

THE NECTAR OF PAIN

NAJWA ZEBIAN

THE NECTAR OF PAIN

NAJWA ZEBIAN

Andrews McMeel
PUBLISHING®

A dedication to you, fellow human

These mountains that you are carrying,
you were only supposed to climb.

ALSO BY NAJWA ZEBIAN

Mind Platter

CONTENTS

Why The Nectar of Pain?

The only chapter in this book:

Before you start this journey,

He never loved you

Once upon a mistake

I wanted you

In the forest

You were my home

My heart left my heart

I do not want you to stay

Self-forgiveness

I am giving you back to you

You'll know

I ran to the moon

A sky that no longer welcomes you

Dusty butterflies

Homes stay

The surrender

An endless perhaps

To a narcissist who moved on

Your wanting of me

The day we decided it's best to part ways

I do not want your love

Just because I loved you

Astray

Do you know?

Darling

To my first love

My door is now closed

Just get out of my way

I once felt this way about you

The whole world is mine

Streets

When love escapes

Prisons

Rain

The pain of your silence

Sometimes, this is all you have to say:

The day I fell for you

Opening up

2:37 a.m.

I wish you never wanted to

The day that uncertainty finally ended my patience with you

If you ever come back, I will tell you:

For every time you ignored me:

When I started feeling that you wanted to walk away

For every time I confronted you

You took the easy way out

Fate once told me

You made me grieve you

To those who think that love is a game

I am courageous

What's no longer there

The verdict

The reclamation

The medicine

For every time I told you that you were distant

To the past me. To my future daughter. To you.

When you said I had father issues

Filling the gaps

You cannot be anyone's savior

The day you confessed your love

Covering up

The truth

Loving backward

I fear that you'll return

A taste of your own medicine

I often wonder Red lights
What truly haunts me
When sadness is the only home that welcomes you
I thank destiny
Empty words
Where trauma lives
Betrayal
Console your soul
Overdose
After you said your goodbye It's them, not love
Patience
I am worthy
The source of your love is you Give your love back to yourself
The one who deserves you will tell you:
Hanging on to nothing
The moment I fell from your heart
You really are not the reason Nothing that you could give me back Scars
Trauma
Flashback
New love
Let your scars speak
For your new love
Love the pieces
Wholeheartedness
Authentic love
You were never deep
Un-lose yourself
Tainted memories
Reminiscing
They tell me to forget about you

When you think that they'll come back Gaslighting of the soul
If I could turn back time Wrapped gifts
Weary sky
I miss you every time it rains
Now I just feel pain
A new man's love does not heal you
The cleanse
You choose Poison
The chosen one Noble love
Invisible threads
An unwanted memory
I wish I never asked you
It's still raining
Unwelcome scars
I truly believed you would stay Trapped
Choose to let go
Your voice will roar one day Softness is not weakness
Every day, tell yourself this:
Never change your heart
A message to the one who broke me Know who needs help
I see your pain
The struggle to get you out of my head
No one can own your heart Healed wings
Other places
My future son
If it hurts your soul, let go of it When they pretend not to know what you want

Break

As you heal from trauma, remember this

How narcissists keep you under control

How love works

To my new love

Wilted flower

It will be painful

You don't need someone to complete you

Tell their voices:

A question with no answer

They need love

Believe in yourself

Smile

I don't want you

On the verge of relapse

When they gaslight you

Resilience

I will heal

I will tell you again and again

After I finally accepted your goodbye

The day I decided to forgive you

Crossroads

No one wants to be alone

When sadness builds a home inside of you

When you feel like no one loves you

Silence their silence

How you should feel

Perhaps

Empathy

Let pearls drop from your words

Choose to leave

Where you left me

Cry your heart back together

The thing about cowards

I will not wait for you to regret losing me

I will tell this to my daughter one day Another love
Know thyself
Before I fell in love, I always knew I wanted this Do you feel loved?
I see sadness in your eyes
What you don't need
All of the times I broke my soul When preparing for them to leave Unsent letters
I did not want your soul to leave
I beg you to leave
After I forgot you
I knew you better than you knew yourself
Do not settle
You are too precious
Roses and thorns
Be mindful of why you do what you do
The nectar in you
Falling in love
The way home
When you try to forget them while they still control you Now that my heart is broken
My heart tells me every night
I am sensitive
Twenty years
You say that I mean nothing to you Clear skies
Pain that you cannot express Stay
In a coffee shop
Oh, little voice of mine
I am my own savior
If you ever think of revenge
The run

Too fragile
When new love comes along, it might feel like this
The clouds in my soul
Leave me to my sadness
Let the pain hurt
Why do you still believe them?
It's not love
To the one who comes into my life
When new love knocked on my door What trauma feels like Tragedy
The bigger tragedy
I lost your nothing
You were my home
When they minimize your pain
You are a beautiful soul
A world of my own Take your empty words Maps
My address
Their karma
A home for pain
A letter to myself
You are worthy of respect
They know that they don't deserve you
They will never admit that they hurt you Crystal ball
When pain knocks on your door
I trusted you to not break me further, but you did To a narcissist I once loved Let them go
If you're feeling lost
If your heart hurts
Stop dwelling in the past
Make the choice to let go

Letting you go
One day, the tables will turn Deaf hearts
A choking tear
Lean into the discomfort Conditional love
Be kind, because that is who you are Rejection
The love I want Unrequited love
I don't miss you
Just words
You are bigger than their pain Extraction
You are the sun
Love the hatred out of them.
I wasn't the only one
When your abuser has you caged
To the one who broke me, and I hope you read this one day:
Wish them healing
You blamed me
Rage
Gaslighting
My saddest goodbye
Stop breaking Scarred eyes
What you truly need
I was not ready
To the man who once said he loved me Internalizing fate
I thank fate
Forgive them
The price of understanding me
The moment I knew I no longer wanted you My dear reader,

My dear self Beautiful soul
Stay kind
Golden soul
Dare to look outside Sad rebellion
Be certain
Lean into your sadness
The best decision
My dear reader,
Choose happiness
Why people always leave Life is unfair
Thank you for silencing me Stay you They'll always have something to judge you for There is no right way to heal
They will love you Don't lose hope
Because you are a good heart
To you, dear reader:

Acknowledgments

About the Author

Why The Nectar of Pain?

They asked me,
How is your soul able to give so much love to this world?

I said,
There is a sweetness in the nectar that bees seek for honey.

There is a sweetness in you that every sting and every pain seek to make love.

Do not allow your pain to make you bitter.

*Turn it into the sweet nectar
that your soul contains and gives as a sign of strength and resilience after it is shattered.*

The only chapter in this book:

After the end

Moving on may take stages, yes.

But humans do not heal in clear-cut steps,

no.

One moment,
you may feel completely healed,
and the next moment, the scent of a breeze that reminds you of them breathes the pain so freshly back into your flesh and rips your heart into pieces once again.

You forgive them one day, and the next day your self-worth
screams
into every vein of yours, paralyzing you,
begging you
to be angry with them.

*Some spend a lifetime
healing,
and some spend a lifetime wanting to heal.*

Before you start this journey,

This collection of poetry that I share from my soul with you follows what most of us go through after experiencing a painful heartbreak. Overall, there may be stages of healing, but cleansing yourself of the pain day by day, hour by hour, and second by second is the real struggle. Healing is not as predictable as we would like it to be. We may take ten steps forward one day and take twenty back the next day. As we walk this journey together, some poems will address you. Some will address the one who caused the pain. And some will address myself. Yourself. Ourselves.

Take a deep breath.

Let's begin, after the end.

He never loved you

As I mourn the loss of your love, my heart cries.

I tell the memories of you that I love you and that I want you back.

Your memories fight back and tell me:

He never loved you.

He never loved your smile, nor your lips.

He never loved your vision, nor your eyes.

He never loved your touch, nor the creases on your hands.

He never loved your innocence, nor your fair skin.

He never loved your thoughts, nor your mind.

He never loved your care, nor your heart.

He only loved your love and the way you loved him.

You made him king, but there was no kingdom to rule.

You put suns in his sky, but the night was his home.

You made him a knight, but there were no battles to fight.

He never loved you, but he loved the reflection of the man he saw in your eyes.

But listen to me, my friend.

You never loved him either.

You just loved being the queen.

You loved being the sun.

You loved being the woman behind a great man.

You never loved him.

You loved having something to give.

Someone to fix. Someone to please.

You see, in love, you don't get what you want.

You get what you think you get.

Once upon a mistake

Once upon a mistake,
I loved you and you loved me.

The sun shined brighter than ever in my sky, and I felt like heaven could not be close enough to my happiness.

After I spilled my love into your heart, I said to you that I was sorry for hurting you, although I did not understand how my love for you could have hurt you.

After we fought our fights and caused each other pain, only because I loved you and could not let you go and you stopped loving me and wanted me to let you go, months upon months,
and tears upon tears,
letters inside letters, and hopes inside hollow hopes,
I wrote to you.
I begged you
to not leave me, but
you left.

*I wish I could wrap my heart around you to make you feel how I feel about
you.*

I wanted you

*I did it again because I was too stubborn in my love for
you.*

Like a bird with broken wings, I stood in front of you, and I said to you:
I cannot let you go because I am so uninterested in a reality without you.
If I imagined falling asleep next to you and waking up next to you, if I imagined allowing you into my space and allowing you to invade mine, if I imagined growing old with you and letting the child in me play around you, how can I hate you?
I don't just want attention.
I want your attention.
I don't just want to be wanted.
I crave you wanting me.
I crave the love you had for me.
I want you to love me.
If it's time that you want,
I will wait.
Just tell me that we will have someday what we had one day.

*You told me that we never had anything.
You told me
not to wait.*

In the forest

I often close my eyes and replay this in my heart.

You held my hand so tightly and took my breath away as you softly sealed my lips with your finger.
“Slow down. Rest your soul,” you said.

And with your other hand, you shed darkness over my eyes.

With that, you stole the beats of my heart.

“I’m scared,” I said.

“I know the way,” you said.

We walked and walked.

We talked and talked.

You put my worries to sleep.

You ignited the warmth of love in my heart.

You became part of me.

And I was you.

We were one.

We were one.

I put my heart to sleep inside yours.

And when I opened my eyes to the sun in yours,

I saw only the sun.

Not you.

You left and stripped the heart out of me.

I am still in the forest, lost without a map,

waiting for you to come back and show me the way.

You said you knew the way,

remember?

I still cry every time I read this.

I still don't understand why you left

and never came back.

You were my home

*Why was it so hard for me
to let go of you?*

I had no home.
And with that, I was content, because I never knew what it felt like to feel like home.
So you built a home for me.
And I finally felt like I belonged.
All of my scattered pieces suddenly came together.
Somewhere,
I put my heart to sleep as you cradled my worries away.
I woke up one day,
cold,
abandoned,
without a roof on top,
without windows or walls.

Without you.

And you wonder why I am unable to let you go.
Before you, I never knew what a home was.
You gave me a taste of heaven.
And with your hands, you took it away.

Once you enter heaven, you can never live again
the same way.

My heart left my heart

Once upon a time,

like a child,

I ran to the footsteps of your door.

I left the letter I had been writing for days.

I feared you'd see me, so I quickly knocked and hid where

I could see you but you could not see me.

For nights on end, I had written to you with my heart and soul.

I had gotten lost in my lines, hoping that you'd read me between them.

I had written my words so they wouldn't show through my eyes.

I wrote:

"I captured the stars from the skies and put them in your eyes.

I took the pearls from my oceans and placed them in your hands.

I played the strings of the most beautiful melodies to the beats of your heart.

I loved the darkness out of you.

I walked your heart home.

But I did not realize that my home became dark and that my heart left my heart."

I waited for you to open the door, to read my letter,

to read my heart.

As you opened the door, my heart fell.

As you opened the paper and within a moment ripped it into pieces, you ripped my heart out again, as you did

once upon a time.

Now I realize that you cannot make someone listen to you or hear you if they do not want to.

I do not want you to stay

One day,
you will tell me that you wish you had never left.
And I will tell you that I wish you had never come back, that I wish that you had not walked away.
But you did walk away.
You will tell me that you missed the look of love in my eyes.
And I will ask you if you missed the tears that my eyes cried the day that you walked away.

