I know he's fucking wrong. So I'm going atting onyou fair warning and one chance."

ered me His words make me shiver, and I'm light-headed from the combinative vodka and desire. "One chance for what?"

rom the Cannon's hands go back to my face and he leans in, running lakissesfeather-soft over mine. "One chance to tell me to back off because we too much to drink. Otherwise, we're going to walk around the block attensity place."

mpathy He lifts his head, and the weight of his stare should crush me be does is make me feel empowered.

h mine Okay, that might be the alcohol too.

Regardless, I find myself whispering, "Let's prove him wrong."

ore into

een his

gain.

in from

is open

tongue,

d to the

erage to

s make

acy. He hard—

breath

out the

ohol," I

ough to

e... the

ve him

to give

His words make me shiver, and I'm light-headed from the combination of vodka and desire. "One chance for what?"

Cannon's hands go back to my face and he leans in, running his lips feather-soft over mine. "One chance to tell me to back off because we've had too much to drink. Otherwise, we're going to walk around the block to my place."

He lifts his head, and the weight of his stare should crush me but all it does is make me feel empowered.

Okay, that might be the alcohol too.

Regardless, I find myself whispering, "Let's prove him wrong."

CHAPTER 4 Cannon

 $L_{ ext{ET}}$ 's prove him wrong.

Those four words had a profound effect on me. Mostly, it made n harder—the kiss started the process—but it also reminded me of why! Ava in the first place.

I've got a soft heart and have always been that way. While Ava play off her ex's harsh insult, I could tell it had knocked her confident lot of the reason for that kiss had to do with the fact I wanted her to kn she was sexy and desirable.

The way she kissed me back already proved that douchebag wromouth fit perfectly against mine, her tongue not shy, and when she a hold of my waistband and pulled our bodies close to each other, I knew be a confident lover. Granted, the alcohol might be bolstering her a the woman knows what she's doing.

Sex wasn't a goal for me tonight. I truly just wanted to have a drina woman I found intriguing. But sex is most definitely the end goal n she's given me the green light.

Is alcohol playing a part? It's playing the biggest part becau amplifying our mutual attraction and removing our inhibitions.

This is the stuff one-night stands are made of. I can't seem to care though. I'm aroused and want to fuck Ava and I'll worry about reperc tomorrow.

The only saving grace to my conscience is that Ava isn't super She's talking intelligently, no slurred words, so I don't think I'm advantage of her.

Grabbing Ava's hand, I walk at a pace that's so fast, she has slightly to keep up with me.

I apologize and try to slow down.

She laughs while teasing, "Let's hurry before we start to sober think this is a rash decision."

The stars must be aligned because there's an elevator waiting ins lobby of my building, and it whisks us up to my unit on the eighteenth

There are no gentlemanly thoughts of giving Ava a tour or offering drink. We've had enough of those.

Instead, I toss my keys on the foyer table, missing it by about four and shrug my coat off, dropping it where we stand. I'm too impatient at Ava's coat as I start to kiss her again. When it's puddled on the floony dickher with my hands under her ass and praise her when she wraps her kissed around me. "Good girl," I murmur against her lips.

My bedroom is lit by a bedside table casting a romantic glow. But tried tonothing romantic about the way we tear at each other's clothes. It see. So asweet about the way I curse as I try to unhook Ava's bra, and nothing ow that about the way she strokes my cock through the denim.

"Work the zipper," I demand against her mouth because we've yet ng. Her<sup>kissing</sup>.

grabbed Ava's laugh is smoky. "Sorry. Got sidetracked."

W she'd
 I grin and kiss her harder, finally giving up on the clasp and pull bit, but cups of her bra down to expose her breasts. About the time I'm mov mouth down her neck with the intent of sucking one of her nipples i nk with mouth, she's got her hand in my pants and strokes me hard.

ow that "Christ," I grumble as I pull away from her. "How are we not con naked yet?"

swollen from my kisses, and both nipples budded hard. Her face is flu about it combination of lust and inebriation, and her chest heaves as she stare ussions with glittering eyes.

"Get your clothes off," I order as I whip my shirt over my head. "F drunk. We both strip, and I note that her bra clasp twists in the front—for taking reference. I'm much faster than she is, so I dive into my bedside table for a condom.

to jog When I have it in hand, I wheel around on her and see she's glc nude without an ounce of shyness. While my urge is to pounce on her, myself a moment to take her in. My eyes slowly roam over her body, up andher rounded breasts, flared hips, and a completely waxed pussy that me harder.

Also makes my mouth water.

side the I lunge at Ava, lifting her up and tossing her on the bed where I floor. right behind, crawling my way up her body.

Ig her a She parts her legs to make way, and I brace my hands on the mattr stare down at her. "I should be a gentleman and ask if you're sure you're stare down this."

so I tug "Don't be a gentleman," she says with a sharp shake of her head. or, I liftmuch less than a gentleman, okay?"

ner legs Christ, I love her charm and humor. Love the expectation in her ey now.

there's I look down her body, bringing my gaze to rest at the juncture of h Nothing I press a palm to her belly before dragging my fingertips down her sil genteeluntil they graze over her bare mound. "Fucking sexy as hell," I mut glance up at her.

to stop Ava stares intently at my hand, teeth clamped onto her lower lip. I her, wait to see her reaction as I slide one finger straight down the mid dip just the tip inside.

ling the She groans, squeezes her eyes shut, and flexes her hips. I'm entraing myshe lets out a huff of pent-up breath and slowly opens her eyes, now let mywith heat.

"You want more?" I ask.

ipletely "Yes." A mere whisper, but her eyes are pleading. "More."

Fuck yes, I'll give her more. But my mouth has to be on hers.

her lips I surge up to kiss her at the same time sinking my finger in decished, acries into my mouth, burying her hands in my hair. She grips it hard, s s at meher tongue across mine once before biting into my lip.

It stings perfectly, and I stretch her with two fingers. She's soaki ast." and that silky-smooth skin drives me nuts as I graze my thumb back as r futureover it.

drawer "Cannon," Ava gasps as I pump in and out of her.

"What do you need? Tell me."

oriously She shakes her head, eyes averted, and it's the first time I've see I allowof modesty. Not going to let her get away with it.

, noting "Tell me, Ava. Tell me how much you need my cock inside you."

makes "Oh God," she moans as her hips rotate against my hand.

"Say the words, sweet girl. Tell me you need me to fuck you."

I swirl a finger around her clit before slipping back inside.

follow "Are you always a dirty talker or is this the alcohol?" she rasps.

"It's most definitely not the alcohol," I assure her. "Now, give ess as Iwords... tell me what you want."

ou want Ava licks her lips as I slowly move my fingers in and out of want... no... I need you to fuck me, Cannon."

"Be so A low growl rumbles out of me as I snag the condom from the hand it to her. "Get it on me," I order gruffly, leaning to the side on c es rightso she can reach my cock.

Ava fumbles with the foil wrapper. It takes a few attempts, but the legs.has it out and is rolling it over my length. The first touch of her hands ky skinhas my eyes practically crossing. I suck in a breath, trying to get controtter as I I cover Ava's body, feeling her heat as I nudge my way inside, I my hips with gentle thrusts. She's slick and tight, and her tiny m stare atnoises drive me crazy.

dle and "Cannon," she whispers as I push in a little deeper. She raises h presses her knees into my ribs and tilts her hips. "Give it all to me." nced as "Fuck." I surge into her, bottoming out with our pelvises flush wi burningother. "Goddamn, that feels good."

Dangerously good.

Ava's arms slide over my shoulders and then curl around my neck me down close. My torso presses against hers, chest to chest, and down at her. "No stopping this train now."

Pp. Ava She laughs and flexes her hips. "The train needs to get chugging." lashing I can't help the bark of laughter, but then I kiss her again and it's tongues clash as I punch into her, over and over again, and I swear tong wet, she melts around me.

nd forth Or I melt into her.

I'm not sure, but every moan she makes resounds within my che the warmth of her pussy heats up the blood in my veins.

I drive into her deep and slip a hand between our bodies so I car a hinther clit. Ava groans and rotates her hips, silently demanding more. hard, circling her clit with wet fingers, and Ava starts to pant.

Pressing my forehead to hers, I mutter, "Not going to last long as a you feel."

I'm stunned when I no sooner get those words out than Ava's hip her back arching. She cries out a strangled moan of release, and he muscles tighten all around my cock. Christ, that was fast, and now I'm me theto catch up.

I slam into her as Ava hangs on with arms around my neck. her. "Ihammering into her body, she whispers in my ear, "I think I'm still con I believe it because she feels tight as a glove, and the fact that she bed andso quick is a fucking turn-on in and of itself. Lifting myself up, I one armhands on the backs of Ava's thighs, leverage my weight against h pound away.

hen she My release comes hard and fast. I groan deeply as my hips grind on meher, the orgasm so powerful that my breath gets caught in my chest and ol. come out.

rotating I fall onto her, still pumping away until I can ring every last newlingpleasure from both of us, and only then do I let out a long exhale of rel Gathering her close, I wrap one arm around her neck, the other aro er legs,lower back. I feel Ava's lips press against my neck. "Thank yo murmurs.

th each For a moment, I let anger flare within me, pushing away some bliss. She shouldn't have to thank me for that. I got just as good from I That was fucking phenomenal.

I to pull Ava Cavanaugh is most definitely not a lousy lay, which means I staresaid those words as a means to belittle and humiliate. Most likely because the one who was no good in bed.

We're quiet for a long moment, and then Ava says, "I've never on. Ouranything like this before."

to fuck, I lift my head to look down at her in question.

"I mean... I'm not usually this easy."

Laughing, I press a soft kiss to her mouth. "I'm going to let us blasst, and alcohol. I wouldn't have made the move this quickly without those dime. But we're two consenting adults, and there's nothing wrong will strokewe did."

I thrust "Agreed," she says sleepily.

I glance at my clock and note it's just past eleven. There's no way good asdrive home, and I'm not sober enough to drive her. We'll get a few h sleep and evaluate later how best to get us both to work.

s buck, "I'll be right back," I say as I pull away from her, hating the loss r pussyheat.

1 racing I dispose of the condom in my bathroom and have enough sobbrush my teeth. I pull a spare toothbrush out of my pantry for Ava ar As I'mon the sink.

ning." Back in my bedroom, I turn out the lamp and slide into bed next set offAs I move in close to her body, I say, "I put a toothbrush out for you put mywant to use it."

er, and Silence.

"Ava," I murmur softly, and although I can't see her face since it's againsthear her deep breathing with the tiniest snore at the end that somehow d won'ther lovelier to me.

Smiling, I decide to let her sleep. I set the alarm on my phone and : bit ofcovers over both of us, and then I'm out.

ief.

und her

u," she

of the

ier.

her ex

ause he

er done

ame the rinks in th what she can ours of

s of her

heat.

I dispose of the condom in my bathroom and have enough sobriety to brush my teeth. I pull a spare toothbrush out of my pantry for Ava and set it on the sink.

Back in my bedroom, I turn out the lamp and slide into bed next to her. As I move in close to her body, I say, "I put a toothbrush out for you if you want to use it."

Silence.

"Ava," I murmur softly, and although I can't see her face since it's dark, I hear her deep breathing with the tiniest snore at the end that somehow makes her lovelier to me.

Smiling, I decide to let her sleep. I set the alarm on my phone and pull the covers over both of us, and then I'm out.

CHAPTER 5 Ava

 $M_{\rm Y}$  eyes pop open with the sudden awareness that I'm in deep stroom isn't completely dark, and my internal clock knows I'm late for v

I wince at the spike of pain in my head—fuck you very much, v and mutter a curse as I sit up in bed. Glancing to the left, I see the cloc 6:18 a.m. I'm in so much trouble.

"Goddamn it," I mutter as I roll out off the mattress, flip the lamp start searching the floor for my clothing.

"What's wrong?" Cannon mumbles as he sits up, hair mussed at sleepy. I ignore how perfect his chest is and how unbelievably sexy h with the sheet loose over his hips.

"I was supposed to open The Grind"—I look over at the clock the reads 6:19 a.m. and slip into my panties—"nineteen minutes ago. I'm much trouble."

Cannon frowns and reaches for his phone. "I set the alarm for figuring that would be enough time for you to get up."

I put on my bra and then tug on my jeans as Cannon unlocks his ph "Fuck," he curses, and my eyes cut to him. "I set it for five p.m. of a.m. I'm so sorry, Ava."

I manage a smile. "It's not your fault. I was drunk too, remember." He scrubs his hand through his hair. "What can I do?"

"Nothing," I assure him as I pull my sweater over my head. "I'm g haul ass over there and hope the line of pissed-off customers isn't too l

I sit on the edge of the bed to pull on my socks and boots. I hear slide out and when he comes around into my line of sight, he's put boxer briefs.

Hadn't paid them much attention last night, but they're bright when his package a little too well, and make his tanned skin look ever golden.

I blink the vision away and zipper a boot. When I have the other Cannon pulls me up.

His hands come to my cheeks—the same way he did last night be kissed me for the first time. I love that he does it to hold me captive.

"I'm really, really sorry," he says again. "I should have gotten yo last night."

I grab one of his wrists to chastise. "You weren't in charge lit. Theresponsible for me getting to work on time today, Cannon."

work. His hazel eyes bore into mine as if he's searching for some looka—eventually he nods and pulls me in to press a warm kiss to my foreheat the reads that the control of the reads that the reads are control of the reads are the reads are on, and I shake my head. "No, I really don't have time. But I will take adon of your bathroom and the extra toothbrush."

and eyes Cannon nods and heads out of the bedroom, and I hit his master le lookspee, wash my hands, and then my face. I brush my teeth and search his for Tylenol, which I take with a scoop of water from the faucet.

lat now I locate a brush in one of his drawers and attempt to detangle my n in solooks like we spent all night wrestling it's such a mess, but I manage t myself look halfway presentable.

or five, Nothing I can do about the fact I don't have my uniform but wast more time on my appearance isn't helping any.

none. I exit his room and find Cannon waiting by the door with my co insteadhim help me into it and accept my purse he's also holding for me.

I wish I had time to talk about what last night meant, because adr I'm totally confused. I've never in my life slept with someone on t date.

going to I've also never had sex like that.

Ong." Heat warms my cheeks as I remember how ravenous we were for Cannon other. How fast things happened, how the sex was frantic and slightly on his and how I loved every second of it.

Cannon slips a hand behind my neck. "I'll come by for coffee as so ite, hugget my shower, okay?"

"Sure," I say with a smile that doesn't feel right on my face. I stressed about not being there to open the shop and slightly envious has a job where he doesn't have to worry about such things.

one on, I go up on tiptoes and kiss Cannon's cheek. It's the only thing th right, because a real kiss would only confuse me further, and I really fore hego.

"See you later," he says as I walk out the door and I don't even lu homehe means it.

Last night could very well have been a one-night stand and I w of norsurprised if Cannon avoids the coffee shop now. He probably think skank for hopping into bed with him like that.

ie. But Those are thoughts for another time though as I rush out of his bd. and hightail it down the block. I pull out my phone and wince as I an I getmissed calls from Joyce, one of the early-shift baristas.

I'm perplexed when the store comes into view and no patrons are vantageon the sidewalk. As I get closer, I see lights on inside and people si tables.

bath. I I open the door and find my morning baristas hard at work.

s pantry My stomach plummets because that can only mean one thing.

"Ava." I cringe inwardly when I hear Stan Dubetsky's voice. I loo hair. Ithallway that leads to the bathrooms on one side and a break room and o make closet on the other. "I need to see you."

Fuck. One of the staff must have called Stan—the general manage ing anyhe came down to open the store. I can tell by the look on his face happy.

at. I let My shoulders hunch forward as I move past the service counter. dare look at my coworkers because I'm honestly embarrassed I wasn't nittedlyopen up for them. I hate that I put them in a position of having to call he firstboss in.

There isn't an office to work out of in this space, which is why I morning paperwork at one of the tables. I follow Stan into the break or eachwhich is nothing more than a small kitchen with a round table that sear rough, a counter with a sink, and a microwave.

I pull the door closed behind me and then shrink back into it woon as Iyells at me. "What the fuck, Ava? You don't show up to open the stor I had to get woken up to come down here and do your job?" He steps I'm toome, taking in my appearance. "And God... were you on a bender last that he You look like shit and smell like booze."

No words come to defend myself. It wasn't exactly a bender, bu at feelshave more alcohol than I normally would drink. I know my ey have tobloodshot and I'm probably sweating out vodka under his furious stare

"I want you to give me the key to the store," he says, holding snow ifhand, palm up.

"What? Why?" I stammer, words suddenly pouring out of my mon't bepanic. "I'm so sorry I was late. I swear it won't happen again."

s I'm a "That's right. It won't happen again because you're fired."

"Stan! No. Please don't fire me. Demote me if you have to, but I nouildingjob."

see the Like, I need this job so badly that without it, I can't pay my unfortunately had to pay for a new tire last week, and it drained mos waitingmeager savings.

"You should have thought about that when you overslept," he "Now give me the key and get out of here. I'll mail your last paycl you."

I almost start crying. That last paycheck will only be for three k at thework.

storage "Please don't do this," I say, my eyes starting to sting. I've tried to make a go of it here in Pittsburgh after Derek kicked me out, nee er—andprove to my parents and myself that I wasn't a complete screwup. "I' ne's notovertime at regular pay. I'll work extra shifts if you need."

"Your key." Stan snaps his fingers and looks down at his palm.

I don't I blink rapidly to push back the tears, nodding as I open my purse here toout my keys and remove the one that opens The Grind. I drop it in h the bigand turn for the door.

Stan doesn't say another word to me.

do my My stomach is churning by the time I hit the sidewalk, and for a m croom,I don't know what to do. I actually can't even recall where my car is, the stomach it's in a parking garage two blocks over, which is where when he I think about him right now, taking a luxurious shower, probably re? And some breakfast. I thought I'd feel bitter about it, but I can't.

Cannon last night for drinks.

toward I had an amazing time last night. I might have been slightly drunt night?recognize that was the best sex of my life. Maybe it was the alcol maybe it was Cannon.

at I did Regardless, given that I lost my job and won't be seeing him for n yes arecoffee the way I used to, I figure he's now become a part of my past.

Bereft, I trudge along the sidewalk to the parking garage. My car is out histhird level—a four-year-old Nissan Maxima with its shiny new tire v at me. I ran over a nail that went in near the rim at an angle so it coul uth in apatched, and there went $235. I resolve myself to meals of ramen noo the rest of the month. At the very least, I've got room on my credit c need to take a cash advance to make rent, but after that, I'm tapped out eed this A new job is an absolute priority.

Once I'm in my car and southwest of the city, I make a dreaded rent. Icall.

t of my My brother's voice comes through with a slight crackle or Bluetooth. "What's up, Sis?"

snaps. "I got fired."

heck to There's a lengthy pause before Rob says, "I can catch a flight the day after tomorrow. I'll help you pack and drive you home."

days of I sigh, rubbing my temple. It's not what I wanted to hear. "I don't move back home, Rob."

so hard "I swear no one will say a word," he promises. He was as vocal ding toparents when I wanted to move to Pittsburgh to be with Derek. He all workhim more than my parents did and thought I was making a colossal missing a colossal missin

But God, it pissed me off that none of them had any confidence could make my own choices. I could make them and own up to them a pullwere wrong. Instead, they just wanted to be right.

is palm "Can I borrow some money?" I ask. "Only enough to get my rel I'm sure I'll land another job quickly."

"You've been trying to find a decent job since that asshole broke noment, you."

out then "I broke up with him," I remind my brother.

I'd met "Whatever. The point is, why are you struggling with things like a shop? You can come home and work with the family."

reating "I don't want to be a real estate agent." My exasperation is on ov because we've had this conversation many times. My parents own on k, but Ilargest real estate companies in the state and Rob is an agent there. It v hol—orof expected I'd follow in his footsteps, but I had no desire to sell home "Fine," he snaps with irritation. "Don't be a real estate agent. Bu norninghome and at least have a solid place to live without worrying about yc paycheck."

s on the "I don't want to live with Mom and Dad."

vinking "You can live with me—" ldn't be "I don't want to be dependent on any of you," I murmur.

dles for "Then you can't ask to borrow money," he chastises. He doesn't stard if Iunkindly, merely pointing out if I want to be independent, I need to do my own. "Look, I'll come get you. Say the word."

Glancing over my right shoulder, I make sure no one is in my bli I phoneand move over a lane toward my approaching exit.

"I'll think about it," I promise him. "And please... don't tell Mover the Dad I lost my job. I really can't handle the I told you so calls right now "Understood," he says, his tone gentle. "Do you really wan money?"

iere the "No," I grumble. "You've reminded me I need to try to do this own."

want to Rob chuckles. "While I'd rather you come home, I have to respect We chat a little more. He asks why I got fired, and I only tell as myoverslept and the boss had no mercy.

disliked By the time I pull up to my apartment complex, I'm feeling mastake. better. At least I know I have an out if I can't find a job soon. Rob wie that I and rescue me, and I can crawl home with my tail between my legs. if they nt paid.

up with

ı coffee

rerdrive

e of the

vas sort

S.

it come

our next

paycheck."

"I don't want to live with Mom and Dad."

"You can live with me—"

"I don't want to be dependent on any of you," I murmur.

"Then you can't ask to borrow money," he chastises. He doesn't say that unkindly, merely pointing out if I want to be independent, I need to do this on my own. "Look, I'll come get you. Say the word."

Glancing over my right shoulder, I make sure no one is in my blind spot and move over a lane toward my approaching exit.

"I'll think about it," I promise him. "And please... don't tell Mom and Dad I lost my job. I really can't handle the I told you so calls right now."

"Understood," he says, his tone gentle. "Do you really want some money?"

"No," I grumble. "You've reminded me I need to try to do this on my own."

Rob chuckles. "While I'd rather you come home, I have to respect that."

We chat a little more. He asks why I got fired, and I only tell him I overslept and the boss had no mercy.

By the time I pull up to my apartment complex, I'm feeling marginally better. At least I know I have an out if I can't find a job soon. Rob will come and rescue me, and I can crawl home with my tail between my legs.

CHAPTER 6 Cannon

I step onto the sidewalk from my building and zip up my fleece jacke little colder than I thought it would be, but The Grind isn't so far awa need to go back up for a heavier coat. Besides... I don't really have the minutes to spare.

Ava isn't the only one who overslept this morning. I had planned t it to the arena by six thirty to get a workout in before what is going busy day. In addition to our regular practice, we're doing some extra teams drills. Callum also asked for a slice of my time today, so I'll shim in around noon. Then it's a fun afternoon and evening of video and meetings in preparation for our away game tomorrow in Montreal.

But I'll forego my workout today to be able to enjoy a cup of confidence. I wonder if Ava will blush when I sit down at my table her, or if she'll try to ignore me like usual.

I'll for sure be seeing her in a different light after what we shanight.

I've never been a one-night-stand kind of guy. Never been the seek hookups, not that I'm opposed to them. I mean, if one fell in my the right time, I'd take it.

Actually, one could almost consider last night to be one of opportune moments. Ava could easily be considered a hookup, given drunk and screwed, but I'm excited to see her again this morning who my coffee, so I'd say that's not the case.

I absolutely want to see her again.

Definitely fuck her again.

I'm crazy busy and not looking for anything heavy, but I like her. fit Ava into the craziness of my career? Maybe it will only be morning and an occasional date when I get the time. Would she be into that?

I intend to find out. It's hard not to give credence to the racing pulse as I approach the store. Will her smile today hold that secret kno that we now share? Will she look at me and think to herself, You m come so hard last night, no one will ever compare?

I know I'm thinking it, although I also want our normal fun ba makes me smile as I enter The Grind. My gaze immediately goes corner where Ava should be doing her work, but she's not.

Not overly worrisome, as there's been an odd day here or there well. It's aworks the counter.

y that I But she's not there either.

new, but she's made enough coffee for me that she knows my name. no makemorning, Cannon. The usual?"

to be a "Hey, Meredith," I say, looking around the half-full coffee shop. specialout my wallet for my credit card, I ask, "Where's Ava?"

The girl looks back at a barista working the machines, a you reviewnamed Ken who serves me regularly. His eyes come to me. "She got f being late and not opening the store on time."

offee at "She what?" I bark in surprise.

next to Ken leaves the machine and moves to the counter, leaning across lowering his voice so no other patrons hear. "The general manager red last come in and open the store and he was pissed. When Ava got here, he her into the break room. I don't know what was said, but Ava wall type to about five minutes later. Stan came out and told us that he fired her a y lap at was that."

"Fuck," I mutter, scrubbing my hand through my hair in irritatic f those turns back to the machine to make my coffee. This is all my fuckin we got "Where's Ava now? Did she say where she was going?"

en I get Meredith shakes her head.

"Is the manager still here?"

Ken nods toward the hallway. "The break room."

 $\ensuremath{I}$  walk back there, intent on fixing this colossal fuckup that's Could  $\ensuremath{I}\ensuremath{doing}.$

scoffee Stan, the general manager, is exactly as I envisioned, having o knowledge that he fired Ava for being late. He's sweaty and so of mythrough a walrus moustache as he sits at a table going through received way Ava normally does each morning. His head twists to see me very wledgethrough the open door.

ade me He plasters on a smile, because I must be a wayward customer. help you?"

inter. It I shut the door behind me and his smile slips. "Yeah, you can he to the You can tell me why you fired Ava Cavanaugh."

"I'm not sure it's any of your business," he replies, standing fr hen shechair and lifting his chin. It still has him tipping his head back to n eye contact with me.

"It is if I'm a customer of this store and part of the reason I come s fairlyher excellent customer service."

"Good Okay, that's a bit drummed up for dramatics, because Ava actually and tries hard to ignore my attempts to draw her into flirty conversation."

Pulling "Well, I'm truly sorry that you're feeling her loss, but she was work and failed to open the store on time. I have to balance the feeling ng guyother customers she's inconvenienced as well as the staff who were ired forfor her to open."

I scoff at the absurdity. "The staff and customers love her. I can't he think you're the one who was inconvenienced, and that's why you fire it and Stan goes red. "I'm not sure I like your inference."

had to "It's not an inference. I'm affirmatively stating I think you fit calledbecause you were inconvenienced."

ked out Blustering and stammering, Stan says, "I have a zero-tolerance pound thattardiness when your main duty is to open the store for business."

"Zero tolerance?"

on. Ken "Yes."

g fault. "So it wouldn't make a difference if I told you that Ava found out I night that her parents were killed in a home invasion? And she was night crying and that's why she slept through her alarm?"

"Is that what happened?" he asks sheepishly.

"No, but you said you had zero tolerance, so I was wondering if the all myexceptions."

"She smelled like booze," Stan says, going back on the offensivenly the didn't have her uniform on. Didn't even call anyone to say she'd be lat cowling. I sigh in frustration. "Her being late was my fault. We were out las ipts the and I set my alarm clock wrong."

walking Stan holds his ground, crossing his arms over his chest. "It's n responsibility to ensure she gets to work on time."

"Can I I can see I'll get nowhere with this guy. "Give me your owner's na number."

elp me. "It would be a waste," Stan says, his lips thinning. "He'll back me decision."

om his "Maybe," I muse, knowing I can't control everything. But it never a aintainto try. "Maybe not. Only one way to find out, and that's to call him."

Stan huffs, pulls out his wallet, and hands me a business card en here iswith The Grind's logo. On the bottom left, it says Stan Dubetsky, (Manager, and on the bottom right, Jerry Parsons, Owner, followed worksphone number and email.

n. "He's on vacation," Stan says with a triumphant smile. "You w late forgetting up with him any time soon, but his secretary will gladly s of themessage for you. I'll have Ava replaced by then."

waiting It's cute that he thinks he's in charge. "Trust me... I have the resorget in touch with him today."

11 relp but Stan's eyebrows knit together. "How's that?"

d her." I tuck the business card in my pocket and ease toward the door. " not a Titans' fan, are you?"

red her "Not big into sports," he mutters.

"Then you'll have to figure it out on your own," I say, giving I licy forback and walking out the door.

I'm dialing Ava's number as I exit the hallway, and Ken step behind the counter to hand me my coffee. "It's on the house," he whisp His own little defiance of Stan and a moment of solidarity with me late last As the phone rings, I smile, but it melts into a grimace when up allvoicemail answers.

"Ava... call me. I just found out you got fired... so, call me, okay? I disconnect and walk out of the coffee shop, heading back tow here are building to get my car.

e. "She

it night, It's Almost Noon and I haven't heard from Ava, despite leaving voicemail and a text. I figure she's pissed at me and rightfully lay ot your blame at my feet.

It's not something I can worry about now as I've got a meetir me and Callum Derringer.

Even though I rate an office in the executive suite, I prefer the one on myice level nearer to the other coaches and the players. However, I'm l upstairs to his territory since he's my boss.

er hurts His office door is open and he's handing some folders to his se Noticing me standing there, he waves me in and motions over to abossedconference table that seats six. It's covered with folders and binders Generallaptop sits there opened to a spreadsheet.

by his I take a seat as he gives some last-minute instructions and she asks the way out, "What would you like to drink, Coach?"

on't be "I'm good." I smile and hold up the water bottle I carry w take aeverywhere.

Callum joins me at the table. He's wearing a suit—sans jack arces to regular attire. I'm in my standard non-game-day gear of khakis and sleeve polo. But the days we play, I wear a suit right along with evelse.

'You're "How's our prettiest member of the Titans' organization doing to Callum says with a wide grin as he sits down at the table head in adjacent to mine.

nim my If Callum were a personal friend, I'd tell him to fuck off in a natured way. But he's my boss, and I've only been head coach rous frommonth.

pers. Instead, I smirk. "Hey, now... don't be jealous GQ didn't come calyou."

Ava's Callum barks a laugh and I chuckle along. It's ridiculous, really. news in the sporting world. The youngest head coach in the profe league, and I'm definitely not as battle tested, having spent my coard mycareer in the minors and a foreign league. All the major sports ma have written articles about me, and I've been interviewed on national sut everyone is giving me shit for landing on the cover of GQ this Don't get me wrong... it was nice being asked, and it was about for than me cheesing on the front cover in the four-thousand-dollar Arm another they dressed me in. The three-page interview was great publicity ing the organization, and the reporter did a fantastic job focusing on my visit this team and my confidence in putting us on a path to a champions.

ng withday.

"I've got a trade prospect," Callum says, moving right from jo e on theserious. "Bain Hillridge for a first-round draft pick."

neading My eyebrows lift. "They didn't want a straight-up player trade?"

Callum shakes his head. "They've got some players aging out a cretary.looking for a few good picks to build up. I need to know if you think a smallafford to give up a first-round draft pick for him."

round pick. But Bain Hillridge is one of the best defensemen in the lease me on Nodding, Callum says, "And Camden's not been performing we can move Camden to third line, Nolan to second, and—"

rith me "I'm not willing to move Camden," I cut in.

Callum isn't the least bit offended. In fact, this is why I'm here—tet—histo lay out his thoughts, and for me to tell him what's best from a coal long-perspective, since I have a better handle on these guys.

reryone He merely waits.

"I want to work with Camden. He needs a confidence boost and coday?" him down a line is going to set him back further, but I think he's got a a chairuntapped potential."

"What's his issue?" Callum asks.

"No clue, but I want the opportunity to figure it out so he has a shoughly a Callum drums his fingers on the table, glancing down for a rebefore raising his gaze back to me. "You know it's my job to put telling onpossible team together. It's not a bad move to send Camden to the third could even make an argument to trade him or send him down to the mi essional But I'm not wrong either.

I'm big I nod because he's right.

paching "If you don't want to move Camden from the second line, what gazinesgoing to do with Nolan?"

shows. Nolan is our first-line defenseman, and he's good. Not as good month.though, who would without a doubt strengthen our defense.

ir more "How about offering Nolan in trade and a second-round pick rathe ani suitfirst?"

for the Callum's brow furrows slightly as he considers that. His eyes for sion forme. "You think Camden's potential is enough to merit losing Nolar hip onedraft pick?"

"But we get Bain," I remind him. "And yes, Camden's potential king toimportant."

Camden was one of The Lucky Three who wasn't on the Titans when it went down. While Coen Highsmith spiraled into a dark plac and arethe other two, Camden Poe and Hendrix Bateman, seemed able to get I we canthe ice without much in the way of hang-ups. I know both have unc grief counseling paid for by the Titans' organization, and they both see a first-have bonded well with the players who came on to form the new team. gue." "You know working this trade to keep a man that isn't up to paell. Weemotional choice," Callum points out.

"You hired me because I use empowerment and inspiration to change. This is a perfect example of that."

for him Callum chuckles as he shakes his head. Knocking his knuckles pachingtable, he stands from his chair. "All right. You've made a comargument. I'll start the ball rolling and keep you updated."

"Sounds like a plan," I say as I rise. "Good luck."

moving And he'd need it. Trades aren't as easy as they sound as there's sti mazingnegotiating to be done, salary caps to keep an eye on, agents who prickly, and no-trade clauses that some players have. I have no clue ab of those details, but that's not my job. It's Callum's.

t." We chat a bit more about tomorrow's game in Montreal before w nomenthands and part ways.

he best The first thing I do is check my phone, turning off silent mode.

d line. I My heart thumps when I see that Ava returned my call. I like t inors." didn't text but rather took the time to phone.

I listen to her voicemail as I walk through the executive suite's rehalls. Hey, Cannon. Sorry I missed your calls and texts. I was sleeping are younight and all. Call me when you get a chance.

Late night indeed, except while the words were meant in jest, he as Bainsounded sad. I note the time and that I've got a meeting in about minutes.

r than a I see an empty conference room, step inside, and close the door. I r the window that overlooks the river and the Pittsburgh skyline as I dial ocus on

1 and a

is more

re after, back on lergone amed to

.

ar is an

o drive

on the ipelling

ill more can be out any

e shake

hat she naze of j... late

r voice fifteen

nove to Ava.

CHAPTER 7 Ava

I'm blow-drying my hair, so I can't quite hear my phone ringing from it sits on the vanity, but the screen changes and I see Cannon's namber.

Turning off the dryer, I connect the call. "Hey."

"Hey back," he says. "I'm glad you called. I was afraid you were and didn't want anything to do with me."

"I'm in no way upset at you," I assure him, turning around and back on the counter. "I was just exhausted, so I got some sleep."

"I'm really sorry you lost your job. I talked to your manager, and asshole. Wouldn't even reconsider."

"You did?" I exclaim.

"Well, yeah." I hear the confusion in his voice. "Why wouldn't I?"

"Because it's not any of your business or responsibility." I wince c blunt rebuke, even though it was delivered with gentleness. I huff out a of frustration. "I'm sorry. I didn't mean that, and I'm grateful you tri just... lately I'm told that I make wrong or bad decisions and it's im that I own up to this and figure it out myself. No one thinks I independent. No one thinks I can do things on my own. Everyone is for me to fail."

It's silent, and for a moment, I think Cannon might have hung up but then he asks, "You know it's okay to fail, right, Ava?"

I'm almost stunned speechless, because no... I don't know that. some witchy coaching wisdom?"

Cannon laughs. "I know a thing or two about failure and winnin must be able to fail in order to win."

"Maybe you should tell that to my family," I mutter.

"Sounds like a lot of baggage to unpack." I hear the empathetic s his voice. "Let's have dinner tonight and you can vent."

"Why would you even want to bother with an unemployed los me?" I tease playfully, because there's something about Cannon tell it's okay to fail that makes me feel a little all right.

"Well, that's easy," he drawls. "Because you're great in the sack, c to your ex-douche's opinion."

I can't help but bust out laughing because really, the entire rea were in the sack in the first place was because Derek said I was a lousy.

1 where Funny how the fates work.

me and But I am cautious. "I don't know, Cannon."

"Come on... let's do dinner. I'm catching an early flight to Mon the morning. We can cook something together either at your place o pissed You can tell me all about the people who make you feel like you hav perfect."

leaning It makes me laugh again because when he says it that way, it ridiculous for me to get bent out of shape at the thought of disappoint he's an<sup>family</sup>.

I quickly calculate the cost of gas for driving into the city and versus the cost of humiliation of him seeing the dump I live in. I decid optimistic that I'll find a job soon and can burn a little gas for a dinner over the "Let's do your place. What time do you want me there?" I ask.

a breath "Seven, okay?"

ied. It's "Sure. Not like I have a job to worry about." I laugh, but Cannon of a lootent Coughing to dispel my embarrassment, I ask, "Can I pick up anything can be the grocery store?"

waiting "No, I'll handle it all. I'll text you the code to get into the parking You'll see guest parking near the elevators. You do remember I'm on me, eighteenth floor, unit 14, right?"

"Is that Cannon chuckles, and I can actually hear the relief in his voi there's no regret on my part. "Okay, then... see you at seven."

ıg. You "It's a date," I chirp.

"And Ava?"

"Yes?"

mile in "Pack an overnight bag."

My skin flushes because I actually didn't see this coming. I'm a person. You say we're getting together for dinner, I expect dinner.

ser like Images of our time together last night assault me in Teching mereplaying the ravenous way we went at each other.

Of the things he made me feel.

ontrary "Okay," is all I can manage to whisper.

"Can't wait," he says, his voice rich with promise.

son we Of having a good meal or having me, I can't tell. I'm game for bot When we hang up, I'm frozen in place for a bit about what to do to find a new job. I have to mull over all my insecurities as to why wants to see me again. My life can't quite seem to take off, and he's treal inpinnacle of his.

r mine. When I finally make a cup of tea and open my laptop, it's not to re to bejob listings but instead, I google Cannon. There are a ton of articles and in the top row of photos I gasp to see that he was on the cover o seemsclick on the thumbnail and when it enlarges, I'm enraptured just loc ting myhis perfection.

Cannon's standing at center ice in the Titans' arena. He takes up a d back, the frame and the background is blurred and darkened, but it's definite to bearena. I went to a concert there with Derek not long after we first move date. The dark gray suit Cannon is wearing has a sheen to it, bea tailored to his frame. He's got one arm bent and held before him, his hand fiddling with a cuff link there. He's looking off to the left, so w loesn't.profile of his face.

ig from His expression is contemplative with a hard set to his jaw. But also a very subtle curving of his lips. It's like he's focused on a prize, garage.knows he's going to win it.

on the I slump down in my chair and ogle the man, again wondering w interested in me.

in." And it's not that I'm down on myself. I'm confident enough to state that attractive and Derek was very handsome. But it's not really the cappearance that has me feeling unworthy.

It's that Cannon is the entire package. He's got the looks and wea I've had that before. It doesn't make someone attractive.

No, Cannon has so much more. He's genuine, down-to-earth, kin empathetic, all qualities that I'm now realizing Derek didn't have mare literal. What does that say about me that I accepted him as good enough?

And not the most important, but I can't discount it, Cannon is a ro nicolor,in bed. Last night was mind-blowing and while I know alcohol mig been what landed us between the sheets, and it might have warp perception some, I have no doubt that I experienced the ultimate in shim.

Not that great sex is a particular reason to be with someone.

h. I close out the GQ article and scroll down until I find a Wikipedia I havehim. I pull it up and start reading.

Cannon

on him,

s at the Cannon West (born November 17, 1986) is an American professional ice hockey coach a former player. He is currently the head coach of the Pittsburgh Titans, replacing fo coach Matt Kollar, whose contract was terminated. West played with the Terente Plaze search coach Matt Keller, whose contract was terminated. West played with the Toronto Blazer seven years before moving on to coaching in Sweden and for the Greenville Mudcats n f GQ. I league team.

oking at I glance over at the column on the right that lists basic biogr information. There's a picture of him in his hockey gear, bent over most of waist and fighting for the puck. Surprisingly, he wore his hair kind at the land sweaty tendrils curl out from the back. The caption under it says ad here ed here. West, Toronto Blazers.

utifully Below are more details:

is other

Te get a Born: November 17, 1986 (age 36), Denver, Colorado

Height: 6 ft. 2 in. (188 cm)

there's Weight: 214 lb. (97 kg; 15 st, 4 lb.)

and he College: University of Minnesota

Position: Center

hy he's Currently: Head Coach, Pittsburgh Titans

Spouse: Melissa West (m. 2007–2013)

say I'm outward I freeze, my eyes pinned on those last words.

Cannon was married? I don't know why it shocks me so much lth, but<sup>does</sup>.

I skip all the information on his playing and coaching history arnd, and down to the section entitled Personal Life.

Cannon West married his high school sweetheart, Melissa Waite, in 2007, the same year joined the Toronto Blazers. She passed away on November 4, 2013, from breast cancer.

ock star

ht have My hand flies to my mouth to cut off a small cry of distress. I reaped myover the words. When I first saw he was married, I had assumed the ex withdivorced. It's horrific that she died and that Cannon went through sor so heartbreaking.

I push the laptop back and stare across my minuscule kitchen to n post onsmaller living room. Cannon was only twenty-seven when she died.

know how old she was, but given they were high school sweethear assuming roughly the same age.

und a What does the

What does that do to a person? Losing a spouse.

rmer Especially so young.

I think back to all my interactions with Cannon, trying to come up single memory that I can point to that shows he's still mourning or grie

Surely he is.

'aphical I mean... high school sweethearts.

r at the I have to stop thinking about it.

of long, I shut my laptop and head to the bathroom to finish drying my hat to think about the types of jobs I'm going to apply for. Obviously, a in HR, since that's what I've done since graduating from college. I degree is in communications, so I could try something in marketing or relations. The only problem is trying to get my foot in the door vexperience.

I flip on the dryer and start back on my hair using the round brush it out into smooth waves, letting my mind drift.

At the very least, I'll need to refresh my résumé with my las months of experience working as an assistant manager at The Gri research job listings with companies hiring in the area of human res I'll even expand that search outside to include Raleigh. If I have to home, I want a job first. Mostly to prove to my family I'm more the sufficient, but also so I'm not pressured to go into real estate.

because his wife died. Maybe it was too unbearable to continue in a ld skimwhere she'd been by his side the entire time.

Which logically would conclude that any future relationship we compared to that one.

Any woman he'd be with would have to measure up to—"Aaaghhh," I groan, yanking the brush through my hair. I glare at ad backin the mirror. "Get out of your damn head, Ava."

y were If I continue to do this, I'll talk myself out of going to dinner at Canethingtonight. I have a hard time understanding how I even caught his inter the thought of competing against a lost first love is too daunting to be any even I narrow my eyes at my reflection. "Get a hold of yourself at I don'tworrying about things beyond your control."

rts, I'm with a eving.

ir. I try nything But my r public vith no to blow

st three nd. I'll sources. o move an self-oaching ι career

ould be

myself

in the mirror. "Get out of your damn head, Ava."

If I continue to do this, I'll talk myself out of going to dinner at Cannon's tonight. I have a hard time understanding how I even caught his interest, but the thought of competing against a lost first love is too daunting to bear.

I narrow my eyes at my reflection. "Get a hold of yourself and quit worrying about things beyond your control."

CHAPTER 8 Cannon

The door. I've had a low buzz of excitement since I walked in mystwenty minutes ago. I ordered from a deli that delivers to my building we're going simple with meats, cheeses, crusty bread, grapes, pasts and what looks like a container of pickled vegetables that they threw complimentary try. I'm not a charcuterie master and don't pretend managed to put the food items on different plates and bowls, threw flatware on the counter, and uncorked a bottle of red, and that's as go gets from me.

But what little I've come to learn about Ava, I expect her to look a deem it perfect. She's incredibly down-to-earth and would never expestar dining because of my fame or status. In my handful of years dating Melissa died, I learned to spot a gold digger a mile away.

Ava is anything but.

Hell, she shied away from me because she labeled me "a big deal."

I'm smiling when I open the door. Ava smiles back but apprehensive. Granted, it's subtle but not unexpected—I know sh some doubts.

First and foremost, she's beautiful. Her hair is in a long braid hover one shoulder with loose pieces framing her face. Her makeup i but she doesn't need much. Her green eyes command my attentic followed by her lush lips, tinted with the barest blush of color.

She's wearing a pair of dark jeans that sit low on her hips, a colored turtleneck that fits like a glove set off by a wide camel-color Matching boots of the same color and a fashionable scarf of brown, r orange hangs over the shoulders of her unzipped, off-white puffy coat.

Most importantly, she's carrying a tote, which I assume is the ov bag I told her to bring, my quiet hint for her to stay the night. "I don't bite," I say, sweeping my arm in invitation to cross the three She doesn't move, and I sense reservation. We didn't had opportunity to work through the morning-after awkwardness that come drunk sex. Ava was late and running out the door without a lot of process her emotions, including the inevitable question of whether a was real.

I can almost see it in her eyes. Did we make a mistake last night? side of I sure as hell don't think we did. "Not a single regret," I say, reach self not to grab the ends of her scarf. I pull her slowly to me until she's close ng, and that I can kiss her.

Her mouth is slightly unyielding at first, perhaps the lingering effe in for amistrust in me, perhaps herself. But then she opens up and sighs as I to be. Ithe kiss.

v some Not surprised it happens, but my body reacts swiftly. I've replay od as it time together last night a little too often today. It made my rev opponent video this afternoon painful as I'd get distracted and have to it it and to watch again.

ect five- But I don't want her to think that's the only reason I invited her or ag afterpull away, taking a little too much pleasure from her flushed cheeks are eyes.

I push the coat and scarf off her shoulders, helping her out of it a closing the door. Moving through the living room, which flows i lookskitchen, I toss her stuff on the couch. Ava follows, setting her tote e's gotcoffee table.

"Glass of wine?" I ask as I round the kitchen island.

nanging "That would be great." Ava looks around with interest. "Your I is light, really nice. I didn't pay much attention last night or this morning."

on first, I let my eyes sweep the kitchen and living area, seeing what she so a swank setup with eighteen hundred square feet of floor space. I be cream-for just over a million dollars, mostly for its downtown convenient ed belt. perimeter interior walls are in repurposed red brick with fourte ed, and coffered ceilings and built-ins. It came with the most expensive Et appliances, which I barely know how to use, imported Italian tile, and remight hardwood floors.

All that is a bit lost on me, not because I don't like or care abc things, but because I don't really know much about what makes a hon eshold. When I was married, that was all Melissa's domain, and after she died we thewith Realtor recommendations, along with my mom's guidance sit es afterknows me so well.

time to "My mom helped me pick it out," I say as I pour two glasses of win ny of it Ava turns and smiles. "Where does she live?"

"Denver." I pull out a bar stool at the island and then take the one her. "She owns a lighting store there, and my dad is a high school ing outteacher and football coach."

enough "I've heard Denver is gorgeous," she says.

"Very." I hand her a glass of wine and hold mine up for her to to cts of aglasses clink, and we sip. I nod toward the food. "I didn't go too fancy deepen "It's perfect," she says as she sets her drink down and picks up "Want a bit of everything?"

yed our "Yeah." I watch as she fills up a plate for me, creating neat piles riew ofitem so they don't touch. She grabs a fork and a napkin and hands rewindbefore fixing a plate for herself.

"Do you have siblings?" she asks, nabbing up a square of white over, so Iand nibbling at it.

nd hazy "A younger brother and sister. Connor is a ranch hand in Wyomi Belle is a paralegal in Denver. She's married and has two girls."

nd then "Are you close to them?"

nto the "Very. I talk to my family constantly, even if it's just a quick dai on the And of course, Belle's kids are the apple of everyone's eyes. Wha your family?"

"My parents own a residential real estate company in Raleigh, a place isbrother Rob is an agent with them."

I load up a cracker with prosciutto and goat cheese. "So, is ees. It'sparents, your brother, or all three who make you think you're a failure ought it Ava's mouth quirks into a lopsided smile. "You don't pull any punce. The "It's my coaching nature. But if I'm being too nosy, tell me to backen-footpop the cracker in my mouth and wait.

ropean For fortification or because she's thirsty, Ava takes a larger than bocotesip. "Not too nosy." She appraises me over the glass before placing it counter next to her plate and taking up her fork. She toys with the past out nice"My parents and brother were adamantly and quite vocally opposed ne nice.coming to Pittsburgh with Derek."

, I went "What was their objection? Or did they know what an unbel ace sheasshole he'd turn out to be?"

Ava laughs and shakes her head. "I don't think they knew he'd l ne. such an ass, but they felt I wasn't looking at him clearly. I accomplished, made good money, and wanted to settle down."

next to "Isn't that what every parent wants for their daughter?" I ask, bec historyfar, Derek sounds like a good deal.

"You'd think. But I think they felt I was too dazzled by him to know if he was long-haul material. They definitely thought I was mov ap. Thefast. We'd only been dating a few months when he got the job transfe didn't like that I was dependent on him for the job as well as my a plate.arrangements."

"And you thought differently?" I surmise.

of each "I thought independently," she corrects.

it over "Good girl." I smile at her and load up another cracker.

"It ended up being a mistake, though," she says glumly, stabbing cheddarof bow tie pasta. "It was the failure my parents predicted, and it jobless, homeless, and with my dignity in shreds."

ng, and "Aren't you being a little hard on yourself?" I nudge my knee agail for emphasis.

"Maybe."

ily text. "You were a little irritated I tried to talk to your manager when you aboutfired."

Her eyes come to mine, and she offers a sheepish smile. "I'm sorry and mytouchy about my failures and perceived bailouts. When Derek kicked

I got a whole lot of I told you so from my parents and insistence that it yourhome. But I needed to prove to them I can take care of myself."

"So you took a job in a coffee shop."

ches." "It was the first job offer I got, and I was scared not to take it. I coff." Iwas decent... enough to afford a small apartment and pay my bills."

"I can probably get your job back for you." I swivel my stool towan normalput my hand on her knee to squeeze reassuringly. "I know you probable to thewant help, but I found out today that Brienne Norcross, who owns the a salad.is good friends with Jerry Parsons, who owns the parent company I to meGrind."

Ava's hand covers mine, her fingers curling under my palm. It's ievablegesture of gratitude and, at the same time, that simple touch tightens m "Thank you for the offer," she says before sliding her hand free. becomeneed to do this on my own. Once I figure out what I want to do with I le wasI'll have some direction."

"And you want to stay in HR?" I ask.

ause so "Not really. I mean, I enjoyed working in the human resources fill I'd rather do something in marketing."

really It's on the tip of my tongue to offer to help her. I know I could pring tooscore her an interview somewhere within the Titans' organization. But. They decline, as well she should. If I helped her get a job, it would be virtually living different from her situation with her ex. The best I can do is her brainstorm possibilities and offer encouragement.

Regardless, I admire the fuck out of her insistence that she do this own.

"Okay," I say, after tasting a pickled carrot and deciding I'm a pieceagainst such an atrocity. "I'm going to coach you up. Envision your left mejob."

Ava sets her fork down and closes her eyes. "My perfect job... ] nst herslying on a tropical beach, testing suntan oils for a skincare company."

Christ... the image of Ava in a bikini on a white sandy beach is n I need right now or I'm likely to toss her over my shoulder and carry you gotto my bedroom.

Ava opens her eyes and grins at me. "Too far-fetched?"

<sup>7</sup> I'm so "If you want to stay in Pittsburgh, it is." I laugh.

me out, "I would stay here, but I'm not averse to moving."

I come I ignore the twinge of dissatisfaction at the thought of her leav area. It's ridiculous, really. This is only our second date, and I don know that we'll be seeing each other by the end of the week.

The pay "You said your degree was in communications... why did you that? I'm assuming there was a specific career you were interested in?' ard her, Ava nods, her eyes sparkling. "Yeah... I always wanted to do sor y don'tin marketing. Not just brainstorming ideas but generating mar Titans, content."

of The "Okay," I say with an enthusiastic smile as I stack salami on c "We're on to something. Tell me more."

a sweet

y skin.
"But I
my life,

eld, but robably it she'd ially no elp her on her firmly perfect

hmm...

ot what her off

ing the 't even

choose,

nething ketable

heddar.

CHAPTER 9 Ava

Cannon rinses the bowl from the vanilla ice cream we just shared as from the kitchen stool. Dinner was delicious, and it took us over an eat because the conversation was so free flowing.

Neither one of us had more than the original glass of wine as we pi the food, sometimes using our forks to nab bites of pasta. Cannon su dessert by merely rising from the island as we were talking and dishisingle bowl of ice cream with only one spoon for us to share. We pas spoon back and forth as we talked, mostly about my career potentia some subtle coaching and empowerment imparted along the way.

It was easy and natural.

I had thought it would be weird since we don't know each other well, yet we've already had wild drunk fornication. I know sex is menu tonight, and while I was nervous about it when I rang his doc mainly because Derek's dumping and insult to my sexual prowess has my confidence—Cannon has managed to make me feel comfortab once this evening, outside that first kiss when I arrived, have I been r feel that sex was at the forefront of his mind.

I mean... it might be. God knows I've been thinking about it, but of seemed genuinely content to hang over a long dinner where the converses enough to make the evening great.

After rinsing the bowl, he puts it in the dishwasher alongside th tableware we used. I tried to help him put stuff away when we were do he insisted I stay seated and finish off my wine. While I don't n compare Cannon to Derek or any other guy I've dated, I know Derek have never cleaned up. Because he was the bigger breadwinner in our I was expected to maintain the home even though I worked a demanditime job.

That was clearly a warning sign I overlooked, and it's a lesson ever forget when looking at future partners.

Not that I'm looking at Cannon for that. I'm just saying... it's bey realm of my experience, which means my standards were quite low.

After drying his hands, Cannon turns toward me, leaning back aga counter. His palms press onto the granite at his hips, and he crosses over the other. I have no clue what this thing is between us or how will last, but I know I'll never forget how beautiful he is at this mome I watchjust because of his near perfect good looks, but because I don't feel ou hour todepth with him.

Lord knows I should be since he's gorgeous, rich, famous, an locked at beyond all imagination. Just yesterday, I wasn't grounded where Cangested concerned.

ng up a But since walking through his door tonight, he's centered me wi sed the conversation, laughs, solid advice, and genuine care for my situal, with appears Cannon West is the real deal, although I can still hear my process whispering to me to beware.

I push them away. Cannon is no Derek, and not just comparing the all that by side. They're different because I'm different. I'm not going to on the follow blindly.

"I can tell by your expression you have some deep thoughts dented through that pretty head of yours," Cannon teases.

le. Not There's no stopping the warming blush. "Just conversing with nade to about you."

"What about me?" He pushes off from the sink and leans on the Cannon directly across from me. There's three feet of counter space between ersation the intensity of his stare makes it feel like inches.

"Just that you're very easy to be around, and it's a little surprise other admit.

one, but Cannon's eyebrows rise, his expression an exaggeration of or nean to shock.

I laugh. "I'm just saying... you're the head coach of a profe house, hockey team. A world traveler. You hang out in esteemed circles. I ng full-tonight, sharing a meal with you, is the most relaxed I've been in a lor You might be one of the most unassuming people I've ever met."

I won't He smiles, and there's a wickedness to it that makes my spine tin you knew what I was thinking right now, you wouldn't feel so mellow

Yeah... not calm at all. In fact, distinctly tense with antic ond theespecially as he moves around the island toward me.

Prowl might be a better word and my heart feels like it's goinst the explode. As Cannon rounds the corner, I swivel toward him, and my one legfreezes as he cups the back of my head. Leaning down, he doesn't long it mouth but rather feathers his lips just below my ear. "Are you ready ent. Notfucked?"

t of my The air wheezes out of me as my hands clutch at his shirt to keep upright. "Did you really just say that?"

Id sexy Cannon chuckles as he moves his mouth to mine. "I really just sai annon's He kisses me softly, grazing his teeth over my lower lip. Pulling be eyes lock onto mine, and they're filled with challenge and amusement the easy dirty talker. Is that a problem?"

tion. It I shake my head. "I'm a dirty listener," I assure him as I grip harents' tighter. "I could probably be a dirty talker myself, but I'm not sure know how to."

em side Cannon laughs and presses a kiss to the tip of my nose that is so seful orcan't hold back a sigh. It's short-lived though because next thing I known off the stool and over his shoulder.

running I yelp in surprise. "Put me down." "I will. On the bed."

myself I giggle when his hand comes to my ass to hold me steady as he we way through the living room to the master suite on the other side. island, against his lower back and lift slightly so I don't hang completely us butdown. As we pass by a set of bookshelves, I get a brief glance at picture frames housing groups of people—family members, I assume. sing," Imake out details, except one near the edge is a photo of two people around each other and smiling big for the camera.

ffended We go by far too fast, but I think the man was Cannon. The v Possibly his sister, but deep down, I think it's his wife.

And yettime Cannon's lowering me to the ground, I'm having major second the ground. The only problem is he gives me no time to analyze my worries of my concerns. He's got his hands on my face and he's kissing me to congle. "Ifdistraction.

." I let the photo and worries over it go. It could have easily been hi ipation,with him, and even if it was his wife, so what? Just because she doesn't mean he should box away his memories. In fact, I find it—oing to "Oh God," I groan as Cannon's hands drop to my ass, and he posterathflush against his body. The length of his erection—the very hard evid ciss myhis need—pressed into my belly weakens my legs.

7 to get Cannon's hand grips my braid and tugs my head back so his momove down my throat. "Got all kinds of ideas what to do with the myselfmurmurs as he coils my ponytail around his hand.

How can those words that sound so ominous make me tremble with d that." "There are far too many clothes in the way," Cannon says, releasinck, hishold. I stumble slightly because I'd been melting into him, but his "I'm asteady me.

He grins, enjoying the way he's knocked me silly with his hot kis is shirtdirty words. I let him have his moment, mainly because he seems did I reallyget me naked. Cannon's hands jerk roughly at my belt to get it open my turtleneck up and over my head, and by the time I'm blinking, howeet, Imy bra off. His hand goes to my chest, and he pushes me backward. Now, I'mcatch the bed and I fall onto it, only to almost be pulled off as he jerk boots.

"You're like a world record clothes-getter-offer," I say in awe.

Cannon grins at me devilishly as his fingertips work at the zipper inds hisjeans. He peels me out of the denim, leaving me in nothing but my blace I bracepanties with little red bows at the hips. I'm not sure he noticed the mupsidebra, but that's moot now.

several Standing straight, he looks down at me with darkened eyes. His I can'tpeeks out to run over his lower lip before he bites into it, appraisi e, arms"What to do first?"

"What are the choices?"

voman? Cannon's eyes snap to mine. "My mouth between your legs. Yo I'm fast getting you out of those clothes, wait until you see how fast I t by theyou off."

oughts. The man is confident, and I love it. I press my thighs together, the or voiceache that was between my legs now pounding. "What are my other opt omplete Cannon raises an eyebrow, clearly expecting me to have chosen the confident of the c

His eyes glitter as he steps to the edge of the bed, nudging my legs apa is sister He bends at the waist, pressing a palm into the mattress at my h

's deadbreath catches as his finger runs along the elastic edge of my panties you're wet. I'm thinking about putting you on your hands and ulls mewrapping your hair around my hand, and fucking you hard from behinence of God, that sounds perfect. But I know Cannon isn't a man with idea or two in that handsome head. "What else?"

uth can Cannon's hand glides up my stomach, in between my breasts, are is," hemy shoulder to tug playfully on my braid. "I was thinking about using put you on your knees before me."

h need? "I'll take that option," I blurt out.

sing his There's no hesitation as Cannon's eyes flash hot. His hand slips is armsback of my neck and he pulls me up off the bed. When I'm on my coils the long braid around his hand until there's no length of it left, ses andgently pushes me down.

riven to My eyes remain locked on his as I lower until my knees press into , whipscarpet. Cannon huffs out a slight breath as my hands go to the button le's gotjeans. His jaw locks as I lower the zipper, and a rumbling need well My legschest when I pull his cock free.

s at my I grasp the base, stroke him twice, and pull him toward my Cannon grips my hair hard enough to sting, stopping my momentum, eyes fly up to his.

on my "Just wait a second," he says gruffly as he stares down at me. ck satin "What's wrong?" I whisper, suddenly fearful I'm completely hor atchingthis, just the way Derek said.

"Nothing," he murmurs, bringing his other hand to my cheek we tonguerubs his thumb over my lower lip. "I want to commit the way you loong me.now to memory. It's perfect, and it's going to star in all my future fant

"I like that," I say softly.

"I'm glad you do." His hand tightens in my hair, and he forces my u thinkonto him.

can get He groans as I take him in deep, but I've got my own purr of satistattling around my chest. I know I willingly dropped to my kneed gentlesomething about him holding me tight by my hair turns me on more thations?" ever been with another man. I'm driven to bring him pleasure beche first.brings me pleasure.

rt. The feel of him between the roof of my mouth and my tongue is i ip. Myand I use my hand to counterstroke against the suck and pull I'm provi knees, My cheeks hollow, and Cannon's hand tightens in my hair even r d." he pulls me off. I lift my eyes to find his chest heaving and his eyes bu only an "That feels just a little too good," he rumbles.

"Fuck," he curses low under his breath.

I twist my hand around the base of his cock and he jerks, hand overpractically flaming with need. I try to pull him back to my mouth, but this to I become dizzy as his hands go under my arms and he lifts me from the

The room spins as he whirls me toward the bed and pushes me

Cannon immediately covers me, his torso pressing down into my base to thethe hard length of him, wet from my mouth, heavy along my butt.

feet, he He rolls slightly to the side, pushes his hand between my legs, and and hea finger under my panties. A finger slides in deep.

Cannon groans. "Jesus, Ava... you're fucking soaked. Is that ju the softsucking my cock?"

ι on his I nod furiously. Having him in my mouth, turning him on to the μ s in hishad to pull away so this wouldn't end too quickly, has my body prin ready.

mouth. "Don't move," he says and then his hand is gone from between r and myand his weight shifts. I twist my neck and see him straining to redrawer of his bedside table.

His fingertips scrabble at the knob but rather than move off me, I rible atthe entire drawer out of the table. He sets it on a pillow near the hea and pulls out a condom. I twist more to watch as he puts it betw here heperfect teeth so he can tear the wrapper.

ok right Cannon's eyes drift down to find me watching him intently, and hasies." as he pulls out the condom. "Sorry if this is going fast." He lifts pushes his pants a little more down his hips, and sheathes himself. "I mouthgot me way too hot and bothered with your mouth."

I start to laugh but air whooshes out of my lungs as he hauls me sfactionback. My feet plant into the carpet and my hands flail out until thes, butpurchase on the mattress. My head swims with an intense surge of an I'veCannon jerks my panties down to mid-thigh and gathers up my braid a cause ithis hand. He coils it deftly while using his other hand to bring hims alignment.

intense, A strangled cry rips free as he slides into me, using tiny circles of l ding. to work past the tightness.

"Goddamn it, Ava." He grunts as he tunnels deep, and I melt all nore ashim. "Why do you have to feel this good?"

rning. "You're one to be talking," I gasp as he punches his hips forwabottoms out.

is eyes "My apologies if this is over too fast," he mutters as he pulls (insteadslowly slides back in with a groan. Through gritted teeth, he adds, e floor. swear I'll get you to the same place I'm going."

onto it. I giggle but it's cut short as his free hand goes between my leg ack andbuck against the stimulation.

Cannon laughs darkly and leverages me into a somewhat upright p snakesalthough I'm still slightly bent at the waist. Fingers pressed against 1 my hair caught firmly in his grasp, he fucks me hard. His strength ho st fromin place, and because I'm too far above the mattress to use my ha stability, I clamp each one around his wrists.

point he It's in this very odd but insanely hot position that Cannon unlear and andme.

He fucks me without mercy, whispering dirty future promises, and ny legsall-out assault on my senses. It happens very fast, but I orgasm m ach thebefore he does. Cannon curses as he lowers me to the mattress, still g against my backside, his hand working the front. I'm dizzy from the s ne jerksof my release, and my clit is so sensitive as he continues to touch me, ndboardoff more sparks of pleasure.

een his "One day we'll go slow," he promises with a chuckle as he releated hair and presses a kiss to my neck.

ne grins "One day, I'll complete a blow job on you," I reply.

off me, Cannon squeezes me before lifting from my body. He slides free But youroll to the side to see him move into the bathroom. I pull up my wondering if this is when I go home. I know he told me to bring an ov up andbag but seeing what I'm pretty sure was his wife's picture in the living ey findI'm not sure. My insecurities start to rage.

lust as I start a search for my clothes when Cannon walks out of the bat again innow completely naked.

elf into "What are you doing?" he asks as I nab my bra.

"Getting dressed?" I lob it as a question, because I have a feelihis hipslooking for a specific answer.

"Yeah, that's not going to work for me," he says as he strides my aroundcan't help but let my eyes slide over his body.

When he reaches me, his hand takes hold of my braid again, and hard andit a playful tug. "There's no handing out of orgasms and running," he can "I wasn't sure..." My words dry up in embarrassment that I even out andguess.

"But I "What this was?" he prompts, dipping his head to look me in my my gaze dropped. "This isn't a hookup, Ava."

s and I "What is it?" I ask, my brain involuntarily going to the picture of may have been him and his wife in his living room.

osition, "It's not a hookup," he repeats firmly as he releases my hair and slimy clit, hand to the back of my neck. But all that really tells me is what it is olds menot what it is. "I want you to stay the night with me."

nds for I'm confused, there's no doubt. First date, we had drunk sex. The date—dinner at his house—but there was an expectation of sex. He shes onto pack an overnight bag, and I did.

Yet for some reason, I feel like I should leave.

l it's an Like telling me to bring an overnight bag was nothing more than coments" I intend to fuck you, so if you don't want that, you have an out." rinding "Okay," Cannon says with an exasperated sigh, scooping me up trengtharms. I yelp from the shock as he deposits me on the bed.

setting He plucks my bra from my hand and tosses it over his shoulder. F at the covers and forces me under them. Climbing in next to me, h is ses myhimself up on his elbow and hovers. "Spill it. What's got that brain o in a twist?"

"It's nothing—"

e, and I "Don't," he says, and I'm surprised by the slight heat in his voic panties, after what we just shared."

rernight Because while it was fast and frantic, it was special. I can feel it.

g room, "It's your wife," I blurt out. There's no holding it back, not a emphasized that what we just did has meaning.

throom, My body locks tight as I wait for his reaction. I dread that I mig pissed him off enough to kick me out of his house but instead, his exp softens.

ng he's Cannon brings a hand to my face, rubs his thumb over my cheek. wondering if you knew."

way. I "I googled you, nosy little miscreant that I am."

Chuckling, Cannon bends over and kisses me. "What's botheri le givesabout it?"

chides. "Actually, nothing's bothering me at all," I rush to assure him, jer have tountil I'm also on my elbow so I can look him in the eye. "It's just... I be sensitive to you. I've never known a widower. I don't know if yo eye asroom for something more than a hookup. And I saw what I think mig been a picture of you two in the living room."

of what "Aahh." A soft sound of understanding and empathy for me. "I i that could be confusing. I guess what you need to know is that Melis ides hisalmost nine years ago. She was my first love, and honestly, she's boa't, andonly love. But not because I hold her in a place that's so sacred I confuse ever care about another. Just... she's part of my history, and I'll nev secondher away."

told me "And I'd never expect you to. I'm not threatened by it. Again, I ju to be sensitive to you. And..." My eyes drop for a moment, but I nee into this fully honest. "I want to be sensitive to myself as well. I just canode forof a relationship that did a number on my confidence. It will help me to the parameters. To make sure I stay within expectations... both you in hismine."

Cannon smiles and kisses me again. "This is a smart conversa Ie jerkshave. Granted, we went about things a little backward with drunk so e holdsbut I like you, Ava. I'd like to continue to see you, and while we're of yoursabout it, it's only you. I don't do hookups or bed hopping."

"That's good to know," I breathe out.

"But," he says, and instantly I tense up. "My time is limited. My e. "Notbeyond hectic. I'm gone fifty percent of the time and when I'm here, s my workdays are very long. I have a lot of people I'm obligated to, important you know that while it would only be you in my bed, it m after heinfrequent."

While I'm relieved to know he likes me, and that he wants monog ht havewasn't expecting him to be so blunt about his limitations. I am, ho ressiongrateful he's laying them out. It's the best thing he could do for me so I navigate through a completely new and different type of relatior "I wasknow what to expect.

"Thank you for being honest. You obviously know how important to me."

ng you "I'll always be honest with you," he promises, leaning in for a sc "And when I'm with you, I'll give you all I've got. Okay?"

king up "Okay." I smile at him, reveling for all of three seconds before I'm want toback and he's on top, kissing me hard.

ou have "It occurs to me," he murmurs, lips trailing down my neck. He ht havedown my body, pulling a nipple into his mouth. He sucks hard and let free with a tiny pop. His eyes lift to mine. "We just committed to maginemonogamous."

isa died I'm dazed from the rapid change of activity—from talking to my een myin his mouth and back to talking again. "We did?"

ouldn't "Yeah, we did." His smile is sly as he moves back up to hover his er packover mine. "And since we're committed, I'd like to talk about sex condoms."

st want "Oh," I gasp, completely stunned. It's not something Derek and d to gotalked about. He just suited up and I never thought about it.

ame out That's how I was taught to have safe sex.

o know "I have a complete physical at the beginning of every season, urs and includes an STD test. I've always worn a condom when I'm no committed relationship."

ition to "Have you been in committed relationships since..."

ex first, Since your wife died, but I can't say it.

talking "Two," he replies, and that stings a tiny bit to know I'm not the special person he's wanted to have this discussion with. "What about you "Oh... um... well, Derek and I always used condoms, but when y job isout he was cheating on me, I had a test done too. Just to be on the safe some of "And?" he prompts.

so it's "All negative."

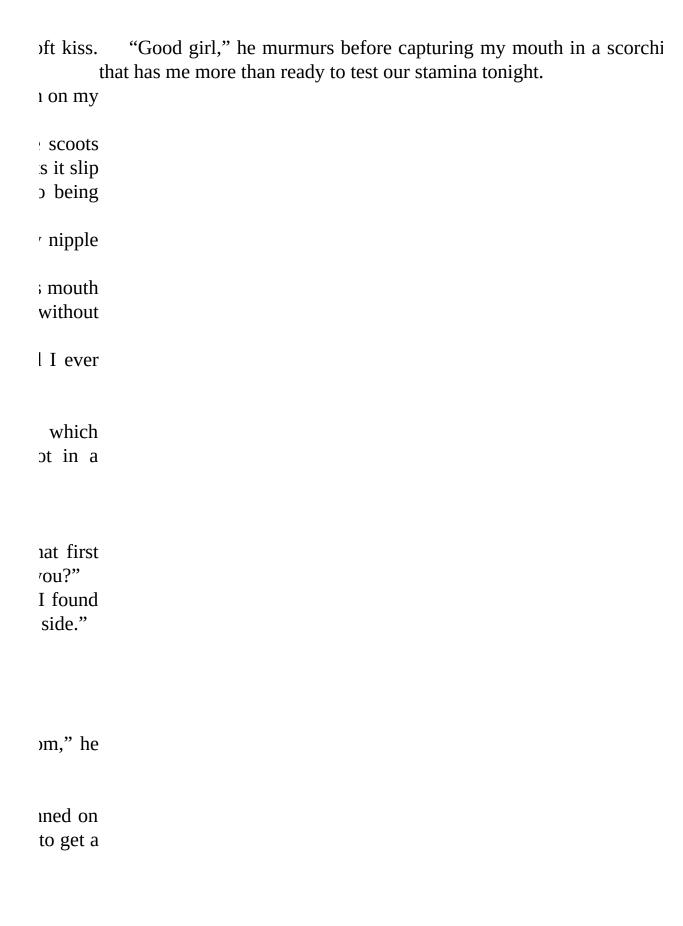

"Same," he says with a grin. "So, now let's talk birth control." "IUD," I report.

gamy, I "Meaning technically, I can fuck you right now without a condo owever, concludes.

that as "That seems like a reasonable extrapolation." I laugh.

iship, I Cannon groans, and it sounds as if he's disappointed. "I had plar only having you once more tonight, but I'm thinking we're not going t that islot of sleep."

"I can't say I'm disappointed to hear that."

"Good girl," he murmurs before capturing my mouth in a scorching kiss that has me more than ready to test our stamina tonight.

CHAPTER 10 Cannon

 $T_{\rm HIS\ ISN'T\ THE}$  first time the Pittsburgh Titans have been back to Co since the plane crash last February, but it is the first time that I've be as their head coach. While it's safe to say that this tea compartmentalize their feelings and put on their game faces, I guaran everyone—including me—is thinking about the crash to some extent.

I've always been a good flyer. I'm one of those people who neve hard time giving up control, so a little air turbulence doesn't freak I'm not the type who would feel more comfortable if I were flying the

But I'm not going to lie... I had some jitters on the early-mornin here. I can't even begin to imagine how Coen, Hendrix, and Camd since they were the three players who weren't with the team when th went down.

The flight is only forty-five minutes to travel the roughly two hamiles between the two cities. Ordinarily we travel to away games the ebefore, but with short flights like this, we can do it all in one day, players with families appreciate it. We'll head back to Pittsburgh a game tonight.

After landing at the Columbus airport, we take a bus straight to th for a light skate. Thereafter, we load the team back on the buses and into the hotel. While we aren't staying the night, Team Services arranges a hotel, as there's a lot of downtime and the players need a prelax and rest until they have to head back to the arena around five.

After enjoying a lunch buffet, most of the players head off to their for a nap.

I have work to do, so I settle in a small conference room the provided for the coaches and find my crew waiting for me—my assistant coaches, Gage, Sam, and Maurice, as well as Baden, the coach, and Jack Hanson, our senior video coach.

We spend the next hour discussing final thoughts on lineups, teams, and other odds and ends, but I pretty much rubber-stamp thei They're doing exactly what they're paid to do, and I have the confidence in them.

When our meeting finishes and the men start to leave, I call out to "You mind staying behind a second?"

"Not at all. I had something to talk to you about as well."

lumbus That catches me by surprise as I detect a note of unease, and I len here fuck he's not about to give me his resignation. So I can clear that work can my plate, I say, "You first."

tee you "It's not a big deal," he says, an almost sheepish smile on his face. going to try to catch you later this week, but I guess now is as good a r had aany—" me out. "I'm not accepting your resignation." Figured I might as well cu plane. chase.

g flight Baden blinks in surprise and then chuckles. "I'm not going anywlen felt, fact, looking to solidify my ties to the area."

e plane I frown slightly. "How's that?"

"I'm going to propose to Sophie."

nundred A grin splits my face, and I reach across the table to shake hi evening "Congrats, man. That's awesome."

and the "Well, she's got to say yes first."

fter the "I'm pretty sure that's a given." I've had some occasions to sophie and Baden together, and of course, their history before the le arena started dating is a tale known worldwide by anyone who follows let check They were fated to be together. "But what do I have to do with it?"

always Baden rubs the back of his neck, levels me another abashed localize to says, "I want to propose to her during a game."

"Come again?" I ask because I'm not even sure how that would we rooms "During a TV timeout, I was thinking a pre-recorded message Jumbotron. I wanted to run it by you first because I don't want it e hoteldistraction."

y three "I think it's a brilliant idea."

goalie "Really?"

"Yeah, I do. It's not going to distract the team, and all the guys love it. The fans will go nuts. Word of advice, though... don't do it specialthink there's a chance she'll say no. You do not want to be humilir ideas.national TV."

utmost Baden snorts. "I'm confident she'll say yes. I just wanted to do shout from the rooftops sort of way."

Baden. "As you should when you love someone," I reply. I remember we felt like, even though it was a long damn time ago. "When do you wait?"

hope to "I'm ready to go whenever. The ring was bought awhile ago."

orry off "Do it at the next home game." I love spontaneity.

"Yeah?"

"I was "Absolutely," I say with a resounding nod.

time as "Okay... I'll do it." Baden looks like he's about to burst wide ophappiness, and I'm thrilled for him. But he tucks the smile away ar t to theinto game mode. "What did you want to talk to me about?"

"I just wanted to give you a heads-up that we're working on a trad here. InBain Hillridge here."

"No shit?" Baden exclaims. "What's the trade?"

"Nolan and a second-round draft pick is what we're aiming for."

"He'll be an excellent addition, not just to the defense, but l s hand.incredible motivator."

"So I've heard. We looked at him hard. I wanted to give you forewarning since you two played together."

observe Baden may be a goalie coach, but he was an integral member by even Arizona Vengeance and was incredibly beloved there, especially after nockey attacked and left temporarily paralyzed. Every one of the Vengeance mourned the loss of their goalie, not just from his injury, but once hold, andthe decision to come to Pittsburgh as a coach.

"I'll give him a call tomorrow," Baden says, and we both stand fork. table. "Anything else you need from me?"

on the "I'm good." I follow him out of the conference room. "Going to I to be ato my room and chill for a bit."

"Same," Baden says.

I'm not a napper by nature, my body used to functioning on only so hours a night. But I do like to relax, so I'll usually read a book wouldsome mindless TV, or surf the web.

t if you When I get to my room and kick off my shoes, I have a differe ated onabout how to spend my time.

I call Ava.

it in a When she answers, the gentle lilt of her voice as she says hello wave of memories slamming into me.

hat that Memories of last night.

apparently, I'd been holding back. The minute we agreed to diction condoms, I couldn't control the raging lust that overtook me. By all I should be exhausted because we got almost no sleep, but I couldn't leave her alone.

This concerns me a bit. It's true that I've been in two other monogen withrelationships since my wife died, but it was months before I felt combined goesenough to do away with protection. Not because I had difficulty those women, but it took me a long time to build to that level of in e to getSome might say it was because Melissa's ghost was hovering over nothen, but I don't think that's it.

All I can guess is that I'm attracted to Ava on a deeper level than v women from my prior relationships. Part of it might be the raw p he's anattraction, but I think it has to do with getting to know her over a pershort bursts of almost daily interactions. I flirted with her for wee a littlelearned tiny bits of information about her. She became something I forward to every morning because while the coffee was good, I reall of theinto The Grind and chose that particular table because I wanted to be he wasAva.

players Hell, I'm smart enough to know that some things just don't have a e madeYou can only go with your gut, and my gut is telling me that something extraordinary.

rom the The mere fact that my body reacts to her voice over the phone leastrong indicator.

nead up "What are you doing?" I ask.

"Job searching," she replies, sounding quite chipper and motivated "Anything looking good?"

five or "I don't know," she muses. "A couple of listings in human resourc, watchin the Pittsburgh area, but there's a really interesting job listing marketing manager for a speaker management agency in Charlotte ent ideaCarolina. The job description is exactly what I had envisioned mysel after college."

The minute she says Charlotte, North Carolina, a pang of disappois sends ahits over the thought she might move away. She told me yesterday sends to look for jobs in other states, but her preference is to Pittsburgh or go back to North Carolina.

tch thewell for this turning into something more than what we have right now rights, I Still, I have to be happy for her if she's reaching for her dreams. fuckingawesome. What's the job description?"

I listen as Ava reads it to me, and there's no mistaking the animal gamousher voice that tells me she really wants this. I try to be happy for he fortable even go against every instinct within me and send up a small prayer to trustinggets it. I know if she does, I'm going to be more than disappointed timacy.her leave, but I also have to remind myself I'm not exactly in the mark ne backdeep relationship. I can't commit the time that someone like Ava deserve, and I know from personal experience just how damagir with the relationship a career in professional sports can be.

ohysical "It's a long shot," she says wistfully. "I mean, I'm sure there eriod inbetter qualified applicants."

"All you need is an interview. A foot in the door. Then you sell yo looked "Hey... I can do that." Her laughter makes me smile. "I will maily wenthell out of myself if they'll give me five minutes of their time."

around "That's my girl," I reply softly, and I cringe a tiny bit at how posthat sounds. Because I don't mean it like that. More of an endearment.

There's silence, and before it can turn awkward, I fill it with a character and issubject. "Have any problems getting out of my place today?"

It was not a hardship to wake up this morning wrapped around ine is awarm, naked body. I had a team plane to catch, but I didn't want to r out. I told her to sleep in and left instructions on how to reset my alarm Clearly, she had no problem or I would've gotten an alarm notif but I'm curious how long she loitered around my place, although I c but I'm curious how long she loitered around my place, although I c looked it up on my alarm app.

tes here "I couldn't go back to sleep after you headed out, so I got dress for aleft."

, North I smile at the memory of her sleepy grin when I kissed her temple f doinghard not to crawl back into bed with her, but my job doesn't allo flights of fancy.

intment "Will you be watching the game tonight?" I ask. She teased me la she wasthat she'd have to bone up on hockey if she was banging the coach.

stay in I then said something to the effect of "I'd be glad to bone you u that led to another round of sex.

't bode Ava laughs. "I am going to watch. I'm going to make homemade, put on my fuzzy jammies, and see how many times the camera will sh "That'son TV."

I chuckle because I can see her doing that. She doesn't know th ation inthat well. I also like knowing she'll be looking for glimpses of me.

r, and I "So," I drawl, as it is suddenly imperative I figure out when I can shat sheagain. "I'm flying back late tonight, and I've got a long day at the to havetomorrow, followed by dinner with some of the executive staff. But tet for ayou like to come to the home game the day after? I'll get you a tick would then we could go out for a postgame drink?"

ig to a "I'd love that," she says, and I have to hold back my exhale of relative still unsure of what we have here, and I can't assume anything.

will be "Listen... Ava," I begin, then stop, not sure if this is the right time has to be. I need to start this off with the correct expectations. "I can urself." to see you again, but as you've seen, my schedule is crazy. It might that I can see you once or twice a week. I know what we have is n we're still defining it, but this might just be a lot of stolen moments b sessiveus."