You will tell me that you wish I would give you another chance.
And I will tell you that I wished you never walked away when you walked away.
But you still walked away.
You will tell me that you were not yourself when you walked away.
And I will tell you that I was not myself when I thought that you were the one.
So do me a favor and walk away, this time because I do not want you to stay.

*Now I know that it's important to realize the power I have over your presence in my life.
Even though you chose to walk away, it doesn't mean that I was abandoned.
I could choose to walk the other way too.*

Self-forgiveness

You told me that you were broken and that you wanted to heal.

I did not know that your soul was glass.
I did not know that your heart was dark.

You aimed the broken pieces of your soul at my heart like arrows.

I broke my soul trying to mend yours.

My fingertips bled as I weaved your soul back together.
And my eyes dried up from the tears of my pain.

I always believed that pain cleanses your soul as rain cleanses the earth.

So I let my heart storm through my eyes.

And once your soul came back together, you told me that I was broken.

You told me that you were not a doctor and that your words were just words.

You told me to move out of your way, because who would want a wounded soul like mine?

And now I turn to my heart.

I turn to myself to say:

My dear heart,

forgive me.

Forgive me for breaking you as I healed others.

Forgive me for making you beat to the happiness of others.

Forgive me

for not listening to you.

I promise you from today—

I promise you from this moment—to put you first.

And put me first.

Now I realize the power of forgiving myself.

I am giving you back to you

There once was a spark for you that built a home in my eyes.

And with every step you took further away from me, the night sky fell into my eyes.

It turns out that not every song is worth singing,

not every mountain is worth climbing,

not every race is worth running,

and not every war is worth fighting.

I loved the parts of you that I did not own.

And you owned the parts of me that you did not love.

So I am taking my love back today.

And today, I am giving
you
back to you.

Just because you choose not to climb a mountain, it does not mean that you have to carry it.

You'll know

I look back at the moment I knew that I fell in love with you.

I wanted to tell the world what it felt like,
so I wrote:

“I never knew what they meant when they said, ‘you’ll know,’ until I knew.

And I never knew what they meant when they said, ‘time heals,’ until I felt free.”

Now I know that I never really knew and that I am free not because I left you but because I came back to myself.

I ran to the moon

*I ran to the moon
and knelt to the ground.*

*Out of breath, I gasped.
I cried and cried and cried.*

You told me that just like you shined in the night, my hope should shine in my sky.
I listened to you.

So I loved.
And my heart was broken.

I trusted.
And my trust was betrayed.

I befriended.
And my secrets were exposed.

I gave.
And I was punished for giving.

I dreamt.
And the night fell into my dreams.

So tell me.
Do I swear off love?
Do I keep my lips sealed and bury my secrets in silence?
Do I lock the treasures in my heart and build walls around them?
And do I dream my dreams out of my soul?

Tell me.
Do I hate whom I loved?
And betray their trust as they did mine?
Do I tell their secrets as they told mine?
And do I start taking more than I give?
Do I tell my dreams to stop singing me to sleep?

Tell me.

The moon looked at me and said:

*“The clouds conceal me every night.
Does that make me stop believing that there is an earth beyond them?”*

A sky that no longer welcomes you

Asking me to understand why you no longer love me is like asking me to understand why I am no longer worthy of being loved.
I am confident, and my self-esteem is resilient, but asking a soul to accept that the love it once had is no longer there is like telling a bird that the sky that it's used to flying in no longer wants it to fly.

Every bird loves to fly in its sky, and every soul loves to be loved by the one that it loves.

Dusty butterflies

You promised not to walk away, so I built a home for you inside my heart.

Your voice, your promises, and your laugh filled it with life and love.

And now all I hear when I enter is the echo of your anger and your deafening silence that I never deserved.

So I fall to my knees and I crumble in the corner where I once dreamt you'd hold me.

And I choke on the dust of the butterflies that fell from my stomach for you and the tears that hailed from my eyes for you.

Homes stay

You were my home
for so long.

Now I realize that humans cannot be homes.

If homes can leave,
then they are not homes.

Homes stay,
but you walked away.

The surrender

A weakness within me has shattered the walls I've built within myself, against myself.

I may have been successful at giving, but I never know when to stop.

I worked so hard to break down others' walls that I forgot to break down my own.

I worked so hard to understand others' silence, but I forgot to understand my own.

I lifted, with every bit of me, the weight off of so many people's shoulders and hearts, but I forgot about my own burdens.

My bones have been bruised by the burdens I've accumulated.

My heart has been beating slower and slower.

My thoughts cannot bear the chaos in my mind.

So I decided to surrender.

I give up.

And if I were to hide my wings and bundle myself back up into my cocoon, would you then try to take what I give,
understand my silence, or lift the weight off my shoulders?

Feeling like you will give up does not mean that you have to give up.

An endless perhaps

When I was struggling with letting you go,

I wish someone had told me:

I know that you're struggling,
and I know that it's hard.

Believe me when I tell you that I know why you put up that guard.

Perhaps they ignore you.
Perhaps they don't care.

Perhaps they won't tell you how it is that they feel.

Perhaps they abandoned you or little by little are letting go of you.

Perhaps you even have no one to relate this poem to.

I can't tell you that it will get better, because that's probably what they all say.

What I can tell you is that I understand you and I think that you deserve better.

Don't force yourself into places where you don't belong.

Don't force yourself to believe what you know is not true.

I know that you're struggling,
and I know that it's hard.

I promise to stand by you and help you take down that guard.

To a narcissist who moved on

I hope she knows better and gets out of your venomous throat before you poison her soul
like you poisoned mine.

I hope she has the strength to deal with you leaving after you strip
the life out of her body, the color out of her eyes, and the love out of her heart.

I hope she does not define her self-worth through your eyes that see women as objects to satisfy the lust of your hollow soul.

It irritates me to write such strong and heartless words, but I've seen pain that led a fire to ignite in my veins.

Your wanting of me

Take your memories with all your pain.

Take it all.

I want to be free.

It was not your love that you chained me with,
but your wanting of me.

I used to think that happiness was not possible before I saw you regretting walking away from me.

But now I know that if a man like you had the heart to walk away from a woman like me, what is the use of having you regret leaving me?

I have been dwelling in a dark place, thinking that if you

left me,

then something must be wrong with me.

The day we decided it's best to part ways

My tears silently streamed down my face.

You raised your hand to wipe my tears but put it back down when you realized that could hurt us both.

You told me:

“I don't want you to be sad.”

I looked at you when I did not want to and

I told you:

“There will always be sadness

when it comes to you

because

you will always be the one

I want to be with

but fate will never destine that for us.”

I do not want your love

I do not hate you, but I hate that I allowed your hate to make me hate me.

Even if you came begging for me, I do not want your love
because I finally learned that I don't need you to love
me.

Just because I loved you

Just because I loved you,
and just because you hurt me,

I will not be ashamed to say that I loved you.
Because I really did love you.

I loved the loving person that you were.

I do not love the cold person that you are now.

I loved the considerate person that you were.

I do not love the inconsiderate person that you are now.

I loved the thoughtful person that you were.

I do not love the deaf-hearted person that you are now.

You see, you once asked me what I loved about you.
And that is what I loved.

If you ask me today what I love about you,
I will tell you this:

I love the memory of the person that you used to be.

I love that you allowed me to feel the love that my heart can contain.

I love the love that you showed me I can give.

I love the happiness that you showed me I could feel.

I love that you walked away.

I love that you did not stay.

I would have suffered if you stayed, because of the person that you are today.

Astray

I asked you what I meant to you, with my heart beating out of my chest.

I was afraid of losing you if you did not pass this test.

I told you that I was tired of reading between the lines.

I asked you to tell me if you could see the spark in my eyes.

I told you that I was ready to walk away and never speak to you after this day.

If you could just tell me if you wanted me to stay.

You asked me what I wanted, your honesty, confidence, loyalty, or perhaps more?

I told you that I wanted it all, with some love and a spark in your eyes that I'd forever
adore.

I told you that I wanted you to try harder.

You promised me to do so, but, oh, how I wish I were smarter.

*Now I realize that when you ask for love, it's not as true as when it comes your way.
And when the lines are blurred, your search for love may have gone too far astray.*

Do you know?

-Part 1-

Do you know what it feels like to be put on a racetrack and told to run and run and run with no end in sight?

Do you know what it feels like to continue on a road that you know has no destination, just because you are afraid of not having any other road if you left the one that you're on?

Do you know what it feels like to be forced to jump off a cliff, knowing that you have no wings to lift you?

Do you know what it feels like to shout and scream and yell
your heart out, knowing that everyone is listening but pretending not to hear?

I do.

-Part 2-

Do you know what it feels like to believe that you are a mistake and that feeling pain means that you have no control of your feelings?

Do you know what it feels like to be given the shovel to dig deeper and deeper only to find out when it's too late that it's for yourself and that there's no one waiting to lift you out of the hole?

Do you know what it feels like to fight a battle with no possible pain inflicted upon anyone but yourself?

Do you know what it feels like to be wounded and told that you caused the wound to yourself by choosing to be where the harm landed?

Do you know what choking on injustice feels like?

Do you know what it feels like to know that silence is your best choice when your words can no longer be held inside of you as a hostage?

*I hope you never know that feeling, because that is how you made me feel.
And I would never wish this kind of pain
upon anyone.*

Darling

Darling.

There are those who will light up your sky and those whose skies you will light up.

There are those who will love you for who you are and those whom you will crave being yourself around.

There are those who will dive into your ocean and those whose depths you will want to drown in.

There are those who will make your heart flutter with happiness
and those whose hearts will flutter at your sight.

There are those whom you will love and those who will love you.

And if the ones you love love you back,
darling, you will forever see joy.

But if they feel the same way you feel about them toward someone else,
darling, that will be a disaster.

You may be a disaster for a day, a month,
or a year.

Just don't be a disaster forever.

Find the harbor of safety.
And find the one who feels about you the same way you feel about them.

I wrote this to myself and to every broken soul out there.

To my first love

One day, you will ask for my forgiveness.

And I will tell you this.

Where were your sweet words when your lies tainted my soul?

Where was your loyalty when your broken promises broke my heart?

Where were your tears when my eyes choked on mine?

Where was your heart when my beats fainted in my chest?

Where was your pain when mine ran through my veins?

Where was your love when mine for you lit through my eyes?

Where was your light when you captured the moon from my night?

Where was your depth when you took the pearls from my ocean?

Can you remove the darkness that you shed from my soul?

Can you mend the promises that you broke?

Can you cry my tears back into smiles?

Can you beat the beats back into my heart?

Can you cleanse the pain from my veins?

Or can you weave my love for you back into my eyes?

Can you put the moon back into my night?

Can I trust you with an ocean that you've already stolen?

My door is now closed

If it's my forgiveness that you want, take it.

It is not for you but for me.

Take it and walk away,
but don't you wait for more.

The doors you closed have been welded shut.
And the keys have been thrown into the heart of the sky.

Just get out of my way

You are weak. So weak.

Take my hand. Let me help you.

Please.

You build your self-esteem by breaking others'.

You love yourself by hating on others.

You raise yourself by stepping on others.

You build your empire by sending your arrows into the hearts of others.

You occupy their peaceful homes and claim them to be yours.

You are weak. So weak.

Because, without others, your home is empty.

Spit your venom.

And listen to me.

Take your arrows out of my heart.

Take your misery out of my home.

Watch me fly on the wings of the pain you caused me.

Watch me soar with the voice you thought I never had.

Watch me love with the heart you claimed I didn't have.

Wait.

Don't watch me.

Just get out of my way.

And let me be.

*For so long,
you made me feel that I was weak.*

*It is you who was weak for not feeling.
I was the hero*

for feeling.

I once felt this way about you

Your love flies my soul to the moon.
It makes the sun revolve around my heart and the stars dance in my eyes.

Your tenderness throws me in the ocean.
It plants pearls in my heart and lifts me to the sky.

Your touch sends butterflies down my veins.
It makes roses grow in my heart and sews my pains into traces of smoke.

Your strength cradles my heart to sleep.
It beats my heart to life and breathes my soul to paradise.

The whole world is mine

I once wrote you:
I don't care if the whole world looks in a direction opposite from mine.
If you look at me,
the whole world is mine.