"You've already told me that." Yeah... there's a bit of censure ange oftone, but I can't help the need to make sure she understands my limi

"I really appreciate you laying it out there like that, Cannon. That's he l Ava'sboth of us, and I get where you're coming from."

ush her "If what I can offer is not enough, I need you to be vocal about it."

1. really, really need her to speak up. Because Melissa didn't. "I don't w ication, ever to think you're not good enough because you've had that alrea ould'vedon't deserve it."

"You're nothing like my ex," she rushes to assure me.

sed and "I'm just saying, I like you. You're amazing, but you deserve a lot than I can give you. My career takes up the majority of my time."

. It was "I know," she replies, her voice softly understanding. "But let's no w suchabout those things. What we have now is casual, so—"

I snort hard. "What we have is not casual. You don't ditch condo st nightcasual."

Ava giggles. "Okay, it's more than casual, it's just not often."

p," and "I can't promise you much, but I swear I'll never intentionally hu At least in that, you can have surety."

e pizza, "I think I figured that out," she murmurs.

ow you "Good. Now, I've got to get going. I'll try to call you after the gam not too late."

e game "It won't be, but if you get caught up, don't worry about it."

"Okay," I say, because she's operating exactly within the bounds see AvaI'd established.

e arena My time is limited.

: would I'll give what I can and hope it's enough for her.

ket and

ief. I'm

2. But it not wait only be ew and in her tations. lpful to

etween

Like, I ant you dy and ot more

t worry

I snort hard. "What we have is not casual. You don't ditch condoms for casual."

Ava giggles. "Okay, it's more than casual, it's just not often."

"I can't promise you much, but I swear I'll never intentionally hurt you. At least in that, you can have surety."

"I think I figured that out," she murmurs.

"Good. Now, I've got to get going. I'll try to call you after the game if it's not too late."

"It won't be, but if you get caught up, don't worry about it."

"Okay," I say, because she's operating exactly within the bounds of what I'd established.

My time is limited.

I'll give what I can and hope it's enough for her.

CHAPTER 11 Ava

 $T_{\text{HE FANS ERUPT}}$  upon the final buzzer, me alongside them, all of us c the Titans' resounding victory over the Detroit Cardinals.

"Are you ready to go, Ms. Cavanaugh?" the usher asks.

I turn to face the young girl wearing a black shirt and pants, along vest in the Titans' purple. Her name tag reads Kimberly. She came to about five minutes ago and advised that she had been instructed to tak Cannon's office after the game.

I was surprised by that as we'd made plans to meet at his place. I w surprised by the ticket Cannon had left me at will call. It was at the ce the arena, only four rows back from the ice and directly behind the bench so I got an up-close look at the team and how things operate d game. The energy rocketing through the arena about had my hair stanend, and without knowing anything about the sport and hav longstanding connection to the city, I became an instant fan.

And wow... to be just a few rows from where Cannon stood beh players had me feeling all sorts of things. Pride, but also a little l bothered. He's wearing a dark navy suit that is no doubt custom tai know what bespoke looks like because my ex wore them, but Derel looked that good.

Once during the game, Cannon turned around and looked back a wasn't actually during play but rather after Baden Oulett, the goalie proposed on the big screen to his girlfriend, Sophie. While the are trembling from the force of the stomping feet, Cannon turned ba locked eyes with me. He had an unfettered moment where he didn't be focused on the game, and he shared that time with me. It was more than a smile, a wink, then he turned back.

The couple to my left made a big deal about it. "Did Coach W wink at you?"

I played stupid. "I don't think so. I wasn't paying attention."

Not sure if they bought it, but they continued to stare at Cannon t he'd look back again.

He never did, and that was okay by me. Tonight, I'm just a fan, a at work, doing what he does best.

Well, not sure it's what he does best. The things he does to me to the sheets are pretty damn incredible. I know one thing I've learned heeringthis very brief affair so far—I didn't know what great sex was Cannon.

Now I'm not sure anyone else could ever compare.

with a And yes, I have to think about a future without Cannon because h my seatdown enough hints that he doesn't have time for anything more than e me to moments."

That's okay with me for now. I'm still suffering low confidenc vas also how Derek mistreated me, and I want to be able to trust my feelings. enter of want to chase after a shiny happily ever after.

Titans' I learned my lesson.

luring a I follow Kimberly up the steps to the main concourse, which is ding onfilled with fans making the mad dash to their cars. She leads me ing noescalator that goes up one floor and down a short hall to an elevator.

out a key card from her retractable badge reel, she presses it to a partind the doors slide open. I follow her in, and we go all the way down not and basement level.

lored. I "How come we had to go up the escalator just to go down  $_{k\ never}$  elevator?" I ask.

"This one's just a convenience and the closest elevator, even tho t me. It have to go up to get it."

coach, Doesn't seem efficient, but I'm not an engineer.

na was At the basement level, we step out, and I can still hear some of t ck and cheering as well as boisterous male voices, which I assume are the phave to echoing down the hall. The basement is a huge oval that follows un nothing arena stands, but it's so large I can't see anyone down the hall as it cuthe distance.

est just "Locker rooms are down that way," Kimberly says, explaining the She heads in the opposite direction, pointing things out as she goes alo We pass their workout facility, a family lounge where the door and I see several people inside, and then an equipment room.

o see if Kimberly turns left down a short hall, and there are offices on ea with the other coaches' names etched on brass plates on the doors.

nd he's

Maurice Dupont.

etween

Sam Thatcher.

during

Gage Heyward.

before

Baden Oulett.

Jack Hanson.

Cannon's is at the end of the hall, and it's huge, filled with a e's laid wooden desk, bookcases, and leather chairs. A large-screen TV is mot "stolen the corner, and he has a round worktable circled by five chairs.

"Make yourself comfortable. Coach West has to do the aftergam te from conference but will come and get you after."

I don't "No problem," I reply. It's either wait for him parking garage of his condo.

"Would you like something to drink?" she asks.

already "

"I'm good. Thank you for your help."

E to an Kimberly smiles and exits, pulling the door closed behind her.

Pulling I walk around the room, checking things out. On the workta nel and several notepads with scribbles. Three whiteboards have hockey rin to the drawn on them, littered with x's and o's and lots of arrows in drawner. I'd guess that's Cannon creating plays.

His desk is fairly clear except for a laptop, a landline phone, and ring binder.

ugh we The bookcases are fascinating because while they aren't overloade hold many items relevant to his hockey career. I study pictures of hir he was a player, and God, I thought he was hot in a suit, but in his he fans uniform on the ice... I might melt into a puddle.

players, There's an eight-by-ten of a hockey team in the middle of the ice der the with the Cup, which even I know is the trophy passed along to a lives in championship winner. I bend in closer, look among the men, and it

Cannon. Thanks to Google, I know he played for the Toronto Blaz e noise that they won the Cup one year he was on the team.

ng. There are other group photos where Cannon's wearing a suit, a is open guessing those were the two teams he coached before coming here. The ch sidepucks, awards, unframed certificates, and other knickknacks.

There are framed photos with what looks to be other coaches and <code>j</code> some of his hockey buddies in settings outside the arena, including o handful of guys on a beach with beers in hand, mugging for the camera

Cannon and two guys dressed in golf apparel on a putting green.

The collection seems to reflect only his hockey life—on and off th and there are no pictures of his family.

No pictures of Melissa.

The door opens, and I swing that way to see Cannon walking in. E inted in move to the bookcase I'm standing in front of. "Checking out my care I grin. "You were a really hot hockey player."

le press Cannon snorts, closing the door behind him. He moves town purposefully, and goose bumps break out on my arms from the expres n in the his face.

He wants something, and he intends to get it.

Before I know it, I'm in his arms and he's kissing me breathless his mouth pulls from mine, he smirks down at me. "Sorry... I have conference to go to, but I had to get a kiss from you first."

ble are "Oh God," I say, trying to wriggle out of his grasp. "You need to k lines that."

"Needed that kiss first," he says, his embrace tightening.

It's a concession. A decision to put hockey on hold to have a three-moments of personal time, and I'm not sure why he's doing it. I necessary because I didn't expect it.

ed, they "Did you like the game?" he asks.

"Loved it!" I exclaim. "I don't understand everything, but I got the hockey

"I can't believe you've never been to one before," Cannon says v same level of surprise he had earlier when he called to explain where I posed collect my ticket.

Derek loved to go to hockey games and always went with hi identify colleagues. His company had season tickets that they parceled out ers and higher-ups, but I was never invited.

"And," I gush with exaggerated excitement, "there was a proposal.

Cannon laughs. "I thought you might like that. Pretty slick, huh?"

God, that was so cool. Baden proposing on a pre-recorded big nere arevideo and then the cameras panned up to one of the luxury boxes girlfriend, Sophie, who was clearly accepting.

perhaps "How could a woman say no to that?"

ne of a "Sophie would never have said no, no matter how he proposed.

- two have a bond that's unlike any other. It's a long story, and I'll t about it, but I have to get to the press conference."
- le ice— Cannon kisses me again, and I'm finally released from his gras backs toward the door. "Just wait here if you don't mind. Twenty 1 tops. I'll try to cut it shorter."

Is eyes "You don't have to do that."

er?" He ignores my offer and instead asks, "What do you want to do? for drinks and some food?"

ard me "Not really," I say, hesitant to turn down what would most lil sion onconsidered a date.

Cannon's lips twitch. "Do you want to come home with me?" "Does that make me a brazen hussy?" I ask with a smirk.

. When "Do you care?"

a press "No. I mean... our time is kind of limited, so I want to maximize it Cannon laughs. "Then I can't wait to take you home with me."

o go do "My car—"

"We'll leave it, and I'll bring you back in the morning."

"Okay," I breathe out, excited about this choice of how our eveni a fewend. Maybe I am a hussy.

It's not Cannon moves to step over the threshold and then stops, a frown face as he looks back. "You know that when I bring you to my p doesn't mean we have to have sex."

gist." I cock an eyebrow at him.

vith the He shrugs and grins. "Well, okay... yes, I want to have sex with y shouldit's not like I'm expecting we just go right at it when we get there.' relax and talk, watch a movie, or—"

s work "Cannon," I say, cutting him off. "I know all that. How about we to theabout what we'll do when we step foot in your place?"

His eyes glint with dark promises as he fully faces me. "If I have n I want you to know I'll probably bend you over the couch and fuck you and fast. It's the closest piece of furniture."

-screen A shudder runs up my spine, but I point a finger at him. "Out. Go o

; to hispress conference."

Cannon grins, winks, and then disappears.

And I don't miss the fact that my heart flutters over that entire example. Those The dirty talk that forecasts how tonight will probably go. The efficient your probably go where the probable of giving.

To create tiny pockets of time and slot me into them.

p as he What does it mean he took the time to come and kiss me before the ninutesconference? Why would he do that?

"Stop it," I whisper, pressing a hand to my chest. "It doesn' anything."

Go out

kely be

. "

ng will

on his lace, it ou, but We can

e worry ny way, ou hard

do your

press conference."

Cannon grins, winks, and then disappears.

And I don't miss the fact that my heart flutters over that entire exchange. The dirty talk that forecasts how tonight will probably go. The effort he's making to give more than what he's told me he's capable of giving.

To create tiny pockets of time and slot me into them.

What does it mean he took the time to come and kiss me before the press conference? Why would he do that?

"Stop it," I whisper, pressing a hand to my chest. "It doesn't mean anything."

CHAPTER 12 Cannon

I really didn't want to make it about sex... inviting Ava to my hou the game. Hell, I even told her that in my office so my intentions hav offered to the universe. I drove us across the river and into downtow the press conference, throwing out different movies we could watch w got to my place. I offered to make us hot chocolate from scratch and the gas fireplace, figuring that might make things more romantic.

Ava replied with mild interest, saying things like, "That sounds n "I've been wanting to see that movie."

So I figured as soon as we crossed the threshold of my unit, we divest ourselves of our coats and move straight into the kitchen for sc chocolate.

Instead, I barely get the door closed before Ava turns into my bo hands going to my belt buckle to undo it with an almost unholy glin eyes.

I'm not really sure what it says about me, but it never once cros mind to stop her. All thoughts of movies, romantic fires, and hot ch with marshmallows flee my mind, and my hands are jerking at her instead.

Right there in my foyer, we lose our heavy wool coats and followed by articles of clothing being frantically torn from our bc between hot, messy kisses and rumbling groans whenever fingertip contact with skin.

I kiss Ava with a hand on the back of her head and at the same ti my other hand between her legs. "What to do with you?" I n wondering if I should indeed just bend her over the couch as I promise

Ava's laugh is husky as she rotates her hips against me. I give he she asks for, slipping my middle finger deep inside her. She responstroking my cock, and I know at this moment, I will never make it bedroom.

Out of respect for our bodies, I don't drag her to the tiled floor but pick her up and carry her over to my deep-set couch. Rather than drag over the back, I lie her down on it as gently as I can. While my caveman wants nothing more than to bury myself deep inside her, things down by trailing my lips over her soft skin. I trace a sensuo over her breasts, across her ribs, and right in between her legs after sp se afterher wide.

ve been Ava stares down at me from an angle propped up on her elbows. He vn after wild with need, and she's biting into her lower lip so hard the skin then we her teeth turns white. I tilt my head and rub my cheek over the silky turn on her mound.

Ava hisses from the contact of my stubble.

ice," or I leer up at her. "I have been dying to taste you."

"I feel the same. I want you in my mouth."

would Groaning, I shake my head. "Not right now." Instead, I prod her vome hottongue, and her entire body jerks like she's been electrocuted.

I glance back up and she seems utterly confused.

'dy, her "What's wrong?" I ask softly.

t in her Her face turns red and she shakes her head, eyes cast away from m "Ava... do you not want me to do this to you?"

ises my Her voice is so soft, I can barely hear it. "I want it more than oxygo ocolate<sup>now</sup>."

clothes "Then why do you look so unsure?"

"Because I've never been in this position before. All my..." She f shoes, for the right words.

odies in I hazard a guess. "No one has ever done this to you before?"

s make "I guess I wasn't sexy enough to inspire—"

A growl tears free from my chest and I crawl up her body so n me sliphovers over hers. My dick nestles against her soft pussy, jerking fr nurmur, contact, but I ignore it. I bend down and kiss her nose before pullin d. study her. "Me wanting my mouth between your legs and wanting to er what off that way has nothing to do with you being sexy. Which you are, of onds by But I want to do this for no other reason than I want to give you pleat to the any of the men you were with before never did that to you, it's becau were straight-up selfish assholes and didn't care about what you might instead My lips brush softly against her mouth. "You're just going to ling hertrust me on that."

Her eyes flare with surprise, but I still see the doubt.

y inner I'm done talking, so I slither back down her body, spread her leg I slowand destroy her with my mouth. She tastes so fucking good, and I'm us pathharder and harder with every tiny cry or buck of her hips. By the ti readingscreams her release, my balls are tingling with the need to explode.

With Ava still trembling, I surge up, taking one of her legs high ler eyescrooked over my elbow and drive into her. She gasps, and nothing h aroundfelt better than her body melting around me as we join together.

skin of There is nothing tender in the way I fuck her. I go at it hard and egged on by Ava's fingernails digging into my ass cheeks.

"More," she huffs, and I nearly come when she slides one hand tour bodies to touch herself.

I immediately slow my thrusts, because that means she wants to with myagain, and I'm going to make sure she gets there.

It's all leisurely kissing and slow pumping of my hips. I keep my pressed tight to her, trapping her hand between us. I fuck her deep, a responds with gyrating hips to create more friction. Her second

e. catches both of us unaware, and she arches her back as the pleasu through her. I feel her muscles contracting all around me, and I go en rightmore strokes in before my head falls forward and I curse out my releas fumbles "I love when you come inside me," she murmurs dreamily.

"Fuck, Ava," I say through gritted teeth as my lungs deflate. fuck."

Another burst of pleasure hits me hard as I grind against her. I let drag over her neck and feel the mad beat of her pulse, as fast as humm wings.

ny face Ava slides her fingers into my hair and strokes me gently as v om thecome down from the high.

g up to get you

course.

sure. If It's quiet as Ava lies on top of me. I shifted our positions on the couse they pulled a folded blanket over us. Her head is on my chest, and I'm want." skimming her lower back. We've been this way for several minutes thought Ava was asleep because of the lengthy silence, except for late topleasurable sounds as I stroke her skin.

"So a guy has never—"

s wide, Ava cuts me off. "Never."

getting I wonder if that's typical. I've never been one to talk to my guy me sheabout sex, so I don't know if everyone's into oral the way I am. Then can't say I'm always into it. I guess it depends on the woman and how with itwant to give.

as ever With Ava, I want to give her everything and then more on top of the already thinking about not just getting her off with my mouth again furious, rather how many times I can do it in a row.

Two? Three? I've never tried it, but I'm going to.

between Just not now.

I am far too sated and content with her on top of me to do muc o comethan lie in peace.

"You were going to tell me about Baden and Sophie's backstory pelvismurmurs.

and she "It's a good one," I muse. "How about you and I climb into bed?" orgasm I don't give Ava a chance to respond. I lurch up from the couch v re rollsin my arms, amazed that I have strength after that orgasm. I carry he et threemaster suite and set her just inside the doorway, giving her a tiny push pat to her ass. "I'm going to use the guest bathroom. Help yourself to r "Just... Within five minutes, both of us are climbing under my cove completely naked, and I turn the bedside lamp off before drawing her arms. Ambient light spills through the doorway from the lights I left or my lipsliving room, but I'm too lazy to turn them off.

ingbird "How did Baden and Sophie meet?" Ava asks, and I know she' going to be prepared for the answer I'm about to give her.

we both I explain how Sophie was visiting Phoenix and was attacked be men. Baden jumped in without a thought to his own safety to rescue ended up with significant injuries.

Ava gasps when I tell her he was paralyzed, and murmurs www. wonder when I describe his long-haul recovery.

ich and "There was a shot he could've played as a goalie again, but the lightly offered him a coaching position, and he decided to take that."

"And he got up with Sophie when he moved to Pittsburgh?" Av ner tinyher breath feathering across my chest.

I've never been a big believer in fate, but it does make you "Yeah... he checked in on her, and they developed a friendship that into more."

friends "That's about the coolest, sweetest, and most romantic story I'd again, Iheard." She snuggles in closer, her hand tightening around my wais much Iwould most definitely have to believe in fate at that point."

Ava yawns, and I struggle not to match it. It's been a long day fill nat. I'mmajor rushes of adrenaline—both winning the game and coming in hin, butAva—and I'm suddenly exhausted.

"I've got a really busy day tomorrow, plus that executive dinner, leading into setting up our next date. "I could swing a quick lunch come to the arena."

h more I can hear the wistfulness in her voice. "That would be nice."

"The dinner is a once-a-month thing and not something I can get on Ava stiffens in my arms. "I would never ask you to get out of sor like that. And you don't owe me evenings, Cannon."

I smile and squeeze her, rubbing her back again to soothe h vith herrelaxation. "I know, I'm just telling you my schedule. The rest of my r to thecrazy with an away game, then travel back. But I was wondering if you with awilling to be my date to a Titans' event on Friday. We're doing a tr nine." treat for all the kids."

rs, still "Oh, I love trunk-or-treating," Ava says, lifting her head. "My par into mya big one for the real estate company every year for all their clients."

n in the "Well, I don't know what the hell to do," I admit. "I'm told it in costumes and decorating the trunk of my vehicle to hand out candy."

s never "Yes, you can go with any number of themes, spooky or fu whatever you feel like doing—but there must be lots of candy."

y three "I guess now would be a good time to ask a favor," I say with whather and a charming tone. "If I gave you my credit card, would you be wi buy the decorations and help me dress up my vehicle?"

ords of Ava chuckles and places her head back down on my chest. "Of I'd offer to buy the decorations myself, but seeing as how I'm unent Titansand all..."

"If you need money—" ra asks, Ava cuts me off. "I don't. And I am more than happy to help yo give me a budget, and I'll get it done."

think. "There's no budget, so go crazy."

: turned "Are you dressing up?"

Hmm. I know the players are, but I hadn't really thought about it. ve everbusy I guess, but if Ava would help me I could do it.

t. "One "I suppose I should. Any ideas? We can dress up as a matching But I'd need you to handle getting those costumes as well."

ed with "Consider it done," she says, and there's no mistaking her enthusia side of "After, would you like to go out to dinner and a movie?" I ask.

Ava laughs teasingly. "You actually have time in your schedule fc" I say,date. I don't even know how to respond to that."

if you My hand slides down, and I give her naked butt a slight tap. "Smar "We can do whatever you want," Ava says with another yawn, a snuggles in tighter to me, indicating she wants to sleep.

ut of." "Okay." I twist to press my lips to the top of her head for a kiss. nethingfigure it out on Friday."

ier into

week is ou'd be unk-or-

ents do

nvolves

ın—it's

t I hope

lling to course. iployed

ou. Just give me a budget, and I'll get it done."

"There's no budget, so go crazy."

"Are you dressing up?"

Hmm. I know the players are, but I hadn't really thought about it. Just too busy I guess, but if Ava would help me I could do it.

"I suppose I should. Any ideas? We can dress up as a matching couple. But I'd need you to handle getting those costumes as well."

"Consider it done," she says, and there's no mistaking her enthusiasm.

"After, would you like to go out to dinner and a movie?" I ask.

Ava laughs teasingly. "You actually have time in your schedule for a real date. I don't even know how to respond to that."

My hand slides down, and I give her naked butt a slight tap. "Smartass."

"We can do whatever you want," Ava says with another yawn, and she snuggles in tighter to me, indicating she wants to sleep.

"Okay." I twist to press my lips to the top of her head for a kiss. "We'll figure it out on Friday."

CHAPTER 13 Ava

 $I_{\text{T's Too Late}}$  to be worried about it, but I hope the toast doesn't get I'm building double-decker BLT sandwiches for lunch with Cannon t the arena. My grocery budget didn't take much of a hit with the lettitomatoes, and I went with a cheaper brand of bacon, but honestly, any bacon is good bacon. I also cut strawberries, and that is the extent lunch menu, but I know it'll be perfect for him. He's an easy man to pl

Cannon offered to have lunch delivered, but I wanted to do sor nice for him. Not that my food would taste better than what he mig ordered, but I want to show the effort because he's making time in his schedule to see me.

Thirty precious minutes that I'm sure he could be doing somethin important.

I stack the layers and lightly spread mayo on the toast slices. I sandwiches with toothpicks to hold them together and cut my stac triangles. I'm just pulling out some plastic wrap when my phone rin sitting on my cracked Formica countertop the color of crusty musta I'm pleased to see it's my brother calling. I quickly wipe my hand paper towel and connect the call, immediately putting it on speaker s continue to work.

"What's up, bro?" I say merrily.

"Just calling to check in," he replies through the crackle of what like a poor Bluetooth connection in his car. He always seems to call n there. "Although by the tone of your voice, it seems you're happy."

"I'm doing excellent. Where are you headed?"

"I've got a house to show over in Wake Forest, then I'm going 'Kristin for lunch."

"Things getting serious?" I tease, because he's been seeing Kriabout five weeks now, and every time we talk, he mentions her.

"I don't know," he hedges, which he also does every time I at things are going.

"That's a rousing endorsement."

"It is what it is," he laments without sorrow but mere resignation love life isn't a priority. "You doing okay? How's the job hunt going?"

"I have a bunch of résumés out. Hopefully, I'll hear back about s them this week." I hesitate to say anything else. I don't know how Rot soggy.take knowing that I'm seeing someone. Not that I'm reboundin oday at Cannon, since I haven't dated anyone in the over six months since I be ace and with Derek.

There should be nothing about me seeing Cannon that would of our judgment from my brother. It's not like he's averse to me being hap ease. just didn't like me running off after Derek without really knowing him nething "Actually, I'm making lunch to go have with a guy I've been datin ht have "Oh yeah?"

s hectic "I met him at the coffee shop."

"Another barista?" Rob's tone turns fatherly. "You know you g more better than a coffee maker."

I chuckle as I assemble the other sandwich.

stab the "What's so funny?" he prods.

ks into "I think this guy is a little more accomplished than a barista."

rd, and parents didn't like Derek, even though he was accomplished, made the on a money, and had an executive position at his company, was that he was accomplished to I can arrogant because of it. I'm sure Rob is having flashbacks of those for brought on by me dating someone successful.

"Don't worry," I assure him. "This guy is really nice. Nothi sounds Derek."

ne from "What does he do?"

I'd kill to be able to switch this to FaceTime and see Rob's facenow. "He's the head coach for the Pittsburgh Titans."

Rob snorts. "And I'm the head cheerleader for the Dallas Cowboys I laugh because he thinks I'm joking. He has no clue I'm telling th stin for and I'm not sure I can make him believe me.

"I swear to you on all that is holy, I'm dating Cannon West."

Another long pause as Rob considers what I just said. He knows I sk hownever know the head coach's name for any team, much less the Pit Titans. Rob is into all sports and I know he will know precisely who is.

that his "You're seriously dating Cannon West?" he asks tentatively, so like he very much fell down the rabbit hole and is staring at a cat some ofsmoking a bong on a mushroom.

would How to answer that? We are having sex. We're having meals tog ug withguess that's dating. "Yes. He used to come into the coffee shop, which roke upwe met, and he ended up asking me out."

"Before you got fired?" Rob asks.

I bring I don't dare tell him that Cannon is kind of the reason I got fired, sopy. Hesmooth change of subject. "All you need to know is that he is a sugury, and I'm enjoying myself. But it is very, very casual. He is an incident of the subject of

"Well, that doesn't make me feel any better," Rob drawls. "I want be with someone who can give you all his time."

can do My heart melts. I love that Rob only wants the best for me. "I'n I'm not chasing rainbows, nor do I have my head in the clouds. I'm gr here."

"Fine," he relents. "But could this get serious?"

"I don't know, and until I do, please don't tell Mom and Dad. I do and mylike having them all up in my business about this."

lots of Before my brother can respond, a call comes through and I frow as alsounknown number on my screen starting with a 704 area code. And the feelingsheart leaps as it says the city is Charlotte, North Carolina. I don't anyone or have any friends in Charlotte—the only connection is to th ng likeapplied for a few days ago.

"I gotta take this call, Rob. Talk later." I don't give him a chance goodbye before disconnecting and reconnecting to the Charlott ce right "Hello?"

"Hi," a young female voice says, all bright and cheery. "My r "Darcy Calder, and I'm calling from the Shelley Royce Agency."

le truth, I set the knife down and squeeze my eyes shut, inhaling a long breath before letting it out. "Hi, Darcy."

"Hi," she chirps back. "Ms. Royce asked me to give you a call to wouldwe could set up a quick Zoom meeting at twelve thirty."

tsburgh My head spins. I'm supposed to be at the arena at noon for lunc CannonCannon, but there is no way I'm going to miss this opportunity. absolutely meet at that time."

ounding "Perfect. I'll send you the link, and Ms. Royce will talk to you ther erpillar "Okay, thank you."

After I disconnect the call, I battle with my emotions. I'm beyond ether. Ibecause Shelley Royce wants to interview me and wants to do it quais howjust emailed in my résumé the day before yesterday. That has to book right?

But I war with feelings of disappointment that I'm not going o I do aCannon today. It was the only time he could fit me in before our troer nicetreat date at the end of the week.

redibly I know he'll understand, but I can't push away the tiny bit of formaybe he won't.

right now, so I shoot him a text: I'm really sorry to do this, especially on such shoot good.but I'm not going to be able to make our lunch date. I got a Zoom interview with that roundedCharlotte at 12:30.

I hit Send and I don't expect an immediate reply, but I know he'll I when he gets a chance.

n't feel As for me, I've got to get ready. I've already showered, but I still do hair and makeup. I consider eating one of the sandwiches to put sor n at thein my stomach, but I'm too nervous. Instead, I wrap them up and put hen mythe refrigerator before heading to my bathroom.

t know

at job I

e to say Shelley Royce is a bundle of enthusiastic energy combined with p te call. businesswoman. She looks to be in her early forties with lightly layere blond hair cut just to her jawline. Her heart-shaped face boasts the chame is most gorgeous complexion I've ever seen, and her smile is open and the as soon as our meeting link connects.

g silent I've never done a Zoom job interview before, and I feel a litt sitting here smiling at her through my laptop camera.

o see if "Thank you so much for dropping everything to jump on this in with me," Shelley effuses, as if I'd just given up high tea with the I ch withEngland. "I have a ton of résumés I've been going through, but your "I canout."

There's no stopping the frown that obliterates my smile. I can't t one interesting thing on my résumé that would've caught her eye.

"I can see by your expression that I've flummoxed you," she says 1 giddylaugh.

ickly. I "It's just... my résumé is decidedly short on marketing experience, le well, not that such admission is necessary. She has it right there in front of h

"The fact you have no working experience in marketing is what to seemy eye. You've got the right degree, which works well in the HR f unk-or-well as the real estate work you've done, but you've done no marketin which is kind of what I'm looking for."

ear that Okay, that's weird, but I let it go for now. "Full disclosure, if you figured it out by my last name, the real estate job was working practiceparents' company until I got my first job in HR."

ort notice, "I did not make that connection, as your last name isn't a agency inuncommon. But thank you for letting me know."

"I have to say, I'm a little unsure of myself. I truly didn't think respondsnowball's chance in hell of getting your attention with my résumé. It' sparse, and I'm young."

need to "Exactly," Shelley says, pointing a finger right at the camernethingactually your lack of experience, coupled with your cover letter, that them innot just my attention but my imagination. You might not have experi draw from, but you've got enthusiasm. You've got drive. You air which I respect. You told me right in your cover letter that if I gave chance, you would work your butt off for me."

"And I will," I say emphatically.

olished Shelley settles back into her chair and seems to appraise me through, shortcomputer screen. "I'm not going to ask you a bunch of run-of-tlewiest, questions. I'm very much a think-outside-the-box kind of woman. I friendly your résumé here, so I know your history. You and I have the same so I know exactly what you learned in college. I only have one questle silly vou."

I swallow hard because the pressure just intensified tenfold.

terview "Tell me one thing in your work history that has provided the { King of learning lesson so far in your young life."

stuck Sweat breaks out on my forehead because a lot is riding on one answer. I could probably tell her about all the responsibility my pare hink of on me at a young age, because they were confident in my abilities. I conher how I worked while doing my undergraduate degree to impress up with amy work ethic.

Instead, I decide to admit something embarrassing because if I'm § "I say,be honest with her, it is by far the greatest learning lesson of my life. er. into HR because of a man. My boyfriend got me the job, and when he caughtjob transfer, I followed him from Raleigh to Pittsburgh. It was a bad dield, as And because of that bad decision, I found myself without a job, will get at all, boyfriend, and without a home to live in. I had put all my eggs in one and I'll never do that again."

haven't Shelley's eyebrows rise and she leans forward, crossing her foreafor myher desk. Her attention is rapt as I continue.

"I had the option of going home. My family would have been morall thatthrilled to welcome me back into the business. But I wanted to try something on my own, and through the advice of a friend I've recently I had adecided to look for a job in the field I really want to work in." s rather "Marketing," Shelley says.

I nod and smile. "Yes, marketing. It's what I envisioned doing a. "It's graduated from college, but instead, I got knocked off my path by follocaughtman who was not good for me."

ence to Shelley nods in stoic understanding. "Every woman has a story lin high,Did you learn from it?"

e you a "I did." I glance over at the box of plastic wrap sitting on the counthat's left of my canceled lunch date with Cannon, then back to She learned that having a good career is important. I have to follow my ugh theand not the dreams of someone else. I know that I might not be able the-milleverything I want, but that I should make sure I have the thing I need 've gotAnd I really want this job, Ms. Royce."

degree, "I'm inclined to give it to you just for telling me that story," Shelle tion for and my heart about leaps out of my chest. "Would you be willing to I to Charlotte?"

I try to hold my voice steady because I knew this would come upgreatestjob listing said that the position could be remote. I really would like to the Pittsburgh area if I can, but if that's a deal breaker, I'll contains the property of th e singleCharlotte."

ents put My pulse races as I wait for her response, because truly, i buld tellPittsburgh I'm attached to, but Cannon. So much for telling her I pon herfocus on my career and not let a man change my course.

Shelley waves a hand dismissively. "It absolutely can be a going toposition. I run my business out of my home, and my other employee "I wentfrom theirs. I just like to get together with my team, so it would require got atravel to Charlotte, probably at least once a quarter."

ecision. "I can do that." And in my mind, I start figuring out how much mo thout aneed to save for a plane ticket, or I could just drive. That's not a major basket, though.

"I have some other interviews to do for this position. I plan on makers ondecision by the end of the week."

My heart sinks. I had thought by the very nature of her setting this are thanmeeting so quickly, I was a shoo-in. But I plaster a brilliant, profer to dosmile on and say, "Thank you so much for this opportunity. If you for y met, Ithere's anything else I can do to assure you I'm the right person for please let me know."

"I will. And I need to check references. I'm going to assume your when Iwill give me a glowing one on your behalf. But do you anticipate a owing abad from your former company? It didn't sound like you left on good t

I shake my head. "I worked in a different division than my ex, ke that.supervisor who was very happy with my work. All my review spectacular, so I'm confident you can call her for a recommendation."

nter, all And I throw up a small prayer that Derek hasn't passed word delley. "Isabotage me.

dreams "Outstanding. I'll reach out to them today. It was a pleasure tal to haveyou, Ava."

d most. "Thank you again for the opportunity."

"I'll let you know one way or the other by end of business on Fridary says, When we disconnect, I'm so excited I don't know what to do with relocate I could call my parents or Rob, but the one person I want to talk to is C and I don't want to interrupt him or seem overly needy.

. "Your I'll just send him a text and apologize again for missing lunch. As stay in and my parents, I'll wait until I know if I have a job.

ome to Unlocking my phone, I see that Cannon texted me back from my l canceling lunch. While I'm bummed not to see you, I'm incredibly excited about the opati's notLet me know how it goes.

need to That was sweet. I hadn't expected a reply, and all that tells me is the taken Cannon's words deeply to heart. I'm translating his lack of time remotelack of ability to give me anything. I'm setting my expectations very swork I'm not disappointed.

re some I text him back. Just finished with interview. It went really good. I'll know by end content hesitate before sending it, but then decide to throw it out there. I'm bumn ney I'll lunch too and can't wait to see you Friday.

r worry

sing my

s Zoom essional eel like the job, parents nything terms." under a s were own to

king to ıy." myself. Cannon, for Rob

last one

canceling lunch. While I'm bummed not to see you, I'm incredibly excited about the opportunity. Let me know how it goes.

That was sweet. I hadn't expected a reply, and all that tells me is that I've taken Cannon's words deeply to heart. I'm translating his lack of time to a lack of ability to give me anything. I'm setting my expectations very low so I'm not disappointed.

I text him back. Just finished with interview. It went really good. I'll know by end of week. I hesitate before sending it, but then decide to throw it out there. I'm bummed about lunch too and can't wait to see you Friday.

CHAPTER 14 Cannon

I glance at my watch and then back to Gage. "I've got to get goin meeting with Camden in a few minutes."

Gage settles back into his office chair and crosses his arms over hi "Are you going to tell him about the trade?"

I'm standing in the doorway to Gage's office, having just stoppe say hello. We got sidetracked talking about some potential line switc tomorrow's game in Quebec. "Yeah... I'm going to give him a head don't want him caught off guard."

Today's been a busy day already and we haven't even reached watched video this morning, followed by a team practice. Later we're a full team meeting to discuss tomorrow night's game which is goin tough as the Royals are holding the number one spot in our conference

"Let me know what you find out," Gage says. My primary pur talking to Camden isn't about the trade but to try to uncover why he's so off. "Also, let me know if there's anything I can do."

"You bet."

I leave Gage's office and walk the fifteen feet down to mine, onc looking at my watch. Camden will be here in a few minutes, a conversation has the potential to go a little longer than my schedule I've got a twelve-thirty lunch date with Ava, and I need to let her might be running a few minutes late.

After I'm seated at my desk, I pull out my phone to shoot her a qui Instead, I see that she's sent me one. I'm really sorry to do this, especially on s notice, but I'm not going to be able to make our lunch date. I got a Zoom interview with that Charlotte at 12:30.

Well, shit.

That fucking sucks.

I quickly text her back that I understand and try to put it out of m

But damn it... I was really looking forward to seeing her. I know it w going to be for a short time, and we would be hunched over my desk whatever she was bringing, but it was the only time I'd see her foldays.

My thumbs hover over my phone, wondering if I should text Should I say that I'll miss her?

It doesn't seem right, even if I feel it.

ng. I'm Goddamn, this whole thing with her is becoming confusing.

The knock on my door draws my hand from my phone, and I loo s chest.see Camden.

At twenty-five, he's a seasoned second-line defenseman. He d by tostraight into the league at eighteen and has played with Pittsburgh the thes fortime, although he started with one of our minor league teams. He was ds-up. IThe Lucky Three, missing that plane trip because of a minor knee injure.

When I first came to Pittsburgh, I spent a lot of time talking to noon. IDerringer and the assistant coaches to get a handle on how the thread having were doing emotionally, because hockey is as much a mental geto be be physical. Everyone knew that Coen Highsmith wasn't managing thing as he was often in the news for bad behavior. Camden seemed able pose in with it with almost an old man's wisdom, talking about fate being ou seemed hands. By all accounts, he's a happy-go-lucky guy and a favorite amnew players. When he's on the ice, he gives it his all.

But even with all this effort, he's just... off. He's young, skillful, e againshape, so I know it's not his endurance. This only leads me to belie and our maybe his head isn't in the game.

allows. "Come on in, buddy. Take a seat."

know I Camden lowers himself into one of the chairs across from my des changed out of his hockey gear, showered (as evidenced by the dam ck text. and is back in street clothes. Like the other players, he'll grat such short somewhere close by or take advantage of the buffet in the team room agency in back by two for our team meeting.

I take a good long look at Camden, and I can see on his face the nervous. As a coach, I could use this knowledge to my advantage, but believe in leading through fear or intimidation. So I immediately put y mind. ease. "Nothing for you to worry about with this meeting. Just a heat wanted to share."

ras only Camden's eyebrows rise. "What's that?"

r a fewteam." I don't offer any details as that's confidential at this point.

"If it goes through, who will take the first-line position?" he asks.

t more. I'm not one to sugarcoat things. "Bain."

I let that sink in for a moment. Camden was a potential choice to into that position once we sent Nolan to the Vengeance. "You're qualithat first-line position, but you've been off since the start of the season k up tonumbers aren't what they were last year, and Bain is performing the think you have the ability to battle for that position if you want it, but cameto know if there's anything I can do to help you get your focus back." e entire Camden's gaze slides, and I use that opportunity to push a little one of "Is it the crash? You need any help with that?"

ry. Camden shakes his head, eyes snapping back to mine. "It's not th Callumsome family stuff I have going on. It's fair to say my focus has taken a ee men "What can I do to help?" I ask, the main reason for this meeting. H ame asI effectuate some positive change for him?

gs well, Clasping his hands, he says, "I'm good. I'm dealing, and I'll get i to dealcontrol."

ong theand I have to assume he'll do what's necessary. I've made my offer think Camden knows me well enough to know that my help's a solution, and inoffer.

eve that "Okay, then." I stand from my desk, indicating the meeting is overeach out for a handshake. Camden looks relieved, likely because I control browbeaten him and tried to pick until I got to the crux of his story.

k. He'syou at the team meeting."

p hair), Although I'll still be keeping a close eye on him.

lunch "Thanks, Coach."

and be When I'm alone, I sit back in my chair and heave a sigh. I wonc Ava's job interview is going. There's a good possibility that it could not he'sher moving away sooner rather than later. I'm not crazy about the heat I don'tthis puts me in... I haven't felt like this about anyone since Melissa.

him at I didn't shy away from telling Ava the truth about past relationshi ds-up Ihad two monogamous relationships with women that I would've con somewhat serious. Serious in that they lasted a moderate amount of tin was eight months, and the other was almost a year and a half.

e to the But ultimately, they faltered. I just couldn't give enough of mysel wanted love and marriage and children. Those were three things I co offer, and the relationships ended. I think back to those times and ask what I would do if one of them had gotten a job offer in another state.

o move I don't have to think hard to know I wouldn't have done anything. fied foreven sure I would've been disappointed. I would have simply moved n. YourI always do.

petter. I It doesn't sit well with me that I'm already invested in feelings for I need and that the fact she's on a job interview causes unease within me.

The easy way out would be to cut it off with her right now. Ava harder ability to make me want to care a lot more than I've ever been wi explore.

at. Just But the easy route has never been the path I've been interested in, a hit." not ready to give this up yet. There's a chance she won't get the job, a low cansuch time as she might leave Pittsburgh, I would like to keep stri spend as much time with Ava as I can.

t under Whether it turns into something like my past relationships, I cal Will Ava want something more than I can offer, and if she does, we in adultwilling to cede? My past experience tells me it's way too complicate, and Iway too early in the game to be worrying about such things.

tanding My stomach rumbles, and I realize I haven't eaten anything scrambled eggs at my house this morning. I open one of my desk over, and another than the pulling out a protein bar, as I keep a handful around for ju ould'veemergencies.

'I'll see But my phone rings and my eyes go to the screen, hoping it's Avame the job interview is over and she wasn't offered the position. That makes me a complete shit, but I don't dwell on it because it's recalling.

ler how It's Melissa's mom, Connie.

lead to I hate the way my stomach pitches over seeing her name. I hate adspacefor wanting to ignore it, because I've got the perfect excuse of being busy head coach of a professional hockey team.

ps. I've But I do my duty.

ne. One conversation with her has to be done with kid gloves.

She sniffles into the phone, and her voice is watery. "Oh, Canno f. Theyare we going to get through next week?"

ould not I hate these fucking calls. I'm not an insensitive man, and I have myselfsympathy in the world for Connie. Melissa was her only daughter, a simply hasn't recovered from her death.

I'm not What's worse is she carries on our relationship acting as if I on, likerecovered from it either.

Or I suspect, at times, she knows I've recovered, but she does not Ava, me to move on. By staying behind with her, mired in bleak grief, a companionship.

has the It's now time for me to walk a tightrope, balancing Connie's feelin lling tostaying true to myself.

"I don't suppose November fourth is ever going to be an easy day and I'mI say with sympathy.

nd until That's the truth. No matter how well I've handled my grief and ving toforward with my life, November fourth will always be the worst day year because that's the day Melissa finally let go and died in my arms.

n't say. We are exactly one week from the anniversary, and Connie is ill I bespinning out of control.

ted and "I was driving by Milner Lake the other day and it just broke my Connie reminisces. "All the times you two would hang out there 3 sincesummer. I remember the day you got engaged... that look on Missy drawerswhen you got down on one knee was priceless. You were at the encist suchdock with the sun setting behind her..."

I close my eyes and settle back into my chair, listening to Connie a to tellthe memories. Melissa and I dated all through high school, and I spent hinkingtime over at her house. Connie and Andrew Waite became second parot Avame. I invited them to be there when I proposed, along with my paloved them. They were going to be my parents through marriage, so I them to share in the joy.

myself "... so I went in," she continues, having sunk deeper into her s a very "and rearranged the furniture in her room. It made me feel close to her Melissa was twenty-seven when she died, and we'd been marri living together for six years, but Connie never changed her bedroom.

single Now it's a shrine.

"Cannon... I know how difficult this time is for you. I know ho n. Howyou try to move on, and I know you're having the same struggles the Just know I'm here for you because you're still like a son to me."

all the I take in a shaky breath. Connie lives in a fantasy land. I and shestruggling to move on, and the anniversary of Melissa's death will n me into an abyss of grief next Wednesday.

haven't That's not to say I didn't have debilitating grief after she died. The weeks where I was beyond lost on how to escape the pain, then ot wantgradually got better.

she has I most certainly moved on because every person in my life who lo —friends, family, teammates—wanted me to move on. I choose not to gs withthe darkness, and I do that by focusing on the very special memories together. That's particularly so because Melissa and I didn't have a ver for us,"marriage in the end.

Yes, I'll be sad next week, and the day will be tough... but i moveddebilitate me like it will Connie.

of any I take a moment when she pauses and attempt to change the "What's Andrew been up to?"

already Connie sighs with exasperation. "Oh, you know him... traveling the country taking depositions. I think it's an excuse to get away fr heart," pain, but we all grieve differently."

in the My heart breaks she doesn't have her husband to lean on. I would's facein a million years tell Connie this, but I'm quite sure Andrew travels solve the some distance from his wife. Like me, he's been able to progrief in a healthy way, but he's had a tremendously difficult time recountwith a wife who can't move on. Frankly, I'm surprised Andrew a lot ofdivorced her, but maybe guilt keeps him there.

rents to I know all about guilt keeping you in a marriage. I could write a rents. Ibook about it.

wanted "Listen, Connie... I hate to cut this short, but I've got a team me have to get to. Would you like me to call you later tonight?"

adness, Connie sniffles again. "Oh, you don't have to. I know you're busy. "I'll call you tonight," I promise her. I won't enjoy it, but I'll dc ied andpart of the continual commitment I have to Melissa to not leave her behind.

"Oh, that would be wonderful, Cannon. I was going to pull out w hardalbums and look at them tonight. We'll have some good memories at I am.about."

I smile into the phone because that actually sounds nice. I never am nottalking about the good memories of Melissa and hopefully Connie ot sendable to keep it to that. But deep down, I know she's going to end up control, and I'll end up listening to her pouring out her grief to probe re wereonly person who will still listen.

things Unfortunately, by letting this go on for so long—letting Connie us a sponge for her melancholy—I haven't been able to tell her my true for wed meIt would kill her to know that I left that part of my life behind.

stay in Not just Melissa, but my hockey career, and the almost daily figh we hadhave over said hockey career. I left behind the months where I took ry goodMelissa, and I most certainly let go of the horror of watching somec love die.

t won't Connie would probably have a heart attack if she knew how to marriage had become before Melissa got sick, but it might help ground subject.reality. It's a fucking mess, and while I've had plenty of counseling me process my feelings over losing my wife, I have no clue how to all overConnie's, so I just sit and listen when she needs to talk.

d never o much cess his dealing has not

fucking

eeting I

" ) it. It's parents

picture to talk about."

I smile into the phone because that actually sounds nice. I never mind talking about the good memories of Melissa and hopefully Connie will be able to keep it to that. But deep down, I know she's going to end up losing control, and I'll end up listening to her pouring out her grief to probably the only person who will still listen.

Unfortunately, by letting this go on for so long—letting Connie use me as a sponge for her melancholy—I haven't been able to tell her my true feelings. It would kill her to know that I left that part of my life behind.

Not just Melissa, but my hockey career, and the almost daily fights we'd have over said hockey career. I left behind the months where I took care of Melissa, and I most certainly let go of the horror of watching someone you love die.

Connie would probably have a heart attack if she knew how bad our marriage had become before Melissa got sick, but it might help ground her in reality. It's a fucking mess, and while I've had plenty of counseling to help me process my feelings over losing my wife, I have no clue how to handle Connie's, so I just sit and listen when she needs to talk.

CHAPTER 15

Ava

I jolt from the knock on my apartment door and move swiftly fr fretting that's turned me into a tight bundle of nerves.

Cannon is here, and this provokes a variety of feelings for more threason.

It's been two days since we've seen each other, and I've been spellittle too much time thinking about him. Every passing hour seems to the excitement. I've relished every tiny stolen moment, making me ye the next.

On the downside, I'm horrified that he insisted on picking me up trunk-or-treat date, which means he's going to see where I live. Me dump of an apartment makes me feel like I'm not good enough for so like him, in turn chipping away at the confidence he's been help rebuild. I know this is silly, but it is what it is.

Mostly, though, I'm practically tingling from the inside out w amazing news I want to share with him because I just learned it mys minutes ago and he's the first I'll tell.

I move to the door quickly and open it.

"Holy shit," Cannon says as his eyes roam all over, taking in my I costume. "You look amazing."

"I got the job," I blurt out.

Cannon's gaze snaps from my sparkly red shoes up to my eyes. "I in Charlotte?"

I nod, feeling slightly maniacal in my excitement. It's a good job helps assuage the feelings of inadequacy I have over my crummy apand unemployed status. "And best of all, she'll let me work remotely."

Something weird flickers over Cannon's expression, but I can't fe what it means because he crashes into me. Hands to my head, slamming onto mine, his body walking me backward until he has me against the tiny wall next to my broom closet.

"I didn't think you'd be this excited about the job." I laugh as tickle along my jaw.

Cannon lifts his mouth just enough to mumble, "Happy about the I've been thinking of doing this for the last two days, and I can't second longer."

His lips are back on mine, and I fall into the pleasure of it. Whe om thehim hiking up my dress, though, it snaps me out of the daze of lust I me in, and I twist my neck to break the kiss.

nan one "Cannon," I gasp as his lips simply move to my neck. "We don time. We've got to get to the arena and decorate your car."

nding a My words bounce right off him. His hand slides up my leg, un doubledress, and his fingers snake down the front of my panties, which are earn for cotton to match my ankle socks. I figured he would see that later and countries it a nice virginal, sexy detail.

for our "There's always time for this," he murmurs as he sinks a long fing Iy rattyme. I groan as my hips buck against him.

Omeone While I think I'll die if Cannon pulls his hand away, I also know ing merunning against a serious time issue. It was the basis of my argument earlier when Cannon insisted on picking me up. I knew we'd be in the crunch if he came from the arena to get me, merely to drive us borelf fivethere. I argued it would be much better for me to meet him there, beginning to think he had this all planned out to have this bit of intimaralone.

"We have kids waiting on us. We don't have time for sex."

"I'm not going to fuck you, Ava." Cannon lifts his head and peer The one at me. "Just going to get you off. Then we can go."

"Oh God," I moan.

, and it Cannon is absolutely correct. It doesn't take any time at all to bring artment a quick orgasm with his masterful fingers between my legs and dirty whispered in my ear. My head falls to his chest where I shudder rret outrelief. Cannon rubs the back of my neck, soothing me.

mouth He pulls his hand out of my panties and lifts my chin to place a pushedkiss on my mouth.

"I think you better show me my costume and let's load up my c goddamn horny as hell, and I need to get my mind on something else." his lips I tilt my head, a sympathetic smile on my face. "Well, that's j going to do. I cannot leave you in that type of pain."

job, but My hand goes to his erection, straining against his pants. He's in wait aconsider his work uniform of khakis and a long-sleeve purple polo the Titans' logo. His chest and arms fill out the shirt nicely, and hin I feeldon't leave a lot of room for his hard cock.

ne's put Cannon hums as I squeeze him. "Fuck yes," he mutters as I w zipper open to release him. We definitely don't have time to get na i't havesex, but I am up to the challenge of getting Cannon off just as fast as me.

der my I start to lower onto my knees, but Cannon takes hold of my arm. 'e whiteminute."

onsider He leans over, nabs a pillow I'd bought at Target to brighten up th couch, and drops it to the ground at my feet with a grin. "Don't want ger intobruise those pretty knees with you wearing a dress and all."

"You're so sweet," I say as I drop down, still holding him in my we arelook up, the end of his dick hovering before my mouth.

we had "Jesus... I'm never going to be able to watch the Wizard of Oz ag a timenot get a hard-on for Dorothy."

th back I'm going to make sure of that.

but I'm I lick Cannon from base to tip, taking much satisfaction when hate timeslaps against the wall as if to hold himself up. I then take him into my and oh God... the taste of him and the animalistic sound he makes s ı again.pang of need between my legs.

Moving on him with hollowed cheeks and my hand v s downcounterstrokes, I have Cannon making noises I've never heard before. his hands wraps around one of my braids, and he tugs at it playfully.

I glance up and almost combust over the lust in his eyes as he stare g me toat me. It makes me feel powerful, and while I have no desire to brid wordsman metaphorically to his knees, I want to give him the ultimate pleasi out my Closing my eyes, I concentrate on the feel of him in my mouth, the last the last he begs me to go faster one moment and slow the next, how his hip chasteinto me.

"Ava," Cannon croaks, and I can tell he's about ready to warn me car. I'moff. I merely suck on him hard, put one hand to his ass to hold him clc issue a tiny growl of warning that he better stay right where he is.

ust not That's all it takes before he comes with a strangled grunt, and I s the flow of his release with my eyes closed and a hum of approval.

what I "Christ, you're perfect," Cannon mutters as he hauls me up and kis bearingswiftly. Leaning back, he grins. "Better go fix your lipstick, Dorothy."

s pants Laughing, I pull away from him. "Better zip up your pants, Lion." "Lion?" he asks as he tucks himself away.

ork his I grab a bag from my kitchen table and pull out his costume, to ked fortoward him.

s he did Cannon grimaces as he shakes it out, and I put my hand to my m keep from laughing.

"Wait a "I'm the Cowardly Lion?" he asks as he eyeballs it.

"They only had the Cowardly Lion or a flying monkey left."

e dingy "I think I would have liked the monkey better," he mutters. "Jesus, you toit looks like a huge onesie pajama. Like that pink bunny one in A Ch Story."

hand. I I lose it because he's not wrong. It's fuzzy with loads of mane fur the head and big, floppy lion paws. I got it because it was ridiculous ain andknew Cannon would find it hilarious.

"It's perfectly you," I say.

His eyes cut to me, and the faux disdain melts away. "Yeah... I is palmdig it. But not sure I'd be this magnanimous if Dorothy didn't just  $\xi$  mouth,the best blow job ever."

hoots a Cannon puts it back in the bag. "I'll put it on at the arena a decorate the car. It's too bulky."

vorking "Okay. I really do need to fix my lipstick, and God only knows w One ofhair looks like." I start to turn for my bathroom but freeze as I notice ( finally taking a good long look at my apartment. I just let the man fires downto an orgasm and then come in my mouth—you'd think I wouldning thisanything to be embarrassed about. But I find myself apologizing. "Thure. is a dump. I'm so sorry."

he way I squat to pick up the pillow, put it on the couch, and fluff it as it is thrustmake this place miraculously look like a home from Architectural Dig Cannon takes my wrist and pulls me straight to him. "What's all th "Nothing. I just... my apartment is crappy, and I'm embarrassed." see, and "But why?"

I shrug, gaze falling from his. "I guess it's sort of an indication of l wallowI fell chasing the wrong man."

"Hey," Cannon says gently, causing my eyes to drift up to meet his sses meapartment isn't an indication of how far you fell. It shows how resiliare. You could have run home, been sitting by Mom and Dad's pool margaritas, but you chose to stick it out to prove to everyone you badass woman."

ssing it "Really?" I ask, hating the hopeful need in the words.

"Really," he assures me before pressing his lips to my forehead. Houth tothen slaps my ass hard, and he's pushing me toward the bathroom. "I finish getting ready so we can get to the arena."

Ava... ristmas around s, and I kind of give me

fter we

That my Cannon iger me 't have is place

f it will est.

is?"

I shrug, gaze falling from his. "I guess it's sort of an indication of how far I fell chasing the wrong man."

"Hey," Cannon says gently, causing my eyes to drift up to meet his. "This apartment isn't an indication of how far you fell. It shows how resilient you are. You could have run home, been sitting by Mom and Dad's pool sipping margaritas, but you chose to stick it out to prove to everyone you're one badass woman."

"Really?" I ask, hating the hopeful need in the words.

"Really," he assures me before pressing his lips to my forehead. His hand then slaps my ass hard, and he's pushing me toward the bathroom. "Now go finish getting ready so we can get to the arena."

CHAPTER 16 Cannon

I know I should feel foolish in this Cowardly Lion costume, but I do and baggy, and the only part of me showing is my face from an actual in the hood. The four paws are disproportionately large, and I have to my legs a little higher when walking so I don't trip. And best c although annoying—the tail curves upward with sturdy wire so it when I walk, continually catching my attention from my peripheral and startling me. Ava is a whiz with makeup and painted a nose and w on me in no time. When all was said and done, I admittedly ridiculous, but cute.

We decorated the trunk of my BMW with fake cobwebs and spid placed a huge bowl of candy inside. On the ground to one side of m sits a mechanical witch with her cauldron and to the right some papier tombstones. Ava also strung the perimeter with flashing orange lighooked up a Bluetooth speaker that plays howling wolves, groundsters, creaking doors, and cackling witches.

Despite the amazing setup, she then lamented that she wished she time to go with an entire Wizard of Oz theme, but I personally prespooky Halloween version of my car.

While decorating, I've been able to introduce Ava to various player are participating in the trunk-or-treat. It's mostly the single guys since with kids will be on the receiving end, and they're really getting i mood with their costumes.

I have to say it's fun watching the interplay between Ava and the introducing her to. Because I'm new to the Titans, no one knows a about my personal life other than I'm not currently married. So I'm g kick out of the looks of surprise when I introduce her as my girlfriend.

I struggled for all of two seconds about what to call her when introduced her to Baden and Sophie, but quickly realized that calling a friend wasn't even close to the truth.

If Ava thought the title inappropriate, she didn't say anything worked to prepare the trunk.

In addition to Baden and Sophie, I introduced her to Coen a girlfriend Tillie; Gage and his girlfriend Jenna; and a host of the players, including Hendrix, Boone, Camden, and Kirill, all dressed as Rangers.

n't. Big I think Ava might have been overwhelmed by it all because she loutouther normal outgoing self that I've observed. I've watched her charm a pick upconversations with strangers at The Grind, and she doesn't have a shy of all—her body.

waves So it was obvious she was a little uneasy when I made introductio vision was bright and cordial, but she didn't engage past that. Of course hiskers wasn't much room to sit around and talk as everybody was scramt looked decorate their cars.

I survey the two rows of cars with open trunks facing each other—ers and like seventeen in all—and most everyone is done. We're using a way trunk portion of the players' parking lot not accessible to the public.

-mâché Ava is still fussing with the spiderweb when a woman with a clehts andwho's been walking around and making sure things are organized caroaning "Ten minutes until showtime."

This event is only for the children of members of the organization e'd hadjust players but anybody employed by the Titans, which includes hunce the people. For the next hour, kids will be hopping among our decorated to fill up their treat bags. We're running it from four to five p.m. so tl <sub>2rs who</sub>then go trick-or-treating in their own neighborhoods tonight.

te those Ava sighs, pulls a spider off one portion of web, and moves it to a nto the Frankly, it looks no better to me.

I pat her on the back with my big paw. "You okay?"

ose I'm She glances back at me. "Why wouldn't I be?"

nything I turn and settle on the edge of the trunk, pushing into her space. M etting amake it too difficult to cross my arms over my chest or even place the state of the trunk, pushing into her space. M my hips, so I let them rest on my thighs. "It looks like you were I I first overwhelmed meeting everybody."

her just "I guess it's a lot to take in," she admits as she moves to sit bes "You just introduced me to some of the most famous people in th They're all local heroes. Most people never get to meet one profe as wehockey player, and here I am, meeting practically the entire team."

Chuckling, I bump her shoulder with mine. "You know I'm to and hisright? Head coach and all. If I don't make you nervous, no one should. She rolls her eyes. "I just want your team to like me because you" Powerhead coach. A good and happy coach means a good and happy team.

want to be a Yoko Ono or people thinking I'm a distraction."

wasn't I snort. "You're no Yoko Ono, and I seriously doubt peol nd holdwondering about those things when they meet you."

bone in Ava's face turns toward me, her expression serious. "No, but the looking at you as a widower. Maybe they think you're vulnerable or ins. Sheposition to date. It's a lot of pressure."

e, there That gives me pause and I can't disagree. People tend to define I bling towidower even if I don't. "Enough pressure to make you want to run?"

Thankfully, I'm rewarded with the bright Ava smile I've become i it looksShe shakes her head. "I am quite sure I'll get through the nervousne lled-offnot running."

I grin. "I'd like to pull you into my arms and kiss you right now, bipboardbig paws will get in the way."

alls out, "How about I come to you, then?" she murmurs as she angles tow

Her lips are soft upon mine, and she pulls back far too quickly, intent on. Notgiving me the tiniest taste.

lreds of I'm more adept with these massive furry paws than I thought be I trunkshave her up off the edge of the trunk and one of them at the back of h ney canto kiss her hard.

She tries to push away, and I laugh against her mouth. "Are you a unother.a little PDA?"

"I wasn't sure if you were into that sort of thing," she whispers, against mine. I feel them curve into a smile just before I pull back.

"I'm into all kinds of things when it comes to you," I assure as n ly pawsfall away to allow space between us. "You and I got hot and heavy ve hem on It's going to be a shock for some people that we're dating, the a littleremember... we are, in fact, dating."

"Got it," she says, and to my surprise clutches the front of my c ide me.and pulls me to her for another kiss.

is city. A coughing sound pops our little bubble, and Ava jerks back from essionalturn my head lazily to see Brienne Norcross standing there, and moment, I'm struck absolutely dumb.

op dog, She's dressed as Hela from the movie Thor: Ragnarok. And whe "she's dressed like her, I mean her costume looks like it came straight fare themovie's costume department. She's wearing a black wig with silver I don'tand heavy eye makeup, and if you didn't know any better, you might ther for Cate Blanchett.

ple are "You going to introduce me?" she asks with a grin, her eyes cu Ava.

hey are "Absolutely I am, but I have to say, your costume looks so auth not in awouldn't be surprised if you told me this was the original from the film Brienne laughs. "Jenna found it for me. I don't even know who in ne as aI'm supposed to be."

How could she not know who Hela is? Before I can educate her used to.Marvel universe, she extends her hand to Ava. "Hi... I'm Brienne Noress. I'm "Ava Cavanaugh," she says as they shake.

"I'm the owner of the Titans," Brienne adds.

ut these "I'm an unemployed barista," Ava quips, and both ladies laugh. I the icebreaker Ava needed.

ard me. I slip my arm around Ava's waist and pull her into me, one fon onlyresting on her opposite hip. "Ava was working at the coffee shop I frequent but she's starting a new job soon in marketing."

cause I Brienne's gaze cuts back and forth between us, a smile softening t er headangles of the expertly applied makeup. "You met at a coffee shop? seriously the cutest thing I've ever heard."

fraid of "I went in just about every day because I thought she was pretty wanted to talk to her. I tried flirting, but apparently my skills were her lipsgreat. It took a lot longer than it should have to get the nerve to ask her date."

y arms "But here you are," Brienne quips.

ery fast. "Here we are," I agree.

out just Turning to Ava, my boss says, "It was a pleasure meeting you, love for you to join me in the owner's box at the next home game. It costumeCannon has a great ticket for you but come hang out with me instead."

Ava looks at me with uncertainty, because I hadn't had a chance n me. Iher that I do have a ticket for her. In fact, I've got one for all the home

1 for a "You should enjoy the game in the box with Brienne. It's a gorgeou and you'll have great food and liquor."

I say "Plus, you can keep me from becoming bored with some rom thebusinessmen who will be there wanting five minutes of my time to streakssome deal."

mistake "Um...," Ava drawls slowly, glancing at me one more time accepting. "I'd love to. Thank you."

tting to "Awesome. I'll have a badge for you at will call, and they' someone escort you up. Now, I better get back to my table. I'm helpilentic, Ipumpkin carving and crafts."

1." Brienne glides off, and the woman with the clipboard says, "the helleveryone. We're opening the gates."

I manage one more kiss with Ava and then we're busy greeting t on theas well as their parents, many of whom I don't know yet, since my d cross." with the administrative side of the organization have been nominal so

Just as Ava and I are saying goodbye to a little girl dressed as three boys come up and yell, "Trick-or-treat!"

It's just "Now, there's trouble," I announce as I take in Colby, Jake, and McGinn—our goalie Drake's kids. They're with his sister, Kiera, fat pawdressed as Harley Quinn. I make a quick introduction between her ar used towho then turns to dump candy in the boys' bags.

"Where's Drake?" I ask.

he hard Kiera nods to the right, and I see he's standing at the craft table, tal That's Brienne.

"Did they coordinate that?" I ask in shock, noting that Drake is in 7, and Icostume that looks every bit as real as Brienne's.

n't that "They didn't," Kiera says with a laugh, "but damn if they don't le ier on athey both stepped off a movie set."

"Well, Drake does look just like Thor with the long blond h beard," I point out.

I return my attention to the boys. I've met them on a few occasior and I'dthey arrived in Pittsburgh three weeks ago. Drake's new to the team, s'm sureme, and he's a single dad. His sister, Kiera, moved here to Pittsburgh care for them when he travels.

e to tell "Let's see," I muse as I look at their costumes. "We have a rouge games.tumble cowboy, a brave fireman, and what looks to be a future s view, goalie?"

"What are you supposed to be?" Colby asks, his cowboy hat just a of thefor him.

discuss "The Cowardly Lion," I lament, bringing my paws up to my fapretending to hide. I peek through the mitts and see that Colby just b beforeme, unimpressed.

Ava steps into the conversation, giving my shoulder a little pat ll havebending over to get closer to Colby. "You see, he wasn't born w ng withcourage. So that means he's afraid of all kinds of things. For example guns in your holsters probably have him a little on edge. Maybe 'Places, reassured him that you're harmless, he might relax a little."

Colby's eyes alight with mischief. He rests his hands on his toy gu he kidsin a spot-on Texas drawl, says, "It's okay, Lion... I won't shoot you lealingsyou try to eat people."

far. "I could never do that," I assure him, although I absolutely have I a fairy, devour Ava after this is over.

For a solid hour, it's nonstop kids and candy. Surprisingly, Ava so Tannerher element as she explains who she is to those who've never se who's Wizard of Oz, engaging in one-on-one conversations with the little hald Ava, She asks questions about their costumes, their favorite candy, and was been their favorite trunk so far. With the little girls, it's resoundingle and Jenna, who are Cinderella and Prince Charming. I have no cluster to Gage pulled it off, but he rented a carriage that looks like it's ready them to the ball. There aren't horses attached, but it's magical enough a Thorthe kids get to climb in for pictures.

The boys all loved the Power Rangers, and I've been watching thook likeham it up with the kids.

A slight twinge of sadness hits me. Not only are the kids having air andtime, but their parents are too. I thought I'd have this one day with N and early on in our marriage we often talked about the day we'd star is sincefor a baby.

same as As the marriage deteriorated, though, those talks became few to helpfurther between until kids weren't a dream for us anymore. Sometimes it's a blessing that we didn't because I would never want them t gh-and-suffered the death of their mom.

Titans' "There goes the last one," Ava says as we watch a little boy of onl three, wearing a Spider-Man costume, being carried by his dad, one tad bigteam's assistant equipment managers.

"We have any candy left?" I ask as I glance into the trunk.

ace and "Nope... I gave Spider-Man the last of it."

links at "You didn't save us any?" I tease, loosening the tie of the lion hood under my throat and pushing it backward off me. "Christ, that beforehot."

ith any Ava snickers at me. "Give me your paws."

e, those I hold out my arms, and she takes the big mitts off and throws ther if youtrunk. "You were such a good sport."

"Maybe next year I'll be Khal Drogo and you can be Daenerys." ins, and soon as the words are out, I wish they were back in my mouth. I he unless business even assuming we'll be together a year from now, but Ava and turns toward the trunk to start removing the decorations.

of it later. We're back on borrowed time because the team is leaving eems inextended road trip. Two games in Los Angeles and another in Houston en *The*we head back, taking the entire first week of November.

umans. While I can go without sex and often do because I'm not the typ vho hasprowling like some of the players, the thought of spending next wee y Gageempty bed doesn't sit well.

ue how More specifically, the thought of spending next week in a bed to takeAva seems mighty lacking.

that all I move next to Ava, reaching into my trunk to wind up the LEI while she works on the webbing. "What do you think about coming ne guysroad trip with me next week?"

Ava turns slowly to me, a frown on her face. "Why?"

a great I roll my eyes as my arms go around her waist. I tug her into I Aelissa, faces close. "Stolen moments, remember? That's what we get, and t tryinghave a huge stolen moment next week if you come. Your job is rer you can work in our hotel room while I do my thing with the team. Yer andcome to the games. We can fuck all night after."

I think A small smile graces her lips and she pats my chest. "That sounds to have incredible stolen moment, but I can't."

"Why not?" I lean in and nuzzle her neck, catching the Power y aboutplayers walking by with smirks on their faces. I've probably freaked the

' of theby bringing a woman to a team event, then showing affection with ease "Because I can't afford to go. I barely have enough money to keel ramen noodles until my next paycheck, and well... frankly, I was g use this next week you're gone as a cost-saving measure, since even 's headinto the city to see you is costing me too much in gas."

thing is I jolt in shock, my arms falling away from her. "What?"

Ava sighs as she drops her head, pinching the bridge of her no closes her eyes briefly before opening them as her hand falls awan in the expression is apologetic. "I'm sorry. I shouldn't have dumped that a but I've got to sort of buckle down for the next few weeks until I can And asfirst paycheck. Stan didn't pay all that great at the coffee shop, and have no much lived hand to mouth. Unfortunately, there's been nothing in malaughsthe last week as my final paycheck was only for three days of work, a hasn't sent it yet."

her out "Jesus, Ava," I growl, partly angry at her but more so at Stang on andidn't you tell me? I would have given you—" a man to provide me with the basics of a roof over my head and a jee to gonever going to do that again."

k in an Encircling her wrist, I pull her hand away. "I'd never let you der me. I'm merely offering temporary help. Hell, consider it a loan if you withoutproud to take any money, and pay me back with interest. But I sure don't want you eating ramen until you get paid."

O lights A smile curves Ava's lips, and she leans in to give me a soft kiss. on theyou. That's sweet, but I'm fine, I promise."

She tries to pull her hand away, but I clamp tighter. "Fine. You things handled. That still doesn't mean you can't come on the road tr ne, ourme."

we can Ava cocks an eyebrow. "If I can't afford anything but ramen, I note sohell can't afford a trip."

You can "That's true... but hear me out. We have stolen moments, right?" She nods.

like an "And we should make the most of them." "Agreed," she says cautiously.

Ranger "Then you have to take this opportunity—" iem out "I can't afford—"

e. This time my free hand covers her mouth. "There's nothing to p me in You'll be in my hotel room, and I'll pay for your meals and your oing toticket."

driving Ava tries to speak under my hand, and I can imagine her argument still giving me money, and I don't want to be indebted to you.

I cut off her thoughts. "That would not be me helping you. That w se. Sheme taking you out on an expensive date. Me taking you on a trip is 19. Hernormal guy taking you to dinner here in Pittsburgh."

on you, Twisting her neck, her mouth slides free. "Dinner is a date. A plan get myis not."

I pretty "Now you're just being bigoted," I say.

y hand Ava's jaw drops. "How is that bigoted?"

nd Stan "Because you're prejudiced against me because I'm rich. Sure, mc take a girl out to dinner, but I can easily afford a plane ticket.

"Whypenalizing me because I can afford nicer things for you."

After another long sigh, Ava sounds defeated. "I'm trying very haded onto let my past decisions with Derek influence my feelings here, but the ob. I'm "And I'm asking you not to. Give me the benefit of the doubt. come with me next week."

pend on She worries at her bottom lip, her eyes piercing into mine for a're toomoment before she mutters the most delicious words. "Okay. I'll as shityou."

I'm so excited, I forget all decorum and the fact that there are a "Thankpeople still here and let out a whoop as I pick her up and swing her aro Ava laughs as she holds on to my shoulders, and I know I'm dang

've gotclose to letting this get too serious.

ip with

sure as

This time my free hand covers her mouth. "There's nothing to afford. You'll be in my hotel room, and I'll pay for your meals and your airline ticket."

Ava tries to speak under my hand, and I can imagine her argument. That's still giving me money, and I don't want to be indebted to you.

I cut off her thoughts. "That would not be me helping you. That would be me taking you out on an expensive date. Me taking you on a trip is like a normal guy taking you to dinner here in Pittsburgh."

Twisting her neck, her mouth slides free. "Dinner is a date. A plane ticket is not."

"Now you're just being bigoted," I say.

Ava's jaw drops. "How is that bigoted?"

"Because you're prejudiced against me because I'm rich. Sure, most guys take a girl out to dinner, but I can easily afford a plane ticket. You're penalizing me because I can afford nicer things for you."

After another long sigh, Ava sounds defeated. "I'm trying very hard not to let my past decisions with Derek influence my feelings here, but they are."

"And I'm asking you not to. Give me the benefit of the doubt. Please come with me next week."

She worries at her bottom lip, her eyes piercing into mine for a long moment before she mutters the most delicious words. "Okay. I'll go with you."

I'm so excited, I forget all decorum and the fact that there are a ton of people still here and let out a whoop as I pick her up and swing her around.

Ava laughs as she holds on to my shoulders, and I know I'm dangerously close to letting this get too serious.

CHAPTER 17 Ava

 $M_{\rm Y}$  first official day working for the Shelley Royce Agency has me at a desk staring out the window at downtown Los Angeles. Is yesterday, compliments of a first-class ticket that Cannon had bough come out on this extended road trip with the team. I was stunned he s much money, and I let him know I would've been completely fine main passenger cabin.

After that, he went on a long monologue trying to justify the fir ticket. He spent an awful lot of time explaining that he wished I co with the team, but it wasn't possible. He went on to further explain would very much like to have flown out with me but being on the tear is part of the camaraderie and leadership expected of him.

I knew all of that.

He didn't have to explain it to me, and yet he did, in great detail.

So I listened and chalked it up to Cannon wanting to make s expectations stay in check. Maybe it's because I don't know mucl hockey, and I know even less about the life of a hockey coach, but it's needs to constantly remind me that his position as coach comes first.

All I can do is remind him that I understand, but truth be sometimes it's confusing. He makes a big deal about boundaries and moments and yet goes overboard in his romantic gestures. He comments that sound like he wants a future with me.

For example, Cannon not only purchased a first-class ticket for me also chose a flight that would land at roughly the same time as the While he had to ride with the team to the hotel, he had a private drive me so I wouldn't have to deal with a ride service. He met me in the lobby with a soft kiss witnessed by much of the team swarming to chand then whisked me up to our room where we almost broke the bed.

The team had last night off, so Cannon took me out to an expensive and then later, we met Baden and Sophie in the hotel lobby ba nightcap. It was nice getting to know them, and I think that was inte on Cannon's part. He doesn't want me to be overwhelmed by it all, creating connections for me, a little at a time.

After the nightcap, we went to our room and almost broke the bec He then pulled me into his arms, and we slept soundly until he had to for early meetings with the other coaches, followed by a morning pra sittingthe arena. He left while I was in the shower, first leaning into the sta flew in wet kiss with a promise to see me around lunchtime.

t me to The hotel room is lovely. He upgraded us to a suite with a separate pent soroom area that holds this beautiful desk where I'm set up to work.

I have a Zoom training session with Shelley this afternoon, but for I'm trying to absorb every bit of information that is out there on the in st-class I spent over an hour this morning on her website, reading every blog buld flyshe's written. I studied her branding and checked for consistency that he messaging. All things I learned while I studied for my degree.

n plane I then went on to her social media accounts and looked at all her took screenshots of those that I thought were amazing for future re and some other screenshots of those that I might have done a little diff I intend to ask her about that so I can get a feel as to what she really we ure my

The more I read about Shelley Royce, the more in love I fall w about agency. Shelley is a dynamic, outgoing person, and it seems like every like he the speakers she represents is the same. The marketing content is energetic, and engaging. I know it's going to be an absolute joy to v told...this environment.

Shelley told me that much of my job would involve content writinakes graphic creation, although I will be learning some administrative do share with her assistant Darcy, who'll be training as an apprentice, but he Although I'm thrilled to have a job doing marketing, the fact that e team. promotes from within her company makes me wonder if I can do mor rer take future? I have never once thought about being an agent, but right now, he hotel dazzled by this new job, I think everything looks glamorous.

every time I see him, I have a momentary loss of breath. Not just least two and a half weeks.

r for a He grins and holds up a white bag. "I'm free until two p.m. Can y entionala lunch break? I got deli sandwiches."

so he's I grin back. "Of course I can take a break. Shelley said that I ca flexible as I want with my hours when I'm working remotely, especial again.me being out here on the West Coast this week."

get up A gleam enters Cannon's eye, and his mouth curves into a sexy ctice at "So, you can take longer than an hour for lunch?"

ıll for a I narrow my eyes at him suspiciously even as my pulse qu "Theoretically."

e living Cannon dumps the bag on the desk and pulls me out of my cha hand goes to the back of my head, fingers twisting in my hair, and hear now, his mouth down on mine. The kiss is explosive and disarming, a terweb.immediately drowning in lust.

§ article Cannon hauls me up his body, and my legs go around his waist. Me in herencircle his neck, and I kiss him as he walks us into the bedroom.

His tongue rolling along mine and my hips flexing desperately to posts. Icontact with what I know will already be an impressively hard cock, ferenceboth panting in a matter of seconds. Cannon and I burn searingly erently.minute we touch each other, and I wonder if that will ever fade.

ants. God, I hope not.

rith this He uses his grip on the back of my head to pull my mouth from his one ofshiver over the glittering promise in his eyes. "I've been thinking abbright, all morning."

work in I don't know if that's true, since Cannon keeps work and p separate, but maybe.

ing and I'm not as strong as he is. "I'll admit you're breaking into my the uties toduring the day too."

agent. Cannon kisses me again—fiercely swift—and the next thing I kno Shelleytossing me down on the bed.

e in the "Let's make effective use of our time," he says as he pulls the bo , I'm sohis shirt free from his pants. "Get your clothes off."

It's a mad scramble of kicking off shoes, hauling shirts overhelappensshimmying out of bottoms. I've got a head start on him, though, sinc becausebarefoot, and I'm completely naked by the time he's shoving his pane overunderwear down his legs.

He straightens once all offending material is free, and my mouth ou takeas I take in his honed, muscular body and his proud erection.

"You're beautiful," I say, and then I'm immediately embarrassed n be aswords. I've never called a man beautiful before, but Cannon seems to l lly with He's on me in an instant, covering my body with his own and kiss with quiet desperation. Hands are all over me, squeezing my breasts smile.my shoulder, tongue swirling over my nipple. Within seconds, writhing, squirming mess of a woman who, without an ounce of sham lickens. "Can we please just hurry up and fuck?"

Cannon's tongue pauses its tease of my belly button as his head lir. Onehe gives me a lazy smile. I can read the expression on his face that se slamsmore I beg, the slower he'll go.

nd I'm I feel it's only fair to point out, "You're the one who said we ne maximize our time."

Iy arms He scoots even farther down the bed and hovers his mouth right c pussy.

o make "You mean to tell me that you'd rather me fuck you than lick you? has us I groan at the choice because both are equally delicious. Cannon thot thefingers to expose my clit, and he bends down to run his tongue in lazy around it. Garbled babbling comes out of my mouth, and my hips upward.

s, and I Cannon chuckles darkly, knowing damn well that I'm not going out thishim away. So I lie there and take it as he devours me, licking and suck pressing his fingers into me. When I'm crazy and half out of my minersonalbegging—on the precipice of an orgasm—the man surges upward, f cock, and drives inside me.

noughts I immediately explode, screaming out and latching my arms aro neck to hold on. Cannon fucks me hard, exactly what I'd asked for w, he'sbut he gave me the best of both worlds.

"You feel so fucking good," he mutters as he rams deep.

ttom of Cannon comes with a guttural groan of satisfaction, grinding dov my pelvis while uttering curse words in my ear. He collapses on top ad, andbrushes his mouth across mine, and then rolls over onto his back.

e I was We look at each other, grinning even as our chests heave in se nts andoxygen.

"Was that good?" he asks with a smirk.

waters I shrug. "It was okay. Maybe we can try to do better later."

Cannon laughs and rolls toward me. "You're rotten."

by my He bends down to kiss me, but I stop with a hand to his chest. like it. beyond unbelievable. Every single time, you take me higher."

sing me Those are probably the most serious words I've said to him. I've is, bitingdamn careful to stay a little detached, either because I know he's not very lime asomething deep or I'm afraid of getting hurt again.

e, begs, I'm completely surprised by this moment of truth.

Cannon stares at me for a long moment, and I don't know what he ifts and about my proclamation. But his eyes are soft and tender, so I have to ays thehe's not put off. I can see him collecting his thoughts, and I hold my be anticipation of what he'll say.

eded to Unfortunately, his phone rings, breaking the spell between us, exits the bed. "Sorry. Let me see who that is."

ver my I roll to my side and rest my head in the palm of my hand to watch he digs through his pants to find his phone. He looks at the caller and " ises his His eyes come to me. "I'm sorry... I've got to take this."

Then he sighs and scrubs his hands through his hair.

r circles His voice is weary and sounds a little like he expects the world punchapart at any moment.

"You want me to leave?" I ask hesitantly.

to push "No," he says and turns to sit on the edge of the bed with his back ing and "Hey, Connie," he says softly. He's silent for a moment and the nd with "Yeah... I've got a few minutes."

ists his I want to reach out to stroke his back, but I'm feeling all k awkward because I'm clearly listening in on a heavy conversation. und hisknow who Connie is, but by the tone of his voice, I can tell she's so earlier, Cannon cares about.