I should have written that to myself.

Streets

If you knew how many streets I avoid to avoid you
and memories of you,
you would leave your streets and your cities.

If the streets I avoided to avoid you and memories of you knew, they would change their names so you could find other streets to put your footsteps on.

If only you knew.

When love escapes

I wonder at what point love escaped us and we became you
and
me.

I wonder when love decided to escape from our souls.
Or did our souls
let go
of love?

Prisons

We had a moment
once when I felt that we were one,
in the same feeling,
in the same soul.
But I've come to learn that these moments
can imprison us for years when they were only moments followed by many more that were not the same.

Rain

I am tired of looking out the same window, remembering the moments I was happy when I looked out,
because
now all I feel is sadness over that happiness
no longer being there.

Rainy days and rainy windows imprint moments on our hearts.

The pain of your silence

The moments that you choose to be silent when someone's soul is screaming at you,
begging you to say,
"My heart is with you," those moments leave scars on our souls
that no amount of excuses can erase.

If you love someone,
you love them.
You don't allow your pride to stop you from expressing your love to them.

If you expect them to understand your love through silence, don't be surprised when their soul slips out of your hands in silence.

*It's painful,
you know,
to not know what you mean anymore to the one whose love was louder than thunder at first.*

Sometimes, this is all you have to say:

You changed.

And that is painful.

The day I fell for you

“I don’t feel ready,”

I said.

“We’re never ready,”

you replied.

Now I know that you were talking about

life,

not just us.

Opening up

“I’m sorry if I stirred up unwanted memories,”

I said.

After moments of silence,
you said:

“Stirring is good.”

I wish I had never attempted to stir the chaos in your soul.

*The tornado within you took me
with it
by accident.*

2:37 a.m.

“Are you awake?”

“Yes.”

“I can’t sleep.”

“You should try.

Sweet dreams.”

That was you drawing me in and me

resisting

falling for you.

You knew it was wrong.

I wish you had done what was right.

I wish you never wanted to

You told me once, “You are a good woman.”

Thank you.

You don't have to say that.

“I don't say it because I have to.

I say it because

I want to.”

The day that uncertainty finally ended my patience with you

I said:

“I am so tired of not knowing what I am to you.
So I decided to walk away and send my love to you through thoughts and prayers.”

You said:

“Take a step back.
You’re overthinking again.
Take a deep breath.”

*I look back, and I wish I had told you,
“I am not your patient.”*

If you ever come back, I will tell you:

The sun is closer to you than I will ever be.

So burn,
if you wish.

You will not see the shadow of me even if you become the sun
yourself.

*I am not arrogant, but you left a scar on my heart that turns blue every time I think of
you.*

For every time you ignored me:

You make me
wait for you to decide that talking to me
is what you need.
You make me feel like what I have to say is not important.
You silence me through your silence.
You cage my heart
through your selfishness, and when I ask you why you're so quiet, you tell me that I am being selfish.

*Forgive me, your highness, for taking away from your time.
If you truly cared,
you would apologize for ignoring me, rather than bury me deeper into the ground.*

When I started feeling that you wanted to walk away

My heart tells me that your heart has abandoned
the idea of us.

You struggle to tell me that you no longer want me because you know,
you know,
that you will hurt me.

So you avoid saying what needs to be said.

You chain me every once in a while with a charming word or two.

You give me just enough hope to keep me holding on.

What a coward you are to not be able to face your own truth.

For every time I confronted you

*Every time I confronted you for doing what does not honor the meaning of
us:*

They say that time heals.
And you thought that meant if you ignored what I said for a while,
that I would forget it,
that I would come crawling to you,
begging you,
pleading my case,
asking you to forget what I said.
You thought I would remind you that my words came out of love for you, not wanting to punish you.

*No, sir,
no.
If my words are not worth your time, go find someone else to care about you.
If my words mean nothing
to you,
go find someone whose words mean something
to you.*

You took the easy way out

We both know the end has come,
but you do not want to tell me that because you know that I am a good woman,
as you told me many times.
To you,
it is much easier
to not say a word.
To me,
I choke on my words
if I do not say them.

*What truly hurts me is that you know that your silence
infects a storm in my mind, yet you choose it
oh so easily.*

Fate once told me

-Part 1-

And after all this time, fate whispered in my ear and said:

Slow down. Rest your heart.

In my hands, you are not only human.

You are much more.

Some days you will be tested.

Some days you will be the test.

Prepare to be failed.

Some days you will be the archer.

Some days you will be the goal.

Prepare to be hurt.

Some days you will open and close doors.

Some days you will be the key.

Prepare to be used and left behind.

Some days you will be the leader.

Some days you will be a follower.

Prepare to reach a destination other than your own.

Some days you will be inspired.

Some days you will be an inspiration.

Prepare to be just an idea.

You are destined to lose and be lost.

You are destined to walk some people home.

You are destined to wander.

You are destined to see perfection.

You are destined to be flawed.

But if you befriend me, I shall tell you the secret that will free your heart of its concerns.

-Part 2-

Worry not about the future.

You might not go there.

Live not in the past.

Its doors are locked.

Its keys are in the skies.

But remember this:

Your heart is a castle.

Guard it with a cage of gold.

Only he who is destined to enter it will seek the key.

Your mind is a kingdom of grace.

Keep its gates high and mighty.

Keep it guarded with your faith.

Befriend silence.

It never betrays you.

You are the master of your journey.

You are the owner of your path.

You are a bird, but unless you fly, you are not free.

Only after your wings are broken will you realize that freedom is in your hands.

So be free.

I read this to you

once

and you had nothing to say.

Perhaps it's because you knew that you were not the one destined

to enter my heart.

Perhaps it's because you knew *what a big mistake you were making by making me believe that you were the one destined

to enter my heart.*

You made me grieve you

The difference between you needing space for a while
and you needing space forever is this: Space makes me miss you, but an end makes me hate you for leaving when you promised you'd stay.

Please don't make me grieve you while you're still alive.

To those who think that love is a game

I don't play games.

And I don't play hard to get.

I don't keep you in suspense or fear that I will leave out of the blue.

I don't say what I don't mean just to charm you.

And I don't keep you waiting just so you can think that I'm too busy

for you

or that I'm not always thinking of you.

Because, if I love you, and want to spend the rest of my life with you,

I don't want to make you chase me.

I'm tired of running.

If I love you, you will take a front-row seat

in my mind,

because I respect your presence in my life as my companion.

You will be my number-one priority,

not because I'm weak or because I'm dependent on your love but because I'm a woman, not a girl.

Love is safe.

Love is vulnerable.

If you want someone who will make you run after her love, find her elsewhere.

That never was and never will be
me.

I am courageous

I am going back again to memories of you.

It makes me stronger when I see how far I've come from you.

What's no longer there

I choke on words that I want to say to
you,
questions that I want to ask
you.

But I would rather keep them inside of me and hurt than blame you for
me
choosing to believe everything you said.

Maybe you meant it all but you just don't feel it anymore.

I can't be angry with fate for not destining you for me, so I will let my words choke on my tears because I can't keep trying to find what's no longer there.

The verdict

We sat in the office of the judge, the one who was meant to help us end in peace.

I told you that if you told me that you truly cared about me and that you decided to walk away for reasons other than who I am,
that I would forgive you.
You looked down at your fingertips,
looked back up,
and said:
“I did not know that your love for me was this deep.”

*That is when I knew that you meant everything that you ever said,
but you did not know the depth of your own words.*

And maybe you walked away, not because of who I am, but because you didn't know how big the home I built for you was.

The reclamation

My soul is aching for me to come back to myself.

The medicine

When my soul aches
to the point of crushing, the only medicine
I need are the arms of my mother.

For every time I told you that you were distant

I look back to the day that I told you for the millionth time that I felt that you were distant.

You could have said: “I am with you,”
but you said: “Please.
Stop.
Obsessing.”

At that time, I did not know that your unwillingness to comfort me was a sign that I needed to walk away.

To the past me.
To my future daughter.
To you.

Don't fall in love with the first person who tells you that they love you.
It could be that they fell in love with the shape of your hips or the color of your eyes, the scent of your skin or the journeys that the sight of your lips takes them on.

They might not be seeing what you've been needing

to be seen about you.

They might not be hearing the voice

that you've been needing

to be heard.

Just because they're looking,
it does not mean that they're truly seeing.

Just because they're listening, it does not mean that they're truly understanding.

I wish I knew this back then, but how would I know this if it did not happen to me?

When you said I had father issues

You tried to tell me that the reason I loved you was that I had issues with my father's love for me.

It's a shame for you to belittle my love for you like that,
to say that I loved you to compensate for the love that I did not get from my father.

I love my father more than oceans love the reflection of the sky in them.

My father's love for me has drowned the oceans to raise me into the woman that I am.

*The love of no man could fulfill the love that you need to give yourself.
What about those who grew up with no father?
Are they incomplete?
Please don't blame anyone's lack of love for you for loving the wrong person.*

Filling the gaps

It is better to wait years for the right love
than to stay in love with someone who does not love you just so you can say that you are in love.

You cannot be anyone's savior

When you were carrying too many mountains
on your shoulders, I told you, "Your voice said more than your words
said."

Your voice struck thunder in my heart more than your words explained why you were so down.
You told me:
"I thought I was talking."

*You really did not talk.
You just wanted me to feel guilty for
you
feeling down,
to continue
asking you what was weighing so heavily on your heart, so I could figure out and offer to give you what you needed without you asking for it.*

The day you confessed your love

I waited to see you outside.

And with my heart beating outside my chest,

I said:

“Can we talk?”

“Of course,” you said.

*I still cannot finish this poem, because every time I think back to that day,
I feel like you stabbed my soul over and over
by telling me that you loved me when you truly did not love me.*

Covering up

I fell in love with you the day you showed me your soul.

And I spent days,
months,
and a year and part of a year realizing that you covered your soul again because you could not handle the love that I was touching you with.

The truth

I spent more time getting over you than I spent falling in love with you.

Loving backward

If I could turn back
words
and speak to you in time,
you would know that my love is timeless
and that years have no power to restrain the love that my heart can give.

*You allowed the years to sentence
your heart to a lifetime of no true,
deep,
and selfless
love.*

I fear that you'll return

The thought of you coming back scares the butterflies in my stomach.

It makes them escape through my soul.

You see,

I loved the person that you once
were,

not the person that you are today.

I know that if you come back, my heart will feel guilty

for not giving you a chance at revealing your soul again.

But

I know that I will feel forced to let you back in, as you forced me to let go of

you.

A taste of your own medicine

-Part 1-

I hope that you don't come back, but if you do,
I will tell you this:
When you let go of me,
I felt that I could not heal
unless you came back.
Your resistance taught me one of the best lessons that I ever learned.

It is not our need for someone that heals us, nor is it our want
for them.
No person can heal us.
Only
love
can.
And the same power that created humans with hearts
can create love too.

You were such a mountain when I wanted to get back into your life.
Thank you for forcing me to climb the heartache that you put me through instead of giving it back to me again.

-Part 2-

I used the bricks that you placed on my heart to build a home for the love
within me.

I filled it with love for sincerity,
kindness,
and honesty.

So I will force you out, and I hope that you will learn the same lessons that I learned.

I hope that you build the same home in your soul that I built in mine.

I will help you
just as you helped me:
by leaving the door of my heart closed
to you.

*I am not cold,
nor am I holding a grudge against you.
I don't believe in giving people a taste of their own medicine.*

*But
perhaps your broken soul that is hanging by a thread needs to shatter while knocking on my door
so that it can heal.*

I often wonder

I don't hate you.

I simply think it's impossible to hate someone you once truly loved.

But I often find myself wondering why you awakened within me the feelings that you were not willing to continue taking care of.

I never asked you to walk into my life.

Red lights

*Many times, at red lights,
I ache.*

What hurts more than anything when I think back to it all is how you say that it was all in my head.
“I never laid a hand on you,” you say.
“You talk as if we’ve been one for a decade,” you repeat.
Over and over.
Let me tell you,
sir,
that love that touches the
soul
for one moment transcends the mysteries of love that touches the body for decades.

Now that I know what I know, I am so thankful for not allowing your body to touch mine before I knew that your soul truly loved mine.

What truly haunts me

It is our story
that haunts me,
not wanting you back into my life.

It is not you that I cannot get over.

It is the pain and the wounds that keep bleeding every time I think of you or hear your name.

It is the scars that I have to hide everywhere I go that I cannot get over.

*When I think of you,
I don't see your face anymore.*

I see a shadow.

I see pain.

Yes, I

see

pain.

When sadness is the only home that welcomes you

I often come back to the memories of you
and the pain of you,
not because I want to be in pain,
not because I don't want to move on,
but because they are a home
that welcomes me more than my reality does.

*When you find comfort in sadness,
it means that you need to feel it
and walk it gently
out of your soul.*

I thank destiny

I used to say that

I lost you.

Then I said that you lost me.

Now I say that you were not meant for me and

I was not meant for

you.

Thank destiny for parting our ways

before one of our souls bled to death.

Empty words

Don't tell me that words
mean nothing with no action.

You only say it when it is convenient for
you.

We have betrayed our words by saying that promises mean nothing.

Where trauma lives

I have scars on my bones from broken promises.

Betrayal

You came to me with broken wings.
I helped you heal your wounds
by pouring love into the broken pieces of
your soul.
You flew away
when your wings were healed.
You left me here,
chained to the ground,
trying to remove the shards that got stuck in my own wings as I took them out of yours.

Where did gratefulness go?

I will not let your deception make me not help more broken wings out there.

Your lack of gratitude will not make me not give.

I do not give just to be thanked.

But it does not mean that it does not hurt.

Console your soul

It hurts me that someone like you hurt a kind soul like mine and turned around to say that something was wrong with me.

I console myself by reminding myself that while I am sitting here wondering what is wrong with
me,
you
are the one who is broken.

You are the one who needs fixing,
not me.

Your wings may have healed enough to allow you to fly, but your soul has not healed if it has not learned to give,
to apologize,
and to face its own truth.

Overdose

Your heart walked away before you did.

*I must have overdosed on the idea of
you.*

After you said your goodbye

One day,
I will look back to you.
You will either be the best thing that ever happened to me or the worst mistake I ever made.
But what I know for now is this:
You leaving hurts like death, but I owe it to myself to not hold on to what let go of me.
So today, my love,
I say my goodbye to you too.

How many times will I say this before I stop thinking back to you?

It's them, not love

I loved you the right kind of love, but time
was not on my side.

*I learned to differentiate between loving the right way
and loving the right person.*

Patience

Don't seek love just to be in love.

*Better wait years for the right person than wait years
for the right love
from the wrong person.*

I am worthy

When a new opportunity for love comes your way, do not judge it based on what your last partner had that the new one does not have.

Do not base it on how thankful you are that the new one does not have the same flaws

that the old one had that you hated.

Base it not on how good the new person is.

Base it on who they are.

Base it on whether their journey fits with yours.

The source of your love is you

You will keep getting let down and let go
by them until you realize the importance of you holding your soul together, until you realize the importance of you keeping yourself lifted up.
You.
Yourself.
Without anyone.

*I wish you knew how much beauty is within
your soul.
You do not need anyone to love you to feel that you are worthy of being loved.*

Give your love back to yourself

You love those who don't love you, to the point of giving them your soul if they needed it.

But you cannot love your own soul to make sure that it is stitched together?

Isn't the love that you give them a reflection of the love that your soul contains?

So if they don't want that love, why don't you give it back to yourself?

You become empty when all you do is give without giving your own self.

The one who deserves you will tell you:

Tell me your fears, and I will fight them
with you.
Your fears are not bigger than us.
I have fears too.
Let's walk through our fears together
to get to the safety that our souls
long for.

Hanging on to nothing

How many times do we have to end this before we really end it?

Stop trying to beat feeling out of their silence.

The moment I fell from your heart

I knew that I fell from your heart
the night that sleep fell from my eyes
because of your pain.

You really are not the reason

I am tired of looking for reasons.

I know that I am a good person.
How could I
be the reason for this end?

Nothing that you could give me back

I told you that I was in pain, and when you asked me why,
I told you that you took so much from me.
I gave you
love.
I gave you
time.
I believed in you.
But you turned out to be the biggest disappointment of my life.
You asked me what you owed me, and I told you, “Nothing that you could give me back.”

Scars

Some scars are seared
on our souls for eternity to witness.

Trauma

My heart aches in corners
I did not know existed.

Flashback

“You love too hard,”

he said.

“It’s the only way to love,”

I replied.

I am tired of every person coming my way telling me that I am too needy for love.

I am not needy for love.

I just love.

New love

To you,
reading this,
I will not tell you that “you’ll know” or that “time will heal” because, to you, my words might sound like they once sounded to me, but

I will tell you that I would not trade all of the waiting and all of the pain for the beauty that these two moments spilled in my heart when I felt them.
You will feel like your heart
was lifted from the depth of this heavy ocean,
and on your wings
that you thought were broken, your heart will fly and,
in a new sky,
build a home.

Let your scars speak

Don't quickly tell your new love
about your first one.
Let not your new relationship be based on a broken one.

Talk about the life that you both
want,
not the life that you had.
Talk about your pains,
not your wounds.

And if you have scars,
let your scars speak
their stories on their own.

*If you choose not to listen to this advice,
that is okay too.
Just be aware of the reasons
that you share what you choose to share.*

For your new love

When two sad souls
meet, silence
of the lips becomes so beautiful as both souls dance in understanding.

Love the pieces

Breathe love into the broken pieces of their soul.

When each piece is loved on its own, they gravitate toward one another to become whole
again.

*Put your soul back together
first.*

Wholeheartedness

Allow your eyes to speak a story that words cannot explain.

Allow your smile to sing a beautiful melody
to the beats of your heart.

Allow your heart to beat to the rhythm of a happiness untold.

Allow your mind to sail a thousand ships to the shore of serenity.

Be brave.

Be happy.

Authentic love

If they don't fall in love with your mind,
their love for you
will not overcome the storms.

*If it was my heart that you loved and my mind that you valued,
you would have never let go
of my hand.*

You were never deep

I drowned in your
sky,
but you flew over my ocean.

*You were never deep, but I was brave enough to fly
when my wings were still young.*

Un-lose yourself

I once wrote:
I fear one day that you will forget me like I forgot myself the day
I loved you.
If you forget me,
and I forget me,
who will remember
myself back to
me?

*Now I know that loving someone does not mean losing yourself.
Instead, it means finding yourself.*

Tainted memories

I take the longest routes to avoid the places that remind me
of you:
the place you told me that you loved me,
the place I told
you that I loved
you.

The places that remind me of you remind me of everything that I wanted to be
to you
and everything that I am not
to you.

Wanted.
Am not.

Reminiscing

Carry my heart
with your soul.
I beg you.
Rock my fears to sleep.
Love my soul
back to life.

*Why was I asking you to do what I needed to do
myself?*

They tell me to forget about you

They tell me to forget about
you because you're not worth it.

As if I haven't tried.

Believe me when I say that if I could,
I would erase

you from my life
forever,
but you are always on my mind, even when I hate you.

*I do not hate
you.*

When you think that they'll come back

If you gave them
once
the love that they did not deserve,
they will come back for more.
They will deny that they ever caused you pain.
They will deny that they ever poisoned your soul,
and they will come back asking for more.
You gave it once.
They know that you will give it
again.

*Why do you fixate
so much on what they might do?
To heal,
you should focus on what you
do.
Not them.*

Gaslighting of the soul

They do everything to dim
your light,
and then they ask you why you're not shining.

If I could turn back time

If I could turn back time, you would still lie to me, and I would still believe you.
I am made of unconditional belief in goodness, and you decided to put your goodness to sleep.
What I believe in defines me, not what you say about me.
And what you believe in defines you, not what you say about yourself.

Wrapped gifts

I can't tell you how to love me, but I can tell you this.

I don't want wrapped

gifts or wrapped words.

I want

sincerity and honesty.

If it doesn't feel like love, don't do it. Don't say it.

Weary sky

*You asked me what I wanted
from you.
So I told you.*

Speak to me in roses.
Sing my worries to sleep.
Rock my sadness away.
Crown my heart with your respect.
I told you.
Engulf my heart into yours.
Because a love like that lights up any weary sky.

My sky had been weary for way too long when I wrote this to you.

I miss you every time it rains

I miss you every time it rains and every time
the sun shines bright.
The rain reminds me of the purity of your voice, and the sun reminds me of the beauty of your presence.

*It's okay to miss you.
It only means I once loved you.*

*It's not you I miss.
It's who you used to be.*

Now I just feel pain

I fell in love with you little by little and in more than one place.
I left a piece of your love in each place
forever.

I used to feel drowned in your love every time I visited any of those places,
and my face would turn red because of the depth of my love for you.

Now I just feel pain.

It's not that I want your love back.

It's just that I no longer wish to be in places where I once felt loved when that love has faded into pain now.

A new man's love does not heal you

The harder it rained, the more I knew that I was falling in love
with you.

The rain of you,
the droplets of you,
were taking away the pain
of me
and quenching the thirst of the soul in me.

*Now I know that no one can take away my pain.
My pain is my own
to make my own nectar.*

The cleanse

Rain planted
you in my heart
like rain cleansed me from your pain.

You choose

To you,
The tears that they caused you can be just tears or rain that cleanses
the sorrows out of
your soul.
You choose.

Poison

My heart drowned in the venom of your words
as they slithered their way into my self-worth,
broke my faith in kindness, and tainted my innocence.
They ran through my veins like poison
and cast the night over my soul.
But my words were stronger, my purity screamed louder, and the pieces of my soul revolted.
They reclaimed the throne of my dignity that you unlawfully occupied.

I should have known to walk away the first time you blamed me for you choosing to break me with your words.

The chosen one

The day you walked into my life, I felt like the chosen one.
How could a king like him love a free soul like mine?
*How could he love you, you fool?
The distance you'd have to run is far.
Too far.
And the soldiers of the battles you'd have to win are gone.
Long gone.
He's championed wars,
and you're still training to fight.
He's run marathons,
and you're still learning to walk.
He's conquered cities,
and you're still learning the maps.
He's sailed oceans,
and you're still building your boat.
It must be your foolish mind crafting stories with invisible ink
and reading between lines that don't exist.*
Then you told me that you loved my smile.
And the time after that,
you asked me what perfume it was that I wore.
I felt so lucky that a man like you wanted me in a kingdom like yours.
And when the gates opened and I entered inside, I saw nothing that pleases the eye.
You see, you worked so hard to build your fort but forgot to tidy what's inside.
The years had tainted your every corner with the torture that you'd inflicted on every visitor.
And now I look back and think what a fool you were to think that you could conquer a queen's kingdom like mine.
What a fool.

Noble love

You waltzed your way into my life when you knew that the entry was forbidden.
I never knew that love could be forced into a human's heart until you forced me to love you.
You convinced me that loving you would be noble, because who would love someone like you but “a heart of gold”?
You told me that you loved how innocent my vision of the world was,
how nonjudgmental my heart could be.
You told me that you loved my honesty, sincerity, and kindness, and a few more things that made blood rush to my face.
I was a free bird.
You broke my wings and caged me in your misery.
You asked me to stay when you knew that you should have let me go.
And when you decided that you no longer needed me, you let go of my hand.
You told me to take a step back and give my head a shake.
You told me that I was delusional
and that your words were just words.
I used to sing melodies;
now I cry tears.
I get lost in thought sometimes,
and I wonder to myself,
if it was noble to love a man like you, is it not disgraceful to torture a woman like me?

Invisible threads

The tears storming in my heart woke me up as the night sky rained invisible threads
like the ones you weaved.
They asked me,
“What would you tell your daughter if her heart cries this way over a man
one day?”
That is when I knew
every answer
I needed to know.

An unwanted memory

I used to write my poems for
you.

Now I write to forget about you.

And it's sad, because I remember you now that you're gone more than I remembered you when you were still here.

I wish I never asked you

*I tell the traces of your memories,
the face that is no longer one I wish to see,
and the love that no longer feels like love:*

Love me because you want to,
not because I ask you to.