I can also tell he doesn't necessarily want to talk to her.

I slide out of bed so I can put my clothes back on. I have my parvn ontohand when his tone turns harsh. "Of course, I haven't forgotter of me,tomorrow is. How could you even say that?"

arch of

Cannon laughs and rolls toward me. "You're rotten."

He bends down to kiss me, but I stop with a hand to his chest. "It was beyond unbelievable. Every single time, you take me higher."

Those are probably the most serious words I've said to him. I've been so damn careful to stay a little detached, either because I know he's not wanting something deep or I'm afraid of getting hurt again.

I'm completely surprised by this moment of truth.

Cannon stares at me for a long moment, and I don't know what he thinks about my proclamation. But his eyes are soft and tender, so I have to think he's not put off. I can see him collecting his thoughts, and I hold my breath in anticipation of what he'll say.

Unfortunately, his phone rings, breaking the spell between us, and he exits the bed. "Sorry. Let me see who that is."

I roll to my side and rest my head in the palm of my hand to watch him as he digs through his pants to find his phone. He looks at the caller and frowns. Then he sighs and scrubs his hands through his hair.

His eyes come to me. "I'm sorry... I've got to take this."

His voice is weary and sounds a little like he expects the world to fall apart at any moment.

"You want me to leave?" I ask hesitantly.

"No," he says and turns to sit on the edge of the bed with his back to me.

"Hey, Connie," he says softly. He's silent for a moment and then says, "Yeah... I've got a few minutes."

I want to reach out to stroke his back, but I'm feeling all kinds of awkward because I'm clearly listening in on a heavy conversation. I don't know who Connie is, but by the tone of his voice, I can tell she's someone Cannon cares about.

I can also tell he doesn't necessarily want to talk to her.

I slide out of bed so I can put my clothes back on. I have my panties in hand when his tone turns harsh. "Of course, I haven't forgotten what tomorrow is. How could you even say that?"

CHAPTER 18 Cannon

Connie sniffles meekly, but her voice is accusatory. "I haven't hear you in several days. It's like you've forgotten all about her."

I rub at the back of my neck, tightening with tension, which you think impossible as I had an incredibly forceful orgasm just minut Movement from the corner of my eye catches my attention, and I s picking up her clothes and tiptoeing into the bathroom. I told her she need to leave, but I'm kind of glad she did.

Connie is a part of my life I'm not even sure how to explain to Ava "Connie...," I murmur with conciliation.

"Tomorrow is the nine-year anniversary of Melissa's death. I for nobody remembers it but me. Andrew scheduled a work trip, so he' and you're the only one I have who understands this pain. You're the one I know who has as big a hole in their heart as I do."

Her words shred me from the inside out, guilt seeping out o wounds. I don't have the same hole she does, and sometimes I hate for it. It weighs heavily on me that I don't allow myself to suffer the v does.

Normally, I would reassure her at this point that I am still gall although I'm very careful to never say how deep it is because our depart vastly different. My grief has become faint over the years, while he intensified. Nine years is a long time to hold on to something with chance of ever getting it back and I don't know how to let her know the

"I'm really sorry, Connie. But it's game day, and you know my limited. I'll call you tomorrow. I promise."

"I can't believe you won't spare five fucking minutes for your mo law," Connie yells.

I'm so taken aback by her abrupt change in behavior—and becau never heard her yell or curse before—I wince and hold the phone awa my ear, fearful of what might come next.

But then anger bursts within me, an emotion I've never revealed "That's not fair, Connie. Every single time you call me, I give of mys I do it without any reservations or limitations. I'm telling you it's a gai and I do not have time to talk about this right now. I am so sorry hurting, and I will call you tomorrow. I hope you pick up so we ca memories of Melissa. Okay?"

rd from There's silence on the other end, and I know I've shocked her. murmur comes through. "Okay."

would And then she hangs up.

es ago. "Fuck," I mutter as I toss the phone on the bedside table before science Avamy hands over my face.

e didn't Ava steps out of the bathroom, still holding her clothes before realize she didn't close the door when she went in.

"I expect you want to know who Connie is?" I ask.

Ava looks like a deer frozen in the headlights. I can only imagir eel likemy end of that conversation sounded like.

s gone, "You don't have to tell me anything."

he only With a sigh, I push off the bed and walk toward her. She star ground, still clutching her clothes in front of her like they're armor.

f those I put a hand to the back of her neck and press my mouth to hers. myselfget dressed and eat lunch. And I'll tell you about my mother-in-law."

way she Ava jolts when she hears the words mother-in-law. I tighten my g give her a sheepish smile. "Is she still considered a mother-in-lar rieving, though I'm not technically married because her daughter died?"

oths are "I don't know," Ava whispers.

ers has "Me neither, but I care about her still, and sadly, I'm her only so out anyboard."

at. "That sounded like a hard conversation."

time is "They're never fun," I agree, pressing another kiss to her forehead releasing her.

ther-in- To my surprise, Ava drops her clothing and takes my hand. She her fingers through mine and leads me back to the bed.

Pulling the covers back, she slides in and beckons me to follow. I lay from for a moment because talking about a painful and guilt-ridden part of seems like it would be easier over deli sandwiches.

Having Ava naked in a bed with her arms wrapped around me see to her.only too intimate, but almost too comforting.

elf, and I should insist we get dressed and go eat, but it's ultimately her be ne day, eyes that ensnare me. Her expression is open and accepting of whate you'regetting ready to lay on her doorstep, so I slide under the cool sheets with n share At this point, I've committed to sharing, so I settle against the heat and pull Ava into my side.

A soft She settles her head on my chest and an arm over my stomach don't have to tell me anything, Cannon."

"I know. But Connie is a part of my life, and you're bound to hear rubbing conversations."

I take a few moments and ease into the story by telling Ava abher. Ihistory with Melissa, starting in our sophomore year of high school. downplay what a special relationship we had. I would never demedies a Melissa was my first true love. I tell Ava all the good—pulling on some what great memories over the years, and I'm pleased to see that she doesn't away when I talk about my love for another woman.

"Everyone knows about my tragic love story," I say with a dands herhumorless laugh. "About how my high school sweetheart battled can how I left my career in hockey to take care of her until the end."

"Let's I shift my body slightly to look down at Ava so I have her eyes tell her the next part. "What no one knows, except my family, is trip andmarriage was pretty much dead at the time she was diagnosed. It have evenfaltering for a long time and we were separated."

"Where did it go wrong?" Ava asks.

"I guess where any marriage goes wrong. Not spending enougoundingtogether, not communicating effectively. In our particular case, I was lot playing hockey, and Melissa resented it. And then I resented her re it because she knew what she was getting into when we got married beforehad no choice in the time I spent away from her. The last few months we separated, we were barely speaking. I mean, we played nice whene threadsparents would visit or call, but we pretty much led separate lives."

"By separate lives, you mean...?"

hesitate "Sort of like ships passing in the night. Melissa was an interior domy lifeand she started taking more work out of town. It seemed like whe would come back from a road trip, she would be leaving to go visit ems notsomewhere. Neither one of us seemed to mind anymore that we did each other."

eautiful "Your family knew?"

ver I'm "Yeah... they knew and supported me. They knew we were heade th her. divorce, and they stood by my side."

"Her cancer made all the anger between us moot. Instantly, it wa
"YouShe was terrified, and I was crippled with guilt, so there was no longe for us to be mad at each other. I immediately moved back into the h ar otherhelp her through it. Both of us put aside our differences so we concentrate on her getting better."

out my "I think that's a beautiful decision you made."

I don't Maybe, maybe not. "When we found out she wasn't going to ge ny thatand was going to deteriorate, I left hockey so I could be her fu o manycaretaker."

t shrink "You gave up everything," she murmurs. "Melissa was a very woman."

ark but A surge of self-loathing hits me, but I continue with my honest pur cer and Ava. "What's funny is that everyone thought I was such a saint, sac my hockey career. But honestly, I had to think about it really hard. I had when Imoments of selfishness where I thought it would be easier for me to hat ourmy own way. In the end, I couldn't let her go it alone. I might not have ad beenher the same way, but I still loved her. And I had to do the right thing.'

"It was absolutely the right thing," Ava assures me.

"But the problem is that Connie saw me give that all up for N sh timehaving no clue we were on the brink of divorce. She's got this romar gone aversion of events in her head that Melissa was it for me and that I can sentingon. That I'm stuck in grief the way she is. It's exhausting trying to sol, and Iher and stay true to myself at the same time. And then I feel guilty beforedon't feel the way she does."

ever her "Don't," Ava says, sitting up straight and going to her hip to fa "You went above and beyond for Melissa. You did your duty as a hathrough sickness and health. Grieving is so personal, and you cannot esigner, your grief to be the same as Connie's."

never I Reaching out, I take Ava's hand, rubbing my thumb over her kr a client"My grieving started in earnest when we found out she wasn't goins ln't seebetter. She was so sick, and it took weeks for her to die. Weeks tha bereaved so that by the time she let go, I was relieved. Not because have my life back, but because she was free and without pain.

ed for a "Her mom didn't want her to die and would sit at her bedside begg her to hang on. I always wondered if Melissa could hear her, but s ck." deeply sedated because of the pain. Connie would leave, and I'd spen s gone.talking to Melissa telling her the exact opposite. That it was okay to er roomand leave the suffering behind. When she died, most of my heavy g ouse tohad been done. Not all of it, but most. Connie went deeper and just couldseem to climb out of it."

Ava raises our intertwined hands and kisses my wrist before settlir back down on my stomach. "Melissa was her child. It's going to be set betterdeeper and more hurtful, and it's wrong for her to think it's the sall-timeyou."

"I know. I need to have an honest conversation with her, but now i luckytime. Tomorrow is the anniversary of Melissa's death."

"I knew that from the article I read." Ava lifts her gaze, eyes ger ging tosympathetic. "Nine years, right?"

rificing "Nine years." I lift our hands again before us to study the tenuous ad greatbefore sliding my eyes to hers. "And while I don't grieve deeply an just gothat experience has changed me. You know I'm not a one-night stand e lovedguy—not my style—but I don't allow myself to go very deep ' relationship."

"I think I've figured that out," she says. I detect no sadr Aelissa, disappointment in her short acceptance, and I'm not sure if I'm relieve nticized "After I stepped back into the dating world, I didn't find anyon't movemade me want to try for something deeper. I have care to give to validate person, and I'm wired for monogamy, but there's never been love. y that Ishort-lived relationships, we never seemed to be on the same journey always wanted to progress, and I seemed to stall. I'm not even sure water me.telling you this. I just want to be transparent about my past."

ausband Ava pulls our hands down but doesn't release her hold. She tilts he expect"I am not going to assume that your inability to love again was l

Melissa was the one and only for you. But I will assume when you'r nuckles.for it again, you'll know it. Or you'll know that you'll never be ready.' I to get Something twinges in my chest, because I assume everyone think

It I waswhy I've remained decidedly single to this day. Because I can't g I couldMelissa.

Ava doesn't think that, but then again, I've told Ava the underlyii ging forabout my marriage. No one knows that except my family.

he was "It always boils down to my career. I'm so deep into my work that d hourshave time for much else. It was the exact problem that caused my man let gocrumble. I may have walked away from hockey, but I'm back now are grieving invested in my new life of coaching. I don't have a lot of room to st can't myself, and I don't want to feel guilty for loving my career so much."

"Stolen moments," Ava murmurs. "Now I get why you keep talkin ig themthat."

o much "I just want to be honest with you about who I am. We need to I ame forunderstanding."

Ava pulls her hand from mine and places it on my chest. "You'v sn't thevery clear, Cannon. I don't have any pipe dreams, okay? Just... if you the point you think we're moving at different speeds and I'm the andsomewhere you don't want to go, you have to tell me."

"Okay."

s bonds "Promise," she demands. "Don't let me chase something tha lymore, achievable."

kind of "I promise," I say, and it's the cruelest commitment I've ever beeinto ato make because I don't want to hurt her.

And I'm afraid that's going to happen no matter how open we'verses orabout all of this.

d.

ne who

another

In my

y. They

/hy I'm er head.

pecause

e ready

,

s that's why I've remained decidedly single to this day. Because I can't get over Melissa.

Ava doesn't think that, but then again, I've told Ava the underlying truth about my marriage. No one knows that except my family.

"It always boils down to my career. I'm so deep into my work that I don't have time for much else. It was the exact problem that caused my marriage to crumble. I may have walked away from hockey, but I'm back now and fully invested in my new life of coaching. I don't have a lot of room to share myself, and I don't want to feel guilty for loving my career so much."

"Stolen moments," Ava murmurs. "Now I get why you keep talking about that."

"I just want to be honest with you about who I am. We need to have an understanding."

Ava pulls her hand from mine and places it on my chest. "You've been very clear, Cannon. I don't have any pipe dreams, okay? Just... if you get to the point you think we're moving at different speeds and I'm going somewhere you don't want to go, you have to tell me."

"Okay."

"Promise," she demands. "Don't let me chase something that's not achievable."

"I promise," I say, and it's the cruelest commitment I've ever been asked to make because I don't want to hurt her.

And I'm afraid that's going to happen no matter how open we've been about all of this.

CHAPTER 19 Ava

Cannon holds my hand as we walk toward the restaurant. It's a steak few blocks down from the Houston hotel we're staying in for the last § the road trip tomorrow night. Today the team had a light practice meetings, and now a team dinner where everyone can relax and have meal together.

While many on the team have seen me here and there the last few at breakfast with Cannon in the hotel restaurant or hanging with hin lobby after the team came back from a game—I've not spent any tin them. This isn't due to choice but rather circumstances. It's busy, bus on game days.

Outside of the trunk-or-treat where I met a handful of players, to the first time I'll be interacting with them. I'm grateful Sophie is on with Baden so at least I have another woman to talk to.

The last few days have been... well, I'm not sure how to describe Titans played back-to-back games in Los Angeles—first the Demor the Dragons. Cannon was super focused, working with the coaching st at the arena practicing with the team. I got to see firsthand how much goes into this job.

He spent a lot of time away from our room, which was fine becaus working, but even when he came to join me for lunch, he was answering calls and texts, checking his iPad, and parceling out tasks night I'd wake up to find him at the desk, his face awash in the glow tablet screen, watching video and taking notes.

Even with all that, Cannon handles the stress of his job well. feeling it, I'm not seeing it, but I know it can't be easy.

Still, yesterday I woke up braced for the dawn of November four nine-year anniversary of Melissa's death. I didn't know what to ex how Cannon would act. If he was under intense work stress that I seeing, I worried that the anniversary might push him over the edge prepared for him to behave in a variety of ways—sad, sullen, with angry—and I was ready for whatever Cannon needed from me.

To my surprise, it was a normal day. Well, normal for a head coaprofessional hockey team who had a game that night. Outside of a minute phone call with Connie over the lunch break while I worked, acted no differently. I asked him one time only, just before he headed house aarena to get ready for the game. "How are you doing?"

game of He knew I wasn't asking about hockey.

cannon pulled me into his arms and pressed a kiss to my forehead a goodsaying, "I'm good. A little sad, but also not having any problems focu the things I need to focus on."

days— I believed him too.

the Then he kissed me again, this time a little deeper before rubbing he with along mine. "Thank you for asking. And for understanding."

y, busy When we enter the restaurant, we're led to a back room reserved team. It looks like most of the players and staff are here, whic night is surprising. Cannon talked me into a shower quickie before we came, the trip we're a few minutes late.

He introduces me to everyone. There's no way I can remember it. The faces and names, and by the time we make it to the table we're sharing, then the other team members, my head is spinning.

of himcan get dinner started. While everyone settles in, Cannon pulls out next to Sophie and I gratefully sit next to the only other woman in the se I was Cannon doesn't sit down on my other side though, but instead walways the front. Waiters are on standby to take drink orders.

Every Everyone quiets when Cannon turns to us. "I know we don't get of the opportunities for team dinners, so I'm glad we could arrange this."

everyone to kick back and relax, have good conversation with your If he's enjoy some good food, and we're going to make it an early night so well-rested for tomorrow's game. Brienne is picking up the tab ton th—the make sure you all thank her next time you see her. Oh, and go easy pect or drinks."

wasn't Everyone laughs and Cannon winds his way between the tables ours. In addition to Baden and Sophie, a few other players are sitting v

. I wasand Cannon takes a moment to make sure I know everyone at our table idrawn, I've met and just can't remember their names; others I haven't met yet

Cannon sits next to me and nods to his left. "This is Hendrix Bach of aone of our defensemen. You met him at the trunk-or-treat."

1 forty- Hendrix smiles, holding up a hand in hello. "I was the red CannonRanger."

1 to the "Aaah." I would've never known since he had his head and face c "Good to actually see you this time."

"Next to Hendrix is Drake McGinn, our goalie."

I before I smile at Drake and barely get one back before his head bows d sing onhis phone, ignoring the rest of us. I don't know this man at all overheard Cannon talking about him to some of the other coaches phone the last few days, and they're worried about him. He's been clo is nosemoody, and playing like shit, apparently.

"And next to him is our left winger, Stone Dumelin."

for the I remember Stone, as we met a few minutes ago. "Welcome to outh isn'tAva," he says.

so now "Thank you. It's—"

Hendrix's phone goes off, and he picks it up from the table, grimacall theimmediately sends the caller to voicemail. "Sorry about that."

ng with I forgot what I was going to say, but it doesn't matter. The phoragain. Hendrix looks pained as he apologizes. "I'm sorry. I have to tak so we He connects and says, "Is something wrong?"

a chair We all awkwardly wait in silence, but I glance across the table a room. Stone smirking. Drake ignores everyone.

ralks to "Yes, I'd think there was something wrong since you called twi row."

a lot of Hendrix listens a moment and then sighs. "We're at a team dinner. I wanttalk now, but I'll call you after." Another pause as he listens. "Yes, I p mates, Give me a few hours, okay?"

we are I glance at Cannon, who shrugs.

ight, so Hendrix hangs up and turns off the ringer, setting the phone back on thetable. "Sorry. Girlfriend," he mutters.

"Dude," Stone says, leaning back in his chair and looking suppack tosmug. "You have got to dump her. You're one phone call away fr with us,turning all Fatal Attraction on you."

- 2. Some "Hey," Hendrix says, sounding only mildly offended. "I don't tell dump Harlow, do I?"
- ateman, Stone frowns at him. "No," he drawls with a heavy sarcastic ton why would you? She's perfect."
- Power Hendrix scoffs, and Stone looks at Baden. "Harlow's perfect, right "As far as I can tell," Baden agrees.
- overed. His gaze flips to Sophie, who nods exuberantly. "I can emphatical that she's perfect in every way."

That tells me Sophie knows her well.

lown to Stone leans over and nudges Drake, still ignoring everyone. "H , but Iperfect, right, man?"

on the Drake doesn't even lift his gaze from his phone. "If you say so."

sed off, "The point being," Stone says as he addresses Hendrix, "you war who everyone at the table will agree is great. No one here can say the Tracy."

ir team, "She's not that bad," Hendrix mutters.

"The mere fact you're not staunchly defending her and ripping i for calling her Fatal Attraction tells me she's bad enough."

es, and "She is a bit clingy," Drake says, and everyone's surprised he sp "I'm just saying, I met her at Dillon's party three weeks ago, and that he ringsvibe I got."

e this." "Okay, how about we give Hendrix a break," Cannon says with chuckle. "I don't want Ava thinking you guys are ready to start yo and seesoap opera."

Laughter ripples around the table—except for Drake—and we make in afrom Hendrix's girl troubles.

After a waiter takes our drink and dinner orders, talk immediately I can'thockey, and even Drake engages. The men discuss their oppon romise.tomorrow night, and I'm lost. But not in a bad way—I just need to lear stuff is all.

Sophie leans in close. "You don't know how glad I am you're he on thehockey talk can get a bit much."

Laughing, I sip my water. "Do you travel to a lot of the games?" periorly "At least once a month," she says. "I'm working on an interior om herdegree, so I'm a little flexible. How about you? Are you going to com the away games, especially since your job is remote?"

you to "Oh, I don't think so," I say with a shake of my head. "I think thi onetime-only thing."

e. "But "It wasn't a onetime-only thing," Cannon says, cutting in conversation. I had no clue he'd been listening, but his head is turn way. "I'm going to try to get Ava to come to as many games as especially since she works remotely."

ly state I'm stunned by this proclamation, since Cannon has made clear has limited. I think I'm a bit of a hindrance and distraction while I'm has that's a chat for another time. I'm not about to have him shelling out arlow's for plane tickets for me, so I most definitely will not be coming to away games.

"Go back to your hockey talk," I say with a shooing motion.

It a girl Cannon grins and shocks me by pulling me into him with a hand at aboutback of my neck and kissing me. When I'm released, he turns back guys and slips seamlessly into their conversation.

I angle my body toward Sophie, and she's grinning from ear to ea into metwo are so cute."

I lower my voice and angle more her way, so Cannon stays out oke up.conversation. "It's still very new."

was the "That's the best time," she says with a knowing wink. "Just l about each other, having fun. It's obvious he's crazy about you."

a light My immediate thought is to deny that because if Cannon were ur ownabout me, we wouldn't spend so much time talking about his limitatio conversation would be more geared toward how he can overcome som love onworries resulting from past experiences.

It's not to say I don't want him to be crazy about me. It's only bee turns toweeks, but I've started to fall for this dirty talker with a heart of go ent forbeen cautious because of my own past woes, but honestly... if on somewanted to make a serious go of this, I'd be willing to give it my all.

On the flip side, with the boundaries Cannon has set, it has made re. Theeasier. Our time alone is fun and carefree. We laugh a lot and talk about hings. He doesn't care that I've been struggling to find a stable caree don't care that he's a hotshot hockey coach.

design All we can do is take it one day at a time and keep our expectations to all the rest of the evening is a lot of fun. It's not all hockey talk, and know Stone and Hendrix a little better. Drake was withdrawn most s was aevening, but that might just be his personality.

I have to say, after more teasing and ribbing of Hendrix, it sour to ourhe's got a handful with his current girlfriend. I think he likes her, be need ourfeeling a little hamstrung by her possessiveness. I'd love to tease him I can, the spirit of youth, but he and I are the same age. At least I can honest never acted like that with Derek, nor would I ever think of wanting this timeCannon's whereabouts at all times. Sounds like Tracy is exactly the tyere, butCannon would have no patience for.

money We walk back to the hotel with Baden and Sophie. Sophie and I was a lot ofby side, making plans to get together back in Pittsburgh. The guy behind us.

"You'll have to come out to our monthly lunch with the girls," I at thesays. I've learned tonight that the "girls" include Stone's allegedly to thegirlfriend, Harlow, Gage's girlfriend, Jenna, and Coen's girlfriend, "Sometimes Brienne joins us. Well, she came to one lunch, but she proposed to others. And she invited us to watch the game with her law when Baden proposed to me. She's super sweet."

of our "She invited me to sit in the box at the next home game. She also could bring a friend. Want to come?"

earning "Yeah, that would be great. I've got a season ticket, but I'd rathwith you and Brienne. Maybe you and Cannon and me and Baden e crazydrinks after."

ns. The "What kind of mischief are you planning up there?" Baden drawls. e of his Sophie looks over her shoulder. "Just drinks with Cannon and Annext week's game."

n a few My gaze goes to Cannon because I don't want to infringe on his ti ld. I'vesmiles, though. "That sounds fun. You good with that, Ava?"

Cannon "I'm down," I say.

"It's a date, then," Sophie chirps, and I'm actually excited about I thingsout with her more. When I was with Derek, I was not able to at inanefriendships of my own. They were all work pals who I no longer see I r, and Iof how things ended.

We say good night to Baden and Sophie in the elevator since s clear. staying on a higher floor.

I got to When we get into our room, Cannon pulls out his iPad. "Do you n of themake notes of some of the things we discussed tonight at dinner?"

"Of course not," I say with a playful push at him toward the desk.

He leans in and snags a kiss, and I love that about him. He ha ıds like out he'sbursts of spontaneous affection in the form of quick but fierce kiss n aboutalways serve as a reminder that he digs me.

And I dig him for that. ly say I

I take off my makeup, brush my teeth, and shrug into a tank tor o know pe whounder the bedcovers while Cannon works at the desk in the living area up a book on my iPhone and read, knowing that when he comes in, he alk sideall sorts of delicious things to hand out.

's walk

Sophie

perfect My eyes flutter open and I see Cannon in bed beside me, his iPad p Tillie on his lap. He's shirtless with the covers over his hips. He's watchin omised video, his eyebrows drawn inward with intense study.

"What time is it?" I ask sleepily. st week

Cannon jolts and tips the laptop down so the glare doesn't hit me o said I eyes. The room is illuminated by his bedside lamp, which is still on, glow is warm. "I didn't mean to wake you."

"You should have," I say, pushing up to an elbow and looking past er hang can get the clock on his table. It's just past midnight. I glance at the laptop a up to him. "Having a hard time turning off your coaching brain?"

He smiles and reaches over to put the iPad on the table. Sliding do va after turns on his side to face me, resting his head in his palm. "Time slips easily when I get deep into something. I'm glad you pointed it out."

I immediately backpedal. "I didn't mean you should quit working me. He need to do stuff, don't let me—"

Cannon presses a finger to my lips. "Relax, Ava. I know exactly w nanging meant."

God, I hope he means that because part of me now feels like I'm g develop pecause always compare myself to his wife, and I don't want him to ever see disliking the time he puts into his job. I admire him for it.

"I was looking at a new play that Houston's been using. Want to se • we're I love when he teaches me hockey, so I nod eagerly.

"Lie on your back," he says, and I frown at him. His hand come nind if I chest, pushing me until I'm in the requested position.

His eyes gleam as he pulls the covers down, exposing my tank. H is thesethe hem and drags it up until my stomach is bared to him.

ses that "Okay, this is the ice," he says softly, running a palm lightly o stomach, which causes goose bumps to break out. His fingertips sl waistband of my panties. "This is the goal."

). I slip I smirk at him, and he winks.

a. I pull "On the power play, Houston is going to position their left winger 'll havewith their center, with the right winger down low." He tells me thi marking an X on my skin where each player will be. "They'll execute of passes between the left winger and center, wanting to dra defensemen up high." Cannon glides his finger over my stomach fr ribs to my sternum, and I wiggle because it tickles. "When they have opening, they'll pass it over to the right winger who's moved down log game finger zips across my stomach, just a few inches above my hip bone.

I let out a quavering breath because with each move, Cannon' grows deeper, huskier. I dare a glance up at him, but his eyes are pir e in the where his fingertip rests on me.

but the "The goalie will hopefully be drawn out slightly, leaving an opening right winger will already be winding up for a slap shot when he gets the thim to and when he takes a crack at it..." Cannon's finger shoots straight not then edge of my panties, slips right in and through my slick folds. I grow buck as his finger presses into me.

own, he Cannon whispers, "Goal."

He starts to withdraw his hand while leaning toward me for a kis grip onto his wrist, keeping his hand right where it is. "Let's leave the . If you the net for right now."

Cannon's laugh is booming just before he brings his mouth do hat  $you_{\mbox{mine}}$ .

oing to me as e it?"

s to my

His eyes gleam as he pulls the covers down, exposing my tank. He grabs the hem and drags it up until my stomach is bared to him.

"Okay, this is the ice," he says softly, running a palm lightly over my stomach, which causes goose bumps to break out. His fingertips skim the waistband of my panties. "This is the goal."

I smirk at him, and he winks.

"On the power play, Houston is going to position their left winger up high with their center, with the right winger down low." He tells me this while marking an X on my skin where each player will be. "They'll execute a series of passes between the left winger and center, wanting to draw our defensemen up high." Cannon glides his finger over my stomach from my ribs to my sternum, and I wiggle because it tickles. "When they have the opening, they'll pass it over to the right winger who's moved down low." His finger zips across my stomach, just a few inches above my hip bone.

I let out a quavering breath because with each move, Cannon's voice grows deeper, huskier. I dare a glance up at him, but his eyes are pinned on where his fingertip rests on me.

"The goalie will hopefully be drawn out slightly, leaving an opening. The right winger will already be winding up for a slap shot when he gets the pass, and when he takes a crack at it..." Cannon's finger shoots straight for the edge of my panties, slips right in and through my slick folds. I groan and buck as his finger presses into me.

Cannon whispers, "Goal."

He starts to withdraw his hand while leaning toward me for a kiss, but I grip onto his wrist, keeping his hand right where it is. "Let's leave the puck in the net for right now."

Cannon's laugh is booming just before he brings his mouth down on mine.

CHAPTER 20 Ava

"Does this ever seem surreal to you?" I ask Sophie as we're escorte owner's box. "You know, because you've been around this a bit longe have, and I feel like I'm in the Twilight Zone."

Sophie laughs and loops her arm through mine. "You'll get use Somewhat. Tonight's a really big deal though, because we're play Vengeance."

Oh, I know very well the importance of this game. Cannon' hyperfocused on the team the last few days since we returned from I where the Titans took a significant loss. I didn't actually get to see th as my flight back to Pittsburgh was that day, but I made it home in watch it on TV. Surprisingly, Cannon called me about an hour after th was over, and I had no clue what to expect when I answered. I didn' how personally he'd take the loss.

Turns out I wasn't able to get a good read on him. The only reacalled was to make sure I'd made it home safely and to wish me good was so stunned that his thoughts were of me and not on the loss that I quite sure what to say. It was moot since he didn't have time to talk were getting ready to leave for the airport.

Before he hung up, he asked, "Are you up for an early breakfast I head into the arena? I'll come by and pick you up."

I immediately said yes because I missed him after only one day a would be logged into our diary of stolen moments. I felt guilty he'd c the way to me, which was very much out of the way, but he wouldn offered if he didn't want to and very much had the time to do it.

At breakfast, I asked him how he felt about the loss, and he pragmatic. "It's part of my job as a coach to take the losses and lear them."

Didn't mean he wasn't upset.

Didn't mean he wasn't driven to do better the next game.

It just meant he has a healthy check on his emotions when it confailure, and he most certainly takes the loss squarely upon his shoulder

Cannon West might be the most grounded person I've ever met admire him so much for that.

He's also turning into one of the sweetest men I've ever had the proof knowing. This morning, I woke up in his bed with a Pittsburgh d to thejersey on top of me. Cannon wasn't beside me—I later found him to the I breakfast—but I was touched that he bought me a jersey.

I was astounded when I found out that he'd had it custom made led to it.merchandising department with his name on the back. It's one of a king the no one else has one, although he admitted he was probably going to for his mom and sister for Christmas.

's been Of course, I'm proudly wearing it tonight and hope I'm not too care to some louston dressed. When Brienne reached out to me through Cannon to confirm e game accepting her invitation to join her in the box, she passed along the time to some executives from two companies here in Pittsburgh that have the game ownership interests in the arena.

The usher who met Sophie and I at will call leads us to a set of ma double doors with a brass plaque next to it that simply reads "Norcross He opens the door on the left and motions us in.

night. I At first, I'm boggled by the number of people in the suite. I don't t wasn't time to count, but I'd guess close to forty or fifty. Most of them as they business suits or dresses. I see only a handful in jerseys.

"Eesh," Sophie says softly as she tightens her arm in mine. Defore Iweren't this many people the last time I was here."

She's talking about two weeks ago when Baden proposed and s and this sitting up here. I'd learned that Brienne was heavily involved in pulliome alloff, which makes her even cooler in my opinion.

"There you two are." Brienne appears through the crowd, walk way with a big smile on her face. She's dressed in a camel-colored sl was somatching jacket, taupe high-heeled boots that I bet cost a fortune, in from beautiful purple and gray scarf—Titans' colors, of course—I diagonally over her shoulder.

She reaches me and Sophie and gives us brief hugs, whispering, God you're here. There's far too much testosterone and they all want Sophie and I both get beers, and Brienne orders a glass of red wir rivilegeshe ushers us right down to the front row where three seats bear a "ReTitans'sign. We're motioned down into the plush leather chairs with Brienne cookinginside. The players are on the ice warming up, but the coaches are there, so I can't shamelessly stare at Cannon just yet.

by their "Sorry to use both of you as shields," she says with a conspi ind andwhisper. "But that should keep me safe from people wanting to talk b get oneduring the game."

Sophie laughs and glances over her shoulder at the crowd behir asuallydon't look, but I imagine they're all hungrily ogling Brienne, maybe n I wasfor her to make eye contact before they pounce.

re'd be "What do they all want?" I ask.

Hope they can do business one day or request a favor. Hell, most of th hoganywant to give me a favor at some point so I'll owe them. But that business is done."

"Are they all here by your invite?"

ake the "God no," she exclaims, then lowers her voice. "Most of the peopare in are at the invite of other executives in the organization, and they're at to them. But they'll jump at the chance to have my ear, so I'm hid "Theredown here with you girls. We'll brave some food at the first intermissi

We chitchat about the game and how thrilling it would be to decide was Vengeance as they won the Cup the last two years in a row. I'd learned ing that Cannon that the hockey world is already abuzz with how well the Tital doing this year considering they're still in a massive rebuilding phase.

doing this year, considering they're still in a massive rebuilding phaing ourthe crash.

kirt and "What's Baden been thinking about Drake this past week?" Brien, and aSophie.

nanging "You mean, you really want to know how frustrated Baden has be him?" Sophie asks dryly.

"Thank I turn from the ice to the conversation because this is an interesting to talkdynamic. Owner of the team and fiancée of a coach discussing a play

" well, I'm the girlfriend of the head coach. I didn't know such ta throughpossible, although I don't know quite enough about the game to partic ou twoany meaningful way. I do know Drake had a horrible road trip last we Cannon didn't seem too worried about it. Said he thought Drake w 1e, thenhaving a rough streak.

served" "He's definitely not playing to his full potential," Sophie con the Baden said he was going to talk to him."

en't out "And did he?" Brienne asks. "What did he say?"

I don't know if Sophie catches it, but Brienne sounds overly corratorial about Drake. Not from a business perspective, but more like she usinesspersonal stake in Drake's well-being.

It doesn't matter though, because Sophie shrugs. "I have no clu id us. IBaden wouldn't share those things with me."

waiting Brienne sighs, and it seems like frustration, but maybe I'm read much into it.

We watch the rest of the warm-ups while Brienne asks me question ir card. Where are you from?

em just Where do you work?

's how What do you do in your free time?

All benign and meant to get to know me better. Nothing too per although I don't think her failure to dive deep is because she thing le hereimpolite. It's that we run out of time when the game starts.

tending For the first period, we're all fully engaged in the action and the ing outroom to talk about our personal lives. The arena feels combustible, on." cheers could turn into real explosions. When the Titans jump out to  $\varepsilon$  feat thelead of 2–0, most of the fans remain standing and the three of ed frompractically hanging over the box rail.

tans are With only a minute left in the first period, the Vengeance intercepts se afterwhile the Titans are on a power play. Two players shoot down the i our defenseman, Camden Poe, in hot pursuit. Drake squats low ne asksattackers bear down on him. He's a beast of a guy and fills completely, so he's not easy to score on.

en with The Vengeance players pass the puck back and forth with following their movements, keeping his body square to the goal. ( gossipmakes a solid attempt to stop them by diving forward and pushing h er. Andtoward the puck to knock it out of their possession. He misses by incl lk wasslap shot flies, the puck zinging like a bullet toward the net. Drake pulipate inmiraculous glove save, and the arena erupts.

eek, but "Yes!" Brienne yells, shooting out of her seat and throwing both a vas justSophie and I are right behind her, and then all of us are high-fiving.

"Whatever Baden said to Drake must've been good." Sophie laugh atinues.sit back down.

"Yeah," Brienne murmurs more to herself than to us as she look the jumbo screen where the players are setting up for another for accrned"Seems like he's out of his funk."

e has a I frown—although I can tell Brienne is thrilled with the save, the odd underlying sadness to her tone. But that can't be. I'm misintent e sincesomething, and when the action commences, Brienne is back in the gain

The buzzer indicates the end of the first period, and Brienne stancing toogoing to go hobnob as expected. I'll be back in time for the start second. There's food up there, and obviously get another drink. If you. something you don't see, just ask and they'll get it for you."

Brienne swishes by in a cloud of designer clothing, delicate perfur a backbone of steel, and I watch her ascend the steps to the suite's may where all the sharks await.

ersonal, "Want to get another beer and some food?" Sophie asks.

nks it's "Let's do it. I'm starving—I haven't eaten since lunch."

We move up the steps and over to the buffet. I note that the guere's noswarm Brienne, wanting a moment of her time, which leaves no one like the food. Bonus for us.

in early Sophie and I load plates with sliced prime rib and pasta salad, and us arethe cheesecake that I'll be back for. It's simple but elegant.

"This is so fancy," I murmur to Sophie as I grab real silverware w t a passin an expensive-looking linen cloth. "I'm wondering if we should' ce withwine instead of beer?"

as the Sophie laughs. "Nah... we are who we are."

the net "Damn straight," I concur. "Want to sit up here at one of these tables?"

Drake "Sure," Sophie says, and we move to one close by. Not sure the Camdenempty had Brienne not acted as a magnet to so many people want is stickattention.

nes as a Setting my plate down, I pull out the knife and fork to cut into the lls off arib when a man's voice behind me says, "Ava?"

My body tightens with tension, and I slowly turn to see Derek some up.there. He looks exactly as he did the day I confronted him about screw secretary. Expensive suit, blond hair coiffed to perfection, and an is as wesuperiority hovering around him.

What I didn't see then was the deviousness underneath the polics up atbecause I busted him cheating, his revenge was to have me fired.

ace-off. "What are you doing here?" he says, a hard edge of disdain and d competing in his tone.

ere's an I take a moment to gauge my feelings, surprised at the lack of 1 pretinghurt over what he did to me. There's a little anger, but not even enoughme. him it's none of his business.

ls. "I'm The pause to assess the situation takes too long because next of theknow, Brienne is there at the table, draping an arm around my should ou wantlooks past me to Derek. "Ava's a dear friend, here at my invitation. A are?"

ne, and Derek's eyes bug out of his head to see Brienne Norcross with lain areaaround me.

And... we're dear friends?

"Um... um...," he stammers, and I'm not going to lie, there's satistic in seeing him off-kilter. He never even broke a sweat when I confrontests allabout banging his secretary.

e at the "This is Derek Burrows," I say to Brienne. "My ex-boyfriend."

Now, Brienne has no clue about our backstory, but she clearly 1 I noteDerek question why I was here and the tone with which he did it. She there's animosity.

vrapped So I'm guessing that's what fuels her dramatics when she looks we hadwith a sheepish grin. "Guess it's a little awkward that your current bo is the one who introduced us, huh?"

Sophie makes a slight choking sound.

empty "Current boyfriend?" Derek asks, his words clipped.

Again, I'm given no chance to respond. Brienne is enjoying t ey'd bemuch. Her hands come to my shoulders, and she turns me around so ing hercan see the back of my jersey. "She's dating Cannon West."

I pivot so I can see Derek's reaction, and it actually makes the hule prime and fear of the unknown that he instilled in me worth it.

His jaw drops as his eyes cut back and forth between me and E tandingFinally, they land on me, and he tries to sound happy. "Well, that's aw ving hisGood for you."

air of "Great for me," I say with a smile. "You cheating and then hav fired was one of the best things that ever happened to me."

sh, that Derek's face flushes in anger. "I don't think it's appropriate to malto Ms. Norcross."

isbelief "It's not maligning if it's true now, is it?" Brienne asks sweetly don't be too put out. How can anyone be mad about it when Ava scoresidualof the nicest, and certainly most successful men, in this city? Right?"

h to tell Derek is done with us having fun at his expense. He manages a sn bites out, "It was nice meeting you, Ms. Norcross." His eyes then c thing Ime, and he dares to look wounded. "It was good seeing you, Ava." ler. She I give him a polite smile in return.

and you Derek walks back through the crowd over to two other men in b suits. I don't recognize them, but I'm guessing they're executives at l ner armcompany and that's why he's here.

Brienne snorts, and I look her way. I try to hold my laugh, but I can it comes out with gusto. Sophie joins in and gasps, "That was the sfactions mackdown I've ever seen."

ted him "That was so much fun," Brienne says as her hand comes to my sh but her expression sobers. "Are you okay, though?"

"I'm totally fine," I assure her. "I would have been fine had you n heardhere handing him his ass, but that was icing on the cake."

knows "Poor guy," Sophie muses, casting a quick glance his way. "Repla Cannon West."

at me "It makes me feel bad in a way." I chuckle.

yfriend "Not me," Brienne says tartly. "He deserved it for cheating on y getting you fired. The only thing that would have been better is if yo have somehow slipped in a direct comparison to Cannon's skills in bec

I bust out laughing, shaking my head. "It would have destroyed his tooknow that Cannon puts him to shame in all ways. Let's let him lear that hesome dignity."

"Speaking of Cannon," Brienne says, reaching out and stealing a rt, pain,my plate. But it's okay, we're dear friends. "His birthday is next Tuesc you have plans?"

3rienne. "Not really," I admit a bit glumly. "His birthday is on an away gar resome.and honestly, I'm not confident about how to even slot something i schedule because he's so busy."

ing me "What do you think of throwing him a surprise party? I can orche to get him there, and you can help with all the planning."

lign me "I'd love it!" I exclaim. "I'd never be able to pull it off on my own don't know anyone that well, and I don't understand his availability ly. "Buttime."

red one Brienne pulls her phone from her jacket pocket and flips throu calendar. "We're playing away on his birthday... just in DC, so it's a nile andday flight there and back. But the day before is a light practice day some tocould definitely work in a surprise party for him that evening."

"He's always so busy. The trick will be getting him to stop work go somewhere."

ousiness Brienne waves me off. "We'll do it at my house, and I'll invite he Derek's dinner for the coaches to get together. I'll have my assistant conne you. You work with her to have whatever you want for him, and I'll in't, and bill."

he best "That's very generous, Brienne," I say softly. Because I coulc afford to do something so nice for him.

oulder, "It will be a lot of fun, and well..." Her voice takes on a wistful which she plays off with a smile. "I like seeing relationships succeed."

ot been "Thank you." Not sure if those words are adequate, so I add, "It the world to me to be able to help give him this."

aced by "You'll just need to get there separately since he'll think it's event."

"I can handle that." And really, that's about all I could handle ou and birthday party for Cannon. I never would have thought it even post u couldpull it off, and not just because I don't know people. My first instinct l." Cannon wouldn't want to take time away from work, even for him to birthday party. And even if I could pull off the organization and invive with I'm not sure I'd want to risk him being mad at me for it.

Or maybe he wouldn't be mad. Maybe he'd love it.

roll off It's so hard to tell. I thought the boundaries were clear, but the lay. Dopretty muddy right now.

"Excuse me, Brienne." We all turn to a woman wearing a Titans' I ne day,iPad in hand. "Let me get a picture for IG."

into his Brienne gathers me and Sophie to her, one on each side. We smile camera, but not before my gaze flicks over to see Derek watching us strate itconfused look. Poor guy... not sure he'll ever understand how I landec "Can I tag you?" the woman asks me, before cutting a look to since Iwith a grin. "I already have yours, Future Mrs. Baden Oulett."

half the I assume she must be responsible for the team's social media, and about the fact that Derek still follows me on IG, even though I never pagh the "Sure." I smile and give her my handle.

a same-

and we

ing and im to a ct with foot the 1 never

ul tone,

means

a work

e for a sible to t is that is own tations, y seem olo, an

iPad in hand. "Let me get a picture for IG."

Brienne gathers me and Sophie to her, one on each side. We smile for the camera, but not before my gaze flicks over to see Derek watching us with a confused look. Poor guy... not sure he'll ever understand how I landed here.

"Can I tag you?" the woman asks me, before cutting a look to Sophie with a grin. "I already have yours, Future Mrs. Baden Oulett."

I assume she must be responsible for the team's social media, and I think about the fact that Derek still follows me on IG, even though I never post.

"Sure." I smile and give her my handle.

CHAPTER 21 Cannon

I open the door to Mario's, and Baden precedes me in. The place is shoulder to shoulder, due solely to the 4–0 ass-kicking we just hander Arizona Vengeance.

We wind our way back to a reserved area that is always set aside Titans. Normally, coaches don't party with the players, but ton monumental enough that we're going to have a few beers to celebrate. and Ava came here directly after the game and should have a table for

While not as widely recognized as some of the star players on ou Baden and I get a ton of back slaps and cheers as we walk throug Titans' fans are beyond crazed to beat the defending Cup champions a a shutout, no less.

Of course, Drake in goal wasn't quite the biggest story tonight. It v kiss he laid on Brienne when he stepped off the ice that has everyone I didn't see it, but I sure as hell heard about it as the gossip spread the locker room like wildfire. When Drake finally appeared, he got shit from everyone that he couldn't even respond. He finally just held hands, asking for quiet, and said, "Brienne and I are together. It's been making. Deal with it."

He said this with a smirk and remained stoic the rest of the nigbuzzed out immediately after showering, and I'm confident we won him here tonight.

"There they are," Baden says, and I get a punch of pleasure at seei sitting at a high top wearing the custom jersey I had made for her. S me and waves, Sophie turning to look in our direction.

When we approach the table, Ava steps off her stool and walks rigme for a hug. Her arms wrap around my neck, mine go to her wais pick her up from the floor as we squeeze each other.

She leans her head back to look at me, feet dangling. "Great Congrats, Coach!"

"I feel like I'm due a celebratory kiss," I reply, and then don't wait to give it to me.

I take it.

I'm vaguely aware of people around us cheering, and when I let for breath and she slides back down to the floor, several fans around and clap over that kiss.

packed Ava's cheeks flame red and it's adorable. I settle my hand on he d to the back to guide her to her chair and then stand beside her. A waitress a and Baden and I order beers to match Sophie and Ava.

for the "That game was phenomenal," Sophie exclaims, and then gives a light ispunch to Baden's shoulder. "And your boy Drake pulled out all the sto Sophie Baden snorts and looks across the table at me, and I laugh. The exchange glances, confused.

r team, "What are we missing?" Ava asks.

gh. The Baden shakes his head in amusement as I fill them in. "Apparently nd withdidn't see this myself but heard all about it—Drake came off the ice are into an interview with a reporter. He declared that he was in low vas that Brienne and then kissed her right on TV."

reeling. Ava and Sophie blink at me, completely stunned. They look at each through then back to me. "No," Ava says dismissively. "We spent the entire o much with Brienne, and she didn't..."

l up his Her words trail off, and I can see something in her eyes clicki n in the place. She must have picked up on something from Brienne, but she offer it up, and I don't push. Women are entitled to their secrets.

ght. He "Oh, look," Sophie says, pointing up at one of the wall TVs.

n't find The local news channel leads off with the clip of Drake and Br make-out, and holy hell... that is one claiming and possessive king Avasound is off on the TVs, so I have no clue what the reporter is saying, he sees search for it later.

"Well, that's not the only jaw-dropping thing Brienne did this ev ght into Sophie drawls, and Ava ducks her head slightly to hide a smile.

t. and I "What?" Baden asks.

Sophie looks at Ava, her eyes sparkling with amusement, then bri game.gaze directly to me. "Turns out Ava's ex-boyfriend was in the owner tonight. And he approached Ava and asked what she was doing there."

Anger swells within me that asshole would dare talk to Ava. for herhappened?" I growl.

Ava frowns at my tone, but Sophie grins. She knows I'm protective. "Oh, don't get your shorts in a bunch. Brienne totally de her uphim. Made sure he knew that Ava was way better off without him." us hoot My head swivels toward Ava.

"Brienne told him that we were dear friends and that she met me tor loweryou. He knows we're dating, and to say he was shocked would appears, understatement."

"It was priceless," Sophie says.

playful "And you're okay?" I press.

ps." Her smile is transparent. "Yes, I'm very okay. It was a short intense girlsand I barely said anything. He left with his tail between his legs."

That should satisfy me. I should be happy that the bastard know moved on. And yet, I'm feeling disgruntled. I feel like I should be the —and Ilet the jackass know what a fuckup he is and how big his loss was.

nd went Which is my gain... in a completely monogamous but very casual re with The fact that I keep insisting that I'm unwilling to dive too deep w should have me leaving this subject alone, but I feel compelled h other, "Maybe I should have a follow-up conversation with him."

e game Baden's lips twitch, Sophie takes a sip of beer to hide her smi Ava's brow knits together. "You're sweet, but it's not necessary. Brie ng intohim in his place."

doesn't Well, fuck. I want to be the one to put him in his place, but I don't hat out loud. Baden will give me shit about it, and I don't want to Sophie and Ava throwing me their dreamy eyes.

rienne's Instead, I'm going to savor our victory over the Vengeance and the ss. The Ava back to my place for a post-celebration celebration.

but I'll

ening,"

Christ, I nearly pass out from the force of my orgasm, my hips t while my hands grip Ava hard to keep her from flying off me.

ngs her The post-celebration celebration included Ava pleasuring me w 's suite hot, wet mouth and ended with her riding my cock until I was begging finish me off. She was spectacular to behold, especially when she "Whatherself into an orgasm first, which caused her to fall forward onto my gasping for air and shuddering. I started to roll her to her back to fir beingjob, but she panted, "Don't. Let me."

stroyed She took a deep breath and got back to work, and like I said... spectacular.

"That was...," she says as she once again lies on my chest, but he throughfade. I can feel her heart hammering, matching pace with my own.

be an "Yeah, that was," I agree with a smile.

"I'm too broken to move off you," she mutters. "If you want up, going to have to shove."

Laughing, I wrap an arm around her lower back to hold her in praction, love the feel of her weight and warmth on me. "I'm totally comfortable

"Me too," she murmurs, and I can tell she's about to fall asleep. I rs she's for that to happen and then I'll rearrange her under the covers.

e one to My hand comes up to stroke the back of her head as I stare at the Today was a really great day. My team stepped up to the plate a way. everything I asked of them. They put forth more effort than I expected ith Avaunified in a way that made me more than proud—it made me im to say, respectful of their abilities.

And of course, the icing on the cake is having Ava in my bed. A ile, andshe might be the cake, and the win might be the icing.

Not sure.

"What are your plans tomorrow?" I ask, doing a mental run-throw 't voicemy calendar. It's a regular practice day with another home game of sufferafter, plus Bain Hillridge joins us. Ironic it's the day after we have former team a defeat, but he's stepping out of a Vengeance uniform a len takea Titans' one.

Ava's tone is lazy, her fingers sliding back and forth over my che one should be this excited to go to work, but it's my first full datraining. I'll be working on changing Shelley's newsletter over to robust platform. I talked to her about it, and she gave me the go-ahead.

Chuckling, I squeeze her. "I love how something that might seem so thers is a big deal to you. You cherish the small things."

"ith her "She's taking a chance on me. It means a lot."

g her to "Why don't you stay here and work rather than go back t worked apartment?" Boy, those words popped out with no thought, but I can y chest,them back. Besides, it's not like I'm asking her to move in. Just st nish theduring the day since I'll be back tonight.

"Are you sure?" she asks hesitantly.

fucking "Absolutely," I reply, taking stock of my feelings. Yeah... I mea "It will be easier on you."

r words "Okay, then. That's very sweet." Her voice is barely a whisper, a come to know her sleeping habits enough to guess that she's not fa going under. Her hand moves from my chest to my waist, and she giv you'resqueeze. "Better be careful, Cannon. You're going to make me fall f then we're both in trouble."

place. I My hand freezes on the back of her head, and I wait for her e." something else. Those few words make me question everything once 'll waitAm I not setting clear enough boundaries? Do I have to modify my be so she doesn't expect more from me?

ceiling. Or is it possible I'm making more of this than I should? It was pland didjust a jest, especially since we always talk openly about our persona d. Theyand desires. Ava is the type who, if she wants more, will tell me point-plicitly I'm sure of it.

I have that much trust in her.

ctually, Ultimately, she doesn't say anything else, and I brush my lips over of her head. Within moments, she's breathing deeply and I can move me without waking her up.

ough of But I don't.

the day I ponder what this is between us. It's more than I've had before—ded hisMelissa. Not surprising, as Ava is very different from the women I'v ind intoin the past.

I seriously contemplate why I'm so uneasy about her developing st. "Nofeelings for me, which means I either have to step up to meet them..

1 afterher loose.

a more The only thing I come up with is that I can't get past the failure." marriage because I was never able to give Melissa what she wanted. I small toit was all sunshine and rainbows.

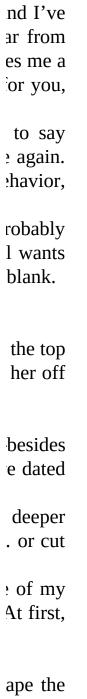

Much the way it feels right now with Ava.

In the end, it was bitterness and the desire for both of us to esc o yournastiness we kept hurling at each other.

n't take I don't want to go through that again. Moreover, I don't want Av ay heresubjected to something that could hurt her because she's already be and let down by a man in her life.

Gently, I slide out from under her body, having come up with no ant that.to my hypotheticals. I decide to give myself a mental break from my leand watch some game video.

<sup>7</sup>a to be subjected to something that could hurt her because she's already been hurt and let down by a man in her life.

Gently, I slide out from under her body, having come up with no answers to my hypotheticals. I decide to give myself a mental break from my love life and watch some game video.

CHAPTER 22 Cannon

I knock on Brienne's partially open office door and enter before wai an answer. She's expecting me as we'll be welcoming Bain Hillridge team soon. Callum is currently giving him the grand tour of the arena.

Sitting behind her desk with her laptop in front of her, the owner Pittsburgh Titans looks different to me. Maybe it's because she was ou night by Drake on a local TV news clip that has since gone national, looks relaxed.

Her head lifts and she smiles at me. "Come on in."

I move to her guest chair and plop down. "Not sure if congratulati in order. What exactly is appropriate when one of my players kis owner on TV?"

Brienne is no shrinking violet, and there's not even a l embarrassment on her face. In fact, she grins almost mischievously. 'something like 'You go, girl' is appropriate."

"You go girl," I parrot, and we laugh.

She picks up a newspaper from her desk and holds it out to me. you seen it?"

Shaking my head, I take the paper, flipping it over to see the r headline: Titans' Goalie Shocks Team Owner With Kiss.

My eyes snap to hers, and she nods with bemusement. Gaze going the article, I read it out loud.

"Pittsburgh Titans goalie Drake McGinn is no stranger to malheadlines. Having spent the last year battling allegations of betting hockey and throwing games to benefit financially, followed be messy divorce, McGinn has had his share of the spotlight. A leaving the league as a result of the allegations, which were profalse, McGinn has managed to keep his personal life out of the me in recent months.

"But last night, Drake McGinn once again set the hockey we abuzz when he seemingly announced his relationship with Titc team owner, Brienne Norcross. Following a post-game intervi McGinn made a very public declaration, stating he was "stupic love" with Norcross before kissing her in front of cameras and me personnel. Norcross looked stunned for a moment before return McGinn's kiss... and his pronouncement of love.

ting for e to the

"An embattled hockey star and the billionaire team owner v took over following a devastating plane crash? Hollywood doe. have anything on this Pittsburgh love story."

r of the Setting the paper back on her desk, I say, "Wow. That's, um. tted last the..." I pause, searching for the words, and finally just ask, "Did he but she say he was stupid in love with you?"

Brienne rolls her eyes at my playful jab. "He did. He's a romant should take notes."

ons are The reference to Ava allows me to transition the conversation. "I ses the owe you thanks for putting Ava's ex in his place."

Her blue eyes glitter as if filled with shards of ice. "Outside of us v nint of last night, that was the highlight of my entire day." 'I think "Pretty sure Drake professing his love was the highlight of your tease, and Brienne blushes. Chuckling, I drum my fingers on my thigh to sound mildly interested. "Any clue why Derek was there?"

"Have "His boss, Kenneth Heborn, is head of America Life, one of the co biggest life insurance companies. He recently took over as CEO and s nassive charitable board with me and came at my invite. He brought a few executives who will be partnering with our organization on som back to grassroots charity."

"Such as?"

"Fun runs, food drives... things that will involve and engage w aing community." 1 on "Interesting."

y a Brienne goads me a bit. "Bet you wish you were there to take a fter him." ven

"My shot would have been... let's say... a lot more forceful than y ?dia She snickers, understanding my meaning, but admonishes any can't condone physical violence." orld

"I know. But he deserves an ass-kicking for what he did to Ava." ıns'

"She didn't give details, but she called him out... said he cheated c ew,

"And had her fired, then kicked her out of the house they shared 1 in The anger I felt when I first heard this from Ava rears fierce and ho ?dia

"He left her jobless and homeless." ıina

"With a broken heart?" Brienne asks.

That stops me a moment. Was her heart broken? We've never who about that. Granted, it's been months since they broke up, and sn't accounts, Ava has moved on.

"You know, I don't know if her heart was broken," I admit. "Reg .. quite at the least, he deserves a broken nose."

e really "You're adorable in your zeal to be Ava's champion," she coos.

I grimace at the word. No one has ever called me adorable before ic. Youadmittedly, Sophie and Ava thought I was last night at drinks when I up a little testosterone display.

I hear I "While I'd have to fire you if you got physical," Brienne drawls playful expression, "I can tell you there's a reception welcoming k vinning Heborn in as the new CEO. I'm going and I could swing two extra ti you want to bring Ava and have a run-in with him." day," I I shake meet 1 "

I shake my head. "I wouldn't want to expose her to him."

and try "Then you come by yourself. You can have your shot—verba course—of knocking him down about twenty pegs."

untry's That idea has merit. I could embarrass the fuck out of him in fron its on aboss—hell, maybe I could even get him fired for what he did to he <sup>7</sup> junior could take him aside and tell him how inadequate he was as a lover.

ie joint But even as the thrill of taking this guy on pulses through me, m tells me to slow the fuck down. It's too proprietary. It implies a l commitment and dedication I've told myself I won't compromise or vith the Putting myself out there to be Ava's champion sits her on the same p my wife occupied at one point, and for her, it got awfully lonely u when I couldn't be around all the time.

shot at It's best I just let it go and learn how to deal with the burn of ang what happened to Ava.

"Thank you for the offer," I say to Brienne just as there's a knock way. "Iopen door. "But I'll pass. Sounds like you did a great job of it already."

"Your loss," she quips as she stands from her chair to greet Bacallum. But before moving around the desk, she adds, "I need you to an her." dinner at my house though, next Monday I want to start having qual here. "meetings with Callum and the coaches. To help keep me on top of thin tagain. I do a mental calculation as I rise from my chair. Monday is a I day, and I would usually make plans with Ava that night. It sucks that our moments will be taken away, but I can't deny the boss when she talkedneed to be there.

by all "Got it," I say and then we both turn to Callum, leading Bain Hillri Our new defenseman is a beast of a man, standing nearly six foo ardless, without skates on. Despite his size, he's super light on his feet with reflexes.

He also packs a powerful punch and will be our top enforcer, hand ore, butpunishment to anyone who would dare try to rough up our forwards. revvedit had to be tough on him to leave a team that just won back-to-back and I'm sure it was even harder to come to a team in a rebuilding phas with ait could take us years to reach the top again.

Cenneth But when we talked a few times on the phone, he seemed eager to ckets ifteam and prove his worth to us. He was more than excited to be back same team as Baden as they were close friends when they played toge Arizona.

ally, of Callum introduces us officially, since neither Brienne nor I have m in person. All the trade negotiations were handled by Callum witt of hisplayers' agents, then approved by the league.

er. Or I "I'm so glad to have you on our team," Brienne says warmly. "I tell you the same thing I've told every other player—I'm here if you not by brainThat door is always open."

evel of "I really appreciate it," Bain says, his voice a rich baritone one again.expect from a man so large. "I'm excited to be part of this team and the bedestalorganization has done an incredible job of rebuilding." Bain then turns up there "And the scuttlebutt in the league is that you're the premier coach to pose I'm eager to see how you're going to teach me to be better."

ger over I shrug off the compliment, as I always do. "Well, it's not just me team of coaches at my side. Regardless, you're bringing tremendous con theour team, so I imagine there's not a lot of new stuff to teach you."

" Callum looks at his watch. "Okay, enough chitchat. We've got th ain andwaiting."

attend a We head to the arena's press room, a large space filled with ruarterlychairs and a small dais at the front with a long table that seats up to figs." table cover has the Titans' logo on the front, and there's a backdrop practicedark gray and covered in a repeating pattern of the team logo. Three tone ofmicrophones are set up on the table.

e says I This is where I give postgame press conferences, and it's wher discuss the trade of Nolan Carrier and a second-round draft pick for dge in. Hillridge. It will only be me, Callum, and Bain at the table fielding quot sevenfrom sports reporters. Brienne won't join us, which is a good thing to h sharpI'm sure most questions lobbed to her would be about the kiss as well morning's newspaper article. We've allotted fifteen minutes f ling outconference and then the team will hit the ice for practice.

I know

∢ Cups,

e, since

To the casual observer, it might look like I don't do much but wal join the scowl at our games and practices. You'll find me behind the players on the with a small pad and pen in my hand, jotting down notes to discuss late ther in the assistant coaches.

Before games and practices, however, I meet with my assistants, let Baingo over everything we want to achieve. Then I let them run the show rith the my notes and offering guidance when needed.

I know that makes it sound as if I am a hands-off coach, but And I'll contrary. Everything that is done on and off the ice is ultimately eed me. direction and employing my strategies, but I delegate downward.

I'm watching Bain run hinge regrouping drills with his new fir would While I'd watched a ton of video of this guy before we decided to n ink this offer for him, I'm still astounded by how smooth he is on the ice to me. forward and backward—given his size. My pad of paper stays firmly lay for, hand as I don't see a single thing today that I need to write down along to him.

but the lepth to Vengeance, he'll keep the first-line position. That will pressure Camdwants to move up, but he first needs to figure out how to secure his seepress line position. I watch him take the ice with Hendrix, and after they Camden's pass is just a tiny bit out of reach of Hendrix, who has to ows ofslight lunge for it.

ve. The I pull out my pad and make a note. I'm not going to do anything w done inpiece of information other than memorialize it. It will be part of ou sets ofpractice debrief.

We stay on the ice only an hour as we have a game tomorrow, a e we'llmany of the guys will get in a light workout. Mostly, though, my pre or Bainis for them to relax today. Well-rested players are strong players.

lestions Baden, Gage, Maurice, and Sam meet me in my office after practional production of the same served while we devour the sandwic as this assistant had delivered.

For the As the meeting winds down, I can't help but ask, "Did anyone els about Drake and Brienne?"

Maurice and Sam shake their heads, but Baden and Gage exchange before Baden says, "I only found out before the game yesterday. I was him he needed to get his head out of his ass."

tch and Now that makes sense. "They have some sort of falling out that makes bench play shitty on the road last week?"

ter with "Yeah," Baden says with a smirk. "Had no clue he was going to co and we "I knew a little longer. Apparently, Jenna knew, and Drake assum, taking meant she'd told me—which she had not—and he sort of outed himsel

"Another example of love fucking with a career," Maurice mutter on the a confirmed bachelor at age fifty-six and is adamant he has no desire at mytied down. He's crusty, grumpy, and hard to be around outside of the but he's a hell of a coach.

And he's not wrong about love fucking with a career. Or rather take an case, it was my career fucking with love. But it's obviously interchang —both "I imagine we'll be seeing you on the front page of the Times before in mylong," Baden says with a sly grin.

to pass "What makes you think that?" I ask with a laugh.

"Because of that lip-lock you laid on Ava last night at Mario's. "ith the totally gracing the photo gallery of many a fan phone today."

en if he Charling I grapple the remains of my conducish wrapper "If the en if he Chuckling, I crumple the remains of my sandwich wrapper. "If th second-news, then people need to get a life. Besides, it's not serious."

hinge, I wipe at the crumbs on the table, noting the silence.

make a I look up and then around at four faces staring back at me as if I'm shit.

rith that "It's not serious," I assert as I pick up my trash and stand from the rafter-"Ava and I have clear boundaries in this relationship. She knows my comes first."

Ithough "What does your career and having a relationship have to do wi ferenceother?" Gage asks. He looks over to Baden, then back to me. "We serious relationships, and we still give a hundred and ten percent to ou ice, and I don't have an answer to that. The jaded part of me wants to tell hes mywon't last. That at some point, Sophie and Jenna will hate how much gone.

e know But there's a piece of me—the man who still believes in possibi that wonders if Ava is different.

e a look I mean... I already know she's unique. She stands apart from to tellingother women I dated somewhat seriously by the mere fact that relationships were kept private. They were not invited into my public add himultimately, that's part of why I called it off with them. They wanted to my side after games and at team events. They wanted to be holding mome outwhen cameras were flashing, and they wanted the public displacement. All things I refused to let myself give, because by letting the ned thatmy professional world, I'd be giving tacit permission for them to uf." career against me.

es. He's But with Ava... I opened the door and brought her right through a to gethesitation. I did that the first time I got her a ticket to a game and ther arena, the deal that this is a different type of relationship when I brought he for the away trip last week.

, in my Kissing her at Mario's pretty much guaranteed I'd broken all m eable. that had held firm and strong the last nine years. I put her at my side p fore too and for all those who wondered if I could give my heart again after n died, they're thinking that it's going to happen.

After tossing my lunch trash in the can and ignoring Gage's que You'resay, "Let's take a half-hour break so I can go through my notes, an meet with Jack in the film room."

at's hot It's the last thing we have to do as coaches—go through compile that our video coach and pre-scout staff put together on tomorponent, the Minnesota Raiders.

1 full of When my office is empty, I call Ava with no guilt since I'm on a bar.

e table. I've got a hundred things to do, and I normally would be usi r career"break" to get stuff done.

Still, no guilt. I can budget the time, and I want to see how she's th eachWhen I left this morning, she was happily sipping a cup of coffee 've gotkitchen table and working on her laptop. That was after I woke up to 'r jobs." bed empty, Ava in the kitchen making breakfast, and me working thro them itfeelings of really enjoying seeing her there.

they're Waking up to a morning shared with someone.

"Hey, Coach," she quips as she answers.

lities— "How's work going?" I ask as I settle back into my chair and kick up on my desk.

the two "Amazing," she gushes. "I just had a meeting with Shelley, and she to those one energetic and loved my suggestions on the newsletter. I mean, I'v life and had a boss who gave me a chance to do something big or risky, an to be atdoing it, and I've only worked for her a week."

iy hand "I'm really happy for you." So fucking happy that she's finally get lays ofthings she deserves. "Maybe Derek firing you was supposed to hal em intolead you to Shelley."

ise that "And to you." She laughs, and something in my chest expanded contracts with pleasure. "Oh, and she's coming to Pittsburgh in a few withoutto meet with one of her speakers. She wants to take me out to dinner a sealedknow you probably can't do it with your crazy schedule, but she invitor alongsignificant other' too, and well... that's you."

"When is it?" I ask, putting her on speaker and pulling up my caler y rules "The twenty-second. It's the day before a home game, so—" ublicly, "I can do it," I say without hesitation. I'm in town and the next any wifehome, so it's the perfect time for me.

"Really?" she breathes out almost like I've given her the most pestion, Igift ever.

d we'll "Really."

"You're the best," she says. "I know it's hard for you—"

ed clips "It's fine, Ava. I can make the time, and I'd love to meet Shelley." orrow's "You're awesome," she murmurs, and then almost as if embarrassed about saying that, she adds, "I raided your pantry and frice."

reak. found the makings of a peanut butter and jelly sandwich—you're alm of peanut butter, by the way—and in my raiding, I saw enough inging thisthat I can whip us up some pasta for dinner tonight."

"You don't have to do that." Before I left this morning, we had a doing.make-out session in the kitchen, and when we came up for air, I asked at mydinner as well as to stay the night again. "I was going to take y find thesomewhere fancy."

ugh the "Who needs fancy when I'm going to make my spaghetti and tomato sauce?" she says with a laugh.

Who needs fancy indeed? Ava has repetitively shunned the spotli perks of dating a wealthy, famous man. It's another thing that has my feetapart from the women I've dated in the past.

"How about we compromise and stay in, watch a movie, and order le's justto be delivered?" I suggest.

e never "Deal," she says. "Do you mind if I use your washing machine? I d she'splanned on staying tonight, and I'd like clean panties for tomorrow."

A thought strikes, even though I know it's contrary to the carefu ting theboundaries we've established.

open to "Why don't you run home and grab enough to stay until our away Thursday?" I didn't ask Ava to go on that trip, so I wouldn't mind have and and and my bed at least for the next three nights.

r weeks She doesn't respond right away, and I can practically hear the gear r, and Ihead clicking as she runs through all the reasons why she should a ted 'myThis is my fault, of course, since I made things a little stilted with the and honest discussion about how my wife hated the demands of my idar. and how it ultimately killed our relationship.

I scrub my hand through my hair and wish to fuck I hadn't eve game is there with her.

Ava's reply is tentative. "I guess I could do that. If you're sure—" recious "I wouldn't have asked if I wasn't sure," I say, although I'm a bit i —at myself—that I have to reassure her.

"Okay then, I'll do that."

I lean forward and glance at my iPad with my list of today's meet can be home around seven tonight. I'll have food delivered around she'sthat works."

lge and "That works fine, and as soon as I get my first paycheck, I'm g nost outbuy the ingredients to make you my famous chicken and spinach redientsshells."

I wince that she can't even afford to go to the grocery store to buy bit of acook for me, and I practically have to bite my tongue off to kee d her tooffering her money or my credit card. She wouldn't accept, and it you outprobably piss her off.

So I merely say, "That sounds really good. I can't wait."

I jarred "It is good. You'll love it."

"I have to get going," I say, pulling my legs off the desk and lower ght andvoice. "If you greet me at the door naked, it will be very much worth set hercold Italian that will be left in the hallway since we'll be too busy to the knock."

'Italian Ava laughs, low and sexy, and it punches straight through to m "We'll have to see about that. See you tonight."

hadn't She hangs up, and it's a hardship not to make some excuse to gright now and fuck her. I don't have the time. I'd have to cancel mully laidbut I could talk myself into it.

It's a struggle, but instead I grab my laptop and head out of my trip onintent on hitting up our video coach a little earlier than planned, if for ring hermore than to get my mind off Ava.

s in her decline.
1e open
7 career

n gone

rritated

ings. "I eight, if oing to buy the ingredients to make you my famous chicken and spinach stuffed shells."

I wince that she can't even afford to go to the grocery store to buy food to cook for me, and I practically have to bite my tongue off to keep from offering her money or my credit card. She wouldn't accept, and it would probably piss her off.

So I merely say, "That sounds really good. I can't wait."

"It is good. You'll love it."

"I have to get going," I say, pulling my legs off the desk and lowering my voice. "If you greet me at the door naked, it will be very much worth eating cold Italian that will be left in the hallway since we'll be too busy to answer the knock."

Ava laughs, low and sexy, and it punches straight through to my dick. "We'll have to see about that. See you tonight."

She hangs up, and it's a hardship not to make some excuse to go home right now and fuck her. I don't have the time. I'd have to cancel meetings, but I could talk myself into it.

It's a struggle, but instead I grab my laptop and head out of my office, intent on hitting up our video coach a little earlier than planned, if for nothing more than to get my mind off Ava.

CHAPTER 23 Ava

"This toast is to Cannon," Jenna says, holding up her champagn "For being the greatest coach for the Titans and for getting us a lime don't have to drive tonight."

"Cheers," I agree, tapping my glass to hers as Sophie clinks hers to I take a sip and settle back into the booth. Jenna and Sophie sit from me, their cheeks flushed and eyes sparkling from the champag sure I look much the same way, but I'm also riding high on more t bubbly.

Cannon is on a road trip with a game yesterday in Florida and tomorrow in Atlanta before he comes home. I chose to stay here so really dive into my new job, and also because I can't have him buying for me to fly around the country with him. It speaks to the indepenned after Derek fucked up my head.

And while I stick by my decision not to go, it doesn't mean I dor him. Other than the away games, there hasn't been a day when we seen each other since we started dating. Granted, it's often those moments, as he likes to call them, usually in the form of a late-night mind-blowing sex, and cuddling in his bed. And honestly, I can live we He's busy and is setting aside time for me. With me starting this new j busy as well, and I'm also fulfilled by the work I'm doing. If this is he life is going to go for the foreseeable future, I'm all in. And if sor more grows with Cannon, even better.

But for tonight, I am going to revel in the fact that I have an a boyfriend.

Yes, my boyfriend. Significant other. Partner.

They all sound like I belong, and they belong to me.

Tonight is a girls' night, compliments of Sophie and Jenna. The ot women who Sophie hangs out with regularly are Stone's girlfriend, I and Coen Highsmith's girlfriend, Tillie. Unfortunately, Harlow wendaway games, and Tillie is back home in Coudersport where she although I'll be meeting them both at Cannon's surprise birthday I three days. I learned that Tillie's an artist with a business there, and a Coen are making a long-distance relationship work. This gives m confidence that Cannon and I can have something meaningful, ever aren't spending all our time together.

e flute. Our night started off with a huge surprise—Cannon hired a limou so we cart me, Sophie, and Jenna around Pittsburgh. We went out to a nice which stressed me out a little as I am down to counting pennies in maccount. But my first paycheck is in three days, so I decided to use my across card.

ne. I'm Except when we finished dinner, we learned that Cannon had han the paid for it. At first, we were shocked because we didn't know how the even knew where we were. But we figured out quickly since Soplanother texted Baden and he must have told Cannon. Those guys are curred I could Atlanta, doing God knows what this evening before tomorrow's game. We then had the limousine take us to a new champagne bar the dence I opened, and we've been working on our first bottle.

A waiter approaches our table with a fresh offering in one hand ar 1't miss new flutes in the other. He places the flutes down and holds the char haven'tout for us to inspect. "A 1995 Krug Clos d'Ambonnay, compliment stolen Cannon West."

dinner, My mouth drops in astonishment that he knows we're here. I look ith that the table to Sophie and Jenna, and they both shake their heads, a ob, I'm statement that they didn't text their other halves that we were coming how my And then it hits me. Cannon hired the limousine, and the driver mething reporting where he's taking us.

Nothing creepy about that. In fact, it's charming.

mazing "That's an incredibly expensive bottle of champagne," Jenna says waiter pops the cork.

"How expensive?" I ask as our glasses are filled.

"We sell this bottle for thirty-four hundred dollars," the waiter say her twonearly choke while Sophie gasps.

Harlow, "That man is suave," Jenna says in awe.

When the waiter leaves after depositing the rest of the bottle in t to thebucket beside our table, we all raise the newly filled glasses and toast lives, again. "To the most thoughtful and romantic boyfriend of the group," party insays with a giggle. "Baden is going to have to work on his A game afte she and I can't laugh, though. I'm still stunned that he'd spend that muce morebottle of champagne for us. I take a delicate sip, wanting to savon if wenuance so I can tell Cannon all about it.

When I set my flute down, I'm struck with a need. I never call ( Isine toduring work hours, but I've got enough champagne in me to feel dinner, daring. Besides, it's almost eleven p.m., and surely any work he m Iy bankdoing won't suffer if I call him.

y credit I choose to FaceTime him instead of a regular call, and he answe the second ring. As the video connects and his face fills the entire sc alreadymy phone, I have that moment again—a bolt of yearning when I first s CannonHe looks delicious, especially with the five o'clock shadow grac hie hadstrong jaw. I can tell he's sitting up in his hotel room against the bently incollar of his white T-shirt barely showing at the bottom of the screen.

He grins at me. "Are you drunk?"

hat just "I'm incredibly tipsy, which is why I'm calling you. I didn't v interrupt your work."

nd three Cannon's smile softens. "You can never interrupt me, Ava. And mpagneyour face has made my night."

ents of "We just wanted to thank you for paying for dinner, plying to expensive champagne, and taking care of our transportation tonight."

a silentCannon can see her. She and Sophie lean in together, lifting their nere. "Thank you, Cannon. Please make sure you tell our guys that they nust bestep it up."

I turn the phone back around to find Cannon laughing.

"I miss you," I say and resist the urge to clap my hand over my s as the Cannon and I have never shared words like that, and I'm always a might put him off. The other night when I was teasing that I might him, his silence told me all I needed to know.

s, and I I need to be careful with the things I say.

Cannon smiles, and to my surprise says, "I miss you too."

A surge of joy rushes through me, and I glance across the table the iceSophie and Jenna watching me with sappy expressions. My gaze ret CannonCannon. "I'm going to let you go. I hope you have a good night's sle Sophieyou better kick ass tomorrow."

er this." "I will. Y'all be careful and enjoy yourselves."

ch on a "Bye." I tap my screen to disconnect the call.

r every "Okay," Jenna says as she leans forward, resting her forearms on the and clasping her hands. "You've got to give me more about this related Cannonwith Cannon. I mean, everybody on the team knows he's an area littleupstanding guy. But he's also never been known to date."

ight be "He's dated before," I say.

"Not publicly," Sophie says. "He never takes women to events."

ers after "How do you know?" I know this because Cannon and I have reen of about it.

ee him. Sophie waves her hand at me in dismissal. "I googled him, of couing hisall did once we found out he was going to be our coach."

ed, the "It looks like it's getting serious between you two," Jenna muses.

I lift a shoulder in a half-hearted shrug. "I don't know what we a complicated."

want to "Because he's a widower?"

"Not really," I say. And while I would never give away specific de seeingwhat Cannon shared with me regarding his relationship with Melissa confident in explaining the way he's dealt with the grief. "It was nin us withago, and while Cannon went through a very dark time following M death, he's processed it well. He grieves and has his sad moments, but bund somoved on with his life."

glasses. "As well he should," Sophie says. "People wonder if he's really need tosince he hasn't dated anyone seriously. But here he is, sharing big dispaffection in public and showering you with road trips and fancy champ

"Our moments together are great. But Cannon has an inc mouth.demanding career, and I'm just trying to figure out where I fit in."

fraid it "Okay," Jenna says, leaning in closer. Sophie mimics her actions fall forcan hear what she has to say. "How is the sex? Because I'm sorry, looks like he would be really, really good at it."

I snort and then laugh. I sip the champagne and once I swallow, I "Let's just say I thought I knew what sex was before meeting Cann to seeclearly I didn't."

turns to Jenna nods with sage wisdom in her expression. "He puts yo ep, anddoesn't he? And no one has ever done that in bed with you before."

"How do you know that?"

"Because I have the same thing, and I recognize that in you. Sophic too, I bet."

he table "I am not talking about my sex life with Baden," Sophie says ster ionshipthen immediately giggles. "Oh, who am I kidding. I'm totally going nazing, about it."

For the next twenty minutes, fueled by champagne, we shahighlights from our relationships. We compare notes, though not exact tasteful way.

talked Okay, maybe in a very lewd way. I'm not sure we would be give level of detail if it weren't for the bubbly.

rse. We My phone rings and I snatch it up, assuming it's Cannon. I'm when I see Derek is calling me. I hadn't removed him from my contact I flip the phone toward Sophie and Jenna. "It's my ex-boyfriend."

are. It's "The one Brienne so thoroughly humiliated at the game?" Soph and when I nod, she says, "Answer it. See what he wants."

It was only five days ago that we were with Brienne in the owner stails of at the arena. After she made it expressly clear to Derek that I had n a, I feelmoved on but was doing quite well for myself, I never thought I'd he we yearshim again.

elissa's And I have just enough curiosity to answer. "Hello?"

t he has "Hey... Ava, it's Derek."

No shit. "Why are you calling?"

past it There is silence on the other end for a moment, but then he say plays ofbeen thinking a lot since I saw you at the game. I think it was a bit of a pagne." up call for me."

"Wake-up call?" I ask, frowning in confusion.

"That I made a mistake. That cheating on you was probably the so shemistake I ever made. And that I miss you."

he just My jaw drops, but I collect myself. "You made a mistake in chea me? How about having me fired, then kicking me out of our home? I admit,money, nowhere to go."

on, but "I know. But I was just so angry that you had confronted me—"

"You were angry? You jackass, I had every right to confront you first, cheating on me. And fine, that was the end of our relationship, so be i worked in a different area of the company, and you never had to again. You could've given me a few days to get a place to live before has it, kicked me out. You could've done so many other things to make it earne to transition, but you didn't. You are the biggest asshole I've ever nly andand I cannot understand, for the life of me, why you are even calling." to talk "To apologize," he says. "I was hoping maybe we could meet for so I could do this in person."

are the It's with astonishment that I push the mute button and look acratly in atable at my friends. "He's calling to apologize and wants to meet for so he can do it in person."

ing this Jenna rolls her eyes dramatically and snatches my phone from my watch as she unmutes it and then puts it to her ear, "Listen here, douch stunnedthe only reason you're calling Ava is because you know she's hot shes. now. Great friends with Brienne Norcross and dating Cannon Westerher want to get in on that action or you want to break them up so y ie asks, feel like a real man. But I'm here to tell you, it's not going to work. A Cannon are deeply in love, so there's no way she'd ever look twice ot only And then she disconnects the phone.

's suiteagain. Take your apologies and shove them straight up your ass."

ar from My eyes bug out of my head, and my mouth hangs open. "I can't you just did that."