It's still raining

One rainy day, when it was clear to me that you loved me, I was too afraid to admit that I loved you in return.
You asked me how I was doing, and I just told you that I loved it when it rained.
A few moments of beautiful silence passed us by where I felt your love raining,
hailing,
into my heart.
I knew that I was in too deep when you said:
"It's still raining."

*If I wrapped you inside my heart to make you feel the pain that you planted in my heart the moment you walked away, you would never walk away.
And I would be wrapped in your arms right now,
not your memories.*

Unwelcome scars

My soul is aching to let you go
when corners of you are still imprinted so vividly in my soul.

*You said you loved scars
because they tell stories.
Look at the story that you left to intrigue every visitor after you.*

I truly believed you would stay

I miss you, but I don't have the right to miss you.

There is a part of you
that felt like home,
and I cannot find it in anyone new.

You asked around why I found it so hard that you walked away.

Everyone before you walked away.

And you were the first person I truly believed would stay.

But you too walked away.

Trapped

I find myself trapped in the corners of your mind.

Please let me out.

Now I know that it was not you who needed to release me.

*It was me who needed to release
you
and release
me.*

Choose to let go

Letting go does not mean that you are giving up or that you are weak.

It could just mean that you are no longer allowing what hurts you to control you.

*Even if they are the ones who want
you
to let go of them, tell yourself that you are letting them go because you want to.*

*You are not obeying
them.*

*You are liberating
your soul.*

Your voice will roar one day

Your voice might feel faint now, perhaps an echo or even a whisper.

Your wings might feel broken now, perhaps exhausted or too weak to fly.

Your heart might hurt now, perhaps too sensitive or too fragile to feel.

Your light might seem dim
right now,
perhaps trying to shine when it's already light outside.

And perhaps you will not believe me when I tell you, but I will tell you.

Your voice will roar one day,
and they will have to listen.

Your wings will spread one day, and they will watch you fly higher.

You will heal one day,
and you will fly over the walls that they built in your face.

Your light will strike through the sky one day,
for you are the sun.
And the sun rises
every day.

Softness is not weakness

If you tell me that softness
is weakness,
don't you dare tell me that hardness is strength.

If you tell me that kindness
is weakness,
don't you dare
tell me that bitterness is strength.

Sir, take your cruelty
out of my kingdom.
And allow my soft heart to crown my mind with the strength in my kindness.

*I scream this in your face,
in my mind,
every time I remember that time you told me that I was too soft.*

Every day, tell yourself this:

Keep your heart kind no matter how dark the world gets.
You own only yourself.
You can only control your actions.
Keep your heart beautiful.
The world needs that.

*I say it to myself
too.*

Never change your heart

May the beauty of your heart be the reason they love you.

Never change your heart just to change who loves you.

A message to the one who broke me

I hope from the bottom of my heart that no one ever hurts you the way you hurt me.
I could easily wish you pain, but you hurt me so much that I would never wish it upon my enemies, let alone someone I loved.

Know who needs help

It's simple.
If they hurt
you,
they need help,
not
you.

I see your pain

To you, and to the me who stared at the mirror for hours seeing someone foreign to the soul that disappeared from my eyes:

I see your pain,
and I find myself wishing that I could take it away.

It pains me because I understand exactly how you feel.

And when I was in your shoes, all I wanted to hear was “I understand.”

So I will tell you now:
I understand, and it's okay that you are hurting, because that means that you are human.

I understand.

The struggle to get you out of my head

You are the beginning and the end of my every story.

Day.

And night.

Leave my endings.

I beg you.

No one can own your heart

It's a shame for you that you chose not to fight the wars
in my battlefield.

It's a shame for you
that you were a coward and waved your white flag.

You surrendered.

What a shame.

The king who will own my heart must be brave enough to endure the chaos of purity within
me.

Now I know that no king can

own

my heart.

I am the owner of my own empire.

Healed wings

The same light that attracted the butterfly in me
to you
is the one that wounded my wings
and stopped me from flying.
But I got back up,
darling,
and my wings
are so much stronger than they were before.

*Broken wings are a sign of struggle.
And strength.*

*When you walk away from the source of pain,
you start healing.*

Other places

What will you say when they ask you, “Why did you let her go?”
If it was her sadness, that is what made her real.
If it was her sensitivity, that is what made her considerate.
If it was her unconditional love for you, that is what made her loyal to you.
But it's true, you know, that we walk away from what is real because we're too afraid of staying in one place.
She built a home for you, but you still had other places to see.

My future son

When you find her,
put diamonds on her heart before you put them on her ring.

If it hurts your soul, let go of it

You left my soul through my tears.

Extracting you from inside of me
took the sadness
out of me.

When they pretend not to know what you want

If I have to tell you how to love me
or what to tell me, keep your love and
keep your words.
I don't want them.

Break

Break.

Let your soul
discover the power it has to build a masterpiece.

*That masterpiece is
you.*

As you heal from trauma, remember this

You are not what they did to
you.

You are not the pain that they caused
you.

You are a hero who endured the struggle.

I salute you.

How narcissists keep you under control

After you finally close your door,
some will come back to knock, just to check whether you will open or not.

If you do,
they will pretend that they are only visiting to see how you are doing.

They really are checking if you still care.

How love works

Everyone who tells you that they know how love works tells you what did not work for them.

Just because it did not work for them, it does not mean that it will not work for you.

Some fall in love in moments, and some fall after days.

Some fall in love over the years, and some spend years falling
in love.

Some realize after years that it was not
love.

Some fall in love with their eyes.
Some fall in love with what they hear.
Some fall in love with the feeling of falling
in love.

Some express their love with words.
Some express their love with action.
Some express their love through touch.
And some need touch to feel love.

Some need flowers to feel loved.
Some need diamonds to feel loved.
Some need words, and some need promises.

In love,
you get what you accept.
In love,
you get what giving
gives your soul.

I've learned not to listen to what doesn't work but to what does work.

To my new love

Forgive me if my insecurities are speaking loudly.
When you are afraid of not being loved for who you are,
because you have been not loved and told that it was because of who you are,
your insecurities start speaking.
I let you see my insecurities because I want to see you fall in love with me
and my insecurities.

Wilted flower

You would think that a wilted flower
could not possibly wilt anymore.

Look at me,
and you will understand.

*I say this every time
my soul
feels exhausted but the nectar in me reminds me of the love in me.*

It will be painful

Believe me when I tell you that the sadness in your soul will leave.

And trust me when I tell you that you have the power to decide when you want it to leave.

It will be painful.

It will be a mountain.

It will be an uphill battle.

But once you finally cleanse it out, happiness will trickle in like raindrops
quenching the thirst of your soul.

Don't move the mountain.

Climb it.

You don't need someone to complete you

You deserve the kind of love that will make you want to be a better person, for you first
and then for them.

Promise me that you
will not accept less.

Promise me that you
will not compromise your own inner beauty to have anyone
"complete" you or to have anyone
make you feel
"worth it."

You are worth it.

No doubt.

So please.

Please.

Do not accept less.

Tell their voices:

No.

I am not what you say of me.

No.

I am
what I do.

Just like you are not what I say of you.

No.

You are what you do.

A question with no answer

Why did you tell me what you did not mean and then punish me for believing you?

They need love

Their failure to love themselves
should not make you hate them.
They need love.
Love them.

*I can't tell you that you will not get hurt.
Just remember that light breeds light.
Spread light.
It will come back to you
one day,
some way,
somehow.*

Believe in yourself

If you don't believe in yourself,
don't expect
anyone to believe in you.

Smile

Your smile makes you beautiful.

Keep smiling.

You don't know whose day your smile will make.

*I hope that your smile makes your day
first.*

I don't want you

Yesterday, you chose to leave.

And today,

I

am choosing to let you go.

Because

I

don't want

you in my tomorrow.

What I choose

today

frees my soul from carrying the mountains from my yesterday to my tomorrow.

On the verge of relapse

If you know the end, don't start.

*Only when you know that going back to your source of pain
is what you want to restart.*

When they gaslight you

They shatter your pieces,
and then they tell you that they cannot love someone who's this broken.

*They forbid you to blame them, so you start blaming
yourself.*

Resilience

If they cut down the tree that you're resting on,
spread your wings and seek another tree.

And on the way,
explore the wonder
around you.

Learn when to face the wind and when to walk with it.

Your strength comes from within you.

Don't ever allow anyone to bully you into feeling weak

or into feeling like your strength depends on their approval.

Be your own judge.

You are your own judge.

I will heal

I sincerely hope that your soul finds peace.
You broke me, but it was only because you were broken.
I will heal because I know that I need to,
but I worry that you will never realize that you are in need of healing.

I will tell you again and again

I hope that your soul finds peace
and that your heart reaches
home.

I hope that lights
light up your way and that happiness
takes over the pains of your yesterday.

Set peace to the fire in your soul.

After I finally accepted your goodbye

I told you how much I loved you and how much you loving me meant to me.

I told you that if I looked at my whole life, you were one of the best things that happened to me.

I asked you to forgive me for all of the hurtful words that I said.

I only said them because I was so angry that you stopped loving me.

So you said: "Okay."

And I said:

"This is exactly why we are here.

I deal with my feelings by expressing them, and you deal with yours by avoiding them."

We both went silent.

You, because you knew I was saying
the truth,

and me, because I knew there was nothing left to say.

The day I decided to forgive you

Today,

I decided to forgive you.

Not because you apologized or because you acknowledged the pain that you caused me but because my soul deserves
peace.

I will not deny my soul its rights.

Crossroads

It took losing
you
to find myself.
The day that you walked away from
me,
I started taking footsteps toward myself.

*Thank you
for putting me at the crossroads between finding myself and making you want me.
I chose me.*

No one wants to be alone

The places that do not want
you are mirrors of the corners in your soul that are afraid to be alone.

When sadness builds a home inside of you

Some kinds of sadness don't leave us,
not because we want to be sad but because we want to keep reminding
our souls
of how brave they were to overcome such
pain.

*I hope that you have the courage to allow peace
into your soul,
because you are peace,
and peace is you.
You deserve peace,
and peace deserves
you.*

When you feel like no one loves you

Why do you want the
love
of those who do not love you
and then complain that no one loves you?
They are not everyone for you to say that no one loves you.

*I hope you find a love that builds you,
empowers you,
and strengthens you.
I hope you find a love that makes you love
to love.*

Silence their silence

You are unique, and that's a fact.

Your existence is in your hands.

So let it shine.

Let it inspire.

Let it be free.

Love,

you are the sun.

Don't you let their silence

tell you otherwise.

How you should feel

I know that it's hard.

I also know that it's temporary.

It is building
you.

Stay strong.

The storm will be over soon.

Tell these words to anyone struggling before you tell them how they should or should not feel.

Perhaps

Perhaps you loved the person that you wanted them to be.

*And perhaps,
just perhaps,
they loved you because you loved who they wanted to be.*

But people change.
You don't have to understand
the reasons.

*Sometimes, our need for closure
delays the closure.*

Empathy

May the pain of the hurt that they caused
you
stop you from hurting anyone else, because you know how the pain feels.

Let pearls drop from your words

You are an oyster of
love,
kindness,
and truth.

Choose to leave

Sometimes, you can't just wait for the tables to turn.

Sometimes, you have to change the table that you are sitting at.

You are bigger than revenge.

You are bigger than karma.

Keep your soul pure.

Where you left me

-Part 1-

One day, you will look back to find me
where you left me.
You will find the chains that you left on my heart
where you left me.
You will find the shattered pieces of the broken promises that you made lying on the ground
where you left me.
You will find the suffocating aches that you caused my heart flying in the air
where you left me.
But, no, my love,
you will not find me.
The wind will tell you that the poison you left me with poisoned the hatred inside of me that I had for myself.
The poison that you left me with poisoned my inability to forgive my soul for suffocating my soul.
The wind will tell you that I am free.
You planted me like a tree
where you left me.
But did you know, my love, that I was a bird?
And birds cannot be tamed.

-Part 2-

I found my freedom
where you left me.

I spread my wings
where you left me.

So wait for me, my love.
Perhaps I will show up in a dream,
or a wish,
or a soft breeze,
where you left me.

Cry your heart back together

You are so afraid of allowing the ocean within you to rage through your eyes.

Did you not know that
your soul
suffocates on the tears that you hold in out of the fear of them seeing that you are weak?