"That was...," Sophie says, but then pauses, at a loss for words.

"The most amazing, spectacular thing I have ever witnessed in my gush, and then laugh hysterically.

s, "I've Jenna and Sophie join in, and we spend the rest of the evening fi wake-off our champagne, making fun of Derek, and lifting more toasts to for making it such a great night.

e worst

iting on had no

u about

it. But I worked in a different area of the company, and you never had to see me again. You could've given me a few days to get a place to live before you kicked me out. You could've done so many other things to make it easier for me to transition, but you didn't. You are the biggest asshole I've ever known, and I cannot understand, for the life of me, why you are even calling."

"To apologize," he says. "I was hoping maybe we could meet for a drink so I could do this in person."

It's with astonishment that I push the mute button and look across the table at my friends. "He's calling to apologize and wants to meet for a drink so he can do it in person."

Jenna rolls her eyes dramatically and snatches my phone from my hand. I watch as she unmutes it and then puts it to her ear, "Listen here, douchebag... the only reason you're calling Ava is because you know she's hot shit right now. Great friends with Brienne Norcross and dating Cannon West. You either want to get in on that action or you want to break them up so you can feel like a real man. But I'm here to tell you, it's not going to work. Ava and Cannon are deeply in love, so there's no way she'd ever look twice at you again. Take your apologies and shove them straight up your ass."

And then she disconnects the phone.

My eyes bug out of my head, and my mouth hangs open. "I can't believe you just did that."

"That was...," Sophie says, but then pauses, at a loss for words.

"The most amazing, spectacular thing I have ever witnessed in my life," I gush, and then laugh hysterically.

Jenna and Sophie join in, and we spend the rest of the evening finishing off our champagne, making fun of Derek, and lifting more toasts to Cannon for making it such a great night.

CHAPTER 24 Cannon

After exiting and locking up my car, I pocket my keys and pull phone. As I walk up the driveway to Brienne's house for the coaches' she's hosting, I make a quick call to Ava.

I almost hang up after four rings, but then she answers. "Hey... up?"

"Just getting ready to go into Brienne's for this dinner. Thought I quick check-in. What are you doing?"

It definitely sucks not being able to see her tonight. Because I don how long this dinner will run, she's staying at her apartment.

"Oh, I'm just settled on my couch to get some work done."

"Well, I wish I were with you instead of here," I say.

And that's the absolute truth. There are some things in my job enjoy, and while attending a business dinner isn't overly bad, the f keeping me from Ava leaves a bitter taste in my mouth.

What's worse is that I'm leaving tomorrow for an away game to  $\Gamma$  won't see Ava until the day after that.

"I'll call you tonight when I'm on my way home, if it's not too late "It won't be too late," she assures me. "I'll talk to you later."

I walk up the porch steps and ring the doorbell. "Talk to you later.

I no sooner get my phone in my pocket than the door swings of what seems like hundreds of voices scream, "Surprise!"

I'm having a hard time processing what I'm seeing, but right bef stands Brienne and, to my utter shock, Ava, grinning at me.

I start to make out other faces—all my hockey players, the other cand their significant others, the equipment staff, the trainers, and eve of the front office staff.

My eyes go back to Ava, and as I step across the threshold, she into me. With her hands to my shoulders, she goes up on her tiptoes my cheek. "Happy early birthday, Cannon. Hope you're not too shocked I come out of my stupor and circle an arm around her waist to I into a hug. I whisper into her ear, "Did you do all this?"

She pulls back to look me in the eye. "It was mostly Brienne, prother place and funding, but she let me plan it all. We had to have it though, since you'll be in DC tomorrow for your birthday."

Releasing Ava, I turn to Brienne, who is standing there with Dra out myarm drapes over her shoulders, and I step into her to kiss her cheek.

dinneryou. You sure surprised the shit out of me."

She laughs and then calls out, "Okay, people... disperse. Get bacl what's food and drinks and we'll congregate soon for birthday cake."

Brienne and Drake walk off, but other people move in, wishin 'd do ahappy birthday.

I take Ava's hand and we mingle as we talk to all the guests. Ava l 't know a good chunk of them already, but I make introductions where necessare Someone brings me and Ava beers, and we eventually circle over to with a large buffet. Another table holds a massive sheet cake with hockey puck on top and "Happy Birthday, Coach!" written in purpl I don't with the Titans' logo below it.

Pact it's Ava and I plate up food and walk through the Norcross mansion to find an empty corner where we can talk.

"I'm very good at keeping secrets," she quips with a grin. "Just you ever need to share any with me in the future."

"So noted," I reply. "And here I was bemoaning that I wasn't going Bye." you tonight."

Den and "Oh, I have a good birthday present for you later," she promis there's enough innuendo in her tone that if I could get away with it, I lore meher out of here right now and take her back to my condo.

But it's my party, and that would be rude. We finish our food and coaches to mingling. Somehow, Ava gets pulled off into a group of women con n some of Sophie, Harlow, Jenna, and Tillie. I use the opportunity to check o who's standing with a group of the other players. I clap a hand moves shoulder, and he turns to me. Offering his hand for a shake, he says, to kiss birthday, Coach. What are you, like, twenty-two or something?"

I laugh because that's the running joke since I'm the youngest c ed." the league. "You settling in okay?"

oull her "Doing fantastic. Really happy about the transition here and feelir with my line mates."

oviding I nod and clap him on the shoulder again. "You keep up the good v tonight, I move around some more, always keeping my eye on Ava. I'd steal her away and bring her back to my side, but I can't deny how ke. Hisenjoy the way she is assimilating so well with the people on this team. "Thankthe players' girlfriends and a few of the coaches, but it makes me has ee her so engaged. Although I fucking hate making comparisons, I k to thewas never one to get involved in team social functions. It's not that she support me as a player, because she did, and she attended the events the g me aexpected. But she never developed friendships with anyone. In his maybe that was why she was so lonely when I was on road trips. She has methave anybody as her support system.

ressary. I exit the library and turn the corner to head back into the sittin a roomwhere a bar has been set up. I run smack-dab into an all-out fight be a largeHendrix and his girlfriend, Tracy. I met her earlier in the evening and le icingimpressed. She clung tight to Hendrix's arm and looked bored when talking to other people. We were standing in a group, and she kept truntil weget his attention back on her, and I could tell it embarrassed him.

I'm starting to see why the other players don't think she's good f e." but then I hear her say, "We've spent enough time here already. We in casego."

"This is my team, Tracy. It's my coach's birthday, and I want 1 g to seeout."

"You already spend enough time with these people, and you don' es, andhardly any time with me."

'd drag I immediately turn around and walk away, their conversation duplicative of the many I had with Melissa over the years. I'd love I returnHendrix aside and tell him to dump her because she's trying to composistinghis attention over the team, and it won't end well. But I don't, becan Bain,hasn't asked for my advice, and I'm not going to nose into his business on his A warm hand slips into mine, and I look down to see Ava. She sn "Happyat me. "Happy birthday."

I bend down to kiss her. "You've already wished me happy birthda oach in "I'll do it again a few more times," she says. "So get used to it."

"Are you having fun?"

ng good Ava's eyes shine with happiness. "You work with the absolu people. All the players are so great, and the women feel like sisters to 1 vork." I squeeze her hand. "I'm glad. I like seeing you in my world."

like to She tips her head back as if to ready herself for a kiss, and I dip c much Igive it to her, but then Brienne calls out, "Everybody gather in the Mostlyroom for the birthday cake."

appy to There are two entrances through to the dining room, and eve Melissacrowds as close as possible, just barely squeezing in. Brienne beck e didn'tand Ava over to her where Drake finishes lighting the last of the cat were Let's sing a fast happy birthday to Cannon before all thirty-seven catsight, candles catch the cake on fire."

e didn't There's laughter, but then everyone bursts into song. Ava's voic clear as she sings, her arm wrapped around my back and her other groompressed to my stomach.

etween When the song ends, Ava says, "Make a wish."

was not I lean forward, and the first thing that comes to mind is that I wish he wascould remain this perfect with Ava as we move forward. I suck in the ying tolungful I can manage and blow out all those fuckers in one attempt.

Everybody cheers, and I pull Ava to me where I give her a ha or him, When I let her up, I see our social media person standing there, need topictures of us, and there's no doubt in my mind this will show up team's Instagram. I'd like to say I'm bothered by it, but I'm not.

to hang I'm too fulfilled to be bothered by anything tonight.

t spend

 $almost\ Two\ monstrous\ organs in the books—one for each of us—and my to pull celebration is coming to an end for the evening.$

pete for "I know your birthday isn't officially until tomorrow, but..." At ause he away from me and bends over my bed, reaching underneath it. I'm s that she stowed something under there, and when she rolls back niles upholding a small blue gift bag with white tissue paper. "I got n paycheck, and the first thing I bought was your birthday present."

I sit up against the headboard and pull her into me as I accept t "That orgasm you just gave me was present enough."

"That doesn't count because you gave me an orgasm too," slate bestprimly, then nudges me in the ribs. "Open it."

me." Laughing, I reach into the bag, past the tissue paper, and pul leather-covered journal. It's small enough to fit in my palm and has loser topen attached to the spine inside a leather sleeve.

dining "I thought it would be nice for you to hold this during the games t your notes in, rather than that little spiral notebook you use."

erybody I'm beyond touched by the thoughtfulness of her gift. "It's perfections meabsolutely use it."

candles. "And then I figured, you should save them. You could always kee of theseof your journals of game notes. It'll be interesting one day to loc through them."

rings Warmth flushes through me that she would look out for my future r handway, that she recognizes these are memories in the making that I'm tal granted, but they might be important to me down the road.

I put the journal and bag on my bedside table before turning to last thingslie facing each other, close enough I can put my arm around her was biggestreally meant a lot to me that you would help plan my birthday party."

"It was my pleasure."

rd kiss. "You're starting to mean a lot to me," I say gruffly, helpless to staking confession.

on the Ava jerks slightly in my hold, and I can tell I've shocked her. "Ditamurmurs.

And that's all I need to hear back.

"I wanted to talk to you about the next few weeks," I say, and A her head in curiosity. "After tomorrow's away game, I'll be in Pit until Thanksgiving, except for the away game the day before.

oirthday wondering if you would like to stay here the entire time, even duri away game, and we could celebrate Thanksgiving together. That is, va rolls you want to go home for Thanksgiving. But you hadn't said anything.' hocked "I haven't decided what to do. I assumed you would go vis she's family."

I shake my head. I'd like to go visit them and I could, but I would fly there and literally fly back the next day. That's a lot of travel f he bag about ten hours of family time.

"So you really want me to stay here until then?"

ne says "It's definitely easier when you're here. I live close to the arena, a live outside of town." I tell myself I'm not exactly asking her to move 1 out aI would like her to stay here more. "Maybe you could just keep some an inkclothes here. Duplicates of toiletries. That way you don't have to worr carting stuff back and forth."

o make There. Definitely not an invitation to move in, but an open door more often.

t. I will You know, for convenience.

"Okay," Ava says, and I exhale my relief. "I'll bring some stuff p a boxhere, and I'll plan on staying at least through Thanksgiving. Since k backgoing to be gone the day before Thanksgiving, I'll handle prepping food."

e in that "Perfect," I say, leaning in to kiss her. When I pull back, she gives king foryawn. "Now, let's get some sleep."

I release her, reaching back to the table for my phone so I can ier. Wealarm. There's a notification that I've been tagged on Instagram aist. "ItTitans.

I tap the screen and the post comes up. It's not a picture of the kiss Ava after I blew out my candles but when we'd just pulled apart ar top thissmiling at each other. The look is intimate, both our faces full of joy.

I turn the phone to Ava. "We're official."

to," she She leans in and makes a soft sound in her throat. "Oh, that's such picture of us." Her eyes then slide to me. "Is this weird?"

"A little," I admit as I look at the photo again. "But mostly, it's tva tipsamazing."

tsburgh "Yeah," she agrees, snuggling into me. "It's pretty amazing."

I was ng that unless

it your

have to or only

"It's definitely easier when you're here. I live close to the arena, and you live outside of town." I tell myself I'm not exactly asking her to move in, but I would like her to stay here more. "Maybe you could just keep some of your clothes here. Duplicates of toiletries. That way you don't have to worry about carting stuff back and forth."

There. Definitely not an invitation to move in, but an open door to stay more often.

You know, for convenience.

"Okay," Ava says, and I exhale my relief. "I'll bring some stuff to keep here, and I'll plan on staying at least through Thanksgiving. Since you're going to be gone the day before Thanksgiving, I'll handle prepping all the food."

"Perfect," I say, leaning in to kiss her. When I pull back, she gives a little yawn. "Now, let's get some sleep."

I release her, reaching back to the table for my phone so I can set our alarm. There's a notification that I've been tagged on Instagram by the Titans.

I tap the screen and the post comes up. It's not a picture of the kiss I gave Ava after I blew out my candles but when we'd just pulled apart and were smiling at each other. The look is intimate, both our faces full of joy.

I turn the phone to Ava. "We're official."

She leans in and makes a soft sound in her throat. "Oh, that's such a good picture of us." Her eyes then slide to me. "Is this weird?"

"A little," I admit as I look at the photo again. "But mostly, it's pretty amazing."

"Yeah," she agrees, snuggling into me. "It's pretty amazing."

CHAPTER 25 Ava

I awaken easily when Cannon walks into the bedroom. I'm usually a sleeper, but I knew he would be coming back from the game in Wash and I was so excited, I just couldn't fall into a hard slumber.

I'd left the bedside light on for him so there'd be no stumbling are the dark. "Hey," I murmur, lifting up on my elbow.

"Didn't mean to wake you," he says with apology and immediatel stripping.

"I wanted you to." I watch parts of his body revealed with every ar clothing he removes. "Happy birthday."

He smiles at me as he shoves his pants and briefs down, kicking th "My birthday was yesterday."

"Technically," I reply, eyes darting to the bedside clock. It's a litt one a.m., and his birthday officially ended an hour ago. "But sin weren't here for the actual event, I've got a birthday kiss waiting for ye Cannon grins as he slides into bed and opens his arms. I move it and accept his mouth on mine for a luxuriously slow kiss.

"Happy birthday," I whisper, and then roll over so my back is to hi His strong arms pull me into his body.

I feel weirdly hyped with desire but also calm and replete with pea mere fact that Cannon can evoke such dichotomous feelings within r affirms how special he is.

"Mmm, you feel good," he murmurs, doing nothing more than me tight. I know he's not going to be content just to cuddle because I chis erection at my backside, but he seems in no hurry.

My arms come over his, and I wiggle my rear against him.

Cannon sucks air through his teeth, growling into my ear. "That's way to get yourself fucked fast."

God, I love his dirty talk so much, and it only makes me writhe him more, my ass pressing firmly against his cock.

He growls, a sure indication I'm driving him crazy. I love it when this a little hard and rough in his zeal to have me, but he merely rolls not my back and bends over to place his mouth against mine.

The kiss is immediately erotic. It's a slow mating of our lips v tongue lazily searching for mine. His hand comes to the side of m cupping it as he nibbles against my lips. I turn toward him, match soundmovement with my palm against his cheek.

lington, I don't know how long we kiss, but Cannon takes his time. His lijelong my jaw, down my neck, and to my collarbone before he mo ound inbody over mine and settles between my legs.

And then he continues kissing me, deep and claiming. I rotate my starts seeking friction between us, demanding he give me what I want. I k wants it too.

rticle of My hand slips down to his ass, and I dig my nails in. Cannon his bites my lower lip before licking it. "Do you know how much you diem off.crazy?"

"Says the man who said I was on my way to a fast fucking but the after content to just kiss," I mutter as his lips go back to my neck.

"I'll get you there, baby. You'll be screaming soon enough." ou." moves down, his stubbled cheeks scraping against my breast. His no him closes over a nipple and he sucks hard while his hand squeezes. "Bu want to play a little."

is front. "Cannon," I moan as he inches down my body, alternately kissi nipping at my skin with his teeth.

ce. The Pushing my legs apart, Cannon's eyes move up my body and long ne onlymine. "This has become my favorite part of any day."

"What's that?" I whisper.

holding "Making you feel good. Making you come."

can feel My heart contracts from the declaration, and my entire body feels tight like I might burst apart if he touches me again. His mouth lower still pinned on me. His breath wafts over my pussy causing my to a good tremble violently.

And then his mouth is on me, hot breath and forceful tongue aloragainst gentle flutters like butterfly wings. True to his word, he gets me the it's fast. My orgasm rips through me, and I come so hard, I see stars.

"Gotta let go, Ava." Cannon's voice penetrates my thoughts.

Cannon "Huh?" I mumble, lifting my head to see that my fingers are the ontothrough his hair and curled into tight fists. "Sorry," I gush, releasing his Cannon grins and lunges up my body, slamming his mouth back d vith hismine. I'm drowning in his kiss as he raises one leg to curl around ly face, before driving into me.

ing his Bending his head, he looks down between our bodies. "Look, A whispers. "Look at me lodged deep inside you."

ps slide "I see." My voice is hoarse, barely audible.

ves his "Feels so good, doesn't it?" he asks, almost as if he's talking to hin He gives me no chance to answer because he starts moving, and my hips, come up with a coherent thought as he slides in and out of my bo now hemovements are wild, his gaze coming back to meet mine, filled with he carnality. Cannon looks like he wants to devour me... not just my bo ses andmy soul.

rive me Sounds rumble around me—curses and grunts as Cannon fucks m and harder. I wrap my other leg around him and hang on for the ride.

t seems "Fuck, Ava... I'm going to come but I don't want to."

"Don't hold back," I pant as his thrusts rocket through me. My Cannonslide up his neck, along his jaw, and over his temple. His hips cont mouthpiston, but he focuses on me. "I want you to come hard, Cannon. I wat first Ishredded right along with me."

"Goddamn," he mutters just as he plants deep and wraps his arms ing andme. His weight crushes me onto the mattress as he comes. My hands r his back, and I feel the muscles along his spine rippling as he greak withpleasure. He grinds against me, face buried in my neck. "Fuck, the good."

A wave of affection for him sweeps through me that I wouldn thought possible following the eroticism still flowing between us. I coiledwrap him up in a warm hug, even as our bodies vibrate with pleasure. rs, eyes Cannon rolls to the side so he's not crushing me anymore and loos pody tohold. I pull my head back to find him grinning at me.

"I think I'm broken," he says, pressing a soft kiss to my mouth.

ng with Laughing, I stroke my hand down his arm. "Me too. But in a good re, and "Yeah, in a good way," he agrees, letting out a long exhale bef eyes turn serious. "In fact, there's no good reason on earth why we sh be doing this every day and twice on Sundays."

nreaded Giggling, I run my foot down his leg. "Unfortunately, we're not t m. every day."

own on "Which means you should come to more away games," he say his hipboyish smile charming me to my bones.

"I'll come to some more," I assure him, but I won't commit to how va," he I still feel a little funky about him paying for my travel.

"Come to next week's away game," he says.

"No," I admonish because we've already had this conversation.

nself. the day before Thanksgiving, and I have far too much to do to get r I can'tknock your socks off with an amazing meal."

dy. His "It better be damn good," he teases. "Then come to the next awa eat andafter that."

ody, but "Okay," I say and nearly forget to breathe over the look of happing his face. One tiny word split his face into the most beautiful smile ever e faster "Did Melissa go to away games with you?" I ask.

"Not really." His fingers play with a lock of my hair. "She wasn't invested in my career. I mean, she came to the home games, but she fingersreally into it. Not the way the other wives were."

inue to I consider that. It makes me wonder if she was being selfish or j ant youtrying to punish him for being gone. "I bet that hurt your feelings."

Cannon shrugs. "I'm not sure, to be honest. I was so focused on I aroundI'm not sure I really even noticed. And that's a good example of wl nove towrong with our marriage. She wasn't there, and I'm not sure I cared." oans in "You know I care about your games, right?" I ask softly. "When lat's socommit to every away game, a lot of that is me feeling weird about paying."

't have "I know," he assures me. "But I'll keep asking."

want to "And I'll come to as many as I can. I promise."

"Does it bother you when we talk about Melissa?" Cannon asks sens hisblink in surprise. "I know you asked about her, but—"

"No, not at all." I prop up on my elbow to look more directly i eyes. "She was an important part of your life—both the good and the way." and I just happen to be very interested in you. I want you to alwafore hiscomfortable talking about her to me, especially the good times, who ouldn'tsure you had plenty of. You can tell me anything about her. I'm assum had to be a pretty special woman if you loved her."

ogether A myriad of emotions flicker in Cannon's eyes, but it's his soft k murmur of "thank you" that has me believing the most important ys, that gratitude that he doesn't have to keep that part of his life separate.

```
7 many.
"That's eady to y game ness on : overly wasn't perhaps olaying, nat was I can't out you s, and I
into his e bad—iys feel ich I'm ing she
```

had to be a pretty special woman if you loved her."

A myriad of emotions flicker in Cannon's eyes, but it's his soft kiss and murmur of "thank you" that has me believing the most important one is gratitude that he doesn't have to keep that part of his life separate.

CHAPTER 26 Cannon

 $I_{\text{T'S A HOME}}$  game day, and I finally feel like I've settled into a good I While I had coaching experience abroad and in the minor leagues, I with the Titans is vastly different. First, we're on a bigger stage—I eyes on us. Because I'm the figurehead of this team, it's important I face is seen. I'm the first one here and the last to leave, and it's not los that I'm a role model to all these men.

We finished our morning skate, and I debriefed with my assistant of after. Today's game is monumental because it's against my formowhen I was a player—the Toronto Blazers. Gage also played with although he hadn't been with the team long before Melissa got sic didn't get to know him all that well. We both share in the nostalgia, thou

I have about an hour to eat lunch, and I plan on spending son cleaning out my emails. Then it's off to review the last bits of video v playing at a short team meeting before the guys suit up.

Moving to my desk from the conference table where I'd been sittil my assistant coaches, I pick up my phone and see a missed call fr mom.

I decide to call her back as I walk over to the team meeting room there will be a massive spread of food set out for the players.

It's a Thursday, so Mom will be at work, but since she's the boss, worried about interrupting her. She answers quickly. "How's my swee "Hardly a boy." I laugh as I exit my office and head down the hall. you called."

"Just wanted to hear your voice. And wish you good luck with game."

"I appreciate it. How's everyone there?" I listen to my mom has updates on everyone in the family, including the grandkids. I reaplayers' room but don't enter since I'm still on the phone, instead past it for privacy and leaning up against the wall.

"Are you sure you can't come home for Thanksgiving?" my mom

I texted her yesterday letting her know I was going to stay in Pittsl didn't give a reason why, although the reason is Ava and we've mad to spend it together. I probably need to tell my mom about her, since it's considered pretty serious. I know my mom will think so, given t going to spend a holiday with her and not my family.

routine. "Or maybe we can all fly there to Pittsburgh," my mother offers.

my role "No," I exclaim, and then grimace because that came off harsh.

national my voice and say, "I'm actually spending Thanksgiving with someone that my My mom gasps in surprise and then laughs with delight. "Oh, ton meeverything, Cannon. What's her name? How did you meet her? A going to cook together or will you go out? Tell me everything."

Chuckling, I move farther down the hall, away from players going teamout of the room. Scrubbing a hand through my hair, I take a deep bre them, tell my mom all about Ava Cavanaugh.

When I'm done, my mother makes a sound of joy. "You know, I'vough. waiting a long time for you to call me and tell me you met someone." ne time "I've met girls before," I say.

"But none you ever told me about," she chastises, and I can patented mom look in my mind. "And it makes me happy that yong with someone special enough to tell me about."

om my There's no doubt, Ava has definitely moved squarely into the cate special. "You'd really like her, Mom. When y'all are able to make a tr where I'll definitely introduce you."

"Can I give you some mom advice?"

I'm not "Always."

"I saw make sure you don't make them again." My heart melts for those because my mother means them only to soothe my conscience. When today's got sick, I felt incredibly guilty about not making my marriage wo mom knew that, and she knew all the ways I felt I'd failed as a husband out the flip side, she knew all the ways Melissa had failed too. It was and the person's fault over the other.

moving My mom is specifically talking about communication, making su always clear and truthful about my needs. It goes without saying, but to be sure Ava does the same. It also might mean something else. I plasks. could've put forth greater effort into giving Melissa more of my atteourgh. Icould've given up extra practices and free skates with the guys, hang le planswith the other players during our free time to develop camaraderie, v I guessout with my buddies constantly. There were bits and pieces of time I c hat I'mgiven to her, but would it have been enough?

Probably not, but then again, my mom isn't talking about me sav marriage. She's reminding me to learn from my mistakes.

I lower "Thanks, Mom. You know I trust your wisdom."

"You don't need it. You're a smart and intuitive man, and I'm surtell medo just fine." She pauses and then asks, "Have you talked to Connie later you "A few times." My mom knows about that awful call the day befanniversary of Melissa's death, as well as the stilted call we had the neg in and "It's the same old, same old."

ath and "You need to tell her, Cannon." She means the truth—that I'm in a different place than she is with regards to Melissa. "It's not fair for her ve beenon you like this."

"She doesn't have anyone else. Andrew's pretty much checked ou marriage."

see her My mom sighs. "You're such a good man."

u have "You raised me right, and you're the best mom. You always give advice." And that gives me an idea. "Mom... I've got to go."

gory of "Okay, baby. Good luck tonight, and we love you."

ip here, "I love you too."

Pocketing my phone, I head back to my office where I grab my ca On the way out, I see Gage in his office and stick my head in. "I'm the arena for about an hour... maybe an hour and a half. I might be lat sa, andvideo meeting, so don't wait for me."

words Gage blinks in surprise. "Sure thing. We got you covered."

Melissa "I know you do."

rk. My

ınd. On not one

Armed with a box of chocolates and a lush bouquet, I slip my key in t re I am and open the door to my condo. My eyes immediately land on Ava si I needmy kitchen table, working on her laptop. She lifts her head, eyes ro robablywhen she sees what's in my hand.

ntion. I I kick the door closed behind me and move to her.

ing out Tipping her head back, she asks, "What are you doing here?"

vorking I hand her the flowers and put the chocolates on the table next ould'velaptop. Bending down, I give her a soft kiss. "It's lunchtime, so I dec take a break and eat with you."

ing my Ava's mouth hangs open, and I put my knuckles under her chin t it. "What would you like to eat?"

"I think all we have is peanut butter and jelly. You remembered e you'llpeanut butter."

I laugh and coax her up from the chair, giving her a longer, deep fore the My body reacts to her scent and taste, but I step away. I'm here to havext day.with my girl and then I need to head back to work.

"Come on." I grab her hand and pull her toward the door. "Wo a vastlydown to the deli."

to pull "Okay," she says, sounding discombobulated. "You have time this?"

t of the I stop with my hand on the knob and look back at her. "I'm mak time."

Ava's eyes glow with affection. I expect her to tell me it's not nec the bestas she always does, and I'm prepared to clap my hand over her mouth.

Instead, she smiles and grabs her coat. "Well, let's hurry, then. you've got to get back."

I open the door, but she tugs against my hand. I raise an eyel ar keys.question.

leaving She steps into me, lifts her mouth, and I bend down to kiss her.

e to the "Thank you for the flowers and chocolate. No one has ever done me before."

"Well, it's a first for me too," I assure her, and because of that wonder and delight on her face, I know it won't be the last.

he lock ltting at ounding when she sees what's in my hand.

I kick the door closed behind me and move to her.

Tipping her head back, she asks, "What are you doing here?"

I hand her the flowers and put the chocolates on the table next to her laptop. Bending down, I give her a soft kiss. "It's lunchtime, so I decided to take a break and eat with you."

Ava's mouth hangs open, and I put my knuckles under her chin to close it. "What would you like to eat?"

"I think all we have is peanut butter and jelly. You remembered to get peanut butter."

I laugh and coax her up from the chair, giving her a longer, deeper kiss. My body reacts to her scent and taste, but I step away. I'm here to have lunch with my girl and then I need to head back to work.

"Come on." I grab her hand and pull her toward the door. "We'll run down to the deli."

"Okay," she says, sounding discombobulated. "You have time to do this?"

I stop with my hand on the knob and look back at her. "I'm making the time."

Ava's eyes glow with affection. I expect her to tell me it's not necessary, as she always does, and I'm prepared to clap my hand over her mouth.

Instead, she smiles and grabs her coat. "Well, let's hurry, then. I know you've got to get back."

I open the door, but she tugs against my hand. I raise an eyebrow in question.

She steps into me, lifts her mouth, and I bend down to kiss her.

"Thank you for the flowers and chocolate. No one has ever done that for me before."

"Well, it's a first for me too," I assure her, and because of that look of wonder and delight on her face, I know it won't be the last.

CHAPTER 27 Cannon

"I don't get it," I say, pointing at the TV. "There's enough room door."

"Ssh." Ava reaches out and pushes my hand down.

I glance over at her, the glow of the TV highlighting a slight mist her eyes. My other arm, around her shoulders, pulls her closer to my want to argue with her because I don't fucking understand why Jack get on that door with Rose.

We're watching Titanic, one of Ava's favorite movies. I saw it time ago but don't remember much about it. I certainly don't rememb is, a stupid decision by both of them not to figure a way to get him ou water and onto the door. But I hold my tongue until after Jack fre death and Rose lets him slip under the icy water.

"So tragic," Ava whispers as she blinks away tears.

I'm alarmed she's actually on the verge of crying, so I grab the and pause the movie.

She twists her head to look at me. "It's not about there being room. It's that Jack didn't want to risk it capsizing and putting I danger. He knew she was safe, and that's all that mattered. His entire I since that ship hit the iceberg was to save her, and he did."

"Oh," I murmur, looking back at the screen paused on a close-up crying as she stares into the water. "That makes sense."

Ava laughs, and I look back at her. While her eyes are still a bishe's clearly amused by me.

"What's so funny?" I ask, my hand on her ribs for a tickle.

She yelps and squirms away, pushing against my chest and grabb hand. "It's just... you were analyzing all that through a coach's eyes. I the end, you were trying to figure out how to win the game."

"I'm just saying, they should have tried more than once to get him door."

Shaking her head, she chuckles and then snuggles back into m have to work on your romantic nature."

"Hey," I say, offended, reaching for the remote to restart the majust brought you flowers and chocolate yesterday. I'm watching a chiewith you now."

"I know," she drawls and pats my stomach. "And I'll make you on theabout those choices later on."

The doorbell rings, and I slide the remote onto the coffee table. "C is here."

iness in "That was fast," she says as we both push up off the couch. She is side. Ithe lamp.

"You get the door, I'll get the plates. What do you want to drink?" "Water's fine," she says as we head in opposite directions.

a long I consider grabbing paper plates or just eating directly from the er what with chopsticks but decide to make it nice. I grab two plates and rumr of the drawer for forks, just in case.

ezes to When I turn to set the stuff on the island, Ava stands there distinctly uneasy.

"Cannon," she says gently. "You have a visitor."

remote Her tone causes my hair to stand on end. I lean to the left, looki her shoulder, and see Connie standing in my foyer.

enough I immediately round the counter, handing off the plates and silver Rose in Ava. "Connie... what are you doing here?" I ask with worry as I take mission She's wearing a winter coat, purse over her shoulder, and hands before her, but it's her expression that tells me everything. She's upsoff Rosegiven that she lives in Michigan but is standing here in my for Pittsburgh, I'm guessing it's serious. "Is everything okay?"

t shiny, Her eyes flick to the kitchen—presumably to Ava—and then back "I certainly didn't mean to interrupt you and your girlfriend."

I don't like her tone. It's accusatory, bitter, and I'm not going to be sing myby it. It appears she's itching for a fight, but I'm not going to give it to Jp until I sweep my hand toward Ava. "This is Ava Cavanaugh. Ava, Melissa's mother, Connie Waite."

on the Poor Ava looks like a deer in the headlights, but she man welcoming smile. "Hello, Connie. It's very nice to meet you."

Connie doesn't respond vocally, but her lip curls in disgust as she e. "Weme. "How could you, Cannon?"

"How could I what?" I ask, although I know damn well what ovie. "Iinferring. I'm not going to let her be passive-aggressive toward me.

ck flick "Disrespect Melissa this way."

My neck tenses with stress. "Just how am I disrespecting Melissa?' i happy "I'm talking about her." Connie points at Ava, and I glance of shoulder to see Ava take a step back, her expression pained.

Chinese Now I'm getting pissed. My attention goes back to Connie, and to can say anything, she lays into me. "I saw pictures of you and this wo flips onthe team Instagram account. It's so hurtful that you would flaunt how you are with life now that Melissa's not in it."

Fury flushes through me. "Now just you wait a minute, Connie. not fair. Melissa died nine years ago, and I'm entitled to move on we boxeslife."

nage in "You left Melissa long before she died," Connie yells, her face cc with anger. "All you cared about was your career. I bet you didn't lookingknew about that, but Melissa told me everything. You always put y above her." Connie leans to look past me to Ava. "If you know what for you, you should run. He'll never devote himself to you. He doesn't ng pastin him and he's going to hurt you."

She slices a hateful gaze back at me. "You were an awful hi ware to Cannon. Only cared about your career." Her voice cracks and she stather in. "You left Melissa behind, left her alone. You failed the marriage at claspedduty as a husband. You were selfish. You only cared about yourself." set, and I can't take another fucking second of her accusations. "I gave over incareer to take care of Melissa," I roar. "I was devoted to her until the e Connie smiles at me and I can tell she wanted that reaction. So to me.baiting me. "You only took care of her because you felt guilty about her in all other ways. That's the only reason you stayed. The only reason ecowedcared for her."

her. "Maybe," I murmur, an admission that's painful but true. Connie this is and I hate to think what Ava thinks about me now. "But the fact of the is, I did give up everything for her. I cared for her for months, and she lages amy arms. In the end, I did what I thought was the right thing, and peacefully at night because of it. I'm sorry you can't move past her de turns toyou have got to stop making me feel bad about it."

"It's not fair," she cries, tears pooling in her eyes before overlut she'sdown her cheeks. "I don't want to be the only one who feels bad an You've moved on, Andrew moved on, all her friends moved on."

I step up to her, pull her into my arms. "But we've never for "Connie. I think about Melissa every day. I focus on the good memori ver mywe had lots of them before things went to shit."

"Well, good for you, Cannon." She jerks free from my embra pefore Iglares at me. "You're a winner. Achieving something that I can't." man on Sighing, I tuck my hands in my pockets. "Connie... what is this? V happyyou doing this?"

She steps back and sniffs, dragging her hands over her cheeks to w That'seyes. Her chin lifts defiantly. "I just came to say that I won't be vith myanymore."

"Connie," I say gently, with a hint of chastisement. "Don't say ntortedCome in, let's sit down and talk."

think I "No." She looks to Ava again, eyes hard with disdain. "You've g rourselflife to live now. I hope you're happy. I hope you've learned from 's goodmistakes."

have it She turns for the door, her hand on the knob. I make one more salvaging our relationship. "Don't leave it like this, Connie."

usband, Her laugh is mirthless and cold. "There's nothing here to leave. I mmers, at all."

In the standard of the standar nd." So I let her walk out, and I stare at the door when it closes.

he was I'm startled by Ava's hand on my back. "I'm so sorry."

failing "Nothing to be sorry for," I say, still staring at the door. "She spol son youher heart."

"But she was wrong, Cannon. She didn't acknowledge the truth egasps, you went through and what you did for her daughter."

e matter — I turn to face Ava and her hand falls away. "I failed the marriag died inmy career first. She wasn't wrong about that."

I sleep Ava shakes her head. "You were one half of a marriage that didn' ath, butThat wasn't failing. And in the end, you gave up your career when it n most. Don't let her make you feel bad.

flowing She steps into me and slides her hands up my chest and rests them symore.shoulders. "What can I do?"

"I'm fine." I stare down at her, my gut tightening over the worry rgotten, face. Is she feeling bad for me or is she perhaps wondering if she sho ies, andlike Connie told her to?

Connie said she hoped I'd learned from my mistakes with Melisace andhave I?

"All I've done is set boundaries with you, Ava." I reach up, to Why arehands from my shoulders, and squeeze them. "Connie's right in the myself and my career first."

ripe her "That's fine," she assures me. "Because I put myself first too. Rigicallingyou've done nothing that interferes with that. Right now, we work."

"But we might not always."

iy that. "Then we'll deal with it when we get there." Her hands tighten c for emphasis. "But don't let her get in your head and make you thi ot yourdon't have anything good to offer me."

m your I do have something good I offer Ava.

Mind-blistering orgasms.

stab at I might not be able to give of myself fully and all the time, but I hell can be super devoted in the time I do have.

Nothing I tug my hands free, putting them to her face as I bend to kiss her her by the shoulders and, without breaking the kiss, I walk her into the eelings. When her back is flat against it, I drop to my knees and tug at her sweat I can't "What are you doing?" Ava gasps.

"Giving you a piece of myself," I mutter, pulling one leg free pants. I ease her leg over my shoulder, put my other hand to her ass, a her to my mouth.

come to my head. She doesn't dare push me away but instead rota of whathips, holding me to her.

I eat her pussy like a starved man, listening to her sounds of pleasure. I putgiving her something important.

The doorbell rings, and Ava pushes at my head. "Stop. The food is t work. I merely lick her harder and she groans so loud, I know whoever is natteredother side of the door heard that.

Ava's voice is strangled, hoarse, but she manages to call out, "Just on mythe food. We'll get it—" I suck on her clit and she bucks hard, crying she starts to orgasm. Her head falls against the door and she sags.

on her I tip my head to look at her, pleased to see her so utterly wrecked. uld runup, lift her in my arms, and walk toward my bedroom.

"The food," she says weakly.

ssa, but "We'll get it later," I say, pressing a kiss to her temple. "Much late ake her at I put ht now,

on mine ink you

sure as

: I take le door. Itpants.

of her and pull

r hands ites her ıre. I'm here."

s on the

Ava's voice is strangled, hoarse, but she manages to call out, "Just leave the food. We'll get it—" I suck on her clit and she bucks hard, crying out as she starts to orgasm. Her head falls against the door and she sags.

I tip my head to look at her, pleased to see her so utterly wrecked. I surge up, lift her in my arms, and walk toward my bedroom.

"The food," she says weakly.

"We'll get it later," I say, pressing a kiss to her temple. "Much later."

CHAPTER 28 Ava

 $T_{\text{HE MAÎTRE D'}}$  leads me through the restaurant to the table where Royce awaits. She sees us approach and stands, moving from her  $\alpha$  greet me.

Holding out her hand, we shake as she says, "I'm so excited to m in person. Granted, Zoom makes our meetings so much more intimation just phone calls, but it's important for us to have real face-to-face time

"I agree," I say with a laugh. "I'm so glad you could make time trip."

Shelley looks past my shoulder, back to me with a slight frown. "V your boyfriend? I thought he was joining us?"

My stomach tightens, and I have to fight the disappointment that f I manage what I think is a bright smile. "Cannon unfortunately had t late."

"Oh, I'm so sorry to hear that," she says and motions to our chai well... there will be other times, but this gives us girl time. No b tonight. This is about hanging out and having fun."

I sit adjacent to her and unfold the napkin on my lap. "Girl time say with a forced smile. "Good thing for us Cannon's schedule can l hectic."

Which is true, except for the fact he told me he could come to this I'd given him plenty of notice, he checked his calendar, and he said he come. He made time in his schedule for me.

Then he dropped the bomb this morning as he was preparing to le the arena.

"Hey, listen," he said as he rinsed his cup in the sink. I was at the table, my makeshift workspace at his condo, creating some new content. I turned to face him, tense from the tone of his voice. His bato me when he said, "I'm not going to be able to make dinner tonight."

I didn't ask why because I already knew, and it had nothing to oworking late.

Although that was the official explanation he offered.

In reality, he started withdrawing somewhat after the visit with two days ago. It rattled him hard, and after he made me come aga door, he hauled me off to bed and fucked me. I tried to bring up the but he shut me down swiftly.

Shelley Since then, he's been a little off.

chair to A bit distant.

Quiet.

eet you We still talk, but it's about things we've already talked about bef ite than there aren't any laughs. I don't know how to fix the tumult that ... caused because he won't open up about it and my best hope is that h on this out of his own head and back to the way things were.

But I'm not sure I can forgive his bailing on dinner. These plans have there's solid for days, and I've come to understand his pregame day schedu Dinner tonight is completely feasible, and the only reason he's not he ills me. prove some misguided point to himself that his career is still first.

Nork It's almost as if Connie's attack merely reinforced in him that he'l way he wants to be, just to prove to her that it's a viable lifestyle.

rs. "Oh What he doesn't understand is that I don't mind sharing him volusiness career. I've told him that time and again, and I don't know how to any clearer. So, instead of us cherishing those small moments we have it is," Ipulling away, and it makes me sick to my stomach.