Crying is not weakness.

Crying is the resilience of your soul in the purest form.

The thing about cowards

You don't have to wait for people to tell you that they're walking away.
People don't always communicate through words.

Actions speak louder than words,
remember?

If they're gone through action, then let them go.

What good do words do when the action
has already been done?

*Your fear of saying that you no longer wished to stay put my soul through confusion and guilt for uttering the words that you could not say:
"I think this is the end."*

I will not wait for you to regret losing me

I will not wait for you to regret losing me.

Does the sun wait for the earth to regret turning?

Does the moon wait for the night to regret ending?

The sun remains the sun, and the moon remains the moon.

I will remain myself with or without your acknowledgment of my value.

Back then,

I used to say that

I didn't want you to regret losing me.

I wanted you to not lose me.

*I wanted you to
stay.*

I will tell this to my daughter one day

You may charm them with your smile.

You may catch their attention with your eyes.

You may hypnotize them with your glow.

A look from your eyes
may be their goal.

But if your heart is truly sincere,

you will let go of all of this.

You may ask why.

Let me tell you.

One day, your smile will look a lot less charming.

One day, your eyes will be a lot less piercing.

One day, your glow will be colonized by wrinkles.

Who will look at your heart then?

Definitely not those who did not see it when your youth was at its best.

Please do not let superficial attention fool you.

Let true love seep through
your soul,

into your heart,

past your outer shell.

Another love

Can a heart contain two beats at once?

Can a sun rise upon you twice a day?

Can you take two breaths
at once?

Can your face contain a genuine smile with a grieving tear?

How many words can your lips pronounce
at once?

How many roads can your feet bear
at once?

And can you for a second be in two places
at once?

Can the sun rain?

Can the clouds shine?

Can you live two lives at once?

Tell me now.

Can a heart fit two loves
at once?

Do not ever accept being another love in a person's

heart.

Know thyself

After all of this,
I realize that you never really knew me.

I never really knew me either.

Don't base your self-worth on the words of those who don't even know the real you, including you.

Before I fell in love, I always knew I wanted this

I want you to love my heart before you love my face, love my vision
before you love my eyes, love my wisdom before you love the comfort that my thoughts give you, love my silence
before you love my words, love my compassion
before you love how helpful I can be, love the person that I am before you love the person that I want to be.
Respect me
before you love me.
I promise you no less than that in return.

Now I know that saying this is not enough.

The love that you accept is the love that you will get.

Do you feel loved?

It is not love if it does not make you feel loved.

I see sadness in your eyes

I see sadness in your eyes, and I don't understand it.

I don't understand why it's there, and I don't understand why I see it.

Tell me, where did you get the strength to build a home for sadness in the sea of your eyes?

Did you use bricks of tears to build its walls?
Did you make a garden around it with every love that you loved that broke you?

Tell me, did you protect it with every hollow hope you had?

Open the door
and let it leave.

Allow happiness to colonize this home.

*I wish someone told me this when sadness drowned my heartbeats.
So I say it to
you.*

What you don't need

You do not need what does not want
you.

You should not want what does not want
you.

*I beg you to keep your soul
healthy.*

All of the times I broke my soul

When I decided to walk away from this shadow of what I convinced myself was love:

You don't want me to leave,
but you will not say or do anything that tells me that you want me to stay.
Only after I leave, you choose to claim that I
broke your soul.

*And all the times that I
broke my soul in front of
you, shattering my tears through
my eyes,
telling you that I love you
and that I need to feel your presence meant absolutely nothing to you.*

When preparing for them to leave If things between us come to an end, I hope I have the courage
to say that it was just not meant to be.
I hope that my mind does not think back to every word
you said,
because the moment you decide to walk away
is the moment you prove that you never meant a word you said.
I hate lying,
and I hate hatred,
so I hope I have the courage not to hate you but only hate what you did.

*There is no right way to prepare for their departure.
It is just like preparing for someone you love
to die.
You don't want them to.
But they do.*

Unsent letters

I burned all of the unsent
letters inside of me
for you.

I do not want your
love
if you do not come with it.

*Today,
I choose to start something new.*

I did not want your soul to leave

I listen to the sound of the same rain that I listened to the night that your love fell into my soul.

And I cry my tears as I feel this new rain cleansing my soul of you.

I did not want your soul to leave, but I cannot force you to stay.

I beg you to leave

Why are you insisting on staying in my mind?

You're the one who decided to leave.

You left before I could even taste the nectar in you.

After I forgot you

They told me that they saw you knocking on my door
with roses in your hands.
You thought I'd be waiting,
but
I built myself a new home.

Thank you for remembering me
after I forgot you.

I knew you better than you knew yourself

I attached myself to the parts of you that you yourself
were not attached to.

Attachment detaches you from yourself.

Do not settle

Stop building
castles in skies
that are not your own.

*Do not settle for the parts of them that no one else
wanted.*

You are too precious

You will one day meet someone who will make room in their soul for the beautiful pieces of
you.

*May their soul be the home
of your love, because homes
protect,
and your love is a pearl:
too precious.*

Roses and thorns

I want your roses with your thorns.
Roses are tender.
They will soothe my heart.
Thorns are sharp.
They will teach me how not to use the thorns of my own.

Be mindful of why you do what you do

Choose them because
you love them,
not because you are afraid of being alone.

Choose them because they are right for
you,
not because you want to be with someone.

*It's simple,
I know,
but we often forget what we know in pursuit of what we want.*

The nectar in you

Just like their love for
you
fell out of them,
new people will come whose love for
you will make love fall back into
you.

*The nectar of your pain
will attract the right humans to you.*

Falling in love

It is not love that you fall
into.

It is love that falls into you.

The way home

Even though your eyes speak of the broken promises that someone once made,
someone's eyes
somewhere
will speak of the love that they have for your brokenness.

*All of the places that let you
go
are leading you to your
home.*

When you try to forget them while they still control you

I forgot to forget about
you when I tried to forget
you.

*I run from you
to
you.*

*You are every destination
I ever knew.*

Now that my heart is broken

You broke my heart into pieces.

Now that it's open,
I can see how much love it has inside.

I can see how much love
every piece of it deserves, and that's not the love that you gave me.

So thank you for allowing me to see how much love
I have inside of me.

*There is a sadness attached to some endings that no beginning
can ever erase.*

My heart tells me every night

Let go of the hurt.

Let go of the pain.

Stay pure,

as you've always been.

Forgive them.

Forgive yourself.

Release them.

Release yourself.

Tomorrow is a new day.

Fall asleep with nothing in your heart but

love.

I am sensitive

I am sensitive.

It means that when I laugh,

I laugh my heart out.

And when I cry,

the birds in the sky

cry with me.

When I see pain in your eyes,

I feel it in my heart.

My sensitivity makes me real.

If you want me,

know that I will not leave my sensitivity to be loved by anyone.

Twenty years

You chose to let me go.
My gift to you is twenty years of letting go of you.

*When they see that you actually moved on,
they might come back and tell you that they are happy that you gave them space and that you've become in control of your emotions.*

*Don't fall for that.
They only want the thrill of having you care about them again,
and once you do,
they will walk away.
Again.*

You say that I mean nothing to you

You say that I mean nothing
to you,
but you search for my eyes in the face of every woman you meet.

You search for my warmth in the soul of every woman you seek.

You think that if time and circumstance forced you to force me out of your life,
that time and circumstance owe you
a woman like me.

Search, my darling.
Search.

I do not come twice in the eternity that passed nor in the one to come.

Clear skies

Your sky no longer means a thing
to me,
for I am in a totally different universe.

Keep your clouds out of my sky.

Pain that you cannot express

The worst kind of pain
is the one that you feel but cannot express.

Your words cause a storm inside of you, trying to escape through your eyes or your skin, but your silence cages them inside.

Stay

You asked me:

“How can I make the ending of us
easier on you?”

“Stay.”

In a coffee shop

In a coffee shop
one day,
you will see me sitting next to the window, sipping on my coffee
the same way
I used to
and looking out the window
the same way

I used to.

You will wonder if I still think about you
the same way

I used to or if I am still waiting for you to come back
the same way

I used to.

*You better walk away, because I no longer crave you in my life
the same way
I used to.*

Oh, little voice of mine

Oh, little voice of mine, they want to weaken you.

Stay strong.

They want to silence you.

Stay alive.

They want you to follow.

Revolt.

They want you to speak to impress them.

Speak honestly.

They want to dim your grace.

Stay kind.

Oh, little voice of mine, remember when you're heard one day to give a voice to the unheard.

I am my own savior

You escaped my soul
through my tears.
My love for you was as deep
as the ocean,
and that's how far down I dove.
I cried enough to fill the ocean and float my soul back to shore.

If you ever think of revenge

I hope one day when the tables turn that I am no longer sitting at them.

I have no interest in helping karma
take its course, nor am I interested in treating them
the way they treated
me.

The run

We run from attachment to attachment,
as if that is the solution.

The problem is that we fail to love ourselves without someone loving us.

And we fail to see our self-worth without someone seeing it.

Do not detach from yourself to attach to someone else.

Too fragile

I am so afraid of giving you the pieces of my soul that I gave before.

They are still hurting and perhaps too fragile to trust again.

When new love comes along, it might feel like this

Your kind of love makes me want to love
again.

It makes me want to forget about every love that turned out to be not love

and fly into the ocean of
you
and dip into the sky of
you.

*You left too.
But thank you for allowing me to write about love
again.*

The clouds in my soul

If your sky is a lot clearer without
me,

I will not be a cloud
in your space.

May the love that finds you put sunshine in your sky.

I will work on cherishing
the clouds in my soul
that cause rainbows
after the rain.

Leave me to my sadness

Leave me to my sadness if you
do not understand it.

Don't pretend to care if you don't.

Don't pretend to know the way.

Because you don't.

No one does.

Let the pain hurt

Why do you love feeling when you fall in love but hate it when you're in pain?

How do you expect pain to leave you if you
do not feel it so it can leave
you?

Let it hurt you.

Let it drain you.

Let it destroy you.

For only after your destruction will you rebuild an extraordinary masterpiece of your soul and say:

“I own all that I am.”

So go ahead. Crumble.

Why do you still believe them?

Just because they deny that they caused you
pain, it does not mean that they didn't.

It's not love

If you have to beg for their love,
it's not love.

Giving love because you feel it is different from giving it because you have to.

To the one who comes into my life

I don't want the stars.

I want you to capture them in my eyes as you look my way.

I don't want the moon.

I want you to capture its light and guide our way through the darkest of nights as you hold my hand.

I don't want the sun.

I want you to use its beautiful rays to put color into the memories that we make together.

I don't want empty words.

I would rather meaningful silence.

I don't want things.

I want happiness.

*I knew that I started healing
when I started seeing a future
beyond you.*

When new love knocked on my door

- Part 1 -

I dove into the ocean before I knew how to swim.

I aimed for the sun
before I had my wings.

I built castles in the sky and forgot to build the stairs.

I claimed a crown,
but there was no kingdom in the land.

And when it all came crumbling down, I abandoned my oceans.

I abandoned the skies.

I vowed off building castles.

I vowed off having dreams.

I vowed off jumping because I've fallen before.

I vowed off venturing without knowing where my destination was.

I vowed off feeling.

I vowed off love.

- Part 2-

And out of nowhere, you just came, asking me where I came from and what was my name.

I can tell that you're honest.
I can tell that you're genuine.

Your values and principles are everything I've ever wished for.

But where did you come from,
asking me to trust again?

Where did you come from,
asking me to start all over again?

Where did you come from,
asking me to smile again?

Where did you come from,
asking me to love again?

What trauma feels like

I am still bleeding from my first wound.

Tragedy

Don't think that your departure carving a scar into my soul
was the tragedy.

The tragedy of someone leaving
has been the definition of my life.

The true tragedy is that you had the chance to be different and stay.

You are no different from anyone who came before you.

If you wanted to be different, you should have stayed.

The bigger tragedy

To choose to fall in love is to choose to take a risk.

To be hurt or let go is a tragedy.
And it is possible.

But to choose to not take the risk and miss the chance of finding the love of your life is a bigger tragedy.

And it is also possible.

I lost your nothing

I stopped choosing you months after you stopped choosing
me.

You let me go so easily because you never really cared about me.

And if you did,

I was not worth the fight.

I could not let you go because I loved you more than anything.

You lost my love, and

I lost your

nothing.

Congratulations on losing a love like mine.

You were my home

You had my wings chained to the ground.

And when you let me

go,

I struggled to fly

on my own.

You were my home.

I did not want to leave.

But now, the higher

I fly,

the smaller you become in my eyes.

*Perhaps you could not contain me because you knew I was a bird and that I would leave
one day.*

When they minimize your pain

They minimize your pain by telling you that you have no right to feel a certain way.
As if they are the ones breathing for
you,
living for
you, feeling for
you.

They don't know that feeling takes courage
and healing takes time.

But you know that, so have the courage and feel.

Give yourself time to heal.

Don't tell me how to feel if you don't know what it feels like to feel the way I'm feeling.

You are a beautiful soul

You add to the beauty of this world just by being you.

*Even by your imperfections and your flaws,
by your up and down times,
by your stresses and your fears.*

All that is different is unique.

All that is unique is beautiful.

Your soul is beautiful because it's unique.

A world of my own

I used to think that you accepting me into your world would make me
the luckiest person on earth, as if luck belongs in places or humans.

Today,
I am thankful that there was no place for me
in your world.

I have created a world of my own.

And for that,
I am lucky.

Take your empty words

Take your empty words and swallow them.

Take your broken promises and untell them.

I thought you were great.

I thought you were different.

I thought you were faithful.

I thought losing you would be tragic.

I refused to see you through the eyes of those who love me.

And I refused to see myself through anyone's eyes but yours.

The eyes that lied and made mine cry don't mean a thing to me even if I tried.

So take my heavy words and digest them.
Because you forced yours down my throat way too many times.

Turn around and walk away like you did before.

Don't look back, because all you will see is a closed door.

Maps

All of the roads that lead to you, I have kept on my map to remind myself of all of the places that I should never again head to.

My address

Find me where kindness

is.

I dwell in the peace of heart that kindness
is.

Their karma

If you ever get the chance to treat them the way they treated you,
no matter how hurtful it was,
I hope that you choose to walk away
and do better.

*One day,
someone will ignore them the way they ignored you.*

*One day,
someone will belittle them the way they belittled you.*

*One day,
someone's voice will be higher than theirs,
as theirs was higher than yours.*

*One day,
they will be defeated by someone as they defeated you.*

*I just hope that someone is not
you.*

You are better than treating people the way they treat you.

A home for pain

If pain built a home in your heart,
remember that it has doors.

And it has windows.

Open the windows to allow happiness in.
Better yet, open the doors and walk outside.

Happiness is at your door, desperately waiting for you to open the door and let it in.

Trust your heart and open that door.

A letter to myself

Darling,

When did your heart become so weak?

When did the glare in your eyes fade?

When did you disappear into the darkness?

When did you start believing that you were nothing?

Did you forget the beauty that once shined from your soul?

Did you forget to see yourself through your eyes before you saw yourself through theirs?

Did you forget that happiness comes from within
you?

Smile, darling.

You are beautiful.

You don't need them to look at you before you look at yourself.

You don't need them to love you before you love yourself.

You are worthy of respect

You are worthy of respect, no matter what their mood is.
Do not accept less.
Your love for them speaks of
you,
not them.
Don't you ever regret your ability to
love.

They know that they don't deserve you

If they know that you deserve better, they will pretend not to want you.

They know that you will figure that out
one day.

They reject you to avoid the pain of you leaving them.

They will never admit that they hurt you

You do not need the permission of the one who hurt you to feel the pain that they caused
you.

Just because they don't acknowledge it, it doesn't mean that it doesn't exist.

Crystal ball

You told me to wait for you to find yourself, so I waited because your love was worth it.
I lost myself waiting for you, hoping that you would find me with you.
And when you found yourself, you did not find me with you.
I learned the hard way to never put myself under the mercy of anyone's crystal ball.
If I cannot be in their present, I do not want to be in their future.

A crystal ball does not contain you or your glory.

When pain knocks on your door

The pain is just meant to cleanse you.

If I had to choose between numbness and pain,

I'd choose to be in pain

for years than to put on a mask of strength

where my laugh is empty and my tears are too proud to spill an ocean.

One day, the pain will end,

and

I will laugh my heart out.

It may take years, but at least

I will keep my heart

alive and pure

instead of numb and tainted by pain that I refused to feel.

I trusted you to not break me further,
but you did

You promised that you would take care of the pieces of me that I entrusted to your heart.
Now I know that no one owns my pieces but me.

To a narcissist I once loved

I know that you are waiting for me to break down and contact you.

I know that you must be thinking that I am miserable waiting for you to give me attention.

But, you see,

I am not the person I once was.

You destroyed me over and over, but I built myself back up into someone you will never have the honor of getting to know.

Let them go

Sometimes,
the best thing you can do for someone you love is let them go.
Set them free.
Wish them happiness and set them free.

Set yourself free.

If you're feeling lost

Just because you are feeling lost, it does not mean that you need to go back their way, even if they were the only home you've ever known.

You left it for a reason.

Remember?

It is better to stay lost and search for a better home than to return to the home that was never really a home.

*Build your own
home.*

If your heart hurts

If your heart hurts,
be thankful.

At least you have a heart and at least it feels.

So many out there are in denial.

They inflict pain on others and don't feel it.

They commit selfish acts and call it self-love.

They break your back and tell you that it's your fault for being in the way.

If your heart hurts,
be thankful.

At least you know that you will not inflict pain on others because you know how it feels.

You know that you will not love yourself if it means hurting someone else.

You know that you will not break someone else's back just to get to your destination.

If your heart hurts,
love it back to peace.

Stop dwelling in the past

No, you could not have known better.

No, you would not do things differently if you went back.

No, they would not have treated you differently if you had acted,
looked,
or cared differently.

They are who they are regardless of who you are.

They were thrown your way for a reason.

Accept that
you cannot change people unless they want to change.

And it's not your job to fix what's been broken by someone else.

Make the choice to let go

Just like you made the choice to hold on,
you can make the choice to let go.

And if it's hard, then it must mean that you held on too tightly.

Be proud of your sincerity with your feelings,

but realize that if holding on is hurting you, then

you must let go.

Letting you go

I stopped choosing you when I chose to stop choosing you.

One day, the tables will turn

One day,
the tables will turn,
and your voice will be stronger than theirs.

One day,
you will be heard,
and they will have to listen.

One day,
you will have the opportunity to say what you've been waiting to say.

And I hope, on that day, that you are wise enough to say only what needs to be said.

And walk away.

Deaf hearts

Just because they do not listen,
it does not mean that you are not worthy of being heard.

Your voice may scare them because it causes thunder in their soul.

A choking tear

You are not too much of anything.

Maybe you are too much
love,
too much care, or too much innocence.

But that, there can never be too much of.

In fact, the world is suffering from people who have too little of that.

*He was the best thing that never happened to you.
And you will one day be a choking tear
in his heart
that he is too proud to admit was the best thing that could have ever happened to him.*

Lean into the discomfort

My heart tells me what I don't want to hear.
That is why I listen to it.
What we want to hear is always safe
and comfortable.
It is not always the truth.
So I've learned to listen to what makes me uncomfortable because I would rather listen
to the truth by my own will than be forced to believe it after it hurts me.

Conditional love

You were not addicted to their
love.

You were addicted to their
pain.

And when their pain
left,
their love for you
left.

*If their love for you depends on what you offer them,
it's not love.*

It's abuse.

*You deserve to be loved for who you are,
even when you are unable to give.*

Be kind, because that is who you are

Do not allow the ignorance of others to make you like them.

They are not you.

Rejection

So one person let you go.

One place let you go.

One idea let you go.

One dream gave up on you.

What about all the other people?

All the other places?

All the other ideas and dreams?

Are they not worth the chances that you took

once

before?

The love I want

I always imagined that falling in love would touch my soul before my body.
I always imagined that it would value the beauty inside of me before the color of my eyes,
the fairness of my skin,
or the lipstick I chose to wear.
I always imagined that love would free me, not enslave me.
Love to me is pure.
It is elevating.
It is empowering.
So if you don't have that kind of love for me, then walk away.

I will not settle for less than what my soul is worth.

Unrequited love

If I love you,
I will tell you that I love you.
And if you choose to leave,
I might beg you to stay because I love you.
But I cannot make you stay if you choose to walk away.
Rest assured,
I will not pretend not to care just to deny that you were the one to leave.
I'd rather love you and not be loved in return by you,
and crumble in my pain over the loss of love with you, than pretend that my love for you was a lie.
My strength does not come from my pride.
It comes from my vulnerability to break my heart open when it is broken.

I don't miss you

I don't miss

you.

I miss

the person I thought you were.

I did not love

you.

I loved

the person you pretended to be.

When I feel lost,

I doubt every feeling

I ever felt.

Just words

If their love one day turns out to be just words,
don't doubt for a moment that you should walk away.
And these are not just words.

*When I reminded you of things you used to say,
you said:
"Just words."*

You are bigger than their pain

Maybe you will live with the regret of allowing yourself to allow someone to put you down and use you.

But they will one day live with the regret of putting someone down and using them.

Maybe you will live with the pain of their words.

And maybe you will live with the pain of seeing them move on and go places.

But they will one day live with the regret of using the wrong words with you.

And they will move on to hurt the next person.

The places they will go are nothing because they are empty of emotion.

Their places may be grand, but their lives are small, so small.

You are bigger than their pain.

You are bigger than their words.

You are bigger than worrying about where they are.

Look at your own path.

Forgive me for writing so negatively about you.

You have love within you.

You just haven't chosen to awaken it

yet.

Extraction

You took me out of your
sky.

So I took you out of my universe.

I feel free.

You are the sun

Drown me in darkness so that I may rise lightly
with light.

Love the hatred out of them.

If you hate them for the hatred that they have for
you,
how will you teach them what love truly is?

I wasn't the only one

With tears in my eyes one night, I told the stars
about you.

They listened to me as if they had known you for years.

They told me that I was not the first one who had spoken to them of your pain.

They told me to let you go,
because you had so much more pain to inflict upon me, as you had on others.

I listened to them and let you go.

And a wish upon a shooting star sent me the person I had always wished for.

Me.

When your abuser has you caged

It hurts when the one who broke your wings is the one with the electric wire.

Every time you heal a little and try to fly again, they break you even harder.

And every time you try to speak, they break your soul again even harder.

*Your soul is a bird, love.
Take a few steps away from the pain and fly away.*

To the one who broke me, and I hope you read this
one day:

Break,
break,
break me as much as you want.
Crack my heart
as many times as it takes for your ego to feel as strong as you want it to be.
That is all you will ever be:
a soul who chose to break instead of heal.
Time has destined for you to have power over me, but time will turn around,
as karma does,
and I will one day have the power to chain you,
belittle you,
and use you
as you used me.
I will have that power,
and instead of using it, I will leave you;
and instead of shattering your ego some more,
I will sew it back together.
You see,
when my parents raised me, they cautioned me about men like you.
I will not dishonor them by wasting my heart on hurting a nothing like you.

Wish them healing

I know that you want to see them hurt
the way they hurt you.

But, believe me,
you are above that.

For them to hurt you, they must have

pain
inside of them.

They don't need to be hurt.

They need to be healed.

I am not telling you that it's fair for them to get away with hurting you.

Just be the bigger,
wiser,

more understanding
person.

Don't let them make you like them.

Wish them healing.

Wish them love.

And walk away.

Even if they chose to walk away first.

They need to find their way.

You causing them pain only makes you worse and them worse.

If you can't do good for this world,

then stand still.

But you know that you are better than that.

You blamed me

You told me what you did not mean and then punished me for believing it.

And when I told you that it was unfair,
you told me that life
is unfair.

People like you blame anything but themselves for the choices that they choose to make.

If it's not life,
it's a person, and if it's not a person,
it's life.

But
never you.

*If you want to occupy a place
in my heart,
step one is to be honest
with me.*

*Otherwise, turn the other way.
I only build homes in my heart for sincere humans.*

Rage

Why are you
so quiet?
The ocean within
you
is raging.
Let your words
flow.
Let your soul
scream gently, kindly,
softly.