De a bit "Ava?" Shelley says, and I blink out of what had been a deep dimy feelings about Cannon.

dinner. "I am so sorry." I laugh nervously, because as much as Shelley ma wouldwork environment fun and casual, this is a business dinner. I need to head in the game. "What was the question?"

eave for "I asked what Cannon does for a living."

"Oh." I try to figure out how to best explain. It's not something t kitchen come up during our workdays yet, and I suppose it's because most website conversations are done via email. When you work remotely, there's lick was for water-cooler chitchat. "Cannon is the head coach of the Pittsburgh and they have a game tomorrow. So he got stuck doing some more proculdn't make it tonight."

do with Shelley's jaw drops. "You're dating the head coach of a profe hockey team? And you never thought about bringing this up?"

Smiling, I shake my head. "I know it's a big deal, but it's also new Conniecomplicated. Plus, it's not just some bomb you drop in a conversation. inst the "Complicated?" she asks, but the waiter appears and asks for ou subject, orders. Shelley grabs the wine menu, not sparing me a glance. "Do y red?"

"I do."

She peruses the menu, then orders a bottle that sends the veyebrows up in appreciation. I think that means it's expensive.

ore and "So, Cannon's complicated, huh?" she asks when we're alone agai Connie One might think it nosy on her part, but I don't mind. Shelley seen e'll geteasy to talk to and she took such a chance on me, I don't mind to chance on her.

ad been "He can be complicated at times," I say, a mild defense of the w le well.great times we've had so far. "But he's also wonderful."

I nod, my fingers playing with the handle of the butter knife. "We l be thework. Stolen moments are what we get, but we make it work."

Except it didn't work tonight, not because his schedule wouldn't a vith hisbut because he wanted to set that boundary firmly back in place.

make it The waiter arrives with our wine. He pours Shelley a glass. She ve, he'sdeems it excellent, and both our glasses are filled.

When he moves away from the table, I'm shocked when I blurt or ive intomad he's not here. He was supposed to come and dumped it on a morning that he couldn't."

skes the Shelley's expression says she understands. She lifts her glass, and get mysame. Tapping it against mine, she says, "Let's drink to feelings."

"Mine are ugly right now," I mutter, then take a sip. I hold the v my tongue and let it slide down my throat. "Oh, wow... that's good."

that has "It is," she says, setting her glass on the table. "Why are you mad I of ourhere? Is it not legitimate he had to work?"

no time I shrug. "Maybe. But deep down, I don't think so."

Titans, Shelley's eyes widen. "You're not saying he's cheating."

rep and "God, no," I exclaim, and then laugh. "No, Cannon is as solid come. Truly a good man, and while I'm mad at him, it's the only tir essionalever given me reason to be."

"Yet you are upset," she muses.

out frustrations to my boss—who has opened the door by asking—I r drinknot about to divulge personal stuff about Cannon. "Let's just say he' rou likeprior experience that sort of skews his idea of what he's able to gi relationship."

"And his accepting the invitation to come to dinner tonight was | waiter'shim giving more of himself than what he thought he could, but the whatever reason, he decided he couldn't do it."

n. "Pretty much," I say, but I know the reason. It was Connie's visit as to beguilt she laid on him.

aking a "Well, I can tell you this... there's nothing easy in love. It take communication, and concession. You let up on any one of those eeks ofyou're headed for disaster."

"Is that how you've stayed happily married for so long?" I ask le his." my feelings run very deep where Cannon's concerned. I learned from make itduring training that Shelley's been married for twenty-two years and lehildren, ages fifteen and eleven, so surely she has some sage wisdom.

illow it, Shelley snorts. "It's definitely how I've stayed married for so low all of it been happy? No. But have I worked through those issues with tastes, Yes."

"Sounds like I need to talk to Cannon about this. At the very leas it, "I'moff my chest."

ne this Lifting her glass, she smiles. "That's exactly what you need to do." I take another sip of wine and then say, "I don't want to waste yo I do thewith my personal problems."

Shelley laughs and taps her finger on the table. "First, my emp vine onpersonal problems are important to me because I want my people hap fulfilled. So this conversation was not a waste. But one of the things I ne's notto talk to you about was if you would consider moving to Charlotte."

The air seems sucked from my lungs, and I immediately want to that's not an option. But I know it has to be an option because I love already and I have the potential to grow. I have to consider it. 'as theyrequirement for me to move to Charlotte to keep my job?" ne he's Shelley shakes her head. "Not at all. I hired you with the prom could work remotely if you travel to Charlotte once a quarter. I'm just that I would love to have you with us as you'll learn more and learn it to huff "Oh." This is huge. An offer that would put me in a better positi but I'mI'd have to leave Pittsburgh. And on top of that, I might have reason to s had arather, no reason to stay. "That's really something for me to think about it."

perhaps en, for

It's almost eleven p.m. by the time I get to my apartment. Cannon exand the me to come to his place, because I said I'd stay there up to Thanksgiving, but even that offer sounds like he's making all the rust work, reinforcing boundaries.

things, Or maybe I'm just being too sensitive. To give him the benefit doubt, I'm tired, and it's been a long night. Regardless, I texted him loecause left the restaurant that I was going to stay the night at my place.

1 Darcy He hasn't responded.

has two It takes me no time at all to get my makeup off, moisturizer on good scrubbing of my teeth. I choose a pair of fuzzy flannel pajamas ng. Has is a far cry from sleeping naked with Cannon, and I crawl into bed.

th Bill? I'm just setting my alarm for seven a.m. when my phone rings. It's Cannon.

t, get it Part of me doesn't want to answer it because I'm itching for a figh expect he probably is, too, since I texted I wasn't coming to his commo real explanation.

But Shelley was right... we need to communicate. "Hey," I say when I connect the call.

"Why did you go to your place?" he asks, and I don't detect any ppy and but Cannon's such a level guy, he might be hiding it well.

wanted "I'm tired, so—"

"My place was closer than yours to the restaurant," he cuts in over tell her you were tired, it would have been easier to come here."

this job I take in a breath and let it out before telling him my honest feeling 'Is it a upset you didn't come to dinner, so I wanted some space."

"I knew this would happen," he says with a heavy sigh, but there ise you accusation in his tone, and that flares my anger to downright fury.

saying "No," I snap. "You don't get to play the victim here and act li faster." overstepped. I asked you to come to dinner with plenty of notice ar on, butparticular day that I know you can usually cut out of the arena fairly go. Or You checked your schedule, and you accepted. There was no reason it." to cancel other than you're having doubts."

"I had to work," he maintains. "I've been clear that my career com and you accepted that about me."

"Yes, you've told me that time and time again, Cannon. You boundaries, and I accepted them. But then you kept erasing them wi xpected actions. You had me come to away games, and keep my things at your through and you left work to bring me flowers and chocolate. So that had me the less and maybe I was special enough to get a little more of your attention. I right to assume you could offer more because you were offering more.

of the "You shouldn't have assumed—" because I keep waiting for him to apologize and tell me I'm right a he's just scared. But it doesn't come. "It shouldn't come as a surprise, and athat I fell for you because you were doing all the things a man would, which cared for a woman."

I pause, let that sink in. I wait for him to affirm that he does care but there's silence.

Tears prick at my eyes. "I had you promise me once that if w it, and I moving at different speeds... if I was going somewhere you didn't do with go, then I needed you to tell me. Do you remember that?"

"Yeah, I do."

I swing my legs over the edge of the bed, one arm across my stomathunch over. I'm barely able to choke out the words. "You promis" anger, wouldn't let me chase something that wasn't achievable with you. I not be keep that promise."

Holding my breath, I wait for him to ease my mind or crush me.

me. "If "I think we need to take a break," he says flatly. "I'm going he Thanksgiving. I need to figure things out. We can talk when I get back 's. "I'm Pain lances through me, punching deep into my chest, and I sque eyes shut as I let my breath out. It doesn't expel the hurt, but when I i 's clear feel steadier.

I open my eyes. "I don't need a break to figure things out, Ca ke I'veknow what I want, and I know, without a doubt, that I'm not willin id on abackward. I deserve better than that."

y early. I don't give Cannon a chance to respond. Despite how disappoint for youlet down I feel right now, I know he would only want me to have the b So I don't need him to say it.

es first, "Goodbye, Cannon."

set the th your condo, hinking had the control, and that se at all do if he for me, re were want to ach as I ed you eed you ome for ." eze my nhale, I nnon. I know what I want, and I know, without a doubt, that I'm not willing to go backward. I deserve better than that."

I don't give Cannon a chance to respond. Despite how disappointed and let down I feel right now, I know he would only want me to have the best.

So I don't need him to say it.

"Goodbye, Cannon."

CHAPTER 29 Cannon

 ${\bf P}_{\sf ACING}$  my hotel room, I glance periodically at my laptop. I showorking as we have a game tonight. The team will be heading to the Jersey Wildcats arena in three hours, and the players are all relaxing lunch.

This is the time I use to go over my notes, make any last-adjustments, and review video clips of our opponents one more tim sure I didn't miss anything—the time I sit in front of my laptop, he focus, and be a goddamn coach.

Except I can't fucking concentrate, and I'm seriously concerned might be broken. Hockey has always been the most important thing life. It cost me my marriage, after all.

But all I can think about is Ava and the fact that I pushed her aw didn't fucking deserve that. In truth, it made me no better than her ex-Derek because we both selfishly put ourselves first.

And yet, I couldn't fucking help myself. To say I'm all up in my an understatement. I have no clue when exactly I screwed up, but I l started festering after Connie's visit.

She drummed up all the old guilt I'd felt for failing Melissa a marriage, as well as renewed anger over losing my hockey career to ta of her. It was more than anger... Connie's failure to give me even ar of credit started something ugly brewing inside me.

A renewed affirmation that I've been wise to hold myself bac anything serious, and self-loathing for letting myself weaken where A concerned. She wasn't wrong when she said my actions didn't ma words. I had set the boundaries and then little by little—as she calle kept erasing them.

By the time Connie rolled into town, I was having some prett feelings for Ava. I had opened up my narrow world and let her in. N did I let her in, but I enjoyed the direction our relationship was goil was important to me, and I'd given her every reason to think w progressing.

I'm ashamed to admit, but I canceled that dinner simply because I to pull back, and I knew it would send a message. What I hadn't cou was her calling me on the carpet for it. I stupidly thought she'd go accepting what I was willing to give.

ould be And it was stupid because Ava would never fall for that shit. She he Newthrough too much, has made a new life for herself, and she's done it has afterpure strength of will.

I know what I want, and I know, without a doubt, that I'm not wi -minutego backward. I deserve better than that.

e to be Those words hit hard because she deserves so much better than one mygave her.

A knock interrupts the rotating thoughts bouncing around my brain that Ibreathe out a sigh of relief. I need a break from them.

tin my Crossing the room, I swing the door open to find Baden. "What's ask as I step back for him to enter.

ay. She "Just checking in," he says.

douche I close the door and follow him into the main living area of the suit my hand over the back of my neck and gesture toward the laptop. "Wa head is to go through some more video clips."

know it "Why?" he asks, turning to face me.

"You know... in case I missed something."

and my "You didn't miss anything, Cannon. You're more on top of this tealke careany coach I've ever worked with or under."

"Yeah, but as the head coach, I'm responsible for everything. It material feel better to do all the double- and triple-checking."

k from "Does it make you feel better about doing the best job possible as va was or because it keeps you insulated from dealing with other things?"

tch my The hair on my neck prickles from the challenge in his voice, yet ad it—Ismiles at me, hands tucked casually in his pockets.

"What are you talking about?" I ask hesitantly.

y deep "Oh, I think you know." Baden moves to the small sofa and sits, plot only an ankle on the opposite knee.

My jaw locks. "Why don't you enlighten me?"

ng. She "I can't figure out if you're being obtuse or just blissfully ignorate weredrawls.

"You do know I can fire you?" I grit out.

needed Baden shrugs. "Maybe, but I doubt you'd do it. You're an upstand nted onand won't penalize me for giving you some truths you're apparer back toseeing on your own."

"I feel like I'm in the Twilight Zone," I mutter, pulling out the des's beenand plopping into it. "You're obviously here to talk about Ava."

"I was a little shocked when you told me you two had broken up."
"Well," I say, holding out my arms, "shit happens."

lling to "Dude, don't do that."

"Do what?"

what I "Act like you don't care." His eyes bore into mine. "Because I kn do."

n, and I "Caring's not the problem."

I don't say anything else, and he tries to wait me out, but I don't up?" Italk about this.

"Okay, if caring isn't the problem, that means you care for her. 's broke up. I guess she didn't care for you, then."

e. I rub "She cared." My stomach rolls. She cared far more than I deserve.

s going "I see... you weren't attracted to her anymore."

"I was totally—" I stop because I see what he's doing.

"Oh, I get it," he drawls with a smirk. "She was done with you. you aside and hurt your feelings."

am than "No," I growl in frustration. "I wanted to take a break, she didn ended."

astonishment. "By all accounts, Ava made you happy. I saw it. Everyc a coachit. Am I wrong?"

"You're not wrong."

he just "Well, if you're still attracted to her, and you care for her, and sh you happy, what in the hell am I missing here?"

Damn, he's making me uncomfortable, and I launch out of my croppingresume my pacing. Baden merely watches me as I make two full across the room.

I'm halfway through a third when I spin on him. "See... here's the ant," he I had established boundaries with Ava, and we were both doing fine, a we both started operating outside the boundaries, and things got confue "That's as clear as mud," he says, then nods over to the chair. "N ing guywell start from the beginning."

Itly not I don't want to sit down and tell Baden my woes. We have a gale few hours, and I need my head in it. Except, I can't seem to get there sk chairown. Maybe I just need a purge so I can expel all the nasty feelings back on track.

With a sigh, I take the desk chair again. "Okay, I'm going to make succinct and fast, so try to keep up."

"I'm with you." He settles into the sofa, casually draping an arm c back.

ow you "Before Melissa was diagnosed, we were on the brink of ge divorce. The marriage was in tatters, we were barely speaking, and moved out."

want to I pause to see if that's a shocker, but Baden merely nods.

"But she got sick, and I felt so guilty about how things had gone the Yet youus. When we found out it was terminal, I left hockey behind to care for "That took a lot of guts," Baden says.

I don't affirm or deny that. I only did what needed to be done. ' rate, Melissa died, I grieved, and I moved on. It was nine years ago have a new career. I haven't found anyone I wanted to have a cor Tossedrelationship with. Dated some women long term, but no one ever mo to step outside of the new world I lived in."

't, so it Baden cocks an eyebrow. "I'm guessing it was a carefully orchelife."

asks in "Not to ever get too close."

one saw "Because you couldn't get over Melissa dying and failing her?"

"No. I've reconciled with how my marriage failed. I mean, I hated we wanted different things. Melissa wanted me home and couldn't har the madecareer. And I don't want to get back in that position again. I love my much, and those were the boundaries Ava and I put in place. She knew thair tohad so much to give, and she was fine with it."

passes "Until?" he prods.

"Until I fucked it up and blurred the lines. Until I started giving he ething.than she ever expected, and I let her believe there could be more. T nd thenformer mother-in-law showed up, got all in my head by throwing guilt sing." at me, and I got scared. So I pulled back. I needed a break to think light asthrough."

"That seems kind of pansy-assed," Baden says.

me in a I blink at him. "Excuse me?"

on my "You heard me. You're one of the strongest, most put-together p and getknow. For you to base your future on things that happened in your shortsighted and, frankly, disappointing. You're also one of that this forward-thinking people I know. You're all about second chance building strong relationships. You have all these life skills that make over theamazing coach, and you didn't employ a single fucking one to keep Av

My jaw drops and remains hanging open as I stare at him. I try to etting abut nothing comes out. The truth he just slapped me with has left 1 I hadrattled, my mind is blank.

Baden stands from the sofa. "Look, I'd love to stay around and charge your feelings, but I can see I've scrambled your brains. I hope you continue the sofa."

ther." I blink again but manage a nod.

"Ava is moving to Charlotte," Baden murmurs.

'At any "What?" I say, exploding from my chair.

), and I Baden nods. "She told Sophie last night. Had just made the denmitted which is really why I came by to talk to you."

ved me "Jesus," I mutter, looking left and right but not sure what I'm ho see. My eyes go back to Baden. "When?"

estrated He shrugs. "Not sure. But I do know she's back home in Raleigh  $\epsilon$  be there for the Thanksgiving holiday. I expect she'll move after that."

"Fuck," I mutter, pulling out my phone. "I have to stop her."

Baden snatches it from my hand. "Not like this. You cannot just 1 it, butup and demand she not move, because I can see it written on your fac 1 it is mywhat you're about to do. Ava needs an apology and some groveling, job tooface. On top of that, you have a game you need to get ready for. So v I onlylike I told Drake a few weeks ago, get your head out of your ass and 1 game. Fix your personal shit after."

My shoulders slump. He's right, of course, but I hate that I c er moreanything right this moment. Every fiber of my being wants to hop a I hen myRaleigh right now and say fuck the game tonight.

bombs But that's not an option, and no matter how much Ava might be thingsdisappointed in me, she would never want me to leave this team when need me.

I can, however, put some wheels into motion. I grab my phone bac going to change my Thanksgiving flight from Denver to Raleigh."

people I "Good luck with that." Baden laughs as he moves to the door past ishimself out. "Day before Thanksgiving? Doubt you'll find anything."

e most "Well, wish me luck," I say, pulling up my Delta app.

es and The door opens but before Baden steps out, I call for him. "Hey!"

you an He glances over his shoulder, eyebrows raised.

va." "Thanks for talking sense into me."

o speak Baden grins. "My pleasure."

me so it about lear the ecision,

ping to ınd will call her e that's face to ), much

into the an't do

olane to

But that's not an option, and no matter how much Ava might be hurt or disappointed in me, she would never want me to leave this team when they need me.

I can, however, put some wheels into motion. I grab my phone back. "I'm going to change my Thanksgiving flight from Denver to Raleigh."

"Good luck with that." Baden laughs as he moves to the door to let himself out. "Day before Thanksgiving? Doubt you'll find anything."

"Well, wish me luck," I say, pulling up my Delta app.

The door opens but before Baden steps out, I call for him. "Hey!"

He glances over his shoulder, eyebrows raised.

"Thanks for talking sense into me."

Baden grins. "My pleasure."

CHAPTER 30 Ava

" $W_{\text{HO}}$ 's ready for pie?" my mom asks as she stands from the table all groan.

My dad pats his belly. "I'm going to need a little more time to dige "I'm not eating until tomorrow," I mutter, glad I'm wearing leggings under a burgundy sweater tunic. They're quite stretchy as minimize the misery from all the food I ate, but I do it every Thanksgir

"Y'all are lightweights," Rob says, and then smiles at Mom. "I' pumpkin."

Why I'm doing this, I have no clue, but I say, "I'll have a slice of p Dad laughs and says, "I'll have a small slice of both."

I stand and clear plates, and when Rob just sits there, I kick his le up and help."

"That's woman's work," he says and then scrambles up when Molher head his way with that look that makes grown men cry.

Snickering, I nudge him. "You're going to get it if you keep talki misogynistic crap."

"He's certainly not going to find a good woman," my mother says doles out slices of pie.

I make decaffeinated coffee for everyone, and we all settle in 1 bites of dessert so we can get it down. I expect each of us will p watching football in about fifteen minutes.

"I'm so glad you were able to come home for the holiday," my mc as she swirls her fork through the whipped cream.

"Yeah, me too," I murmur, my stomach clenching from the absc that just fell from my mouth. I push my plate back, knowing I'll puke one more bite in my mouth, and not because I'm full.

I stand from the table. "I'm going to take a walk, see if I can b some of these calories."

My mom smiles, oblivious to my pain. "Take a jacket. It's chilly or "I will," I assure her.

Grabbing my coat from the rack in the foyer, I shrug it on and h into the crisp fall day. My parents live in an older neighborhood wit lots, tons of trees, and rolling hills. I make it to the end of the drivewa I hear, "Hey... wait up."

I glance back to find Rob jogging toward me.

and we "Didn't want to get left alone with Mom wanting to know why y Kristin broke up?" I tease as we head out.

"Something like that." He laughs as he falls into step beside m solution black have to hear her lament one more time about how much she and helpgrandbabies, I'm going to puke."

"Yeah, well... at least you didn't hook up with a cheater who a large large and kicked out of your home."

"There's that," he agrees. "But I have to wonder why you're so becan." about your new beau."

"Not my beau anymore."

g. "Get "What?" Rob takes hold of my arm and pulls me to a stop. "Why n I gently pull free and start walking again. "Things didn't work out.

m turns Rob catches up to me and takes my arm again, forcing me to turn "Did he hurt you?"

ing that "Yes," I reply, holding his gaze. "But not the way Derek did. It's j we want different things in a relationship, and I had thought maybe is as she be more."

"Does he think you're not good enough?" Rob snarls.

for tiny "No, nothing like that. And honestly, he was truthful from that ass outbeginning about his limits, and he was truthful in the end."

"But you're still hurt," Rob says, hooking his arm through mine.

om says "Yes, I'm still hurt, but I'll let you in on a little secret that I'll te and Dad later. I just didn't want them to make a big deal about it the lietime I was home for the holiday."

if I put "What's that?"

"I'm moving to Charlotte. It was my choice to work remotel ourn offPittsburgh, but given that things didn't work out with Cannon, my besis to... well, move."

"Mom and Dad are going to flip out since you'll be closer," Rob m ut." "And they'll expect me to visit more, which is why I thought I'd l in on this before I leave. I don't want Mom pulling out her calence ad outscheduling monthly visits."

th large "Oh, we're not that bad," Rob teases.

y when "Of course you're not," I lob back with a grin. "But I want to pu serious effort into this job. Shelley promotes from within, and I potentially be an agent one day."

ou and "That's going to kill Mom and Dad." Rob squeezes my arm. "You be a real estate agent, but you'll be a speaker agent."

e. "If I I laugh. "Well, it's an agent, so they're getting at least half of wh wantswant. But enough about me... tell me why you broke up with Kristin."

I listen as Rob tells me the same story he's told me with every gir got youShe got too serious, he's not ready to settle down.

Not all that different from Cannon's boundaries, but for different round silentRob just isn't ready to settle down, and while Cannon enjoys a lomonogamous relationship, he's afraid of the commitment from an enstandpoint.

ot?" Still... the same. Not wanting to take that next step when the gir and so it ends.

to him. We head back after about a mile with plans for Rob to come to Pit to help me pack up and move my stuff with a small U-Haul trailer, ust thatdon't feel comfortable driving one. I can barely park straight.

it could When we reach our parents' house, I notice a car in the drivewa expecting anyone?"

"The Gentrys were going to come by sometime today," he replies ne very could be any one of a dozen different friends of my parents. The absolute social butterflies.

We enter in through the mudroom and hang our jackets on the rack ll Momvoices in the kitchen, and as I head that way, a tingle rushes up my spi e entirenot sure why... maybe just a vibe.

Turning the corner out of the short hallway that connects the mand kitchen, I see Cannon seated at the island with a bottle of water y fromempty pie plate with crumbs. My parents are opposite him, both lead at movetheir forearms, my father regaling Cannon with tales of the real estate.

Cannon's eyes snap to mine when I enter, and I halt so abruptluses. barrels into me. His hands on my shoulders steady me and then s et themreflexively when I ask Cannon, "What are you doing here?"

dar and My tone is part surprise, but there's censure in it as well. Mostly ir because my heart pounds with joy at seeing him, but I can't forget he unsure of things, he asked for a break.

It some I'm clearly being impolite as my mom—ever the graceful southe could—chastises me. "Ava... honestly, where are your manners?"

"I left them back in Pittsburgh when Cannon told me he wanted to 1 won'tbreak," I retort, never taking my gaze off him.

Those hazel eyes of his glitter in challenge. "I took a break, and n at theydone with it."

"And so you think you can just waltz in here and what... charm you lfriend.back into...?" I almost say "my pants" but catch myself just in time.

"I charmed you once," he says confidently. "Why not again?"

easons. "Ava," my mom says, and I can tell by the look on her face that w w-key, short time she just spent with Cannon, she likes him a lot. "He drove to iotionalthe night from New Jersey to get here as there weren't any flights."

Okay, that touches me, but I don't want it to. I suspect Carl does, evaluated things and probably wants to make a go of it, as there's n reason for him to be here. But I'm going to make him work for it so I tsburghabsolutely sure he's not going to get wishy-washy on me again.

since I My eyebrows draw inward as a thought strikes me. "How did yo know where to find me?"

y. "We "Sophie told Baden who told me yesterday that you came home holiday. I called Brienne after the game. Asked her to use her power to s, but itwith Derek's boss, who in turn called Derek and provided your pareaddress." Wow... I bet Derek loved that. "I couldn't get a flight, so I rate car and hit the road after the game was over."

c. I hear My mom sighs—one of those light, dreamy ones that tells me she ne. I'mthat's completely romantic. For all her dislike of Derek, she seems fallen hook, line, and sinker for Cannon already.

udroom Admittedly, he went through a lot of trouble to come here, a and anfine... I might have some internal sighing going on. Not sure if it's laning onI'm charmed or frustrated.

market. "Who's Brienne?" my dad asks, finally saying something. "Arly, Robdoes she have a connection to Derek?"

squeeze "Brienne's the owner of the Pittsburgh Titans," Cannon says. "St connections everywhere."

ritation My father's eyes almost bug out of his head. "You know the own was soprofessional hockey team? Well enough to track down an address night?"

other teams, but they wouldn't know enough to know that Cannor take aTitans' head coach or that Brienne is the owner.

I turn to Cannon. "You didn't tell them who you are?"

ow I'm "I gave them my name," he says blandly. "I assumed you had to who I was."

our way "Who are you?" my dad asks, clearly intrigued and guessing Ca hot shit whoever he is.

"I'm the head coach of the Titans."

hatever "Oh my word," my mother says on a long breath.

through My dad chokes out as he turns to me, "Why didn't you tell us?"

I throw my thumb over my shoulder at my brother. "I told Rob. I a annon'she'd tell you."

o other Which isn't true since I specifically asked him not to, but it takes t can beoff me. My parents both look at Rob with accusatory eyes, and he r

"Thanks for throwing me under the bus, Sis." He then moves to our ou evenand ushers them out of the kitchen. "Let's give them some privacy."

My parents' place is huge, and he leads them into the den, which is for the opposite side of the house. When we're alone, I move to the counter get upmy parents had been standing as it feels necessary to put the island bearents'us.

rented a I press my palms down and ask the questions. "Really... what a doing here?"

thinks "You know why I'm here," he says, rising from the stool and to have around the counter toward me, clearly not liking the barrier. "There one reason I would have missed my flight to Denver for Thanksgiving nd yes, a car, and driven eight and a half hours through the night to get here."

Decause Turning to face him as he comes to stand toe to toe with me, I have my head back to maintain eye contact. "You said you'd never head whyintentionally, and you did it anyway."

"I know," he says softly, his tone laced with shame. "And I hate ne's gotfor it. I can't stand how weak I was, and I will absolutely understand can't forgive me for it. You deserve so much better than what I gave year of a My heart throbs for that tiny concession.

late at "I made a terrible mistake, Ava, by pulling away when I should hap pushing full steam ahead because of how you make me feel."

now the "And how is that?" I whisper.

n is the "Alive, happy, whole," he says, sliding a hand along my neck and my jaw with his thumb. "I feel complete when I'm with you, and I feel that all the time. I'm tired of worrying about making the same me ld themagain. As someone pointed out recently, it's disappointing that I he these amazing life skills and wisdom to build strong relationships with number and I don't bother using any of them on myself to make me wo you."

My head spins over the meaning behind his words.

"Ava," Cannon murmurs, bending in closer to peer right into my want to be worthy of you. Actually, that's not right. I'm ready to be ssumedof you, if you'll give me a chance."

"Oh, wow," I say with a gust of pent-up breath. He's saying all the heatwords, but I'm afraid. He was doing all the right things before but the nutters, scared. "Are you sure?"

parents "I'm sure I love you," he says, and my knees wobble. "I've nev more sure of anything."

s on the I pull away from Cannon, putting some distance between us be wherewas very much just in danger of falling right into him.

which is tight with worry. I'm in a bit of an overload right now. In a are youyears, I never would've expected Cannon to be standing here sayin things.

moving "Answer me one question first," he says, and my hand falls. "Do y s's onlyme?"

, rented This is not something I have to think about. "I knew I was in loyou when you wanted to take a break. My heart wouldn't have the to tipshredded if I weren't."

nurt me "Then let me fix it, Ava," Cannon exclaims, reaching out and tak hands. "I swear I'm solid and I'll heal your heart. I want to leave he myselfyou. I want us to start a life together. Come back to Pittsburgh w l if youtomorrow, and you can move into my place—" ou." "Whoa, wait a minute," I say, pulling my hands away. "This is the thing Derek said to me, and we know how that turned out. I don't we been make the same mistake."

"I'm not Derek," Cannon says, a hard glint in his eye. "It's only a I if you think I'm like him."

grazing "Of course you're not like him," I snap, irritated.

want to "If it makes you feel better, come back to Pittsburgh and ask me t listakes into your place. Go on... ask me right now."

lave all I scoff and roll my eyes. "You can't move into my place. It's a ho thin thetoo small, and you're used to so much nicer."

orthy of "I need you," he asserts, and once again, his hands have mine a jerking me into him. "I don't care if we live in a small, one-be apartment with peeling paint on the walls and water stains on the eyes. "INone of that matters as long as I'm with you."

worthy "Cannon," I whisper softly, touched by his words. "You spent softly time making sure I understood you have limits and—" he right "Listen, Ava... I can't give up my career. I mean, I would if I couhen gotyou. I did it for Melissa, and if I could, I'd do it for you."

"I'd never ask that," I growl.

er been Cannon nods, a smile on his face. "Yeah, I know you wouldn't would if I could. The truth is, I can't. This isn't like walking away cause Iplaying career, and you don't have cancer making things grim. As a chave too many people who depend on me. Except now, I don't waternum, career to be a barrier to time with you. I want you to be a part of that limillionme."

g these "How? What does that mean?"

"It means I want to share my world with you in whatever way ou lovewant you to come to away games with me when you can, and I war more work at home rather than at the arena, so at the very least, I can we withthe couch with you by my side. I want to have more balance, which been somaybe delegating a bit more so I can have more personal time to spen you. I want you to come to team functions with me, and I want the ing mycolumns to wonder about me dating and what it all means. I haven't gere withfigured out, but everything I've suggested so far seems like it's examith meright thing."

I'm speechless. Cannon is telling me things I never thought he'd ie exactto say.

want to "I got scared, Ava," he continues, bringing his hands to my face I'm so sorry I wasn't a better man for you. But it took me no time a mistakefigure out I fucked up. I came straight to you to make it right. And want to make me work harder for it, I will. I'll devote every bit of free have to showing you—"

o move I lurch forward, my arms going around Cannon's neck, and I hop I on him. My mouth plasters to his as his hands go under my ass to hold wel, far Pulling back just enough to speak against his lips, "Enough alr forgive you, and I'm ready to get back on track."

nd he's I try to kiss him again, but he jerks his face away. "And you love n edroom I know I said it once already, but I was talking about the pas ceiling.talking about right now. "Yes... I love you."

"And you'll come back to Pittsburgh?" he presses, the expression o much face tense with worry.

"I have to talk to Shelley. I told her I was coming to Charlotte."

Id—for Cannon sighs, closes his eyes, and lets his forehead drop to toucl "Okay... if you need to go to Charlotte, we'll make it work." His fa and he stares at me. "We can be together in the off-season. Maybe t. But Iwill let you work remotely to be able to travel to some away games. I from ain to see you at Christmas. We'll figure it out."

coach, I I shake my head. "No, we won't figure it out. I'll talk to Shelle ant thatletting me work in Pittsburgh. I don't have to go to Charlotte. Yes, i ife withgreat opportunity, but I was only doing it because we'd broken up."

"I was on a break. I did not break up with you," he points out.

"Fine." I laugh. "If that's the way you want it remembered. But I'. I can. Iback to Pittsburgh."

it to do "And we'll move into your apartment," he says.

do it on Grimacing, I tip my head back as I consider but then grin and sh meanshead. "Nah... let's live in your condo."

nd with "Oh, thank God," he mutters and kisses me again.

gossip Slowly, with a tenderness that makes my heart contract almost part it allbecause it belongs to him now.

ctly the "Think I can have another piece of pie?" he asks as his mou "Maybe some turkey. I'm starving, and I'll love you forever."

be able Laughing, I wiggle to hop down from his hold. "Yes. Let's Thanksgiving meal into you. And I'll love you forever too." e. "And at all to l if you e time I ight up me. eady. I 1e?" t. He's ι on his h mine. ice lifts Shelley can fly y about t was a ll come ake my ainfully th lifts. s get a Thanksgiving meal into you. And I'll love you forever too."

CHAPTER 31 Cannon

Sitting on the sofa armrest, my fingers play absently with Ava's hair and my sister, Belle, jabber about some new show on Netflix. My land Connor, is giving horsey rides to our nieces, and everyone else is kitchen, drinking wine and talking. I glance around my condo, Ch music playing in the background and the smell of spruce in the air fittree we finally decorated this morning. It feels like Ava and I hav going nonstop since we made up—i.e., she decided to forgive my fool—almost a month ago.

She indeed came back to Pittsburgh with me, moved into my con works remotely for Shelley's agency with an office we set up in th bedroom. Ava comes to some of the away games, usually the extend trips, but she is at every single home game in a seat just two rows bac the Titans' bench. I know I should feel guilty looking over my shoulde sometimes, and never during live play, but she's always there to give encouraging smile, a thumbs-up, or an air kiss.

Last night was our last home game before the Christmas break, consists of basically today—Christmas Eve, and tomorrow, Christmas surprised the hell out of her during the third period by turning around a TV timeout, pulling a rose from inside my suit jacket, and tossing the glass at her. The season ticket holders in that general vicinity hav to know who Ava is and what she is to me. We've made some news co but we're nowhere near the big news item that Drake and Brienne are.

When she caught the rose, the fans sitting all around her went nu her cheeks flushed beet red. When her eyes came to mine, I moutl words, "I love you."

She mouthed them right back.

This morning we woke up early because we had a lot to do. I alarm for half an hour earlier than we really needed to be up so I coul love to Ava, and we both had smiles on our faces as we decorate Christmas tree. It's been set up for two weeks, but we literally have the time to put the ornaments on until this morning.

We probably wouldn't have had the families not been coming family and Ava's met tonight for the first time over an amazing m made of beef tenderloin, au gratin potatoes, and charred Broccolini. A thought she'd burned it by mistake, but she assured me it was a recircal ras sheholy fuck was it good.

orother, Now as I look around at two families coming together, getting to in the one another, I can't help but think I'm the luckiest son of a bitch in the ristmas Her family adores me, and they've been here once before to visit. My com the adores Ava, and while they'd only met over FaceTime, it was iming been hugs from my clan as soon as they stepped through the door today.

ishness Ava and Belle hit it off, and both sets of parents are enjoying stories of their respective kids, trying to embarrass us.

do, and I glance down at my watch and lean to whisper in Ava's ear. "E e spareback."

ed road She looks up at me, smiles, and nods. "Good luck."

ck from Can't help myself when I take the time to kiss her and ignore mer at hergiggling.

e me an I head back to our bedroom and shut the door—closing off the evory of my new life. The music, the laughter, the happiness.

which Pulling out my phone, I call Connie.

Day. I "Hi," she says as she answers.

during "Merry Christmas," I say.

it over "Merry Christmas." There's a tiny pause, then she asks, "How e comedoing?"

olumns, "I'm good. It's been so busy, but I'm glad to have a few days' How about you? You and Andrew doing anything special?"

its, and "His sister and her husband are spending the holidays with us. A hed the know how crazy she is." Connie launches into a story about Sybil, indeed a little crazy but in a fun way, and I settle back on my bed to lis

My relationship with Connie has changed, hopefully for the bette set the our blowup last month, which sent me into a tailspin and almost cause d make lose Ava, I had to have a heart-to-heart with her. Unfortunately, it has over the phone, and I initiated it the week after Thanksgiving. Wi ted ourbeing a part of my future, I knew I had to shed the last vestiges of my on't had And I don't mean forgetting about Melissa and her family.

No, I mean I had to stop letting Connie use me as a crutch to keep in. Myrooted in grief. I told her those very words, and I asked her to please c eal sheto be my friend, but only with healthy boundaries. I thought she'd han t first, Ime, but surprisingly, she listened.

pe, and And from that one phone call, we've started to evolve. She does me when she's stuck in melancholy, but rather when she has a good no know of Melissa she wants to share. I've been calling her more proactively world.week, just to check in.

family We don't discuss Ava or what my future looks like. It's enough nediatethat Connie understands I want to move forward, and it's enough for continue to be friends.

telling I spend about fifteen minutes on the phone, and she's the one w the call short. I hear Sybil in the background yelling that she mis 3e rightspiked the eggnog with gin. The thought makes me shudder.

We say our goodbyes, and just as I'm lurching up off the bed, the opens and Ava walks in. She looks beautiful tonight in black pant y sisterheels, and a deep green velvet blouse that's cut somewhat low but st tasteful. It's one of those wrap-around garments, and I can't wait to videnceher from it tonight.

"How'd it go?" she asks, closing the door and moving toward n steps close, running her hands up my chest to link her fingertips beh neck.

"It was good."

are you "I'm glad." Ava smiles, goes on her tiptoes, and kisses me lightly. "How's it going out there?"

break. "Very well. Belle and I are doing a girls' trip this summer to Charl-Grinning, I wrap my arms around her back to pull her in close and youare?"

who is "Yup. And I think my parents are going out to Denver to stay wisten. parents in January to do some skiing."

r. After Laughing, I bend down to nuzzle her neck. "Anyone else in the d me tobonding?"

Ind to be "Yeah, my brother is apparently going to hang out with your brother the AvaWyoming to do some hunting."

I pull back to glance down at her. "It's a good thing we made u old life. Just imagine all these new friendships that would have gone unrealized "A travesty is what it would have been," she says, then tugs fi herself ontinuetakes my hand. "Now come on... we still have hosting to do, and w g up onstay back here too long or tongues will be wagging."

Let them wag is all I can think, but I let her pull me from the room n't callhallway, I whisper, "When can we kick everyone out?"

"Stop it," she hisses, elbowing me in the ribs. nemory

"I'm just saying... I've got some Christmas orgasms to give you... once a "I'll feign a headache in about an hour." Her eyes gleam with m for me"It's your job to usher everyone out."

"God, I love you," I say in awe, thrilled she's willing to be as dup r her to as I am so we can have alone time. Besides, we're all getting t ho cutstomorrow for Christmas Day.

"I love you," she says as we reach the living room, breaking for takenly moving into the kitchen where our moms are talking.

I watch her walk away, unabashedly taking in the curves of her as ne door ts, highcan't wait to get my hands on later, then turn my attention to our co ill veryfamilies filling my once-empty condo. My future is here, in this plac unwindthe people who are the most important to me, and I am so grateful second chance at love.

ne. She ind my

Hendrix Bateman is determined to live each day as if it's his last. He on the team plane the night it crashed and feels like he's been given a chance at life. So when fate puts Stevie Kisner in his path, he's ready his shot, but is Stevie ready to get in the game? CLICK HERE for de about Hendrix. 1. "You

Click here to see other works by Sawyer Bennett

th your

eston."

Don't miss another new release by Sawyer Bennett!!! Sign up for family newsletter and keep up to date on new releases, giveaways, book revie so much more.

other in p, huh?

Connect with Sawyer online:

ree and re can't

Website Twitter

. In the Facebook

i. III tile

Instagram

"

Goodreads

ischief.

Amazon BookBub

licitous ogether About the Author

ree and s that I mbined re, with for this wasn't second to take

New York Times, USA Today, and Wall Street Journal Bestselling Sawyer Bennett uses real life experience to create relatable stories that to a wide array of readers. From contemporary romance, fantasy ro and both women's and general fiction, Sawyer writes something about everyone.

her

ws and A former trial lawyer from North Carolina, when she is not bringing to life, Sawyer is a chauffeur, stylist, chef, maid, and personal assistan very adorable daughter, as well as full-time servant to her wond naughty dogs.

If you'd like to receive a notification when Sawyer releases a new bot up for her newsletter (sawyerbennett.com/signup).

author appeal mance, for just fiction t to her derfully If you'd like to receive a notification when Sawyer releases a new book, sign up for her newsletter (sawyerbennett.com/signup).