*There is a part of you that is so ready for this change.
You know it.
Just go ahead.
Wonder is awaiting
you.
Take the risk.*

Gaslighting

It is not their true colors that you suddenly see.

Their colors were always
there.

It is your eyes that colored them
with kindness.

*Yet their silence somehow convinces you that something is wrong with
you.*

My saddest goodbye

You will always be
my saddest goodbye.
And the most heartbreaking story I will ever tell.
You will always be the hardest lesson I had to learn when I did not want to
and the reason I learned to never put someone before me.
You will always be the best thing that never happened to me.
Thank you for walking away.
If you had not let go of me, I would not have what I have today.

*I would not be who I am
today.*

Stop breaking

If they already broke you, why are you still broken while they are already breaking someone else?

Start building your own empire.

Scarred eyes

Sometimes,
a stranger can look into your eyes
once
and not only see but fully understand your sadness.
No words.
No conversations.
You just both know.
You just both get it.
And you wonder how it took moments for a stranger to see what those around you, for years,
did not see.

Our eyes reflect the scars carved into our souls.

What you truly need

*It is not their love that you need.
It is your love for yourself that you need.*

I will repeat this as many times as it takes for you
to believe it.

I was not ready

I was not ready for you to let me go.

You were not ready for someone to hold on to
you.

I hated you for giving up on me.
And you hated me for reminding you that you are so scared of love.

I consider myself the hero for taking a risk on you and you the coward for awakening someone's heart with no intention of continuing the journey.

I salute you.

Sarcasm has always irritated me, but your tone must have tainted my ability to weigh my words properly.

To the man who once said he loved me

I did not ask you to pretend to understand me.

I did not ask you to say that you would stay.

I did not ask you to ask

me

to love

you.

But you did.

And I thought you understood me.

I thought you'd stay.

I thought your love would last.

But my soul became too heavy on you.

You walked away.

You left me wondering

why you chose someone broken like me to break even more.

*Even if you say you never intended
it,*

I am still broken.

Internalizing fate

We all know that if it's not meant to be,
it will not happen.

If it's meant to be,
it will.

We all know that everything happens for a reason.

And one day, we will know that reason.

What we need is strength in the moment
to think that way.

It should not be easy
to not get what you want to get.

It should not be easy
to not be loved back.

It should not be easy
to work hard and not reach your destination.

It's okay to feel pain.

It takes time to accept realities that we don't want to accept.

And just because reality is painful, it does not mean that you are not worthy of good things coming your way.
It means that you must change the direction that you are looking in.

I thank fate

I always wished that you gave me a chance to show you what life with me would be like.

Now that I see what life without you is like, I understand why fate never answered my wish.
You see, fate took care of me, and you helped it by causing the pain that you caused me.

Thank you.

Forgive them

Forgive them,
not because they asked for your forgiveness
or because they deserve it or because the pain they caused you is not worth it but because you cannot truly
move on without forgiving.

It shows your level of maturity and your ability to understand that life is not always fair and that someone's behavior speaks of them,
not you.

Your forgiveness speaks of you,
not them.

I thought that I needed your apology to move on.

I really needed to forgive myself first.

The price of understanding me

When I no longer want to be heard by you,
that is when you will want to listen to what I have to say.

It will be too late then.

The moment I knew I no longer wanted you

I knew that my wanting for you ended when I saw you for the first time
months later
and all I wanted to do was vomit
nectar all over you,
to soak you,
drown you,
and consume you.
I wanted to punch your face, which I vaguely recall,
with kindness
and rip your heart out of your ego and put it back where it belongs.

My dear reader,

I see that your heart is heavy and that you are struggling to carry it and find a home.

I want to tell you that if you ever need my help,

I will help you carry it through my words.

I will help you find a home.

My heart is here to help lift yours.

My dear self

I apologize.

For not putting you first.

For putting them first.

For making your worth dependent on how they saw

you.

For making their words more important than
yours.

For not allowing myself to forgive you or to forgive me.

Forgive me.

For believing them when they said that something was wrong with you.

Forgive me for not believing in
you.

Forgive me for loving them more than loving you.

Forgive me for not loving you.

My heart cries every time I read this.

Beautiful soul

Stay kind.

It makes you beautiful.

Stay kind

Your kindness might cause you to lose some people.
Stay kind, though.
If you lose them because you are kind
and nice,
it's their loss,
not yours.

*If you don't like my truth, don't try to put me down, because I will not change myself to please you.
Just as I respect you as you are,
respect me as I am.*

Golden soul

If your heart is kind,
your soul is golden.

Don't ever change.

Dare to look outside

In your little world, you may be unwanted.
If you dare to look outside,
and I hope you do,
you will see that there is a whole new world right outside of the cage that
you
are caging yourself
in that loves your wings and loves to see you
fly.

Sad rebellion

You walk, hiding half of yourself and a little more than half.
You don't tell them what keeps you up at night, nor do you tell them what keeps you going.
You don't tell them
the things you know you need to say.
You don't tell them what scares you to death.
You don't tell them
what hurts you,
nor do you tell them that you care.
And somehow in that beautiful silence, there is a strong but
sad rebellion
against allowing love
in.

Be certain

One day,
they will regret the time they spent away from those who love them to stay with those whose love they want.

If you believed in them so much, imagine how much you can believe in yourself.

It's magical what belief can do.

So go ahead.

Start the magic.

Lean into your sadness

You know the kind of sadness that makes you want to be quiet?

That makes you want to be alone?

Isolated?

Far, far away?

That makes you want to reevaluate everything in life?

That's not sadness.

It's an awakening within you.

Don't ignore it.

Let it overtake you so you,

yes you,

may overtake it.

The best decision

Here is a hard truth
to accept:
You cannot make someone
love you.

Here is a harder truth
to accept:
The best decision that you will ever make is to stop wanting the love of someone who does not love you.

My dear reader,

I hope that your soul
meets its fate
at the most beautiful,
pure,
and spontaneous
moment.

Choose happiness

Sadly ever after happens too, when we find it so hard to let go of what we invested so much time
in.

I would rather let go of years of investing in the wrong person and be in pain than continue to choose sadness.

Why people always leave

You wonder why people always leave.

I will tell you why.

You always want to change yourself into what they like because you are so afraid that they might not love you
for who you are.

You are afraid to say no because you are afraid of displeasing them.

You give them excuses because that's what good people do.

They walk away because they don't understand that it is out of love, not weakness,
that you are like that.

Life is unfair

Life is not fair,
but we can choose to be fair humans
even if life or other humans choose to be unfair
to us.

*I told you this when I asked you how you changed without allowing me to grieve.
Your answer was:
“Life is unfair.”*

Thank you for silencing me

Thank you for silencing me.
You led me to break the silence of thousands who have met humans like you who chose not to use their hearts to love, to allow their consciences to be just or their broken pasts to heal the wounds of the broken.
Thank you for loving me only when you needed someone to love you.
You led me to understand that in times of our need for love, our hearts are the most beautiful.
Thank you for leaving me when I needed you most.
You led me to myself.
You led me to needing my own heart.
You led me to my voice.

*Don't you ever think that I will hate you.
You taught me more than any book could ever teach me about
love,
life,
and authenticity with my feelings.*

Stay you

Let your soul flow through these words as you turn your pain into nectar.
Never allow someone's sting to make you bitter.
Keep your kindness
kind.
Keep your love
loving.
Keep your forgiveness
forgiving.
And keep your purity pure.

Say:
If you are disrespectful with me, I will move out of your way, but I will not disrespect you.
I will not be unkind to you.
I will not mirror your actions.
Who are you to make me step down to a level where I don't belong?

They'll always have something to judge you for

If you write about love, they might say that you're in love.
And if you write about heartache, they might say that you're heartbroken.
If you write about happiness, they might wonder why you're so happy.
And if you write about sadness, they might pretend like they didn't hear it.
If you write about loss, they might pity you.
And if you speak the truth, they might criticize you.
So let it be that you're in love.
Have they not been?
Let it be that you've been heartbroken.
Who is not?
Let it be that you're happy or sad.
Is it not normal?
Let it be that you've lost.
We've all lost.
But don't you ever let what people think stop you from expressing yourself.

Let your soul shine through your words.

There is no right way to heal

I always know how to start but never know how to end.

I am learning to let go of what I cannot control.

I am learning to be okay with stories that end in the middle.

I am learning that there is no right way to end.

I said it before and I will say it
again,
there is a sadness attached to endings that no beginning can erase.

Stories that mean something

to us

never end when or how we want them to.

*But for new stories to begin,
old ones must end.*

They will love you

If they love you,
they won't change you.

If they love you,
they won't break your wings.

They won't cage you or stop you from flying.

If they love you,
they will actually
love
you.

*Love tastes of sweetness, nectar,
and respect.*

Don't lose hope

Someone,
somewhere,
is looking for the exact same love that you have to offer.

The exact same love that the one who hurt you did not appreciate.

Don't lose hope.

And don't settle.

The most beautiful love stories are those that come after you realize what you deserve and you actually finally get it.

You deserve someone who loves your way of love.

Someone who loves you.

Because you are a good heart

Here's the thing about people with good hearts. They give you excuses when you don't explain yourself. They accept apologies you don't give. They see the best in you when you don't need them to. At your worst, they lift you up, even if it means putting their priorities aside. The word busy does not exist in their dictionary. They make time, even when you don't. And you wonder why they're the most sensitive people. You wonder why they're the most caring people. You wonder why they are willing to give so much of themselves with no expectation in return. You wonder why their existence is not so essential to your well-being. It's because they don't make you work hard for the attention they give you. They accept the love they think they've earned, and you accept the love you think you're entitled to. Let me tell you something. Fear the day when a good heart gives up on you. Our skies don't become gray out of nowhere. Our sunshine does not allow the darkness to take over for no reason. A heart does not turn cold unless it's been treated with coldness for a while.

To you, dear reader:

I hope that you found
yourself
in one of my pages.
I have stories within me that novels cannot contain.
I am afraid that I will die before I give birth to the words in my soul
through my lips.
Thank you
for walking this journey
with my soul.
I sincerely hope that you now have the courage to climb over the mountains
in your way.

Love, Najwa

Acknowledgments

Thank you
for healing with me, for holding my hand as I felt my pain, and for allowing me to hold your hand as you felt yours.

Thank you
for crying with me as I cleansed my soul, and for allowing me to cry with you as you cleansed yours.

And to the light inside my eyes,

Baba,

thank you for allowing me to carry on your torch, spreading your flame through the world like wildfire.

About the Author

Najwa Zebian is a Lebanese-Canadian author, speaker, and educator. Her passion for language was evident from a young age, as she delved into Arabic poetry and novels. The search for a home—what Najwa describes as a place where the soul and heart feel at peace—was central to her early years. When she arrived in Canada at the age of sixteen, she felt unstable and adrift in an unfamiliar place. Nevertheless, she completed her education and went on to become a teacher as well as a doctoral candidate in educational leadership. Her first students, a group of young refugees, led her back to her original passion: writing. She began to heal her sixteen-year-old self by writing to heal her students. Since self-publishing her first collection of poetry and prose in 2016, Najwa has become an inspiration to millions of people worldwide. Drawing on her own experiences of displacement, discrimination, and abuse, Najwa uses her words to encourage others to build a home within themselves; to live, love, and create fearlessly.

Instagram

@najwazebian

Twitter

@najwazebian

Facebook

@najwazebian1

YouTube

youtube.com/najwazebian

The Nectar of Pain copyright © 2018 by Najwa Zebian. All rights reserved.

No part of this book may be used or reproduced in any manner whatsoever without written permission except in the case of reprints in the context of reviews.

Andrews McMeel Publishing

a division of Andrews McMeel Universal 1130 Walnut Street, Kansas City, Missouri 64106

www.andrewsmcmeel.com

ISBN: 978-1-4494-9988-4

Library of Congress Control Number: 2017962599

Editor: Melissa Rhodes

Art Director/Designer: Holly Swayne

Production Editor: Elizabeth A. Garcia

Production Manager: Cliff Koehler

Digital Production: Kristen Minter

Check out these other great titles from Andrews McMeel Publishing!

>

